The Hesperian-Beacon has spelled Floydada at-large councilman Cory Speed as Corey Speed in recent coverage about city elections. His name is spelled Cory Speed.

CORRECTION

In the January 22nd edition of the Hesperian-Beacon, a story about the Floydada City election reported,

"The City of Floydada will also have a special election on the May 5 ballot for a one-fourth of one cent sales tax increase."

It should have said, "The ballot initiative will reauthorize ¼ of 1% sales tax for street repair/maintenance. This is not a tax increase just a continuation of the existing street tax."

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor,

I wrote and submitted this letter to Senators Cornyn and Cruz, my local congresswoman, our governor, and seek to disseminate it to as many sources as possible in the attempt of continuing, highlighting, and strengthening our national conversation and in the hopes that it will affect positive dialogue and change.

WILL MY CHILD BE MURDERED NEXT???

You are my elected representative. It is your duty to represent the interests and priorities of your constituents, and maybe most importantly, the safety of your constituents. So, I would like to make my position very clear.

Unequivocally, it is my interest, my priority, my safety, and my expectation that you help to develop and pass legislation that will ban all weapons of war for individuals, all modifications that essentially create weapons of war for individuals, and require universal background checks for the purchase of all firearms, in both Texas and the United States of America. If the purpose of the weapon or the modification is to maximize death toll in the shortest period of time, it is my expectation that you will take immediate action to pass legislation banning it for private use. It is my expectation that you help to construct legislation in which there are not loopholes that allow these weapons and modifications to be legally purchased, or legally possessed, by civilians.

I grew up on a small cotton farm in Floydada, Texas. I have been around guns my entire life. I am a current gun owner. I support the right of Americans to bear arms. I agree with the intentions of our founding fathers to secure the right of Americans to protect themselves, their families, and their homes. Additionally, I recognize and appreciate the intentional protections set forth regarding militias, especially in the context and climate of that time, their importance in the American Revolution. However, I do not interpret the 2nd amendment nor any part of the Constitution as protection for any American civilian to own a weapon that is designed to kill the maximum number of people as possible in the shortest possible time. These weapons are not for hunting; they are not for home protection. And they should not be in the hands of American civilians.

If you are worried that gun legislation is a slippery slope, I understand. I do not intend to diminish or discard that fear, or dismiss the possibility that one constraint will lead to another, and another. I understand the fear that if we start down this path, congress could whittle away at the 2nd amendment to a point where it no longer looks anything like the freedoms and rights intended by our founding fathers. It could happen, yes. However, what can be certain is that another mass murder WILL happen. If you do not take action now, the mass murder of more innocent people will take place. In a church? At a concert? At a school? At my son's school? Will my son be the next victim and I will bury him at the age of 11? Or will he merely be a witness to an unspeakable horror in which he watches his friends and teachers be murdered en masse, that will haunt him, affect him, and terrorize him every single day for the rest of his life?

Arming teachers is not a viable solution. It is an absurd notion that carries significantly more dangers and risks than even the farthest-fetched imaginable benefits. Fences around schools are not the answer. Passing a universal background check system is not the answer, though I believe it is one small piece of the puzzle that I absolutely expect you to help develop legislation for and to pass. Armed guards at every entrance and exit to every school in our nation are not a solution. Bonuses for teachers who bring weapons into my son's classroom are not a solution. Nor are metal detectors. The solution is so painfully obvious. It has been demonstrated over and over again in other countries: gun legislation and restrictions reduce gun violence. It is that simple. This is incontrovertible, evidence-based, results-based fact. Your continued failure to enact even the most basic protections for your constituents, for my family, friends and coworkers, for my son, is appalling and must be course-corrected immediately. If you fail to do so, you are saying that an individual's desire to own a weapon of war is more important than the life of my son. That may be so, to you. What about the life of your son or daughter? Would you willingly trade your child's life for someone else's hobby? If not, then my expectation is that you immediately stop gambling the life of my child for the same.

And to those that own these weapons and/or modifications, please consider this: god forbid it's your gun used to perpetrate one of these unspeakable tragedies. God forbid it is your child, or friend, or family member, and you just missed the signs, you didn't want to believe your loved one capable of something like this, you didn't recognize their devolving stability. God forbid your child or loved one takes your weapon of war and uses it for the purpose for which it is intended: killing as many people as possible in the shortest possible time. Make no mistake, none of the people who have committed these horrendous atrocities have lived in a bubble — they had family, friends, coworkers, roommates, or neighbors. They went to grocery stores and jobs and to school. And now that we are all grappling with the real fear that our child or loved one could potentially be the next victim, imagine the horror, the responsibility, if your weapon is used to murder some else's child. How would you feel if your weapon is used to murder my son? Are you absolved if you merely support someone else's "right" to own a weapon of war that results in the murder of my only son? I do not say this to alienate, but rather to candidly address all of our own private moments of terror. "The man who did this was someone's child, someone's brother, someone's friend. No one I know could ever be capable of such a thing." But that's the point. In our current state, we all, literally ALL have been impacted by gun violence. We ALL have been horrified at the almost routine murder of our children. Or we've been victims. Or we have known or loved victims. And a small subset of us have known someone who did this. It is terrifying to think that all of us could potentially know someone capable of such an act... It's what no one wants to think about. "My child will be safe at his school; my town is different." or "My child could never do this." But our children's safety simply cannot be taken for granted anymore. Nor can we continue to bury our heads in the sand and assume that no one we know or love could do something like that. Because reality must be given more authority in our lives than what we want to believe.

In the aftermath of a preventable, horrific tragedy, it is the duty of our elected officials to take steps to prevent another such occurrence. This is not "politicizing a tragedy." It is a sacred responsibility of our elected representatives who are supposed to be serving the American People. There is a problem, we elect you to fix it.

Fix it. Determine that my son's life is more important than someone's hobby.

Help to construct and pass legislation that legally places my son's life at a higher value than an unevolved constitutional amendment from 1789, used out of context, and in the absence of reasonable maturation. Help write this legislation; pursue it. Develop it. And pass it. With your actions, act as my elected representative and prove that my son's life is worth more. Or will you continue to sit by, or worse, resist, and just let him be murdered next?

Orange Plastic Easter Egg

Jesus said, "Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the treasury."
—Mark 12:43 (NRSV)

I was awakened by the phone ringing at 6:00 a.m., and like any parent I immediately feared bad news about my children. Instead, I was alerted to a raging fire that was consuming a home four houses away. Even more devastating, the fire claimed the life of one of the occupants.

Later that day, I set out in the neighborhood asking for financial assistance for the lone survivor of the fire. At one home, I explained my intentions to a grandmother who was seated on her front porch with her granddaughter. asked to go into the house and get her purse. After returning with the purse, handed me an orange, plastic Easter egg. The clang of a few coins inside it made me ask, "What is this?" The young girl replied, "It's only 45 cents. That's all I had."

This reminded me of Jesus' story of the Widow's Offering, and I related it to them. When I asked who in the story gave the most, she simply smiled. This young girl had been moved to action upon hearing of a total stranger's need. Like the widow in Jesus' story, she gave all she had.

—John A. Marcolini (Pennsylvania)

Alternative crops add options for farmers

Special for The Hesperian-Beacon
<http://texasfarmbureau.org/alternative-crops-add-options-farmers/>

Although alternative crops won't replace top commodities, they will serve as drought-tolerant rotation options that can pay off when the price is right, according to AgriLife Extension experts.

Crops such as sunflowers, sesame and guar are viable options for farmers, especially in the Rolling Plains and High Plains, when it comes to replanting on a failed field. Adding those crops into a grower's rotation also can benefit soil health and provide access to other markets when prices and industry demand, according to Extension agronomist Dr. Calvin Trostle.

Some farmers in Central Texas are harvesting sunflowers now and reporting good yields, Trostle said. One farmer in Ellis County reported that sunflowers are doing better than any other crop he planted this year.

Trostle noted sunflowers make a good rotation crop for cotton because they are drought-tolerant and have a wide planting window.

"Producers seem to like them, but it comes down to how many contracts are there to be filled," he said. "The price goes up and down based on the number of acres the industry needs."

West Texas cotton farmers have the option of planting guar, a drought-tolerant legume, as part of their crop rotation. Guar is used to produce food emulsifiers and lubricants for oil and gas drilling and fracking.

Experts say the number of alternative crop acres fluctuates with prices on the top commodities like corn, cotton and wheat.

"Any time you see dips in the commodity prices, you'll typically see more alternative crop acres planted," Dr. Clark Neely, AgriLife Extension specialist, told AgriLife Today.

Canola, a cool-season oilseed crop, is also growing in demand as an alternative crop as wheat prices have fallen. Winter canola grown in Texas has a price advantage because the majority of North American canola is spring canola.

New pesticide applicator training set March 22 in Canyon

By Kay Ledbetter
 Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

CANYON — A Pesticide Applicator Training, open to anyone wanting a private applicator license in the region, will be conducted March 22 by the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service at the Kuhlman Extension Center, 200 N. Brown Road in Canyon.

The training will begin at 9 a.m. with registration starting at 8:30. The training should conclude around 12 p.m., said Dr. J. D. Ragland, AgriLife Extension agriculture and natural resources agent for Randall County. In addition, Ragland said he will be offering the mandated auxin training from 1-2 p.m. for those who still may need it. There will be one Texas Department of Agriculture continuing education unit offered in laws and regulations.

"For the pesticide applicator training, I'm requesting that those attending already have their training guide purchased and bring it with them to the training," Ragland said.

Ragland will use the training guide, "Using Pesticides Private Applicators Manual," to teach the program. This guide can be ordered at <https://agrillife.org/aes/> or by calling (979) 845-1099. The manual cost is $40.

Those planning to attend must RSVP by 5 p.m. March 19 by calling the AgriLife Extension office for Randall County at (806) 468-5543. There is a $10 fee for the meeting, and will also include the afternoon auxin training.

"This is just the training," Ragland emphasized. "No testing will be provided on this day."

Following the training, Ragland said participants will be given two forms: Training Verification form, D-1411, verifying completion of training; and the Private Pesticide Applicator License Application form, PA-400P.

The application can also be obtained at <https://www.texasagriculture.gov> or by calling 1-800-835-5832 or (512) 463-7622. To locate a form, click on the top menu bar "Forms." Click to the second page and at the top will be PA-400P for download. Completed forms and fee of $100 should be mailed to Texas Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 12076, Austin, Texas 78711-2076.

Farmers can nominate local schools for Monsanto grants until April 1

Special to the Hesperian-Beacon

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — In 2018, it is projected that 2.4 million jobs in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) will go unfilled. To help K-12 educators enhance their STEM curriculum and excite their students about these fields, the America's Farmers Grow Rural Education program, sponsored by the Monsanto Fund, will once again provide farmers with the opportunity to nominate their local public schools for the chance to receive $10,000 or $25,000 grants.

Because farmers know the needs of their communities, they kick off the Grow Rural Education program by nominating a local school to apply for one of the grants. Farmers can nominate their local school by visiting GrowRuralEducation.com. The process takes less than five minutes and has made a lasting impact in countless classrooms.

"Winning an America's Farmers Grow Rural Education grant gave my students a lesson that they will remember for a lifetime," said Vic Worthington, an eighth grade science and technology teacher at Rochelle Middle School in Rochelle, Illinois.

Worthington's class received a $25,000 grant and used a portion of the funds to build a 3-D printer. After learning about how Jake Hubbard, a local Illinois farmer, lost his left arm in a farming accident, Worthington and his class spent an entire school year researching, designing and building a prosthetic arm. In May 2017, the students presented Hubbard with the new prosthetic.

"When word spread about what our students were building, we had countless people in the community and even an engineer from Ohio pitch in to make this project a reality," said Worthington.

As for Hubbard, the prosthetic gave him newfound mobility, including playing with and holding his young children. "It's pretty heartwarming that the students would do that, especially for someone that they had never met before," Hubbard said.

Farmers can nominate their school district from through April 2, 2018. After the school district receives a nomination, the Monsanto Fund will notify the district and encourage administrators and teachers to design a grant that enhances STEM education for their students.

Nominated school districts have until April 15, 2018 to submit a grant application describing their project. An advisory council composed of farmer leaders then reviews finalist applications and selects the winning school districts.

"Whether students plan to enroll in college or find a job after high school, it is important for them to have a STEM foundation," said Al Mitchell, Monsanto Fund President. "Grow Rural Education provides farmers with a way to give back, and farmers that have nominated grant-winning districts are thrilled to see how $10,000 and $25,000 grants can transform a classroom."

Since 2011, more than $14 million has been awarded to school districts through the Grow Rural Education program. More information about the program can be found at GrowRuralEducation.com and facebook.com/AmericasFarmers.

We Need Driver's Education

By Jacob Chavarria
FHS Journalism

Getting a license is something that every teen should do, especially during their high school years. Licenses are a "big deal" because they give you the right to drive legally. Not every teen is able to take time out of their busy schedule during the school year to do an online driving course, and doing it during the summer can be hard because...this is when teens like to hang out with their friends; they don't want to worry about having to do work! Having a solution for driving education would be beneficial to high school students because - let's face it - the alternative is to turn the other cheek when they are driving anyway.

Not every student in high school is able to afford to enroll in private driving courses, nor do they have the time. Teens are notorious for being unable to be pinned down for very long or for arbitrary reasons. Driver's Ed would create an opportunity that favors the real world. Most teenagers can acknowledge the benefit of a well-implemented course and would celebrate the chance at earning something for themselves.

In its current state, FHS has an abundance of juniors and seniors who would gladly fill their schedules with something like Driver's Ed. Upperclassmen need to be able to earn something tangible with their real-world knowledge and skills, and not doing so when given the chance seems like a waste. In our school, students aren't allowed far from the shackles of the classroom. We are forced into academic pursuits and to adhere to curriculums that are decided by someone else. From a common sense approach, it seems impossible that Driver's Ed ever went away because everyone drives. Logic would dictate that we need to prepare our youth for transportation. It's sort of a no-brainer that teens would welcome something as basic as this kind of class.

In your hometown, half of the teens on the road are unlicensed and uninsured, and less than half of those are working towards a permit. You might not call it a hazard...yet. Of course, there are circumstances in students' own lives that prevent them from being licensed at the first opportunity, but I still advocate for a school-taught approach to driving because - in Texas - driving is an expectation of most adults. We are morally obligated to protect others on the road...even if it's from ourselves!

Tahoka Defeats Resilient Whirlwinds

"Powered by Narrative Science and GameChanger Media. Copyright 2018. All rights reserved"

Whirlwinds fought back after falling down by seven runs in the sixth inning. The comeback fell just short though, in an 11-9 defeat to Tahoka on Monday. Whirlwinds scored five runs in the failed comeback on a single by Jeremiah Johnston in the sixth, a single by Devan Perez in the sixth, a groundout by Mike Delafuente in the seventh, and a groundout by Jacob Chavarria in the seventh.

Despite the loss, Whirlwinds did collect eight hits in the high-scoring affair. Unfortunately, Tahoka had nine hits on the way to victory.

Whirlwinds scored three runs in the sixth inning. Whirlwinds' big bats in the inning were led by singles by Johnston and Perez.

Tahoka scored four runs in the sixth inning. Tahoka scored its runs on a grand slam by Brayden Castillon.

Ruben Quinonez got the start for Tahoka. He lasted five and two-thirds innings, allowing six hits and seven runs while striking out nine and walking zero.

Alex Glass led things off on the hill for Whirlwinds. He went four innings, allowing six runs on five hits and striking out five. Perez and Luke Holcombe entered the game as relief, throwing two innings and one inning respectively.

Whirlwinds scattered eight hits in the game. Perez and Glass each had multiple hits for Whirlwinds. Glass and Perez each managed two hits to lead Whirlwinds. Whirlwinds was sure-handed in the field and didn't commit a single error. Jose Lira had the most chances in the field with ten.

Tahoka racked up nine hits. Castillon, Juwan Hamilton, and Quinonez all collected multiple hits for Tahoka. Castillon went 3-for-4 at the plate to lead Tahoka in hits.

Be the early bird.

Waking up early can help late-night stress to subside

By Jacob Chavarria
FHS Journalism

As a high school or college student, there are always times when you forget to do a paper or you go "hang out" with friends. Then you remember that you have not done that one paper or essay you have to do. By the time you start this paper it may be almost midnight or about time when you should be going to sleep. And when you get this paper done it is late and you have to start getting up to get ready for school in about 4 or 5 hours. As a young teen I to have fell in this same position at times. Recently I have found that going to bed at a decent time and doing that work you forgot about early in the morning is very beneficial. Doing the work in the morning is useful because your more alert and you still get a decent amount of sleep.

When you stay up late to finish whatever assignments you owe, majority of the time you are just trying to get the work done with. By the time you remember about this work you might have already been asleep or you could have had a long exhausting day. So now your just trying to get that work done so you can go to sleep. This means that the quality of the work isn't going to be as excellent as it should be. However if you wake up early to do your work your brain and body has had time to rest and now you can think clearly. Now you not stressed about going to bed at a reasonable time instead you're just worried about getting the paper done in time, but if you give yourself enough time to work this is no big deal. Not only does getting up early help getting your work done but it can also help your sleep amount increase.

As a teen in high school sleep is very important especially to keep you active and making sure your focused when you get to school. Even though we know how important sleep is to us we never seem to go to sleep at a reasonable time during a school week. You may ask why this is? Majority of the time the answer is that the student stayed up late to do work. If most students went to bed early and woke up early they could still get a decent amount of time to work while getting 6-7 hours of sleep. While 6 or 7 hours is not a very great amount of sleep for teens it is still better than 3 or none at all. Most teens can go to bed between 10 and 11 and depending on the amount of work they have get up at about 5 AM to start working. Why this sound very early it still allows student that 6-7 hours of sleep.

A recent survey showed that 86 percent of students said they gave up sleep to finish work. This could all change by teens making a switch in their choices they make. Parents should be aware of their student's habits and see the impact of doing work in the morning versus doing work at late hours of the night. So to help teens get more sleep they should change from doing work at night to getting up early and doing work all while getting a decent amount of sleep to where the student isn't falling asleep in classes.

No Floydada School Board election in May

By Kay Ellington
The Hesperian-Beacon

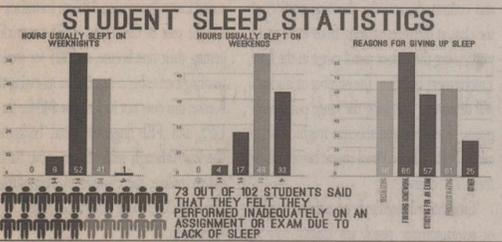

The Floydada Independent School District has two uncontested positions on the ballot for May 5. Both incumbents have filed to run again, but drew no opponents; so, there will not be a school board election in Floydada on May 5.

For FISD the District 1 position currently held by Roger Hughes and the District 2 position currently held by Dr.

William Dean are both up for re-election. Both incumbents filed, but drew no opponents. So they both will serve the next term.

Longhorns fall to Sanford-Fritch in Area playoff

By Charles Keaton
The Hesperian-Beacon

AMARILLO – Lockney could not make the magic happen two games in a row as the Sanford-Fritch Eagles held off a Longhorn comeback at Canyon Randall High School on Friday, Feb. 23, defeating Lockney 80-76.

The Eagles jumped out to a 10-point lead in the first quarter, outscoring the Longhorns 23-13. In the second quarter, the Longhorns pulled to within one point at halftime, outscoring the Eagles 26-17 but the Eagles had the 40-39 lead at the half. Sanford-Fritch put the heat back on Lockney, as they outscored the Longhorns 22-14 to take a 62-53 lead after three quarters. Lockney made a game of it in the fourth quarter as they outscored the Eagles 23-18, but it wasn't enough as Sanford-Fritch took home the Area title, 80-76. The Eagles move on to take on Stratford, a 59-35 winner over Post.

For Lockney, Jaden Rosales had 28 points and Chris Emert had 22 points to lead the Longhorns.

For Sanford-Fritch, Brayden Fry had 36 points and Sam Plumley had 20 points to lead the Eagles.

Watch UR BAC Program Comes to Floyd County

By Amy Kress
CEA-FCH, Floyd County

Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service, through a grant from the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), has a campaign, Watch UR BAC, to teach Texans about the dangers of alcohol and other drugs misuse—including binge drinking, the understanding of alcohol poisoning as well as the dangers of impaired driving. The Watch UR BAC program is a free resource to Texas community groups, faith-based organizations, schools, and businesses. Watch UR BAC is an awareness campaign that refers to blood alcohol concentration (BAC) which is used as a measure of the degree of intoxication of an individual. Binge drinking is a continuing problem in Texas, and most who binge drink do not know the amount and effects of the alcohol they are consuming.

In 2017 there were 3,315 fatal motor vehicle crashes and of these crashes, 1,073 were caused by a driver under the influence. The average BAC of a driver in a fatal DUI crash is 0.157 – almost twice the legal limit. With the support of the Floyd County Commissioners' Court, County Extension Agents, Amy Kress and Cristen Brooks implemented the Watch UR BAC program in Floyd County. On February 12, the Floyd County Extension Office and members of the Watch UR BAC team hosted a special training for local law enforcement. Bobbi Brooks, program manager, and Denise Klaus, program assistant, provided information about emerging alcohol and drug trends and ways to recognize signs of abuse along with prevention methods.

Eighty Floydada High School juniors and seniors and sixty Lockney High School juniors and seniors participated in assemblies on February 13 and February 14 educating students about driving while intoxicated, alcohol poisoning, and binge drinking. On both days after a short assembly hosted by Bobbi Brooks and Denise Klaus, students participated in four hands-on activities. The first rotation was the DWI (driving while intoxicated) prevention simulator which is used to demonstrate the effect of alcohol and other drugs on driving skills. Through a video game atmosphere, drivers experience obstacles and hazards to simulate those that one might encounter if driving impaired. Fatal Vision© goggles, which distort vision, are worn by the driver during the simulation experience to further duplicate the effect of alcohol or other drugs on one's vision. The next station was a Distracted Driving simulator which is similar to the DWI prevention simulator, however students are asked to use their phone and other distractions while driving in order to experience the risks. In the third hands-on activity, students went through a series of standard field sobriety tests, conducted by deputies from the Floyd County Sheriff's Office, while wearing the Fatal Vision© goggles. The last activity utilized goggles simulating the effects of marijuana use; students performed activities involving their decision-making skills. Floyd County Extension Office would like to thank Floyd County Commissioners' Court for their continued support of programming, Floydada ISD and Lockney ISD for allowing us to come speak to students, and the Floyd County Sheriff's Office for helping prepare and execute the program. If you have any questions about Watch UR BAC or other extension programming, please contact the Floyd County Extension Office at 983-4912.

Educational programs of the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service are open to all people without regard to race, color, sex, national origin, age, disability, genetic information or veteran status. How long have you lived in Floyd County?

I have lived in Floyd County over 50 years

Where do you work and for how long?

Currently, I serve as County Commissioner in Precinct 2 and for the last nine years. D'Lyn and I own Floyd County Supply established in 1996. July will start our 22nd year. I also serve as a Deacon at the West College Church of Christ in Lockney.

Why did you decide to run for office?

I want to continue doing my part in keeping Floyd County debt free. It has taken a long time to get there.

What would you do, if elected, or change, if re-elected.

It is important to me to keep our county financially strong. As your Commissioner I will continue doing all I can to balance the needs of our citizens with the responsible use of your tax dollars keeping Floyd County debt free.

What's the one thing you want voters to know about you?

The people of Floyd County, especially Precinct 2, have been good to me. I have been blessed to raise my family and make a living here. I want you to know the feeling of responsibility I have to represent each of you is very high. Floyd County is and will always be my home.

Smith Farms for 12 years. Why did you decide to run for office?

I have been involved in community activities all of my adult life. I have served on the Lockney Volunteer Fire Dept., Floyd County Stock Show Board serving as Vice President and President for 10 years, as well as Floyd County Unity Center Board. I see my running for County Commissioner as a way to continue to serve my community and to give back.

What would you do, if elected, or change, if re-elected.

First of all, I want to create a great working relationship with the county employees to maintain our precinct roads and equipment. As well as knowing the needs of the residents in Precinct 2. Secondly, I believe it is important to work closely with the commissioner's court and other county offices to be transparent in all that we do. Equally important is to operate within our county budgets and maintain a debt free county.

What's the one thing you want voters to know about you?

I want the residents of Precinct 2 to know that I will be available and that I will conduct myself with the greatest of integrity and high ideals for Precinct 2 and Floyd County.

the position because I wanted to be able to help the citizens of Floyd County, and I knew the job would take someone dedicated to Floyd County. The first year of my term was very hard and overwhelming. There were many long hours full of dedicated hard work, perseverance, and the encouragement of the elected officials. I am proud to say I have been a contributing factor to Floyd County which now is debt free and has received outstanding audits. That is one of the greatest accomplishments.

What would you do, if elected, or change, if re-elected.

If re-elected, my goal is to keep Floyd County debt free. What's the one thing you want voters to know about you? That I am a hard worker and I will continually work hard for Floyd County.

I have lived in Floyd County all my life. Where do you work and for how long?

I am currently working for Prosperity Bank as a Lending Assistant in Floydada. I have been there since September 2009. Before working for Prosperity Bank, I was the former Floyd County Treasurer serving from January 2003 to September 2009. I resigned from being a Floyd County Treasurer due to health issues. Before resigning from being an elected official, I went before the commissioner courts to have Davis Kinard & Company, CPA from Abilene audit my books to make sure everything was in good standing. Report showed everything was in good standing when I left office. Then the newly appointed official Jo Elliot took my place in September 2009.

Why did you decide to run for office?

I decided to run for Floyd County Treasurer due to having the past experience and knowledge and success in my previous terms as Floyd County Treasurer with having six annual audits all in good standing, not including my final audit which was also in good standing.

What would you do, if elected, or change, if re-elected.

If elected I would like to pick-up where I left off during my previous terms serving the County to the best of my ability. I would also like the citizens to know that I will fulfill my duties as Floyd County Treasurer in a dedicated and responsible matter.

What's the one thing you want voters to know about you?

That I will strive to earn the trust and respect from the voters in Floyd County.

Baum speaks at Lockney Rotary meeting

By Joseph Tillery

Pastor, First Baptist Church, Lockney

Jim Baum, Superintendent of Lockney schools spoke at the Lockney Rotary meeting on Friday, February 23rd.

Mr. Baum shared the following items with the club. He reinforced the five keys they are seeking to instill in students.

- Work ethic
- Character
- Attitude
- Teamwork
- Knowledge/skills

LISD is working with our architect (BGR) and construction manager (Lee Lewis) to define the renovations to the elementary school and the junior high. We are focusing our attention on the mechanical systems that will allow our buildings to serve us well into the future.

We are also addressing safety and accessibility issues on both campuses. It is our hope to have final renderings prior to the end of April so we can initiate construction as soon as school is out. We appreciate everyone's support and patience as we work our way through this process.

The athletic portion of the bond is nearing completion. All of the competition surfaces have been replaced and we are placing the finishing touches on the new concession/restroom at the baseball field. Unfortunately, the areas surrounding the construction sites has not had sufficient time to heal from all of the construction activities. It is our hope that these peripheral areas will be in great shape once we have had a growing season. In the end, we will have a very nice athletic facilities for you to enjoy as you support the Longhorns and Lady Horns.

Lockney ISD has purchased the former Tye Manufacturing Building on Highway 70 and will initially utilize the property, to provide a new animal production facility, for our Ag Department. Overall, the facility consists of over 180,000 square feet of area under roof. Our immediate plans are to meet the expectation of the bond by developing one 60,000 square foot building into a comprehensive animal production barn.

This facility will allow the students of Lockney ISD to have a state of the art barn that will surely be one of the best in Texas. We are working on long term plans to utilize the remainder of the property to benefit the district and the community. This project was made possible through a very generous donation by the previous owner, Mr. Jerrot Owen.

Community/School Partnership:

L.I.S.D. is very appreciative of the interest that the Rotary Club has in our schools and for their ongoing service projects. We understand that it takes the entire village to raise children and we are pleased to partner with the parents and adults in our community to raise them well. With your continued support and encouragement, we have no doubt that Lockney ISD will be among the best schools in Texas.

Morales gets 16-month prison sentence

Compiled from media reports

LUBBOCK-A federal judge in Lubbock sentenced Amado Morales, Jr., formerly of Floydada, to more than a year in prison after sheriff's narcotics investigators seized more than 10 pounds of marijuana from his south Lubbock home two years ago.

U.S. Senior District Judge Sam Cummings on Friday handed a 16-month prison sentence to the 34-year old who pleaded guilty in October to a federal felony count of possession with intent to distribute marijuana. Morales faced a punishment of up to five years in prison.

Cummings allowed Morales, who has been out on bond, to surrender to the Bureau of Prisons by March 23 to start serving his sentence.

He was arrested in September 2016 in connection with a narcotics investigation four months earlier by the Lubbock County Sheriff's office.

According to court documents, narcotics investigators with the Lubbock County Sheriff's Office learned in May 2016 that Morales trafficked marijuana in the Lubbock area out of his home in the 5500 block of 104th Street.

On two occasions that month, investigators collected trash bags from a trash container near Morales' residence.

The first run yielded evidence including traces of marijuana and a receipt with Morales' name on it.

Investigators also noted an "overwhelming odor of marijuana" when they opened the bag.

During the second run, investigators took two more trash bags from the same container and found what appeared to be a drug ledger and a Mother's Day card Morales signed.

The evidence collected from the trash container allowed investigators to obtain a search warrant for Morales' home, where they seized more evidence including nine bricks of marijuana, three of which were hidden in a dishwasher, and 32 grams of cocaine, a drug ledger and a 9mm pistol, the court documents state. The marijuana weighed more than 10 pounds, court records show.

Morales reportedly told investigators he routinely received drugs from Esteban Garcia, a Lubbock trucker who was arrested also in September 2016 after local and federal law enforcement agents searched three properties -- including his home in the LakeRidge neighborhood

-- in connection with a year-long federal drug investigation.

Garcia was among 20 people indicted in August 2016 by a federal grand jury in El Paso as a result of the investigation.

Federal agents told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal that about 61 pounds of narcotics, $38,000 in cash, two vehicles, three boats, two motorcycles and one jet ski were seized from properties they searched.

Garcia pleaded guilty in September in El Paso to a federal felony count of possession with intent to distribute 500 grams or more of cocaine and aiding and abetting. He was sentenced to 70 months in prison. Court records show a federal judge gave Garcia until March 2 to surrender to the Federal Bureau of Prisons to start serving his sentence because of medical issues.

Win the war against weeds in warm-season pastures

By Adam Russell

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

OVERTON — Weeds in warm-season pastures can be an annual battle, and producers should prepare their spray equipment to win the war, said a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service expert.

Now is a good time to calibrate equipment and reflect on the previous year's weed and pest insect issues to apply successful treatments to warm-season pastures, said Dr. Vanessa Corriher-Olson, AgriLife Extension forage specialist, Overton.

"Take the time to calibrate sprayer equipment to make sure it is working properly," she said. "As it sits over winter the rig may be displaced or dirt daubers or other bugs might have gummed the nozzles up. The main thing to make sure it's putting out the correct amount of herbicide or insecticide intended."

Too much or too little product application on a hayfield can cost producers, Corriher-Olson said. Spraying too much increases the cost of an application and could be against the label recommendation, which is the law. Too little application could be ineffective and require additional treatments.

"Proper calibration could mean huge savings because those applications represent money," she said. "It's worth the time to check."

When calibrating, Corriher-Olson said equipment should be run as if spraying a field under normal conditions.

"Don't go faster or slower than you would go in the field," she said. "Fields may have hog damage or ant mounds or other terrain features that can affect speed and changes of speed will affect the volumes being applied to the field."

Corriher-Olson said how many gallons of water the sprayer puts out per acre and following individual products' mixing rates are a big part of ensuring fields receive the right amount of product. She also suggests producers who use multiple products to test mix them in mason jars to check for coagulation and avoid damage to equipment.

"Follow the directions," she said. "There is a lot of information on the product label because most have different instructions based on chemistry."

Corriher-Olson said her site <https://foragefax.tamu.edu/> has several publications that focus on weed control and management of pastures and forages, including links to assist with weed identification.

Weeds will begin to emerge as temperatures begin to rise, she said. Producers should be scouting improved pastures and be prepared to spray at the appropriate time to deal with common weeds.

Identifying weeds correctly and understanding when and what to apply is paramount when treating pastures meant for hay production or grazing, she said. "ID weeds as soon as possible to make the best herbicide selection and time to spray," she said.

For instance, annual weeds such as goatweed, or woolly croton, should be sprayed when they are small and growing, she said. Perennial weeds such as wild blackberries should be sprayed at bloom or after seed drop.

Corriher-Olson said landowners with questions or concerns should contact their county's AgriLife Extension office for application recommendations based on local conditions.

"There are a lot of good general-use, broadleaf products available," she said. "The most important thing is to use products labeled for pastures and forages and to apply them effectively."
