Get Ready, Get Set, The Wild Hare salon to

By Teresa Bigham The Hesperian-Beacon

Floydada resident, Lori Mickey, is excited to finally get her chance to open her dream salon right here in Floydada. She has been a licensed stylist for 15 years and was co-owner of a salon in Plainview, but her dream has always been to open a salon in her hometown. Well, that day is here - The Wild Hare Salon will open mid-January.

Lori has called Floydada home for the past three years along with her fiancée, Austin Campbell, who is a local farmer.

Lori Mickey and fiancée, Austin Campbell

Mickey has always wanted to be a salon owner and comes from a long time of stylist both her mother and aunt have been her inspiration. As a little girl she would give all her Barbie dolls makeovers. Josana Rendon who is a long-life friend of Lori's will be working as the shampoo expert offering scalp massages. Josana also has extensive knowledge of all the wonderful products that will be offered at the salon such as Kevin Murphy products and Leaf and Flower CBD Oil shampoo and conditioner.

The Wild Hare Salon

is a full-service salon also offering hair coloring, body waxing, gel manicures, facials, eyebrow and eyelash tending. Future services will include acrylic nails and pedicures. The Salon is located at 123 W. California Street, on corner right next to Cathy's Flowers and Gifts.

Hours of operation will be: Tuesday - 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. Wednesday – 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. Thursday/Friday: 10 a.m. - 6

An added benefit for all you men... Wednesday mornings are walk-ins in which you will receive a wonderful hot towel treatment along with fresh hot coffee and donuts.

U.S. Representative Jodey Arrington holds Town Hall Meeting

By Kendall McCullough The Hesperian-Beacon

Congressman Jodey Ar-Hesperian-Beacon, 201 W. California, Floydada, rington shook a few hands Texas 79235, Is open from and cracked a few jokes at the 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday town hall meeting at the Floyd County Library in Floydada on Phone (888) 400-1083 banderson@lknewsgroup.com Monday, Dec. 30th before get-PUBLISHER/PRESIDENT ting down to business. Rep. Arrington discussed the current political climate and his feelings on Trump before diving into issues he's been focusing on such BUSINESS MANAGER as farm subsidies, trade policy, and the future of AG in rural > America. He expressed that he doesn't hate anyone and will work with any politician. That is how democracy gets done. He hates policies that destroy countries, but life is too short to hate.

Rep. Arrington thinks that Trump should tweet less, but thanks God for him. He thinks that it would be nice if there was more Ronald Reagan in Trump, but that Reagan couldn't get things done the same way Trump is getting things done in our modern political climate.

Arrington discussed how the farm bill saved many farmers, but that it's still a temporary solution. He hopes the trade deal with China will help us (while expressing concern for their corruption) and that we can continue to find more ways to help local famers in America for the future.

During the Q and A portion of the meeting it was evident that Arringtons district believes in him and is on the same page. They are grateful for the farm bill, but they also would like more help for the future. He promised to continue to advocate for farmers and explained that his position on the Ways and Means committee gives him a large platform to commission for favorable policies for rural America. He expressed his surprise and delight at how much

Trump cares about farmers and

Congressman Arrington chats with the crowd after the Town Hall meeting in Floydada on Monday, Dec. 30th. He received positive feedback and praise for his work to support farmers.

wants to support them as well.

Also, in the meeting Rep. Arrington was asked what we can do to support him. Arrington, in a moment of vulnerability, expressed that while everything is going well politically, spiritually and time with his family has suffered. He asked us to pray for him as well as continue to support him politically like we have been doing.

The congressman reiterated that West Texas is the food, fuel, and fiber capital of the world. He wanted to impress on the meeting members how important we are and how much we are recognized. This statement encapsulates the hope and importance Arrington places on farmers and our district. With continued support from his district. Arrington hopes to continue to do even more for themmoving forward.

U. S. Representative Arrington issued this statement about the town hall meeting.

"It was great to be in Whirlwind country over the holidays. We touched on a number of issues, but the bulk of our conversation focused on the state of the economy in West Texas. While the overall U.S. economy is booming because of free market policies, including tax and regulatory cuts along with better trade deals like Japan and USMCA, the agriculture economy continues to struggle because of low prices, bad weather, and a loss of market share in China. If it were not for the 2018 Farm Bill and the Trump Administration's temporary assistance for farmers, we'd be in a world of hurt. It's imperative that we continue to provide temporary relief for our producers who are experiencing a setback on account of China's retaliatory tariffs. The recently announced 'Phase one' trade deal with China will be a huge opportunity for our farmers and ranchers, with China committed to purchasing twice as much agriculture product as they have in the past, but it will take some time to recover from the last couple of years. We are all on the same page that President Trump is doing the right thing to hold China accountable for years of unfair trade practices, and, while it's a painful process, it had to be done. With all the emphasis on trade-related activity, it has been a blessing for West Texas to have a seat on the Ways and Means Committee, which has jurisdiction over trade policy. I will continue to work hand-inhand with my producers along with President Trump and other policymakers to make sure we do everything necessary to position U.S. agriculture for near-term survival and long-term success."

Between the lines On tradition and the return of the circle skirt recently visited the Childress County Courthouse, which was built in 1939. I am no expert on architecture, but I tend to like the 1891 courthouse better. I am not old enough to remember it. It just seems to have a more regional and traditional character to me.

Tradition has a bad name these days. But that says more about modern value judgments than anything else. It's currently trendy to think if something isn't the latest, it's of little value. But facts don't support that opinion.

Whoever thought Levi's would be more popular today than when the first pair was made - about 150 years ago? There is a pair on display in the Smithsonian Institute, of all things! What woman predicted circle skirts from the 1950s would make a comeback? The Duchess of Cambridge wore one at her wedding reception. Prince William didn't seem to mind that his new wife reached back in time for her dress. I thought aviator sunglasses were dead. Now they are cool

I saw an older gentleman (even older than me) in a restaurant after church last Sunday with his jeans tucked into buckaroo style tall top boots with high underslung heels. He was wearing a crisply starched western shirt set off by a perfectly tied neckerchief. He also wore a hat I was tempted to try to buy. But I have a big head, so I didn't know how it would fit. I don't approach strangers all that

These things are a bit trivial, but fashion is not the only current focus of a trend to the traditional. There is trend for modern folks, especially young people, to return to small downtowns previously abandoned in the name of progress. They attest to looking for a sense of community, walkable streets, with short blocks and alleyways, low crime rates, residential options and easily accessed daily destinations like coffee shops, a neighborhood grocery store and small restaurants.

This return to small downtowns is widespread. I visit the mountains of West Texas with good friends each spring to sit on a back porch and watch sunrises and sunsets. We could do more, but we don't want to. We stay near Alpine, which has remained steady, hovering around 5,000 to 6,000 people since 1950. But the downtown is vibrant again. I read that its unofficial slogan is "Austin may be weird, but Alpine is far out," which is true. The nearest H-E-B is about 150 miles away. There are similar places appearing all over

By the way, if you really want weird, visit Marfa, but that's another story.

It begs the question to say folks who are returning to things and ways of the past are just being sentimental or nostalgic. Why now? Why young people? They haven't been in the world long enough to pine for the good old days.

I certainly don't know, but it seems to me that people are downright anxious these days - young and old. They appear uneasy, easily overwhelmed and even depressed. These may be surface-level manifestations of a deeper issue. People seem to feel cast adrift, cut off from a sense of place and rootedness. Some say they feel alone even in a crowded

It could be most are looking for tradition (or something like it). Tradition is understanding one's inherited place in the world and transmitting it to those who follow in our Tradition roots a person and makes him settled, substantial and interesting. It gives a person "gravitas," which is a fancy Latin word that means "weight or heaviness." It is a high seriousness, even a sort of dignity.

John Wayne had gravitas. Charlton Heston had gravitas. Clint Eastwood has gravitas. Tom Cruise – not so much.

By the way, I met some nice folks at the Childress County Courthouse.

When I entered the clerk's office, I could tell immediately it was occupied by humans (one can never be sure of this in the buildings of Washington, D.C.). Each office space exhibited a little of the personality of each occupant, just like a home would.

I met Mary Alice Adams and Anna Lizama. Mary Alice offered her opinions on dining in Childress and on The Red River Sun (I appreciated both opinions). Since we were fast friends, I tried to hawk a couple of subscriptions to the newspaper.

I went across the hall in search of a notary and found the friendliest judge's secretary I ever met. Early in my career I worked for a couple of federal judges and the secretaries were more like drill sergeants than secretaries. Not so with Kim Jones. She was not only friendly, she helped me complete a document I thought must have been written in Russian.

I don't like tradition because I am nostalgic or because I can't stand progress. I like it for what it does to us and for us. It roots us, reminds us of where we come from and what's important for the future.

I am going to venture a guess that folks in the current Childress County Courthouse also like the look of the 1891 courthouse. Contact me bgreen@lknewsgroup.com.

Poetry Gathering features youth poetry contest

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

ALPINE, TEXAS - A youth poetry contest has been announced by the Lone Star Cowboy Poetry Gathering in conjunction with its inaugural event scheduled for February 21-22, 2020.

Held on the campus of Sul Ross State University in Alpine, Texas, the gathering will feature poets and singers heralding from across Texas and several western states.

As a reminder that keeping the spirit of the West alive is not just a job for the old-timers, the youth contest provides a way for young people to not only express their appreciation for the cowboy way of life but also carry on the tradition.

"I am thrilled that the organizers want to promote this opportunity for the youth," said Elizabeth Baize, a native of Fort Davis, who is working alongside Kay Nowell and Karen McGuire, both of Alpine, to organize the contest.

"Developing the art of writing, whether poetry or prose, affords an individual with a powerful tool," she said. "It can teach a lesson, relay a personal value, make a lasting impression, or just bring the gift of laughter into someone's life."

Baize participated in the poetry contest herself during her high school years and still has a poem she wrote entitled "Rattler Tale."

She smiles as she glances over her teenage attempt at capturing the story.

"When I think about my snake encounters, an image flashes into my mind's eye regarding this one - the first moment I caught sight of the snake crawling away from my horse's legs," she said.

"However, I realize that without these words in front of me, many details would have escaped my recollection," Baize said. "Thanks to the Texas Cowboy Poetry Gathering Poetry Contest and a dedicated mother who challenge me to participate, I can relive an incident that occurred over half my lifetime ago."

To encourage participation, the youth poetry contest is divided into five age divisions with the top three places in each division receiving a personalized plaque.

Plans also are underway for students to share their poems during a special session on Saturday morning during the gathering.

Baize hopes that the contest will not only give students a reason to write, but also an opportunity to share their creativity, experiences, and dreams with others.

"Whether or not they realize the fact, young people with an interest in agriculture already have great stories to tell," she said. "We are waiting in anticipation to hear them.'

Stanley Earl (Bud) Sparks was born and raised in Floydada, living most of his childhood in the Lakeview Community. He was born March 22, 1915, to parents G. W. and Mamie Sparks. His schooling was at the Lakeview Schoolhouse. He remembers his first-grade teacher as Amanda Harris.

Bud had one brother, Loye H., who lived in California until his death February 1, 1976. He also has one sister, Nita Jackson, who lives in Floydada, Bud married Maude Evelyn Beck, March 4, 1939 in Matador, Texas. They had two daughters, Iwana Joy, born September 29, 1940 and Gloria Jean born January 23, 1945. Joy is married to Laron Fulton and has two children. Shonda and Chris, and lives and farms in Flovdada. Gloria is married to Ronnie Ogle, has two children, Kevin and Deborah and lives in Bowie, Texas.

Bud worked at Cline and Rainer Western Auto and Station after marrying. They then moved to the Lakeview Community in 1941 and farmed until 1946. He then worked for J. B. Bishop at Bishop Motor Company until 1951 when he and his dad, G. W. Sparks, bought the Conoco Station in downtown Floydada. He was agent for Continental Oil Company from 1955 to 1975 when he retired. Bud now works part time for Daniel Automotive.

Evelyn Beck graduated from Floydada High School in 1938. Her parents were A. O. and Edna Lyles Beck. She was the only girl and oldest child in the family with six brothers. An interesting fact, Edna Phillips, a school teacher at the Campbell Community School was Evelyn's first grade teacher and was also Joy's second grade teacher at Andrews Ward School in Floydada.

Devotional

Pray Continually Philippians 4:6

Don't worry about anything; instead, pray about everything. Tell God what you need, and thank him for all he has done.

Encouraging Word

Do you know that we spend much of our time worrying about things we can't even change? It robs us of our joy and then before you know it our attitude has changed. We go from looking forward to the day to dreading what lies ahead. That's not what God has intended for us. see what God will do. -Armando Morales

This passage shares 2 things we are to do to help us not worry about anything: 1) Pray and 2) Be Thankful. When we choose to be thankful, it changes our view of things. Instead of worrying about things we can't change we begin to see the good and thank God that He is still in control. Pray and talk to God about your situation and what it is that you need in life. Allow God to open doors of opportunity and prosperity. The time will come when He will pour out His favor upon you. Pray and be Thankful and

Listening to God

Let anyone with ears listen! - Matthew 13:9 (NRSV)

It was my junior year and I was embarrassed that I was still riding the bench on my high school basketball team. One day we had a home game, so all my friends were there. Suddenly, Coach called for me to go in! But I didn't hear him. I'm not sure whether the crowd was too loud, or I was sitting too far away to hear him, or I wasn't paying attention because I wasn't expecting to play. But other players realized what was happening and turned to me, shouting, "Adam! Coach called for you to go in!" With my heart swelling, I quickly took off my warm-up shirt, ran over to Coach, then heard him say, "Sit down!" It was too late. He had already sent someone

This experience reminds me of Jesus' words after he tells the parable of the sower. He says, "Let anyone with ears listen!" But how do we listen to God? Maybe we have heard God speaking to us through scripture, in a song, in worship, or through another person. However or whenever God speaks to us, it's up to us to pay attention. I didn't hear Coach call me and missed my opportunity to play. But once we belong to God, the good news is that God never stops calling us. —Adam Benson (North Carolina, USA)

TODAY'S PRAYER

Help us, O God, to learn to listen for your call so that we will never miss an opportunity to serve you. Amen.

Caprock Crop Production Conference set in Floyd County on Jan. 24

Texas A&M System

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

FLOYD COUNTY - The Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service will hold the Caprock Crop Production Conference for Crosby and Floyd counties on Friday, Jan. 24 in Floyd County. The event will take place at the Floyd County Friends Unity Center at 990 Farm-to-Market Road 786 in Lockney.

The cost is $40 if registered by Friday, Jan. 17 or $50 at the door. Contact Mark Carroll, AgriLife Extension agent for Floyd County, at 806-983-4912, or Caitlin Jackson, AgriLife Extension agent for Crosby County, at 806-675-2347 to

The event will start at 7 a.m. with registration, coffee and donuts. The speakers will begin at 8 a.m. and the program will run until 5 p.m. There will be agriculture exhibits and country artist Jordan Robert Kirk will emcee.

"The Caprock was the first crops conference on the South Plains and continues to be the most successful, best attended high-quality educational program for agricultural producers from Crosby, Floyd and surrounding counties," Jackson said.

There will be seven Texas Department of Agriculture continuing education units available: four general, one integrated pest management, one drift and one laws and regulations.

"This annual event is one that folks return to time and time again," said Carroll. "This year's lineup of experts is outstanding and truly offers something for everyone in ag production."

Topics and speakers will include:

• Agriculture law update – Tiffany Dowell Lashmet, J.D., AgriLife Extension agricultural law specialist, Amarillo.

• Cover crops and young farmer programs - U.S. Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service representative.

· Integrated pest management update -Kerry Siders, AgriLife Extension integrated pest management agent, Levelland.

· Crop market outlook - Justin Benavidez, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension economist, Ama-

• Irrigation safety - Kevin Heflin, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension program specialist - agronomy, Amarillo.

• Drift minimization - Jacob Reed, BASF Chemicals senior field biologist, Lubbock.

• Weed management strategies - Peter Dotray, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension weed specialist, · Diseases affecting cotton and corn producers - Terry Wheeler, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension plant pathologist, Lubbock.

• The future of agriculture - Lance Kieth, Ph.D., West Texas A&M University department head, agricultural education, Amarillo.

"This is the 27th year for the Caprock Crop Production Conference, and we are excited for a fantastic lineup of education, fellowship, food and door prizes," Jackson said.

Plains Land Bank and Vista Bank will be sponsoring the food and providing door prizes, which will include an iPad and a rifle.

SCHOOL NEWS

The benefits of the Junior Livestock Shows

By Teresa Bigham The Hesperian-Beacon

With the local Floyd County Junior Livestock show underway, there are many positive outcomes for our youth taking part in raising stock show animals.

The purpose of these livestock projects are not only to expose our youth to the livestock industry but to also develop important life skills. When our kids care for land, animals or take on other agriculture responsibilities they are usually going to be accountable and have a better understanding of taking on responsibilities.

The purposes of organizations like 4-H and FFA are to help develop leadership skills, life skills, and outstanding citi-

Being able to build on life skills and realize a need to be successful in life is extremely important part of growing up. When our youth is working with livestock there is not always approval and praise for some of the tasks and decisions that must be made. A lot of times the best sense of pride is putting your heart and soul into your project, knowing that you did your best. Perhaps that kid will bring home a purple ribbon - but maybe they don't.

For decades the 4-H and FFA groups have proven to be a highly effective aid in the development of our youth into productive members of our community.

Moms, dads, grandparents and ag teachers seem to share the sentiment that taking care of their animals and exhibiting them in the show ring is an exceptionally educational experience. While raising these animals for many months, sometimes a year or longer, what follows, after the stock shows, selling the animals for harvest in many cases or breeding them to produce your next show project, is a wonderful learning experience.

The kids that take part in livestock shows tend to benefit from building character, learning responsibility, and building confidence. Sportsmanship teaches them how to win and lose gracefully as well as making family memories to last a

In conclusion, one of the most important life skill that stock show kids may develop through the exhibition of livestock and many other projects that 4-H and FFA offer is social relations, the importance of developing friends that may very well last a lifetime and making social contacts.

High-quality fiber, now at the tip of your finger.

Text your ZIP code to (833) 525-0049 for varieties bred to fit your acres.

Talk to your local BASF Seed Advisor to see how you could earn up to $159* more per acre than the competition with FiberMax varieties. FiberMax.com.

*Based on 2018 data from TX, NM, OK. Results may vary based on weather conditions and agronomic practices. Includes BASF internal trials (APT, SXS and Breeder data) and all external trials (University research and extension). Competitors include all commercial varieties that were tested in 2018 from Dyna-Gro®, NexGen®, Oroplan®, Deltapine® and PhytoGen®, FiberMax GT, GL, GLB2, GLT and GLTP (N=841). All Competitors (N=687). No experimental varieties were included.

Always read and follow label directions.
