Lockney brothers with "life in coffee" launch Coffee Courier, return for Unity Gala

Zach Montandon

My brother Zane and I had our humble beginnings drinking coffee with our dad, Francis Montandon of Lockney, TX, when children still drank coffee that wasn't "Kid's Temp" or decaf. I remember first drinking coffee with a lot of sugar in it. On Sunday mornings, at Main Street Church of Christ in Lockney, before bible class I would go back into the fellowship hall and get coffee with the men who would say, "Want some coffee with your sugar?" Then, little by little, I wanted more coffee and less sugar until one day all I wanted was black coffee, just like my dad.

I remember walking down the hall of the church building when I was little trying as hard as I could to not spill, yet dripping all along the way.

Bill Hunter worked so hard to keep the place looking good, no thanks to me.

When Zane and I left home, we both enjoyed learning new ways of making coffee which always was much more a ceremony than the push of a button. I got my first job as a barista at Starbucks, and Zane soon after was hired at a local Lubbock coffeehouse known as Sugar Brown's.

While working at Starbucks I was given one pound of coffee every week, which was more than even I could drink.

City Park Church of Christ gets new minister

By Kay Ellington
The Hesperian-Beacon

Matthew Benfield is the new minister at City Park Church of Christ.

He replaces Levi Sisemore who after seven years, left to be a minister at a church in Snyder.

Benfield grew up in Hiddenite, NC, but came to Texas to attend the Sunset International Bible Institute in Lubbock in 2013.

His previous ministerial education includes the Memphis School of Preaching. He lived in Tupelo, MS for four years, and while there, he was the associate minister of the East Main Church of Christ. In Tupelo, he taught classes and was heavily involved in the church's homeless projects and mission work.

Before coming to Floydada, he also preached in Wilson, AR and while in Lubbock preached Sunday mornings at a church in Kress.

City Park Church of Christ is his first church to lead as a minister, and he wanted to share these thoughts with the community, "Christians are just people. Sometimes they get a bad rap for being holier than thou, but they have the same problems as everyone else. They just turn to a higher power to help them."

Benfield is single, and all the rest of his family still lives in North Carolina. In his free time, he enjoys reading the classics, like Greek plays and Shakespeare, and he has new companion, his first dog, a golden retriever/terrier mix aptly named Socrates.

"I enjoy Floydada," Benfield said. "Hiddenite is a small farming community, too, and I find Floydada to be a very warm and comfortable place."

In closing, Benfield wanted to mention that on every Monday night at the Massie Center across from the park, his church is hosting an ecumenical, non-denominational Disciple Club for high school students. They read scriptures, pray and have a snack. The weekly event is from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m.

UNITY CENTER NEWS

By Elaine LaBaume

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

I have had several ask me just this past week, "are you all busy at the Unity Center?" The answer is "yes." There hasn't been a week since January 1st that something wasn't going on at the Unity Center. There is never a week goes by that 4-H is not using it. They are actively involved in Shooting Sports. It takes several adults to supervise this.

Approximately 500 people have been though the Unity Center in the first 2 ½ months. We already have booking into August.

Don't forget the Floyd County Friends 20th Annual Gala on April 18th. Remember that the seating is limited.....so get your tickets. "It's gonna be a good one."

Have you ever wondered who the board members and advisors are? The board was originally set up when many had young or small children and it was not always possible for a couple to be at a meeting. So couples are named as board members but there is only one vote permitted between the two.

The current board is: Chad Cook - President, David Foster - 1st Vice President, Shawnda Foster - 2nd Vice President and Treasurer, Jerry Chappell - 3rd Vice President and Elaine LaBaume - Secretary. Jon LaBaume was a board member until he assumed the job as manager in 2000 and continues to manage the Unity Center.

Advisors are: Vance Lemons, Amy Kress and Cristen Brooks.

Board Members are: Clint Bigham, Coy and Deb LaBaume, DarLee Foster, Darla Chappell, Lindan & DeLyn Morris, Garrett & Lindsie Mathis, Marty & Delinda Lucke, Martin & Robin Stoerner, Paul & Heather Raissez, John & Karen Quebe, Gary & Robin Nixon and Sherry Colston.

Carolyn Marble has donated a new flag for the Unity Center. We know the flag pole is very special to her as she and her family donated it in memory of her late husband, Fred Marble. A big "Thank you" to her.

1950 Study Club News

By Margaret Jones

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

The sun was shining brightly as the members of the 1950 Study Club met in the home of Billie Jordan at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, March 3rd for their regular monthly meeting. Peels of laughter filled the room as Billie graciously welcomed everyone after another siege of West Texas "Roller Coaster" weather.

The "Luck of the Irish" was the theme for the day as the table was tastefully decorated in a Saint Patrick's Day theme with various appointments of bright emerald green. Delicious refreshments were served by hostesses Shirley Morton and Mary Quattlebaum.

The meeting was called to order by president Shirley Morton, followed by the roll-call and reading of the minutes by Sue Daniels.

Gloria Fannon gave the treasurers report. A short business meeting followed.

Shirley Morton gave a very interesting program on the History of Saint Patrick's Day by sharing Nine Surprising Facts. Sometimes, through the years, what we hear as Legend and what is Fact, become intertwined and it is hard to know the difference. In keeping with the Shamrock, a simple symbol of the day, we were reminded of the Christian symbol of The Trinity. Each member received a shamrock cut-out on which to write the meaning.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Billie Jordan on Tuesday, April 7th at 4 p.m. Hostesses will be Fern Hartsell and Margaret Jones.

The 1956 Study Club met March 10 at the EMS building. Hostesses Sheryl Back, Dana Crossland and Kay Dean Smith served an assortment of delicious hors d'oeuvres and desserts.

EMC director, Katrina Gooch, presented the program by giving members a tour of the facilities and demonstrating some of the equipment used to transport patients and maintain life support. She outlined a typical day for EMS personnel including a myriad of inventories and forms they are required to file.

Following the program, Anne Carthel, called the business meeting to order. Roll call was answered with "When was the last time you received CPR training?"

Anne announced that the April meeting will be at her home with a program about wildflowers by Dr. Willa Finley.

Members present were Sheryl Back, Sheree Cannon, Anne Carthel, Dana Crossland, Linda Harbin, Charline Hendrix, Janice Julian, Judy Schacht, Susan Simpson, JenniSu Smith, Kay Dean Smith, and Jan Willson.

According to Dorman and Sheppard, the students worked hard to get their performances down.

Lockney Elementary Fourth and Fifth graders perform their dance on the GeoMats to "Counting Stars" by One Republic. This was part of the annual PE/Music Movement program directed by Julie Dorman and Alecha Sheppard.

Where did all the Kindergarten and First graders hide? They disappeared under the parachute during their part of the annual PE/Music Movement program. The students showed off their parachute skills to "Starts With Me" by Tim Timmons.

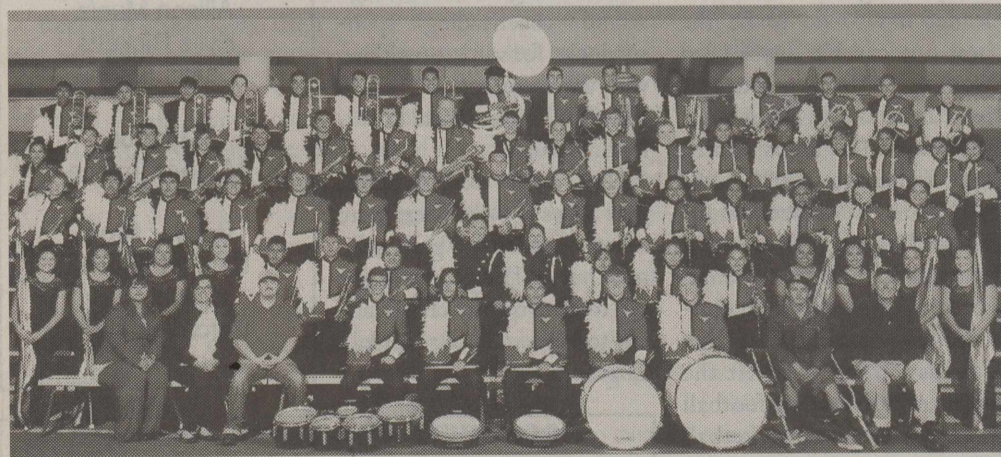

The blood was pumpin' as Third graders from Lockney Elementary Hulu Hooped to "Pumpin' Blood" by Nonono at the annual PE/Music Movement program. A packed house at the high school gym watched as all the students showed off their hard work.

Fifth Graders from Lockney Elementary show the audience what "Tinkling" is, set to "We Will Rock You" by Queen. The performance was given at the annual PE/Music Movement program at the Lockney High School gym on March 9.

Character Counts: Teaching Students Success at Young Age

By Aaron Chavarria
Senior Editor

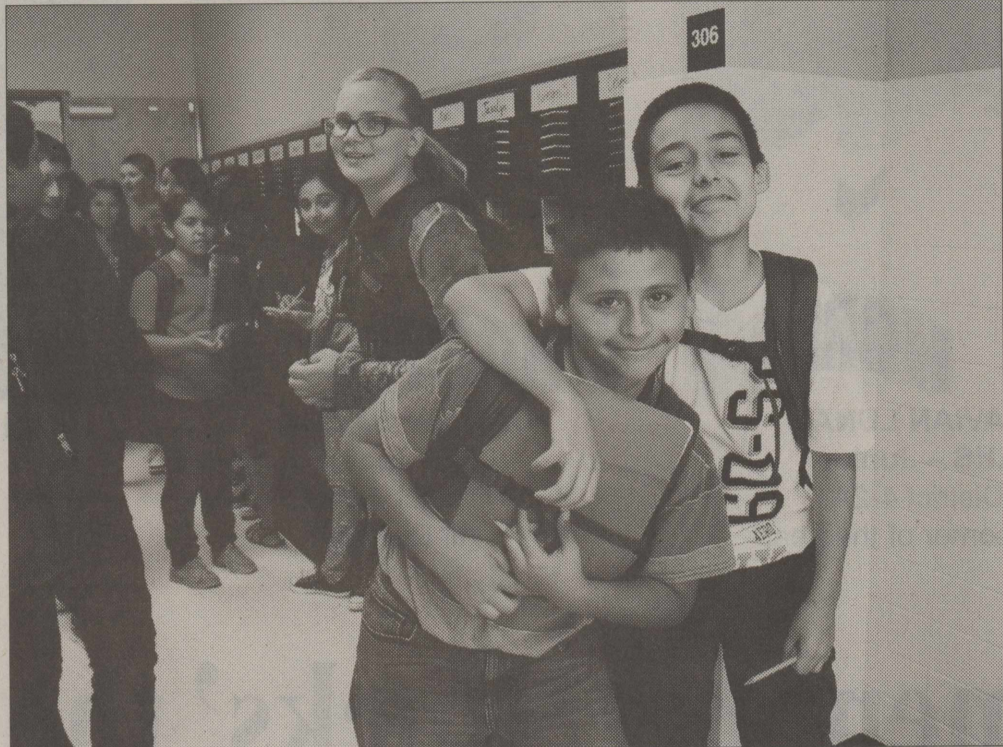

Character Counts is a fairly new program that has provided many benefits for students, staff, and administrators at A.B. Duncan Elementary. The program proposes new and productive ways for improving students' attendance and performance.

When asked about this initiative, A.B. Duncan counselor Amy Kellison described its various aspects.

"Character Counts" was started many years ago - it actually started for churches and businesses - and now we have it here at the school," said Kellison. "[Character Counts] basically teaches the six pillars of character: trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship. There are lessons and demonstrations that we have to help the students with learning and absorbing those characteristics."

The implementation of the 'Character Counts' program has been impactful for elementary students.

"It's really good for the elementary students because it portrays the skills and concepts to prepare them for life in order to be successful," Kellison said. "Unfortunately, some students do not already possess those qualities for whatever reasons, but through the use of 'Character Counts', they can use it to learn these significant skills."

The program has received very much positive feedback.

"Our 'Character Counts' pep rallies have had a really good turnout throughout the year," said Kellison. "We host these pep rallies once every six weeks and participate in activities such as awarding them with a bicycle for perfect attendance. They can earn 'Character Counts' tickets for demonstrating good behavior and responsibility. At the end of each six weeks, I collect these tickets and draw a name. The winner takes part in an activity known as 'Jump for George'. A donor in the community donates money to jump and they participate in a game that wins money. As a result of these activities, kids are working really hard to earn these tickets."

Kellison is hopeful that this initiative will continue into next year, possibly improving. There may be some helpful changes to the program in the future.

"Because of the success we've had in the past, I do hope to continue this next year and for the years to come," said Kellison. "We received this program through a grant that I proposed and the only thing that really needs to improve is the fundraisers so that the students can all have their shirts for the pep rallies. Some other things we want to implement next year are focusing on perfect attendance and talking up colleges more. We want this because each grade level picks a future college they would like to attend and it would allow them to better understand which college is best for them."

A.B. Duncan Elementary hopes to get the community more involved in the program and the pep rallies in the future.

"What we can do to better involve the community is to receive more donations. We always take donations ranging anywhere from $150 to $500, and any donation will help us," said Kellison.

Technology on the Rise

By Bethany Morales
Staff Writer

There is no doubt that this world is run by technology. With every corner you turn, there is some form of technology lurking, ready to assist or entertain. People are glued to their phones, computers, and even the television sets. The pace of technological growth has been outstanding in the past few decades and shows very few signs of slowing. Apple comes out with new releases, updates, or announcements with every business quarter, and this is a growing trend seen by many market leaders. People full-heartedly rely on technology and look forward to the 'new'.

"I rely mostly on my laptop because school is technology-based, so everything we do is run from this computer," said Pake Freeman, biology teacher.

Even though we often lean on technology, there are positives to having such a strong connection with such tools. Whenever assistance is needed, it is right there in your hand.

"When I'm not face-to-face, my cell phone is my primary method of connection to other people...to my friends and family," said sophomore Casey Cage when asked about his 'go-to' form of technology.

There are some downfalls to having such enormous forms of communication so readily accessible.

"The only thing that is bad about my phone is that it takes away face-to-face interaction. Instead of engaging in a conversation with somebody, now we 'normally' just text or call them," Thalia Villa, junior.

Because of our generation's reliance on technology, students were asked to contemplate an existence without the new tools and toys.

"I would probably do more skateboarding and more activities other than sitting at home," said eighth grader Elias Luna. "I would also pick up reading and drawing."

While some students would find an alternative activity, others would not know how to handle such a situation.

"I would probably go insane. I freaked out when my phone broke for two days," said sophomore Clary Segura. "I went crazy looking for phones to use."

Regardless of the role technology plays in a person's life, most can agree that the pros of these devices outweigh the cons. Despite the fact that technology can provide many distractions and complications, many would argue that their lives are made easier by the inclusion of helpful technology.

Hughes is Mrs. Baird's 'Teacher On The Rise'

By Melissa Arizpe
Staff Writer

Teachers devote their lives to assisting others toward striving for greatness. Many teachers never settle for less than one's best. It can often times be difficult to reach every student with this mentality. However, Tasha Hughes had multiple years of experience with this age group.

Tasha Hughes has been a teacher at Floydada High School for 17 years. She graduated from Paducah High School in the year of 1993. After high school, she attended Baylor University, where she graduated in 1998 with a BA in General Business. Following her graduation from college, Mrs. Hughes (then Rochelle) came to Floydada and taught Keyboarding, Accounting, and was the cheerleading sponsor. Throughout the years, her job has transitioned many times as a result of new and emerging technologies. Currently, she teaches BIM (Business Image Management), Digital/Interactive Media, and Advanced Audio/Video. In her classes, Mrs. Hughes and her students create the video for Veteran's Day, they provide the school with periodic video announcements, and they provide video services for graduation, i.e. "remember whens" from seniors to parents and loved ones. Mrs. Hughes is also the BPA (Business Professionals of America) advisor and the UIL coordinator for Floydada I.S.D.

Aside from teaching, Hughes enjoys many activities such as spending time with her family, traveling, and reading.

On March 12th, 2015, a representative from Mrs. Baird's out of Lubbock, TX presented Hughes with the 'Teacher on the Rise' commendation. It was revealed that junior Rachel Hernandez nominated Mrs. Hughes for the award. Hernandez submitted a well-written essay with details about why Hughes deserved the honor.

According to Hernandez's essay, "Mrs. Hughes is very inspiring and makes us motivated to do better in our lives. She's had a great impact on our school, pushing students to their highest potential."

The response from the student body regarding Hughes' reception of the award was very positive. "I'm excited for Mrs. Hughes and Rachel. I think we have a lot of people that do a lot of excellent things and it's nice to see when people from the outside recognize it too," said principal Wayne Morren.

2015-2016 Floydada Cheerleaders

By Roxy Chavarria
Staff Writer

Commitment, spirit, and hard work are just some of the standards that are needed to become a cheerleader. Behind the cute uniform, peppy pom-poms, and the big cheer bow there are so many things that a cheerleader has to do to be the best one can be. These hard working athletes practice at least 2 times a week, practicing things like jumps, stunts, cheers, dances... etc. After perfecting these fundamentals and having what is most important when it comes to being a cheerleader, confidence, they cheer to the crowds aiming to uplift the spirit of fans during football games as well as basketball games.

On Monday, March 9, 2015, girls from both Junior High and High School took part in cheerleading tryouts in front of the student body and judges from the Lone Star Cheerleading Association.

The exiting Head Cheerleader, Aimee Chavarria, collaborated with outgoing seniors Liz Morales and Kim Delgado to develop a basic routine to perform that would allow the crowd to determine the fittest individuals for the spot. There were a total of 15 high school girls that tried out for varsity and junior varsity and a total of 14 junior high girls. A total of 10 high school girls, 6 varsity and 4 junior varsity, are allowed to become part of the squad. Also, a mascot is to be chosen to represent the Floydada Whirlwinds. Two students tried out and showed their dedication to becoming "Windy," unfortunately only one student could be picked to be Windy.

Beth Logsdon, the high school cheerleading sponsor looks forward to working with the upcoming 2015-2016 Floydada High School cheerleading squad.

"I'm really excited about next year's squads. There were a lot of talented girls who tried out, so I'm glad we're going to have quality cheerleaders to represent our school," Logsdon.

He has been involved in baseball his sophomore and junior years, making it to playoffs. He was honored with Academic All-District as a junior. As a member of the basketball team, Eli advanced to playoffs his junior year. He was also a member of the mile relay track team, which advanced to the area competition his junior year. Eli was also on the varsity football team for 2 years and the marching band for three years. After graduating from high school, Eli plans to go to South Plains College and become an industrial technician.

On Thursday March 12, 2015 eighteen brave LHS students stood in front of their peers hoping to gain a spot on the 2015- 2016 cheerleading squad.

"I have tried out every year since sixth grade," said junior Anissa Guerrero.

"Cheering our players to victory or a devastating loss has been one of my favorite things, it's hard to believe this will be my last year to try out."

Students trying out practice a chant, cheer and dance for two weeks prior to the performance. On the day of tryouts, students not only display their talents to the student body at Lockney

High School, but also a panel of three guest judges.

Students representing Lockney High School for the 2015-2016 year include cheerleaders Reagan Nuncio, Sierra Martinez, Nohelia Salazar, Nimsi Perez, Tabetha Bigham, Lizzy Belt, Shelby Dunbar, Brittany DeLeon, Anissa Guerrero, Liz Salas and mascot Karis Carstensen.

Lockney High Students Learn About Parenting

By Emiliee Encizo &
Trevor Ascencio

Recently at Lockney High School, some students in the "Child Development" were required to take care of computer babies. This is all part of a plan to teach students what it is like to be pregnant and have the responsibility of caring for a baby.

"Realityworks infant simulators (computer babies) offer real-life experiences that address child care skills, the simulators provide a powerful hands-on experience," said Child Development teacher Mrs. Belt. "The student realizes the impact a baby will have on their daily lives. The student keeps the baby for a weekend and sees how his/her life would be impacted with a crying baby that has to have needs met."

Some students were required to wear stomach padding that made it look like they were pregnant. The padding weighed as much as a normal baby inside a stomach would. Some students even said it actually felt like they were pregnant.

"Last year when I had this class, I liked how the stomach thing shows you how you're would feel if you were pregnant," said junior Lexi Chavez. "It's hard to do a lot of things with that stomach."

After the students wore the stomach, they had to take care of a computerized baby. Responsibilities included changing it, feeding it, burping it, and anything else that might be necessary for a real baby. The students received a grade based on how they take care of the baby; everything is monitored in the baby.

"It was a good way to teach students what it is like having to take care of a baby," said junior Lissa Hernandez. "It was difficult having to tend to the baby's every need when you're trying to do your own things."

Students go through all these procedures to show them what it would be like if they were a parent, especially in their teenage years. This is just one way teachers at LHS are helping to teach and prepare their students for life after high school.

"Taking care of this baby was harder than I thought it was going to be," said sophomore Shelby Dunbar. "It may be a fake baby, but it would cry and scream just like a real baby."

Lockney High School Students Use Their Own Type of Language

By Trevor Ascencio &
Emiliee Encizo

All year long, students have been using their own unique type of language to talk or text their friends. These words have been used all over social media, whether it's used as a hashtag, in a comment, or in a song.

"I use more than half of these words every day and I think it's hilarious to see people's faces when I use them," said sophomore Tabetha Bigham.

On the social media app Instagram, you will see the hashtags #MCM (Man Crush Monday), #TCT (Too Cute Tuesday), #TT (Transformation Tuesday), #WCW (Woman Crush Wednesday), #TBT (Throwback Thursday), #FBF (Flashback Friday), #SS (Selfie Sunday). These are popular was students label the pictures they post.

"I hear and see these words a lot but I don't really use them," said junior at LHS Lena Luna.

In the hallways of Lockney High School, you might hear the words savage, bae, fleek, turnt, irrelevant, basic, yeet, zero-chill or the phrase "Bye, Felicia." What do these words mean you might ask? Well, "bae" is just another word to say babe, "fleek" means that something is "on point," or perfect. The word "savage" means that you have the courage to say something that other normally wouldn't say.

"I think it's cool how only the students know the meaning of these words," said junior Lexi Chavez. "When students use them they usually have to explain to the teacher what they are saying."

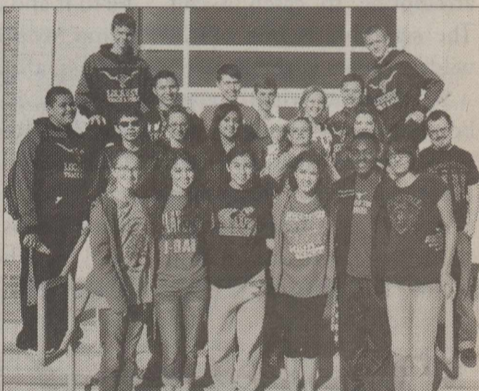

How do these interesting terms become popular? All it takes for them to be mentioned in a Vine, which is a social media app where people create six second videos, social media sites such as Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram.

"These words become popular so fast that it's sometimes hard to keep up," said sophomore Blanca Bueno. "I literally see them all over social media now."

These are just a few of the words and terms that are used at the high school, there are many more that are already popular or are quickly becoming popular. So, while these terms are popular among teens and some adults, are they harming the English language academically?

"I think that these terms have a place in language, as long as they are used appropriately," said English teacher Ms. Clement. "I have seen them used in academic writing and I feel that sometimes students don't know how to correctly distinguish when they are acceptable and when they should be avoided."

make them perfect, and prepare for district."

The One Act play cast and crew begin their battle for a state title at district competition on Tuesday, March 24.

By Lexi Chavez,
Lissa Hernandez, and

Lights, music, action! It's that time of the year again. The Lockney One Act play cast and crew are taking the stage. After an incredible year last year advancing to the regional meet, they hope to make the next step this year, competing at state.

Under a new director, Mr. Bobby Hon, LHS One Act play will be competing with a performance of Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors."

"I feel like we have the energy, and charisma to make it pretty far," said sophomore cast member Luke Kasner. "We just need to clean up the scenes,

Scott Lass, a junior at Lockney High School and a member of the Lockney FFA program was able to capture a calf at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo Calf Scramble. He will be raising a calf over the next year, then return to Houston for the chance at a scholarship and sale money.

meet all the program requirements throughout the year.

"I'm excited for the opportunity," Lass said. "It will be a lot hard work but I want to do it. You have to turn in monthly reports, keep a scrapbook with all your documentation and receipts and attend a progressive show in October to show how the calf is doing but it will be worth it. You have a chance to get a scholarship as well as get into the premium show."

Thirty selected applicants are chosen to race around the NRG Stadium (formerly Reliant) during the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo attempting to catch a calf. The scramble is one of the wildest events at the Rodeo.

It all begins when a cowboy hat drops, signaling the release of the calves and then the students begin their quest. One of the problems for the participants is to outrun their fellow competitors because there are not as many calves as there are students.

"The calves are held at the ramp and we were behind a line waiting for the start," Lass said, "then they would drop a cowboy hat and the race was on. There were 15 calves and 30 of us trying to catch one."

Competitors and calves are race around the huge arena floor as dirt, students and calves go flying. Every method possible is used to put the halter on the calf including bulldogging, tackling and the infamous tail capture.

"I started out chasing a calf, trying to pen it against the wall," Lass said. "I got kicked and saw some others getting kicked pretty good. Finally, I saw some calves standing back in the middle where the finish square was, so I just walked up to one, grabbed, took it out of the square, halted it and drug it back in to claim my prize."

Lass, a lifetime resident of Lockney, is the 17-year-old son of Mike and Maurceen Lass. Besides showing the calf, Lass will continue to show lambs next year along with his other senior year activities. He is currently looking for a calf to purchase and get the project started.

"If I had the chance," Lass said, "I would do it again. It was a wild but fun experience and I know it will be hard work this year."

would share and compare Starbucks coffee to roasting companies, like Evocation out of Amarillo, I realized that I was missing out. He and I booked a trip up to Chicago for a barista training class with the renowned Intelligentsia Coffee and Tea.

Shortly after, I left my job at Starbucks to work for another coffee shop. It was the beginning of summer in 2012 when we decided to start "Courier Coffee." We had been wanting to start a coffee catering service, so, we booked an event in July even though we had no equipment or supplies. But with the event scheduled, we had to make it happen. We bought our first espresso machine, then a workbench with wheels, water pump, then cups, flavorings, and hustled to put everything together in a month.

Since then, we have been part of various weddings, church events, farmers' markets, Christmas parties, LCU events, Texas Tech, Covenant, UMC and First Friday Art Trail, and even a baby shower (decaf for that one, of course).

It has been a great experience to work together as business partners and brothers. Our relationship lets us be more honest with one another. Brothers can argue one second and be laughing the next.

Our commonalities give us common purpose and our differences strengthen the team. We both love coffee, but Zane has a knack for the technical side of things, making sure everything we use is the best, and I handle the bookkeeping and public relations.

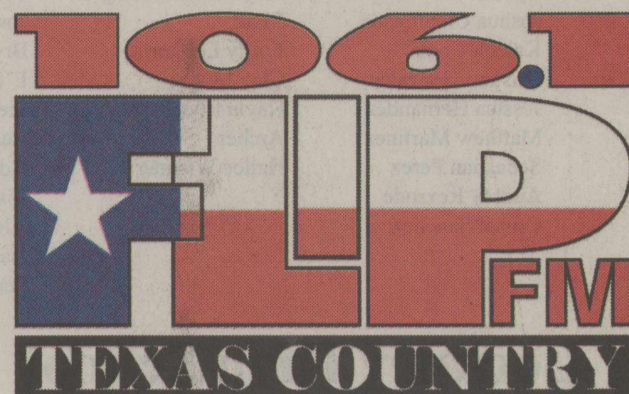

I think the analytic personality of our dad paired with the sociable influence of our mom, Debbie Montandon, is what makes us what we are as a company. We remember well where we come from as we move toward new horizons of taking this from a side business to a full time career.

We are looking forward to "going home" on April 18 to the Floyd County Friends Unity Center's "20 Years: From Denim To Diamonds" gala.

You can get tickets at D & J Gin in Lockney, Nick Long's State Farm Insurance Agency in Floydada or contact Elaine LaBaume @ 806-983-9153. $300 for a reserved table of 8 or $30 per ticket.

Assignment: Texas A Prairie in Pieces - Part 4

A couple of weeks after my first visit, I am again with Eidson at the Clymer Meadow. This time, however, we listen to a controlled burn expert who gives us a safety briefing. In my fire-resistant, high visibility clothing, I am flanked by biologists from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and local firefighters who, like me, listen intently to the fire manager's last-minute instructions. Within just a few minutes, one of the fire technicians lights up a diesel-fueled drip torch and walks along the northeastern edge of one of the prairie paddocks. The October grass is summer cured and makes efficient tinder. Once the first flames from the torch touch the ground, fire roars from the dried grass, and white smoke fills the northeastern Texas sky.

Even as the prairie burns and leaves the ground bare, it won't be long before fresh chutes of green grass begin to emerge from the char. The burn/ regrow cycle is part of the rhythm of the prairie. "All of the tallgrass prairie, from the coast of Texas to southern Manitoba, is a fire disclimax," Eidson says. Fire disclimax is a term used to describe an ecosystem being perpetually maintained in an early stage of succession by humans. Although the fire history for the region is unclear, Eidson believes that historically, Native Americans used fire as a tool to manage wild herds of bison.

"Bison will select burned patches over unburned," he says. "The protein content of the forage increases, it is tender, and they do not have to fight through dead oxidized grass to get to the green. It has been supported by some fire ecologists that most of the fire in the tallgrass prairie was introduced by humans at intervals of one to three years, punctuated by drought-driven wildfires that were major conflagrations."

Without fire, Eidson says, the prairie quickly succumbs to brush lands, and given the amount of rainfall in the area — about 40 inches a year — the successional forces are rapid.

As the fire burns in a steady and predictable manner, I follow along with the fire crews as they monitor the burn. In places, the flames reach as high as 10 feet or more and crackle with a sound that is sharper and more urgent than the wood fires in which I am accustomed to hearing. While the fire creeps to the southwest, crews on the other side of the meadow light another fire that is headed northeast into a scant breeze that's blowing in early October. The idea is that the fires will eventually meet in the middle, thus completing the controlled burn and increasing the grass output and diversity come spring. For Eidson, managing this prairie has been a 20-year affair, and he's always had a clear goal in mind.

"On Clymer, our objective is not to produce a vignette of what it looked like in 1842, but rather to increase diversity and thereby maintain healthy populations of all the 300-plus species of native plants occurring there," he says. "In light of climate change and the dire predictions, it is unlikely that these prairie remnants will be what they are today.

"We need to keep all of our options open."

Activities for the young and young at heart will highlight the 45th Annual Ranch Day from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on April 11 at the National Ranching Heritage Center (NRHC) in Lubbock.

More than 4,000 visitors attend Ranch Day every year and 150 volunteers work to make the NRHC come alive with historical interpretations and hands-on experiences. The popular event will include hands-on science and history demonstrations as well as a 20-foot Comanche tepee on the front lawn, music, dancing, and an old-fashioned "Snake Oil Magic Show" in the 6666 Barn.

The Texas Tech Equestrian Center ranch horse team will provide horse rides and a horse demonstration while rope maker Greg Davis will help visitors make their own ropes. Two chuck wagons will be set up in the 19-acre historic park to demonstrate chuck wagon cooking.

Guests can buy hamburgers and hot dogs as they enjoy the park and participate in such memorable activities as washing clothes on a washboard, churning butter, riding horseback, and pumping a railroad handcar. In addition, volunteers from Texas Tech and local organizations will supervise science stations where activities will include constructing simple machines, learning about steam power, and exploring range science.

The "Ranch Hand Experience" program will allow visitors (ranch hands) to get work cards when they arrive and have their cards stamped as they complete each activity. After six activities, visitors can take their stamped work cards to the Matador Office to receive cowboy pay that can be spent at the Waggoner Commissary.

The NRHC is a unique 27-acre museum and historical park that offers educational programs and exhibits to promote interest in ranching history and contemporary ranching.

The center provides 48 authentic dwellings and ranch structures from some of the nation's most historic ranches.

Supported by the Ranching Heritage Association and Texas Tech University, the center is located at 3121 Fourth Street adjacent to the Texas Tech campus. The NRHC does not charge admission for its activities but encourages donations to support its educational programs.

For more information, visit www.nrhc.ttu.edu or contact NRHC Director of Educational Programs Julie Hodges at 806.742.0498 or julie.hodges@ttu.edu.

MITT LIVINGSTON

Written by
Alma Jo (Livingston) Davis

Eugenia and Mitt Livingston came to Lockney in the early 1900's. Their sons, Blanton and Sam, with their families soon joined them. Blanton and Nor-reen reared five children. They were Flora, Mildred, Albert, Ruth and Bobby. Mildred and Ruth arc still among the living and both reside in California.

My parents, Sam and Addie Livingston and myself, Alma, left Eldorado, Oklahoma via covered wagon to homestead in Ochiltree County near Waka. Mother's parents were home- steading there. After a short time, we went to Lockney and lived with Dad's parents in the northeast part of town. Reno was born there January 5, 1910. Soon after, Grandfather sold the place to the Teavers and moved into a new concrete block home, which although! badly vandalized, still stands in the north part of town not far from Lockney Nursing Home. We also moved nearer town but soon moved "house and all" just south of the first Livingston place. A sudden stroke had tak- en grandfather's life and Dad's mother deeded some land to him. In a few years Novus was born, July 11, 1916.

Mitt Livingston was a retired Civil War veteran. He served as a surgeon. For a few years Dad and Uncle Blanton ran a livery stable. Then Blanton moved to a farm place in the Muncy Community where they lived until World War I, when they moved to Canyon. A few years later, Grandmother made her home with them until she died in 1930.

Dad drove the Lone Star Mail Route for several years. Then worked in Ed Reeves Ser- vice Station. Mr. Reeves was killed when hit by a car just in front of the station. Years later. Dad was hit by a World War II troop Train while grazing a cow. The railroad bisected with our property.

All of us attended Lock- ney schools. My early school days were spent in old build- ings heated with potbellied stoves, no water fountains, out- door privies, etc. One building burned and we finished out the school term in a store building. However my high school days were spent in a nice brick build- ing that had steam heat but we had to sit on the radiators to warm ourselves. It burned while

I was in college.

My friends and I had to walk everywhere we went so our so- cial life was at school and the First Baptist Church. We took turns having Sunday dinner in our homes.

In my 1921 graduation class were Mable Reeves-Abilene; Erma Mae (Hardesty) Hut- ton-Abilene; Christene (Mil- wee) Magee-Canyon Lake Shores; Helen (Collier) Mat- ney, deceased; Earl White- Farmington, N. M.; Carmen Tate, deceased; Mildred (Col- lier) Shaw-Amarillo; Faye Guthrie-Albuquerque, N.M.; Alma (Christopher) Martin- Snyder; and myself, Alam Jo (Livingston) Davis-Amarillo. In the summer of 1973, we en- joyed a class reunion with all except Earl White attending. Lockney has changed so, we had difficulty locating familiar places. Pay was a great help and we had a grand old time remi- niscing.

I taught school a few years, two of them in Lockney. Then spent 46 years as proofreader with the Amarillo Globe News.

Reno finished Lockney High School but was persuaded to take post-graduate work and play on the football team. He was injured in the first practice session and died the next day, October 10, 1928.

Novus became a paint and body-man and maintained a shop on the Livingston acre- age adjoining the cemetery. He now lives in Midland. No- vus married Vema Snelson and they had one son, Bobby, who attended Lockney Schools. He was stricken with leukemia at 17 years of age while the fam- ily resided in Florida and died soon after in Monahans. He was buried at Lockney.

Our mother died at the age of 90, in Lockney.

I married Lewis Davis, also of Amarillo Globe-News and we had one son, Grady Lew- is. Grady attended Amarillo Schools and was veteran of the Korean conflict. He was trained as an electrician. Bad health ruined a promising career. He passed away at the age of 44 on September 11, 1977, and was buried in Lockney. The burial plots for him and myself are on land formerly owned by the Livingstons.

This may not at all be what is needed for the historical publi- cation but under the present circumstances, it is the best I can do.

The Farm Life Quilt — Patterns to the Past

By Amanda Stapp

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

(This article will appear in the April Texas Coop Power Magazine)

When Wayde Clay's mother, Opal Martin, passed away in 1989, her four children decided to get together and divide up her things amongst themselves. Little did Wayde know, there was a treasure to be found in her pile.

As a child growing up in Flomot, Texas, Wayde and her family received the Ft. Worth Star Telegram every day. It was a valued commodity during a time of War and Depression, and it was amazing to think about the lengths it took to get it to their rural address every day. As with any newspaper, the Ft. Worth Star Telegram kept them connected to the world around them, and offered up all sorts of information. From time to time, it also encouraged them to take part in their more creative sides. Wayde's mother took those opportunities as they came about, and soon had a collection going that would one day be turned into a work of art, and a connection to the past.

Thursday, November 6, 1939 the Ft. Worth Star Telegram wrote an article entitled, "Quilt Pattern Instructions Provided." Along with the article, they included a picture of a barn scene set on a farm titled, "The Farm Life Quilt No. 4 - The Well Filled Barn." The article went on to explain that the paper would supply all the necessary patterns for the quilt free of charge. They would print the patterns the correct size, you just needed to transfer direct from the newspaper through carbon to the fabric of your choice; muslin, broadcloth or pongee may be used. Color by numbers for each pattern were included, with wax crayons being the best method. At the end of the 25 pattern series you could set them all together to make a quilt. They even included exact measurements for cloth and material needed, as well as suggestions to help you in your sewing. Opal Martin managed to collect, transfer and color all 25 patterns to old Tobacco sacks, but that was as far as it went, until Wayde found it in her pile.

After examining the pile of her mother's things, she found the colored tobacco sacks. Besides the fact that it was a quilt, Wayde didn't know much more about the patterns on the sacks, so she had a lady named Opal Hamilton quilt it together for her. A few years after the quilt was made, another lady by the name of Lula Pace saw it hanging in Wayde's house and knew exactly how that quilt came about. She explained to Wayde about the patterns in the Ft. Worth Star Telegram, and showed her how to bring out and set the Crayola colors with vinegar. It helped bring that quilt back to life and helped shine a new light on her mother and her talents.

Wayde said she has had that quilt hanging in a bedroom since 1995 and continues to learn more about it even today. It's a quilt that can take you right back to a certain time and place; where the paper came every day and patterns were included.
