The real slack in the U.S. economy

"You're a slacker!"

That is Heritage Foundation economist Stephen Moore's apparent take on young people failing to enter the workforce — reminiscent of the depiction of Principal Strickland in Back to the Future — writing an op-ed in The Washington Times, "Young Americans opting out of

In it, Moore points to declining labor participation by young people at the same time job openings are plentiful. The question is why?

"The labor-force participation rate is falling fastest among workers under 30," Moore writes, noting "negative attitudes toward blue-collar work," and young people graduating college without "basic" and "useful" skills.

There are plenty of jobs for "skilled and reliable mechanics, welders, engineers, electricians, plumbers, computer technicians and nurses," says Moore, but young people are not taking those jobs. Apparently, because they

What Moore does not tell you is that the employmentpopulation ratio for those aged 25 to 34 is as high as it was in 1986, at 76.8 percent. It peaked in 2000 at close to 82 percent and again in 2007 near 80 percent before it slumped in the Great Recession. After bottoming at 73.7 percent in December 2009 — slackers! — it has rebounded to its current level.

So, did 25 to 34 year olds become less ambitious right at the same time the worst recession since the Great Depression occurred?

No, because this followed the same trend as 35 to 44 year olds and 45 to 54 year olds. More slackers, apparently. On the margins, 25 to 34 year olds were no less likely to participate in the workforce as their older counterparts. Meaning, whatever the problem is, it is not unique to younger Americans.

Most of the drop off in young people with jobs actually occurred in the 16 to 24 year old demographic, from about a 54 percent employment-population ratio in 2007 to less than 45 percent by 2010. And not because they weren't signing up to be mechanics or electricians.

What Moore does not mention is that this is not at all unusual for young people in the periods that follow big

The employment-population ratios of 16 to 24 year olds took by far the biggest hits in the recessions of the early 1980's, 1991, 2001, and 2007 through 2009. The number of jobs in this age group tended to drop by about 6 percent on average for each recession, compared to about 3.5 percent for 35 to 44 year olds, and less than 2 percent

Why, it's almost as if during recessions, those youngest and with the least experience are the first people to be

Finally, Moore cites a high demand for blue-collar labor today, but fails to mention that demand for labor is up pretty much across the board, according to data compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Job Openings and Labor Turnover Survey, which shows nearly 5 million job openings nationwide.

Moore also fails to note that the trend of job openings is cyclical. Previous peaks occurred in March 2007 at 4.66 million, and in January 2001 at 5.3 million.

All of which has nothing to do with a lack of ambition to work in blue collar jobs. If anything, the number of job openings today could be a flashing light warning of an overheating economy.

So, it might be fashionable to chide younger people for being lackadaisical — when is that not fashionable? — and yet it ignores some of the important indicators of what labor markets are really telling us right now.

Namely, that young people and everyone else have barely begun to recover from the last recession, and it looks like the whole thing is about to pop again.

Lowe's continues to donate to Duty, Honor, Country... Floyd County Friends Gala tribute for fallen Veterans

By Elaine LaBaume Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

The Floyd County Friends would like to recognize and thank Frank Muniz and Teddy Summers, both managers of a Lowe's Supermarket.

Frank is Lowe's manager in Lockney. He has been working for Lowe's in Lockney for 35 years. He started when he was in his 20's.

Teddy has been the manager of Lowe's in Floydada for 8 months. However, his story is unique. His dad is Johnny Summers, Area Manager. He travels from Tulia to Tuscola, south of Abilene and visits stores "in between" where there is a Lowe's.

Johnny began as a young boy in the grocery business in Floydada. He managed Lowe's in Floydada for several years before being promoted to Area Manager. In 1996 when Floyd County Friends had their first gala, some board members visited with Johnny about donating some groceries and he said "Lowes will donate all the food except the steaks."

This marks the 20th year that Lowes has done this. Floyd County Friends are very grateful. Lowe's and so many other businesses and individuals donate each year to support the Unity Center. The Unity Center is a vital part of Floyd County.

Teddy was basically "raised in a grocery store" so becoming the manager in Floydada and working in the store prior to that means he is following in his dad's footsteps.

Tribute to a fallen veteran includes the insertion into a tri-folded American flag three spent cartridges representing duty, honor, country. Participation in the funeral service is requested by the family's funeral director. The Honor Guard ranges in size from two Flag Folders and expands to include a Color Guard, Bugler, and Rifle Squad, as requested by the family.

Ed Marks, Commander of Post 141, explains that, "It is a blessing for us to honor deceased Veterans."

Vice Commander, Mike O'Connell added, "Our Post has sixty two members. When we have two funerals on the same day, we're present at both."

Funeral Director, Tanner Mills of the Lemons Funeral Home summed up the Honor Guard presentation as, "Awesome."

Dan Schaeffer of the Moore Rose White Funeral Home commented, "No matter what the weather is, the Honor Guard is there."

Everyone enjoys watching a seed they planted sprout and begin to outside in a protected spot. grow. To be successful, some equipnent and supplies are needed. Make sure you have them on hand before planting time.

Seeds

Purchasing seeds early gives you time to order varieties that might not be available locally. Consult the individual Easy Gardening crop publications for recommended varieties. Most seed companies will send a catalog of vegetable types and varieties on request. Refer to your garden plan to see how much of each vegetable to plant. Do not order more seed than needed for the spring and fall gardening seasons. While most seeds can be held over for use the following year if properly stored, it is usually best to get new seeds at least every 2 years. Before planting last year's seeds, test their germination by placing 10 or 20 seeds between two layers of paper towel. Place the towel in a bowl or plate and keep it moist for a few seeds that sprout. If one-half or

It is always best to use transplants when growing broccoli, cauliflower, pepper, eggplant and tomato. Home gardeners can grow their own transplants or purchase them. If you decide to purchase transplants, select good quality, healthy plants that are free of insects and diseases. Harden home-grown transplants before planting them in the garden. well hardened at the time of purchase. The nurseryman can answer this question. Do not over-harden plants, as this will stunt them.

Equipment

The planting equipment you will need depends on the size of the garden. In large gardens a hand planter or garden tractor may be useful. In most home gardens a hoe, rake, hand trowel, string, stakes and labels are sufficient.

Planting

Plant cool-season crops such as lettuce and broccoli as soon as the soil can be worked in the spring. If planted too late, high summer temperature will cause low yield and poor quality. Do not plant warm-season crops such as beans and tomatoes until the soil has warmed. These crops grow poorly or not at all when the soil temperadays. Then count the number of ture is below 65 degrees F. For fall gardens, plant warm season crops fewer of the seeds sprout, pur- early enough to mature before the first frost.

Seeding

Plant seeds when the soil is moist but not wet. Soil worked when wet may crust over and prevent seedlings from breaking through. Use a string stretched between two stakes as a guide to keep the rows straight. Vegetables planted in straight rows are less likely to be accidentally cut off during hoeing and are easier to distinguish from weeds in the seedling stage.

Use a hoe handle, narrow stick, or a similar tool to make a seeding trench along the string. Do not plant seeds too deep. Plant small seeds such as carrot, greens, radish, and lettuce 1/4 to 1/2 inch deep. Plant medium-sized seeds such as beet and okra 1/2 to 1 inch deep. Plant large seeds such as bean, corn and squash 1 to 11/2 inches deep

To get a good stand, plant more seeds than needed and thin the plants after they have come up to get the proper spacing. This is especially important if old seeds are used. Thin plants while they are still small to avoid damaging them. Seedlings that aren't thinned will be crowded and will not grow and yield as well as they will with sufficient room.

Transplanting

The ideal time to transplant is as soon as the soil dries after a rain. Transplant on a cloudy day or late in the afternoon. This gives the plant time to recover from transplanting before it is exposed to the sun.

Thoroughly water the transplants before planting. Using a hoe or trowel, make holes deep enough in the row so the plants can be set slightly deeper than where they grew in the pots. Make a starter solution by dissolving 2 tablespoons of garden fertilizer, such as 10-10-10, in 1 gallon of water. Fill the hole with the starter solution and allow it to soak into the soil.

Then remove the transplant from the pot or tray, set it in the hole, and firm the soil around the roots. Leave a dish-shaped depression around the plant to hold water. Water well to make sure the soil is in good contact with the roots.

When setting out plants growing in peat pots, cover all of the pot with soil. Peat pots exposed to the air draw moisture away from the plant roots.

Hot caps or other protection may be needed to protect eggplant, pepper and tomato plants from late spring frosts. Be prepared to protect plants each time freezing weather is expected. Remove protection as soon as frost danger is past.

Plants set in the garden in late summer for a fall garden will need some protection from the sun. A shingle, piece of cardboard, or similar object placed on the west side of the plant will provide shade.

SDA Extends ARC and PLC

WASHINGTON, March Vilsack. 27, 2015 - Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack today provided farm owners and producers one additional week, until April 7, 2015, to choose between Agriculture Risk Coverage (ARC) and Price Loss Coverage (PLC), the safety-net programs established by the 2014 Farm Bill. The final day to update yield history or reallocate base acres also will be April 7, 2015.

"This is an important decision for producers because these programs help farmers and ranchers protect their operations from unexpected changes in the marketplace," said Vilsack. "Nearly 98 percent of owners have already updated yield and base acres, and 90 percent of producers strong education and outhave enrolled in ARC or reach campaign launched PLC. These numbers are by the U.S. Department strong, and continue to rise. This additional week will give producers a little more time to have those final conversations, review their data, visit their local Farm Service Agency offices, and make their decisions," said

If no changes are made to yield history or base acres by the deadline, the farm's current yield and base acres will be used. If a program choice of ARC or PLC is not made, there will be no 2014 crop year payments for the farm and the farm will default to PLC coverage for the 2015 through 2018 crop years. Producers who have an appointment at their local FSA offices scheduled by April 7 will be able to make an election between ARC and PLC, even ghum, lentils, mustard seed, if their actual appointment is after April 7.

These safety-net programs provide important financial protection against unexpected changes in the marketplace. As part of the of Agriculture (USDA) in September, to date more than 5 million educational postcards, in English and Spanish, have been sent to producers nationwide, and more than 5,000 events with more than 430,000 attendees, including training sessions and speaking engagements, have been conducted to educate producers on the programs. The online tools, available at www.fsa.usda. gov/arc-plc, which allow producers to explore how ARC or PLC coverage will affect their operation, have been presented to more than 3,400 groups.

Covered commodities under ARC and PLC include barley, canola, large and small chickpeas, corn, crambe, flaxseed, grain soroats, peanuts, dry peas, rapeseed, long grain rice, medium grain rice (which includes short grain and sweet rice), safflower seed, sesame, soybeans, sunflower seed and wheat. Upland cotton is no longer a covered commodity.

Producers need to contact the Farm Service Agency by April 7. To learn more, farmers can contact their local Farm Service Agency county office. To find local offices, visit http://offices. usda.gov.

The 2014 Farm Bill builds on historic economic gains in rural America over the past six years, while achieving meaningful reform and billions of dollars in savings for the taxpayer. Since enactment, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has made significant progress to implement each provision of this critical legislation, including providing disaster relief to farmers and ranchers; strengthening risk management tools; expanding access to rural credit; funding critical research; establishing innovative public-private conservation partnerships; developing new markets for rural-made products; and investing in infrastructure, housing and community facilities to help improve quality of life in rural America. Whether you are planning to do it yourself or hire a professional, property owners often make risky assumptions about whether or not they should get their utility lines marked, but every digging job requires a call - even small projects like planting trees and shrubs. Digging without calling can disrupt service to an entire neighborhood, harm you and those around you and potentially result in expensive fines and repair costs. Calling 811 before every digging job gets your underground utility lines marked for FREE and helps prevent undesired consequences.

Once you've made the smart call to 811 and waited for your underground utility lines to be marked, you are now officially ready to dig. Don't forget that with time, erosion or root structure growth may shift the locations of your utility lines, so remember to call 811 again, each and every time you are planning a digging job. Visit call 811.com for more information about 811 and the call-before-you-dig process.

quit and thanks to a strong faith he endured. Matter of fact, he achieved a significant goal during this time of injury of providing leadership of the Whirlwind football team to a Playoff berth. Aaron wanted this really bad and he convinced more than a dozen teammates that if they got in the weight room more often they would become better

At the West Region Powerlifting Meet in Sundown, Aaron abbreviated his lifting attempts to just qualify for State so he could rush off to Big Spring for his brother Blake's wedding in Big Spring. Aaron lifted 1,470 pounds in the three events which really was not his best effort. On this date, being at his brother's wedding was more important. Thank goodness he went to Sundown, because what happened in Abilene two weeks later was simply phenomenal.

At State, Aaron entered the competition with the 6th best qualifying effort in the field of 18. He got off to a good start in the first event by winning the Squat with a 635 pound lift. He was 10poinds ahead of the nearest competitor - Brandon Bruce of Rogers. Aaron's confidence was high during the lunch break and he told me he was just where he needed to be. Plus, Aaron got a break when the pre-meet favorite Ty Tamplin of Buna withdrew from the competition due to a week long illness that had drained his strength. Tamplin attempted just one lift and was unsuccessful. Tamplin had lifted a State Qualifying 1,610 pounds at Region 4 (Southeast). He knew this was not his day. Aaron knew the door of opportunity had just opened.

press, which was Aaron's most vulnerable event due to his elbow. The field gained on Aaron and he fell to 2nd place going into the final event. He lifted 350-pounds on the bench and he missed his only lift (355) of the day by 5-pounds over Aaron. on. Aaron and the Rogers event of the deadlift.

Each event, I would ask opening at 530, his answer to the goal of this event was "whatever it takes to beat them." There was no more preserving of strength at this point. There was no tomor-

It was in the deadlift where the competition peaked and it was winner take all. The Rogers teammates lifted first by each making their 510 pound attempts. Aaron took the lead back by getting 530. Bruce & Jones each lifted 535 to regain the lead. Aaron an-Then came the bench swered with a 550 pound lift to put him back in the lead. Then in the final lift of the fierce battle Bruce missed at 565 and Jones failed at 580. Aaron had won State Championship, but instead of bypassing on his final lift of his high school career he stepped in his final attempt. The duo up to bar where he gritted of Bruce and Bryson Jones of and grunted out an unbe-Rogers now shared 1st place lievable lift of 590 pounds. It was a sight to behold. It Now the pressure was really was a career personal best in the deadlift and gave him an teammates displayed great all-time high of 1,575 pound sportsmanship by shaking total in three events. He won the hands before the final the State Championship by 40-pounds!

After his Championship Aaron what weight are you lift, it is reported that Jones going to open with, and what & Bruce said to each other "it is your goal for this event? In did not matter what we did, the deadlift he said he was that guy was going to outdo us today". Even though the pre-meet favorite Tamlin had to pull out of the competition, I am not sure that Aaron might not have taken

What went unnoticed was that Isiah Myers of Newton passed both Bruce and Jones of Rogers in the final standings with an event winning lift of 615 pounds in the deadlift. The total pounds of the entire competition had: (1) Aaron Chavarria 1,575 (2) Isiah Meyers, Newton 1,535 (3) Bryson Jones, Rogers 1,525 (4) Brandon Bruce, Rogers 1,525 (5) Bryan Wilburn, Winnsboro 1,505. Jones got 3rd due to a tiebreaker.

Aaron's first words to me after the final event, "I wanted to give Floydada a State Championship. I promised Coach Bandy that I would win him a Championship". Aaron wanted to experience what other former Whirlwinds in his lifetime - Adam Gonzales, Big Frank Hernandez, Brady Rainwater and Aarrhon Flores - had felt by winning a State Championship in their respective sports. Now he knows.

Aaron's support group included his parents Albert and Olga Chavarria, Chris Chavarria, Tiara and Kobe Villa, Nick and Melissa Long, They were wearing special made black T-shirts with Floydada on the front and a saying on the back "Til I Collapse" -Aaron Chavarria. I think his supporters were closer to collapse than was Aaron. After the Awards Ceremony, Floydada coaches Todd Bandy and Coby Emery talked about Aaron. "He is easy to coach. It is yes sir and no sir all the time. Aaron shows up to work every day with an attitude of getting better." Bandy noted that Aaron missed just one lift all day and that is what you have to do when at this level. He was close to perfection in his execution.

The wonderful day ended with Aaron's choice to go eat a burger. While we sat at the long table, I noticed Aaron nodded in prayer and giving thanks. It was another moment of inspiration. This new friend during the past year reminded me this day how exciting life can be and it is worth fighting thru the bumps in the road we may face. Plus, it's better to not take the journey alone. Great job Aaron. Great job to all of you in Floydada and the area who have touched his life.
