Clinic to open soon in Floydada

By Chris Blackburn
The Hesperian-Beacon

West Texas Family Medicine of Plainview is on schedule to open in early November in the Cogdell Clinic building in Floydada.

The clinic is the third one in the area with others located in Abernathy and the main clinic in Plainview.

The group says a strong medical presence in Floydada is important.

"Our group is committed to helping Floydada stay a viable community by providing medical services that allows them to have business opportunities that are going to look at what medical services are available in Floydada," said Dr. Mark McClanahan at an earlier planning session.

Cargill Announces Impending Closure of Lockney Feedlot

By Charles Keaton
The Hesperian-Beacon

Persistent drought conditions and reduced cattle numbers have forced Cargill, Inc. to announce the closing of the Lockney cattle feed yard sometime next summer.

Michael Martin, director of communications for Cargill, said, "It's a decision that we hated to make. We just couldn't justify keeping it open. We cannot control the weather that has created the drought conditions."

This is the second Cargill owned property to close this year. In January, the company shut down the Plainview processing plant. The Lockney feed yard was one of the primary providers to the Plainview plant but in the past few months have been shipping the cattle to the Friona processing plant.

Cargill, Inc. announced the closing of the Lockney cattle feed yard. The feed yard employs 45 people and can feed up to 120,000 cattle a year. With the closing of the Plainview processing plant and the dwindling cattle herds, Cargill felt it necessary to close the Lockney feed yard.

Billions of dollars has been spent in Texas on power infrastructure including several hundred million in Floyd County. Transmission towers and lines have been placed throughout the South Plains and Panhandle to help move electricity generated by wind farms to metropolitan areas.

Floyd County benefits greatly as $7 billion CREZ project nears finish

By Jim Malewitz
Texas Tribune
and
Chris Blackburn
The Hesperian-Beacon

With little fanfare, Texas is just weeks away from wrapping up a nearly $7 billion effort to add vast amounts of wind power to its energy grid.

By the end of December, developers expect to flip the switch on the final electrical transmission projects built under the state's Competitive Renewable Energy Zone, or CREZ, initiative — the years-long effort to connect windy, largely secluded West Texas to growing cities that demand more power.

Floyd County continues to benefit from the buildup with hundreds of millions of dollars in power lines and wind farms slated to come online in the coming months.

"The completion of the CREZ transmission line project represents the single largest economic potential Floyd County has ever seen," said Justin Jaworski, Executive Director, Floydada Economic Development Corporation. "We are eagerly anticipating the development of five wind energy projects ranging from $100 million to $500 million in value."

State-wide, once finished, the build-out will stretch nearly 3,600 miles and will be able to send 18,500 megawatts of wind power across the state. That's about 50 percent more capacity than is currently installed in Texas — the country's leader in wind energy production — and more than three times as much as any other state.

"It's a major milestone," said Terry Hadley, a spokesman for the Public Utility Commission. He added that regulators will be on the lookout for any needed tweaks. Those changes could include adding equipment to decrease the energy lost over the longest-stretching lines.

Regulators and wind power advocates say the build-out, approved by the PUC in 2008, has spurred huge investments in wind energy by assuring developers markets for the energy their turbines churn out.

Texas isn't the only state looking to add more transmission for wind power, but other projects don't match CREZ's scope. Projects elsewhere — particularly those that stretch across state lines — have been slowed by a patchwork of sometimes conflicting federal and state regulations. Texas has avoided the biggest bureaucratic messes because most of its power lines stay within state borders. And the presence of one grid operator — the Electric Reliability Council of Texas — in most of the state further simplifies the process.

That's not to say planning for CREZ was a breeze. The routes, some of which proved controversial, were slowly mapped out in the PUC's hearing room. Landowners in the Hill Country were among those who tried to prevent the lines from crossing their property. They succeeded in stopping one line and part of another after grid officials found it possible to upgrade existing infrastructure but serve the same purpose more cheaply.

The new transmission projects don't run cheap. Texans will eventually shell out $6.8 billion to finance the entire build-out, according to a project update released this week by the PUC. Electric ratepayers will bear the burden, but few have yet seen their bills creep up. The commission has approved CREZ fees from just three transmission service companies, with other filings winding through the system.

The new fees, Hadley said, will likely add several dollars to a residential customer's monthly bill.

The projects' estimated price tag has changed little over the past two years, but it is far higher than the $4.93 billion projection made in 2008. Inflation drove some of that increase, while the projects' changing shape was a bigger factor. In calculating the original estimate, researchers assumed the power lines would follow the most direct routes. As the process played out, however, regulators minimized intrusion by redrawing the routes to follow fences or roads. Those decisions added more than 600 miles of power lines that weren't originally planned.

Jeff Clark, executive director of the Austin-based Wind Coalition, sees the big spend as well worth it. Texas' wind portfolio is still growing, he points out, and the costs of wholesale wind energy is falling as technology improves and grid operators find more ways to integrate wind with natural gas.

Weekly Gin Update

By Rebecca Rivers
rgotti@fox34.com

Harvest has finally begun on the cotton crop across the South Plains. Gins are now open for receiving, and to help keep you updated on the local crop, we are visiting a different local gin each week. Philip Manske at Pleasant Hill CO-OP Gin said that although there won't be any dry land cotton headed to gin this year, the irrigated crop they have received thus far is looking exceptional.

"So far we've ginned about 1,000 bales of cotton. Grades coming back have been from about .52 cents to .57 cents. Yields have been good, irrigated cotton is very good this year, there's not going to be any dry land cotton," Manske said. "If you take the area from Owens up to Pleasant Hill to McCoy to Floydada, it's probably some of the best cotton on the South Plains. We'll be ginning maybe through mid January. We've gotten a real late start. We're probably at least three weeks behind, so we're looking to at least mid January if I was guessing."

As cotton harvest progresses across West Texas, Ag Day Lubbock hopes everyone will keep safety in mind both stripping in the field and at the gin. And please remember to slow down when you're driving out there behind equipment and module trucks. Happy Harvest!

Home Country

By Slim Randles

In our part of the country, fall means deer hunting. Many of us will dress up like a pile of leaves, go out into very cold weather, and sit still until we freeze to death.

Why? Because we want to have some venison this winter for the family. We'll figure out how much the venison costs us ... but only at gunpoint. Because this is not the most fiscally sane thing we do each year. Sanity would send us to buy some really tender beef to eat. Where's the glory in that? No, there are still a lot of us who would rather go out and find the meat and bring it home. And we spend a lot of money each year, and read lots of books and magazines, and talk endlessly about techniques. It doesn't appear to be a rational way to live, but when you apply science, history, anthropology and Darwinian theory, it still doesn't make any sense, but at least now you sound more educated talking about it.

Doc's awfully good at that. When the subject came up the other day at the morning meeting of the world dilemma think tank (held daily at the Mule Barn truck stop since the Hoover administration) Doc said there was actually a very clear scientific reason for it.

"In cave days," he said, "only the best hunters lived to sire children. The others ate weeds and died a sorry death. So we come from a solid line of successful hunters. We've been running around clubbing things to death for about two million years that we know of, and we only started agriculture about 12,000 years ago. So if you divide this and carry the one ... well, another way to look at it is ... if man emerged from the trees a year ago, he was nothing but a hunter until 18 hours ago."

"Makes sense," said Dud, "think I'll buy some of that Autumn Fandango cameo this year."

Entertainment in the Early Days

By Will Martin

Residents were involved in various activities for entertainment in the early days.

One thing that took place was the croquet court down near the city water tower. Older men that didn't have anything to do spent many happy hours playing croquet.

Many men of all ages would find an empty building and then spent all day playing dominoes. You would be surprised at how some people could sit at one place so long.

In cool days when the wind was from the north, men and boys would lean up against the south side of the bank and shoot the ball. Some evil minded people would accuse them of thinking evil thoughts about the women. I never had nay thoughts like that when I saw the men leaning against the side of the bank. You could see a pretty good crowd of people on Saturday, which was called butter and egg day. They came in mostly from the rural school houses to sell eggs, cream, etc., to buy groceries and other things. Many people would stay late to go to the picture show.

I felt sorry for the storekeepers and their help for having to stay so late on Saturday night. People would sometimes buy their groceries late in the afternoon and not pick them up until late at night after the show was over. The movies were pretty long and had a pretty long comedy at the last. If there were enough people who came in late the theater would run the show over for the late comers.

The name of the first theater was Olympic, located just about where the bank's drive in window is today or maybe a little to the north.

In about 1917 or through 1929 we had three theaters. My understanding was that Jack Deakins bought the Olympic and changed the name to Ritz. Then the Palace was built. Then the building that later became Arwine Drug had been bought by Jack and his partner who leased the building and converted it to a picture show called the Royal.

Things were booming on the tail end of the roaring 1920s. But in 1929 the First State Bank went under about the time the stock market fell. That was the start of the Great Depression.

Everything just wound down slowly in about two years. Fanners lost their homes and merchants had to lay off hands.

But we that stayed made the best of things. We hoed in summer and pulled cotton in the fall, then worked two or three weeks in summer in wheat harvest.

We that were on the broke side hunted for work most of the time. Papa's little 80 acre farm, along with dry weather and low prices, made our living pretty lean, but with me working on the side, we made it after not having to go on welfare. You have heard that the windmill saved lots of people from almost starving. Our windmill sure did furnish water to raise those good old green beans, peas and carrots. I must try to forget those depression days and bad sandstorm days. After 60 or more years. I haven't been able to forget them so far.

It wasn't all doom and gloom for us young people. We might have to bum a ride with someone that was lucky enough to own an old car that a bunch of us would go to a neighbor's house and play games and turn into a ring play or square dance. Baseball was a great game for people of nearly all ages. Sandhill was the best team in this part of the county. Some of the best players were Arthur Womack, Edd and Leonard Holmes. There were more but those three were the ones I knew well. Leonard was known as Lefty. He later went to Amarillo and played professional baseball.

Some people may not believe this but I think we had much colder winters from about 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919 up through the 1920s of these some were colder than others. I remember in about 1919 after about three weeks of near zero weather the lakes were not pumped dry for irrigation, but were pretty full of water. Of course in three weeks of zero weather at night they would freeze about a foot deep of solid ice.

On the days that were not too cold, I would walk to school and back along beside Massie lake that was frozen over. Look out on the lake and there would be maybe two Model T Ford cars with kids in them yelling and screaming. The drivers would go around in circles and throw on the brakes and let the car slide till it almost turned over. I thing Kenneth Henry and Bill Daily were the main drivers.

Not only did people ride in cars in cold weather but often tied a homemade sled behind a car and four or five would get on the sled and have a high heel time. Another sport was a jackrabbit drive. A bunch of men and boys would take their hound dogs, some had 22 guns and all would scatter out across the country and scare up the rabbits.

I think it was at the sheriffs office where they could get 5 cents for each pair of rabbit ears. I could think up more but I will close.

On Wednesday of last week the S.O.S. ladies were changing the clothing from summer to winter clothing. You do know they are on the south side of where the Center is located, so at noon they took a break and came down the hall and ate lunch with us. I think we had 12 ladies that ate with us.

If I remember correctly we had 47 people eating at the Center that Wednesday. It sounded so good. Everyone was visiting and enjoying their lunch. We wish we had that many of people eating with us every day at noon. We enjoyed having so many.

I know we have many senior adults who need to come and enjoy a couple of hours with us. It gets me out of the house and visiting with friends. I don't like to cook any more for myself. I really enjoy getting out.

Gary Brown, Serapio Ovalle, and J.R. Ovalle are working at the new doctors clinic and are eating with us each day. There may be others that are working there but I do not know their names.

Thank you for remembering the Center when you need to make a donation or a memorial donation. Our mailing address is P.O. Box 573, Floydada, TX. 79235. If you do not want your name in the Hesperian newspaper when you make a donation or a memorial donation, please let me know and I will not put it in there. Some people prefer not having their name in the paper for some reason.

Abernathy outscores Whirlwinds in district game, 30-0

By Charles Keaton
The Hesperian-Beacon

Chilly north winds and a red-hot Abernathy Antelopes team, kept the Floydada Whirlwinds winless in District 2-2A-Div2 with a 30-0 defeat.

Both teams found it tough to deal with the north winds that were gusting to over 25 mph during the first half. Abernathy finally broke the scoreless tie with a 26-yard field goal by Zach Tovar with 4:48 left in the first half.

In the third quarter, the Antelopes found the end zone three times. With 8:52 left in the quarter, Baylor Smith ran it in from 23 yards out to increase the lead to 10-0. N. K. Clarkson crossed the goal line from five yards out with 5:24 left in the quarter to move the score to 17-0. Finally, Sawyer Knight rushed in from 11 yards out to make the score 24-0 with 1:05 left in the third quarter.

Abernathy tallied the final score of the night with 6:51 left in the game when Knight found the end zone on a 22-yard run to give the Antelopes a 30-0 lead.

Knight finished the night with 74 yards rushing and two touchdowns as the Antelopes accumulated 271 total yards, 191 on the ground and 80 in the air.

The Whirlwinds could not get anything going offensively all night. The finished with only 165 total yards, 66 on the ground and 99 in the air. Tucker Lowrance completed just three of nine passes for 99 yards. Matthew McGowen caught two of the passes for 86 yards including a 64-yarder that the Winds could not capitalize on. Corey Mathis rushed the ball 18 times for 33 yards to lead the Winds.

The Winds are now 0-2 in district and 1-6 overall. They host Post Oct. 25, travel to Tulia on Nov. 1 and close out the season hosting Lubbock Roosevelt. The Winds still have a chance to make the playoffs since four teams from each district advance after the University Interscholastic League added the additional playoff team this past summer.

The Antelopes are now 2-0 in district and 6-1 overall. They travel to Olton on Oct. 25, then travel to Lubbock Roosevelt, Nov. 1 and close out the regular season by hosting Post on Nov. 8.

The Longhorns were held to 180 total yards while the Owls managed 455 yards of total offense.

The Owls began the scoring with 4:46 left in the first quarter when Castillo scored from 27 yards out.

In the second quarter, the Owls found the end zone again with a nine yard pass from Rossi to Garcia with 10:43 left in the half.

Following a two-point conversion, the Owls were leading 14-0. Ky Teeter found Tevin Phillips open for a 14 yard scoring pass with 9:21 left in the half. Veterans Appreciation Banquet to be held Nov. 11

November 11 is the day each year that this nation sets aside to honor all veterans. It is thanks to the veterans of our wonderful country that we enjoy the freedom we have in the United States of America.

This year there will be a Veterans Appreciation Banquet. This banquet is hosted by The Plainview Elks Lodge and Plainview High School Student Council. Assisting with the banquet are Hale County 4-H, students of Dr. Rick Shaw at Wayland and the Plainview High School Naval Jr ROTC. American Legion Posts and VFW Posts in Plainview, Tulia, Lockney and Floydada have also been of a great assistance in putting this special banquet together. It will be held at the Plainview High School Cafeteria at 1501 Quincy Street, Plainview, Texas at 6:00 p.m. on November 11, 2013.

Veterans from Plainview

and surrounding communities are being asked to come together so that they may be honored in a way they deserve. To be able to do this, we need help of the veterans themselves. We are asking that any and all veterans that would like to be included in this special event contact one of people listed below to give them your name and address so that an invitation to this event can be sent to you. We are doing this by invitation so that a spot may be reserved for you and to be able to have a number in which to prepare food for. The appropriate dress for this banquet is a nice casual or what you would wear to church.

There are 3,482 veterans in Swisher, Hale and Floyd Counties. Only a small portion of the veterans are members in the American Legion or VFW posts. We would like to honor all veterans, whether they are young, old or in-between. Please give us a call with your name and mailing information.

John Reeves of Smokin' X will be preparing brisket and beans. Smokin' X is a competitive BBQ team and has won numerous cook-offs. The meat comes from Raider Red meats. There will also be potato salad and coleslaw prepared by Elks Restaurant as well as dessert.

A program is planned that will touch the heart of everyone in attendance.

Please get in touch with one of the following people to get your name on the invitation list. You may text or call. These contact people may be at work or in a meeting so PLEASE leave a message and they will get back with you.

Floyd County 4-H "Top Shot" competition held

By Patty Davenport

What a blast! The Floyd County 4-H Shooting Sports coaches held a "Top Shot" competition on Sunday, September 29. This was a great, fun and safe way to introduce youth to the different disciplines offered in the shooting sports program.

The competition was stiff and the scores were close. The senior and intermediate age group winners were extremely close with the shotgun scores determining the "top Shot" in each group. We had nine senior age youth that participated with Jake Bramlet edging out his competition. Arnie Martinez came out on top in the intermediate group. Archery determined the junior age group winner with Tyann Phillips being the only competitor of the day that connected with the target.

Coaches are meeting soon to set up practice schedules. If you are interested in any of the shooting sports disciplines offered; archery, rifle, pistol, shotgun or hunting and wildlife, contact the County Extension Office at 983-4912 for information.

Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin. The Texas A&M University System, U. S. Department of Agriculture and the County Commissioners Courts of Texas Cooperating. We will seek to accommodate all persons with disabilities for all meetings. We request that you contact the Floyd County Texas AgriLife Extension Service as soon as possible to advise us of any auxiliary and/or services needed.

Assignment: Texas The Marfa Lights

Highway 67 east of Marfa is a desolate piece of highway - especially at night. After a dinner at the Reata Restaurant in Alpine, I head west out of town towards the Presidio County seat of Marfa.

Marfa proper is an interesting place. After clearing the mountains that flank Alpine, I am soon on a giant desert grassland and can see the lights of Marfa glowing in the midsection of the flat plain. In the town, art galleries abound and I see pieces from funky to functional hanging on the walls of the numerous art houses.

RUSSELL GRAVES

At the center of town is the immense and ornate Presidio County Courthouse whose influences look, to me, like a cross between western practicality and Victorian opulence. In the courthouse's shadow lies the fabled Paisano Hotel. Back in the 1950's the hotel served as the headquarters for the film Giant and provided hospitality for Richard Burton, Elizabeth Taylor, and James Dean.

The town is fun and eclectic and adding to it's oddity is a viewing platform ten miles east of the town. While I reflect on what Marfa proper offers, I am drawn to stop at the dimly lit platform. I was at this spot about thirty years ago and again about ten years ago but this time I get to share the phenomenon with my wife and kids.

On the platform, there's an electric energy in the air. Throngs of visitors have stopped and like us, peer across the desert waiting to see small orbs of light appear in the distance. In less than five minutes, the desert doesn't disappoint.

To the southwest, over the Chianti Mountains, an orb appears about one degree above the horizon. At first it's white and pulsates at an unpredictable frequency. Soon, however, the colors morph from white to red and then orange and fades in and out unpredictably as it wanes and waxes in intensity yet stays stationary in its position.

Soon the single light shares the desert stage with about a half dozen other orbs that appear and disappear at random. While most share the same three hues as the first light a couple of times I see green orbs glowing faintly in the distance.

Everyone on the platform sees the lights and are amazed by them but no one here can explain why they occur. It seems that that's a conundrum that fifty years in the making.

The first published accounts of the lights were in 1957 and anecdotally claim that reports of the lights date back to the 1800's. Research suggests that the lights are mirage-like apparitions that reflect distant light sources but one researcher claims that while many of the lights have a plausible explanation, the origin of a percentage of them remains unclear.

The lights rose to public consciousness when the television series Unsolved Mysteries featured a segment on the phenomena. Thirty years after I first saw them, they are again rising to my collective conscious. Explanation or not, I am in awe to see the lights seemingly appear out of thin air and my wife and kids feel the same.

The mystery lights just made some new fans.

A Change in Tempo for FHS Band

By Hunter Schwertner
Assistant Editor

For the past two weeks, the Floydada High School Band has been working diligently to improve the quality of their performances, especially with fall band contest approaching.

The band staff has been preparing daily to better its performances as well as to create a better work ethic.

"We have spent a fair amount of time working fundamentals," said band director, Hailey Kelley. "One of our main focuses is to make sure that the students can play their music individually."

After a difficult start to the season, even the band members are hoping to have a more positive outcome for the weeks to come.

"I will be satisfied with anything better than our previous score because I've seen a lot more improvement, and I think we deserve it," said sophomore, Destiny Cabello.

As head of the band, the drum major's primary concerns are to be successful.

"The band has shown great capabilities this marching season, and I cannot wait to see them succeed in the future," said senior, Samantha Caballero.

It is important that the students remember to enjoy band even when they have to work hard.

"My expectations of the students are to strive and aim for the best," said Kelley. "The more the students understand these concepts, the more they enjoy performing."

Meet Ms. Maxwell

By Mattie Sanders
Staff Writer

A little boy takes his place and cries out "color upse!" The crowd of elementary students goes wild with excitement as they sprint to the other side of the little gym. For many children, the chance to get to stretch their legs and blow off some of the contained energy they've been holding down is their favorite part of a school day. Whether the students realize it or not, their fun and games wouldn't be possible without the help of a brand new face.

"I hope they leave each day saying they have learned something new and that they had fun doing it overall," said Physical Education (PE) teacher, Brittany Maxwell.

Ms. Maxwell is the new PE teacher for the elementary and high school campuses. She received her bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education at the University of Virginia's College at Wise. Later, she also obtained her master's degree in Coaching and Athletic Administration at Concordia University in Irvine.

While she was attending grad school, Maxwell met her fiancé, Garrett. Garrett is a wrestling coach at Wayland University. Her family resides in Virginia where she was raised. She had never been to Texas before she moved here in August. Brittany enjoys watching and playing sports, baking, and photography when she is not in the gym with her students.

Seniors Head to TTU Bridges, second grade

By Heather Fierros

Recently, Texas Tech University hosted their Red and Black Weekend for all high school seniors. Attending from LHS were Heather Fierros, Tanae Ramos, Alyssa Cruz, Ashly Alvarado, Janette Ybarra and Nathan Caballero. On Saturday, Tech let the students tailgate outside of Gates Hall where Fuddrucker's catered and served hamburgers and potato chips. Some of the high school students were also able to take a tour of the campus. On Sunday the students participated in a "college fair" where representatives from each college of study handed out information about their programs and also allowed the high school students to speak to some Tech students in that field of study. During the day on Sunday, several LHS students were able to meet Texas Tech's president and were able to speak with him about the university. "He explained to us how important it is to major in something that we can enjoy every single day of our lives and he hoped to see us on Tech's campus next year," explained Ashly Alvarado. On Monday, Tech had a pep rally for the students and taught them some of the chants and cheers. Afterwards there were many meetings you could attend such as the Hospitality session, financial aid session, and the Greek life session. After lunch the students were allowed to view the resident's hall for the upcoming freshman. "It was a great experience that helped me view all the different things I can major in and also helped me consider Tech," stated Heather Fierros.

Second grade Science learned about matter earlier in the year. We learned that scientists came up with the idea that everything is made of matter. If it takes up space, then it is made of matter. The way to tell one piece of matter apart from another is by their physical properties. Physical properties are words we use to describe objects. Some physical properties are color, shape, size, texture, length, and flexibility. After we learned all about matter, then we learned that we can change matter. We can cut it, fold it, tear it, melt it, freeze it, and even change its color. Finally, we put it all together. The students were to use any type of matter they were able to and change it to build a bridge. They could cut things, fold things, glue things, and even break things in order to build a bridge. I send this home as a project every year. My hopes are that an adult spends some time with these children and enjoy the process. There are no intentions of placing any stress on the children or parents/guardians. It's a fun piece of Science I like to send home so that everyone gets a chance to see what we are learning here at school.

Cross Country

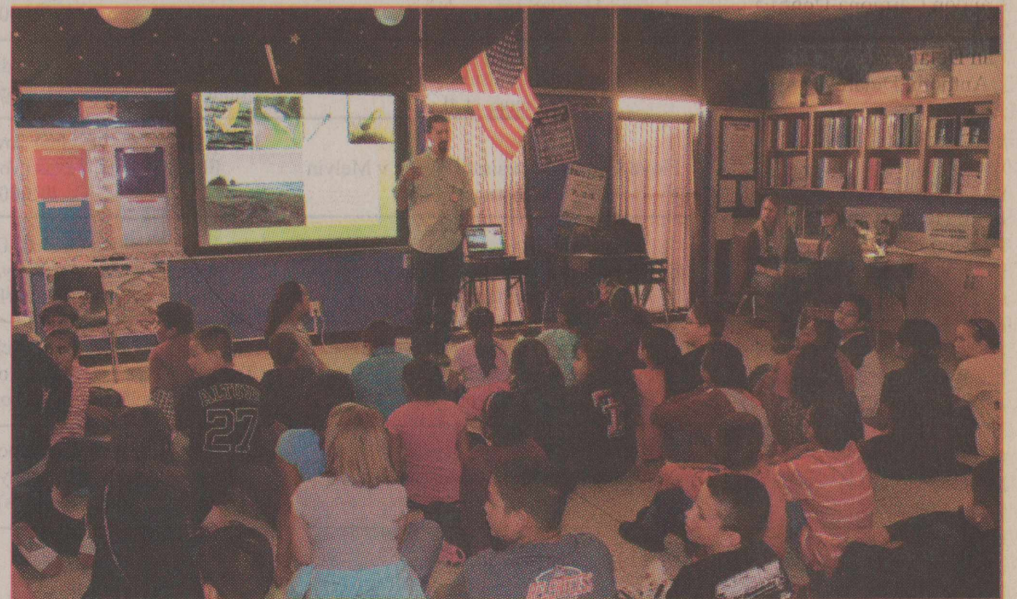

On Tuesday, October 15, 2013, the LHS Cross Country teams went to Plainview for their district Cross Country meet. The high school boys placed 4th as a team and high school girls placed 6th. Isabella Rodriguez placed 7th and Samantha Salas placed 10th out of the top ten sending them to regionals on Saturday October 26, 2013 at Mae Simmons in Lubbock.

Across the state, grid operators are reviewing some 21,000 megawatts worth of new wind projects. Typically, about 20 percent of proposals end up being built, said Robbie Searcy, a spokeswoman for ERCOT. New projects in the Panhandle — including a planned 1,100-megawatt wind farm near Lubbock that promises to be the country's largest — are expected to exceed the capacity of the region's new transmission, meaning regulators may need to add even more lines in the future.

"When we look back on the investment in CREZ," Clark said, "it will be one of the most visionary investments the state has ever made."

Work to the building has been ongoing with the facility offering more services to local patients including x-ray capability and lab services.

The clinic is scheduled to open with five employees.

The new electronic medical system can be shared real time with the Plainview clinic. Regardless if patients are in Floydada or Plainview, patient information will be available instantly.

"One of the things we want people to know is that it will be a Monday through Friday clinic but if they find need on Saturday or Sunday and they come to Plainview, due to our EMR (electronic medical reords) connection, we'll have access to their records," said McClanahan.

One of the largest conveniences provided by the clinic includes obstetrics. Pregnant patients can go through their checkup routine locally.

"If pregnant patients choose us as their OB provider in Floydada, our plan is to deliver in Plainview," said Dr. John McClanahan. "Our connection is with Plainview's hospital."

Services the clinic will provide include:
• Primary Care
• Urgent Care

- Inpatient Care

"No additional Cargill beef facility closures are planned," Martin said.

The feed yard employs 45 people and can house approximately 62,000 cattle at any one time. Located north of Lockney, the feedlot was built in 1969 and purchased by Cargill in 1986.

Martin said that Cargill will utilize feed yards closer to its processing facilities in Friona and Dalhart.

Pat O'Connell, general manager of the feed yard, said, "We are actively helping our employees with opportunities of employment within Cargill but we still have enough silage to feed cattle until sometime in late summer, near the end of August. We don't have an exact date of the closure as of yet."

O'Connell said that all current employees would be given the opportunity to transfer within the company but the company would also look at other opportunities within the area to assist the employees impacted by the decision.

Recently, South Plains College announced that they had received a $475,000 grant from the U. S. Economic Development Administration to support the construction of a technology center at the Plainview campus. The facility will allow SPC to provide training opportunities for workers displaced by the closing of Cargill Meat Solutions in January. O'Connell did not know if his employees would be able to participate in this program but would be checking into it as well as other job training programs.

Martin said, "Recent rains have helped to build the harvest and hopefully, it will entice cattle producers to build their livestock."

The drought has caused a large loss in the amount of grain available to feed cattle as well as drying up water holes in open range land and burning up the pastures, according to Martin.

"We've seen a gradual rise in the cost of feed," Martin said. "The cost of feeding beef cattle for a day has risen from $2 a day to $8 a day because of the drought."

With overhead cost continuing to rise, cattle producers have elect to thin out their herds to levels not seen since 1952, Martin said.

According to Drivers Cattle Network, supplies are not expected to return to normal levels until at least 2016 and the early October blizzard in South Dakota will also impact the nationwide cattle supply.

According to O'Connell, there are no offers to purchase the facility at this time.

The Paperboy
A friendly holiday boycott

Am I the only one that is irritated by stores opening on Thanksgiving Day?

In our quest for the mighty dollar, millions of people around the country are going to have to work on Thanksgiving. I think that's wrong.

In my business, which is deadline driven, I offer four paid holidays a year: News Year's Day, Independence Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas. We'll do whatever we can to avoid work on those days.

I also try to throw a couple of other holidays in as well. We're not the federal or state government, but we try and keep morale high and a well-deserved day off is justified in my opinion.

Thanksgiving Day was once a holiday for nearly everyone. Gradually, Black Friday sales pushed their start times up. Now, with major retailers on board, more and more of them are opening on Thanksgiving.

It's bad enough that people get into fights and act like complete morons at these sales, but to do it on a day that we are supposed to give thanks for our many blessings is ridiculous.

I think it's wrong to ask employees to work on Thanksgiving and the holidays I mentioned above. I just do. I want my employees to spend that time with their families. I want to spend time with my family on those days.

Here's what I plan on doing as a statement for those having to work on Thanksgiving, I'm going to shop at the stores which will remain closed on Thanksgiving. Hopefully, in our small towns, that will still mean most of the stores will be available to me.

And here's my plan for Thanksgiving:
• Wake up early and get the turkey on.
• Go back to sleep unless a child keeps me awake.

• Watch some football.
• Watch the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade with my children. (Macy's employees probably can't watch the parade as they'll have to work.)
• Start cooking some of our other turkey day staples.

• Watch some football.
• Eat with family and friends while thanking God for the ways he's blessed me.
• Watch some football.
• Eat with family and friends.
• Pass out.

Now that sounds like a holiday. One without shouting and anger. A relaxing day full of love.
