GENERAL ARRANGEMENT—This is the general arrangement view of the major components of the USAF-Northrop Talon T-38 supersonic trainer scheduled for operational use by Air Training Command, and probably eventually at Reese. The lightweight, low-cost basic trainer weighs less than 11,000 pounds and will carry a crew of two, instructor and students, seated tandem. The T-38 is 43 feet long, 11 feet 11 inches high, and has a wing span of 23 feet 3 inches. It is designed to fly at supersonic speeds in level flight and has a service ceiling comparable to Century series fighters. (See NEW TRAINER, Page 7)

Officers Elect Colonel as President

Col. Harold T. Babb, Air Base group commander, is the new president of the Officers club. Named with him was Maj. Conrad C. Johnson, director of operations and training in Pilot Training group.

Wins Appointment

Nelson Koscheski, 18, son of TSgt. Nelson Koscheski, former assistant sergeant major of M&S group, this week received an appointment to the Coast Guard academy.

ernors are Maj. Erceal V. Doty and Jess E. Schmidt and Capt. Joseph S. Mitchell, Robert F. Earhardt, Richard K. Buckland and Earl F. Mabus, and 1st Lt. Harvey J. Wayne.

Visits Curtailed

Visits to SAC headquarters are being curtailed because facilities are being taxed beyond capacity, it was announced this week. Commanders were instructed to coordinate with the SAC commander prior to visit, with news media clearing through USAF.

Housing Area Work Nearing Start

Work is expected to start next week on rehabilitation of the base housing area, with the V&N Construction company of Lubbock as contractor.

A contract for the work, calling for expenditure of $944,131, was signed last week.

All kitchens in the housing area will be renovated and enlarged to provide space for washers and driers, bedrooms will be added to some units, and general renovation will be made on units.

The program calls for completion of work on vacant units, movement of families into the changed quarters, and then completion of work on vacated homes. The contractor says he will finish ten units a week when in full swing.

Colonel Hoover Attends Reunion

Col. Travis Hoover, Pilot Training group commander, was scheduled to be in Tucson this week-end for the annual reunion of the Tokyo Raiders of World War II.

Seventeen years ago this month 16 grossly overloaded B-25s struggled into the air from the pitching, rain-swept deck of the aircraft carrier Hornet. Their target—Tokyo—lay 650 miles away; their chance of reaching it, slender.

First to take off was Col. Jimmie H. Doolittle; second was 1st Lt. Travis Hoover. Others followed. Reach the target they did, and bombs dropped on the Japanese mainland did the job well.

About 40 veterans of the flight are expected to be in Tucson this week-end. General Doolittle, commander of the force, is expected.

Rated Officer Assignment Policy Explained; Study Eligibility Listed

Numerous changes in requirements for Air Force Institute of Technology training have been made, the Reese education office has been advised.

An important interpretation assists in clarification of assignment of rated pilots on completion of training. New eligibility standards affect a dozen courses.

"In implementing Air Force policy concerning the utilization of rated officers, it has been determined that training of rated officers in skills clearly identified as not having a rated requirement would be contrary to the best interests of the Air Force," the notice stated.

Rated officers, it was said, will not be assigned to Air Force specialties which have no rated requirement except when the officers already possess such skills, a rated resource is not available, and needs of the Air Force mandate such an assignment.

"Additional rated officers will not normally be selected for technical or AFIT training leading to an Air Force specialty identified as having no rated requirement.

"It is not the intent . . . to thwart the improvement of qualifications of rated officers for future positions of high responsibility. Therefore, commanders should insure that rated officers understand that their eligibility for AFIT training is only slightly different from that of the non-rated officer because of many courses of training which lead to duty in a number of Air Force specialties. However, when a rated officer applies for such training, his post-graduate assignment, initially directed by this headquarters (USAF), must be to an Air Force specialty having a rated requirement."

Details of the revised program are available in the Reese education office.

"It is emphasized," the notice concluded, "that this program is designed to improve officer utilization in consonance with existing or projected Air Force requirements. It is not intended that personnel flexibility or career progression be suppressed."

Class to Have 22nd Nationality

Students of the 22nd foreign nation assigned to Reese for pilot training are scheduled to arrive May 1 in Class 60-C. They are four aviation cadets from Greece, who have received primary pilot training in an Air Force civilian contract school.

Reese has trained, in addition to American students cadets and officers from El Salvador, Ecuador, Guatemala, Vietnam, Nicaragua, Honduras, Paraguay, Chile, Thailand, China, Pakistan, Korea, Colombia, Bolivia, Haiti, Venezuela, Cuba, Iran, Peru, France and Saudi Arabia.

Further Support During Campaign Asked at Reese

A renewed request for Reese personnel to secure Red Cross memberships was made this week as the campaign for funds neared its end.

The goal of $2,000 can be met if military and civilian people of the base contribute $1 each and become members of the Red Cross as a result, project officers pointed out.

"I expect all base personnel to join and contribute to this most worthy cause 100 percent," Col. DROSS Ellis, base commander, said.

"We need Red Cross and now it needs our wholehearted support, not only to carry on its services to the Armed Forces but also its other humanitarian services. I have pledged my full support to this worthy cause and your membership contribution should be automatic and without hesitation or delay. Give now so Reese AFB goes over the top."

Next Graduation For 38 Students

A class of 38 members is scheduled to be graduated from the Reese jet pilot training program when Class 59-G completes its work April 30.

Included among graduates will be 17 student officers and 20 former aviation cadets of the USAF and a Pakistan cadet. USAF graduates will be assigned to transition training before assuming permanent assignment or will go direct to other major commands.

Class 59-G is the second jet pilot unit to be trained at Reese.

TV Shows to Laud Air Force Men

Two television broadcasts paying tribute to the USAF men, equipment and accomplishments are scheduled by the Lubbock TV stations.

"The World Congress of Flight—A special report is programmed for Sunday from 4 to 5 p. m. on KCBT-TV. Narrated by Bob Considine, the program is to illustrate the full scope of the World Congress of Flight and will include Air Force men, missiles and aircraft, precision aerial and firepower demonstrations, and is to use airborne television cameras and equipment.

At 9:30 p. m. Saturday, April 25, KDUB-TV has scheduled "Ten Miles to Dooomsday," featuring a SAC alert. The video stresses SAC alertness, its peacetime mission of deterrence and care and use of ASC's capabilities.

Resistance American Trait

In a television address to citizens of the United States, heard by Reese people generally on March 16, President Eisenhower stated our nation's stand on the Berlin crisis. He said the United States stands ready to resist completely the Soviet efforts to enslave all of Germany and to undermine the confidence the allies have in us.

The Soviets should realize that this not a new concept in American thinking. Throughout the years it has been the same. Said Benjamin Franklin in 1780:

They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty or safety.

Teddy Roosevelt added in 1897:

The unmanly desire to avoid a quarrel is often the surest way to precipitate one . . . and utter unreadiness to fight is even surer . . . If in the future we have a war, it will almost certainly come from some action, or lack of action, on our part, in the way of refusing to accept responsibilities at the proper time, or failing to prepare for war when war does not threaten.

It was the same principal when Dwight D. Eisenhower said on March 16:

Fellow Americans, one thing I am sure: That we have the courage and capacity to meet the stern realities of the present and the future . . . We have no intention of forgetting our rights or of deserting a free people . . . The risk of war is minimized if we stand firm . . . Free men have, before this, died for so-called scraps of paper which represent duty and honor and freedom.

Defense Business Old Stuff

The Air Force was in the air defense business before it was born.

Air Defense Command was activated in March, 1946, while the nation's major military air arm was still a part of the Army.

The Strategic Air Command, Tactical Air Command, and ADC were established March 21, 1946, with ADC charged with organization and administering air defense of the continental United States.

Even then, less than a year after World War II, the Air Force was looking ahead to the day when it would use aerospace vehicles, such as ballistic missiles. Movement has been in that direction all the way.

Offense is the in the hands of SAC and TAC. Air Force aerospace professionals long have been developing doctrines, procedures, and equipment for the nation's primary offensive air operations. These now demand a unique familiarity with intercontinental and intermediate range ballistic missiles, strategic aircraft, air-breathing missiles, missile-launching aircraft, diversionary and saturation tactics, electronic countermeasures, strategic aerospace reconnaissance, target selections, nuclear weapons, global communications and many other aspects of aerospace offensive.

It is logical that the Air Force has the primary responsibility for developing offense and defense for enemy aerospace forces.

Air Force defense objectives are based on knowledge that there is no 100 percent defense against a strong, determined aerospace attack of the kind that could be launched against us. The offense has the advantage of choosing the time and the place. However, the existence of a vigorous and well organized defense limits the enemy's freedom of action and definitely influences his planning.

Indifference Religious Evil

By Chaplain Henry C. Bielski

One of the evils of which man is guilty almost from the beginning of time is a moral deafness or hardness of heart which renders him insensitive to the word of God. As a result, we find among us men who are deaf to the voice of their conscience, to the sound of church call or chapel bells on Sundays, and to the advice of friends and elders.

There are also those who are dumb when they should be hard to understand even more than that, they are beyond our Many fail in their duty by keeping silence when they should correct others by a word of good advice. Still others are dumb by neglecting to defend their faith oftentimes through shams, because such a profession of faith would be in contradiction of their behavior.

If religion is losing its hold upon our people, is it not because so many are false to the traditions of their fathers or to their early religious training? How often for instance, men are afraid or ashamed to protest against bad books or magazines or irreligious conversations?

Finally, we have those who defend their religious indifference by the cunning, though insidious, argument that in Religion one finds many mysteries which are hard to believe. We agree that there are many mysteries about Religion.

There are, however, not hard to believe; rather they are hard to understand even more than that, they are beyond our understanding.

Why should it be hard to believe something on the authority of God, even if we do not understand it, when we accept things on the authority of another man without question.

Certainly we do not understand how certain medicines at times compounded from poisonous ingredients, can relieve our pain. Nevertheless, we take them on the authority of a physician. We do not understand how a seed planted into the ground grows grass, grass into wheat, the wheat into flour, the flour into bread, the bread into flesh and blood. But do we refuse to eat bread simply because we do not understand these natural mysteries?

With these thoughts in mind, examine your conscience and truly answer yourself how many times have you been guilty of religious indifference.

Little League Program Planned in '59 Season

Reese Little League Baseball league sponsors have started organization work with the plea for registration of more youngsters to participate.

For the past two seasons four teams have played, each team requiring 15 boys. Some competitors of last year have become too old, others have moved away.

Boys 8 to 12 years old may play in the Little League and their parents this week were urged to register them. Registration may be made through use of the form on this page.

Groups sponsoring teams will provide uniforms and other equipment. Boys will provide their own gloves and shoes, tennis shoes being used.

Plans call for Little League practice sessions to start April 25, and for assignment of players to teams when managers see who is available and their abilities. The season will open May 10.

Players applications should be turned in to Air Policement at the main gate no later than April 24. Information may be secured by calling Extension 584.

Vacancies still exist in the couples bowling league, scheduled to open next Wednesday on the College Lanes alleys, 1st Lt. Calvin Baird stated.

Personnel may team with their wives, girl friends, or daughters in competition. Entries will be accepted through Monday.

English courses are taught at Lackland AFB to all foreign students who are to train in the USAF.

Element Leader Likes Gardening, Hi-Fi Recordings

By 1st Lt. Antonio Lopez

Our featured instructor of the 3500th Pilot Training squadron this week hails from the wet state of Washington. First Lt. John W. Rose of Flight 6 finally is used to the dry, arid climate of the southwest.

Born in Marysville, Wash., Jack was raised and educated in this state. Attending Western Washington college, he earned his degree in business administration in 1954, entered the Air Force, and received his commission and pilot wings with Class 56-D at Bainbridge and Bryan. Upon graduation he went to Craig and then back to Bryan to instruct.

Last July, together with his wife, Marlene, and year-old David, he reported to Reese. The newest addition to the Rose family, Kevin, arrived two weeks ago.

Jack says his hobbies are Hi-Fi and gardening, with the latter producing no results as yet. He is one of the more experienced instructors in the 3500th PTS, with over three years as instructor and a certificate of proficiency from IPIS, obtained in June, 1957. He is an element leader in Flight 6.

Capt. John Johnson, commander of Flight 9, reports that one of his instructors has made an exact scale model of his former assignment, a B-47. First Lt. Richard R. Burpee spent many tedious hours constructing this true replica of SAC's foremost medium bomber. He even added finer details to the store-bought model. It's on display in the flight room.

Capt. Fred Rinck says he's very proud of his bowlers, who recently won the Officers league championship.

NOW IN THE AIR— FREE WORLD'S FIRST LOW-COST SPACE AGE AIR

USAF T-38 Talon pioneers new Northrop family of low-cost high-performance aircraft for free-

Successful flight-testing at Edwards Air Force Base indicates that Northrop's T-38 Talon fills a unique Air Force requirement. It is an entirely new kind of aircraft—relatively low in initial cost, yet combining combat-calibre performance with twin-jet safety and unique operating economy. The Talon's assignment: to train our new generation of space age airmen in the special air flight. The T-38, designed and manufactured by Northrop, is now in quantity production under contract. It is airborne evidence of Norair capability and the effectiveness of the Company's management team realistically cost-conscious, yet daring.

New Snack Bar Of '01st Opens With Ceremony

The 3501st Pilot Training squadron new snack bar in T-91 functioned in full swing this week, following the formal opening last Friday evening.

Renovation of the lounge and snack bar room was done by instructor pilots and students of the squadron under direction of 1st Lt. Dean Erwin. Materials and other support came from various groups and squadrons.

There is a new snack bar, complete with refrigerators, coffee urn, and other equipment. The ceiling has been lowered and covered with sound-proof material.

On one wall is a 10x30 foot mural showing T-33s in flight over mountains. Natural wood paneling covers all walls, otherwise.

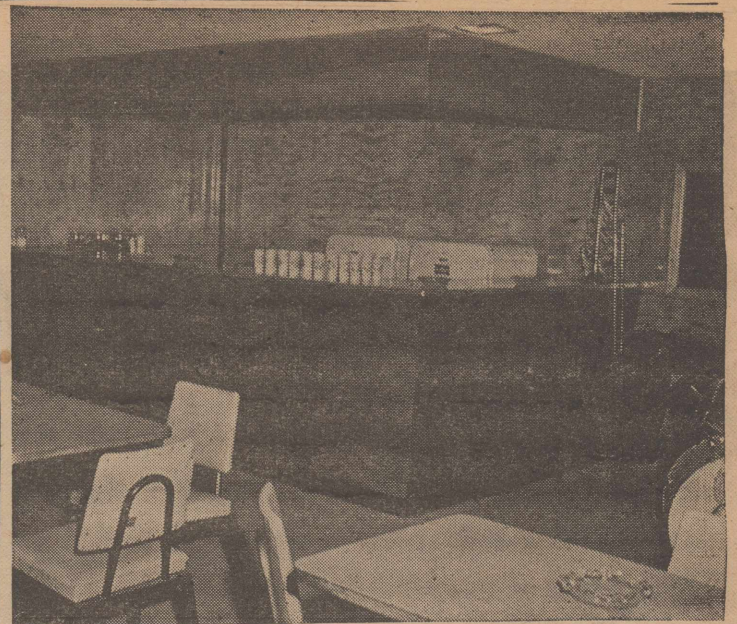

Drapes cover windows, the floor is tile, and tables and chairs are placed.

Col. Travis Hoover, Pilot Training group commander was guest of honor at the formal opening. He cut the red, white, and blue ribbon barring the door and spoke briefly.

"This snack bar and room is the result of much hard work, high spirit, and the cooperation of many people," he commented. "Excellent cooperation has been given in the project by all departments of the base. Too many words of praise cannot be given."

Group and squadron commanders, other staff officers, instructor pilots and students were among the 100 guests. Maj. Richard Condric, 3501st PTS operations officer, was master-of-ceremonies.

The Flight 1 combo provided music. It is composed of 1st Lts. George Mellott, clarinet and sax; William H. Black, trombone; David H. Reiner, piano; Leroy C. Villines, guitar, and Edward L. Claiborn, drums.

PRIDE OF '01st—The newly opened snack bar of the 3501st PTS is equipped to serve squadron members during off-duty time. Its equipment was secured in efforts to meet various needs and desires. The trombone on the bar is not standard equipment; it belongs to a combo member. (Photo by Sorge)

Original Sailing Date Stays Firm

Only bona fide emergencies will be considered in altering departure dates from aerial posts of debarkation, once they have been confirmed, Reese and other bases have been advised by USAF headquarters.

The directive resulted from a rash of last minute cancellations that are running into about one-fourth of requests processed. The cancellations threaten effectiveness of the direct reservation system which was originally set up to provide better service for the traveler, it was said. Cancellations may result in long and costly delays.

New Trainer Makes Maiden Flight

The Air Force moved a step forward this week when the USAF-Northrop T-38 Talon, high supersonic space-age trainer, made its maiden flight over the desert at Edward AFB, Calif.

The successful first flight of the Talon all but closed the existing supersonic gap between primary trainers and advanced combat aircraft, Air Force spokesmen said.

The light weight Talon, a two-place trainer, is in production at the Norair division of the Northrop corporation at Hawthorne, Calif.

It is scheduled to become operational in the Air Training command and is considered the final link in the command's effort to have an all-jet pilot training program.

"Trainers used the 1960-70 decade must be capable of training in 'high sink,' supersonic flight, high altitude indoctrination, extreme altitudes in instrument flight, high altitude formation problems, and navigational problems brought about these altitudes and speeds." ATC officials have pointed out. "We believe the T-38 will satisfy this new training requirement."

Ease of maintenance and low operating cost were prime objectives in designing the T-38, the Air Force found. With the overhead track and roller arrangement in each engine bay, one man can remove engines if necessary.

With a range of more than 1,000 nautical miles, the T-38 will travel at supersonic speeds in level flight.
