Major, Senior Master Sergeant Cited for Meritorious Services

Commendations for meritorious service at Reese will be presented to Maj. Thomas P. Carroll and SMSGt. John K. Norred at the wing review July 22, in connection with graduation of Class 60-A.

The major is being honored for duty as chief of maintenance from Dec. 5, 1957, to April 30, 1959, while the sergeant is being recognized for service as dock chief in the 3501st Periodic Maintenance Squadron from June 1, 1957, to March 1, 1959.

"Major Carroll performed his duties outstandingly, and demonstrated, to an unusual degree, his supervisory ability," the citation reads.

"He directed a completely new maintenance program in a highly satisfactory manner during the period in which the primary mission of the base—that of pilot training—changed from B-25 to T-33 type aircraft.

"The training of Major Carroll's maintenance personnel was accomplished in an excellent manner . . . Unique scheduling of aircraft to obtain the maximum utilization of each engine resulted in tremendous monetary saving to the United States Air Force, both in material and manpower.

"Major Carroll was successful in maintaining a very high esprit de corps among maintenance personnel, remaining well ahead of schedule at all times, enabling the Pilot (See MAJOR, Page 3)

Veteran Fighter Pilot to Address Graduating Class

Colonel Thomas D. Robertson, deputy for operations of the Tactical Air Command air division at Cannon Air Force Base will be speaker at graduation of Class 60-A next Wednesday in the base theatre.

He is a graduate of Oklahoma State University and has a master's degree in business from the Harvard Business School. He served 4 of his 14 years in service overseas.

The major and his wife have three daughters and a son.

Campaign Opens July 27; Final Conference Set

Key workers in the annual membership campaign of the Air Force Aid Society at Reese were named Thursday by 1st Lt. William Mahoney, project officer.

Each key worker was charged with the responsibility of securing as many members as possible. The drive starts July 27 and will last slightly more than two weeks.

Key workers will receive final instructions and information at a meeting at 9 a. m. next Wednesday in the wing conference room.

Reese Advances In Competition

Reese went three places higher in the 1959 Fiscal year Air Training Command vehicle safety competition, but still finished "out of the money."

Reese was fifth among ATC bases, as compared with eighth for 1958. Cash prizes were awarded for the first three places.

"We are gaining, and perhaps this fiscal year we can climb into one of the money spots," Joe Lopez, ground safety director, commented. "Only a couple of bad accidents hampered our record. That shows how easily something can go wrong. It also shows we must all be alert at all times."

First award of $18,000 went to Lackland AFB. Winning $15,000 in second place was James Connally; third, getting $12,000, was Lowry. Keesler finished fourth.

STAR SCOUT—Rudi Rushing, left, is all smiles on receiving his Star rank in the Reese Boy Scout troop. He's the first to attain the rank on the base. Lieutenant Col. Victor C. Correll is making the presentation, as MSgt. E. W. Bohl, scoutmaster, looks on. (see story page 8).

LEAVING REESE—Edward Stratton, senior master sergeant, seated, shows his successor, MSgt. Edmund Hogberg, the manual on automotive maintenance procedures. Sergeant Stratton leaves today for Randolph Air Force Base and a new assignment. He has been NCOIC of automobile maintenance since January, 1957, has been in service 17 years, and has been a member of the Reese Credit Union credit committee a year and a half. Sergeant Hogberg has been inspector in quality control. (Photo by Sorge).

From The Commander's Desk

By Col. DRoss Ellis, Base Commander

Continuing with my series on the five groups, I should like to talk about the 3500th Maintenance and Supply Group. The very name of this group tells what its job is. Its responsibilities are vast. As you might guess, it is the largest group on the base. More money is in the M&S Group in materials and supplies than in any other group on the base.

The upkeep of 76 T-33's, 3 C-47's, 2 helicopters and a handful of T-28's is no small responsibility. And that responsibility includes more than just plain repairing and fixing. It includes everything necessary to get the plane into the air — refueling, inspecting, scheduling, flight testing and keeping maintenance and historical records.

As our supplier, the M&S Group not only furnishes us what we need to keep our planes flying, but also issues supplies and materials to other base activities. A walk through building 51, south of Base Ops on Hanger Line Road would be an education. There you can see a portion of the things necessary to support our primary mission. It is rather a staggering sight.

M&S people can be proud of the part they contribute to our mission. Maintaining our aircraft in top flying condition is a terrifying responsibility. The lives of our pilots depend on how well, how conscientiously, our M&S Group does its vast job.

Make It Look Good

The Air Force uniform was designed to present a plain but distinctive appearance. To achieve this objective, we all should adhere to policies governing its wear.

Generally, the appearance of Reese personnel is good. But improvements can be made, everyone agrees. A most common deduction is items carried in pockets. These are frequently exposed, or of such a nature that they create unsightly bulges or destroy the line of the uniform. Some of these are wallets, pens and pencils, handkerchiefs, cigarettes, matches, and other personal items.

You may see frayed shirt collars and sleeves, ragged button holes, missing buttons, unpressed and unclean uniforms, lack luster shoes, and people who need a haircut.

Uniform caps should be worn at proper angles. Service caps should contain the rubber grommet and should not be the "50 mission crush" type. Shirt collars should fit. Only authorized insignia and awards should be worn and should be properly placed. Repairs are a necessity, new items as replacements must be purchased when needed. And the uniform should be well-fitted, cleaned and pressed at all times.

The result will be a smart appearing airman who portrays his discipline and his pride as a member of the nation's first line of defense.

Christian Should Watch His Words, Chaplain Says

By Chaplain Henry C. Bielski

Among one of the soundest pieces of advice is found in Proverbs written largely by that very wise king, Solomon, "a word in due time is best." (Proverbs 15:23) We know from our own experience that much of the strife in this world, be it between individuals or between communities, has been brought about simply by a word spoken out of due time. Many an upheaval is the result of a wrong thing said at the wrong time, or a hasty, ill-considered word, or the vicious and uncharitable word. It is no wonder then, that Solomon wrote, "a word in due time is best."

To live in this world in accordance with the moral code given to us by God Himself is not an easy task.

That is a fundamental truth accepted by everyone. We may find ourselves in the company of those who profess no high moral principles. Then, there are those who claim they have no time for God's teachings.

Those who have no concern beyond their immediate material future may be our very neighbors. The world abounds in people who consider double dealing and dishonesty rather useful practices and not vices. Temptations surround us. In circumstances as such, it becomes necessary for us to listen to the words of warning "in due time."

To brush aside words of warning, offered to us by those who have lived in this world long enough to know what they are talking about, is to show our ignorance of the grim reality of life.

We would be refusing to acknowledge the fact that life is a battle to be waged if we are to live successfully.

Another "word in due time" is a word for God, a rarity among us. Unfortunately, among men publicly, the name of God is mentioned most frequently as an expletive or in swearing. They are not ashamed, as a matter of fact, they are very proud of their membership in some organization or brotherhood. However, to let the world know that they belong to an organization which professes God or to defend the principles of religion which they claim to practice, or to insist that God's law must come before every other law is quite another matter.

We need not be ashamed of our religion.

If we put its principles into practice, we are preaching the finest sermon that anyone ever preached. If we preach THAT sermon all our lives, "in due time" God will have some wonderful things to say about us.

Aid Society Can Help

Have you ever been on the spot, short of money, because your pay or family allowance did not come through when due? Did you ever find yourself up against it, with a flat wallet while on emergency leave? Or did you or members of your family discover you had to pay expensive medical or dental bills because of unfortunate accidents or sicknesses that fell outside the province of Service medical facilities?

If you faced these problems, at one time or another, chances are you found a friend in the Air Force Aid Society, which provides emergency financial help to Air Force members. On the other hand, if you've been lucky enough to escape these or similar situations, it should be comforting to you and your family to know that the Aid Society might assist you in a financial emergency that could hit you in the future.

Each of us at Reese will have opportunity later this month to have a part in the work the society is doing — and will do. The annual drive starts July 27. Each of us can contribute to help ourselves in trouble, and to help our neighbors.

In its 13 years of service, the Air Force Aid Society has offered a helping hand to more than 292,000 Air Force members, both active and retired, and their dependents.

Since 1946, the Aid Society has provided over 23 million dollars to Air Force members or their dependents.

Funds used by the Air Force Aid Society come from many individual contributions from Air Force personnel, group or organization donations and from private business firms and associations.

Air Force Aid Society assistance is readily available in case of emergency.

Retiring as commander of Air Training Command, Lt. Gen. Frederic H. Smith, Jr., has sent this message to personnel at Reese and other bases:

"TO ALL MEMBERS OF ATC: It has been a distinct privilege to have been associated with each of you during my tour of duty as commander of Air Training Command. Your understanding cooperation, and devotion to duty have been outstanding and have been largely responsible for the marked progress we have made in the past year.

"I extend to you my sincere thanks and my best wishes for your continued success in carrying out our most vital missions."

SAC Equipment Arsenal Greatest

(Four ATC instructors are overseas with SAC forces to get a first-hand view of operations. Here one of them reports his impressions.)

By 1st Lt. Tom Olofson
Harlingen AFB

At no other time in American history has there been a greater arsenal of equipment and weapons than is now contained in Strategic Air Command.

This deterrent force, symbolized by a mail fist clenching an olive branch and a bolt of lightning, is not only relied upon by America as a peace sustaining instrument, but by many other free nations as well.

In the event of war, the mail fist's effectiveness largely will be determined by how SAC bomber crews move their weapons against the enemy. SAC must be good . . . and is good. The men in it, both in operations and support, understand the gravity of their mission and act accordingly.

Although the advent of missiles can probably decrease the number of bombers needed to carry SAC's global operation, a future SAC without manned aircraft is not foreseen.

As new missiles develop, new and better aircraft are developed. And with space exploration the threshold of history, who can venture a guess as to the limits of man's outposts in maintaining the peace?

Today, however, the manned bomber is top dog in SAC and there is nothing in the books to indicate relegation of this position.

SAC realized several years ago that it must be able to launch its strike force within minutes . . . or die on the ground.

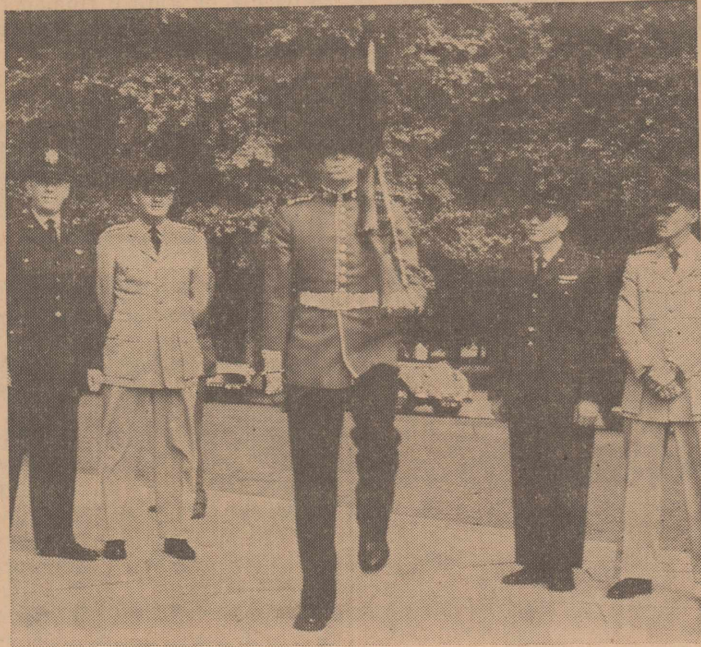

Realizing this fact is also to realize that should SAC's forces die on the ground, our entire civilization will die as well.

SAC's ability to remain an effective deterrent force . . . to make retaliation so devastating that no enemy would dare attack . . . lies in maintaining its alertness and strength. They must be able to completely destroy the enemy's ability to wage a war. The force has to be dispersed well enough so that it is not vulnerable to a surprise attack, and must be able to go into action in minutes.

Project 1054 participants from Air Training Command's Craig,

Mather, Lackland and Harlingen AFBs, after spending four weeks with SAC units in the zone of interior and overseas, are convinced that SAC has achieved its goal through their Alert Force and Operation "Reflex."

ATC MEN ON PROJECT 1054—Four ATC instructors on SAC-ATC Project 1054 take time from their tour of SAC "Reflex" units overseas to see the colorful Coldstream Guards at London's famed Buckingham Palace. Participating in the four-week SAC visit are: (L-R) 1st Lts. Tom Olofson, Harlingen AFB; Robert Davis, Mather AFB; James Ellis, Lackland AFB; and Jack Woody, Craig AFB.

Sergeant Norred, the citation states, "demonstrated exceptional leadership ability, produced aircraft with an outstanding high degree of quality, and improved methods and procedures to assure rapid processing of the aircraft . . . His high standard of quality and rapidity of production were major factors in the success of the mission of the 3500th Maintenance and Supply Groups."

Colonel Dross Ellis, base commander, is scheduled to make the awards and Maj. John W. Arnette, wing adjutant, is to read the citations.

"Every member of the Air Force should be afforded an opportunity to join, renew membership, and support the Air Force Aid Society program," Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, declared.

"The mission of the Air Force Aid Society is to better the morale and welfare of Air Force personnel and their dependents by providing financial assistance to meet unforeseen temporary emergencies . . . The extensive assistance program our Aid Society has conducted for the past 13 years deserves the recognition and appreciation of each Air Force member. Enthusiastic participation in this year's Aid Society membership campaign will assure its continued ability to help Air Force families."

After August 1, male airmen who are overweight will not be permitted to reenlist, it has been announced. Requests for waivers it was said, will receive little consideration.

Reese Girl Participates in FHA Pageant as Delegate from Texas

Believed to be the only official delegate from an Air Force family, Deanne Britain of Reese this week appeared on the program at the national gathering of Future Homemakers of America in the Conrad Hilton hotel in Chicago.

Deanne was among 2,000 Texas delegates to the convention who left Dallas Sunday by special train. She was the only delegate from the South Plains.

She typified an English shepherdess in a pageant called "Texas Flags" honoring change students sponsored by the FHA. All countries were represented by typically dressed Texas delegates who spoke on life in the countries and of customs.

Miss Britain at the Texas FHA convention in Dallas was awarded the state degree, highest award possible in FHA achievement. Member of the Frenship chapter of FHA, she is the first delegate of the organization sent to a national convention.

She served as first vice president of the chapter this past year, and was area officer in charge of publications. She also was a candidate for national vice president. At last year's Pageant of Texas, she handled South Plains fair in Lubbock. Deanne won 27 awards with 40 entries, the highest number ever won by one girl.

She is the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Lewis J. Britain, 309 Harmon Drive. Her father is base accountable supply officer. Mrs. Britain recently was awarded a gold medal by the Frenship chapter as mother of Deanne and in acknowledgment of her assistance.

Operations Officer Leaving for Vance

Lt. Col. Heston C. Daniel, wing operations officer, is leaving next week for a new assignment in similar duties at Vance AFB, Enid, Okla. He has been here since 1956, arriving from Newfoundland.

In 1958 over 29,000 persons were assisted by the Air Force Aid society.

Testing Guides Manpower Quality

HQ. ATC, RANDOLPH AFB, TEX. . . The old sarge scratched his head and closed the training manual he had been reading.

"There's got to be a method in their madness," he muttered. And he was right.

The Air Force's quality control program has a method, in fact, several of them. The methods are called, "program measures," and they operate like a Gatling gun — shooting through many barrels while aimed to hit just one target.

One of the methods used in the Air Force to control manpower quality is to assure that everyone meets a set proficiency standard in his job.

The standard used is the Airman Proficiency Test.

A few years ago, when the Air Force first converted from the old Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) system to the present Air Force Specialty Codes (AFSCs), there were no tests to determine a man's job knowledge in comparison to another man's, who holds the same job on the other side of the world.

Testing, however, is only one of many program measures in quality control. There is leadership and counseling, classification, retraining, administrative demotion, performance reports and separation.

Performance Reports: When commands began holding central boards for last year's initial promotions to E-8, it was realized that performance reports gave very little basis for judging a man. Steps were taken to correct the deficiencies in the old form '75, and a new method, with a revised form, was established a few months ago.

To record properly and document an airman's evaluation for promotion, the new performance report was given the same degree of validity as the officers' effectiveness reports. The report should be used by a supervisor as a means of rating a man's effectiveness, not how well he likes him.

Separation: After progressive leadership and counseling have failed, after classification and retraining have been tried, and administrative demotion put into use, should poor performance reports on a man still persist in showing up, the only measure remaining in quality control is separation.

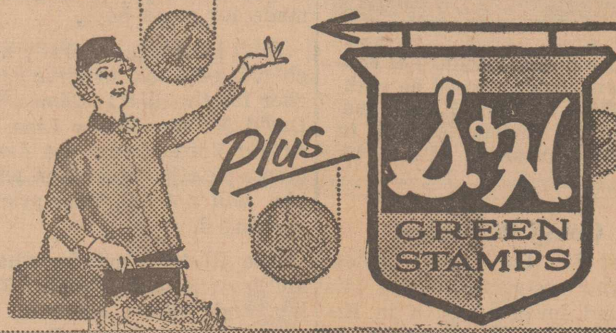

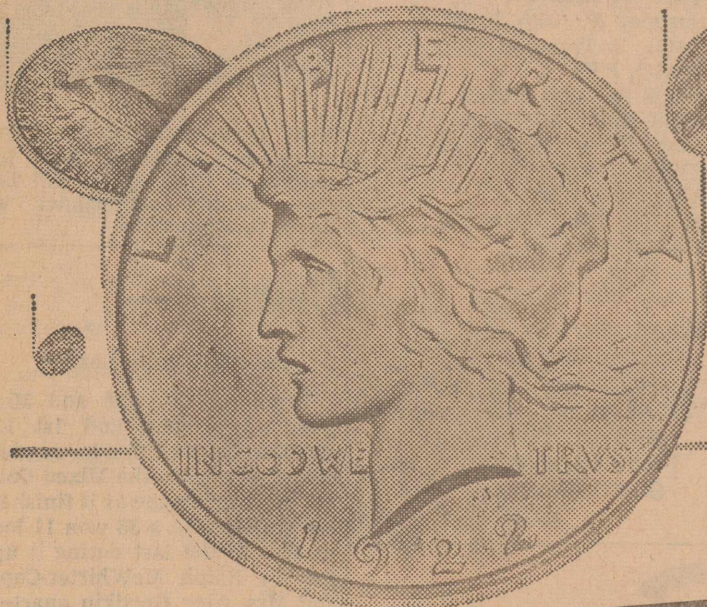

Logically enough, if a man can't fit into the system, doesn't have the capability to absorb training and becomes an overall liability to the Air Force, he should be sent home.

In addition, to improve the chances of promotion for the quality airman, the Air Force has solved some of the stripe problems. There are two mandatory retirement rules plus a requirement that men with more than five days lost time must have a waiver to reenlist.

The old sarge picked up his training manual again and turned to the next chapter. He wants to be a member of the elite Air Force.

Little League All-Stars Working Toward Games with Lubbock Nines

The Reese Little League all-stars were practicing nightly this week in preparation for their competition with Lubbock teams to select an area representative for higher competition.

Each Lubbock Little League will enter all-stars in the tournament, with Reese scheduled to meet the Northeast league team at 6 p.m. next Friday, at Avenue U and 41st st. Numerous rooters from the base are expected to be on hand.

Captain Robert E. Carlin, Reese coach, is attempting to move his all-stars into the strongest lineup. Eligibles must be 11 and 12 years old and a shift from regular positions must be made for some boys.

Rudi Rushing, generally a pitcher, is expected to serve as catcher for the all-star games, with David Nelson, Roddy Lins, and Arthur Yordani pitching. Assignments to other positions probably will not be firm prior to opening day.

The all-stars include: Charles McElroy, Ronald Weaver, Rushing, and Robert Johnson, Red Sox; Yordani, Terry Benevent, Nelson, and Clarence and Lawrence Teague, Dodgers; and Steve Yother, James Westbrook, Carlo Spitaleri, Jr., and Lins, Braves.

Nelson, Rushing, Lins, and Westbrook were members of the 1958 Reese all-stars which won and lost a game in the tournament.

Sports Report

By A/3C Roger J. Gillard

A/1C Timoteo Castro, manager of the first soccer league at Reese, (which is now being formed), stated Tuesday: "Since the new soccer equipment has arrived, we have gathered more participants for the league and we hope to see more."

Each Saturday at 8 a. m., Castro and his 30 or more men practice in front of the Cadet Open Mess. Their objective: To prepare to compete in the ATC Conference meet to be held in November at Sheppard AFB. Those wishing to join may call Castro at the base library, 344. Why not give it a "soccing" try?

The five men who make up the base Bowling Team will compete tomorrow in the annual Albuquerque City tournament.

Individual and team trophies will be awarded to both military and civilian contestants. Luck to A/1C Larry Chase with top average of 201; 1st Lt. Doug Tingley, 185; Maj. Lewis J. Britain, 182; Maj. Joe Setnor, 177; and 1st Lt. Richard Corbin, 174.

Former Reese IP 1st Lt. Richard Gorey helped the ATC rifle team to win honor in the Air Force-wide pistol and rifle championships. The ATC "B" team finished third in the smallbore rifle competition with 3162-162X, behind SAC's "Silver" team and ConAC's "Blue" team. The ATC "Blue" team won the high power service team with 3195-67V. Lieutenant Gorey, rifle coach for the Air Force, shot a 240-16V to finish second in the high power single competition. He represented the Air Force in National rifle competition in 1957 while at Reese. In high power rifle matches, the 5 point bullseye is called the V ring; in smallbore and pistol matches the inner ring is dubbed X.

Capt. Edward Mikula, hospital, and 2nd Lt. Jon D. Crowley, '00th PTS, are in the finals in the winners bracket of the base Tennis tournament. Eight men will be chosen to compete in the ATC Tennes tournament, July 25-30 at Keesler AFB.

Golf Notes

By Ken Shields

The first round of the Summer Golf League produced co-champions as ABG and M&S both closed with 153½ points totals. M&S rallied for 16½ points in its last match while ABG took only 8½ to make the tie possible. Congratulations are in order for both teams.

The second round got underway this week and, with the new handicapping system in effect, we should see teams that finished in the second division move up toward the top. Anyway the slate is clean and everybody starts even again.

The Reese Golf Club entered a team in City National Bank Cup matches last week in Plainview. The matches were figured by total medal score of three amateurs and professionals from each club. Our team composed of SMSgt. Lee Grimes, 70; Capt. Gene Ellis, 75; SSgt. George Williams, 78; and me, 72, finished fifth. There were 13 teams entered.

Final Standings

Team	Points
ABG	153½
M&S	153½

'01st PTS	136
'02nd Maint.	115
AACS-Weather	102½
'00th PTS	98½
Hospital	75
PTW	72
APs	65

This Week's Tip

How to play hole No. 4. To play his hole to your best advantage, you must check the pin position on the green when you play No. 3. If the pin is on the left side green this is an easy hole. You can drive down the right side of the fairway and get the extra roll this side offers and have an easy shot to the green. However, if the pin is placed on the right, you must approach the green from the left. In either case, aim a little to the left on your approach. If not . . . you're dead trying to chip from the right.

Plotting System Helps Tracking

A new plotting system that represents the first major improvement since World War II in large scale display of air traffic information will be installed at headquarters of North American Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs.

The new system, known as "Iconorama," will do away with present manual methods used in NORAD'S Combat Operations Center for plotting and tracking aircraft over or approaching continental air space.

Both NORAD and the Strategic Air Command have signed lease contracts for installation and maintenance of the radically new system that will allow observers to see almost instantaneously the positions of aircraft thousands of miles away.

Air Force academy cadets, 179 of the 250 in Class 1961, are touring Europe, visiting Spain, Germany, France and Great Britain. They turned down summer leave for the trip.

Individual contributions assist in maintaining the Air Force Aid society.

Rudi Rushing Becomes Star Scout; Eight Boys Advance to New Ranks

Rudi Rushing is the first member of Reese's Boy Scout Troop 148 to advance to the rank of Star Scout.

He received his award at the Court of Honor recently, with Lt. Col. Victor C. Correll officiating. Seven other boys advanced one grade and 34 merit badges were issued.

In addition to his Star rank, young Rushing was awarded merit badges for hiking, swimming, pioneering, leatherwork, fishing, and art. In addition to work in Scouting, Rudi has been a member of the Reese Little League all-stars the past two years.

At the Court of Honor four boys became First Class Scouts and received merit badges. They are: David Wagner, pioneering;

Michael Hritz, pioneering and cooking; Van Sands, pioneering, cooking, and swimming; and Michael Sands, pioneering and cooking.

New Second Class Scouts are Michael Wingo, Arthur Sands, and Erceal Doty.

Merit badges winners also included: Roddy Lins, cooking, home repair, music, and pioneering; Clay Walker, scholarship, cooking and pioneering; and Erceal Doty, Joan Arnette, and Gary Fraser, pioneering and cooking.

Service pins were given by MSgt. E. W. Bohl, scoutmaster, to all the boys listed, in addition to James Morgan, Victor Correll, and Bruce Strickland.

PLUS THESE OTHER ACTS

With Jerry Lewis are Chordettes, the former vocal stars of the Arthur Godfrey show—greatest of the girl quartets in show business. Too, the Show will include Hubert Castle, the great center-ring artist of the tight-wire, formerly with Ringling Bros. Circus; Homer Garrett and his Y-Knot Twirlers, to be on the Ed Sullivan Show in Moscow this summer and Teddy Phillips name band with 25 pieces. It'll be packed, nearly two-hour show, coming in September.

Jerry Lewis, that comic-face of all comics will be on the stage in person, going through his many gyrations of singing, playing instruments, cracking jokes and just plain keeping the crowd in stitches. Jerry has made 16 pictures with Dean Martin and many of his own. The latest is "Don't Give up the Ship," coming here soon. His Decca record album is great while he has two records with sales over one million—"Rock-a-Bye Baby with a Dixie Melody" and "Come Rain or Come Shine." He's a one-man show. You must see him!
