Base Papers Active Aides In AF Work

Throughout the Air Force the base newspaper is considered one of the most effective means of providing personnel with accurate information and, thus, serving as a strong management tool of base commanders.

This week National Newspaper Week was observed throughout the United States and military people were asked to consider benefits received from newspapers. Tribute was paid to service of newspapers.

On another page of this issue appear pictures of some of the many processes and actions necessary to bring the weekly issue into the hands of Reese people.

The ROUNDUP serves as a house organ, through which base people may learn of activities, policies and actions of the Air Force, Air Training Command and Reese AFB. Much space is devoted to contributions made by the Air Force to all people.

Lieutenant Gen. James E. Briggs, ATC commander, this week joined in praising contributions made by base newspapers. He said:

"It is more important than ever before that our United States Aerospace Team possess a high degree of job knowledge and a dedicated spirit towards the Air Force mission.

"Well informed personnel are the keys to insuring these qualities, and today, one of the command's best communicative media for this purpose is the base newspaper.

"ATC base newspaper editors, staffs and supporting personnel are making notable contributions to furthering Air Force and command mission accomplishments.

"We at Air Training Command headquarters wish to extend our congratulations to these people for providing us with accurate, up-to-date information about the Air Force, the command and ourselves."

Special Meal Planned Here

Scotch broth, Chinese chop suey, Italian salad and Irish potatoes will be among the features of the International Meal to commemorate United Nations Day, Oct. 24 in the Reese dining halls.

In the past, Air Force dining halls have presented a buffet featuring specialties from various UN countries. This year's feast will offer an international cuisine at both dinner and supper.

The Army and Air Force menus will be alike. The dinner menu includes Scotch broth with crackers, Chinese Chop Suey, Turkish Pilaf (rice), English peas, Italian salad bowl with Russian dressing, bread, butter, French apple pie, coffee, and tea.

Supper meal will feature Norwegian beef ragout as the main dish, with Polonaise potatoes, Mexican corn, South American fruit salad with cream dressing, and Spanish cake with butter cream icing as sidelines.

Oct. 24 is the 16th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco. It was on this day in 1945 that the USSR became the 29th nation to ratify the United Nations document.

WINNING ENTRY in the contest to name the Reese recreational area at Buffalo Lakes was submitted by 2nd Lt. Edward Zompa, Class 63-A, 3500th PTS. He suggested "Reese Aqua Villa," selected by a board of judges. The lieutenant, 1961 graduate of the Air Force Academy and a water skiing enthusiast, swimmer and fisherman, thought of the name after visiting the recreation area. Here he receives a check for $25 as his award. Col. Roscoe B. Woodruff, Jr., makes the presentation in his office. (Air Force Photo by A3C Larry Roach)

X-15 Flies To Space Edge; Reaches Speed Of 3,477 mph

America's fastest airplane, the X-15, piloted by Air Force Maj. Robert M. White, has scorched all manned winged aircraft altitude records by streaking to the edge of space.

It flew at 215,000 feet and reached a speed of 3,477 mph.

Maj. White, who outdid the X-15's previous record by eight and three-quarter miles, set last March 30, said he was "essentially outside the atmosphere. I could definitely feel the increasing pull of gravity as I pulled back."

Scientists reported that he flew above 99.9 per cent of the earth's atmosphere.

Although the flight was aimed at an altitude of 200,000 feet, the major said he flew higher because of unexpected sensitive response from eight small reaction rockets positioned in the nose and wing tips of the X-15.

The old altitude mark was set in the same rocket-powered X-15 by National Aeronautics and Space Administration test pilot Joe Walker when he flew at 169,000 feet.

On the way back to earth the major had to be careful in his control of the craft. The X-15 would have burned up in the heat generated by friction with the atmosphere if his 15-degree reentry angle had been off.

As it was, the X-15's outer skin glowed at 900 degrees Fahrenheit during reentry.

After the flight Maj. White said, "I imagine we should be one or two flights away from the maximum effort." The "maximum" effort will be a flight at 4,000 mph at an altitude of 50 to 100 miles.

Season Ticket Rates Lower For Military

Season tickets for many cultural programs coming to Lubbock in the near future are available to all Reese airmen, NCOs and their wives at half price.

Some of the outstanding artists brought to Lubbock from all parts of the country are violinist Michael Rabin, Metropolitan Opera soprano Blanche Thebom and the duo pianists, Whittmore and Lowe.

Further information as to programs and tickets may be obtained at Mathis Service Club, Extension 722.

Many Subjects Programmed For Explanation To Wives

Plans were perfected this week for the semi-annual Dependent's Orientation Courses sponsored by Family Services next week. The first course will be from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, the second at the same hours Wednesday and Thursday. Sessions will be in the Reese Elementary School cafeteria.

"Much time and effort has gone into making one of the best programs of this type ever to be presented at Reese," said 1st Lt. John Sirmans, personal affairs officer.

Preparation for overseas movement, casualty benefits, life insurance, service retirement, Medicare, legal aid, pay and allotments, community resources and facilities, base facilities, transportation, Red Cross, credit union, Air Force Aid Society, religious activities, and the operation of the Family Service Center are subjects which will be discussed by many speakers during the two evenings of each course.

Evening hours were selected for meetings so that the maximum number of wives may attend. All who complete either course will receive a certificate of completion.

Free nursery service and refreshments will be available for all those attending the orientation. Free transportation also will be provided. Anyone having need for transportation may call the Family Service Center, Extension 306, weekdays from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. A Family Service Worker will provide transportation to and from the orientation for persons in Lubbock or the government housing area.

Dependents who have attended previous orientations are being encouraged to attend as a refresher to learn changes in some areas to be discussed.

Art Contest Set Tuesday

Judges for the first Reese art contest, open to all base personnel and dependents, were announced this week by Mathis Service Club personnel. They are Bob Parkinson, Texas Tech instructor and artist; James Pinson, interior decorator; Bob Hassel, Lubbock artist; and Clyde Snyder, book store owner.

Contest judging will start at 8 p.m. next Tuesday and the exhibition will open to the public at 8:30 p.m.

Entered in the paint category will be work in oils, casein, water color, tempera and other media. Sculpture media will be wood, stone, ceramics and metal. Prizes will be offered for the first three places and honorable mentions will be made.

An art workshop was started at the service club two and a half months ago with Carlos Jordan, professional instructor, in charge.

UN Banquet Highlighting Celebration

Reese and Lubbock join in observance of United Nations Week with a banquet at 6:30 p.m. next Wednesday in Parkway-Manor as a highlight. Mrs. John G. Lee, past president of the League of Women Voters, will be the speaker. Numerous Reese people will attend.

Hundreds of communities will pay tribute to and learn more of the United Nations organization next week in the annual observance. Speakers will appear at dinners from coast to coast.

The observance is by proclamation of President John F. Kennedy and has wholehearted endorsement of civilian and military leaders, including Eugene Zuckert, secretary of the Air Force, and Dean Rusk, secretary of state.

"The United Nations has clearly demonstrated its capacity to act as a force for peace and human advancement, and has provided a dynamic spirit which is leading the nations of the world along the road to human progress," the President said.

"The United Nations is available to assist all nations and people in their efforts to combat hunger, disease and despair.

"The United States strongly supports the United Nations, the Charter of which is rooted in ideals and aspirations which we share with freedom-loving people in all parts of the world.

"The United States considers that this world organization is an indispensable instrument of international peace, economic improvement, and social development, and that any attempt to destroy it would be a blow aimed directly at the independence and security of nations, large and small."

The President urged observances everywhere with community programs to "demonstrate their faith in the United Nations and contribute to a better understanding of its aims, problems and accomplishments."

ATC Senior Officers Visit Here Thursday

Eighteen senior officers, all colonels newly assigned to Air Training Command, are scheduled to visit Reese next Thursday as a part of the ATC orientation program.

They are to arrive at 10 a.m. and will be greeted at base operations by key Reese officers, headed by Col. L. C. Hess, base commander. A briefing at the Officers Club will be followed by a tour of the base and a luncheon. The visiting colonels will attend a briefing for student pilots and are to see the T-4 training section, runways and various parts of the aircraft maintenance area.

Escorting the senior officers will be Col. A. A. Fletcher, pilot training director of ATC, and Maj. L. H. Button, chief of the materiel production division of ATC.

Scheduled to come to Reese from ATC headquarters is Col. Kenneth O. Dessert, director of weapons system planning. From Amarillo AFB will be Col. Jack R. Banks, commander of the Maintenance and Supply Group.

Visitors from Chanute AFB, Ill., will be Colonels Frederick J. Baker, Civil Engineering Group commander; Ralph J. Pearson, assistant to the base commander; and Walter J. Wilson, deputy commander of the technical training school.

Coming from Keesler AFB, Miss., are colonels Sam F. Carter, staff judge advocate, and William C. Sipes, Jr., executive officer.

Bomber Just One Of Many Weapons

(AFNS) — That he is just a big bomber advocate is "emphatically not true," Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, said recently.

"Because of my service in the Strategic Air Command, a lot of people think I am only interested in big bombers and have little faith in or use for missiles, tactical air power, air defense, and many other essential elements that go to make up total aerospace power." Describing himself as a military conservative he indicated that a proven system of defense should not be discarded unless we have something to replace it. "I believe in having protection along with progress," he said.

From The COMMANDER'S DESK

By Col. L. C. Hess, Base Commander

Knowledge is the key to solving any problem, whether it be routine or emergency. This is especially true for us in the Air Force, and very much includes our wives.

The very nature of military life today dictates that wives of Air Force members be well informed.

Quite often unpredicted circumstances arise whereby the wife must make decisions which have far reaching effects into the future. To make these decisions wisely and in the best interests of all concerned, our wives should be well versed on the many aspects of Air Force life and the benefits afforded.

Next Monday through Thursday evenings at the Reese Elementary School Cafeteria, from 7 to 10 p.m., two Dependents Orientation Courses will be held for all Reese wives.

Through attendance at either of these courses our wives can obtain the knowledge necessary to become a better informed, better prepared member of our Air Force community.

I strongly urge all Reese wives to take advantage of one of these most worthwhile and informative courses.

Force Is Mighty

(AFNS) — Some call it the counterforce strategy; some call it counter-military; some call it a strategy for disarming the attacker.

But whichever terms are used to describe the Air Force approach to military strategy, they add up to mean the same thing: building a war-fighting and war-winning force.

Only this kind of force can be depended upon to deter an aggressor from launching a war.

As an Air Force member, military or civilian, everyone should know some of the fundamentals of U. S. military doctrine. Here are a few facts to remember about the counterforce approach to military strategy.

It is designed to destroy the attacker's military forces — the kind of military forces that could most effectively strike us.

Enemy aerospace forces, not cities, are its primary targets.

It consists of piloted and non-piloted offensive and defensive aerospace forces capable of seeking out and destroying an attacker's offensive/defensive aerospace forces.

It is a versatile, diversified force, being modernized with each new technological advance that can strengthen it.

Only a force that can disarm the attacker's forces can win. And only a force that has its superior capability known to a potential aggressor is most likely to deter him from attacking — that is, if the potential aggressor knows that the defender would not be afraid to use this superior force if he had to.

Deterrence Explained

Air Force Chief of Staff, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, said recently that "to be a credible deterrent, aerospace power must consist of flexible and diversified forces that have a war-waging and war-winning capability."

And, he added, "everybody must understand that fact." "Deterrence of aggression," said Gen. LeMay, "is composed of three basic elements — forces in being, public understanding of this force, and national determination to use the force if necessary."

"These are the three elements," he said, "that make our forces credible to our friends as well as to our enemies. If any of them is missing, credibility suffers proportionately."

In other words, a potential aggressor is more likely to be discouraged from attacking if he really believes that you have both the capability and the determination to defeat him if he should attack.

To defeat a major aggressor you must be able to destroy his offensive and defensive aerospace forces. These forces, not cities, must be the primary targets — for these are the forces that, if left unchecked, could strike us. Superior strength and a will to win are qualities of the reliable defender.

It might be summed up this way: Capability plus survivability plus credibility equals deterrence.

"The Communists are opportunists, and if we indicate either loss of military capability or of resolve we can expect trouble."

—Maj. Gen. David A. Burchinal, Director of Plans, USAF.

"We have the opportunity to show — more, we have upon us a show-down test of the strengths which make America great."

—Eugene Zuckert, Secretary of the Air Force.

"Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and the success of liberty. This much we pledge — and more."

—President John F. Kennedy in his inaugural address.

Parson-to-Person Workers Big Need Of All Activities If Tasks Finished

By Chaplain James D. Taylor

Many people are just an echo. They seldom come up with a new and workable idea. They carry on after someone else has suggested the creative idea or method. Usually, one will see them nodding their heads in agreement, and then "going to bat" for the idea. They carry through to the finish. They are agreeable people with a mind to work and cooperate, but not create.

How we need these people! Willing hands to work and carry the program to its fulfillment!

Usually, it is the one who gets the idea who strikes it rich. He hits the jackpot, gets in the limelight, receives the credit and praise. On the other hand, the person who carries the work to completion is the one who helps the cause the most. Sooner or later he will get his rewards for being a faithful steward.

I think the Lord has work for each individual; some to create and some to carry through. Be faithful in whichever type you are given talent to perform.

She emphasized that airmen must perform to the satisfaction of the employer.

Federal Employee Told 'Be Example'

(AFNS) — The President has called on federal government employees with ready reserve commitments to set a patriotic example if they are called to the colors during the buildup.

"The Federal government and its employees must set an example in responding without stint of special consideration of any kind," was the way Mr. Kennedy put it in issuing a special memorandum.

The Presidential memo said "The nation's defense requires the reserve military strength now being placed on active duty. Service with America's armed forces at this critical juncture is a duty with special priority and honor."

Concerning deferments, Mr. Kennedy said, "I believe civilian government personnel who have voluntarily participated in and obtained benefits from those programs should promptly report when their organizations are recalled, and should not be deferred unless absolutely essential to the national security in their present positions."

A NEWSPAPER IS PRODUCED — This is National Newspaper Week when tribute is paid publications which contribute to the nation's welfare. In picture No. 7, Terry Benevent, a ROUNDUP carrier, completes his weekly deliveries by handing a copy to his neighbors, Karin Gylov, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Palle Gylov, and Debra Kinyon, daughter of 1st Lt. and Mrs. Ronald Kinyon. But a lot of work preceded the delivery. In No. 1, A2C Rudy Ontiveros points to the desired angle of a picture A2C Kenneth Fontaine is taking for the paper. In 2 Bert Tipton puts the copy into type on the Linotype. In 3 Leo McWilliams, printer, puts the type into page forms for the ROUNDUP. No. 4 shows Johnny Winslow photographing portions of the page for transfer to metal plates for printing. No. 5 shows Ray Eade, pressman, scrutinizing pages after they come from the press. In No. 6 the job of stuffing inner pages into folded outer pages is completed by, left to right, Dolores Ginbey, Leola Armour, Genia Bender, Elizabeth Hawkins, and Maxine Wilson. Production is in the plant of Craftsman Printers, which does the printing for Boone and Abernethy, publishers.

Dependents Still May Go To Europe

(AFNS) — Air Force dependents with severe personal hardships still have the chance to join their sponsors in western Europe despite the Oct. 9 restrictions on dependent travel to this area.

Authorizing two categories of exceptions, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said he recognizes that some cases of severe personal hardship have resulted from the travel ban.

He stipulated that exceptions can be granted only in two areas:

For hardships, those who had taken action to bring dependents overseas before they were told about travel restrictions; and for humanitarian reasons, those who would qualify for a humanitarian reassignment under Section I, Chapter I, Part I, AFM 35-11.

In the "hardship" category, the individuals concerned already have submitted full documentation through military channels. Processing of this category was scheduled for completion Oct. 15.

In the "humanitarian" category, processing for exceptions to the travel ban is continuous. Conditions set for humanitarian reassignment (AFM 35-11), not time, are the governing factor here.

In making the exceptions, Mr. McNamara also limited it as to authority — only to the Secretary or Under Secretary of the Air Force.

Boxing Team Needs More Competitors

More candidates are needed for the base boxing team, being organized to compete in Air Training Command competition, SSgt. D. J. Corsi, coach, said Thursday. Interested persons may call the sergeant at Extension 560.

Heading the team presently is A2C G. L. Watts of Civil Engineers, who has competed in ATC matches as a light heavyweight, Sgt. Corsi said. ATC competition is slated to start in March.

Good Cooking Tips Included In 'Chef Propelled' Edition

Worldwide recipes and tips on good cooking and good eating are included in the 400-page second edition of "Chef Propelled," a cookbook compiled by members of the Officers Wives Club at Reese.

The book will be on sale early in November with the expectation that the supply will be exhausted early, Mrs. Joseph Burdick, project chairman, said.

Recipes gathered by the officers wives in many parts of the world are included in the more than 600 recipes. Mrs. Lewis J. Britain, who formerly taught in the Cordon Bleu school of cooking in Paris, France, is a main contributor. The school has trained cooks for many famous establishments, including the Waldorf-Astoria in New York and Maxims in Paris.

One of the cookbook sections includes recipes for men, another offers 86 quick and easy "wife saver" recipes.

Sections also deal with nutrition, ingredients, substitutes, definitions, foreign and American measures, preserves, pickles, and a variety of other subjects.

Reese Wives Club members ask that interested women make reservations for the $3.75 cookbook by calling PO 3-1951, Ext. 753, or Hurlwood 2831. Orders and inquiries may be addressed to Reese Officers Wives Club, "Chef Propelled," Box 191, Reese AFB. The attached coupon may be used.

DOD Chief Outlines Policy

(AFNS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told all military and civilian members of the Defense Department last week how they should conduct themselves when speaking before non-governmental organizations and groups.

He also gave commanders in his October 5 memorandum guidelines to determine what official support they could give to non-governmental organizations.

In both instances, he underscored non-partisanship and accord with established national policy.

McNamara said "military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense are authorized to participate as speakers in public information programs when: such participation does not interfere with their assigned duties; they address their remarks to a discussion of subjects within the cognizance of the Department of Defense; the views which they express are non-partisan in character and in accord with established national policy; and their participation does not lend an air of sponsorship to the statements of others which may be either partisan in character or contrary to established national policy."

The Defense chief said it is still the responsibility of the local commander to determine if official support can be given to non-governmental information programs.

Detailed guidance on these matters is provided in Air Force directives and in the semi-monthly "Air Force Information Policy Letter for Commanders."

McNamara directed that "no such public information program shall be sponsored or co-sponsored by any military organization unless expressly authorized by the Secretary of the military department.

"In all cases where Department of Defense personnel participate as speakers in or military support is furnished to such public information programs, the sponsoring organizations or groups shall be clearly identified."
