Class Of 22 To Get Wings In Graduation

A class of 22 aviation cadets, including 5 from Peru and 1 from Venezuela, is scheduled to be graduated from the basic pilot training program at Reese next Thursday. The United States students will be commissioned second lieutenants and all graduates are to receive silver pilot wings.

Major Roland E. Lane, military training director, will be master of ceremonies, with 1st Lt. Albert F. Opper, military training instructor, administering the oath of office to new lieutenants. Colonel L. C. Hess, base commander, is to award wings and diplomas.

The Commander's Trophy will be presented the outstanding graduate of Class 60-E by Col. James D. C. Robinson, deputy wing commander, and distinguished graduates are to receive certificates presented by Lt. Col. Charles W. Sawyer, commander of the 3500th Pilot Training Group. Chaplain George J. Worner will give the invocation and benediction.

Sergeant Given OCS Assignment

SSgt. Billy L. Wrede, jet aircraft mechanic in the 3502nd Flight Line Maintenance Squadron, has been assigned to Officer Candidate School. He will report March 27 to Class 60-C, starting on April 1. The course is 27 weeks.

Sergeant Wrede, from El Reno, Okla., has been in service seven years and came to Reese in June, 1958. He served three and a half years in England.

He is a 1952 graduate of El Reno High School and completed the jet mechanic school at Amarillo AFB.

COMMANDER DUE

Major Charles Ford, newly assigned commander of the Reese Hospital, is scheduled to report for duty Monday. He has been chief of professional services and chief of aviation medicine at Amarillo AFB.

Thief Takes Clothing for Dining-In

A Lubbock car break-in may interfere slightly with the formal Dining-In which Lt. Gen. James E. Briggs, ATC commander, will address Monday night.

Stolen early Saturday morning were black mess dress and other items bought by Reese officers and being delivered by the manufacturer. Frantic efforts were being made this weekend to secure replacement for missing items.

Taken in the break-in and not recovered were three hats, 2 white mess dress jackets, jewelry, white suspenders, cadet shoulder boards and a black mess dress uniform. Recovered, but damaged, was a black mess jacket, white mess jacket, and a few other items. The purchasing officers planned to wear some of the new garments to the Dining-In.

J. L. Golden, owner of the manufacturing Kel-Lac company, was bringing the clothing to Reese. He arrived late Friday night and went to bed in a Lubbock hotel. His filled auto was left parked on a nearby lot.

A few hours later Lubbock police found some garments in a hog pen in Lubbock. A short time later they found a man with Air Force clothing or hangars attempting to sell the items. A check showed the clothing was intended for Reese officers.

The price asked by the thief for three black mess dress suits and one white dress coat was $10.

SHIELD AWARDED — MSgt. Joe King, wing provost sergeant, receives the first of new shields awarded Reese Air Policemen Monday. Colonel Harold T. Babb, deputy base commander, pins on the shield.

Air Police Receive Shields

The arm band of the Air Policeman left the Reese scene this week as new badges took their place.

In ceremonies Monday morning at AP headquarters, Col. Harold T. Babb, deputy base commander, presented the new shields to the officers and 32 airmen.

"You are a select group," the colonel said. "Wear your shields with pride. They are marks of prestige and marks in which we all take pride."

The shields have been under discussion and planning for several years and have been going to bases through normal supply channels for the past few months.

Worn on the left breast, they are numbered and bear the Air Force emblem, as well as an eagle depicting the might of the service and her component parts.

Major Kenneth McGuire, provost marshal, received the first shield at Reese, the one pictured in the adjoining column. The second badge, No. 10202, went to 1st Lt. Ronald Kibler, base security officer, while MSgt. Joe King, provost sergeant, was the first airman to receive his badge.

All Air Policemen attended the ceremonies at which badges were distributed. Duties at the main gate and elsewhere temporarily were handled by squadron supply personnel.

Pepperrell AFB, Newfoundland, loses its active status in August, going on a "caretaker" status.

Vance Becoming Contract School

The Air Force announced Tuesday it will contract for the operation of its basic flying school at Vance AFB, Enid, Okla.

Air Training Command presently operates six basic flying schools which receive their students from contract primary flying schools. A study of operation of primary flying schools under the contract system indicates that the Air Force can realize considerable military manpower savings in adopting this approach in the basic schools.

The change will effect a number of civil service employees at the base concerned. However, USAF will request that the contractor give hiring preference to civil service personnel whose jobs have been eliminated as a result.

Union To Consider Size Of Dividend

Directors and committeemen will be elected by the Reese Credit Union members at the annual meeting at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 28, in the NCO Club. All members have been urged to attend.

The meeting also will consider changes to the constitution, as directed by Congressional action, and the amount of the annual dividend.

ATC Commander Plans Initial Call On Reese

Lieutenant Gen. James E. Briggs, commander of Air Training Command, will pay his first visit to Reese Monday.

He will arrive about noon and will be a luncheon guest at the Officers' Club. He will be briefed on all activities of the base early in the afternoon, following which he is to visit various areas of the base.

A wing Dining-In is scheduled for Monday night in the Officers' Club, with General Briggs as special guest and speaker. Lubbock civic leaders have been invited to attend.

General Briggs became commander of ATC last Aug. 1, at which time he was promoted to lieutenant general.

A native of Rochester, N. Y., he received a presidential appointment to the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1924 and four years later was graduated 31st in a class of 261.

During his senior year he was Cadet Captain and Regimental Commander.

He served in the field artillery until he entered flying training, graduating in 1930 from the Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field. Today he is a Command Pilot.

He served in California, Illinois, Hawaii, and Michigan prior to returning to West Point in 1940 as a faculty member in the Department of Mathematics. In May, 1942, the then Colonel Briggs became Operations Officer of the 8th Air Force Fighter Command in Europe and in September, 1943, he became Air Officer of the European Section of the War Department General Staff.

Later he was Deputy Commander of the North Atlantic Division, Air Transport Command, and Assistant Chief of Staff for Plans and Chief of the Organizational Planning in the command headquarters.

He was Chief of Staff of the 15th Air Force and Commander of the 92nd and 98th Bombardment Groups. See ATC COMMANDER Page 3

On-Base Education Classes Starting

On-base education classes will start at 6:30 p.m. Monday, J. F. Reeves, education specialist, said Thursday.

The English composition class will meet each Monday night and the arithmetic class Tuesday night, both in Room 8, T-815.

Efforts to offer classes in algebra also are being made, but insufficient enrollment has been made. Persons interested in subjects offered and planned are asked to call the education office, Ext. 437, at once.

Honors Given for Suggestion Help

Thirty Reese civilian supervisors have been awarded letters of appreciation for achieving a participation rate of 50 per cent or better in the Suggestion Program personnel they supervised in 1959.

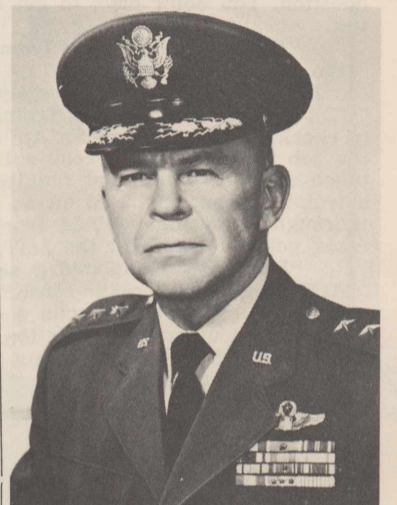

They were credited with securing a 36.68 per cent participation last year. The base received a Certificate of Achievement from USAF for its program.

Highest rate for supervisors was 166 per cent, made by Mary H. Lundy of the Civilian Personnel Office and Annie L. Sasser of the Transportation Squadron.

Other supervisors honored, with their rates, were: Elizabeth Rendleman, 100, and Charles W. Smith, 60, M&S headquarters; Gilbert M. Turbeville, 114, Charles E. Daugherty, 150, Winston D. Williams, 100, Carl B. Sanders, 66, and Robert J. Young and Clarence L. Reed, 129, 3505th Field Maintenance Squadron;

Harold B. Williams, 100, Supply; Hal P. Spencer, Installations, 117; and Sinia R. Harris, Civilian Personnel, 125.

Last year 190 suggestions were submitted and 75 were adopted. Awards of $1,955 were made and first year savings here amounted to $32,160.

From the COMMANDER'S DESK

By Col. L. C. Hess, Base Commander

A national characteristic of the United States is our ability to unite in successfully meeting major goals. We have united to win wars, whip disease, care for disaster victims, win the peace, and in many other fields.

Reese has established a fine record in meeting its responsibilities through united efforts. We have trained highly proficient pilots, reached our goals in welfare drives, set high marks in the Suggestion Program, and done well in many fields—all through united efforts.

During 1959 all of us, working together, wrote strong chapters in flying and ground safety history. Early in the year the necessity for a major effort in both flying and ground safety was recognized. In ground safety, we concluded the year with no highway accidents during "Operation Homesafe."

In flying safety, we united to slash the rate from 20.9 during the first six months to 4.3 in the last half of 1959. The rate is based on accidents per 100,000 flying hours.

All of us should have a personal sense of pride in our contributions to efforts to make Reese an even better base, one with a record of which we should be proud. Safety in the air and on the ground can be maintained only through united thought and action.

Let us remain united for the welfare of all.

Test Beliefs Explained

Persons giving thought to effectiveness of the Airman Proficiency Tests may find interest in these misconceptions and realities:

"The APT I took covered equipment I've never seen."

APTS are required to cover the whole job or specialty as it is described in AFM 35-1. This makes it possible to have equipment covered which is used on some other bases but not on yours. Every airman who takes the test will have the same problem, but if you know your job and study the material in the Study Reference List you will know enough about the equipment to answer the question. You don't have to get all the questions right to pass the test.

"This APT is different from the OJT Packaged Program and the Job Training Standard."

APTs are written separately by a different agency from the OJT programs and the Job Training Standards. APTs are not made to check OJT, but to set an Air Force-wide standard based on how the job is performed. Because they are so short, APTs can only touch on some things that require a lot of training. For this reason, a training program based on an APT would be very incomplete. A thorough knowledge gained from careful OJT will, in almost all cases, get you ready for the AOT.

"I recently completed a school course and then failed an APT. This doesn't make sense."

The course is based upon a training or learning situation; the test is based upon the prediction of performing on a job. You may have learned facts without being able to show the proper application to a work situation.

Systems Make 'Blend'

Two top Air Force leaders recently explained what is meant by "aerospace force"—sometimes referred to as a "mixed force."

Air Force Deputy Chief of Staff for Development, Lt. General Roscoe C. Wilson said that "our future forces will employ a family of missiles, both ground-launched and air-launched, as the dominant means of delivering firepower."

"Other techniques of warfare," he said, "including air-dropped bombs, will be required to diversify our capabilities and compound an enemy's military problems." This combination of different systems, he said, will make our aerospace power more effective.

And Air Force Chief of Staff, General Thomas D. White said: "In the future, we can expect our missile forces—both offensive and defensive—to comprise a substantial portion of our total combat power."

"Nevertheless," said General White, "the advent of missiles does not signify the doom of manned systems, although there inevitably will be a shift in emphasis from manned to unmanned systems as the capabilities of our missiles qualify them to take over major military tasks . . ."

"The eventual 'mix' between manned and unmanned systems" he said "will depend upon the performance capabilities of the two types of systems as measured in combat effectiveness. Thus, the presence of responsible men in aerospace, to see, to evaluate, to report, and—if need be—to act, will continue indefinitely."

From the words of these and other military aerospace experts, it seems to us that with the coming of radically advanced aircraft and spacecraft, together with missiles, our aerospace force will be a combined system that can discourage an enemy from attacking us. It can, that is, if the blend is kept expertly balanced with the right proportion of each kind of weapon system.

We must have the kind of force that can destroy an enemy's aerospace force, including his mobile missile launchers.

If our aerospace force is to be versatile, reliable and decisive, man will continue to be the key element.

CONGRATULATIONS — C. F. Boone, left, whose Nationwide Publications publishes THE ROUNDUP, receives a letter of appreciation and congratulations from Col. L. C. Hess, base commander, for aiding in winning the ATC award for 1959 for the newspaper. The trophy won in the competition is partially shielded by the handshake.

Man Needs Help In Everyday Life

By Chaplain James D. Taylor

It is very noticeable that all men in every walk of life need someone to help them. Even Jesus the Son of God needed to choose someone to help him. If he needed this help, then how much more do we who are so weak and full of despair need help.

In looking over the people Jesus called on to help him, we find them to be of the ordinary people. There were none that most people would call on to help in a world-wide program. They were just some fishermen and a tax gatherer. This seemed such an unlikely group to have such an important task placed on their shoulders. Yet today, you and I have heard the good news of God partly because of what they did.

How shortsighted we often are when it comes time to pick helpers. We forget that Jesus called ordinary people with the promise that he would make them become fishers of men. Could this quality in Jesus, if present in us, help us look at other people differently? What would be the difference?

When we are looking for help in any situation, do not let our minds overlook the ordinary man for in any given circumstance the ordinary man might become a leader of men. If a man is willing to help, he might become the very person that will make the program a success. If you are just a helper, remember to do your best for that just might be the most important task in your day and age.

Pre-Flight Work Ends At Lackland

Pre-flight training at Lackland AFB is being shifted elsewhere.

The training of USAF student pilots and navigators will be decentralized to flying training bases of Air Training Command. The shift will be completed by next June 30 and is a result of a reduction in pilot training requirements, Air Force officials said.

Beginning in July, pilot trainees will be commissioned officers who have graduated from Officer Candidate School or Officer Training Schools at Lackland, AFOTC, and the service academies.

They will be sent direct to ATC primary pilot training schools at Bainbridge, Bartow, Graham, Moore, or Spence Air Bases.

Navigator trainees, in both cadet and officer status, will be sent direct to two Texas bases. Cadets and officers will be trained at Harlingen and officers will be trained at James Connally.

The language school at Lackland, a preparatory course for foreign students entering flying training, will remain at the San Antonio base.

Captain William C. Eagle, assistant director of military training, has been reassigned to Chanute AFB as management engineer in technical training, reporting May 15.

WHY A WILL?

Many people take the attitude: "Why should I care how my property is distributed after my death? I will not be realizing any further enjoyment from it anyway."

The statement is true; however, one should take advantage of the opportunity given to one by law in seeing that the party or parties one desires to realize the further enjoyment of one's estate receives the property. When one dies without a will, he or she is said to have died intestate and the law dictates who is to realize the future enjoyment of the intestate's property. In many cases the dictates of the law would be contrary to the desires of the deceased, had a will been executed.

To have a will one may simply set forth the distribution of property desired in his or her own handwriting. When this is done one has put in effect a holographic will. Also, one can dispose of personal property by a con-cupative will, that is, by an oral declaration to bystanders when death is imminent to the declarant. However, to reduce the chance of error and eliminate the possibility that the will would be held to be invalid, one should have an attorney draw the will.

The will also can serve as an instrument for the appointment of the guardian of the person and estate of minors or incompetents (insane persons). This is especially the case should a husband and wife meet death in a common disaster and have children surviving them. If the desire as to the guardian is not expressed, then a court of law will appoint a competent person to act in this capacity.

It is a good idea to review one's will with an attorney at reasonable intervals so as to make needed corrections and changes in bringing the instrument up to date, or so as to express any new desires as to the disposition of one's property. If this is accomplished, one's property after death will be enjoyed by the party or parties the deceased intended.

Snow Fails To Halt Reese Scout Camp

Seven Reese Boy Scouts and four leaders were still a bit cold this week after a snowy weekend camp-out at Camp Post.

Four Scout troops opened the camp-out, but three came home when cold weather hit. Members of Reese Troop 148 staying on were Rudi Rushing, Steve Burgoon, Steve Yother, Mike Wagner, Erceal Doty, Barry Patterson, and Roddy Lins. Leaders were Maj. Erceal Doty, MSgt. Claud Rushing, MSgt. E. W. Bohl, and SSgt. W. Kovalchuk.

The snow storm also brought a pack of roving dogs, looking for shelter and protection. The howling animals came at night.

"Mulligan stew, with everything in it, kept us going," a scout commented.

SCHOOL OPENING

Another ttenage drivers school opens Saturday for children 13 years of age and older. Classes will meet each Saturday. Parents of interested teenagers should call Capt. Robert Carlin during normal duty hours.

ment Wings. Promoted to Brigadier General in December, 1948, he moved to MacDill AFB in March, 1949, to become Commander of the 306th and 307th Bombardment Wings.

In Korea he was Deputy Commander of the Far East Air Force Bomber Command, moving to Commander in January, 1951. The following July he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal on completion of his tour.

General Briggs returned to the United States in June, 1951, to become Deputy Commander of the 15th Air Force. In October, 1951, he became a Major General and was assigned to Washington as Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Development, USAF headquarters. In May, 1954, he was named Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and was given additional duty as USAF member of the Permanent Joint Board of Defense, Canada-United States.

He also was USAF project officer for the Distant Early Warning Line in Canada and for the USAF bases project in Spain.

CARE Aids Needy Over World

Thousands of needy people in foreign lands can be helped greatly through Reese contributions to the Joint Crusade now in progress, Maj. Roland E. Lane, campaign chairman, stressed this week.

"In tiny villages in Pakistan, when CARE packages of milk powder first reached undernourished children the general thought was that the milk came from trees in America," he said.

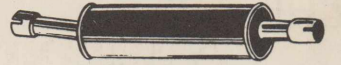

"This wondrous vision of the U. S. as a land where even milk grows on trees has had its counterpart wherever CARE has helped feed the world. But now, they understand, the miracle springs from the generosity of America's people, including those at Reese."

The government provides CARE with surplus food — milk powder, flour, meal, rice, margarine and other items. Costs of packing, handling, delivery are balanced so that every $1 contributed provides a package.

A 27-pound package to Pakistan for instance, gives 16 children an ounce glass of milk every day for a month, Major Lane cited.

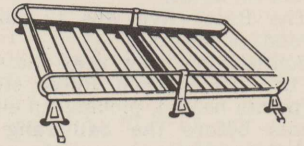

"Refugee children, disaster victims, the hungry and hopeless in areas from Haiti to Hong Kong, Poland and West Germany to Iran and Korea, are among those you feed by your contribution," said the major. "A note in the language of the country explains that the packages come from friends in the United States. Those friends include the people

Colonel Willis L. Helmantoler, ATC director of information, has been awarded the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious service in the performance of outstanding service from Nov. 19, 1956, to May 15, 1959.

Losing Courtsters Back From Tourney

Reese's best Intramural Basketball team returned from the ATC Northern District tournament at Sheppard AFB last week with low figures on the score book.

Leaders in the Intramural league here, with 11 wins and no losses, the Air Base Group team averaged 46 points per game before meeting ATC competition.

However, Sheppard topped Reese's average by 41 points in an 87-46 game. In the second tilt, Vance AFB ended Reese's hopes for placing in the tournament by racking up a clean 62-39 victory.

Amarillo and Lowry AFBs contended in the final playoffs for the ATC crown. Amarillo downed the hard fighting Lowry team in a close game, 102,96.
