

Small Businesses, Hampered By Discrimination, May Get Help Soon

Evidence Over U. S. Piles Up

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 — At least 130,000 small business men who have been crying pretty much in vain that the national defense program with its priorities set-up and contract distribution to big business is about to ruin them, may get quick relief if the government accepts a plan outlined by Guy Holcomb, head of the small business section of the Anti-Trust division of the department of justice.

It might be called the Office of Small Business Problems. It would serve as a forum where complaints could be heard and as an independent advocate of the cause of small business. More important, it would act as a trouble-shooter to represent small business and get action, and it would have to be clothed with ample power. The president would probably have full authority to appoint such a board, but Holcomb thinks it would have even more force if Congress enacted a law creating it. The membership would be composed of small business men with a few lawyers to give legal advice.

More than half the complaints from small business men received by Holcomb were drafted after they had failed to get relief from other departments of the government. He found small business men as a whole were distrustful of the Office of Production Management. The leading figures on OPM were big business dollar-a-year men, corporation attorneys, labor leaders and professional economists.

Evidence Piles Up

Time after time small business men complained to Holcomb that they saw their big competitors securing priority material after trips to Washington. Holcomb cited a case where a Michigan boiler manufacturer said he was the lowest bidder for installation at an Oklahoma airport, but the award was made to a company bidding $1700 higher. Holcomb contacted the officials in charge and the Michigan man finally got the contract.

A small but well known manufacturer of outboard motors complained that he was about to close his plant because of priority shut-down on materials while only 16 miles away his largest competitor was operating full swing on government and civilian contracts. Holcomb has tackled this problem and hopes for results.

L. M. Evans, president of Small Business of America, Inc., from his office in Cleveland, has written President Roosevelt complaining that small business men are under a siege of economic boycotts as strangling as the tightest

WASHED GLASSES
During the 18th century, finger bowls were used to wash glasses. So that the various bouquets of the wines served with dinner should not be confused, guests were given a glass beaker of water. In these, they rinsed their glasses between wines.

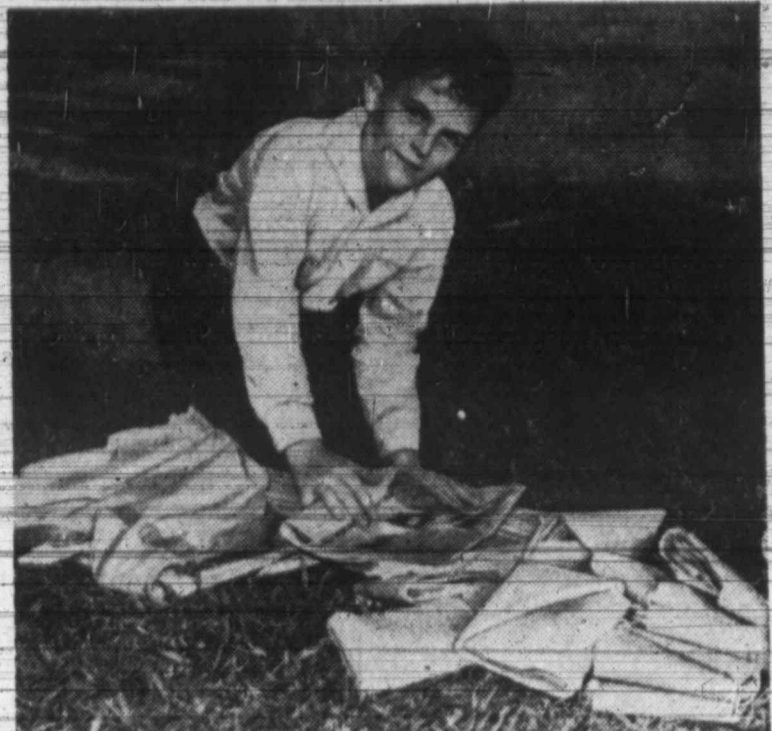

ESKIMO BELIEF
Because the Eskimos believe the greatest source of their food supply from the sea is frightened away if it sees lights, there are no front windows in most of the houses in Sevoonga, village on St. Lawrence, island, facing Bering sea.

As Senators See It
Congress is getting restive about this problem. Senators are not convinced that the President's naming of Floyd Odium as director of OPM's division of contract distribution is a solution. Senator Hatch of New Mexico, head of a special committee to investigate defense program contracts, is alarmed. "I don't think America has the experience of Britain, where 20,000 manufacturing plants were shut down almost overnight in the changeover from peace to a war economy. According to Odium's own estimate, 2 per cent of the supply of strategic materials would enable 30,000 to 45,000 small metal-working U. S. plants to continue during the first half of 1942."

Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, complaining that the little fellows are being kicked around from pillar to post, has introduced a bill to help small business. Under it, any person whose business operations are adversely affected by assignment of priority in his materials used in his business shall be afforded a chance to present his views to an agency designated by the president.

If he shows that his business operations will be hurt by a shortage of materials, or that his inability to continue business will result in unemployment for his employees, the agency shall so report to the president, and he shall allocate to the complainant such amounts of material as in his judgment will be necessary to prevent hardship to the business man, his employees or his customers.

NEWSBOY — Slightly eekled Jim Boy Allred, 11-year-old son of Federal Judge J. Allred, is making his spending money by delivering newspapers. He enthusiastically did he enter the enterprise that in addition to his $9 salary he won several prizes the first month he was on the job.

Jim Boy Earns Money On Paper Route-- Federal Judge Allred's Young Son Follows Father's Pattern

BY WILLIAM T. RIVES
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOUSTON, Dec. 3 — Eleven-year-old Jim Boy Allred, the son of Federal Judge James V. Allred, shows the same characteristic his father did at the same age: He is willing to make his own way, asking no special considerations.

Jim Boy, despite the fact his father is paid $10,000 a year for his services on the federal bench, is working as a newspaper delivery boy.

Judge Allred was a shine boy as a youth in Wichita Falls and wants his children to know the value of a dollar, but the idea of going to work was Jim Boy's own.

"He found out a boy was quitting and that he could get the delivery route," Judge Allred said, "and asked his mother and me if it was all right for him to take the job."

"The first month he made nine dollars and won several little prizes."

"Frankly I'm proud of him," Jim Boy's mother said. "He has nothing unusual in the fact he rides his bicycle each afternoon, throws newspapers on front porches and gets paid for it. He just likes to work, that's all."

The tousled-haired, slightly freckled youngster jumped off his streamlined blue bicycle and explained:

"You see, daddy doesn't believe in allow-ances." Then, for fear he was giving the wrong impression, he added quickly:

"Oh, but he takes me on hunting trips with him and does lots of other things for me. I don't think allowances are important, anyway."

"I used to work around the house and make money but I make more now."

Jim Boy is a regular feller. He has boy friends who help him deliver occasionally, but he slyly admits, for no pay.

He laughed and told about the time a woman subscriber reprimanded him for riding across her lawn on his bike.

Jim Boy said delivering papers was fun, not work, "except when it's raining." He does most of his lessons in the morning in order to keep the afternoons free for his paper-tossing.

He uses most of his earnings to buy stamps. The stamp-collecting bug struck him, he said, when he "found some old stamps in the attic."

Jim Boy tosses a paper each evening on the porch of his own home, and dutifully collects from one of his best subscribers—Federal Judge Allred.

Feeling Grows That End Of War Nears

Peace In Year Said Possible

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

There seems to be a cautious but growing feeling that the European war may be finished in another 12 months, the latest to venture this thought being New York's Mayor LaGuardia, who told the Senate that he expected the war to "be over in a year" if this country attained production goals and saw that supplies were delivered where needed.

Such a prediction is too happy an idea to pass by in these days of worry. Also it is both pleasing and encouraging for this column to have the support of such a personage as the head man of the world's tallest city. We ventured the view long ago, and have repeated it, that the trend of events indicated the possibility of peace some time next year—though we emphasized that this obviously wasn't any certainty.

Refers To Silent Prayer
As a matter of fact I suspect that one even higher than his honor gave us a lead on this subject last Saturday night. I refer to President Roosevelt's "little silent prayer" during his belated Thanksgiving dinner at the Georgia Warm Springs foundation. Referring to the folk of the countries at war he said:

"I think we can offer up a little silent prayer that these people will be able to hold next year a Thanksgiving more like an American Thanksgiving. That is something to dream about, perhaps."

Now I don't know exactly what was in the chief executive's mind, but some thought he was holding out at least a glimmer of hope for an early peace. True, in almost the same breath he said "It is always possible that our boys in the military and naval academies had been talking about football may be fighting for the defense of these American institutions of ours." However, it is good to believe that he was thinking of peace and that his qualification was merely the caution of a wise man to emphasize that no categorical predictions could be made regarding the length of the war.

War Of Resources
One judges that Mayor LaGuardia believes this is a war of resources. Anyway, that's what this column believes. I motored to my New York office this early morning with Pat Barrine, the genial entertainer of the air. We felt in discussing the possibilities of peace and he asked the grounds for saying that it might come next year. That was a fair question, and the answer was along this line:

This isn't a war of tanks and bombers alone. The terrific power of the Nazi fighting machine as it has crushed and ground countries beneath its overwhelming weight has rather blinded us to other factors, and no wonder. Battle fields must play their awful part in the solution, but this war fundamentally is one of resources.

Strength Lessening
We have a Germany in the heart of a continent which is bottled up—almost wholly cut off from the outside world. Continental Europe isn't self-contained, as this column more than once has stressed, and in itself is unable to support a total war—such as Herr Hitler is waging.

The strength with which he started is steadily lessening, for lack of replacements. The resources of those continental countries about him are rapidly disappearing, or have almost altogether vanished. Meantime Britain and her allies, and the United States with its all-out aid, are growing in striking power by leaps and bounds.

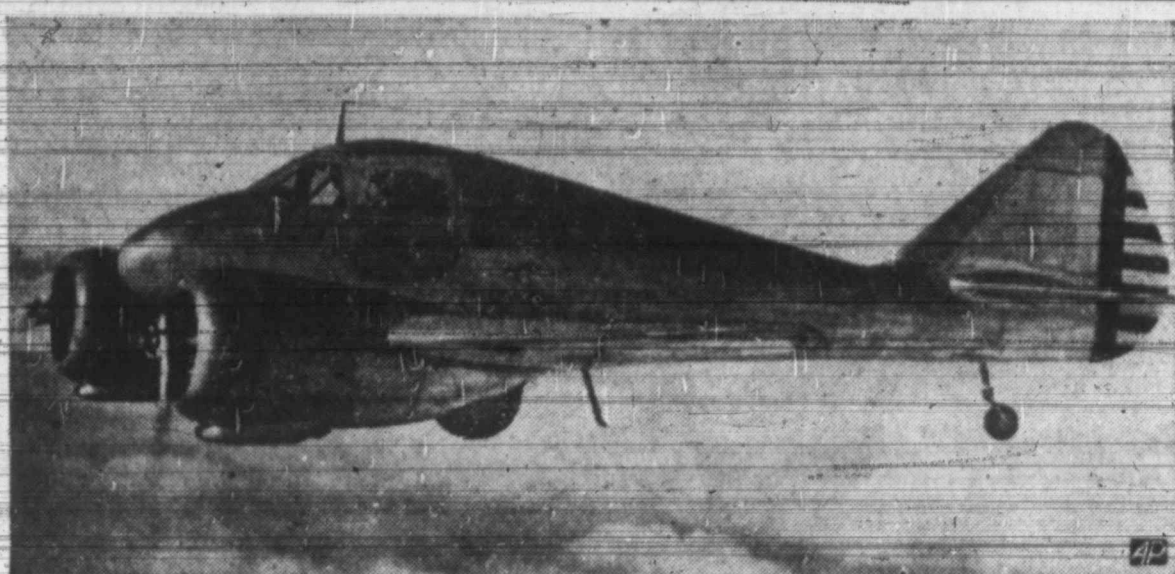

If two and two make four, then the Fuehrer must break out of his predicament to fresh resources. The crimes—finish of great guns and the roar of exploding bombs may distract our attention from that fact, but they cannot altogether alter it.

NIAGARA FALLS' CURRENT
The volume of water pouring over Niagara Falls produces more than a million horsepower. Potential production is estimated at 3,975,000 horsepower, one-tenth of the power needs of the United States.

It's News When Students Actually Work Overtime In Class But They Do At Tech; Old And Fascinating Art, Clay Modeling, Is Interesting Study

BY FELICIA BOULTER
An exploration of the dark, dusty basement of the engineering building on the Texas Technological college campus would undoubtedly yield a surprise to all Lubbock citizens as well as to the majority of college students, for there, almost completely hidden from the human eye, is a group of Tech students practicing one of the oldest and most fascinating arts in all history—clay modeling.

Shelves, tables, and boxes are littered with a beautiful exhibition of colorful vases, book-ends, statues of deer, horses, elephants, and other animals, pottery, dishes, plaques, and torsos, all the products of students who are learning the art of clay modeling under the direction of R. H. Williams, instructor in architecture and allied arts. This class, composed of 15 students who have completed the prerequisite course in free-hand drawing, meets a semi-weekly, three-hour laboratory for two semesters. According to Williams, it's one of those rare classes "where the teacher doesn't have to worry about students putting in their required number of hours for every student is so interested in his work that he often wants to work overtime."

One Of Oldest Arts
Statistically speaking, ceramics, or clay modeling, is one of the oldest and most permanent arts in the world. Practically all that modern civilization knows about the ancient Egyptians, Chinese, Babylonians, and Syrians is due to the ceramics. Acids cannot touch them, with the exception of hydro-fluoric (the acid present in the city water), so they can withstand the ravages of time better than anything else. The United States government uses ceramics to such a large extent that it is the third largest industry in the nation.

The clay used in the modeling class is mixed by the students and is an equal combination of Dallas clay and native red clay, for neither clay is suitable alone in this temperature.

Students Make Glass
An accomplishment of the students of the Tech clay modeling class that comparatively few colleges can claim is the making of the glass, which is applied to an article by spraying, dipping, or pouring. Either lead or alkaline is used as a base for the glaze, although lead is most commonly employed. In making the glaze, the students mix with the lead or alkali, metallic oxide from which the glaze gains its color. Oxide of copper gives green; oxide of iron, brown and yellow; oxide of cobalt, blue; oxide of antimony, yellow; oxide of chrome, yellow, green and orange; oxide of manganese, wine; oxide of nickel, brown and gray-green. Some colors cannot be obtained from the metallic oxides, thereby necessitating the use of commercial colors.

Following the mixing of the metallic oxide with the lead base, the student adds borax of soda, whitening (calcium carbonate), feldspar, kaolin (by-product which was formerly aluminum), flint, tin oxide, which gives opaqueness instead of color, zinc, which is sometimes used to stabilize the mixture, and water. This mixture is poured into a jar containing small pebbles and placed on an apparatus attached to a "double duty" washing machine, an important part of the class equipment, until the mixture is ground to the proper fineness.

In Three Divisions
From the standpoint of appearance, the glaze falls into three divisions; namely, enamel, mat and transparent.

Three methods are employed by the students in making the clay models. The first method is modeling a thing up and casting it, into which category sculpture or pottery falls, and dates back 2000 years before Christ. It lost out for awhile but was revived during the Dark Ages. The slab or coil method and throwing comprise the other two methods.

Students make their own models out of clay and use their own motifs. This year's model which has received the most comment is an unusual nine-inch statue of Hitler, complete with Nazi uniform, mustache, long nose and swastika badge. Various members of the class who are architecture majors employ architectural

Serious Split Faces Britain

LONDON, Dec. 3. (AP)—The threat of a serious split in the labor party over the government's new conscription proposals was reported in parliamentary circles today as a large number of labor members of parliament met behind locked doors to discuss the forthcoming bill.

Prime Minister Churchill asked the House of Commons yesterday for authority to draft 3,000,000 more men for war services and to require women to join uniformed branches.

Proclamation Issued
King George VI issued a proclamation today giving effect to the first step in the prime minister's program—a summons of 70,000 youths 18½ years old for service in the armed forces. The previous minimum was 19.

Informed sources said that the labor party as a whole disapproved of the government proposals and that there was wide support for an amendment signed by 30 M.P.s for nationalization of private property.

India is testing Indian silk for making parachutes.

designs in their clay models. Other unusual articles made by the students are clay necklaces, belts, water color pellets, and elephant trunks.

By far the most curiously fascinating work done by the students is the making of life masks. A plaster cast is made of a person's face, a slip of clay reduced to the consistency of gravy is poured in and eventually shrinks loose, and the mask is dried and fired in a kiln. A life mask of Williams, the class instructor, is one of the other attractions of the work produced by the class.

Each student completes an average of five pieces of work a semester, and the best models are placed on exhibition at the annual Engineering show in April. Williams has personally sponsored exhibitions in the East and has had student work placed in various shows. He holds an extension class in Amarillo in clay modeling every Friday, and is ambitious to teach Tech classes which are free from any prerequisite, thereby gaining increased student participation. According to Williams, "It's fascinating to take earthy material such as clay and create something from it. Clay, if gently handled and coaxed, is an excellent medium for creation."

Cuba Proposes Abrogation Of Copyright Law Throughout Americas

U. S. Opposing Drastic Move

By LAWRENCE S. HAAS
United Press Latin America Staff
A resolution recommending the abolition of all copyright regulations throughout the Americas so that "the entire production of the human intelligence" may be declared public property, has been presented to the Second American Conference of the National Committees on Intellectual Cooperation in session here.

This curious proposal, presented by a member of the Cuban delegation, would, if translated into effective practice, remove whatever theoretical and ethical restrictions, now in existence, that bar reproduction of books, plays, stories, articles, poems, songs and pictures making them free for the taking.

Cut Down On Profits
In a measure, it might contribute to the broader interchange of thought and cultural production among the 21 American republics, but at the same time it would sharply reduce the prospects of intellectual workers for a fair return on their labor.

In the United States, the writing—composing, painting, cartooning, and even, in some cases, the poetry professions are lucrative ones. Copyright laws protect these professions just as the codes outlawing burglary, larceny and embezzlement of tangible property protect the owners.

Includes Everything
The Cuban resolution is an all-inclusive one, as may be seen by the phrase, "the entire production of the human intelligence."

It might be interpreted to mean that the print of any Hollywood-produced film could be reproduced and exhibited without rental, royalty or any sort of compensation for the producer. If such a practice were to be sanctioned it would not fall to cripple the economic structure of the film industry, which ranks among the first 15 industries in economic importance in the United States. A great part of foreign film business is done in Western Hemisphere "good neighbor" republics.

U. S. Seeks Opposite
The United States, in previous international conferences among the republics of the continent, has sought to strengthen international copyright practices rather than to abolish them, although little or no progress has been made in that field, much to the disappointment of many United States publishers, writers and illustrators.

In some countries of Latin America, publications are assembled with the lavish use of the scissors and paste-pot, applied, to a great extent, to United States magazines and newspapers. Many short stories, serials, articles and pictures are acquired at no greater expense than the salary of a welder of a pair of shears, a translator and the printer, and not even with a by-your-leave or a credit line.

Cuba is one of the countries in which this free-for-all literary system has become a habit, and many Yankee writers look wryly upon examples of their work reproduced in Havana magazines and newspapers, which are institutions printing, advertising and operated for commercial profit.

Indicates Thought Trend
Delegates to the Havana conference did not believe that the Cuban resolution would prosper, but the fact that such a resolution was offered was regarded as a trend of thought existing in some Latin American quarters. A resolution with absolutely contrary motives, proposed by the United States delegation to the conference, was given preliminary approval. It recommended revision of national copyright legislation by the various governments of the Americas and approval of an agreement for inter-American copyright protection.

Cuba is by no means the only country where disregard of an author's rights to his work is rampant. The practice is prevalent in many South American countries. On the other hand, there are many journalistic enterprises on the South American continent, which are exceedingly scrupulous in obtaining necessary permission to reprint any previously published matter, even though the countries' laws may not embrace penalizing provisions for such violations of ethical publishing practices.

U. S. Health Officials Warning That Flu Is Again On March

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Flu is on the march again. So health officials, mindful of the savage onslaught of the mysterious malady during the World-war, are keeping a wary eye on the situation.

The number of cases being reported to the United States Public Health service is running almost three times as high as a year ago when the winter wave developed into the most extensive epidemic since 1929. There were 2,305 new cases reported for the week ending Nov. 25, compared with 747 for the similar period last year.

If the influenza curve should rise at the rate it did last winter when a peak of 383,000 new cases for the four weeks ended Jan. 25, was reached, the outbreak probably would be the largest since 1920.

Earlier this year a few doctors and bacteriologists warned of the possibility of an epidemic similar in scope and severity to the great epidemic of 1918-1919. They said last winter's epidemic which traveled eastward might get a foothold among war-weakened European peoples and return in more virulent form to this country.

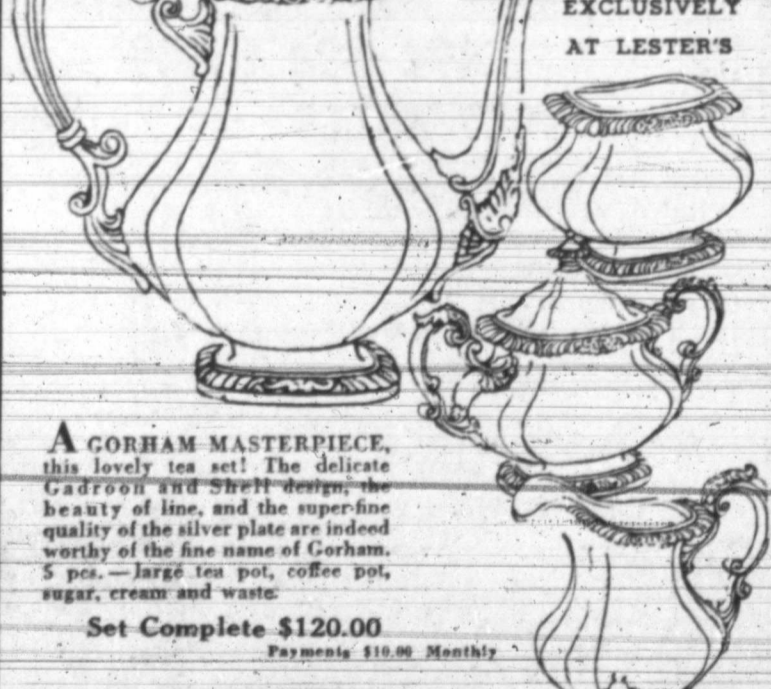

So far, however, there is no indication of anything hitting us comparable to the explosive World-war outbreak of the disease when between August, 1918, and June, 1919, there were an estimated 25,000,000 to 27,000,000 cases and more than 500,000 deaths from influenza and pneumonia in this country.

Outlook Is Brighter
No widespread outbreak has as yet developed in Europe. The cases in the United States still have been mild and the wave quite localized.

Since the year 1500, worldwide influenza of great violence has occurred about four times in each century. The 1918-1919 sweep was the first of this century.

NYA Students At Texas Tech Given High Scholastic Rating; Survey Is Conducted

BY MAXINE CONNER
NYA students as a whole are superior scholastically to non-NYA students at Texas Technological college, according to a survey made in the department of education. NYA students pass an average of one more hour per semester and have a grade point average of .43 per cent higher than the non-NYA group. They not only passed more hours but they also failed fewer hours.

Over a three-year period it was found that 61 per cent of those students aided were men and 39 per cent were women. This percentage is slightly in favor of the women. An average of 280 students a year has been employed by the program. Some of the students work for $15 a month and some for $10.

Fewer Freshmen Aided
There has been a slight decrease in the number of freshmen aided in the last few years. Juniors and seniors have been employed in greater numbers. NYA has eliminated much of the delay in finishing college by helping the students financially.

Agriculture students earned slightly more than $1 per month more than students in the other three divisions of the college, according to a survey made over a three-year period.

Since the beginning of the program approximately 37 per cent of the students employed were freshmen, 29 sophomores, 19 juniors, and 15 seniors.

Funds Are Cut
Up until the present year increasingly larger sums have been earned by the NYA students in all divisions of the college. Total expenditure at Tech for NYA last year was $44,495, and this year the allotment is $36,585 which shows a slight decrease.

The percentages employed by the divisions were: Agriculture 12 per cent; arts and science, 48 per cent; home economics, 14 per cent; and engineering 26 per cent. NYA assignments are made to the respective divisions of the college on a basis of enrollment of the preceding year.

Since the beginning of the program approximately 37 per cent of the students employed were freshmen, 29 sophomores, 19 juniors, and 15 seniors.

Up until the present year increasingly larger sums have been earned by the NYA students in all divisions of the college. Total expenditure at Tech for NYA last year was $44,495, and this year the allotment is $36,585 which shows a slight decrease.

Brother Of Lubbock Man Buried Tuesday

Hollis Kinard, 41, Orange county attorney since 1922 and brother of Ben Kinard, Lubbock cafe operator, was buried Tuesday in Orange, two days after death from an extended illness.

He had served three terms there as county attorney, three as district attorney and, at time of death, was a railroad attorney.

Two other brothers, Knox Kinard, principal of schools at Tereford, and Porter Kinard of Zavalla, and a sister of Larkin, survive.

The Love Of Pete

to look.

"Splendid game today, Laird," he said, holding out his hand. "Best single-handed job I've seen."

Winship had been quiet too long. "Well, folksies," he said ingratiatingly, "how's about a little touch? What'll you have, Laird—Scotch, rye, bourbon, sherry, beer, gin, or goat's milk? After that I'll ride with Steph here, I'd suggest anything but the last."

Pete was dubious but Winship insisted: "C'mon," he urged, "you can break rules this one night."

"All right," agreed Pete, still uneasy, "mix me something nice and soft."

"Right," said Winship. "Steph, lead me to that bar of yours, and I'll go to work. Hand will show you where you can clean up, Laird," he called.

Pete followed Rand upstairs while Stephanie and Winship retired to the recreation room. When they were safely out of hearing, Winship crushed her in his arms and kissed her warmly. "Nice work, baby," he said. "That auto crash was just what we needed."

"Don't blame that on me, darling," she replied, kissing him again. "That was unheeded and almost fatal. How's Fletcher?"

"I'm afraid he's done for," Winship answered.

She frowned but only for a minute. "The great one stole a kiss on the way over," she confessed. "He kisses like a football player."

"Never mind that. How's big stuff taking all this?"

"Baby," she smiled, "big stuff is a cinch. This may be easier and better than we figured."

Oil Industry Booms In Production, Consumption

Price Boosts Said Needed

(By The Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Dec. 3.—The oil industry entered the last month of the year at booming levels of production and consumption.

At the same time, speculation seemed as to the future course of the defense-aided expansion.

In Texas, the nation's largest producer of crude among the states, the state railroad commission, government oil regulatory agent was in disagreement over the pattern necessary to meet growing demand.

Price Boost Urged
Chairman Ernest O. Thompson, declaring production and storage statistics illustrated shockingly a tremendous uplift in consumption, had come out for immediate liberalization of allowances and a price increase to stimulate new discoveries.

Thompson's colleagues, Jerry Sadler and Olin Culberson, agreed a price increase was justified economically but dismissed the subject as not within commission jurisdiction.

As to production, they asserted they would order increases only when proper federal sources say a need for more crude of the types which are refined into high octane ratings for fighting equipment.

Thompson argued consumption had merely begun and that without immediately increased allowances and expedited discovery of new reserves demand for gasoline by next spring would disastrously outdistance production.

Thompson cited the federal petroleum coordinator's recent announcement of a program designed to increase output of 100,000 barrels of oil daily in excess of what it turned out at the superfuel, from 40,000 barrels daily to 120,000 barrels.

Eight new aviation gasoline plants were under construction and high priority ratings had been given 13 other proposed operations, five of them in Texas, which will contribute to more production of the high powered fuel.

Texas was producing more than 200,000 barrels of oil daily in excess of what it turned out at the same time last year.

Even so, Thompson, fresh from a tour of duty in the army, expressed the "billion" a larger increase was in order to meet and lubricate the machine of defense and to accommodate the related industrial boom.

Farm Sessions Will Be Held

Meetings to explain cotton quota marketing elections Dec. 13 are to be held in nine communities next week, according to announcement by Walter Y. Wells, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment administration here.

C. C. Johnson, county farm agent and Harvie D. Pool, his assistant, have agreed to attend the meetings and speak. R. L. Hooten, county farm bureau federation chairman, also has agreed to speak.

Hope For Large Turnout
On Dec. 13, said Wells, cotton producers will be asked to decide whether or not they want a cotton marketing quota in 1942. On the basis of this vote also will depend a cotton crop insurance.

Members of the county AAA committee Tuesday said they hoped for a large turnout of county producers at the election.

"Every farmer entitled to vote should go to the polls that day," members of the committee were quoted as declaring.

At the same meetings, plans for holding a community committee election Dec. 19 and a county committee election Dec. 20, will be discussed.

Schedule is as follows: Monday night, Slaton and Shallowater; Tuesday night, Wolforth and Idalou; Wednesday night, Monroe and Roosevelt; Thursday night, Beeton and Cooper; Friday night, Lubbock county court room.

Transient Workers Are Given Warning

Transient farm workers must obey the law or expect serious consequences, according to warnings given here Tuesday by Ralph Brock, county attorney, and G. V. Fatshe, county judge.

Precipitating the statement was the Monday thieving episode of two Mexican girls, 11 and 16 years old. When taken into custody the girls were carrying $38 worth of merchandise taken from a five-and-ten-cent store.

In addition they had in their possession merchandise identified as stolen from other stores, Brock said.

"We welcome transient laborers who come to this county to help in gathering the cotton crop and urge that they take their place as law-abiding citizens," Brock said.

"Those caught stealing and pilfering will be dealt with harshly, however. We do not intend to tolerate such practices of persons who expect to spend a brief time here and live off the innocent merchants."

Girls Sentenced
"Bootlegging" too, has been counted among complaints reaching our office.

By way of a help to law enforcement officials and to farmers themselves, the county attorney suggested every farmer obtain the license number of automobiles driven by transients. In that manner it will be possible to trace "fly-by-nights" who steal as they leave this area, he pointed out.

In the case of the juvenile girls, they were ordered committed to the state training school for girls at Gatesville until they are 21 years old.
