Formal Military Ball Is Rousing Success

SMSgt. Samuel F. Madison, NCOIC, fuels management branch at Reese AFB, was named as Reese AFB's outstanding NCO for 1968 to climax a highly successful formal military ball at the base NCO Open Mess. More than 200 persons attended the ball, the top enlisted social of the year.

The award of the plaque to Sergeant Madison drew a heavy round of applause from the crowd. The plaque was presented by Harlan A. Hodges, Col. USAF Retired, the regional director, Northwest Texas, Air Force Association, which sponsors the annual award made to the top NCO at Reese for the year. A host of Lubbock chapter of the AFA members attended the function including the chapter president Tom Ireland.

Judging Is Tough

In his presentation speech, Mr. Hodges explained that the judging was tough and he outlined some of the many accomplishments turned in by Sergeant Madison in determining him to be the winner. These included his devotion to duty throughout his 22 years of service, overseas service, medals and awards and his participation in civic and

Reese Career Advisor Gives Latest Benefits

By MSgt. Richard L. Elliott
Base Career Advisor

A hidden, but important, benefit in Air Force's latest reenlistment policy, which allows selected airmen to reenlist at the 30-month juncture of service, is that these airmen are actually adding only 2½ years to their current commitment.

Thus, an airman that elects this option is collecting a four-year bonus for what is really only 2½ years of additional service.

Take for example, a sergeant (E-4) who raises his hand for a four-year term at the 30-month point: if his variable reenlistment bonus (VRB) is a plus one he picks up $1,908 for his enlistment; a VRB of two earns him $2,862; a VRB of three picks up $3,816; and a VRB of four cashes in on a $4,770 bonus.

Not a bad deal for tacking on just a 2½ year addition to the initial enlistment.

There is, however, one drawback; quotas for the larger VRB bonuses are limited and going fast. Thus, those airmen here who have reached the 28 months of service mark and have been selected for reenlistment should contact the career information and counseling office in the east end of building T-121 or call extension 402, to determine if their career field has a quota remaining.

EARLY GRADUATION—Second Lt. Thomas J. Byrne (right) had an early graduation Tuesday in the wing commanders' office because of compassionate reasons. His wings were pinned on by his T-38 instructor pilot, Capt. Lewis M. Fant. Lieutenant Byrne's wife is due to have a baby on graduation day of class 69-03 tomorrow, and was given the early graduation in order that he could be with her. (USAF PHOTO)

FOR THE COMMANDER

Property Protection Is Everyone's Job

By Lt. Col. Bennett P. Browder
Base Executive Officer

During the Texas Revolution, circa 1836, so a story relates, a well-laden Army pack mule, dizzy from eating too much loco weed, wobbled off a bridge into a deep part of the Rio Grande River and lost his load. An astute supply sergeant executed a Report of Survey and relieved himself of liability for $13 million of missing government property.

Today the Report of Survey is still the correct instrument to be used by individuals to obtain relief from liability for government property which has become missing or damaged through no fault of the responsible individual. Judging from the heavy influx of Reports of Survey recently, it is evident that many people do not understand the system. Policy is established in AFM 177-111. All officers, airmen and civilian employees have property responsibility. It cannot be delegated. It applies regardless of duty assignment, at all levels of command and supervision. Further, pecuniary liability

Lt. Col. Browder (you pay) will be imposed if the loss, damage or destruction has resulted from deliberate unauthorized use, willful misconduct, or gross negligence of the individual. Gross negligence is the failure to exercise even a slight degree of care of the departure for the course of action to be expected of a reasonable man. Would any reasonable man leave his watch, diamond ring, expensive camera or a $20 bill in an unlocked automobile for even a few minutes? Certainly not. Would a reasonable man leave any pilferable and desirable personal possession on a table, coat rack, or wall peg all day or overnight in a room to which other people have access? Certainly not if he expected to find it when he returned. Would a reasonable man wait a year, a month or even several days before he reported the loss of a valuable possession to the security police? It is doubtful.

There is no question that parkas, jackets, head sets, hand tools etc. are also highly desirable and pilferable. Extra ordinary precautions to preclude their loss are therefore necessary and expected of any prudent or reasonable man. Anything less may fairly be termed negligent. If you are tempted to throw your parka or jacket in the back seat of a car while you have lunch, look at it again and visualize a crisp new $20 greenback. Treat it accordingly, it may save you money.

Added thought—did you know that negligent loss of government property may also be punishable under Article 108, Uniform Code of Military Justice?

Time Will Tell

Unsafe Drivers Live On Borrowed Time

(An AFPS Feature)

Judging from all the outward appearances, news reports and statistics available, there are still a great many servicemen and women — too many, in fact — who haven't gotten "the word."

What word? The one on driving safety.

That's right, driving safety. The thing you've been hearing about for years. The thing you've spent hours listening to lectures and seeing films about. Driving safety, the thing that — if you're lucky and it's gotten through to you — has helped keep you alive so you could be griping now about another article on it.

Maybe you've gotten the word and do drive defensively and intelligently. There are a lot of people who haven't. They are the ones who are listed as statistics. If they've managed to survive this long, they are probably the ones who are screeching up and down the highways in their souped-up coffins figuring they are "too cool," "too swift" to have anything happen to them.

Maybe it won't happen to them — maybe their indifferent, inconsiderate, dangerous antics behind the wheel of a car will only cause an accident, injuring or killing someone else.

Time will tell — and this is a good time of the year for automobile accidents. There are more hours of darkness; the weather is against you with rain, sleet and snow in many areas; windows are fogged due to temperature differences; people are in a big hurry to get inside, away from the cold or damp.

Into the middle of all this careens Harry Heavyfoot or Bob Blankbrain — unconcerned, unaware and unpredictable. They have watched the safe-driving movies, but they didn't see. They heard the safety lectures, but they didn't listen. They have read the articles, but they didn't comprehend. They are living on borrowed time.

If they're someplace now where they don't have a car, they'd do well to keep the word about safe driving tucked away in their head. It'd be pretty wild to make it all the way through 'Nam and then get zapped on a stateside interstate.

Stamp Out Possibility Of

Household Fires

(An ATCPS Editorial)

Below are a few tips to help you eliminate fire hazards in your home.

1. Clean out storage places. You will be surprised at how many flammable odds and ends are really useless. Get rid of them. If welfare agencies cannot use them, call the junkman.

2. Train your family not to put magazines, papers or clothing on radiators, heating units or near open fireplaces.

3. Do not use heating unit rooms for storage of anything flammable.

4. Do not allow paper lamp shades to come in contact with light bulbs. Remember that such things do not have to come in contact with flame to burn. They will catch fire simply because they are too close to heat too long.

5. Check your closets, attic and basement for castoff articles that would burn easily. They include such things as curtains, draperies, table cloths, old clothing, wicker or wooden furniture, rags and linoleum. Get rid of them.

6. Check the wiring system. Do not plug too many appliances into one single outlet and do replace worn cords on appliances.

7. Gasoline, benzene, naphtha and similar fluids should never be used or stored indoors. Keep such fluids in tightly closed metal containers outside your home.

8. Oily rags, such as those used to spread quick-drying liquids such as turpentine, paint thinners and some furniture polishes, should be stored in airtight metal containers outside the home.

9. Clean up the outside areas of your home. Leaves, paper and trash catch fire easily when a cigarette or match is carelessly dropped nearby.

10. Keep all matches, lighters, etc. out of the reach of children.

It's Almost Time To Give Thanks; Count Blessings

(An AFNS Editorial)

Airmen stationed around the world will join their fellow Americans Nov. 28 in giving thanks for blessings received during the past year. Since 1941, the nation has observed the fourth Thursday of each November as Thanksgiving Day.

Historically, this special day was established by the Pilgrims at Massachusetts Bay more than 300 years ago. They gathered to express their gratitude for the preservation of their community and for the harvests brought forth in the new land.

Since then Americans have united in giving thanks for their safety and well-being, even in times of turmoil. It was in the midst of the Civil War that President Lincoln proclaimed the first national Thanksgiving Day.

The proclamation said, "The year that is drawing toward its close has been filled with blessings and healthful skies . . . even in the midst of a civil war." President Lincoln invited his fellow countrymen to join with him in giving thanks.

In this traditional vein, airmen everywhere are invited to join fellow servicemen and countrymen in observing our national Thanksgiving Day. It's a special time for giving thanks for blessings received, and for renewing efforts to work toward a better world for all mankind.

Quote Of Note

(An AFNS Feature)

"My heritage began at birth; my responsibility began with my ability to judge right from wrong and will stop only when I die." (TSgt. Nathaniel Young, Edwards AFB, Calif., 1967 Freedoms Foundation Armed Forces Letter winner.)

Accidents May Prove To Be Heavy Burdens

(An AFNS Feature)

Just as the businessman is liable to the public in the operation of his business, so the head of a household is liable if the actions or negligence of any member of his household, including pets, cause bodily injury or property damage to others.

The head of the family may have this liability imposed on him if the milkman slips on Mary's roller skates; if Johnny hits the mailman with a sling shot; if Rover bites the newsboy; if mother's umbrella accidentally pokes out someone's eye while she is shopping downtown; if the maid gets an electric shock from a defective cord on the vacuum cleaner; or even if father slices a golf drive and injures another player.

The likelihood of all or any of these occurrences in a given household may not be great. However, the liability imposed by any one of them happening can involve a claim that can strain family finances to the limit for many years.

'Passing The Buck' Rampant; Rights Only Begin With Vote

By Chaplain (Captain)

Larry D. Mosley

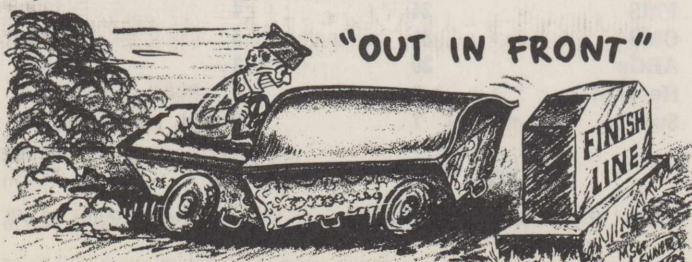

Will Rogers once said that there were three stages of American History: The passing of the Indian, the passing of the buffalo, and the passing of the buck. It would seem that we are at the height of this third stage, today — the passing of the buck, the shirking of our responsibilities.

Personal moral responsibility, parental responsibility, the many and varied responsibilities of citizenship — these have all fallen upon sorry times in America, today. And it should be abundantly obvious to all of us that the great American experiment in "government of the people, for the people and by the people" cannot succeed and flourish unless the people take seriously their sacred responsibilities. And we have not fulfilled our responsibilities to the nation when we have cast our ballots. That's an important part of them, but no president can solve the complex problems of America today by himself. He will need the prayers and support of honorable people at all levels of government.

So many people continue to clamor vociferously about their rights and their freedoms, and seldom give pause to consider our responsibilities which must undergird and perpetuate those rights and freedoms.

Therefore, let us assume our responsibilities, under God, in the home, in church and synagogue, in community and in our daily work that will keep our country strong so that it may flourish as the land of the free.

Outstanding Speaker

The principal speaker for the occasion was Lubbock orthodontist Dr. Jim Granberry, Mayor pro-tem of the City of Lubbock, and a former Air Force enlisted man himself. Dr. Granberry, who holds a long list of honors including outstanding young man of the year by the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce, spiced his speech with the humor that has gained him the reputation of one of the finest after-dinner speakers in the West Texas area.

Another highlight was a recitation by M. T. Kuykendall, a veteran of 58 years of active and retired service in his country, on the meaning of the colors in the flag.

Homesafe Plan For '69 Given

"Operation Homesafe," a massive safety program designed to prevent disabling injuries to Reese Air Force Base people and citizens of Lubbock County, opened here last week, in connection with the three-day Veteran's Day holiday.

Sponsored jointly by Lubbock's Citizen's Traffic Commission (CTC) and Reese safety officials, the program got a two-week head start at Reese because of concern for Air Force people during the Veteran's Day observance.

Air Force-wide, the program will be called "Holidays From Danger," but at Reese, because of the joint program with the CTC, the safety campaign will continue to be known as "Operation Homesafe."

Theme of this year's drive is "Our Holiday Prayer, Homesafe With Care."

In a meeting last week with safety representatives from all major divisions at Reese, Capt. Gene L. Sundeen, wing project officer noted that Reese people fold, handouts at the main gate during peak danger hours and periods, a scoreboard located in a prominent area on base and a safety display contest between the squadrons, will be used to encourage safety according to the captain.

A committee, headed by Bob Blon, president of the Citizen's Traffic Commission, will judge squadron displays with an award being presented to the winning organization Dec. 2.

Two items, still in the planning stages, could be of major benefit to Reese drivers. One idea being considered is a driver briefing area, complete with maps showing the best routes, a weather briefing and charts with suggested safe driving distances for those taking longer trips.

The other idea under consideration is to provide some type of vehicle safety inspections for Reese people planning trips during this period. Details on both items are being worked out by safety officials.

In connection with the inspection idea, Reese men and women will be urged to begin now in getting their state safety inspection decal.

A reminder from Captain Sundeen to the safety officials at the meeting was to caution people about drinking and driving, since at best this could lead to heavy fines, or worse, to tragedy on the highways. "Persons celebrating in the Open Messes," he observed, can have transportation home at no cost to them provided by requesting it from any of the club stewards.
