'Seal-coat related' budget amendment approved by Howard County Commissioners

Howard County Commissioners met Wednesday at the Howard County Courthouse. During their meeting, the commissioners approved transferring $262,000 from the 2017-2018 fiscal year budget to the 2018-2019 fiscal year budget to pay for "seal-coat related items."

At their meeting Wednesday afternoon, Howard County Commissioners approved a budget amendment of more than a quarter of a million dollars to continue a project from the 2017-2018 fiscal year.

Howard County Road Administrator Brian Klinksiek described the funds as being for "seal-coat related items." According to Klinksiek, the funds were budgeted in 2017-2018, and the item on Wednesday's agenda was simply to move the funds into the 2018-2019 budget so the project could continue.

"We have some funds that weren't used in the '17-'18 budget. I had a contract that we could not get completed within the time, and if we did that, we lose a significant portion of work that we had planned in Precinct 1," Klinksiek said. "It was for seal-coat related items, which is a little bit different than the seal coat project. It was $262,000."

In other business, commissioners voted to table action on a request from Delek US Holdings, the owner of the former Alon USA refinery in Big Spring, for a pipeline right-of-way on the old Howard County Airport land.

"They're wanting a 50-foot wide strip through the old airport to run a pipeline,"

While October is known for its spooky celebrations, it is also referred to nationally as Breast Cancer Awareness Month (BCAM), which is an annual international health campaign organized by major breast cancer charities every October to increase awareness of the disease. Their mission, along with raising awareness, is to raise funds for research into its cause, prevention, diagnosis, treatment and cure, and to express the importance of early screening to catch the disease as early as possible. The campaign also offers information and support to those affected by breast cancer.

Arrington Visits Big Spring High School to Honor Fallen Soldier

Special to the Herald

WASHINGTON - Today Congressman Jodey Arrington (TX-19) released the following statement after visiting Big Spring High School to honor fallen soldier and Big Spring graduate Specialist Robert James "RJ" Volker as part of the West Texas Warrior initiative. This was Congressman Arrington's second visit in a series of public ceremonies to honor post-9/11 fallen heroes from District 19.

"Each of us is eternally indebted to those who made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of our freedom," Arrington said. "It was my profound honor to be with the people of Big Spring today to pay tribute to a fallen hero, Specialist Robert James "RJ" Volker, and his family.

"We must always strive to be a nation worthy of those who laid down their lives for us. It is my hope that through the West Texas Warrior initiative, we can create a culture of honor and respect among our youth for those who serve in uniform by recognizing the fallen heroes of our region like RJ at high schools throughout District 19."

BACKGROUND:

Robert James "RJ" Volker was born and raised in Big Spring. He graduated from Big Spring High School in 2003.

After attending Universal Technical Institute in Houston for automotive collision repair in 2004, he worked at the Big Spring Collision Center until he enlisted in the United States Army in 2005, just three days after his younger brother, Jonathan, left for basic training for the United States Navy.

In 2006, RJ was killed in Baghdad, Iraq after suffering injuries from an improvised explosive device that detonated near his High Mobility Multipurpose Wheeled Vehicle (HMMWV).

Congressman Jodey Arrington is a member of the U.S. House of Representatives serving the Nineteenth Congressional District of Texas. He serves as a member of the House Agriculture Committee, House Budget Committee, Joint Select Committee on Budget and Appropriations Process Reform, and Chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Subcommittee on Economic Opportunity.

a teaching method. If you think about how you learned algebra. The teacher explained it - put it on the chalkboard. You get to go through some practice in class, and then also when you do your homework, as a way of learning. Well, it's a teaching method that we use, for, like, learning how to tie a square knot. In fact, it's a requirement for a Scout to teach another Scout how to tie a square knot, using the EDGE method.

Welch said the training session is open to the public.

"I think if somebody's interested, we'd be more than happy to have somebody come in off the street. We'd love to have anybody that might have some interest," he said. "All that we do is about interpersonal relationships and leadership development, so that's applicable in any situation. Work, or family, or anything else. We're always looking for volunteers. Somebody doesn't necessarily have to have a child to become a leader and work at our district-level activities. Things that take in Big Spring and Snyder, and pretty much everything in between."

Welch said the event is free, and includes lunch. In order to judge how many lunches will be required, those interested in attending should register by noon Friday. To register, or for more information, contact Gracie Quintela at 432-570-7601, or Welch at 940-390-5205.

Klinksiek said. "It's no different from any other pipeline right of way. It's just that we have recently decided that 50 feet may be a little excessive. Since we have a limited corridor, the space for those pipelines crossing in that runway gets tighter for each one that's done."

At recent meetings, commissioners have approved use of portions of the Airport land for construction of a shooting range and a model airplane flying club. Klinksiek said those uses of the Airport land were not a factor in commissioners' hesitancy to approve the Delek right-of-way.

"No. It doesn't interfere with any of that," he said.

Commissioners also:

- Decided to advertise and accept resumes for a new member on the 9-1-1 Communications District Board;
- Approved accepting deed in lieu of tax foreclosure on a plot of land in Coahoma, and ceding the land to the City of Coahoma, with the proviso that taxing entities including Howard County retain any mineral rights on the land. The property is located at 200 S. Adams in Coahoma;

- Approved the routine annual Indigent Defense Grant Resolution;

- Approved a jury selection plan for the District Court;

- Approved allowing District Clerk Colleen Barton to pay for travel expenses out of the Records Management Fund.

The Howard County Commissioners will meet next Wednesday, Oct. 17. For more information contact County Judge Kathryn Wiseman at 432-264-2202.

Sen. Ted Cruz, challenger Beto O'Rourke to hold 2nd debate

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Republican incumbent Ted Cruz and Democratic challenger Beto O'Rourke will take part in another hour-long debate as their U.S. Senate race nears Election Day.

The debate will be the second between the pair and will be televised at 8 p.m. Oct. 16 from KENS-TV to San Antonio viewers. It will also air live in 10 of the state's largest markets.

The topics are expected to focus on domestic and foreign policy issues.

Cruz and O'Rourke discussed domestic policy issues during a Sept. 21 debate at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. However, a scheduled debate last Saturday in Houston was canceled as Senate Republicans considered voting on Brett Kavanaugh's confirmation to the Supreme Court. That vote was delayed.

Houston man sentenced to 80 years in traffic deaths of 2

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man has been sentenced to 80 years in prison for killing a military veteran and a 6-year-old boy in separate traffic collisions he caused while under the influence of drugs.

The Harris County District Attorney's Office said in a statement that 38-year-old Blaine Boudreaux was sentenced Tuesday after a jury earlier found him guilty of murder.

Authorities say Boudreaux was under the influence of drugs in April 2015 when he crashed his pickup truck four times in two hours.

In one instance, Boudreaux struck a Vietnam veteran who was pushing a shopping cart while looking for scrap metal. Boudreaux later struck a car carrying the 6-year-old child, who was traveling home to Pasadena with his mother.

Authorities say Boudreaux has a history of driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Texas judge exonerates man wrongly imprisoned for 19 years

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Texas judge has signed an order that exonerates a man who spent 19 years in prison after being wrongly convicted of murder.

The Wednesday ruling means 44-year-old John Earl Nolley has been declared innocent in the 1996 slaying of Sharon McLane. The order also makes Nolley eligible for state compensation.

State District Judge Louis Sturns apologized to Nolley for the state's actions.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned Nolley's conviction in May, leading to Wednesday's ruling.

Nolley was freed in 2016 after a witness admitted he lied and a bloody palm print at the crime scene was linked to another person.

The witness who lied was a jailhouse informant. The case contributed to changes in Texas law that placed more controls on testimony provided by informants.

In this May 17, 2016 file photo, John Nolley smiles as he leaves the courtroom following his release from custody, at the 213th District Court, in Fort Worth, Texas.

Houston City Council moves to block robot brothel opening

By JUAN A. LOZANO
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston's City Council has changed a city ordinance in a move that would essentially stop a so-called robot brothel from opening.

A Canadian company had said it wants to open a "love dolls brothel" in Houston in which people would be able to use its human-like dolls on the premises.

But Houston's City Council on Wednesday unanimously approved a change to a city ordinance that regulates sexually-oriented businesses.

The change would ban individuals from having sex with an "anthropomorphic device," a device resembling a human being.

Houston City Council member Greg Travis said the proposed robot brothel is "not a good business for our city. We are not sin city."

The company, KinkyDolls, didn't immediately return emails seeking comment Wednesday. The company has previously opened such a business in Toronto.

Annie's Mailbox

Husband Wants to Wipe the Slate Clean

Dear Annie: I thought my husband and I had a great marriage -- until I looked on his phone and found text messages to another woman. I was crushed. I asked him about it, and he said that it was nothing and that there were only a few messages. When I checked our cellphone details, I was completely devastated to find that it had been going on for almost a year and there were almost 2,000 text messages during the past six months. When I talked to him about this and all the lies he had told me, he said he had lost his way and he was sorry and didn't want to lose me.

We started counseling, but he doesn't want to discuss the details of the text messages and did a factory reset on his phone so I can't see the messages. He said it was not a sexual affair, but his actions just don't convince me it was just text messages. Now he thinks we are fine and our marriage will go on, but I can't stop myself from thinking about what he may have done that I don't know about.

How can I ever trust him again? I don't know whether I can, because he told me so many lies. This was going on for almost a year. How can I believe that it wasn't sexual? I am trying to act as if we are OK, but inside I feel as if I am dying. Please help me to think this through. I need to figure out whether I should stay or go. I need some good advice. -- Lost in Love

Dear Lost in Love: I'm so sorry for the hurt you must be feeling. Your husband can't simply reset your marriage as he did his phone. It seems he expects that as long as he apologizes and stops talking to this woman, everything should go back to the way it was before he decided to have an affair. And it was an affair -- if not a physical one, then an emotional one. Tell him that if you're ever going to move past this, you need complete candor and vulnerability from him. No more obfuscating the truth, changing the subject or destroying the evidence. Anything short of that would be placing a Band-Aid on a deep puncture wound, and the marriage would never heal.

Dear Annie: I am a regular reader of your column but was frankly dismayed at your answer recently to someone whose adult brother was behaving heartlessly toward his mother.

Our son has shown no interest in us for a long time unless he needs money. We, like the mother in the letter, are grieving over this behavior. When he was growing up, we were generous and loving parents. Do parents make mistakes raising their children? Of course they do. But does that give their children an excuse to abandon them as this young man apparently has and as my son has also done?

I was always close to my parents, even after getting married and having a family, calling and visiting frequently even though they lived far away. Anytime my dad or mom was in the hospital, I was there, unlike the young man in this letter. My parents are gone now, and I have no regrets about how I treated them.

There is absolutely no excuse for this kind of behavior from a child. -- Another Mother in Pain

Dear Another Mother: I'm so sorry you're going through this. I'm printing your letter with the hope that it stirs some adult children to pick up the phone and call their parents.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Courage Moon

There's a way to interact with people without necessarily agreeing with them, belonging to their clubs, subscribing to their ideologies and the like. It's called tolerance. It's what the world needs more of, and not so hard to come by now either. The Leo moon rules the heart, which is where courage lives. Don't be afraid of every little way we differ.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If we thought it happened a certain way and it happened another way instead, that will matter very little today. What matters is what works. Do what works even if it doesn't make sense.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your giving nature is obvious, but what's not so obvious is that the one who most needs it today is you. Be generous to yourself. If you're not, the rest will be robbed of your generosity, too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The voice of higher morality gets fainter every time it goes unheeded.

Strong people do what's right even when they don't feel like it and it becomes easier and easier for them to do so with every repetition of the right thing.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Self-image is so tricky, and much deeper than an opinion you have about your mirror reflection. Others see you in a more favorable light than you see yourself today. If only you could know your own beauty.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Strangers rarely sing together. That's why it's so powerful when it happens -- a reinforcement of our shared humanity. No other creature has on earth has a voice so complex. Enjoy yours today. It will be your signature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Avoid accidentally giving your power away, for instance by letting someone else handle what you really should be handling yourself. Or by asking for permission when you don't need it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). There once existed a sense of neighborliness that has been since replaced with aggressive anonymity. Meeting strangers is important to your sense of community and overall trust in society. Where can you go for this to happen?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There's a psychological effect going on in your life and it's creating a certain result. The question is not whether or not beliefs make a difference. They clearly do. The question is how can you make this work for you?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The ideas that won't let go of you? Share them. They matter.

They may seem random, personal, too whimsical to likely connect with many of the types of people you know... share them anyway. They matter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When you pursue your own enjoyment, your friends will get some, too. This may come in the form of a game, or some intellectually stimulating entertainment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Your heart speaks a language that sometimes you can translate, and sometimes you can't. All will not be revealed in time, but at least you can appreciate a good mystery.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). While attempting to make a personal connection, don't forget that one of the most attractive qualities a person can have is the ability to make other people feel attractive.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 4). One of your great pleasures this solar return will be in connecting the people you know with one another and watching what comes of it -- often a blessing that returns full circle back to you. More highlights include a secret you're honored to know before others, and a very lucrative way to apply your education. Scorpio and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 4, 38, 22, 12, 2.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION: "I'm a Leo. I read my horoscope almost daily and I think it really is quite accurate for me. People have asked me what my rising sign is, and I never admitted before that I don't know what that even means. Is Leo my rising sign?"

Leo is your sun sign, also referred to as your birth sign, natal sign or simply your sign. Your rising sign is different; it is the astrological sign rising on the eastern horizon at the time of your birth. Figuring out what your rising sign requires that you know the exact time and location of your birth. Whereas the sun sign determines how you perceive yourself, your rising sign determines how others perceive you. It is your personality, in essence -- how you look, and how you impress others. This is the way the world sees you. If your rising sign and sun sign are the same, you have few personality conflicts, as your outer and inner natures are similar. There are many free online tools and apps that will determine your rising sign from your exact birthday time and place, just type "find my rising sign" into the search engine.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: With her "Vampire Chronicles" series, Anne Rice created the paradigm against which all subsequent vampire stories were measured. Rice is among the most widely read authors in modern history having sold over 100 million copies. This literary Libra has both Mercury (communication) and Venus (love) in Scorpio, the sign of mystery, intrigue, transformation, death and rebirth.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Opening lead — king of clubs.
This deal occurred in a match between Poland and France in the final of the 1984 World Team Olympiad. It illustrates the important role judgment and instinct can play when there is no scientific way of determining what to do in a difficult situation.

When a Polish pair held the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown. Following West's leap to five clubs, North jumped to six spades, gambling that his partner had at most one club loser and at least one acc. South's actual hand vindicated North's judgment, and Poland scored 1,430 points.

At the second table, where a French pair were North-South, West likewise jumped to five clubs. Here, too, the French North came to the same conclusion as his Polish counterpart and bid six spades.

But at this table, the Polish West now displayed excellent judgment of his own. After his partner and South passed, he decided to trust his opponents, and, with the vulnerability in his favor, he bid seven clubs. North doubled, and West went down five. But the 900-point loss (which would be 1,100 at today's scoring), combined with the outcome at the other table, yielded a net gain of 530 points — 11 IMPs — for Poland.

Of course, if South had held two clubs and East one — certainly a real possibility — the slam would not have been made. In that case, the Poles would have suffered a net loss of 1,000 points — 14 IMPs.

West's final action was also strictly a matter of judgment, and in the actual case the Polish West proved to be right. Usually, a player who pre-empts does not bid again, but the Polish West here decided to exercise his independent judgment.

The Poles had the edge in this department on a substantial number of other deals, and as a result easily defeated the French to take the 1984 world title.

Missouri down to 1 abortion clinic amid legal battle

By SUMMER BALLENTINE

Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — Missouri is down to one clinic providing abortions Wednesday, after the only other clinic in the state that performs the procedure failed to adhere to new state requirements and its license expired.

The Columbia clinic's abortion license expired Tuesday, Planned Parenthood Great Plains spokeswoman Emily Miller said.

Federal appeals court judges also ruled last month that Missouri can enforce a requirement that doctors must have admitting privileges at nearby hospitals before they can perform abortions. The judges issued a mandate Monday for that rule to officially take effect.

The Columbia Planned Parenthood clinic has been unable to secure physician privileges or find a doctor with those privileges after a panel of medical staff at University of Missouri Health Care voted to stop offering those privileges altogether in 2015 amid a Republican-led legislative investigation on abortion in the state.

Have astronomers found 1st moon outside our solar system?

By MARCIA DUNN

AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Astronomers may have found the first moon outside our solar system, a gas behemoth the size of Neptune.

Plenty of planets exist beyond our solar system, but a moon around one of those worlds has yet to be confirmed. Two Columbia University researchers presented their tantalizing evidence for a moon Wednesday.

The potential moon would be considerably larger than Earth — about the size of Neptune or Uranus. The planet it orbits is as big as mammoth Jupiter. This apparent super-size pairing of a gaseous moon and planet is 8,000 light-years away.

Researchers Alex Teachey and David Kipping evaluated 284 planets outside our solar system that had already been discovered by NASA's Kepler Space Telescope. Only one planet held promise for hosting a moon, one around the star known as Kepler-1625, which is about the size of our sun but older.

So last October, the pair directed the Hubble Space Telescope at the star in an attempt to verify — or rule out — the possibility of a moon orbiting the planet Kepler-1625b. They were on the lookout for a second temporary dimming of starlight. The main dip in stel-

This illustration provided by Dan Durda shows the exoplanet Kepler-1625b with a hypothesized moon. On Thursday, Oct. 4, 2018, two Columbia University researchers reported their results that the potential exomoon would be the size of Neptune or Uranus. The exoplanet, about 8,000 light-years away, is as big as Jupiter.

lar brightness would be the planet itself crossing in front of its star. Another dip could well be a moon — known as an exomoon outside our solar system.

The more powerful and precise Hubble telescope detected a second and smaller decrease in starlight 3 1/2 hours after the planet passed in front of the star — "like a dog following its owner on a leash," as Kipping put it. The observation period, however, ended before the moon could complete its transit. That's why the astronomers need another look with Hubble, hopefully next spring.

Despite the evidence, Teachey stressed "we are urging caution here." "The first exomoon is obviously an extraordinary claim and it requires extraordinary evidence," Teachey said. "Furthermore, the size we've calculated for this moon, about the size of Neptune, has hardly been anticipated and so that, too, is reason to be careful here."

He added: "We're not cracking open Champagne bottles just yet on this one."

If indeed a moon, it would be about 2 million miles (3 million kilometers) from its planet and appear twice as big in its sky, as the moon does in ours. The astronomers are uncertain how this potential moon might have formed, given its size.

US terminates 1955 treaty with Iran after UN court ruling

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo briefs reporters at the State Department in Washington, Wednesday, Oct. 3, 2018.

By MATTHEW LEE

AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — In response to a U.N. court order that the U.S. lift sanctions on Iran, the Trump administration said Wednesday it was terminating a decades-old treaty affirming friendly relations between the two countries. The largely symbolic gesture highlights deteriorating relations between Washington and Tehran.

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said withdrawing from the 1955 Treaty of Amity was long overdue and followed Iran "groundlessly" bringing a complaint with the International Court of Justice challenging U.S. sanctions on the basis that they were a violation of the pact.

Meanwhile, national security adviser John Bolton said the administration also was pulling out of an amendment to the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations that Iran or others, notably the Palestinians, could use to sue the U.S. at The Hague-based tribunal. Bolton told reporters at the White House that the provision violates U.S. sovereignty.

"The United States will not sit idly by as baseless politicized claims are brought against us," Bolton said. He cited a case brought to the court by the "so-called state of Palestine" challenging the move of the U.S. Embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem as the main reason for withdrawing.

Bolton, who last month unleashed a torrent of criticism against the International Criminal Court, noted that previous Republican administrations had pulled out of various international agreements and bodies over "politicized cases." He said the administration would review all accords that might subject the U.S. to prosecution by international courts or panels.

Earlier, Pompeo denounced the Iranian case before the U.N. court as "meritless" and said the Treaty of Amity was meaningless and absurd.

"The Iranians have been ignoring it for an awfully long time, we ought to have pulled out of it decades ago," he told reporters at the State Department.

The little-known treaty with Iran was among numerous such ones signed in the wake of World War II as the Truman and Eisenhower administrations tried to assemble a coalition of nations to counter the Soviet Union. Like many of the treaties, this one was aimed at encouraging closer economic relations and regulating diplomatic and consular ties.

Its first article reads: "There shall be firm and enduring peace and sincere friendship between the United States of America and Iran."

The treaty survived the 1979 overthrow of the Shah in Iran's Islamic revolution and the subsequent hostage crisis that crippled American-Iranian relations for decades.

But amid a broader push to assert U.S. sovereignty in the international arena and after pulling out of the Iran nuclear deal this year, the administration determined that the court case made the treaty irrelevant.

Lawsuit accuses Facebook of enabling human traffickers

By JUAN A. LOZANO

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A human trafficking survivor from Texas sued Facebook this week, alleging the social media platform provides human traffickers an unrestricted way to "stalk, exploit, recruit, groom ... and extort children into the sex trade."

The lawsuit was filed Monday in Houston against Facebook, the shuttered classifieds site Backpage.com and the owners of two Houston hotels.

The suit seeks at least $1 million in damages on behalf of a woman identified as "Jane Doe," who was 15 years old when she was sexually assaulted in 2012 after being allegedly targeted and recruited by a sex trafficker on Facebook.

Facebook did not immediately return an email seeking comment on Tuesday. An attorney for Dallas-based Backpage.com didn't immediately return a phone call.

According to the lawsuit, Facebook should be held liable for the conduct of sex traffickers because the social media site has become the "first point of contact between sex traffickers and these children. Facebook not only provides an unrestricted platform for these sex traffickers to target children, but it also cloaks the traffickers with credibility."

Annie McAdams, an attorney for the woman who filed the suit, said her client was befriended by another Facebook user who gained her trust and promised her a job as a model.

But, McAdams said, the other person forced her into sex trafficking within hours of meeting her. She was raped and beaten by people who had paid the trafficker, the attorney said.

McAdams alleged Facebook has not done enough to ensure that users aren't able to hide their identities from unsuspecting minors who may be targets of traffickers or to warn minors of the dangers posed by traffickers and how they can operate online.

"It was not just because a pimp did something that Jane Doe was trafficked. That pimp is not able to traffic Jane Doe unless Facebook allowed him access to her," McAdams said.

The lawsuit comes after President Donald Trump in April signed a new law aimed at curbing sex trafficking. The law weakens a legal shield for online services that host abusive content, including sex trafficking.

Forsan's Fab Girls Return

By Haley Patterson

FISD Journalist

Forsan's Fab Girls are back in action. F.A.B. stands for "feed a buffalo", and is a tradition that started after a few football mothers got together to figure out a way to feed their players. The tradition was thought to have ended last year, but is now being brought back after the varsity cheerleaders decided it was something they wanted to continue.

"The girls have a meeting every week that decided which football player you get," said leader of the Fab Girls, senior Macey Evans. "Then you go to your local store and buy them their favorite snacks or ingredients to bake goodies. Afterwards, you package their snacks and write them a note about the football game."

The special packages are delivered on Friday, game day, and helps with the players' moral.

"I love being a Fab Girl. It gives the football players a little good luck present before they get out on the field," said sophomore fab girl, Hannah Williams. "It also helps me by allowing me to do a good deed and by spending my money and time on someone else each week."

If you are interested in joining the Fab Girls and want to show the football team your support, please see Macey Evans for more information.

This week's ongoing:

Forsan's yearbook staff is particularly busy this week due to school pictures. Elementary students were able to knock their portraits out on Tuesday, but the Jr. High and High School pictures are scheduled for this Thursday.

The Forsan Buffalo Marching Band will compete this Wednesday in their Pre-UIL Marching Contest. This year's contest will be held at Ratliff Stadium. We are rooting for you, go Buffs!

Academic Star Student of the Week Micah Worley, Coahoma High School

Micah is an outstanding student leader at Coahoma High School. She is not only the president of the Coahoma FFA chapter, but also the President of the El Rancho District FFA. She serves as a drum major for the CHS Big Red Band. She is also the President of the National Honor Society and the Vice President of Area 2 FFA.

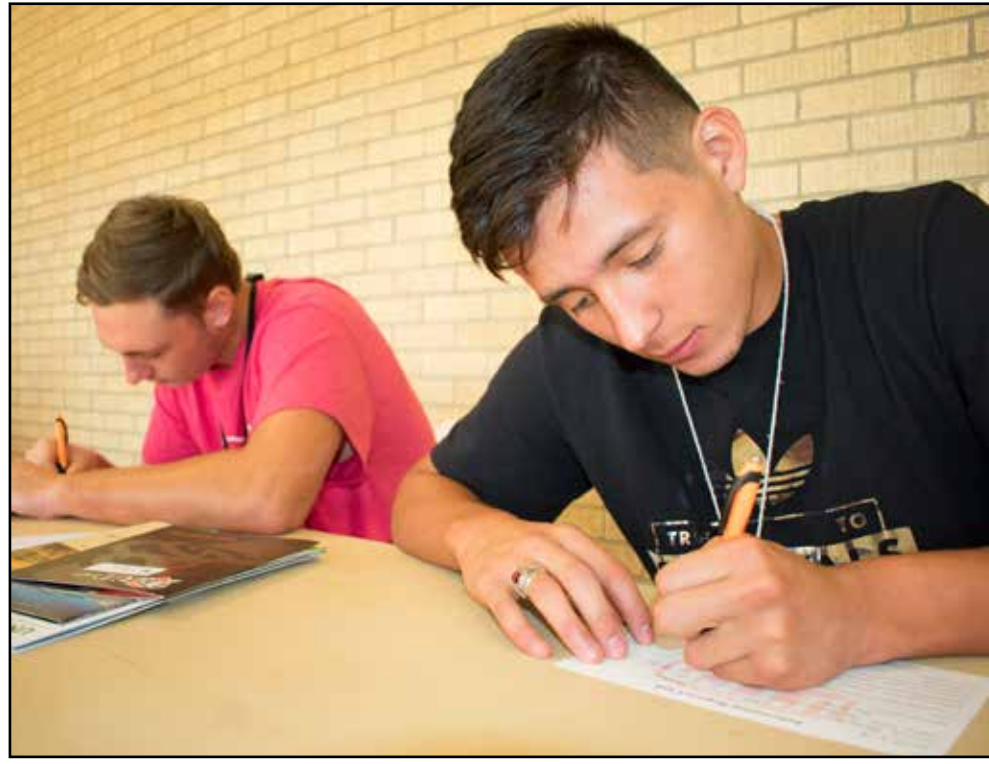

Last year, she and her team were state finalist for FFA Radio Broadcasting contest, and Micah will attend the national FFA convention as a delegate later this month. Her sophomore and junior years, Micah was cheer co-captain of the varsity cheerleading squad.

She is the daughter of Coy and Tabitha Worley. Following graduation, Micah plans to attend Texas A&M University.

Congratulations, Micah!

FRIDAY NIGHT UNDER THE LIGHTS

High School Football In Howard County

Steers host Eagles from the North for Homecoming

By JORDAN PARR
Sports Editor

Coming off a tough loss to Wall last week the Steers (2-3) will face their stiffest competition of the year this Friday for homecoming against the undefeated 5-0 Canyon Eagles. The Eagles enter this weeks matchup following a lopsided 55-6 route of Borger last Friday in Canyon. Canyon has put up big numbers all year and had some impressive wins over some good teams so far this year. The Eagles are averaging a staggering 46 points per game on offense while only allowing 20 points per game over their first five contests on defense this season. That said, Canyon has only played one team with a winning record so far this year so those numbers may very well be inflated.

On the other hand the Steers have only played two teams with losing records and won both of those matchups decisively. Beating Sweetwater (0-5) 33-7 and Pecos (1-4) 39-20 respectively. Big Spring has taken on a very tough pre-district schedule and they have done so intentionally to prepare them for the district games that are now just right around the corner. Taking on this very talented Canyon team for their second to last pre-district game should be a great measuring stick for where they are as a team and how far they have come from week one till now. "We wanted to get a good look from a good team that resembles what Andrews likes to do before we start our district games" said head coach Mitch McLemore. "They are a really solid team and they do a lot of things very similar to teams we will face in district."

Their quarterback is a great duel threat athlete and will give us a really good look defensively" said defensive coordinator Cannon McWilliams.

Offensively the Steers have really shown a lot of balance especially over the past two weeks. However, that balance has not led to scores consistently enough to give Big Spring a true identity as an offensive unit.

Bulldogs get ready for district as they head into bye week

The Bulldogs head into a bye week this week coming off another heart-breaking last minute loss to Iraan last Friday. Coahoma has suffered two closing second losses in their last three games to drop to 2-3 on the season as they prepare for district play. With a failed two point conversion that would have given them the win in the closing minutes against Wink three weeks ago and a completed pass that left them literally inches short of the goal line as time ran out last week versus Iraan, the Bulldogs could have just as easily been a 4-1 team rather than 2-3 headed into district competition next week. Those tough losses and the great second half comebacks that led up to those two close finishes are character building games that give the Bulldogs some great in game situations from which they can learn and build as a team moving forward. The bye week this week should give Coahoma a chance to get healthy and get there full compliment of players back and ready to start their push for the playoffs in the very competitive district 2-3A.

Offensively the Bulldogs have been fantastic so far this season averaging 31 points and 380 yards of total offense per game so far this year. With a dominant ground game that has racked up an average of 287 yards per contest leading the way for the explosive Coahoma offense, the Bulldogs are able to control the tempo and the time of possession against most teams the face. Quarterback Zack Schneider leads the vaunted rushing attack with 896 yards rushing on 106 carries for an impressive 8.45 yards per carry average.

Schneider also leads the team in rushing touchdowns with 16 house calls already this season. Coahoma's running-backs Isaac Murillo and Brysen Kerby have added to the Bulldogs' dominating run game as well. Murillo has carried the ball 51 times for 361 yards and 5 touchdowns with an outstanding 7 yard per carry average as Coahoma's primary back this season.

The Buffs gear up for another tough test against Wink

By JORDAN PARR
Sports Editor

Coming off their best complete game of the season last week in a tough last minute loss to Reagan County, the Buffs (0-5) welcome in the 4-1 Wink Wildcats this week to close out their pre-district schedule with yet another stiff test. Wink enters Friday night's matchup with Forsan following a huge 55-6 victory over New Home last week for their fourth straight victory. The Wildcats bring a high powered balanced offensive attack into the game. Averaging 31 points and 370 all purpose yards per game this season, Wink has the ability to put up points on both the ground and through the air. Led by star quarterback Nick Gray, who averages 172 passing yards per game, with major contributions from stand-out running-back Kaneon Baker, averaging 112 rushing yards per game, and dangerous wide-receiver Wade Halterman, who averages 117 receiving yards per game, the Wildcats are a three headed monster that the Buffs will have to play their best team defense to contain.

Offensively the Buffs are starting to find their identity with first year starting quarterback Kobe Richardson making big strides each week in his development and play at the position. With Richardson coming into his own the rest of the offensive unit really started to gel last week too and put together some really impressive sustained drives against a very good Reagan County team. Forsan has struggled at times to get things going on the ground but the Buffs have done a good job of maintaining balance and keeping defenses honest, especially against the Owls last week. The Buffs are averaging 16 points and 217 total yards of offense per game so far this season. While those numbers may not impress, this young Forsan team has played some really stout defensive units this year and as their line play continues to improve week after week, look for those numbers to jump up as well.

STEERS

Averaging just 22 points per game so far this year while putting up over 300 yards of total offense per game, it is clear that the offense can move the ball up and down the field but have struggled to put the ball across the goal line once they get inside the red-zone. "We are still trying to find and solidify our identity as an offense. We have the weapons and have played really good in spots this year, but we have yet to build the chemistry and comfort needed to really say 'this is who we are' as a unit up to this point" said offensive coordinator Tony Cortez. "We have really worked on getting some of our playmakers in better positions this week and keeping our tempo where we want it to be as an offense. We believe that we have the ability to really create some problems for teams in the up tempo passing game and that's what we are trying to build our identity around moving forward" said Cortez.

Defensively Big Spring has been a team defined by sustained solid defense interrupted by huge splash plays by the opposition. The Steers have given up 25 points per game this season but a majority of those points have come off of big plays. Very rarely has a team put together a long sustained scoring drive against Big Spring this season which bodes well for the Steers' defense as they move forward. "We just have to work on cutting out the big plays and keeping things in front of us. A lot of that is on us as a coaching staff, we have to make sure we have our kids in good position and keep things simple schematically so they can play fast without having to think so much" said defensive coordinator Cannon McWilliams. "If we can limit the big splash plays, we have a really solid defensive unit and can make it really tough for teams to execute what they want to do against us" said McWilliams.

All-in-all Big Springs' match-up against the Eagles this week should be a perfect test and chance for the Steers to really get a good look at where they stand as a team and what they need to improve on as they get closer to their district schedule. If Big Spring can find a way to put together some sustained scoring drives and cut down on the big plays on defense they have a good chance to play spoiler and hand the Eagles their first loss of the season. "We are really proud of how hard our kids have fought all year. If we can clean up some of our mistakes and execute the way we are capable then we know we have the ability to beat anyone we face" said head coach Mitch McLemore.

The Steers and the Eagles are set to kickoff at 7:00 p.m. this Friday at Memorial Stadium. Come celebrate homecoming with the entire Steer Nation family and let's show this team we are behind them all the way!

Kerby has played well in relief of Murillo chewing up 131 yards on 20 carries for a 6.5 yard per carry average to round out the multiple threat run game of the Bulldogs.

The one troubling stat for Coahoma as they head into a bye week is their passing game. With only 464 yards through the air and 9 interceptions to only 1 touchdown, the Bulldogs risk being one dimensional headed into a district with some stout defenses. That said, there is little doubt that head coach Chris Joslin has yet to show his full hand offensively this season. If anyone is aware of the Bulldogs lack of production in the passing game, coach Joslin and his star quarterback certainly are. I expect to see some really innovative wrinkles and schemes to help get Schneider on track through the air once district begins.

Defensively the Bulldogs have allowed 29 points per game so far this season. Though that number seems high, Coahoma has faced some really talented offensive teams and most of those points have come in the first half against the Bulldogs. Each week Coahoma has given up some points to start the game but have made some great halftime adjustments and limited their opponents in the second half. Their ability to identify and correct how their defense is being attacked at the half has afforded them and their offense the opportunity to make some great second half comebacks already this year. With a full extra week to prepare and install their game plan this week for Idalou, along with the return of defensive lineman Jonathon Schneider to their front, look for the Bulldogs to get some stops early and try to take control of the game from the onset.

Zack Schneider is a leader on the Coahoma defense as well with 47 tackles and 1 interception from the safety position. Up front outstanding defensive end Keegan Dobbs leads the way with 36 tackles, 5 tackles for a loss, 6 sacks and 1 fumble recovery. Gaige Hill, Joe Manning, Avry Burgans and Alek Duenes have each played a key role and contributed big plays for the Bulldogs' defense this year too. This week should be a great opportunity for the coaches and players to all get on the same page and really put together a great plan of attack for their district opener against Idalou.

Wink's defense has allowed 28 points per game this season, so there are definitely opportunities to take advantage of for the Buffs offense this week. With the improved overall team play by Forsan last week, look for the Buffs to exploit some of those opportunities and give the Wildcats trouble this Friday.

Defensively Forsan has played really well in spots but given up a lot of big plays down the field at times. Against this powerful, multidimensional offense of Wink's the Buffs are going to have to put together their best complete game of the year if the want to slow down the Wildcats. If standout defensive lineman Caden Williams can make some plays in the run game and get the defensive front to reset the line of scrimmage, then the Buffs have a chance of making Wink one dimensional and forcing them to go to the air early and often. Although the Wildcats are a very dangerous passing team, if Forsan can force them to go to the air it gives the Buffs the opportunity to create turnovers and make splash plays on the defensive side of the ball.

Friday's game looks to be yet another big test for Forsan as they close out their grueling pre-district schedule this week. Tested time and again, game after game this pre-district with tough teams seemingly every week to start the season. The Buffs have really come together as a true battle tested unit who play with a tremendous amount of heart and unity. Their toughness has been on display all year and as district approaches there doesn't seem to be a challenge this young team isn't ready to face.

"Our kids fight hard till the end every game and last week we really took a step in the right direction and put together a solid game for all four quarters. We had great leadership from our seniors last week and if we can play with that kind of heart and effort going forward we can definitely win some football games. That said, some of our young players really stepped up and grew up last week. We feel like they developed that belief in themselves that they can play at this level and really compete with anybody they line up against. With that belief in themselves along with the effort and heart these kids have we are definitely on the right track as we prepare for district" said head coach Jason Phillips.

The Buffs and the Wildcats are set to kickoff at 7:30 p.m. this Friday at Forsan. So come out this Friday night and show this Buffs' team that we are behind them!
