BSHS grad receives top A&M engineering award

By ROGER CLINE
 Staff Writer

The top undergrad mechanical engineering student at Texas A&M University is a Big Spring High School graduate.

2014 BSHS grad Tyler Bryan recently received A&M's Edwin S. Holdredge Award, presented annually to a senior student in mechanical engineering with the highest grade point average in the class. At a school as big as Texas A&M, there were, of course, several mechanical engineering students with 4.0 GPAs, so the tie was broken based on the resumes of the applicants.

"This award is open to students in the mechanical engineering department who have received top marks in their class. Out of those people who are at the top of their class, you have to apply via a resume process," Tyler said. "I'm going to say something that made me stand out was my involvement both in the school and extra-curricular. In the school, I had studied abroad, and extra-curricularly, I had done service projects in children's homes. So I guess the mixture of those two put me in front."

A look at the troops being sent to US-Mexico border

Pedestrians pass members of the U.S. military working to place razor wire along the U.S.-Mexico border on the McAllen-Hidalgo International Bridge, Friday, Nov. 2, 2018, in McAllen, Texas.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Donald Trump ordered troops to the border in response to a caravan of migrants slowly making its way through Mexico toward the United States and still about 900 miles away, with many dropping out. Here's what we know so far about the military's mission:

WHAT TROOPS ARE INVOLVED?

More than 7,000 active duty troops have been told to deploy to Texas, Arizona and California. They are a mix of forces, including military police, an assault helicopter battalion, various communications, medical and headquarters units, combat engineers, planners and public affairs units.

As of Friday, one week after the Pentagon acknowledged that Defense Secretary Jim Mattis had approved a Department of Homeland Security request for military support at the border, the troop deployment was still unfolding, with about 3,500 at staging bases in the Southwest. Of those, about 2,250 active duty troops are at staging bases in Texas, about 1,100 Marines are at Camp Pendleton in California and fewer than 200 are in Arizona. About 100 troops are actually on the border, at the port crossing near McAllen, Texas.

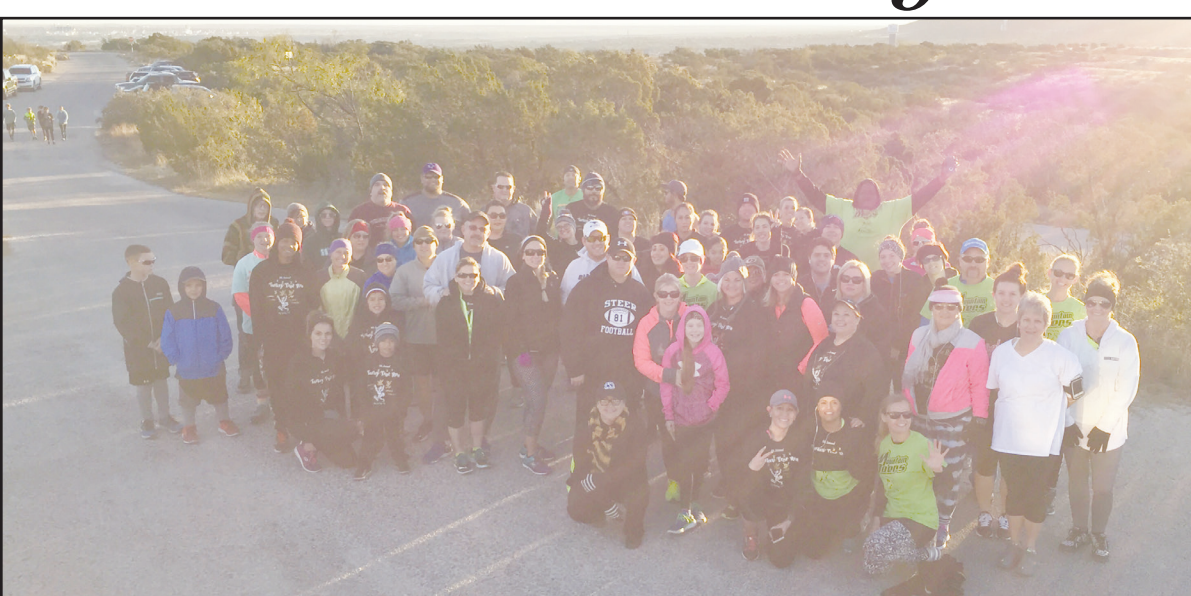

Most of the troops are being used to facilitate the movement of border patrol agents, house them, feed them and provide some of their protection.

WHAT IS THEIR ROLE ON THE BORDER?

The Pentagon is adamant that active duty troops will not do law enforcement, which they are forbidden from doing under the Posse Comitatus Act in the Constitution. Troops can't

BSHS Principal Mike Ritchey said he wasn't surprised by the award. "Having completed successfully Dr. Seghier's highly rigorous AP Physics, AP Calculus AB, and AP Calculus BC courses, and coupled with his impeccable work ethic, we knew Tyler would excel in A&M's Mechanical Engineering program and against the best engineering prospects in the state," Ritchey said. "We are so proud for Tyler." Tyler credited his background in Big Spring with a big part of his success. "It felt good, because of the foundations laid at Big Spring High School through Dr. Seghier's AP classes, Mr. Horton's honors classes, Mrs. Hewitt, and all the work ethic they instilled in me my junior and senior years," he said. "I feel like this award was a climax of all the work that was put in learning and pursuing this degree." Dr. Mo Seghier teaches AP physics and calculus at BSHS; Jordan Horton teaches honors and AP chemistry and biology, and Lori Hewitt, since retired, taught English at the school.

arrest people at the border. Their main job will be to support the Border Patrol. This means the military will transport border patrol agents to and along the border, help them erect additional vehicle barriers and fencing along the border, assist them with communications and provide some security for border agent camps. The military also will provide the border patrol agents with medical care, pre-packaged meals, and temporary housing. WILL TROOPS BE ARMED? Yes, many of them will be, mainly for self-protection. Military police at the border will be armed, although they will have non-lethal options for dealing with unexpected conflict. Pentagon officials say they are planning for a worst-case scenario of violence that could force soldiers to rely on their training to make split-second decisions to defend themselves or civilians. MPs might, for example, be dispatched to provide armed security for military engineers placing barricades at locations where there are no border patrol agents to provide protection.

One day after Trump suggested soldiers on the southwest border may open fire if migrants throw rocks at them, he insisted Friday that he meant that rock-throwers would be arrested. "I didn't say 'shoot,'" he told reporters at the White House. Either way, his scenario of violence captures in a nutshell the risk of using active duty troops for domestic security: Their mission does not include confronting migrants, but some may be unable to avoid it. The commander in charge of the military operation, Air Force Gen. Terrence O'Shaughnessy, head of U.S. Northern Command, said earlier this week that handling migrants will be primarily the job of the Customs and Border Protection agency. But he acknowledged "there could be incidental interaction" between migrants and soldiers. In light of that possibility, the soldiers "are going to be fully trained in how to do that," he said. Lt. Col. Jamie Davis, a Pentagon spokesman, said the military will not disclose details of its rules on the use of force. DOES CONGRESS SUPPORT THIS MISSION? With members of Congress focused mainly on Tuesday's midterm elections, reaction has been mild. A group of senior House Democrats wrote a letter to Mattis on Thursday expressing opposition to the military mission and demanding answers on its cost. The deployment of active duty troops, they wrote, "only exacerbates the potential to unnecessarily escalate the situation." Chuck Hagel, a former Republican senator and Army combat veteran who served as defense secretary under President Barack Obama, told CNN the mission is "folly" because there is "no need, no threat." Retired Army Gen. Martin Dempsey, who preceded Marine Gen. Joseph Dunford as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, took double-barreled aim at the border mission. Writing on Twitter Thursday, he called the military mission a "wasteful deployment of over-stretched Soldiers and Marines" that would be "made much worse" if they used force disproportional to the threat they face on the border.

Jury deliberating murder charge against ex-deputy's husband

By JUAN A. LOZANO, Associated Press
HOUSTON (AP) — The husband of a former sheriff's deputy charged in the strangulation death of a man he and his wife confronted outside a Houston-area restaurant wanted to kill the man and kept him in a chokehold after he stopped resisting, prosecutors told jurors Friday before they began deliberations. A defense attorney for Terry Thompson, 42, countered that his client was only defending himself after being punched in the face and insisted that Thompson kept John Hernandez, 24, subdued only until he stopped resisting. Jurors deliberated Thompson's fate for about seven hours Friday after closing arguments before ending their work for the day. Deliberations were set to resume on Monday. Thompson faces up to life in prison if convicted of murder. He could also be convicted of the lesser charges of manslaughter or criminally negligent homicide. This is the second time a jury takes Thompson's case. His first trial in June ended with a hung jury. Prosecutors said Thompson was quickly in control of Hernandez after the two got into a confrontation when Thompson saw Hernandez urinating outside a Denny's restaurant in Sheldon in May 2017. His wife, Chauna Thompson, 46, arrived later to help her husband subdue and restrain Hernandez. She was off-duty at the time and was later fired by the Harris County Sheriff's Office. During closing arguments, prosecutor John Jordan played cellphone video and 911 calls in which witnesses can be heard pleading for Thompson to let go of Hernandez and Hernandez can be heard gasping for breath.

Fun with Pigeons

It was raining when I visited Mike Sutton of Andrews. He has a series of tin-roofed buildings where he keeps hundreds of homing pigeons. Rain on a tin roof makes a pleasing sound, which mixed well with the cooing of the pigeons.

“We have a 600 mile race here once a year and we have four or five 500 mile races,” says Mike. We had a race from Shreveport, Louisiana and two of my pigeons were turned out on a Saturday morning at seven o'clock and they got here in Andrews at five PM. That's 503 miles.”

He takes them further from home each training session.

“I start at a mile, let them come home, the I move up to five miles and let them come home. I'm training a new group right now and they went eleven miles yesterday. Next weekend I hope to get them out to twenty-five or thirty miles. I need to get them out to about sixty miles before the races. Our first race will be 100 miles but they don't need to be trained that far. Once they come home from sixty miles they can come home from just about anywhere.”

There are several theories why homing pigeons always return home.

“Some say they use a magnetic field. There are some who say they use their strong sense of smell. They have put contact lenses on them to cover their eyes so they couldn't see, then turned them loose and they still came home.”

In a race, times are registered by computer, a big change from earlier days when the birds carried bands on their legs that had to be removed, causing some pain.

“I put a chip in their legs and I have a scanner. When they cross that scanner it scans their number into a clock, which indicates the time they got here. After the race is over and all the birds have come home we take this

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

A Man and His Dog

This is NOT a story about a boy and his dog. Instead, it is a true account of Galveston icon Eddie Janek and his Rhodesian ridgeback, a canine companion nearly always nearby when his 91-year-old master is on the premises.

Without Brownie, Eddie would be “rattling around” in his self-designed Galveston Bay home which he and his beloved wife Doris enjoyed until she became ill a decade ago. She was in a coma for most of that time until her death in 2015.

Ever the optimist, he believes in angels, convinced they've always been present, perhaps handling details of Brownie's entry into his life.

Someone brought the puppy to Eddie's door. Emaciated and weighing just 11 pounds, he was at death's door. “To say he had been mistreated would be an understatement,” Janek said.

Reared by a widow on a hard-scrabble farm near West, TX, the diminutive Galveston leader has been on the short end of long odds many times. Standing just 5-1 and weighing 98 pounds, he “fudged” his way into the Navy for service in World War II, then “re-upped” during the Korean engagement. He'd never owned a toothbrush-or used a telephone or indoor plumbing- until joining the Navy.

As he comforted his pet at the veterinary clinic, perhaps he saw something of himself, silently vowing to help Brownie, as others had helped him.

Brownie has grown into a beautiful adult, ever loyal and ever alert.

He's quick with deep-throated barks when visitors come.

“My companion is all about barking,” Eddie laughs, “Brownie never bites, but he might well try to lick someone to death.”

Early on, Janek decided to engage a professional dog trainer. Someone spoke of Trelle Dandridge, a 30-something-year-old woman well-known for putting dogs through their paces.

He was shocked at first meeting to learn that she was blind, the result of a terrible automobile accident several years earlier.

Asking if anything could be done, the woman said she'd like to try stem cell therapy in China, but the cost was out of the question. The tab would be $40,000.

Eddie never blinked. He wrote a check for $5,000, then asked friends—including some “deep-pocketed Rotarians”—to join him. Three did, and dozens of others contributed lesser amounts. Within a few months, she was off to China.

It didn't work, so Janek continued raising funds to finance a similar trip to Taiwan. While not materially successful, the procedure allowed her to distinguish “light from dark, and to see shadows.”

“Getting Brownie and the chance to help this wonderful lady are both ‘angel things,’” he believes. His current project is to computer clock over to the clubhouse and we have a computer over there. We enter everybody's clocks into the computer and the computer generates a race sheet that tells who won the race.”

Mike says racing pigeons started in Europe.

“China has come into pigeon racing in the last few years and now has some 300,000, more pigeon fliers than any other country. They go to Europe and buy birds. Last year a bird was sold for 400,000 dollars to a Chinese man. There's a race or two now that pays 50,000 dollars to the first place bird.”

Mike paid five dollars for a pigeon that beat one that cost his competitor 20,000 dollars. Mike also has some roller pigeons.

“They are birds that fly real high and turn summer salts on the way down. They tumble head first and they're fun to watch.”

Mike has been fooling with pigeons sixty years. He has some show pigeons.

raise funds for her to try a new procedure at Mayo Clinic.

Janek is as generous as any person I've ever known, and he's long been recognized for his generosity and involvement in all things good for Galveston.

Some call him “Mr. Baseball” for his long involvement as a coach and backer of youth baseball. Others say the former County Commissioner is “Mr. Galveston.”

Everyone calls him “friend.” He is revered for his dogged determination to “give back.”

Still active in his telecommunications business, he's at work most days, but never on his birthday. It's a huge event.

At age 90, he parachuted from 12,000 feet, with several dozen friends on hand to witness the event. Last year, he jumped from the plane at 14,000 feet, and again, his friends cheered.

Come April 28 of 2019, he'll head to the airport once more, this time from 16,000 feet. Again a crowd will gather, and again he looks forward to the leap. “I'm hooked up to a veteran for these tandem jumps,” he said. “He's made 8,000 jumps, so why wouldn't I be confident?”

I know only snippets of Eddie's life, but enough to fully agree that angels likely have fluttered around him for a long, long time.

DAILY PRAYER

Dear Lord, please use our lives as You will. Help us to reach the potential You want us to. Amen.

Check it out at the Howard County Library

We had a lot of fun setting up for our Fall Festival and we're glad that families came out to enjoy the games, prizes and candy. Thank you to all of our volunteers that helped out during the festival, to Friends of the Library that helped make it possible to have the festival indoors and to our wonderful staff. We encourage parents and caregivers to bring their little ones to Baby Time Tuesdays at 11 a.m. and Storytime Wednesdays at 10:15 a.m. these programs are free and they are a great way for little ones to make friends and be exposed to the benefits of reading.

This week's reviews include western, science fiction, fiction and mystery.

The truth will always catch up with you as Skeet Jones and Angela find out in "Songbird of the West" (LP W CLA J) by James Clay. Skeet meets thirteen-year-old Angela at Bob's Place, a saloon that is very popular among the local men. Angela, has just been purchased by the most powerful man in the town of Calhoun. Skeet is desperate to help her but when the man who purchased her refuses to let her go, Skeet shoots him and makes a run for it with Angela in tow.

Seven years go by, and Angela now goes by the name of Carrie Whiting- a famous singer known as the Songbird of the West. Carrie works in Skeet's saloon as a singer. Then Carrie is kidnapped, which brings her to the attention of Detective Rance Denher, a man broken by loss. Once he finds the legendary Songbird of the West he is determined to keep her safe. But as the body count rises in Dry Creek, Carrie discovers she's not the only one who has changed her name. And sometimes even that's not enough to stay hidden.

Jackson, a Ranger known as Solitary, was summoned to help Mule-shoe country in "A Ranger Called Solitary" (LP W COR B) by Barry Cord. Fear was rampant in the Mule-shoe country-fear of the unknown and of the murders taking place, and there were fears that the local lawman himself might be the next to go. Jackson was supposed to come and help deal with the chaos.

Before he arrived, an imposter posing as the Ranger introduced himself to the sheriff and then shot him. When the real Jackson arrives, he is puzzled when the sheriff tries to kill him and no one seems willing to trust him. The only clue left behind to the mayhem and murders is a cryptic note left by one of the victims referring to a binnacle light and a rock of the skull.

June Stefanov is thrown into a hidden world that lurks just under the surface of our own in Daniel H. Wilson's "The Clockwork Dynasty" (SF WIL D). Present Day: June is a young anthropologist specializing in ancient technology, who uncovers a terrible secret concealed inside a three-hundred-year-old mechanical doll. Russia, 1710: In the Kremlin, the tsar's loyal mechanic bring to life two astonishingly humanlike mechanical beings. Peter and Elena are a brother and sister fallen out of time, in possession of uncanny power destined to serve great empires.

Struggling to blend into pre-Victorian society, they are pulled into an ongoing war that has raged for centuries. In present day time, June unites with a remarkable traveler, who exposes her to a reality she never imagined, as they embark on an adventure and discover secrets of the past. As June plunges deeper into the world of these beings, humanlike machines that have been hiding among us for untold centuries, her choices will ultimately determine their survival or extermination.

Sophie Kinsella presents a humorous yet moving portrait of a marriage its intricacies, comforts, and complications in "Surprise Me" (F KIN S). After ten years together, Sylvie and Dan have a comfortable home, fulfilling jobs, and beautiful twin girls. They have a happy marriage and believe they know everything there is to know about each other.

When it's casually mentioned to them the idea that they might be together for the next sixty-eight years, panic sets in. In their attempt to keep their marriage fresh and fun they launch project Surprise Me- from the unexpected gifts to restaurant dates to sexy photoshoots- mishaps arises, with disastrous results. Gradually, surprises turn to shocking truths. When a scandal from the past is uncovered, they begin to wonder if they ever really knew each other at all. How well do you really know the people you work with? Federal agent Aaron Falk finds out in "Force of Nature" (M HAR J) by Jane Harper. When five colleagues are forced to go on a corporate retreat in the wilderness, they reluctantly pick up their backpacks and start walking down the muddy path. This retreat is supposed to be a bonding experience to build trust. But it doesn't work out that way. One of the women doesn't come out of the woods. When the women are interviewed, each tells a slightly different story.

Agent Falk has an interest in the whereabouts of the missing woman, Alice Russell. Russell was the whistleblower in Falk's latest case, she was supposed to help him bring down both the company she works for and the people she works with. In an investigation that takes him deep into isolated forest, Falk discovers secrets lurking in the mountains, and a tangled web of personal and professional friendship, suspicion, and betrayal among the hikers. But did that lead to murder?

Trump vs. Obama in the final weekend of the midterms

AP photo

President Donald Trump talks about immigration and border security from the Roosevelt Room of the White House in Washington, Thursday, Nov. 1, 2018.

By KEN THOMAS

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The final weekend of campaigning in the midterms might come down to this: Donald Trump versus Barack Obama.

The Republican president and his Democratic predecessor are both lending their considerable political clout to key Senate and gubernatorial battlegrounds in Indiana, Florida and Georgia this weekend, aiming to motivate voters before Tuesday's election.

Far from buddies, Trump has frequently blasted Obama's economic stewardship and handling of trade agreements while the former president has warned that the "character of our country is on the ballot."

Friday's campaigning will feature a split-screen of Trump events in Indianapolis and Huntington, West Virginia, while Obama will rally Democrats in Miami and Atlanta.

Trump covets the Senate seats held by Democrats Joe Donnelly of Indiana and Joe Manchin of West Virginia, two states that the president won handily in 2016. Democrats, meanwhile, could make history by electing black governors in Florida and Georgia, and are turning to the nation's first black president to help make their case.

During the weekend, Trump will head to Montana and Florida on Saturday and Georgia and Tennessee on Sunday. Obama will return to the trail on Sunday, headlining rallies for Donnelly in Gary, Indiana, and in his hometown of Chicago for J.B. Pritzker, who is running for Illinois governor.

A look at campaign activities on Friday:

TRUMP'S ECONOMY

Trump received the type of jobs report that any president would envy heading into the final days before the midterm elections. But will he use it to his advantage?

The October economic data released Friday packed a wallop, finding that U.S. employers added 250,000 jobs during the past month and unemployment remained at a five-decade low of 3.7 percent. More people entered the labor force and wages made their biggest gains since 2009.

Yet it landed at the end of a week in which the president has made immigration and border security the paramount issue for Republicans in the midterms, warning without offering evidence that a caravan of immigrants is preparing an "invasion" of the U.S. southern border.

Trump called the economic numbers "incredible" on Twitter but it raised the question of whether the president will pivot back to the economy — an approach favored by embattled House Republicans — or keep up his drumbeat on immigration before the election.

BOB KNIGHT

Trump was expected to campaign in Indiana with Hall of Fame basketball coach Bob Knight, who coached the Indiana University Hoosiers. Knight embraced Trump's 2016 presidential campaign, often appearing with the future president at rallies.

Trump teased Knight's appearance in a tweet, saying: "Don't tell anyone (big secret), but I will be bringing Coach Bobby Knight to Indiana. He's been a supporter right from the beginning of the Greatest Political Movement in American History!"

Trump, Knight and Vice President Mike Pence, a former Indiana governor, will be rallying supporters behind Republican Mike Braun, who is running against Sen. Joe Donnelly, D-Ind., in a closely watched Senate contest.

In West Virginia, Trump will be helping for Republican state Attorney General Patrick Morrisey, who is in a tight contest against Sen. Joe Manchin, D-W.Va.

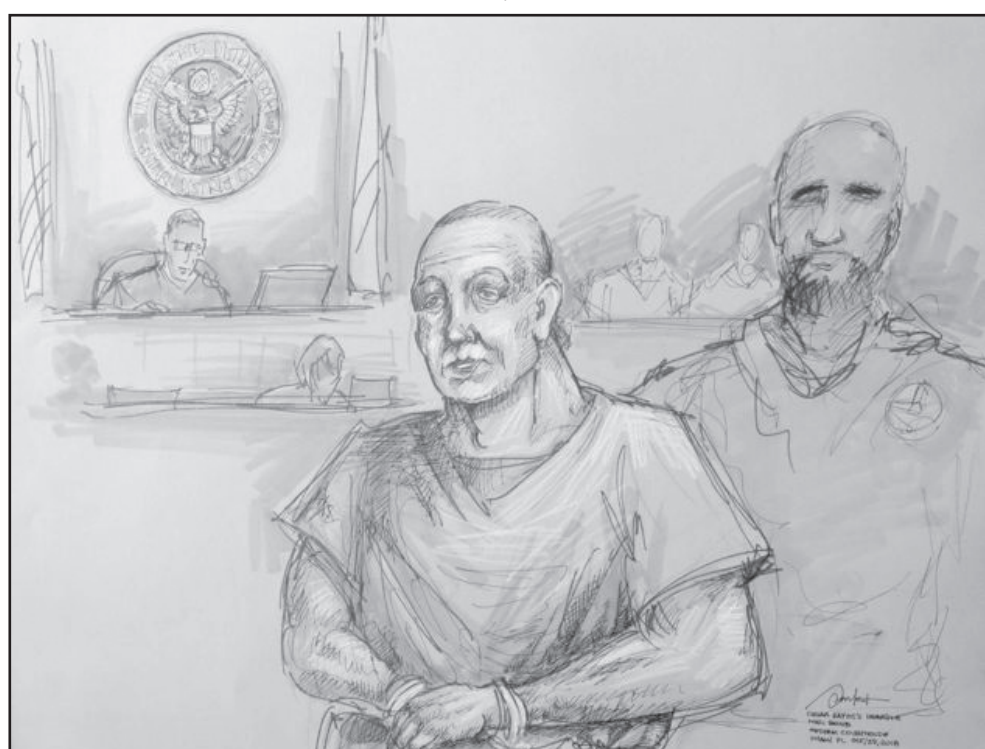

FLORIDA HISPANICS

A group of high-powered Latinas are campaigning in Florida this weekend in two largely Latino neighborhoods to drive turnout in the midterm elections.

Actresses America Ferrera, Eva Longoria, Gina Rodriguez, Rosario Dawson and Zoe Saldana will appear at rallies in Kissimmee and Miami on Sunday.

Also attending the Kissimmee rally will be the wife of Democratic gubernatorial candidate Andrew Gillum and two U.S. representatives of Puerto Rican background — Darren Soto of Florida and Nydia Velazquez of New York. Kissimmee is home to many transplants from Puerto Rico.

Pipe bomb suspect agrees to NY transfer, no bail

AP photo

In this courtroom sketch, Cesar Sayoc, left, appears in federal court, Monday, Oct. 29, 2018, in Miami. Sayoc is accused of sending pipe bombs to prominent Democrats around the country. If foreign citizens had mailed pipe bombs to prominent Democrats, or massacred Jews in a synagogue, there's a good chance they would have been charged with terrorism. But that won't happen with either of the men charged in the recent wave of mail bombs and the Pittsburgh shootings. That's because there's no domestic terrorism law.

By MATTHEW LEE

AP Diplomatic Writer

MIAMI — The suspect accused of sending pipe bombs to prominent critics of President Trump agreed Friday to be transferred to New York to face charges, while the FBI said an additional package was found addressed to Democratic billionaire donor Tom Steyer.

Attorneys for Cesar Sayoc said Friday in Miami federal court that it's better if his lawyers in New York can take the case as soon as possible. They could still seek a bail hearing there, but prosecutors say he should remain jailed, given the magnitude of the charges and the strong evidence against him.

"We wanted to make sure that all of his constitutional rights were preserved," said attorney James Benjamin after the hearing. "We feel we've done all we can."

Sayoc has been accused of sending 15 improvised explosive devices to numerous Democrats, Trump critics and media outlets.

The FBI said Friday an additional package similar to the earlier ones was recovered at a postal facility near San Francisco. The package discovered late Thursday was the second addressed to Steyer, who has done TV ads calling for Trump's impeachment. None of the packages have exploded and no one was injured.

The timing of Sayoc's transfer is uncertain.

US restores Iran sanctions lifted under Obama nuclear deal

By MATTHEW LEE

AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The Trump administration on Friday announced the re-imposition of all U.S. sanctions on Iran that had been lifted under the 2015 nuclear deal, ramping up economic pressure on the Islamic Republic as President Donald Trump completed the unraveling of what had been one of his predecessor's signature foreign policy achievements.

The sanctions, which will take effect on Monday, cover Iran's shipping, financial and energy sectors and are the second batch the administration has reimposed since Trump withdrew from the landmark accord in May. The rollback ends U.S. participation in the nuclear deal, which now hangs in the balance as Iran no longer enjoys any relief from sanctions imposed by the world's largest economy.

Shortly after the announcement, Trump tweeted what looks like a movie poster image of himself walking that takes creative inspiration from the TV series "Game of Thrones" to announce the re-imposition of sanctions. It, says "Sanctions are Coming, November 5."

Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said the sanctions are "aimed at fundamentally altering the behavior of the Islamic Republic of Iran." He has issued a list of 12 demands that Iran must meet if it wants the sanctions lifted. Those include ending support for terrorism and military engagement in Syria and a complete halt to its nuclear and ballistic missile development.

The 2015 deal, one of former President Barack Obama's biggest diplomatic successes, gave Iran billions of dollars in sanctions relief in exchange for curbs on its nuclear program, which many believed it was using to develop atomic weapons. Trump repeatedly denounced the agreement as the "worst ever" negotiated by the United States and vowed to withdraw from it during the 2016 presidential campaign.

Trump and other critics of the deal said it gave Iran too much in return for too little, allowed Iran to gradually resume nuclear activity that could eventually be used for weapons development and did not address any of the country's other problematic activities.

Obama-era officials as well as the other parties to the deal — Britain, China, France, Germany, Russia and the European Union — have vehemently defended it. The Europeans have mounted a drive to save the agreement from the U.S. withdrawal, fearing that the new sanctions will drive Iran to pull out and resume all of its nuclear work.

The foreign and finance ministers of Britain, France, Germany and the top

EU diplomat blasted the restoration of sanctions, saying that Iran is complying with the deal and that they were working on ways to mitigate the impact of the U.S. move.

"We deeply regret the further re-imposition of sanctions by the United States," they said in a joint statement. "As parties to the (deal), we have committed to work on the preservation and maintenance of effective financial channels with Iran, and the continuation of Iran's export of oil and gas."

With limited exceptions, the reimposed U.S. sanctions will hit Iran as well as countries that do not stop importing Iranian oil and foreign firms that do business with blacklisted Iranian entities, including its central bank, a number of private financial institutions, and state-run port and shipping firms, as well as hundreds of individual Iranian officials.

"Our ultimate aim is to compel Iran to permanently abandon its well-documented outlaw activities and behave as a normal country," Pompeo told reporters in a conference call with Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin. "Maximum pressure means maximum pressure."

Pompeo said eight nations will receive temporary waivers allowing them to continue to import Iranian petroleum products for a limited period as they move to end such imports entirely. He said those countries, which other officials said would include U.S. allies such as Turkey, Italy, India, Japan and South Korea, had made efforts to eliminate their imports but could not complete the task by Monday.

The waivers, expected to be announced Monday, will be valid for six months, during which time the importing country can buy Iranian oil but must deposit Iran's revenue in an escrow account. Iran can spend the money but only on a narrow range of humanitarian items. Pompeo said two of the eight countries would wind down imports to zero within weeks.

Mnuchin said 700 more Iranian companies and people would be added to the sanctions rolls. Those, he said, would include more than 300 that had not been included under previous sanctions.

"We are sending a very clear message with our maximum pressure campaign: that the U.S. intends to aggressively enforce our sanctions," he said.

Israel, which considers Iran an existential threat and opposed the deal from the beginning, welcomed Friday's announcement.

"Thank you, Mr. President, for restoring sanctions against an Iranian regime that vows and works to destroy the Jewish state," Israeli Ambassador to the U.S. Ron Dermer said in a tweet.

It can happen quickly or take weeks, and is not usually announced ahead of time by the U.S. Marshals Service, Benjamin said. Even defense lawyers are not informed.

"Your guess is as good as mine," he said. "The government wants to get him up there as soon as they can."

Prosecutors left court without speaking to reporters.

Sayoc was arrested a week ago outside a South Florida auto parts store in a white van in which he had been living, a vehicle covered with stickers of Trump and showing images of some of the president's opponents with red crosshairs over their faces.

Sayoc faces nearly 50 years in prison if convicted on five federal charges that were filed in New York because some of the devices were recovered there.

Sayoc's lawyers decided not to seek release on bail after prosecutors released a letter outlining more evidence against him, including DNA linking him to 10 of the explosive devices and fingerprints on two of them.

Other evidence includes online searches Sayoc did on his laptop and cellphone for addresses and photos of some of his intended targets, which included former President Barack Obama, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, former Vice President Joe Biden, California Sen. Kamala Harris and New Jersey Sen. Cory Booker. Packages were also mailed to CNN in New York and Atlanta.

The laptop also has a file with the address in Sunrise, Florida, of the office of U.S. Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, former chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee. That office was used as the return address on the packages containing the pipe bombs, according to the FBI. The computer file was labeled "Debbie W.docx".

Benjamin, however, said the prosecution letter does not prove anything yet. He noted that it refers to "possible" DNA matches to Sayoc.

"The word flimsy actually still applies," Benjamin told reporters. "We can't do anything but speculate now. And it's too early."

Sands CISD's Fall Festival

The Fall Festival Coronation and Costume Contest at Sands CISD has been going on for as far back as many can remember, both of which are sponsored by the Student Council. This year's Fall Festival took place on Monday, October 29. The court is made up of one boy and one girl representative from each class, kindergarten through seniors. Pre-K elects a crown bearer and flower girl, and the Student Council elects emcee's for the night. A vote is taken in each class for an Elementary Queen and escort, as well as in the Junior High and High School levels. Top left photo: Caleb Jordan and Layton Anderson were named the Crown Bearer and Flower bearer for the event. Top right photo: Miguel Goerba and Dakota Cobb were named the Elementary King and Queen. Bottom left photo: Cole Rich and Taylor Wall were named the Junior High King and Queen. Bottom right Photo: The High School King and Queen is Aaron Thomas and Alexis Gonzales. This event is so special because so many of the students' parents, grandparents and great-grandparents have at one time or another been participants of the Sands Fall Festival themselves. Congratulations to all of the Fall Festival Court nominees and winners.

Steers stumble late against Seminole and fall 34-20

By JORDAN PARR

Sports Editor

The Steers played their best all around game of the season Friday night against Seminole, but missed opportunities late that cost Big Spring in the end. With the loss the Steers drop to 0-2 in district while the Indians improve to 2-0. Big Spring had a real chance at getting the win with their offense once again finding balance racking up 125 yards on the ground and another 170 yards through the air. The Steers had 17 first downs to Seminole's 16, controlled the ball with a 24:49 of possession to 23:11 for the Indians and won the turnover battle with just one turnover in the game compared to two for Seminole. Despite coming out on top of those statistics it was the late missed opportunities that cost the Steers the game in a tough 34-20 district loss.

Big Spring received the opening kickoff and proceeded to drive the ball right down the field for a 79 yard scoring drive to get things started. The Steers found success through the air on the drive before sophomore Orlando Sanchez punched it in from the 1 yard line to go up 7-0 after a successful extra point with 8:29 left in the first quarter.

Seminole returned the ensuing kickoff all the way out to the 42 yard line and put together a great drive trying to answer the Steers' first drive points. The Indians drove the ball all the way down to the Big Spring 1 yard line and on a fourth and goal the Steers made a huge stop to get the ball back and put a stop to the drive.

Unfortunately the Steers went three and out and had to punt into the wind from the back of their own end zone. The Indians returned the punt all the way back to the Big Spring 6 yard line. Two plays later Seminole's Aiden Ward got the ball across the goal line on a two yard power run to tie the game at 7-7 after a successful extra point with 1:40 left in the opening quarter. The Steers had problems covering punts all night allowing 55 return yards on just three punts with one fair catch.

After the Seminole' score, Big Spring had another quick three and out and this time Jeremiah Cooley got off a good kick that led to a fair catch at the Indians' 46 yard line. On the first play of the drive Seminole fumbled the snap and Big Spring's Abel Clark recovered the ball on the Indians' 39 yard with 35 seconds left in the first quarter.

The Steers capitalized on the mistake and put the ball in the end zone on a 7 yard slant from Big Spring's quarterback Ethan Cortez to Jeremiah Cooley to regain the lead at 13-7 after a blocked extra point with 9:33 left in the half. The Steers really looked in sync early on offense and had the Indians on their heels.

With a lead and momentum on their side it looked like Big Spring might pull away but the Indians had other ideas and on the second play of their next possession Seminole's Noah Mata gashed the Steers' defense for a huge 53 yard touchdown run to take the lead 14-13 after a successful extra point with 8:35 left in the half. Both teams defenses stiffened and neither team could put together another scoring drive in the second quarter. The teams went into halftime with Seminole leading 14-13 and receiving the second half kickoff.

In the second half the Indians received the kickoff and returned it out to their own 25. On third and five, Seminole's quarterback Jordan Mathews ran a keeper and fumbled the ball. Big Spring recovered the fumble for the second time in the game and marched the ball right down the field. The Steers scored on a huge fourth and four play from the Seminole 29 when Cortez found Quemarian Lewis streaking down the sideline for a 29 yard touchdown pass to retake the lead at 20-14 with 7:38 left in the third.

On the Indians' next possession they answered yet again, putting together a 10 play 55 yard drive capped off by a 7 yard touchdown run on a read option keeper by Mathews to tie the game at 20-20 after a failed extra point with 3:41 left in the third quarter. The Steers turned two turnovers into 14 but failed to play the defense they needed to prevent the Indians from answering both scores immediately.

With momentum slipping through their fingers the Steers put together an impressive drive and got the ball all the way down to the Seminole' 17 yard line. On a second and ten from the 17 Cortez scrambled his way into the end zone for what looked like would be the key play of the game for the Steers, but it was called back on a phantom holding call that no-one seemed to see except for the one lone official. Three plays later on a fourth and sixteen Cortez threw a perfect pass to Lewis, who had a lot of green ahead of him, but Lewis uncharacteristically couldn't bring it in and the Steers turned the ball over on downs with just 10:25 remaining in the game.

Forsan falls to Hawley 45-0 to drop to 0-3 in district

Buff's tight end Ryan Buske gets brought down from behind Friday night November 2, 2018 in a big 45-0 loss to Hawley.

By JORDAN PARR

Sports Editor

The Steers ran into a buzz saw in Hawley this Friday losing 45-0 in a really difficult lopsided match-up with the Bearcats. Hawley's defense was stifling all night holding Forsan to just 32 yards on the ground and just 163 total yards while keeping the Buffs out of the end zone the entire game. Offensively the Bearcats were just as impressive putting up 414 yards of total offense while maintaining balance with 181 passing yards and another 233 yards on the ground. The Buffs didn't do themselves any favors against a really talented Hawley team, giving up the ball four times to the Bearcats.

After being forced to turn the ball over on downs on their first possession of the game by Forsan, Hawley scored on six consecutive possessions and completely dominated the Buffs defense for the entire game. Forsan only possessed the ball four times in the first half and had two punts and two turnovers in those four possessions. With the Bearcats jumping all over them on both sides of the ball the Buffs were out of the game early and couldn't ever get their footing throughout the game. Forsan only had 137 yards of total offense in the game and converted just 6 of 15 third downs. Defensively the Buffs couldn't slow down the Bearcats offense and really got pushed around all game. Cayden Morgan was the lone bright spot for Forsan in the game catching 9 passes for 86 yards. Buffs' quarterback Kobe Richardson had a really hard time getting anything going with his legs and ended the game in the negative for rushing yardage. Throwing the ball Richardson had more success going 18-29 for 131 yards but was picked off twice at key moments in the game to kill potential scoring drives.

There aren't many positives to take away from such a lopsided loss but the Buffs never quit and played hard and with heart the whole game.

Kyler Murray needs win at Texas Tech to keep OU on track

LUBBOCK, Texas — What figures to be Kyler Murray's one-and-done attempt to get No. 7 Oklahoma back to the College Football Playoff will require a win in an atmosphere significantly more hostile because of a prime-time kickoff.

The coach of the Major League Baseball-bound quarterback knows a bit about wild games in Lubbock. Lincoln Riley was the Sooners' offensive coordinator in a 66-59, Baker Mayfield-over-Patrick Mahomes touchdown fest at Texas Tech two years ago and will be on the sideline at his alma mater Saturday night for the first time since replacing Bob Stoops.

Riley believes Murray is ready to make the run that Mayfield pulled off a year ago — lead the Sooners

(7-1, 4-1 Big 12) back from an early October loss to run the table in November, win a Big 12 championship and qualify for the four-team tournament.

"The whole journey gets you ready for this," Riley says of Murray, who is expected to pursue pro baseball after one season as OU's starter. "He's been at big moments, even early on his life. Felt like if he won the job, that he'd be ready for the opportunity."

This is just the beginning of high-profile Big 12 opportunities for Texas Tech freshman Alan Bowman, the conference's leading passer. The Red Raiders (5-3, 3-2) cost themselves a tie for the league lead with a 40-31 loss at Iowa State last week, but now get a chance to knock the Sooners out of that spot — and likely out of playoff consideration.

Rookies lead way as Knicks make easy work of Mavs, 118-106

By SCHUYLER DIXON

AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Allonzo Trier's two-way contract with New York is looking more and more like a one-way deal.

As in, the rookie guard isn't leaving the Knicks anytime soon.

Trier scored 19 of his career-high 23 points during a second-half surge, fellow rookie Mitchell Robinson had his first double-double and the Knicks beat Dallas 118-106 Friday night, handing the Mavericks their sixth straight loss.

"I've been here, what is this, 10 games now?" Trier asked, overshooting the number by one after missing just two shots (8 of 10). "It's been a lot of fun and I'm learning more each and every day, and we're learning more about everybody on this team and how to use everybody, not just me."

Tim Hardaway Jr. had 18 points and six rebounds to help the Knicks win for the second time in three games after a five-game skid that followed a victory in their opener.

Robinson set career highs with 13 points and 10 rebounds. New York outscored Dallas 33-18 in the third quarter after trailing by three at halftime, and led by as many as 17 in the fourth, when Trier scored 14.

Dennis Smith Jr. scored 23 points and 19-year-old rookie Luka Doncic had 18 points, nine rebounds and six assists for the Mavericks, who matched their longest losing streak from the lost 2017-18 season.

That six-game skid a year ago led to a 2-14 start and 24-58 finish, and this slump followed a 2-1 start that marked Dallas' first winning record since the end of the 2015-

16 season. The Mavericks opened 2-13 two seasons ago.

"At this point, we've got to get angry," coach Rick Carlisle said. "We've got to get more together. We've got to have two great practice days. That's where we are."

The Knicks shot just 24 percent from 3-point territory against the worst defending team from long range, but they made up for it inside the arc. New York shot 71 percent (39 of 55) on 2-pointers and was at 55 percent overall for the game.

Lance Thomas scored nine of his 10 points when the Knicks took control in the third and assisted during the surge on Robinson's reverse alley-oop dunk.

"I was high in the air, so why not just go ahead and do something?" asked Robinson, the former Louisiana high school standout whose previous rebounding high was six.

Dorian Finney-Smith had 19 points on 8-of-10 shooting for the Mavericks, but Harrison Barnes was held to 1 of 7 from 3-point range while scoring 14 points. DeAndre Jordan had a season-low four points and matched his lowest rebounding total this season with 10.

TIP-INS

Knicks: Damyean Dotson just missed his second double-double of the season, finishing with 11 points and eight rebounds. ... Others among the seven double-figure scorers were Enes Kanter (13 points) and Mario Hezonja (11).

Mavericks: G Devin Harris was out again with a left hamstring strain. He hasn't played since the opener. ...

J.J. Barea matched his season low with two points, attempting just five shots. He equaled Doncic with six assists.

MITCHELL'S MODEL

Robinson's best game so far came against Jordan, the 6-foot-11 center who extended his Dallas record with his ninth straight double-digit rebound game to start a season. Robinson matched Jordan on the boards and was much more of a factor offensively, going 5 of 6 from the field. "I think DeAndre is a guy that Mitchell looks up to, and really respects," Knicks coach David Fizdale said. "Obviously there are a lot of similarities there that we're going to be using DeAndre as a model for Mitchell."

DEFENSE FIRST

Another versatile game from Doncic, who has been Dallas' best player in his first two-plus weeks, prompted questions for Carlisle over whether the rookie should have a more prominent role in the offense. Carlisle was thinking about the sixth game out of nine in which the Mavericks have allowed at least 50 percent shooting. "I'm so much more focused on the defense that the questions about the offense, to me, are insignificant," the coach said. "It's become too commonplace. That's not going to get it, and I know we can do better."

TECH

"I watched a guy who is favored to be the MVP of the NFL go up there and have a really, really rough day, as well," coach Kliff Kingsbury said, referring to the Red Raiders' 66-10 loss at the Cyclones in Mahomes' final season two years ago, before Kansas City drafted him in the first round.

"He's a kid who doesn't blink," Kingsbury said of Bowman, who was called for a safety on a desperation throwaway out of the end zone to break a 31-31 tie against Iowa State. "Got that ball back at the end, expected to win the game. It didn't work out. He'll come back and play better than he has, is my expectation for him Saturday."

The Sooners, also seventh in the first CFP rankings released this week, bounced back with a pair of 50-plus-point outings in wins over TCU and Kansas State following a loss to No. 15 Texas.

"These last couple weeks, we've just been out there playing for each other," linebacker Kenneth Murray said. "It's not offense, special teams, defense. It's the Oklahoma Sooners. I think right now, our brotherhood is at an all-time high."

RUFFIN'S REUNION

Ruffin McNeill took over as defensive coordinator at Oklahoma after Riley fired Mike Stoops following Texas' 501-yard showing in a 48-45 win. McNeill was promoted at Texas Tech under similar circumstances in 2007, and spent the next two full seasons in that role before becoming head coach at East Carolina. He was with the Red Raiders for 10 seasons, including when Kingsbury was the quarterback.

The Sooners held the Horned Frogs and Wildcats to less than 300 yards. "He tells us all the time he lives in Norman now, and the best offense lives in Norman, the best defense lives in Norman, the best special teams lives in Norman," Kenneth Murray said.

NOVEMBERS TO REMEMBER

The Sooners have won 13 consecutive November games since 2014, and not coincidentally have three straight Big 12 titles — all with Mayfield at quarterback. "A lot of other people are getting tired of it, tired of the grind, the process, tired of all the little things these guys have got to do day-in and day-out," Riley said. "Our players have embraced it."

IT JUST SO HAPPENS

Mayfield, the first overall pick this past spring by Cleveland, and Mahomes are facing off in the NFL on the same weekend as their former college teams, with the Chiefs visiting the Browns on Sunday. It's just another reason to remember the video-game display in 2016, when each team had exactly 854 yards total offense and Mahomes threw 88 passes, one shy of the national record. Kingsbury said he didn't plan to watch Mahomes try to get the Chiefs to 8-1. "We'll be right back at it," he said. "I'll keep track of it."

THIS AND THAT

The Sooners have won 18 straight true road games over four seasons. ... Texas Tech has lost seven consecutive games against top-10 teams since a win over West Virginia in 2012. The Red Raiders are trying to get bowl eligible for the 16th time since 2000. ... Oklahoma has averaged 49.8 points and 585 total yards per game its last six games against Tech.

It has undoubtedly been a tough pill to swallow for the upperclassmen this year but they should hold their heads high and know that despite the wins and losses they have shown everyone what real heart and real teamwork are all about. Their legacy will not be the games or championships they win, but rather the underclassmen who they have instilled the Buff way of playing football in. The success and the continuation of "Buff Heart" and "Buff Football" are their legacy and it is one they should always be proud of. It is easy to play the right way and do the right things when the winning and the accolades that come with that are present. It is a completely different, and more admirable thing to do in the face of defeat and scrutiny and this team has done exactly that.

The Buffs will have one more shot to get a district win next week against Stamford on the road.

The Steers would not get another scoring opportunity in the game and Seminole took advantage of the momentum and scored 14 unanswered points in the fourth quarter to make the game much more lopsided than it actually was.

With the last district game of the year coming against San Angelo Lake View next Thursday on the road, the Steers have one more chance to get their first district win in three seasons. If they play with the heart, determination and fight they did against the Indians I have no doubt they will get that win finally get that monkey off their collective back.

Blaney 200-mph Texas pole; all 4 Stewart Haas cars in top 7

By STEPHEN HAWKINS

AP Sports Writer
 FORT WORTH, Texas — Clint Bowyer went more than 200 mph like polesitter Ryan Blaney during NASCAR Cup qualifying at Texas.

"It's so hard to sit here and explain to somebody what that lap feels like, and the adjustments you have to make," Bowyer said. "You have to be committed. You can't just feel it out at that point."

Blaney earned the pole Friday at 200.505 mph at the 1 1/2-mile Texas track, just ahead of Bowyer's 200.230 mph lap that was the fastest of the eight contenders still alive in the playoff.

"Really fast lap after leaving Martinsville, of all places," Bowyer said, referring to last week's race at the half-mile paperclip-shaped track.

Blaney described the fast lap of just under 27 seconds as like almost holding his breath.

All four Stewart-Haas drivers were the top qualifiers among the championship contenders. Bowyer led the way, with teammates Kevin Harvick and Aric Almirola in the second row. Kurt Busch, who was going for his third consecutive poll at Texas, qualified seventh.

Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series driver Kurt Busch heads down the front stretch during a practice session for a weekend auto race at Texas Motor Speedway in Fort Worth, Texas, Friday, Nov. 2, 2018.

The only non-Ford in the top seven was the No. 11 Toyota of non-playoff driver Denny Hamlin in the sixth spot.

Joey Logano, who is already locked into the season finale at Homestead after his win at Martinsville last week, qualified eighth, with Kyle Busch 10th.

Two of the playoff contenders didn't make it into the final round of qualifying.

Martin Truex Jr., the defending Cup champion, to finish eighth.

POLE NUMBERS

Blaney won his third pole this season, and fifth in his career. It is his first in eight races at Texas.

WHO'S OUT: There were 41 cars on the entry list for 40 spots in the race. When the No. 66 Toyota of Timmy Hill didn't make a qualifying attempt, ensuring that local favorite David Starr got in the field. Starr qualified 40th.

qualified 13th and three spots ahead of Chase Elliott.

SHORT OF A RECORD

In qualifying at Texas last November, Busch ran 200.915 mph on his only lap in the final round of qualifying to set the track record. Five drivers qualified at more than 200 mph for that race.

OUT OF TOP 10 AGAIN

Elliott was the worst of the playoff qualifiers at Texas for the second year in a row. Last fall at Texas, seven of the eight championship contenders started in the top 10 spots. The only one that didn't was Elliott, who was among seven drivers who didn't make any qualifying laps after not making it through tech inspection in time. He started 34th, and went on

Thunder beat struggling Wizards for 4th straight win

WASHINGTON — Continuing their turnaround from a terrible season start, the Oklahoma City Thunder picked up their fourth consecutive victory by beating the struggling, booed-at-home Washington Wizards 134-111 behind Russell Westbrook's 23 points and 12 assists Friday night.

From 0-4 to 4-4, the Thunder are clicking right now, led by Westbrook, who missed the first two games after a procedure on his right knee and sat out the final quarter of the rout at Washington.

And even though OKC was the team playing on the second night of a back-to-back, it looked a lot fresher and more active than Washington, which was coming off a two-day break and finally got to see new center Dwight Howard return from a sore backside to make his debut. Howard had 20 points on 7-of-8 shooting, three rebounds and four fouls in 23 minutes.

The Wizards have lost four games in a row to drop to 1-7, and spectators let the players hear their displeasure in the second quarter.

Bradley Beal scored 27 points, and John Wall had 19 points and nine assists, but Washington's pair of All-Star guards also combined for 12 turnovers.

ROCKETS 119, NETS 111

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Paul had 32 points, 11 assists and seven rebounds, Carmelo Anthony added a season-high 28 points and Houston snapped a four-game losing streak.

Clint Capela finished with 22 points and 13 rebounds, and Eric Gordon had 21 points. The Rockets stumbled to a 1-5 start a season after winning 65 games and falling a game short of the NBA Finals.

They snapped out of their slump thanks to one of the best games as a Rocket for Paul, who had season bests in points and assists in the final game before his workload should ease Saturday with the expected return of James Harden. The league MVP missed his third straight game with a strained left hamstring and coach Mike D'Antoni said he would probably return for the second half of a back-to-back in Chicago.

Caris LeVert scored 29 points for the Nets.

PACERS 107, BULLS 105

CHICAGO (AP) — Victor Oladipo had 25 points and 14 rebounds, and Darren Collison made a tiebreaking jumper with 17.8 seconds left to help Indiana beat Chicago.

Myles Turner added 18 points and Indiana ran its road winning streak to five games. Turner also blocked six shots, including Antonio Blakeney's desperate jumper as the final seconds ticked off.

Blakeney led the Bulls with 22 points.

KNICKS 118, MAVERICKS 106

DALLAS (AP) — Allonzo Trier scored 19 of his career-high 23 points during a second-half surge and New York handed Dallas its sixth straight loss.

Tim Hardaway Jr. had 18 points and six rebounds to help the Knicks win for the second time in three games after a five-game skid that followed a victory in their opener.

Dennis Smith Jr. scored 23 points, and 19-year-old rookie Luka Doncic had 18 points, nine rebounds and six assists for the Mavericks.

GRIZZLIES 110, JAZZ 100

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mike Conley scored a season-high 28 points to lead Memphis past short-handed Utah.

Shelvin Mack, who played for Utah from 2015-17, had 19 points, and Marc Gasol added 17 points, 10 rebounds and seven assists.

Utah played without star guard Donovan Mitchell because of a right hamstring strain. Ricky Rubio led the Jazz with 22 points.

CLIPPERS 120, MAGIC 95

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Lou Williams was perfect on five 3-point attempts and scored 28 points to lead Los Angeles past Orlando.

Tobias Harris added 21 points to help the Clippers beat the Magic for the 10th straight time. Nikola Vucevic led Orlando with 22 points and 11 rebounds.

RAPTORS 107, SUNS 98

PHOENIX (AP) — Kawhi Leonard scored 19 points and Toronto used a 14-2 fourth-quarter run to finally put away pesky Phoenix.

Jonas Valanciunas added 16 points and Serge Ibaka 14 for the Raptors, who improved to 8-1, the best nine-game start in franchise history. Kyle Lowry had 11 points and 12 assists.

Deandre Ayton, the No. 1 overall pick in the draft, had 17 points and 18 rebounds for the Suns, losers of seven in a row since winning their season opener. Isaiah Canaan scored 19 and Devin Booker 18 for Phoenix. Booker returned after missing three games with a strained hamstring.

BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Washington outfielder Bryce Harper and Boston closer Craig Kimbrel were among just seven free agents who received $17.9 million qualifying offers from their former clubs Friday, when Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Clayton Kershaw agreed to a $93 million, three-year contract rather than test the market.

Left-handers Patrick Corbin (Arizona), Dallas Keuchel (Houston) and Hyun-Jin Ryu (Los Angeles Dodgers) also received qualifying offers as did outfielder A.J. Pollock (Diamondbacks) and catcher Yasmani Grandal (Dodgers).

Players have until Nov. 12 to accept. If a team makes a qualifying offer to a player who signs a major league contract with another club before the June amateur draft, his former club would receive a draft pick as compensation at the end of the first round.

Only five of 73 players given qualifying offers have accepted since the process began in 2012.

The Chicago Cubs exercised their $20 million option on left-hander Cole Hamels, who went 4-3 with a 2.36 ERA in 12 starts after he was acquired from Texas on July 27. The Cubs traded left-hander Drew Smyly to the Rangers, clearing his $7 million salary from the payroll. That is $1 million more than the Rangers would have owed the Cubs if Hamels' option had been declined, which would have triggered a $6 million buyout and allowed him to go free.

Kershaw terminated a $215 million, seven-year contract that had $65 million remaining at $32 million next year and $33 million in 2020. The new deal calls for a $23 million signing bonus, payable in equal installments on June 30 in each of the next three years, and annual salaries of $23,333,333. He can earn $4 million annually in performance bonuses.

Also Friday, the Dodgers made $17.9 million qualifying offers to two of their other free agents: pitcher Hyun-Jin Ryu and catcher Yasmani Grandal.

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers claimed reliever Jose Fernandez and infielder Brandon Dixon off waivers.

The team announced the moves Friday.

The 25-year-old Fernandez made his major league debut this year with Toronto, posting a 6.10 ERA in 13 relief appearances. He is 11-9 with a 3.55 ERA in 195 minor league appearances.

The 26-year-old Dixon made his big league debut with Cincinnati, hitting .178 this year in 74 games. He hit .346 in 49 games with Triple-A Louisville.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Braves did not extend a qualifying offer to any of their free agents, including cleanup hitter Nick Markakis.

If Atlanta had made $17.9 million, one-year offer to Markakis by Friday's deadline, it would have been in line to receive a draft pick if he signed elsewhere. But the team opted against such a move, not wanting to give the outfielder — who turns 35 this month — the option of taking such a lucrative deal.

While Markakis was a first-time All-Star who hit .297 with 14 homers and 93 RBIs, his production tailed off in the second half of the season.

BASKETBALL
CLEVELAND (AP) — Cavaliers All-Star forward Kevin Love will be out at least six weeks — and maybe longer — after surgery on his left foot.

Love had the operation on Friday in New York at the Hospital for Special Surgery. The team said his timeline to return to basketball activity will be updated in approximately six weeks.

The 30-year-old injured the big toe on his left foot during Cleveland's first exhibition game. He rested the injury, and played in the season's first few games before the pain became intolerable. Love said earlier this week that he was having trouble walking because of pain.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cavaliers say an age-discrimination lawsuit filed by former assistant coach Jim Boylan is "frivolous" and a "shameless cash grab."

Boylan filed a claim Thursday. The team did not pick up its contract option last summer on the 63-year-old Boylan, who spent five seasons with the team working on staffs under David Blatt and Tyronn Lue.

In his lawsuit, Boylan's attorney provided the transcript of a voicemail left by Lue telling him the team was moving in a different direction. Boylan also contends general manager Koby Altman told him owner Dan Gilbert wanted a younger coach.

On Friday, the Cavs released a strongly worded statement contesting Boylan's lawsuit and said it will "seek immediate dismissal of this disappointing, unwarranted and baseless claim."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's Cody Riley hurt his jaw at practice and will miss at least the first three weeks of the basketball season.

The school said Friday that Riley got hurt in practice Wednesday but didn't provide any details.

The redshirt freshman forward will be re-evaluated next week.

Riley was suspended all of last season after a shoplifting incident during a team trip to China. He decided to return to school after testing the NBA draft waters.

The No. 21 Bruins open the season Tuesday against Fort Wayne at Pauley Pavilion.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sugar Bowl chief executive officer Paul Hoolahan is retiring in June after overseeing one of college football's premier postseason events for a quarter century.

Chief Operating Officer Jeff Hundley has been named Hoolahan's successor.

Hoolahan, who announced his retirement on Friday, became the Sugar Bowl's sixth executive director in 1996 and has directed Sugar Bowl operations for five national championship games.

Hoolahan also helped forge deals locking the Sugar Bowl into four College Football Playoff semifinal games in 2015, '18, '21 and '24, and forged deals with the Southeastern Conference and Big 12 to bring each league's top non-playoff teams to the Sugar Bowl in years when the game is not designated as a semifinal.

HOCKEY
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Tampa Bay Lightning have signed forward Yanni Gourde to a six-year, $30,996,000 million contract.

The deal announced Friday is worth $5,166,000 per season and locks up the 26-year-old through 2024-25.

Gourde has four goals and eight assists, tied for second on the team for points. He is also tied the team lead with three power-play goals and two game-winning goals.

HORSE RACING
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Game Winner's latest triumph included bumps along the way.

The colt shook them off before shaking the field to remain perfect and make his case as the year's best 2-year-old.

Game Winner overcame an early bump to surge down the stretch, then pulled away from long shot Knicks Go after another nudge to win the Breeders' Cup Juvenile by 2 1/4 lengths Friday at Churchill Downs. That gave trainer Bob Baffert an early Kentucky Derby favorite just five months after winning his second Triple Crown with Justify.

Other Breeders' Cup winners:

— Line of Duty survived a lengthy post-race review before stewards upheld his half-length victory over Uncle Benny in the $1 million Juvenile Turf. Line of Duty charged from outside down the stretch to pass Some like it hot-brown and hold off Uncle Benny in a three-wide finish, giving the Irish colt his third consecutive win after two seconds.

— Newspaper of record rolled to another dominant victory, pulling away down the stretch for a 6 3/4-length win over East in the $1 million Juvenile Filly Turf. The Irish bred improved to 3-0 lifetime, winning each time by at least six lengths.

— Bulletin opened the Breeders' Cup by pulling away to a 2 3/4-length victory over Chelsea Cloisters in the $1 million inaugural Juvenile Turf Sprint, earning a graded stakes win in just his second career start. It gave co-owners Winstar Farm and China Horse Farm another significant win six months after claiming the Derby with Justify.

GYMNASTICS
DOHA, Qatar (AP) — Simone Biles made history by picking up her record 13th career gold medal at the world gymnastics championships when she cruised to victory in the vault final on Friday.

Yet it's the silver she captured on uneven bars that the Olympic and world champion may cherish more.

For years Biles viewed bars with a mixture of skepticism and scorn. There was a point in time she admits she would have been OK with taking a "chainsaw" to every bars set in the country.

Those days are over. Helped in part by the influence of new head coach Laurent Landi, Biles now considers the event a challenge more than a chore. Maybe that's why the smile on the podium during the medal ceremony after she came in second to Belgium's Nina Derwael was so wide.

AUTO RACING
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Chevrolet will update the Camaro SS Coupe raced in the Xfinity Series and its Silverado used in the Truck Series for NASCAR competition next season.

Senior Fun Festival

By AMBER MANSFIELD

Staff Writer

Health is something that shouldn't be overlooked for yourself or a loved one. As life goes, the older you get the more prone you may be to getting more health problems. That's why the Senior Citizens Center hosted their Senior Funfest on Friday, Nov. 2, at the Dora Roberts Community Center at 100 Whipkey Dr., from 9 a.m. to noon.

The Senior Funfest offered a variety of booths that featured free health screenings and valuable information about area resources for our senior citizen population, door prizes, games, and more.

Becky Letz, Senior Citizens Center Coordinator, stated, "We had around 25 tables that registered. Just to name a few, we have several Home Health's, SMMC, Hospices, the Retirement Homes, Nalley-Pickle and Welch, the Veteran's Home, and the Texas Department of State Health Services also gave out flu shots to the public."

This event was open to all senior adults in the area with free admission.

"There is no cost on health. Health is something that shouldn't be overlooked for yourself or a loved one," said Letz.

Letz also detailed some of the other health services available at the festival.

"At the Funfest, some also offered blood pressure checks, O2 stats, maybe glucose checks, and information about their organization," she said. "There were also door prizes and games as well. One reason that we do this is so the public can see what's all available locally and in the surrounding areas as far as health care, nursing, home care and more."

The mission at the Big Spring Senior Center is to provide, develop and oversee programs relating to senior adult issues. They provide volunteer experiences, address health education, nutrition, health and other information that will enrich and help prolong independent living among our senior population.

It's never too late to start living a healthy life and making sure your body is working at it's fullest. We only get one body, so make sure you treat yours right, and go get health checks regularly. Love you and your body!

Amber's Appetite

Im amazed to see how the number of "Mexican" eateries has grown. It seems people just cannot get enough of Mexican food which would be all right and proper if they were actually eating Mexican food which, in general, they are not. Though one place in town has original Mexican food, that guest can tell after one bite, this ain't no Tex-Mex food. I hope you're hungry, this fajita burrito plate is so simple, but the flavors are anything but simple. You can tell love goes into making this delicious juicy pork meat, with all the fixings on the side, and good Mexican dinner isn't complete unless it's got a cool crisp drink to go along with it.

This meal can be found at Evita's Fine Mexican Cuisine.

Roger's Review: Bohemian Rhapsody

During his 45 years of life, he rocked us and made us feel like the champions of the world...and also made us feel the tragedy of the phrase "nothing really matters to me."

ROGER CLINE

Farrokh Bulsara, known to the world as Freddie Mercury, lead singer of the band Queen, was simultaneously fearless and full of fear, inspiring and impossible. Now there's a new movie out about Mercury and Queen named for one of the band's greatest hits: "Bohemian Rhapsody."

I'm going to preface this by saying I didn't know a lot of the backstory about Queen before this movie, so I'm not the best authority to speak on "Bohemian Rhapsody's" historical accuracy. I am a big fan of the music, however, and from that standpoint, I have to say I loved the movie.

For instance, I think I had vaguely heard and forgotten that Freddie Mercury was originally from some exotic locale prior to moving to England. At the age of 18 he moved to the United Kingdom with his parents and sister from Zanzibar.

He had four extra incisors, causing his extreme overbite. In the movie, he credited the extra teeth with expanding his mouth, creating more resonance in his singing.

The movie begins with Freddie Bulsara (Rami Malek) heading down to a club to hear a band called Smile. The set didn't go well, and the lead singer Tim Staffell (Jack Roth) left to join another band called Humpy Bong. Freddie offers to take Staffell's place, and the other members of Smile – Brian May (Gwilym Lee) and Roger Taylor (Ben Hardy) – were initially dismissive until Freddie broke into song, quelling all their doubts.

Freddie meets Mary Austin (Lucy Boynton) at the club, and they become friends and lovers when he tracks her down at her store clerk job.

The movie shows Queen's meteoric rise to stardom, various concerts and tours, Freddy and Mary's romantic breakup when he discloses his homosexuality, the band's breakup in the early '80s when Freddy wants to explore a solo career, and their eventual reuniting for the Live Aid concert in 1985.

Of course, the best part of the movie is the music, featuring the eponymous "Bohemian Rhapsody," "Somebody to Love," "Killer Queen," "Crazy Little Thing Called Love," "Love of My Life," "We Will Rock You," "Another One Bites the Dust," "I Want To Break Free," "Under Pressure," "Who Wants To Live Forever," "Radio Ga Ga," and "We Are the Champions," among others.

Other characters portrayed in the film include Queen bassist John Deacon (Joseph Mazzello), Queen manager John Reid (Aidan Gillen), Queen lawyer/manager Jim "Miami" Beach (Tom Hollander), Freddie Mercury's lover and personal manager Paul Prenter (Allen Leech), EMI executive Ray Foster (Mike Myers), Freddie Mercury's boyfriend Jim Hutton (Aaron McCusker), Bob Geldof (Dermot Murphy), Freddie's parents Jer and Bomi Bulsara (Meneka Das and Ace Bhatti), Freddie's sister Kashmira (Priya Blackburn), and Mary's boyfriend after the breakup David (Max Bennett).

Fans of Queen's music will enjoy this film. It doesn't delve too deeply into Freddie's faults, instead choosing to portray him as a musical genius and flamboyant performer who loses his way for a while before reuniting with his Queen family.

While some might prefer a deeper exploration of Mercury's complexities, this film is meant as a celebration of his life and his music. I was not bored once during the film's 2:14 running time, and that's more than I can say for many shorter, more action-oriented movies this year. Nine and a half stars out of 10.

Exxon 3Q profit surges on higher energy prices

By DAVID KOENIG

AP Business Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Higher oil prices propelled Exxon's third-quarter profit up 57 percent to $6.24 billion despite another drop in production.

It was Exxon's best third quarter since 2014, when the effects of a collapse in oil prices had not yet been felt, and a sign that Big Oil is coming back. Rival Chevron Corp. reported a doubling of quarterly profit, to $4 billion.

Citi analysts said Exxon showed improved results Friday in both its production and refining segments, which "helps support the case that the business is turning."

Oil companies are being boosted by rising crude prices. Brent, the benchmark for international oil, is up about 16 percent from a year ago, even with a dip in the last month, and the U.S. standard, West Texas intermediate, is up about 13 percent.

Shares of Exxon Mobil Corp. rose $1.28 to close at $81.95.

While profit soared, Exxon's production continued to slide. Overall output declined 2.4 percent compared with last year's third quarter largely because of falling production of natural gas in the United States and Europe. That continued a theme of the past couple years, in which the oil giant has struggled to maintain its production pace.

Still, it was an improvement over weak second-quarter production. And it was better than analysts expected, breaking a string of six straight misses on quarterly production, according to CFRA Research.

Exxon, like other oil giants, cut investment in big projects after prices began to collapse in mid-2014. It also suffered setbacks on some projects. Earlier this year, Exxon dropped a major oil-exploration deal in Russia after U.S. sanctions against Russia prevented the company from expanding the project.

As oil prices have rebounded, Exxon has increased capital spending. The company is upbeat about its prospects off the coast of Guyana, where it has drilled several exploratory wells, and Brazil, where it has increased its stake in an offshore basin to about 2.3 million acres. ExxonMobil will be the operator and own a 64 percent stake in the Brazilian block.

At home, Exxon has stepped up activity in the oil-rich Permian Basin of Texas and New Mexico. Chairman and CEO Darren Woods said the company expects to increase output over time as it increases drilling in the Permian and starts pumping oil and gas from new projects.

Exxon's drilling in the U.S. is increasingly "unconventional" in nature, using hydraulic fracturing and horizontal drilling to pull more oil and gas from shale formations underground. The shale revolution, as it is called, has pushed U.S. production to record levels and made the United States the world's leading oil producer, ahead of both Russia and Saudi Arabia.

Unconventional drilling is more expensive, however, and some analysts believe that shale output will be under pressure if a very recent dip in oil prices continues.

The U.S. benchmark has retreated from around $76 to about $63 since early October. If oil falls much further, energy analyst Phil Flynn said Friday, "you can forget about increasing shale output in the future. Most shale oil producers were having a hard time making money when prices were above $70."

Senior vice president Jack Williams told analysts that as new projects come online, Exxon will consider selling other oil and gas assets in North America that "might be worth more to somebody else than it is to us." He declined to name facilities that might be sold or say how quickly that could happen.

Exxon, based in Irving, Texas, earned $1.46 per share. Unlike many companies, Exxon does not adjust its earnings per share to exclude one-time gains such as the sale of about 1,000 Esso service stations in Germany. It received proceeds from that sale on the last day of the quarter, part of $1.5 billion in asset sales during the period. The average forecast among seven analysts surveyed by Zacks Investment Research was for earnings of $1.21 per share.

Revenue rose 25 percent to $76.61 billion in the period. Three analysts surveyed by Zacks expected $72.45 billion.

Exxon shares have fallen 2 percent since the beginning of the year, compared with a 2 percent rise in the Standard & Poor's 500 index in that time.

US economy looks strong heading into congressional elections

AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a U.S. economic expansion now in its 10th year, hiring remains robust, growth has picked up and the outlook is a mostly bright one on the eve of congressional elections.

On Friday, the government reported that employers added a strong 250,000 jobs in October and that the unemployment rate remained 3.7 percent, the lowest level in nearly 50 years. Pay also rose at a healthy pace. Consumers are confident, spending freely, fueling brisk economic growth and encouraging employers to keep hiring.

One surprising element of the mid-term campaign season has been how little the sunny economic picture appears to be benefiting President Donald Trump and Republican congressional candidates. Polls show that while voters broadly approve of the economy, they give low ratings to Trump himself. Many appear motivated by non-economic factors. And nationally, voters prefer Democrats to Republicans in elections for the House, according to surveys of voters' generic preferences.

ECONOMY

Here are five gauges of the U.S. economy as Election Day nears:

WAGES REV UP

Many employers have long complained that they can't find enough workers to fill jobs. But in recent months it appears they have finally taken the step economists have long recommended: Pay more. Average hourly earnings rose 3.1 percent in October from a year earlier, the sharpest year-over-year gain since 2009.

Inflation has also increased in the past year, eroding some of the value of that increase. And a storm-related drop in average wages a year ago, resulting from Hurricane Harvey, helped inflate October's gain. Still, the pay growth suggests that the benefits of a healthy economy are rippling out to more people.

MORE JOBS AT HIGHER PAY MEANS MORE PEOPLE WORKING

With the unemployment rate so low, many economists have expected hiring to decline as businesses face a dwindling supply of unemployed people. Yet that hasn't happened. Average monthly hiring this year is above the pace of 2017.

The vigor of the job market is helping lead some Americans who were neither working nor looking for work to begin seeking a job. (People who don't have a job aren't counted as unemployed unless they're actively looking for work.) In October, the proportion of Americans with jobs reached its highest level in 10 years.

Many of employers' most recent hires had struggled through much of the nation's 10-year recovery from the Great Recession. The proportion of people without a high school diploma who are now working is the highest on records dating to 1992. And the proportion of teenagers with jobs is at the highest level in a decade.

CONSUMERS SPENDING FREELY

More jobs at higher pay have helped underpin a burst of consumer spending. The Trump administration's tax cuts have likely also contributed. Americans increased their spending by 4 percent in the July-September quarter, the biggest acceleration in nearly four years. That spending helped the economy grow at a 3.5 percent annual rate last quarter.

Yet Americans are still saving a decent chunk of their income, with little sign that most people are amassing a risky level of debt. Savings equaled roughly 6.4 percent of income in the third quarter, up from a low of 2.5 percent in 2005.

HOUSING IS A WEAK SPOT

Rising borrowing costs are weighing on home sales, providing a preview of what might happen in the economy more broadly as interest rates rise and make loans more expensive.

The Federal Reserve has been raising short-term rates to try to prevent the economy and inflation from expanding too fast. The Fed's credit tightening has led to higher rates for the average 30-year fixed mortgage — 4.8 percent, up from 3.9 percent a year ago.

As mortgage rates have risen, coinciding with higher home prices, sales of existing homes have fallen for six straight months. The Fed is expected to raise rates for a fourth time this year in December, and economists expect at least two further hikes next year.

OTHER SHADOWS LOOM

Businesses are nearly as optimistic as consumers. But they aren't spending as rapidly. Corporate investment in machinery, computers and other equipment barely rose in the July-September quarter, after two quarters of solid gains.

Spending on factories and other buildings fell. Some of the third quarter's weakness reflected lower spending on oil and gas drilling equipment as oil prices fell.

But it also suggests that the Trump administration's tax cuts for businesses haven't spurred as much investment spending as the administration had predicted. More investment in machinery and computers would help make the workforce more efficient and spur faster growth.

Surveys of manufacturers suggest that Trump's trade war with China may have caused some of them to delay purchases of new equipment. Higher tariffs on Chinese imports have raised costs for many manufacturers.

For all the positive news, these trends have caused many economists to forecast slower growth in the final months of this year and into 2019. The economy appears on track to expand 3 percent this year, the fastest since 2005. But Fed policymakers expect growth to slide to 2.5 percent rate next year and to 2 percent in 2020.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Opening lead — king of diamonds.
Special circumstances sometimes force declarer to abandon the normal way to play a suit. One of the most important reasons for this is to try to prevent a particular defender from gaining the lead.

Take this case where West leads the diamond king against four hearts. When dummy comes down, South sees there are two possible losers in spades, two more in trumps and another in diamonds. If he loses all of them, he goes down two.

On the more positive side, however, declarer notes that he is far more likely to lose one trump trick than two. Furthermore, if everything goes well, he may also be able to discard a loser or two on dummy's clubs.

The problem for South from the start is to keep the defenders from scoring four tricks before he can take 10. To this end, he must find a way to stop East from gaining the lead and returning a spade through the king.

Accordingly, declarer ducks West's king of diamonds at trick one to make sure East can't later win a trick with a diamond. After West exits with a diamond to dummy's ace, South's next concern is how to tackle the trumps.

Ordinarily, with this trump combination, declarer might play the ace and another heart. But here, given the circumstances, there is too much danger that East might gain the lead with the king. So at trick three, declarer leads dummy's trump seven and lets it ride after East plays low.

West wins with the jack but is helpless. Whatever he returns, South picks up East's king on the next trump lead and easily makes the contract. In fact, if West does not cash his ace of spades after winning the trump jack, declarer finishes with an over-trick.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Holiday Mathis

Cosmic Symbolism

The symbol for a thing might as well be the thing. What happens to the symbol will be accurately reflected by real life under a Libra moon keen on balancing the figurative and actual worlds. Do keep in mind that symbolism is a mental creation. The significance doesn't exist without the connections and meanings we assign, so assign them well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Argue for your limitations and sure enough they are yours. But today, you'll do the opposite. Believing it's going to be easy for you, you'll magically make it so.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Relax. Life is an easy flow, and all you have to do is go with it. As for your guilty pleasures, consider categorically rejecting the definition. Is there really a good reason to feel guilty about what pleases you?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You don't have to go out of your way to do something original; just do what comes naturally. You cannot help but make a unique imprint on the world. Being different isn't bad or good; it's just different.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Anyone who is controlling, interrogating or dominating could present an infringement of your emotional space. Widen your boundaries to put more distance between you and intruding energies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The challenge of the week is to turn your idea into an event that's on everyone's calendar. The magic will happen in the planning stage, which may take more time than the actual event.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The energy of pushing and pursuing just doesn't suit you today. Hang back and play it cool -- because the moment a dance becomes a chase, it ceases to be fun for both parties.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Promptness is the unsung virtue of the day, as no one gives awards for being on time. But those who are late cause the next person to be late -- and on and on. So one prompt move can save a lot of people from having to wait around.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You may find yourself attracted to complexity in all things, but especially when it comes to people. You get a spark of excitement from the prospect of figuring out the puzzle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The twists and turns of this day will make good storytelling fodder later. You've the good fortune to have people in your life who thrill to hear your stories and eagerly anticipate your next one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). There is such beauty in simplicity that you cannot imagine why a person might make life more complicated than it needs to be. Get rid of what you won't use, and avoid acquiring what you don't need.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It takes two to have a relationship; therefore, neither party can entirely control how things work out. But by following through on harmonious intentions, much good will be accomplished.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). All that happens in your social life will be to your benefit. Even circumstances that seem unfavorable will prove over time to be beneficial in ways you wouldn't have guessed.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Nov. 4). You see real progress in your personal life when it comes to figuring out how to take care of yourself and living in a way that makes you stronger by the day. As you focus on the good, your bad habits become less pervasive, fading away all on their own. Also notable: You'll make marvelous money with a new venture. Gemini and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 6, 20, 17 and 44.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The Scorpio new moon in the middle of the week will serve as the marker between "before" and "after." This is the moon of metamorphosis. Note that you don't have to be displeased with yourself or reject who you are to upgrade to the next version. It's more a function of natural progression, a process that you might as well surrender to, as it will come either way. Picture yourself as the person you'd like to be. The universe is like a hairdresser ready to give you a new look. You're like the smart client who brings a picture of the desired cut and style to guide the process toward a pleasing end.

a message to your body that you are in danger -- that there is some kind of threat gunning for you -- and there goes your relaxed chemistry. The relaxed chemistry is better, of course -- vital, attractive, healthy -- so what do you do to get it back? Face your fear. No fear equals no stress. Fortune favors the brave.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Matthew McConaughey stars in "White Boy Rick," a crime drama based on the true story of a teenage FBI informant. True to his Scorpio sun sign, McConaughey is a master of transformation, whether losing weight to play a dying man in "Dallas Buyers Club" or losing layers of darkness to light up a romantic comedy. McConaughey was born when the moon and Pluto were in disciplined Virgo.

Annie's Mailbox

Overboard Cat Lady

Dear Annie: I am writing about a friend I've had for 35 years. My friend is 60 years old. She has two sons, neither of whom are married or have children. About 10 years ago, she started "rescuing" cats. Her husband built a cat home in the backyard to hold the 17 feral cats she has collected. Another six cats sleep with her in bed at night, and her husband now sleeps in another room with a different cat. Her life is consumed with caring for the cats, searching the internet for other rescue animals and looking for stray animals. She lost one job because this was interfering with her work.

She has a part-time job, and her husband is employed, but a lot of their income is used for veterinary bills, cat food and other things related to the cats. She even has set up crowdfunding campaigns a couple of times for vet bills and food for her cats. Her husband seems to be going along to keep the peace.

I told her that I am concerned about her and asked whether she would consider seeking psychiatric advice. She did not think this was necessary. This has put a great strain on our relationship, to the point that there is no contact any longer. I cannot relate to what she is doing. Her house is a mess -- with cat toys, cat trees and cat beds everywhere -- and it sometimes reeks of cat urine. She thinks all the cats are her babies.

Am I wrong to think this is not normal? Should I just accept her and ignore everything else? Have I lost a friend? -- Concerning Cat Lady

Dear Concerning Cat Lady: You have not lost a friend. Your friend has lost herself -- but she's incapable of seeing it right now, as she is in the throes of the compulsive and unhealthy behavior that is animal hoarding. The following are signs that someone is an animal hoarder, from the ASPCA: "They have numerous animals and may not know the total number of animals in their care.

"Their home is deteriorated (i.e., dirty windows, broken furniture, holes in wall and floor, extreme clutter).

"There is a strong smell of ammonia, and floors may be covered with dried feces, urine, vomit, etc."

If that describes your friend, as I believe it does, it's time for you to initiate an intervention, for the sake of her health, her husband's health and the cats' health. Contact your local humane law enforcement agency, veterinarian or police department to start the process of getting your friend the help she needs. For more information on animal hoarding and how to help, visit https://www.asPCA.org/animal-cruelty/animal-hoarding/closer-look-animal-hoarding.

Dear Annie: You had good suggestions for people who are no longer as active after a loved one's passing. After using those tools, they should check out their local senior center; in our city, it is called Active Generations. Membership dues are less than $40 per year for us. Our center has 16 to 18 card and game clubs, plus 20 other clubs that meet during the month. It also has a first-rate exercise room, a billiards room, a library and noon meals. There are many volunteer positions available. It is a place to meet new friends. -- Single Senior

Dear Single Senior: Just $40 for a year's worth of fun, friends and food? Sounds like a bargain to me. Thanks for the tip.

Uber wants to resume self-driving car tests on public roads

By TOM KRISHER

AP Auto Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Nearly eight months after one of its autonomous test vehicles hit and killed an Arizona pedestrian, Uber wants to resume testing on public roads.

The company has filed an application on with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation to test in Pittsburgh, and it has issued a lengthy safety report pledging to put two human backup drivers in each vehicle and take a raft of other precautions to make the vehicles safe.

Company officials acknowledge they have a long way to go to regain public trust after the March 18 crash in Tempe, Arizona, that killed Elaine Herzberg, 49, as she crossed a darkened road outside the lines of a crosswalk.

Police said Uber's backup driver in the autonomous Volvo SUV was streaming the television show "The Voice" on her phone and looking downward before crash. The National Transportation Safety Board said the autonomous driving system on the Volvo spotted Herzberg about six seconds before hitting her, but did not stop because the system used to automatically apply brakes in potentially dangerous situations had been disabled. A Volvo emergency braking system also had been turned off.

"Our goal is to really work to regain that trust and to work to help move the entire industry forward," Noah Zych, Uber's head of system safety for self-driving cars, said in an interview. "We think the right thing to do is to be open and transparent about the things that we are doing."

Among the other precautions Uber will take are keeping the autonomous vehicle system engaged at all times and activating the Volvo's automatic emergency braking system as a backup.

In addition, Uber is requiring more technical training and expertise of employees sitting behind the wheel of the vehicles, according to a 70-page safety report the company released Friday.

The report comes after the ride-hailing company shut down autonomous vehicle testing to do an internal review of its safety procedures, as well as an outside review by risk management firm LeClairRyan.

Pennsylvania law at present does not allow testing of autonomous vehicles without human backup drivers. Google's Waymo already is carrying passengers in the Phoenix area without human drivers, and

UBER

General Motors' Cruise Automation expects to do that next year.

Under Pennsylvania's voluntary autonomous guidelines, the Transportation Department has until Nov. 13 to approve or deny Uber's application, or to ask further questions.

The city of Pittsburgh can't legally prevent testing, but is in safety talks with Uber and four other entities that have permits to test autonomous vehicles, said Karina Ricks, Pittsburgh's director of the Department of Mobility and Infrastructure.

For instance, the city wants to limit self-driving vehicle speeds to 25 miles per hour in urban settings, even if the posted speed is higher.

"Lower rates of speed give more time for the vehicle and the safety driver to react and prevent a crash," said Ricks, who characterized the talks as fruitful.

Uber said it is focused on restarting tests in Pittsburgh, where it has an autonomous vehicle development center. Later it will discuss resumption in Arizona, California and Toronto, Ontario, its other test sites. Arizona suspended the company's permission to test after the crash.

Herzberg's death was the first involving a fully autonomous vehicle, raising questions about the safety of computer-controlled cars being built by Uber and dozens of other companies.

Uber took the first step toward resuming tests in Pittsburgh in July when it put vehicles on the road with safety modifications and additional driver training. But the cars were not free of human control, nor did they respond to ride-hailing calls.

"We are engaging with the city, with the officials, and are very eager, I think, to ensure that we make a return to the road in self-driving mode in consultation and close partnership with them," said Miriam Chaum, head of public policy for Uber's self-driving vehicles.

The company also promised in its reports that it would reduce the time delay between when its autonomous vehicle sensors spot a person or object and action is taken by its computer system. Uber said it improved its performance of its system so it can better predict what a person, vehicle or other object will do as the autonomous vehicle approaches. "We are now able to detect objects and actors sooner and execute safe reactions faster," the company said in a report.

Backup drivers will now be interviewed about safety before they're hired. They'll also be monitored by a camera in real time to ensure they're paying attention, Zych said.

The company, he said, wants to resume testing in a "responsible manner," and is not looking at carrying passengers with autonomous vehicles at this point. If approved, the company would start with a small number of vehicles, Zych said.

It's clear from the reports that Uber has continued work on self-driving vehicles even while it suspended testing. But the suspension has cost the company critical real-world test time that rivals Waymo and Cruise Automation have been able to gather.

US regulators subpoenaed Tesla production data, company says

By TOM KRISHER

AP Auto Writer

DETROIT (AP) — U.S. securities investigators have subpoenaed information from Tesla about production forecasts for the Model 3 electric car that were made last year, the company acknowledged in a regulatory filing Friday.

The disclosure in Tesla's quarterly financial report also says the Securities and Exchange Commission subpoena covered other public statements made about Model 3 production.

The filing adds that Tesla is cooperating with a Justice Department request for information about Model 3 forecasts.

It's the first time Tesla has formally disclosed the SEC subpoena in a regulatory filing, but there have been widespread news reports about its investigation into production forecasts.

The Model 3 is a central part of Tesla's plan to expand from a niche player in the luxury segment to a car maker with broader appeal. It's also key to the company's cash flow and pledge to make quarterly net profits into the future. In 2017 and this year, Tesla had trouble producing the cars, drawing a lawsuit from investors who said they were misled by CEO Elon Musk's production targets.

Early last year the Palo Alto, California, company announced plans to produce up to 5,000 Model 3s a week by the end of 2017. But the company fell far short due to problems with automation at its Fremont, California, factory, making just 793 in the last week of 2017 and 2,700 for the entire year. It didn't hit the 5,000-a-week target until June 2018.

The Wall Street Journal reported last month that the FBI is doing a criminal investigation into whether Tesla misled investors by overstating Model 3 production forecasts.

Tesla Inc. says in the filing that to its knowledge, no government agency in an ongoing investigation has determined that it did anything wrong.

A company spokesman wouldn't comment beyond the filing. Neither the Justice Department nor the SEC would comment Friday.

In September, Tesla settled a civil lawsuit by the SEC over tweets by Musk that funding was in place to take the company private. Musk and Tesla agreed to pay a combined $40 million without acknowledging or denying wrongdoing.

"Aside from the settlement with the SEC relating to Mr. Musk's statement that he was considering taking Tesla private, there have not been any developments in these matters that we deem to be material," the company wrote in the filing.

But the company also says if the government decides to take enforcement action "there exists the possibility of a material adverse impact on our business, results of operation, prospects, cash flows, and financial position."

Last month Tesla reported a $311.5 million profit for the July-through-September period, its first quarterly profit in two years. The company said

Guitarist Jimmy Page looks back at 50 years of Led Zeppelin

By ANDREW DALTON

AP Entertainment Writer

CORONA, Calif. — Jimmy Page once painted a dragon, and used it to slay.

The guitar guru was so bursting with creative inspiration 50 years ago that he felt compelled to pick up a brush and use his skills from art school to take poster paints to his favorite instrument, a 1959 Fender Telecaster, and decorate it with a psychedelic beast.

He calls the axe "the Excalibur" that he wielded through the wildly eventful year of 1968, when his old band, the Yardbirds, crashed, and his new band, Led Zeppelin, was born just two months later.

"My whole life is moving so fast at that point," Page, now 74, said as he reflected on Led Zeppelin's 50th anniversary in an interview with The Associated Press at the Fender guitar factory in California. "Absolutely just a roller-coaster ride."

Page said he had Led Zeppelin's sound, and first songs, fully formed in his mind before the Yardbirds were even done.

"I just knew what way to go," Page said. "It was in my instinct."

He found his first ally in singer Robert Plant, whom he invited to his house to thumb through records and talk music.

Page said he used an unlikely bit of folkie inspiration — Joan Baez — to show Plant the sound he wanted, playing her recording of the song "Babe I'm Gonna Leave You" and telling him to emulate the way she sang the top line of the song. Zeppelin would put the tune on its first album.

Page still marvels at how fast the whole thing took off after Plant brought on drummer John Bonham and Page pulled in his friend John Paul Jones to play bass.

This Oct. 10, 2018 photo shows Jimmy Page posing for a portrait at the Fender Factory in Corona, Calif. Page reflects on the wild year of 1968, when the Yardbirds crashed and Led Zeppelin was born.

"The whole journey of Led Zeppelin and the rise of Led Zeppelin, each tour was just extraordinary, and the growth and the respect and love of the band, and the people that were flooding to see us," Page said.

The first record also included "Dazed and Confused," with Page famously using a violin bow on the dragon guitar, which he played on every electric song on the record.

The guitar had been a cherished gift that guitarist Jeff Beck had given Page to thank him for recommending Beck for a job in the Yardbirds, which had brought a handsome payday.

"He'd bought a Corvette Stingray, and came roaring up my driveway with it," Page remembered. "He said, 'This is yours.' I was absolutely thrilled to bits. It was given to me with so much affection."

Page said he made immediate and intense use of the instrument, and wanted to "consecrate" it, so he went at it with paints that were used at the time for psychedelic posters, and summoned the dragon.

When he returned, exhausted and abuzz, he found that a ceramicist friend who had been serving as his house-sitter had painted over the dragon in his own mosaic style as a "gift" for Page.

"It was a disaster," he said.

Page angrily stripped off all the paint and he placed it in storage, where it sat for decades.

Flash forward 50 years. Page was assembling a book for the band's anniversary, and the dragon guitar kept popping up in pictures.

Page felt that maybe it was time to bring the old beast back to life. He worked with a graphic artist who helped illustrate the book, using photos to repaint the guitar, and recreate its old look.

He loved the result so much that he approached Fender, guitar maker happily signed on to make an anniversary rendition for the public. The design will be unveiled in January.

"It's absolutely identical," Page said. "You wouldn't see any difference. If anything, the colors were just slightly richer."

Four different versions of the guitar will be released next year.

Maggie Lawson may not be a “Lethal Weapon” herself, but she’s lending support to one.

A familiar face from such series as “Psych,” “Angel From Hell” and “Back in the Game,” the actress signed up along with Seann William Scott for the current third season of Fox’s Tuesday series spinoff of the popular police-adventure movie franchise. Lawson recurs as emergency-room surgeon Natalie Flynn, ex-girlfriend of Wesley Cole (Scott), the new partner of Roger Murtaugh (Damon Wayans Sr.) – and parent of a young daughter with Cole.

“It was a no-brainer,” the lively, friendly Lawson recalls of taking the part. “I sat down with Matt (series executive producer Miller) and Seann for this fantastic meeting, then I got to read the (first new) script and I was like, ‘Yes! I’m in!’ I love how they’re writing this character and the stuff with Seann, who is so sweet. I just knew, ‘I want to work with these people. I want to be a part of this.’”

Though humorous projects have been her mainstay, Lawson appreciates the chance “Lethal Weapon” gives her for drama: “Actually, I’d been looking for something like this. It’s been a while, and even though I did get opportunities to do some more-dramatic stuff on ‘Psych,’ it really has been comedy for me since that ended. That was also really exciting to me, so this has been wonderful on so many levels.”

Also the co-founder of the nonprofit Tiger Frances Foundation, which matches abused animals with caring youngsters, Lawson likes playing a mother again. She praises co-star Shay Rudolph, alias Natalie’s daughter Maya, as “just a dream. She’s so smart and so good, what a treat it is to work with her.”

BY GEORGE DICKIE

We often think of cookies as something baked in Grandma's oven and consumed with milk, not a confection created with the help of a drone.

But that is exactly what Brenda Nibley and Alisha Nuttall do in "Holiday Cookie Builds." Premiering Friday, Nov. 9, on Cooking Channel, the six-episode half hour series shows the two Utah bakers coming up with creative designs made from cookie dough for their clients, be it a life-size monitor lizard, a replica of a local Main Street, a five-foot-tall nutcracker or a scale model of Salt Lake City's famous clock tower.

For this, Nibley needed aerial photos of the 256-foot-high structure's upper reaches so she could be as architecturally accurate as possible with her design. And for that, she uses a drone.

"I fly the drone above it as if the piece of architecture or whatever I'm looking at is on the table below me and I'm working on it," she explains. "And that helps me to really put things into perspective as far as what I'm building. That's just a trick that I have. ... Because when I'm on the ground taking pictures, the roof that I'm going to be making on a house that we're making looks so much different when you're actually above it and looking at it from that perspective.

So it's just kind of necessary. Everything that we would build would actually be pretty flat if it was a building."

That build, which turns up later in the season, was a success, according to Nibley. But the project that gave them the most trouble appears in Friday's premiere, in which they make a turkey.

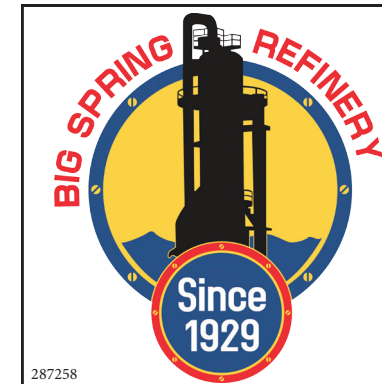

"Without giving anything away, the turkey's pretty bottom-heavy and on skinny little legs and there were some things that happened," Nibley admits with a laugh. "... And that's the thing. I mean, bad things happened, but we always are laughing through them because it was so outrageous. You can't believe that you're holding a turkey bottom in your hands and it all depends on whether or not you can keep it stable.

"We built a simple frame," she continues, "and then ... we actually used a little bit of foam in this one to give it sort of a solid base. But we layered lots and lots of teeny, tiny little cookies to be cookie feathers - turkey feathers - and that was really fun and a new challenge for all of us.

"And at first, I think we were looking at it going, 'There's no way this is going to work out.' But as we just kept putting on the layers of things, it just turned out beautifully."

The sky's the creative limit on Cooking Channel's 'Holiday Cookie Builds'
