WEEKEND EDITION, JUNE 15-16, 2019

VOLUME 114, NUMBER 208      COPYRIGHT 2019      75 CENTS DAILY/$1.25 SUNDAY

VA, Medrano's, sponsoring Veterans' Father's Day bash

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

Medrano's Oil Change has teamed up with the West Texas VA Center in Big Spring to ensure local veteran's won't be celebrating Father's Day alone. The annual Father's Day luncheon is scheduled for Sunday, from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. outside the VA.

"This is just a little something that we can do to say thank you to our veterans," Mario Medrano, one of the event organizers, said.

The luncheon is focused on the veterans who are currently living in the Community Living Center and the Domiciliary, but all local veterans are welcome to attend.

"Several of these veterans don't have family that is able to come visit and we want to make sure they are not spending Father's Day alone," Medrano said. "We encourage the community to come out, for veterans and their families to come out. This is a great way to just sit and talk with our veterans who have given so much for us."

This year, in addition to the lunch provided by Medrano's, the Loco Motives will be providing music from Noon until 2 p.m.

The community is invited to come out and join the luncheon, speak with the veterans and help them celebrate Father's Day.

Honoring the cowboy way of life

17th annual Legends and Legacies to honor new Hall of Fame inductees

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

Roots run deep in cowboy history around Howard County.

Once again, Legends and Legacies – by the Heritage Museum – will be hosting the annual fundraiser on June 18 at 6 p.m. The event will once again take place at the Rodeo Arena Fair Barn.

Partnered with the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, the Heritage Museum kicks off rodeo week activities with a fundraiser that started 17 years ago.

"Every year Legends and Legacies – Cowboy/Cowgirl Hall of Fame gains momentum," Tammy Schrecengost, Museum Director, said. "This is a wonderful opportunity to honor, as well as explore, the roots of Big Spring's Western heritage."

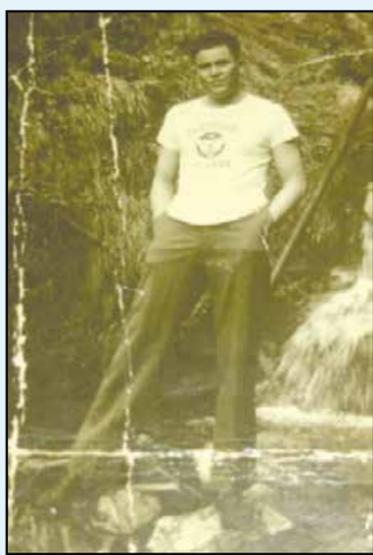

The event includes dinner – fish/chicken fry – door prizes and an auction. This year, the auction will include a basket auction and historic shadow box along with a drawing for cash. Several local merchants have contributed to the stock of door prizes.

"Through this recognition, the Heritage Museum seeks to memorialize those men and women who have, through their exemplary lives, careers and achievements, embodied and perpetuated the heritage of the Cowboy/Cowgirl," she said. "Each inductee will be honored for their contributions that make up the past, present and future of Howard County."

This year, inductees will include: Martin Fryar, R.G. & Cheryl Click, Terry Himes, Jack Buchanan, and Kenny Thompson. This year's Cowboy Legend is Joseph Weir Barnett.

Thank a Veteran Day

"WHEREAS, the City of Big Spring, in recognition of the courage, honor, devotion and sacrifice of our service men and women, hereby establish the 15th day of every month as "Thank a Veteran Day", and this day shall forever stand as a day to honor those that have selflessly served each citizen of this Great Nation."

The Big Spring Herald stands in support of all Veterans. The above is part of a proclamation presented by the Big Spring City Council in honor of everyone that has served our Country. Please take a moment today to thank a Veteran. This proclamation was presented by Mayor Larry McLellan on behalf of the Big Spring City Council on Tuesday, April 10th, 2018.

God Bless our veterans!
 If you know a veteran we should recognize, please send the information to editor@bigspringherald.com.

Obituaries

William "Bill" Lewis Steagald

William "Bill" Lewis Steagald was born in Big Spring, Texas on Jan. 6, 1945. He entered Heaven's gates on June 5, 2019.

Bill is preceded in death by his parents, Bill and Marie Steagald; and one sister Janice Marie Grant.

He is survived by his loving wife, Yvonne; his sons, William, Matthew, and Danny Steagald; daughters, Deidra Lee, Tonya Mills, Jennifer Skiver Thompson; sisters Linda Kay Brown and Debbie Cross; nine grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

Bill loved his family, was a gentle man who never spoke negatively of any person, and was a true Patriot who loved and served his country. He put a flag up every morning, and took it down at dusk. Bill will be missed by all who knew him and most by all who loved him.

A memorial service will be held at Evergreen-Washelli Funeral Home, 11111 Aurora Ave N, Seattle, Washington, 98133 on June 21, 2019 at 1 p.m. A reception will be held immediately after the service.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to VFW - Veterans of Foreign Wars USA.

LEGENDS

“A committee meets at the first of the year and selects six men and women who fulfill the criteria. This year we have added a seventh name to be selected as the Cowboy Legend. The Cowboy Legend is someone who was a pioneer as well as a Cowboy/girl of Howard County,” she said.

She continued, “While the Howard/Glasscock Old Settlers Reunion no longer exists, the Legends and Legacies event is an opportunity for the community to come together and visit each other in a new form of reunion and fundraiser supporting the Heritage Museum.”

Tickets can be purchased as the Heritage Museum and are $50 per person. For those with small children, a meal ticket can be purchased for $8 per child.

For more information, call the Heritage Museum at 432-267-8255

A bicycle ride of 4,000 miles

Bill Huckabee of Sweetwater is a retired executive and a serious bicycle rider. He rode around his neighborhood, covering 100 miles every week. Gradually he increased his mileage until he was biking 50 miles a day, going to nearby towns 25 or so miles away. One day while looking at the map he discovered that Lebanon, Kansas is known as the exact center of the country. Bill, who is 65 years old, made that his destination.

"I bought a touring bike and outfitted it with camping gear, tools, clothing, a pillow and other essentials and took off. Two weeks later I was at the geographic center of the contiguous United States. This was supposed to be my turning around point. I called my wife and told her I was not through with my ride, that I was gonna keep going. She asked me where I was going. I told her she would be the second person to know because I hadn't made that decision yet.

"One evening I was studying the map and wondering how far am I going to go? There was a town called Fargo. I thought that solves how far I'm going to go. So I pedaled to Fargo, North Dakota. When I got there I knew that I would forever regret not going to the border of Canada. So I went to the Canadian border, almost straight up from Fargo. That was my turn around point but I took the long way home. I came back down to Grand Forks, North Dakota then headed east to Itasca State Park in Minnesota where the headwaters of the Mississippi river are located. Then I just followed the Mississippi down until I got to the northeast corner of Arkansas and then angled down to Dallas and on home to Sweetwater."

He says anyone who takes a trip like this needs to be a good mechanic.

"I was self-contained. There were a couple of occasions where I didn't see a town for 2 or 3 days and there was no cell phone service. Once I needed a tire and I called a big bike store and had the tire shipped to the next town on my route."

Bill had 3 flats but repaired them with patch kits and a pump. Once when it was raining friends he met let him stay in their garage. He camped out more than half the time, sleeping in city, state or national parks, once a week he stayed in a motel.

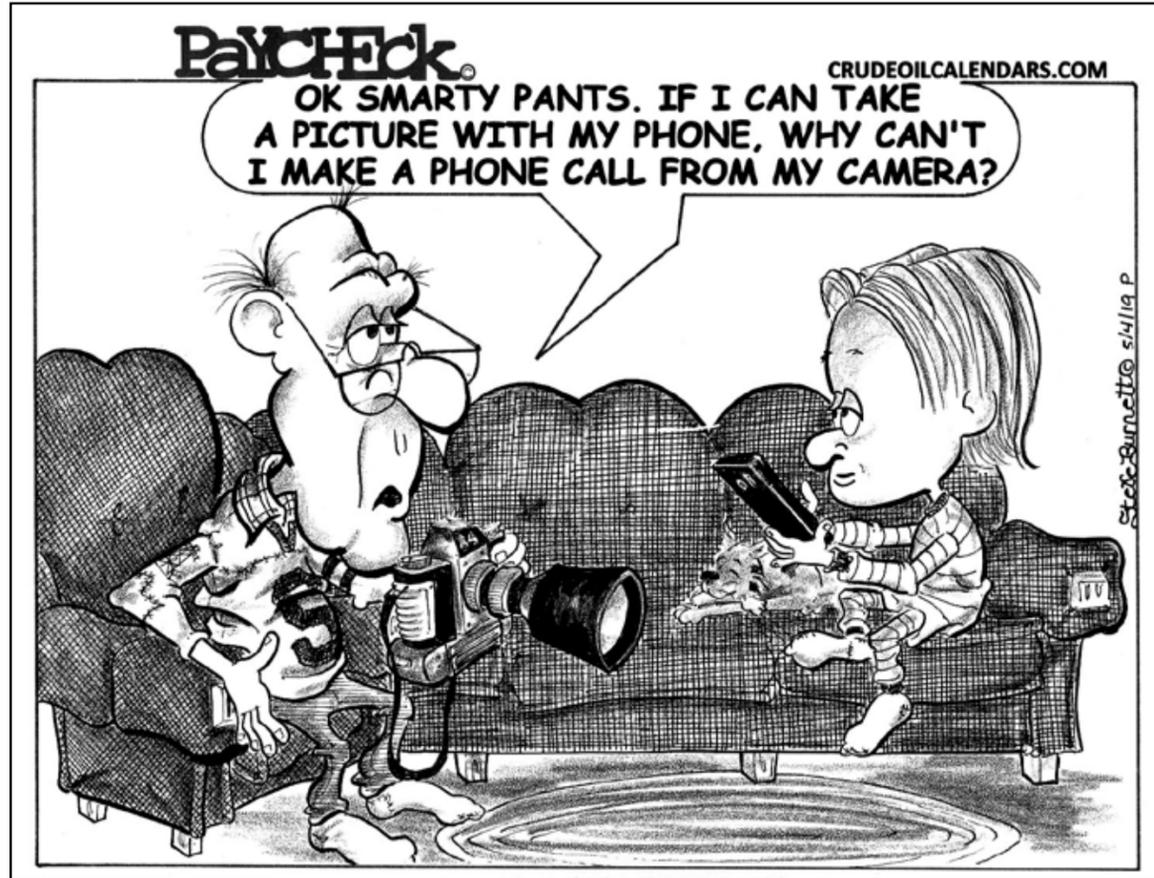

"My best day of mileage was 90 miles. My longest day of being in the saddle, which means moving time, not break time or stopping to get a drink, was 8 hours and 41 minutes. Most of the ride that day was uphill somewhere in Missouri."

He was gone 79 days, pedaled 4,000 miles and spent $4,000. His goal was to make 50 miles a day but he averaged 59 miles a day. He kept in touch with his wife by phone most every day. One of the most common questions he got was: are you by yourself?

"The favorite response I got after I said I was by myself was from a gentlemen who said, 'you're married, aren't you?'"

Happy birthday Uncle Mort

Uncle Mort, who attains age 107 come July 4, issues requests for "no talking" and "no chore assignments" about this time every year.

It's no bother to Aunt Maude. In fact, she looks forward to the week or two annually when her hubby is in deep thought. She charitably calls such interludes "thought."

Others might more accurately say he's scheming, trying to figure out how to cash in on his birthday without appearances that he's cashing in on his birthday.

This year, he is embracing social media. It's a 180-degree opinion switch. Instead of carping about the Internet in general, he's praising a recently-discovered "cash cow" called "Go Fund Me" on Facebook.

He's been intrigued by what he calls "big bucks" collected to cover all kinds of health issues.

Though he is "horse healthy" in general, he has crafted a carefully-worded appeal that friends might easily misunderstand, and so far, they are. Truth to tell, Mort is the master of double talk, and sometimes triple.

Here's what I saw perusing FB the other day. "For my birthday this year, friends may choose to send cash that may be needed for expensive eye surgery. My ophthalmologist confirmed what I have long believed to be true. While he didn't mention a specific date for possible surgery, he said he's 100% certain that I have ATTACHED retinas in both eyes. Financial help can be sent via mail, or handed to me at my birthday party."

He signed it "Mortimer," as if anyone might wonder who would contrive such a ruse.

When I called him the other day, he said he's already received $600 by mail from 15 friends, with notes from others promising that they'll hand him checks at the party.

Mort is leaning on recent action by the Texas Legislature to fatten his personal coffers.

He's inviting children from throughout the thicket to set up lemonade stands, now that it's legal for them to operate such stands legally.

There'll be a $25 entry fee, and guests will cast votes to determine which kid is selling the best lemonade. "I'm presently contacting Country Time Lemonade to see if they'll help me," Mort said.

"They offered 'Legal-Ade' to help pay for permits and fines for kids across the state who have been cited for failure to secure permits for their lemonade stands before the Governor signed the bill into law. I'm thinking they'll consider such assistance as positive PR, emphasizing that many "lemon bills" coming through the legislature CANNOT be made into lemonade."

Actually, the new law protecting youngsters' lemonade stands starts on September 1.

My Uncle Mort is not worried in the least.

"News of what happens in the thicket rarely trickles out, and even if it does, September 1 will have come and gone before authorities realize we 'jumped the gun' on applying the new law a little early down here. Besides, police citing kids operating a lemonade stand several years ago didn't win friends. Turns out they were trying to raise funds to take their dad to a water park on Father's Day.

As soon as the birthday party ends, Mort will resume his project befriending left-handers.

"If you don't think we're in the minority, notice the door handle when you go to the post office," he yammered. "The right handle invariably is the one worn smooth by so many 'righties'."

He says his first-grade teacher tried to teach him to print letters with his right hand, and his pencil ran right off his Big Chief tablet. "Being left-handed helped me out at high school graduation," he admitted.

He claimed the other 11 graduates were predicted to be "most likely" in numerous fields of adult life. "I was voted most likely to remain left-handed," he joked.

No one dreamed then that he'd count on a "Go Fund Me" appeal to help him celebrate a birthday.

BIG SPRING – Permian Basin Events, with the help of their sponsors, held their 9th annual Moonlight Rave Run at scenic mountain Friday night. With over one hundred runners and walkers from around the area showing up to take place in the run, it was the biggest turnout they have ever had according to event co-coordinator Cherise Felty.

The Moonlight Rave Run started when Craig Felty and park manager Ron Alvon used to run at night and fell in love with the views and the trails at the park under the moon glow. Now nine years later with over one hundred participants, many more people have got to share in that love. If you missed Friday's Rave Run don't despair, there will be two more Rave Runs at Scenic Mountain this summer. The next run will be on July 12 and the final run will be on August 16. Craig and Cherise have planned the runs to coincide as closely as possible to the full moon so the runners get the safest and best experience the Park and the Run has to offer. So if you are looking for a nice cool way to get in a run while taking in breathtaking views and great company then look no further than the Permian Events Moonlight Rave Runs, they are a great event for individuals or the whole family.

Odor hits grand slam, Rangers' bullpen beats Reds 7-1

By JOE KAY

AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI — Struggling Roughed Odor made a bold prediction before his loaded at-bat.

"(Odor) even said, 'If this guy throws me a slider to a strike, I'm going to take it deep,'" manager Chris Woodward said.

He sure did. Odor hit Wandy Peralta's over-the-plate slider for his fourth career grand slam, and the Texas Rangers went with their bullpen from start to finish — even getting an interleague hit from a pitcher, too — while beating the Cincinnati Reds 7-1 on Friday night.

Odor's homer off Wandy Peralta highlighted a game full of big Rangers moments, including Elvis Andrus' second theft of home on the back end of a double steal and Delino Deshields' on-field reunion with his father.

The biggest hit came from Odor, who has struggled all season but is finally making solid contact. In the last six games, he has raised his average from .165 to .182.

"I'm just trying to stay positive and do my work in the (batting) cage," Odor said. "I'm feeling better the last couple of games."

DeShields was participating in a game with his father — Reds first base coach Delino — for the first time in the majors. He singled off Tyler Mahle (2-7) to start a two-run rally in the first inning, scored a run and added a sacrifice fly.

"It's a nerve-racking experience for me to watch him play," the elder DeShields said. "I've played in front of packed houses, but there's nothing like watching your kids play."

The Rangers went with a bullpen day, using reliever Jesse Chavez as a starter for the fourth time this season. He allowed one hit in a season-high three scoreless innings and contributed his second career hit. Brett Martin (1-0) got his first major league win as four Rangers relievers combined on a five-hitter.

"It literally couldn't have worked out better," Woodward said.

Former starter Drew Smyly pitched the last three innings for his first save since 2013 with Detroit and No. 3 for his career. Smyly was moved to the bullpen after giving up 19 runs in his last three games.

"It's not anything new for me, it's just been a while," Smyly said.

Chirinos hits slam, drives in 6 runs, Astros beat Blue Jays

By JORDAN GODWIN

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Robinson Chirinos said he was late on the fastball the whole game. He finally caught up to one when it counted most.

Chirinos hit his first grand slam and finished with a career-high six RBIs, Gerrit Cole struck out 10 and the Houston Astros routed the Toronto Blue Jays 15-2 on Friday night.

"Thank God I was able to square one that went out of the ballpark," Chirinos said. "It was fun."

After Toronto walked Astros slugger Yordan Alvarez on four pitches with the bases loaded, Chirinos cleared the bases with his 12th homer of the season off Thomas Pannone.

The Astros won their 13th straight series opener and improved to 9-3 in June.

Cole (6-5) allowed two runs and three hits while increasing his MLB-leading strikeout total to 140.

The Blue Jays' runs came in the fifth inning. Cavan Biggio, son of Astros Hall of Fame second baseman Craig Biggio, drew applause when he came to the plate. The younger Biggio doubled to deep center field off Cole, scoring two runs. The elder Biggio cheered from the front row near the Houston dugout.

"I think it just goes to show the amount of respect the name Biggio holds in this stadium," the younger Biggio said. "I think it's cool for me, but it's even a better tribute to my father and what he did."

Biggio said he was a little emotional in his first at-bat after hearing long-time Astros PA announcer Bob Ford's voice say his last name the same way he heard him announce his father's name for many years of his childhood. He said he knew where his family was sitting but tried not to look at them.

Both teams loaded the bases in the first inning. The results were starkly different for each of the starting pitchers. Cole escaped the inning with a strikeout.

"I got into a better rhythm with the fastball command," Cole said. "I was good at times but fell behind. I was just able to do what I needed to do to get out unscathed."

Sanchez, however, allowed back-to-back singles to Alvarez and Chirinos and a sacrifice fly to Josh Reddick, falling behind 3-0.

Alex Bregman extended Houston's lead to 6-0 in the second inning with a three-run homer into the left-field Crawford Boxes, his 19th homer of the season.

NBA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A California police agency will pursue a misdemeanor battery charge against Toronto Raptors President Masai Ujiri after the executive was accused of shoving and hitting a sheriff's deputy in the face and shouting obscenities as he tried to join his team on the court to celebrate their NBA championship.

After the game Thursday in Oakland against the Golden State Warriors, Ujiri tried to walk past the deputy who was checking court-access credentials, Alameda County sheriff's spokesman Sgt. Ray Kelly said.

When the deputy stopped him, Ujiri shoved him back several feet, Kelly said.

"That's when our deputy goes hands-on and moves Mr. Ujiri back from the court. Mr. Ujiri made a second, more significant shove and during that shove his arm struck our deputy in the side of the head," Kelly said.

Ujiri was also accused of shouting obscenities at the deputy.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The NBA Finals were a smashing success for Canada all the way around.

The NBA said Friday that 56% percent of the Canadian population watched at least some part of the NBA Finals, with an average viewership of about 8 million for the Toronto Raptors' title-winning victory over the Golden State Warriors in Game 6.

The league also said the total combined U.S. and Canadian audience for the finals was up 11 percent over the combined viewership of the 2018 title series between Golden State and Cleveland.

Thursday's game was the most-watched NBA game in Canadian television history, a record that was toppled several times during this postseason because of the Raptors' popularity. Viewership for each of the six finals games rank among the 10 most-watched television programs in Canada so far this year.

FOOTBALL

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Pat Bowlen, the Denver Broncos owner who transformed the team from also-rans into NFL champions and helped the league usher in billion-dollar TV deals, has died. He was 75.

In a statement on the team's website, Bowlen's family says he died late Thursday night at home surrounded by loved ones. The statement did not specify a cause of death. Bowlen had battled Alzheimer's for several years.

Bowlen, elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2019, was the first owner in pro football history to have his team win 300 games, including playoffs, in three decades; had as many Super Bowl appearances (seven) as losing seasons; and had a 333-225-

1 record (through 2018) since buying the team in 1984.

Under his stewardship, the Broncos won Super Bowls after the 1998, '99 and 2015 seasons.

FRISCO, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys tight end Rico Gathers has been suspended for the first game in 2019 for violating the NFL's substance abuse policy.

The decision Friday came about 10 months after the former Baylor basketball player was arrested on a marijuana possession charge. The arrest came just before the final cuts of the preseason last year, but he still made the roster.

Gathers' spot could be in jeopardy again after spending offseason practices as the fourth tight end behind Jason Witten, Blake Jarwin and Dalton Schultz.

The 25-year-old Gathers is going into his fourth season after choosing football over pursuing a career in the NBA.

HOCKEY

The Flyers acquired Matt Niskanen from the Capitals for Radko Gudas on Friday in a one-for-one swap of defensemen that upgrades Philadelphia's blue line offense and gives Washington much needed salary-cap space.

Niskanen provides the Flyers with an offensive-minded, right-handed shot who can also help on the power play. Philadelphia is retaining 30% of Gudas' $3.35 million cap hit, which means Washington saves $3.405 million going into an offseason with several players in need of new contracts.

Gudas, 29, is a big, bruising defenseman who could help the Capitals replace some of the muscle they'd lose if 38-year-old Brooks Orpik retires or signs elsewhere.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Idaho has fired basketball coach Don Verlin after he was placed on administrative leave following a consultant's report that found potential NCAA violations.

Idaho announced the firing Friday. Verlin was placed on administrative leave May 28. The school said the decision was made after consultation with current university president Chuck Staben and incoming president C. Scott Green.

Interim Idaho athletic director Pete Isakson said Verlin was terminated for cause. "These are not easy conversations or decisions, but we have a direct responsibility to do what is best for the university," Isakson said.

Consulting firm Ice Miller investigated the program and found three possible NCAA violations, one including a staff member practicing with the team. Verlin was 177-176 in 11 seasons at Idaho.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Texas acquired right-hander Jake Petricka from Milwaukee for a player to be named or cash. The 31-year-old reliever had no record and a 3.38 ERA in six appearances for the Brewers in April. He was assigned to Triple-A Nashville.

INTERLEAGUE

The Rangers are 7-6 in interleague game this season. The Reds are 2-4.

STARTING OFF ...

Chavez's other starts this season were at Houston on May 11 (one inning), May 22 against Seattle (1 2/3 innings), and May 28 at Seattle (one inning).

... AND A HIT

Chavez singled in the second inning. He also struck out, leaving him 2 for 19 career with 17 strikeouts.

SLICK PLAY

Iglesias dived in the grass in left field to get a grounder by Tim Federowicz in the second inning, popped to his feet and threw him out.

RANGERS

Andrus' dirt-raising theft of home in the first inning came on the back end of a double steal with Asdrubal Cabrera. When catcher Curt Casali threw to second, Andrus dashed and slid head-first, his left hand catching the back of the plate as he beat shortstop Jose Iglesias' throw.

Umpire Jerry Meals called him out, but Andrus was ruled safe after a replay review. It was his sixth career steal of home and the Rangers' second in six games. Odor had a straight steal of home last Sunday against Oakland.

Joey Votto was back in the Reds' lineup after coming through a pregame workout without problem. Votto left a game Wednesday with a stiff back. He singled, grounded out and struck out twice.

Check it out, at the library this week

This week we had a great turnout for the book signing with author Gaylon White, and former Big Spring baseball player Tito Arencibia. If you didn't get a chance to come we have White's book "Left on Base in the Bush Leagues," in circulation ready for check out. For the summer reading program, we also had a great turnout for Magician Harlin Rhoades. If you haven't had a chance to come by and register your child registration is open throughout the summer.

We have three Storytime's a week on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 10:30 a.m., check out our website for more information.

This week's reviews are fiction novels in book and audiobook format.

Deputy Sheriff John Cronin is looking forward to a quiet retirement in "The Grey Man: Twilight" (F CUR J) by J.L. Curtis, working on the ranch, and handing it off to his granddaughter Jesse. He also has to pass on a generation's worth of investigations, but it's not as easy as handing over the case files and the keys. First, he has to train Aaron Miller to fill his role, from the way to dress for rural juries to the finer points of stakeouts and murder investigations, Texas style. Between the oil patch workers and the cartel's drug runners, there are plenty of loose ends for him to tie off.

Bianca St. Ives is clever, cunning, and highly skilled in "The Moscow Deception" (AUCD F ROB K) by Karen Robards. Bianca recently went through the wringer, but she came out the same way she always does, the way her father trained her to, hungry for a fight. Still navigating the fallout from a shocking revelation that's left a network of assassins' trained on her, Bianca is ready to take fate into her own hands. It's kill or be killed, and she's got her finger against the trigger. But as Bianca races to outmaneuver her tireless pursuers, her father loops her in on a job that might just do the trick: recover King Priam's treasure, a collection of heavily guarded, priceless artifacts stolen by Russians during World War II, and return it to Germany. It may be impossible for some, but a high-risk heist is all in a day's work for Bianca, especially when there's intel on the line-intel that could finally bring down the shadowy forces seeking to bury her for good. Faced with threats that circle closer with every move she makes, she knows the stakes are high, but when you're already living on borrowed time, you have to hustle if you want to live to see tomorrow.

Lucas Davenport tracks a prolific serial killer in "Neon Prey" (AUCD F SAN J) by John Sandford, Clayton. Deese looks like a small-time criminal, muscle for hire when his loan shark boss needs to teach someone a lesson. Now, seven months after a job that went south and landed him in jail, Deese has skipped out on bail, and the U.S. Marshal are looking for him. They don't much care about a low-level guy--it's his boss they want--but Deese might be their best chance to bring down the whole operation. Then, they step onto a dirt path behind Deese's rural Louisiana cabin and find a jungle full of graves. Now Lucas Davenport is on the trail of a serial killer who has been operating for years without notice.

Wyoming game warden Joe Pickett encounters bad behavior on his own turf and comes up against the Department of Justice and the FBI in "Wolf Pack" (AUCD F BOX C) by C.J. Box. The good news is that Joe Pickett has his job back, after his last adventure in The Disappeared. The bad news is that he's learned a drone is killing wildlife and the drone belongs to a mysterious and wealthy man whose son is dating Joe's own daughter, Lucy. When Joe tries to lay down the rules for the drone operator, he's asked by the FBI and the DOJ to stand down, which only makes him more suspicious. Meanwhile, bodies are piling up in and around Joe's district in shocking numbers. He begins to fear that the Wolf Pack a pack of four vicious killers working on behalf of the Sinaloa cartel, has arrived. Their target seems to be the mystery man and everyone including Joe, Nate, and others who is associated with him.

Teaming up with fellow game warden Katelyn Hamm to confront these assassins, Joe finds himself in the most violent and dangerous predicament he's ever faced.

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

The Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo is one of the longest running rodeos in Texas. In less than one week, cowboys, cowgirls, horse trailers, cattle and more will be flooding the Howard County Rodeo Bowl for the 86th year.

When Big Spring residents hear that it's time for the rodeo, there are certain staples that come to mind: the legendary Quail Dobbs and the legacy he left; Mike Mathis, rodeo announcer; Quail Dobbs parade - a piece of history and living legacy; and who can forget those hard, cement seats. Those seats are part of what makes the local rodeo arena so unique and add a special ambiance to the wonderful world of rodeo, in Big Spring.

While there are some things that will always be associated with the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, there is room for change and improvements. Over the past few years, there have been noticeable renovations taking place at the rodeo arena and this year that trend continues.

A couple of years ago the bucking shoots were redone along with the seat coating to preserve the concrete seating. About three years ago, the sky boxes also received renovation with a fresh coat of paint and some interior design.

The beer barn has also been improved, as well as numerous updates - including heating and cooling system, lighting, a raised stage and more - inside the Howard County Fair Barns. This year, those attending the rodeo will notice a big improvement as they walk onto a paved area instead of the previous dirt and rock surrounding the arena seating. A layer of asphalt is ready to be laid, just in time for this year's rodeo. New awnings have been placed on the ticket booth and the beer barn. Even the food truck area will be a little different this year, allowing more walking space.

Don't miss out on seeing all the new updates, new acts and more paired with a ton of tradition. The Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo will kick off this coming Thursday and wrap up Saturday night, with the rodeo dance featuring Wade Bowen.

Tickets for the dance are still available, as are rodeo tickets. Rodeo

The beer barn received a makeover in the past couple of years, offering a way to keep the drinks colder and the staff cooler, while offering a western feel to the interior. This year, an awning was also added to allow the patrons to wait under the shade for their cold beverage.

Celebrating 60 years

Mr. and Mrs. Phinney

Richard H. Phinney married Jeffie Lee Gore in Coahoma amid a huge storm that knocked out electrical power, causing the ceremony to be conducted entirely by candlelight. 60 years later, on June 5, 2019, they celebrated all those years together watching a haboob blow into Howard County.

In their 60 years together, they have weathered many storms together, finding refuge in their love and in their faith. They've built a life, brick by brick on a solid rock, that can withstand anything the world throws at them, and that life looks as good today as it did when they laid that first brick 60 years ago.

Senior Center Menu

The PBUWCD education coordinator, Misty Mimms, stands next to Chris Bryan, who was the door prize winner of their rainwater harvesting workshop. Chris won a 50 gallon rain barrel and rain chain. Guests at the workshop learned basics of rainwater harvesting from the education coordinator and listened to PBUWCD field technician, Shain Howard, give a presentation on how he built and maintains the rainwater harvesting system on the PBUWCD building.

June Bugs bug me

By Judy Tereletsky

HSWCD District Clerk

I don't like bugs- never have and probably never will. Now of course that doesn't include lady bugs. Who doesn't love them? I'm talking about those bugs that live up to that name of "BUGS". Being that June is my birth month, I always hated that the June Bug was associated with my month. One of the signs that spring is in full swing is the incessant sound of June Bugs crashing into the lit windows of your home at night. These beetles (Phyllophaga commonly called June Bugs) emerge in late March, April and May to lay their eggs in lawns. June bugs are found all across North America and in many other locations around the globe. They are most common in vary warm areas (which Texas fits the bill) and thus they are quite abundant in the southern United States.

Brown June bugs are about an inch long and oblong. They have plain brown, hard wings. Their bellies are usually yellowish or greenish. Being insects, they have six legs that have rough, hairy protrusions. There are also Green June Bugs which are a deep, iridescent, emerald green in color. Their bellies are golden. Both types are from the scarab family and where the brown is a night creature you find the green out during the daytime. You will almost never encounter the green ones as they are fewer in number and don't tend to swarm about.

June Bugs don't bite. When you walk through a lighted area at night in a warm climate, you are very likely to encounter dozens, if not hundreds, of brown June bugs. They may tumble into you, and they may crawl on you (YUCK!) but they will not bite you or hurt you. June beetles live a very short time. After they emerge from the soil, the adult beetles live for only a couple of months. During this time, the females may lay as many as 50 to 200 eggs, and this is the problem. Those eggs hatch into grubs (which I find equally disgusting) that live in the soil underneath your lawn or garden for almost a year munch away on the roots of your plants. Quickly laying waste to your vegetable seedlings in the spring time, the June Bug larvae will damage other flower and plants in your yard not to mention the grass itself. If you have a heavy infestation of grubs you might even see the grass peel up from the soil as the roots are chewed clean through. Grubs tunnel vigorously in search of new food and can damage the lawn in this manner. Female June bugs usually lay eggs in the late summer. The grubs over-winter in the soil and metamorphose into beetles when the weather warms up in the spring. As adults, June beetles don't cause much damage. They do feed on some tree leaves.

Irritating as they are, June bugs are an abundant source of protein for many wild critters. This is both a curse and a blessing, depending upon your situation. Understand that if you have lots of June bugs and June bug grubs in your yard, your space will be very attractive to wildlife such as turtles, armadillos, opossums, skunks, gophers, and moles. Gophers, moles and armadillos can lay waste to your lawn by digging burrows looking for June bug grubs. It goes without saying that it's best not to attract skunks to your yard because of their tendency to spray. Although we are always warned about skunks and the rabies virus, it is worth noting that opossums almost never contract rabies because they have a very low body temperature that will not support the rabies virus. Opossums do carry a multitude of other diseases that can be transferred to pets and livestock and their claws and teeth are not pleasant.

June beetles also attract meat-eating birds such as Mockingbirds, Robins, Blue Jays and others. If you have chickens, they will certainly enjoy your June bugs. Common lizards and geckos also feed on June bugs, as do most reptiles.

It is also possible to reduce the number of grubs in the soil by introducing nematodes. These very tiny, structurally simple creatures live in the soil and are parasitic to June bug grubs and other insects or pests that are also soil dwellers. Having healthy population of nematodes in your soil can help keep your June bug grubs under control. To use nematodes, purchase them online or at your local garden center and follow package directions to introduce them to your soil in the late summer at about the same time female June bugs lay their eggs. If you poison June bugs and their larvae, you also could also poison beneficial flora and fauna in your yard as well as risk polluting the water table and waterways with runoff from pesticides.

Of course, if you have any children who would love to collect the June Bugs and put them in soapy water to kill them or collect them to feed the chickens, it will help to reduce the grub population. I sure won't complain about that!

Men In Black: International

You know how when you've been watching a television series for a while, and it started out really good, but then about three years in, you suddenly notice that it's not that great anymore, the actors have all changed to shallow representations of the ones you've loved since the start, the plots are all monster-of-the-week rehashes of directionless drivel, and all the aliens look like they're made of foam rubber?

Well, "Men In Black: International" isn't quite that bad, but it certainly made me think in that direction.

MIB:I starts with a pair of iconically dressed men in black suits (we'll later learn they're known as H - Chris Hemsworth; and High T - Liam Neeson) head up the Eiffel Tower to battle an incursion by The Hive - a dastardly race of aliens bent on assimilation of all life forms. They discover a couple of lovers (Romanos Blanco and Aiste Dirziute) and interrupt a proposal, sending them down the elevator. As The Hive aliens arrive, H is knocked down the elevator shaft, but manages to catch an upward-bound elevator and arrives back on the scene to do battle.

Cut to 20 years earlier. Young Molly (Mandeiya Flory) is woken by some loud noises. When her dad goes to check on them, he screams about a "creature" ... but then a couple of men from "Animal Control" dressed in suspicious black suits show up, explain that the "creature" was a raccoon, and proceed to flash a little light (we all recognize the familiar Neuralizer from previous MIB films) erasing her parents' memory. After the flash, she meets a little blue alien and helps him escape.

Molly's memory is not erased, and she spends the next 20 years developing her skills and tracking down the shadowy organization she learned about that night.

Adult Molly (Tessa Thompson) is working as a tech support call center operator. She also has her workplace computer programmed to search for possible UFOs, and, when she spots a potential bogey headed for her hometown New York City, she leaves work to track it down.

By following the Men in Black investigating the UFO, she discovers their headquarters, and - donning a Men in Black-esque outfit, she heads on in.

Of course, the organization's sensors detect that she's not a real Agent, so she has some explaining to do. She tells New York MIB boss Agent O (Emma Thompson - no relation) that she wants a job. After making her case and passing a few tests, she's given a probationary position and sent to MIB London, where she meets up with H.

I'll go ahead and stop the summary there, but I'll just throw in that the main plot of the movie deals with Hive aliens (twins Laurent and Larry Bourgeois) trying to assassinate alien Prince Vungus (Kayvan Novak), who's under H's protection, and what becomes of it.

While I've never been a huge fan of the Men In Black movies - they always seemed a bit too overly produced and under-written to me - Will Smith and Tommy Lee Jones had the force of personality and chemistry to pull the story along and make it work. I'm not saying Hemsworth and Tessa Thompson don't have chemistry. They do. It's not the same flavor of chemistry that Smith and Jones enjoyed. In fact, Molly is originally drawn to worm her way into H's case because, well, she's attracted to him.

The reason this movie turns me off a bit is by no means clear. I think it's a combination of the slightly weaker personalities of Hemsworth/Thompson vs. Smith/Jones, with a bit of "This just isn't the same old Men In Black, with a bit of a little guy named Pawny (voiced by Kumail Nanjiani). Yeah, Pawny has some funny parts, but an alien race based on a chess set? Seriously? Even as I'm laughing at his adorable little antics, I'm dying inside at the stupidity of what he represents.

I'm going to give "Men In Black: International" six and a half stars out of 10. Ok. I liked it more than I should have. I didn't want to like it. I don't like the idea of it. I certainly don't like alien races based in explicitly on Earth-originating boardgames. But it's certainly better than some other things I've seen, and it doesn't deserve the 26 percent critics rating it currently enjoys on Rotten Tomatoes.

TSTC earns first Military Spouse Friendly designation

By AMANDA SOTELO

For the first time Texas State Technical College has been recognized as a Military Spouse Friendly school for 2019-2020 by Viqtory.

Viqtory is a service-disabled, veteran-owned small business that connects the military community to civilian employment, education and entrepreneurial opportunities through its G.I. Jobs, Military Spouse and Military Friendly brands.

TSTC Veterans Center Director Steve Guevara said this award reinforces the college's commitment to military service members, veterans and their families.

"This is the first year we receive the Military Spouse Friendly recognition, and it's a great honor," said Guevara. "We continuously work to improve our services and ensure that we provide the best resources and assistance for veterans and their families."

A press release released by Viqtory states that since 2009, the Military Spouse Friendly schools list has been a reliable resource for military spouses and has set a standard for higher education institutions to provide the best post-secondary education experiences for spouses of service members.

"The Military Spouse Friendly Schools designation helps military spouses select schools that will support them in their education journey by meeting their unique needs as a part of a military family," said Brian Hucik, National Program Manager, Military Friendly. "Schools that are selected for the list are at the forefront of supporting the goals of military spouses."

TSTC's Veterans Center serves more than 850 military service members, veterans and their dependents including TSTC alumna and spouse to a veteran Stephanie Garcia.

Garcia, who graduated with an associate degree in Business Management Technology, now works for TSTC as a student recruitment representative and said that she would not be where she is today without TSTC's Veteran Center.

"The veteran center is a support system for veterans and their families," said Garcia, who was also a student worker employee at the center. "I knew that when I was there I was never alone."

Garcia said that Guevara and his colleague, Veteran Program Officer Jose Villegas, assisted her with the application process for her educational benefits.

She would also use the Veterans Center for its computer lab and printer and for studying and relaxing.

"I got to experience the difference the center makes in someone's life first hand," said Garcia. "There, everyone is going through the same thing"

Back Forty: Trotlines

By JAMES LOCKHART

Publisher, Poteau, Okla., Daily News

My dad and all of his buddies are getting their boats fixed up for spring fishing. New batteries, checking out the motor and lining up all the Crappie poles, jigs, and rigs. Dad also has a wide assortment of bass fishing stuff as well, so it's kind of double duty preparations for him, bass and crappie.

My grandpa loved to fish as well. He worked for a lumber mill until he retired. I think for him, fishing sort of became his new job. I've never seen anyone work as hard at catching fish as he did. My grandpa's day would start about daylight. The first thing he did was run the lines. He would bring his fish back to his house and use the clothesline post or the Elm tree in the back yard to file the fish. He caught so much fish he kept his freezer full, mom and dad's and Ray Heavener's full. After he got done skinning all the fish he was off to catch bait. Then it was back to the river to bait the trotlines, all this fishing made for a very long day. It seemed he would wear out a family member in a day or two, he didn't care, he just kept fishing.

At the beginning of spring he would sharpen all his trotline hooks, check his trotlines and prepare each item, even the rocks he used for weights had to be just right. He would usually set his lines above and below the pump station on the river. Claudie Clubb, the game warden often trotlined near my grandpa. Claudie's record Flathead catfish still stands to this day. He caught it just above my grandpa's line.

Everyday my grandpa caught perch for bait. He was allowed 100 hooks on his trotline, so each day he tried to catch a hundred perch. We caught perch in just about every creek. He would gripe at me if I didn't pay attention and set the hook before the perch swallowed it. If the perch swallowed the hook, it would die before it could be put on the trotline. He didn't always catch a hundred perch a day, but a lot of days he would. I've often wondered how many thousands of perch he caught over the years. Papa wanted live bait, mainly because he hated Channel catfish. Channels would eat dead bait, Flatheads wouldn't, I can still remember Papa turning the Channels back he caught, saying let someone else eat those yellow meated suckers. Channel catfish typically have a yellow ting to their meat, whereas Flatheads are white meat.

I was deathly scared of snakes when I was a kid. Papa would chain his boat up at the pump station and leave it there all of fishing season, it never failed every morning a cottonmouth would be under the boat in the mud. He always wanted to tie his trotlines to a nice, green limb, one that would bend and give a fishing pole does. He liked the limbs to give so a fish caught near the bank couldn't straighten the hook and get off so easy. This, "green limb theory" meant he usually tied off to a bush or a the top of a tree that had fallen into the river. I was always the one that had to get up in the front of the boat to grab the limb, and I hated it. Every time the snakes would slither off into the water. I used the boat paddle as a bat and would beat the dickens out of the snakes as Papa was driving the nose of the boat into the brush, he laughed every time. He wasn't afraid of anything I guess.

For all the snakes and hard work, I always loved running trotlines, one time we caught a soft shelled turtle, it's the only one I've ever caught. We caught several species of fish Drum, Carp, Crappie, Bass, Channels, Flatheads, Blues, running a trotline was sort of like opening a box of chocolates, you never knew what you would get. I'm hoping to get to spend some time on the river pretty soon, I can still smell the muddy water of the river. I hope they bite. I need a sign for my office- I'd rather be fishing.

High Plains crops suffer after too much moisture at planting time

AMARILLO - While rainfall is important for crop production, the amounts falling across the High Plains have negatively impacted row crops and agricultural operations, with potential effects extending into the summer growing season, according to a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service expert.

Dr. Jourdan Bell, AgriLife Extension agronomist in Amarillo, said a significant amount of this year's cotton has been affected by extensive rainfall during the month of May.

While crops all across the Texas High Plains have been affected, the northeast Panhandle has suffered to the largest degree, Bell said. There are reports of rainfall in excess of 15 inches on some fields in that region since May 1.

"We are receiving daily reports of unplanted cotton fields, fields of both cotton and corn that are failing due to saturated conditions, poor stands and poor vigor," she said.

Bell said the growth in cotton infrastructure throughout the region in response to an expansion of cotton acreage in the past year or so will certainly be affected by the rainfall. Planting stopped across most of the northern High Plains in the past two weeks for all commodities, so all crops are behind average, and some of the intended crops will not be planted. At this point, it is too late to plant cotton due to the narrow production window, which is restricted by insurance dates and the timing of the first fall freeze, she said.

"I had one producer tell me this will be more economically devastating than the drought of 2011."

Another issue is many producers unable to get in fields to plant have already incurred expenses such as preplant fertilizer and herbicide costs, Bell said. The heavy rains may have now leached the fertilizer or washed the herbicide away.

"But even with concerns these inputs may have been lost in many cases, it's not a guarantee," she said. "Producers will need to be cautious about the plant-back intervals required for herbicides that were used with the original crop when determining their alternative crops."

Also, soil crusting has occurred in some areas, magnifying germination issues and poor stand establishment, Bell said. Where the moisture permitted the crust to soften and allowed the seedlings to emerge and establish, growth has been slowed by abnormally cool conditions. And now, there are seedling diseases in many cotton fields.

Some corn fields planted in late April and early May during the break in rains have experienced extended periods of waterlogging, she said. Under extended saturated conditions, oxygen becomes depleted and the roots are not able to respire and take up water and nutrients. With root growth either slowed or stopped, these fields may be predisposed to more problems later in the season, such as nutrient deficiencies, water stress or even lodging.

And when the drying process does start, Bell said, if producers get in too big of a hurry and plant in overly wet fields, equipment can cause soil compaction. The planter's furrow openers can cause compaction to the furrow side walls, which also restricts root development, resulting in symptoms of nutrient deficiency and water stress later in the season.

Even with wheat, which is almost ready for grain harvest, problems can occur due to the heavy and extended rains, she said. Precipitation at this time can enhance wheat test weights and yields, but extended amounts can prevent fields from drying down and cause some lodging.

"Also, producers who had contracts for wheat silage are not able to cut," Bell said. "While they still have the opportunity to cut those wheat fields for grain, at current prices silage was a much more profitable option for many producers."

Producers now are looking for secondary crop alternatives, she said. Some considerations are soybeans, grain sorghum, short-season corn and sunflowers. However, Bell cautioned again that preplant herbicides will be an important consideration as producers make this decision.

While some situations are dire, she said not all is lost.

"On the brighter side of things, dryland acres that have not been planted will have a good soil moisture profile, and that will be very beneficial for late-planted grain sorghum and sunflowers," Bell said.

"And, we are starting to see the first true leaves appear in some cotton fields, so hopefully over the next few weeks, with warmer and drier conditions, we will see cotton development progress where it was successfully planted."

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

CENTRAL: Rains continued to delay planting and harvesting hay. Producers baled hay where they could. Livestock were doing well. Wheat and oat harvests began in some areas and was completed in others. Corn was in the silking stage. A lot of wheat and oats were harvested. Cotton was emerging. Pasture conditions continued to be good. Daytime high temperatures were in the low- to mid-90s with a heat index nearing 100. Pastures and rangelands were doing well. Nearly all counties reported adequate soil moisture levels.

ROLLING PLAINS: Producers saw a wet and windy week. Producers began cutting wheat and planting cotton. Some fields still had standing water. High numbers of grasshoppers started their first wave in some areas. Livestock were looking well, but some producers were fighting pink eye in sheep and cattle. Forages were in good condition, and stock tanks were full.

COASTAL BEND: Rainfall was received over most of the reporting area, which brought soil moisture levels up in pastures and on cropland. Wharton County, specifically, reported some flooding rain, which has impacted corn, cotton, rice and soybean fields, with rice fields still submerged and severe damage to rice field levees being reported. Severe nutrient leaching is expected in corn and cotton. Otherwise, crops are progressing well throughout the region. Some spraying for fleahoppers in cotton and headworms in grain sorghum has been occurring. Some sugarcane aphid pressure has been observed and cotton aphids have been an issue in many cotton fields. Haymaking was in full swing with a large first cutting. Range and pasture conditions continued to be good. Livestock were in excellent shape, but the prices were waning.

EAST: Temperatures were higher across the district. Subsoil and topsoil were mostly adequate with a few counties reporting surplus. Hay production was in full swing for much of the district though a few areas were slowed by rainfall. Cherokee County reported some producers were cutting hay as silage due to more rain. Pasture and rangeland conditions were good to excellent. Vegetable harvesting was in full swing in Polk County. Cattle were doing fair to good in most counties. Houston County reported an extremely high hornfly population. Wild pigs were very active in Upshur and Trinity counties.

SOUTH PLAINS: The district received 1-2.5 inches of rain. Subsoil and topsoil moisture levels were adequate to surplus in many areas. Pastures were in excellent shape, but cotton was struggling with so much water and flooding. High winds and sand caused some replanting of cotton. Producers will plant and replant as soon as they can access fields, but the planting window was near closing. Corn, peanuts, sorghum, winter wheat, pastures and rangelands were in good condition. Cattle were in good condition.

PANHANDLE: Conditions were unseasonably cool with rainfall throughout the reporting period. Many acres of irrigated wheat were chopped, baled or swathed down. Cotton acres suffered from the wet weather, and a large percentage of the crop rotted shortly after germination. Due to time restraints, many farmers decided to not replant cotton.

NORTH: Soil moisture was adequate to surplus across the district. Several counties received trace amounts of rain up to 4 inches. Some storms brought winds in excess of 70 mph and hail damage, though there were no reports of crop damage. Pastures and hay meadows looked great but were too wet to get into. Some producers were able to cut hay. Wheat and oat harvests began in some areas. So far, yield reports were 45-75 bushels of wheat per acre and oats at 70-80 bushels per acre. The majority of the corn was in the early reproductive stage. Sorghum and soybeans were looking better as fields dried out some. Cows and calves were doing well, but fly numbers were high and causing stress. Horn flies in livestock were also abundant. Winter grasses finished, and summer grasses were coming on and looking much better.

FAR WEST: Temperature highs were just over 100 degrees with lows in the mid-50s. Rains were constant in many counties. Some rain totals averaged up to 3 inches while other areas received less than a quarter inch. There were some severe storms and hail. The soil was too saturated to plant cotton seed in some areas. In drier areas, cotton planting was moving along as the deadline came. Producers experienced some trouble establishing stands due to rain, crusting and soil insects. Corn and sorghum were coming along with very few issues. A first treatment for pecan nut casebearers was sprayed, and growers were monitoring traps.

One producer reported a big catch and was preparing to spray a second treatment. Jumbo grasshoppers were reported in eastern parts of the district and producers were attempting to control them. Weeds were becoming an issue in urban environments. Warm-season grasses were starting to take off. Many cow/calf producers were preparing to wean their calf crop.

WEST CENTRAL: Additional rainfall was reported. Wet conditions continued to stall fieldwork. Wheat harvest was underway but slowed by wet conditions. Cotton planting was behind schedule. Rangelands and pastures were in excellent condition. Sorghum and hay crops were in excellent condition. Pecans were off to a promising start. Livestock looked healthy with very good grazing conditions. Cattle market trends were steady on most classes of cattle with the exception of new crop calves weighing 500-800 pounds selling $2 to $4 lower per hundredweight. Body condition was the driving force amid a very fleshy new crop of calves. The corn market was volatile due to weather-related planting issues in the Midwest and ongoing trade dispute.

SOUTHEAST: The hay harvest was underway in Walker County. Brazos County received lots of sunshine. Some areas of the district were getting dry. Timely showers brought pastures in Grimes County a much-needed drink. Chambers County received 5-7 inches of rain. Most water was running off, but the soil was still very wet. Galveston County received heavy rains, which resulted in flooding in most areas. Livestock were in good health. Rice was planted except for a few organic fields. Some pastures and fields were completely submerged due to the excessive rains. Rangeland and pasture ratings were from excellent to poor with good being most common. Soil-moisture levels ranged from adequate to surplus with adequate being most common.

SOUTHWEST: Most counties reported much-needed rain. The rain benefited corn, sorghum and cotton. Vegetation was in abundance. Rangelands and pastures continued to respond to favorable conditions. Livestock were in good shape.

SOUTH: Northern parts of the district reported hot weather conditions with short to adequate soil moisture levels. Hot weather conditions and short soil moisture levels were reported in the southernmost part of the district. Eastern parts of the district also reported hot and dry weather with very short to adequate soil moisture levels. Western parts of the district reported mild weather conditions along with rains and adequate to short soil moisture levels. Wheat harvest was completed in Frio County, and potato and sweet corn harvests continued. Peanut planting was in full swing. Cotton was squaring and a week from first bloom. Corn was maturing. Pasture and rangeland conditions remained fair to good. Live Oak County reported high temperatures and scattered thunderstorms that delivered trace amounts up to 2 inches of rain. Some areas did not receive any rainfall. Cotton was improving, but pastures and other row crops were suffering. Coastal Bermuda crop fields were producing good hay bales. Watermelon and cantaloupe harvests were complete. In Zavala County, the final fields of cabbage were harvested. Native rangelands and pastures responded favorably to rainfall and eliminated all supplemental feeding activities. Pasture conditions continued to deteriorate in other areas, and many producers began to haul water as tanks were starting to dry up. Cotton made good progress as well. Wheat and oat harvests were completed. Sorghum was doing well with little insect pressure. Pecans also made good progress. Extreme high temperatures and daily heat indexes were forecast.

and everyone is understood. I encourage every veteran, dependent and family member to utilize its resources. Because without the Veterans Center I don't think I could have gone through school."

Guevara said it is stories like Garcia's that make everything they do worthwhile.

"This award reinforces our commitment to our service members, veterans and their families," said Guevara. "A military family can find peace of mind that TSTC supports their educational interests and goals."

TSTC is one of only 196 schools that were awarded this designation for 2019-2020.

The Military Spouse Friendly lists are created using data and sources from federal agencies and survey information completed by participating organizations to create a guide for military spouses looking to further their education.

TSTC, for the fourth consecutive year, has also been designated as a Military Friendly School by the same organization

"To be recognized as both a Military Friendly School and a Military Spouse Friendly School speaks volumes of our support to military families," said Guevara.

The TSTC Veterans Center assists military service members, veterans and their families statewide with internal and external resources to ensure their educational success at TSTC.

The TSTC Veterans Center serves as a centralized, one-stop shop for prospective and current students who are veterans, as well as their dependents. The center assists with admissions, financial aid, GI Bill and Hazlewood applications.

In addition to the Veterans Center, TSTC also offers self-paced, competency-based learning for veterans who have gained applicable skills through their service in the military. Veterans can receive credit for these skills to move ahead on their certificate or degree plan quicker.

For more information on the services offered by TSTC's Veteran Center, call 956-364-4387 or visit tstc.edu/veterans.

GRADED CALICHE BASE

Bid Requirements

Sealed Bids for graded caliche base material will be received by the Glasscock County Judge, delivered to the Glasscock County Judge at the Glasscock County Courthouse, 117 E. Currie Street, Garden City, Texas, until 9:00 a.m., July 8, 2019, at which time the bids will be publicly opened, read aloud and tabulated. These bids will subsequently be considered for award by the Commissioners Court of Glasscock County. The Commissioners Court may, at its discretion, award to more than one bidder.

Each bid should include: 1) the unit price per cubic yard (or per ton) bid for the specified graded base material and 2) the location in Glasscock County of the pit or stockpiled material; and shall be signed by the Bidder. Each bid must be submitted in a sealed envelope addressed to the Glasscock County Judge. The envelope should have the name of the Bidder and "July 2019 Graded Base Bid" typed or written on the outside of the envelope. If submitted by mail or delivery service, the sealed envelope containing the bid must be enclosed in another envelope addressed to the Glasscock County Judge, P.O. Box 67, 117 E. Currie Street, Garden City, Texas 79739. Any bid received after the time and date specified will not be considered.

Glasscock County reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive any technicalities, informalities or minor defects, or to accept the proposal or proposals they deem to be in the best interest of Glasscock County, including awarding to more than one bidder.

Material Specifications

Successful Bidder(s) shall furnish uncontaminated material of uniform quality that meets the following specifications from the 2004 Edition of the Texas Department of Transportation Standard Specifications for Construction and Maintenance of Highways, Streets, and Bridges:

Graded Base shall be

•Grade 1, Type A material, in accordance with the requirements for 1) gradation, 2) liquid limit and 3) plasticity index, as set forth in Table 1 – Material Requirements under Item 247 – Flexible Base. Additives such as

Public Notice

lime, cement, fly ash, or other materials shall not be used to modify aggregates in order to meet these requirements, or •Modified Grade 1 (maximum size material <1 ½"), Type A material, in accordance with the requirements for 1) gradation, 2) liquid limit and 3) plasticity index, as set forth in Table 1 – Material Requirements under Item 247 – Flexible Base. Additives such as lime, cement, fly ash, or other materials shall not be used to modify aggregates in order to meet these requirements.

Before any material is purchased by the County, the successful bidder(s) must submit to the county Judge a report from an acceptable testing laboratory certifying that the material to be purchased meets or exceeds these material specifications.

Address questions concerning these specifications or bid procedures to Don W. Bonifay, Engineer for Glasscock County, at donbonifay@gmail.com, or (432) 230-6815.

Measurement and Delivery

The specified material shall be supplied and measured by the cubic yard or by the ton. Material shall be located at the successful Bidder's location, which must be in Glasscock County. This location shall be stated in the bid document. There is no minimum or guaranteed quantity of material stated or implied with the award of this bid.

Bids will include these options:

1. Material loaded by the successful Bidder into trucks provided by the County; and
2. Material loaded by the County into trucks provided by the County.

The term of this bid shall be six months from the date of award.

Payments

Bids submitted shall be a unit price amount (in U.S. Dollars), which shall constitute the total cost for each cubic yard or ton requested and received by Glasscock County. Payment shall be monthly. Invoices submitted to the Glasscock County Treasurer at least seven days prior to the Glasscock County Commissioners Court's regularly scheduled meeting, will be paid within two days after that Court meeting.

Annie's Mailbox

An Ode to All Fathers

Dear Readers: Below are just a few of the very touching and beautiful tributes you submitted for Fathers Day. It was so nice to read about all of the love, gratitude and humor you expressed about your fathers. Happy Father's Day.

Dear Annie: My 94-year-old father, Fred Koenig, has been writing poetry for many years. We have printed a book of his poems that we have found up till 2017 and are hoping to print another for his 95th birthday. One of his poems is for Father's Day (He also has one for Mother's Day and one especially for our mother.)

This is his tribute to fathers:
 From the beginning you were a guide to me
 A model of the person I would like to be Teaching me how to cope with life

 How to avoid the pitfalls and strife
 Even now I pause before I move
 Remembering your words: Stay in the groove
 Here's a Father's Day poem submission by C. David Hay of the Villages, Florida:

'Father's Specter'
 The shadow of my father
 Gives measure to my stride;
 I strove to be the man he was
 Until the day he died.
 Little boys grow up too fast,
 I never stopped to see
 The aging eyes that misted
 With his love for me.
 Life's seasons are perennial,

The son becomes the man;
 Still I hear his challenge --
 "Be the best you can."
 The world is full of wonders
 That only a father can teach;
 He pointed to the stars --
 And showed me how to reach.
 --C. David Hay

You asked for Father's Day submissions, well, here is mine. I wrote this several years ago when I was looking at old family photos and realized that Daddy had changed and I never even noticed. I think he would be surprised to find it published in your column on or around Father's Day:
 'Daddy's Face'
 Stares up at me

With my young father,
 My sister and me.
 Daddy's young face is
 Smooth and serene,
 Not lined with the wrinkles
 That tell what he's seen.
 See, I didn't notice
 The lines sweep his face
 I just saw my daddy
 Not old in his place.
 But now he's a Grandpa
 And great as can be
 And Grandpas need wrinkles
 For grandkids to see
 But he's still my Daddy
 And daddies must change
 From Daddy to Grandpa
 Dads have to have range
 So although the picture
 Is what I still see,
 We've grown up,
 My Daddy, my sister and me.
 --Daddy's girl in Wyoming

Dear Annie: As Father's Day approaches, I thought you might like to reprint an item translated from a Dutch magazine. This nostalgic gem appeared in The News-Times in Danbury, Connecticut. I have cherished it for many years and hope you will share it with your readers. -- Donna W., Washington, D.C.
 'Father'
 4 Years: My daddy can do anything.
 7 Years: My dad knows a lot, a whole lot.
 8 Years: My father doesn't know quite everything.
 12 Years: Oh, well, naturally Father doesn't know that, either.
 14 Years: Father? Hopelessly old-fashioned.
 21 Years: Oh, that man is out-of-date. What did you expect?
 25 Years: He knows a little bit about it, but not much.

 30 Years: Maybe we ought to find out what Dad thinks.
 35 Years: A little patience. Let's get Dad's assessment before we do anything.
 50 Years: I wonder what Dad would have thought about that. He was pretty smart.
 60 Years: My dad knew absolutely everything!
 65 Years: I'd give anything if Dad were here so I could talk this over with him. I really miss that man.
Dear Donna: Love it! I saw myself in every line and am certain others will, too. Bless you for sending it on in time for his day.

Opening lead — four of hearts.
This deal occurred in a 12-table duplicate game. The final contract at every table was three notrump played by South, which was in itself a rare occurrence. However, only one declarer made three notrump, even though the contract could not be defeated with correct play. All the others went down one.

The opening lead was uniformly a low heart. At 11 tables, the lead was ducked to East's queen, and a heart continuation went to dummy's ace, after which the club jack was finessed.

West took his king and then cashed three heart tricks to put a quick end to the proceedings.
At the only table where the contract was made, declarer played dummy's ace of hearts at trick one and next tried the club finesse. West won with the king, but the defenders were now helpless.
If West cashed the K-J of hearts, dropping East's queen, South's ten would become a trick. Alternatively, if West returned a low heart to East's queen, he would be unable to regain the lead to run the rest of the suit. In practice, West chose the latter course, after which declarer had no trouble scoring nine tricks.
How could South know that putting up the ace on the opening lead was the winning play? The answer is simple enough. He reasoned that if the hearts were divided 4-3, nothing could be gained by ducking the heart at trick one. The only pertinent question, therefore, was whether the duck would gain or lose against a 5-2 division.
Since West would not lead a low heart from K-Q-J-x-x — he would lead the king in that case — it followed that East had at least one of the missing honors. Rising with the ace was therefore certain to block the heart suit if West had five of them, making the ace the proper play at trick one.

Here's How It Works:
 Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ANSWER:

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Sentimental Father's Day

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You have respect for your competitors, teachers and for all the others who are likely to get their feathers ruffled by your new plans. You can be respectful and still move forward.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your secret to staying fresh and relevant is pretty simple: The learning never stops for you. Today, there will be a wealth of educational options, and it will take some deliberation to figure out the best thing to learn next.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). What's relaxing to you would be considered very active to another person. You'll move, express yourself and get into life's mix. At the end of the day, you're not tired; you're recharged.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It would be strange if you were overly aware of yourself at all times. However, once in a while you need a reminder about who you are and what you bring to the table, so you can help others to clearly see your virtues.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You have something to say that will help people. Make your message easy to spread. If everyone tells one person, you'll soon have the ear of more people than you can count.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). People don't just give their attention to anyone. Attention has to be earned. Once attention is earned, the next level is trust. This is what you'll spend your day earning and building on.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). If you're juggling too many options, none of them will seem very appealing. It will be easy to get distracted. You make your best decisions when there are fewer things to choose from.

SCORPIO (Oct.

24-Nov. 21). You are so aware of the limits of your time and attention that it makes it very difficult for you to stay for any length of time in a conversation, activity or situation that doesn't interest you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Air, water, food, shelter -- these are needs. Technically, most other things aren't needs; they're wants. And today, greater clarity is needed on the matter because confusing wants with needs will lead to poor choices.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). There are those who will go out of their way to avoid new things. That's something you don't relate to now, though you'll nonetheless find it beneficial and possibly profitable to accommodate the tendency.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It's great when the things that bring you health also bring you good looks, strength and the ability for physical activity you enjoy. Such findings don't usually taste like candy. That's a hard part, but it's worth it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're curious about other people's dreams and desires. Not everyone is, you know! That's why people will respond so warmly to your interest. They want to be known as much as you want to know them.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 16). What make this year's dealings so wonderful isn't the money involved (though it's nothing to sneeze at) but the intangibles. This includes the affinity you feel for the people involved and the hope you trade on -- a hope that everyone will build something great from the arrangement. Indeed, that's exactly what happens. Cancer and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 11, 40, 28 and 14.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Differences don't melt away just because you're brought together with your people. In fact, most people within close groups hardly like each other. This isn't cynicism; it's human nature. Within every close family, friend circle or company, the proximity of familiarity creates a friction that wears of the sheen of patience and respect. This week brings a full moon in Sagittarius, the sign that crosses boundaries. It may help you to think of every person as a country and every group as a continent in which these countries must sort out their territorial issues. The closer countries are to one another, the more skirmishes can be unremitting. To lead your "country" well this week is to respect and uphold all boundary agreements, setting a high standard for those you to follow. Embrace the perils of being in a group. Know that it's worth the trouble and that with the right attitude every ounce of exasperation, frustration and inconvenience can add up to a more tolerant, patient and skilled individual.

Note by Roger Cline
Staff Writer

Some of my earliest fond memories are of afternoons spent reading in the nooks and crannies of Port Arthur, Texas' historic Gates Memorial Library while my dad Raymond Cline, then the Assistant Library Director, worked nearby. After the Port Arthur Public Library moved to a newly built building and Gates was sold to the local community college for use as its library, and my dad's boss Lucy Stiefel retired, dad became Library Director, where he served for many years before retiring in 2005.

In 2017, Hurricane Harvey devastated Port Arthur, causing significant damage to the Public Library and flooding my parents' house. My parents moved into a smaller, but still comfortable, home; and the Library has undergone repair and renovation.

Recently, the Port Arthur City Council decided to name the Library's courtyard after my dad, and proclaimed June 6 as "Ray Cline Day" in Port Arthur. Here's the article run in the Port Arthur News about the event, in honor of Ray Cline Day and also of Father's Day.

By Ken Stickney

The Port Arthur News

Ray Cline spent most of his 32 years at the Port Arthur Public Library inside the typically hushed building. Now he can use his outdoor voice.

Cline, library director from 1986-2005, will be honored Saturday — it will be proclaimed "Ray Cline Day" in the city — when the library dedicates the Ray Cline Courtyard adjacent to the library, located at 4615 Ninth Ave.

Cline worked 13 years as assistant director, 19 as director, and has volunteered at the library since his retirement. He serves as president of the Friends of the Library.

He said he was "floored" when he learned the courtyard would be named for him.

"It was a no-brainer to name it for Mr. Ray Cline," said library director Steven Williams. "He still advocates for the library, and is still in the mix here."

The library's board agreed to name the courtyard for Cline at its March meeting, the City Council agree last week.

Started in 1973

Cline, a native of Texline, northwest of Amarillo and a stone's throw from New Mexico and Oklahoma, started his library career in 1973, straight out of library graduate school at the University of North Texas and following Army service. He earned his bachelor's in business at what's now West Texas A&M.

He brought his wife — Ray and Janet Cline have been married for 55 years — and one son to Port

Arthur and remained; a second son was born here. Cline initially worked under director Lucy Steifel.

While Port Arthur was new to Cline in 1973, library work was not. He'd worked much of his young life in libraries, on staff or as a volunteer. He said he opted to not stay in the military as a career because he wanted stability for his family.

Initially, he worked at the Gates Library on Stillwell Boulevard until the city built the current library in 1980. The Gates Library now serves Lamar State College Port Arthur.

Cline hired Williams, then a high school student, as a student worker after the restaurant where Williams had worked as a server closed. Cline said Williams was their favorite server there.

"God puts people in your life," said Williams, who became director last year. "I would not be in my position without his mentorship."

Williams worked his way up at the library in measured steps from student worker while earning his two-year and four-year degrees and then his master's.

"It wasn't on my mind that Steven would become director someday," Cline said, "but I saw something in him, a quickness, that we needed in our student assistants."

Courtyard enhanced

Cline said the library was built with a courtyard but that there had been vandalism there in the library's earlier years. New security measures are being added.

The courtyard itself is being beautified as part of an Eagle Scout project undertaken by Troop 122 in Beaumont. Weston Connors, a rising senior at West Brook High School, is leading the project as part of his effort to qualify for Eagle Scout.

The scouts are planting Japanese boxwoods, butterfly weed silky scarlet, azaleas and more. The plants will attract butterflies and hummingbirds.

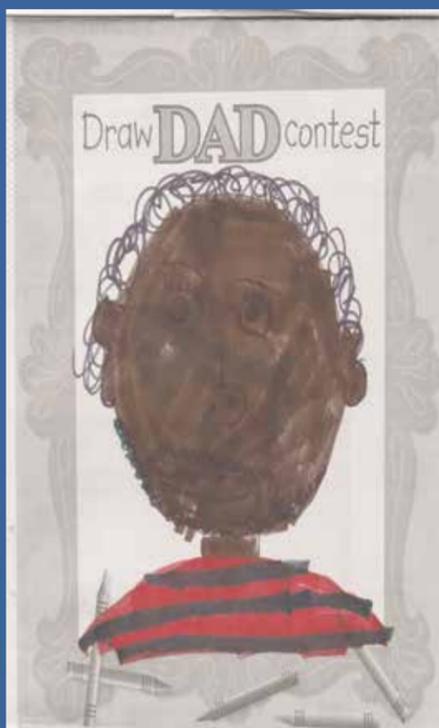

"It will look really nice," said Connors.

Some benches and furnishings are being added. The library was flooding during Hurricane and Tropical Storm Harvey in summer 2017, and reopened in March.

Kevin Bacon (left) and Aldis Hodge star in the Showtime drama series "City on a Hill," premiering Sunday.

Kevin Bacon fights Boston crime in 'City on a Hill'

Boston is famous for many things, one being its history of crime.

Such names as Gaspere Messina, James "Buddy" McLean and James "Whitey" Bulger confirm that — and it's well-known by Oscar winners Ben Affleck and Matt Damon, who grew up as friends in Cambridge, Mass. Both have made movies about the crime culture related to Boston, and they revisit it as executive producers of "City on a Hill," a Showtime drama premiering Sunday, June 16.

Developed by fellow executive producer Chuck MacLean from his and Affleck's idea, the 1990s-set show tenuously teams an assistant district attorney newly relocated from Brooklyn (played by Aldis Hodge, formerly of "Leverage" and "Underground") and a FBI veteran (Kevin Bacon, returning to series work after "The Following" and "I Love Dick") whose renown partially cloaks his corrupt ways. The two men pursue a family that robs armored cars, ultimately impacting the whole of criminal justice in Boston.

"The thing about 'City on a Hill' that I loved from the first time I read the pilot," Bacon explains, was that his character "Jackie's voice was something that I heard. The way that Chuck MacLean constructs dialogue in this world of '90s cops and robbers had a kind of gritty vibe to me that was reminiscent of the movies that I loved in the '70s from (directors Martin Scorsese and Sidney Lumet. And I felt like there wasn't much on television that was really in this pocket.

"Television is great, and there's a lot of really cool stuff to watch, but nothing that quite feels like this," adds Bacon. "Also, the thing that I like about 'City on a Hill' is that when you go into a situation where there's crime involved, your character can live most of the time on the job ... which is only interesting up to a point as far as I'm concerned as an actor. It gets interesting in 'City on a Hill' because he goes home."

To that end, "Law & Order" and "Crossing Jordan" alum Jill Hennessy also stars as Jackie's wife. Additional cast members include Cathy Moriarty ("Raging Bull"), Boston native Jonathan Tucker and Mark O'Brien as members of the crime family, as well as Sarah Shahi ("Person of Interest"), Amanda Clayton, Kevin Chapman (also born in Boston), Kevin Dunn and Rory Culkin.

With former "Homicide: Life on the Street" partners Barry Levinson and Tom Fontana, two-time Oscar-ceremony producer Jennifer Todd and filmmaker James Mangold ("Walk the Line") also among executive producers of "City on a Hill," Hodge notes that he appreciates his prosecutor alter ego's dilemma in the series, "fighting for himself at the same time he's fighting for justice. Which is not a fair fight."

"Batwoman" (The CW — series premiere, Fall 2019)

Three years after Batman mysteriously disappeared, Gotham is a city in despair, and it's under the watch of Jacob Kane (Dougray Scott) and his military-grade Crows Private Security, which now protects the city. When the Alice in Wonderland gang targets the firm, Kane's daughter Kate (Ruby Rose) returns home. Though she never planned to be Gotham's new vigilante, Kate follows in the footsteps of her missing cousin, Bruce Wayne, and protects the streets as Batwoman.

"Carol's Second Act" (CBS — series premiere, Fall 2019)

At age 50, Carol Kenney (Patricia Heaton) has raised her children, gotten divorced and retired from teaching. Instead of kicking up her heels and taking a well-earned break, she decides it's time to start over, committing to the pursuit of her dream of becoming a doctor. As the oldest medical intern — by a lot — she must sink or swim with peers half her age. Kyle MacLachlan also stars.

"Mixed-ish" (ABC — series premiere, Fall 2019)

This comedy is the second spinoff to the network hit "black-ish" and follows Rainbow Johnson (Arica Himmel) as she recounts her experience growing up in a mixed-race family in the 1980s and the constant dilemmas they had to face over whether to assimilate or stay true to themselves. Tika Sumpter, Gary Cole and Christina Anthony star with Tracee Ellis Ross, Laurence Fishburne and Anthony Anderson among the executive producers.

It's mini-golf gone mad on ABC's 'Holey Moley'

One look at the miniature golf course in the ABC competition series "Holey Moley" tells you this isn't a Pete Dye design. In fact, it's probably closer to something from the mind of Tim Burton.

Premiering Thursday, June 20, the hourlong series showcases mini-golf lovers from around the country going head-to-head in a competition that is part golf and part obstacle course. In each episode, golfers ranging from club pros to students and housewives will tee it up on holes with rows of windmills, a giant horseshoe-shaped ramp and other outsized features while also taking on physical challenges like climbing icy slopes, running across rolling logs and sailing on a zipline. The winner each week gets $25,000, a golden putter trophy and a plaid jacket.

"It's by far the most extreme miniature golf course I've ever seen and definitely requires a lot of the players," says Rob Riggle, an avid golfer who provides color commentary alongside play-by-play man Joe Tessitore and sideline reporter Jeannie Mai. "It's fun, though, because there are some things about the course that demand some physical abilities and then there's some parts of it that don't demand any. It just demands skill. So it's kind of fun because we had older players, we had younger players ... it didn't matter what walk of life, what age, what gender, you could compete in this competition, which made it a lot of fun."

One noteworthy hole, the Arc De Trigolf, is an oversized version of a classic mini-golf hazard, where players have to hit their ball hard enough to get it uphill and around a horseshoe-shaped ramp, then navigate obstacles to get to the green.

"You had to run across these pedestals to get to the other side above a lake," Riggle explains, "and if you didn't time the pedestals right, you could end up falling in. And once you hit it up over the arc you had to run over and you had to slap this button to a trap door to go down so when it came off the arc, it didn't roll into the water. So you couldn't take your time getting across those pedestals. You had to run."

DENZEL WASHINGTON

Denzel Hayes Washington Jr. was born on Dec. 28, 1954, in Mount Vernon, N.Y. His parents divorced when he was 14, and Washington credits his being sent to a military academy with swaying him from a street life he "wouldn't have survived."

Though he played basketball at Fordham University, Washington earned a degree in drama and journalism. He decided to pursue acting fully after working for a summer at a Connecticut camp, later attending graduate school at San Francisco's famed American Conservatory Theater.

Early projects for Washington included the movie "Carbon Copy" and "A Soldier's Play," which he reprised on screen as "A Soldier's Story." He found steady work on the NBC hospital drama "St. Elsewhere," branching out to do other films such as "Power" and "Cry Freedom" during that period.

Washington won his first Oscar for the 1989 drama "Glory," then solidified his box-office status in 1990s movies including Spike Lee's "Mo' Better Blues" plus "Mississippi Masala," "Philadelphia," "The Pelican Brief," "Crimson Tide," "Courage Under Fire," "The Preacher's Wife," "The Hurricane" and "The Bone Collector."

After making the Disney drama "Remember the Titans," Washington switched gears and earned his second Oscar as a corrupt cop in "Training Day." "John Q," "Out of Time," "Man on Fire," "American Gangster" and remakes of "The Manchurian Candidate" and "The Taking of Pelham 123" followed for him.

The stage yielded a 2010 Tony Award for August Wilson's "Fences," which Washington would both star in and direct for the 2016 movie version. "A Raisin in the Sun" and "The Iceman Cometh" are among his other theater credits.

Other relatively recent Washington movies have included "The Book of Eli," "Unstoppable," "Flight," a remake of "The Magnificent Seven," the two "Equalizer" dramas and "Roman J. Israel, Esq." He and his wife Pauletta have four children including former athlete and fellow actor John David Washington, who starred last year in Spike Lee's "BlacKkKlansman."

After directing a 2016 "Grey's Anatomy" episode, Washington makes a now-rare return to television as the 47th recipient of the American Film Institute Life Achievement Award in a TNT special Thursday, June 20.

BEST MIAMI-SET SERIES

"The Jackie Gleason Show" (1966-70, CBS) Filmed at the Miami Beach Auditorium, this hourlong offering was a combination of variety show and hourlong adaptations of old "The Honeymooners" scripts, much of the latter containing production numbers and ad-libbing by Gleason and co-stars Art Carney, Sheila MacRae and Jean Kean to the delight of the live audience.

"Miami Vice" (1984-90, NBC) Don Johnson and Philip-Michael Thomas became household names as pastel-clad Detectives Sonny Crockett and Ricardo Tubbs in this wildly popular crime drama that focused mainly on drug trafficking and incorporated popular music of the day into its episodes. In fact, legend has it that the idea for the series came from a brainstorming memo from NBC Entertainment chief Brandon Tartikoff that read simply "MTV cops."

"The Golden Girls" (1985-92, NBC) Multiple Emmy and Golden Globe Awards went to this very funny Susan Harris-created sitcom about four retirees (Bea Arthur, Estelle Getty, Rue McClanahan, Betty White) dealing with relationships, life and one another in Miami.

"Empty Nest" (1988-95, NBC) This "Golden Girls" spinoff starred former "Soap" player Richard Mulligan as a widowed pediatrician who gets housemates when two of his grown daughters (Dinah Manoff, Kristy McNichol) move back in with him.

"CSI: Miami" (2002-12, CBS) Former "NYPD Blue" star David Caruso was front and center as the head of a team of investigators in this first direct spinoff in the "CSI" crime procedural franchise, with other forensics analysts played by Emily Procter, Kim Delaney, Adam Rodriguez and Omar Benson Miller ("Ballers").

"Burn Notice" (2007-13, USA Network) Jeffrey Donovan did solid work as a spy recently disavowed by the CIA, who uses his special ops training to help others as an unlicensed private investigator and problem solver. Gabrielle Anwar, Bruce Campbell and Sharon Gless were also in the talented cast.

"Magic City" (2012-13, Starz) Set in 1959, this underrated drama starred Jeffrey Dean Morgan as the ruthless owner of a glamorous Miami Beach hotel, who must make a deal with a notorious mobster (Danny Huston) to keep his establishment afloat. Olga Kurylenko and Steven Strait were also in the cast.

"Jane the Virgin" (2014-19, The CW) This soon-to-end dramedy about a chaste young Latina (Gina Rodriguez) who bears a child after being artificially inseminated by mistake garnered a loyal following and favorable critical reviews.

"Ballers," (2015-present, HBO) Dwayne Johnson departed from his "The Rock" persona to play a former NFL player turned financial manager to other athletes in this well-received comedy/drama that also stars Rob Corddry, John David Washington and Omar Benson Miller.

The 'Finest' viewing is only for some people, for now

Q: I'm not a Spectrum subscriber. Is there any other way to watch the show "L.A.'s Finest"? - Gary Sellers, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: Find a friend who subscribes to Spectrum and invite yourself over. Seriously, at least for now, that cable system intends to keep the Jessica Alba-Gabrielle Union police drama an exclusive "Spectrum Original" offering for itself - just as such forthcoming offerings as a revival of the Paul Reiser-Helen Hunt sitcom "Mad About You" will be.

With that said, we'd expect that with the marketable names Alba and Union have, "L.A.'s Finest" eventually will get a DVD release. That's an ancillary market that the show's originating studio, Sony Pictures, surely wouldn't ignore for the extra profit it can yield; it's just a matter of letting Spectrum have its exclusive window on the episodes first.

Q: My husband and I attended the Willie Nelson tribute concert in Nashville last January, and it was being filmed for A&E Network. Do you know when it will be aired? - Carolyn Marlow, Flagler Beach, Fla.

Willie Nelson

A: We checked with A&E Network, and as of the time this column was written, no air date had been set for it. However, A&E also confirmed with us that it still intends to show the event ... and it will have quite a cast to promote when that time comes, since the show features performances by Kris Kristofferson, Sheryl Crow, George Strait, John Mellencamp, Alison Krauss, Vince Gill and Lee Ann Womack, among others.

Reese Witherspoon

OF 'BIG LITTLE LIES' ON HBO

You being an executive producer, does this ever create a unique dynamic on set, or is it irrelevant to your work as an actor?

Oh, certainly. I get very concerned about logistics and schedules and wanting to accommodate people and help people and help facilitate their ideas. And I think more than anything, the fun part of being a producer is just getting to kind of dig in with everybody about what they wanted out of the experience ...

The timing of the first season couldn't have been more appropriate. What kind of role do you think that first season played in terms of furthering a conversation this country needed to have and how much do you think that contributed to the success of it?

We had no idea there was going to be that kind of public response to this show, that it was going to converge with this moment of women, sensing their need to be leaders and step up and talk about their experiences with strength and with encouragement from other women. And I do think that is part of the reason that we felt like a Season 2 was not just a great experience for us to get back, but to talk about, now what, you know? We've talked about trauma, we've experienced trauma, we see each other's trauma, but how do we cope with it? And how do we go on and how do we carry on? So that was a big theme that we explored in Season 2.

Family dynamics are front and center of ABC's 'Family Food Fight'

It is said that there is nothing like a good meal to bring a family together. But preparing it together can get interesting.

And that family dynamic is on display in the ABC culinary competition series "Family Food Fight." Premiering Thursday, June 20, the hourlong episodes pit family teams against each other as they trot out their best skills and secret family recipes to prepare dishes for a panel of judges consisting of chefs, restaurateurs and cookbook authors Ayesha Curry, Cat Cora and Graham Elliot. The winning clan gets the title of America's No. 1 Food Family and a $100,000 grand prize.

Curry, who is also the show's host and an executive producer, says it was fascinating watching the family dynamic in action, especially with the pressure of competition added in.

"The coolest part to me was that they were all the same," she observes. "Like you could find similarities in each of the families that you could connect your own family to and I thought that that was really special and it's sort of why I wanted to do this show. I feel like just with our social climate right now, I was really excited to spearhead a show that showed a melting pot of people and to show that every family is just like the other family in one way or another."

Especially, she explains, when personalities clash.

"Every family is going to have their little tiffs or arguments," Curry, the wife of NBA point guard Stephen Curry, says, "and at the end of the day it always seems that everybody comes together for the greater good of the cause. And no matter where you fall in the competition ... you always come out on top learning something about each other and growing as a family."

As for the quality of the dishes, Curry says everything was first-rate. While all these contestants are amateurs, their skills, creativity and outside-the-box thinking wowed the judges and had them inquiring about their techniques.

"The one thing I was shocked that everybody brought to the table was flavor," Curry says. "You know, spice-heavy, flavor-forward. You could tell just from us judging, everybody had a really good palate and so their dishes were composed well. ... You know, Cat Cora and Graham Elliot, even they were swept off of their feet ... and we were surprised time and time again. And so they even learned new methods that they figured would never work but somehow would come together so beautifully."

"And so I felt like it was a learning process for everyone," she continues. "There's no one way to do things and I love that's also the message the show sends: There's so many different paths you can take to greatness and to getting the job done."

June 18
"Movie: Captain Marvel"
Oscar winner Brie Larson ("Room") made her mark as the first female superhero in Marvel Cinematic Universe in this 2019 actioner that finds her character Carol Danvers becoming one of the most powerful heroes in the universe when Earth is caught in the middle of a galactic war between two alien races. Samuel L. Jackson, Ben Mendelsohn, Jude Law and Annette Bening are also in the talented cast.

"Movie: Legends of the Hidden Temple"
Based on a mid-1990s game show for young viewers, this 2016 TV movie follows three siblings — Sadie, Noah and Dudley (Isabela Moner, Colin Critchley, Jet Jurgensmeyer) — who ditch a jungle tour they're on and stumble into an ancient temple. Trapped inside, they must complete a series of tricky challenges to escape. Game show host Kirk Fogg appears as a fictionalized version of himself, and original cast member Dee Bradley Baker reprises his role as Olmec.

"The Chef Show"
Friends and "Chef" co-stars Jon Favreau and Roy Choi reunite for this culinary series in which they experiment with recipes and techniques, explore new flavors, cultures and locales, and collaborate with luminaries in the entertainment and foodie world. Together, they share their love of bringing people together over a delicious meal. (ORIGINAL)
