Summer readers celebrate freedom with parade

Kids participating in the Howard County Resource Center's Summer Reading Program set down the books to show off their Fourth of July spirit Thursday by making T-shirts and hats and decorating their bikes and scooters for a parade.

By ANNA GUTIERREZ
 Staff Writer

The Howard County Resource Center is still sponsoring a summer reading program for children ages five to seven. So far, they have had 11 kids sign up. Gloria Munoz has been teaching the summer reading program. She says that in addition to reading and keeping track of what books each child has read, the kids also work on math and spelling.

There is lots of fun mixed in to keep the kids focused. The kids were excited to tell me they've learned about animals and got to make their t-shirts and hats they wore during the parade. There is a project coming up where the kids will learn about all forms of sea creatures. In addition, they have pizza days, hot dog days, and movie and popcorn days.

According to Diana Martinez, Howard County Resource Center Executive Director, there is still time to register your children if you'd like for them to attend the summer reading program. The program lasts until July 25.

Munoz and Martinez hope you will still send your kids to their summer reading program. They also hope to expand it in the future. They both feel it is very important to work on reading and math

Moonlight Rave Run set for July 12

By ROGER CLINE
 Staff Writer

Are you looking to get in a bit of exercise, but find the upper-90s and triple digit temperatures a bit daunting for your outdoors running and workout routine?

It's a lot cooler at night... and Permian Basin Events' Scenic Mountain

Moonlight Rave Runs might be right up your alley.

The 5K runs through Big Spring State Park on Scenic Mountain are held three times during the summer months each year, to coincide with the light of the full moon. This year's first run took place June 14, but that leaves two more to go, with the next run coming up July 12. The run will kick off at 11:55; those participating should plan to be there at least 30 minutes before the start of the race.

"We always have it during a full moon, so it's real bright," said Permian Basin Events' Charise Felty. "It is a family event. We have a lot of families come out. The kids really get into it because they get to stay up late."

Pets are also welcomed, so long as they are on leashes, Felty said.

"And as long as they are family-friendly," she added. "We don't want anyone getting bit."

One of the highlights of the run is the glow bracelets and necklaces, and fluorescent clothes people wear to light up the run. Organizers will place black lights strategically around the course to cause the bright fluorescent clothing to glow.

Pre-registration for the event is $20, while registration on-site on the day of the event is $25. For more information or to pre-register, visit www.permianbasinevents.com.

State Park resurfacing project July 9

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

The Big Spring State Park roads will be receiving a little TLC on July 9, which requires the park to be closed. No access will be granted to the State Park from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. while the seal-coat work is taking place.

"It has been about 17 years since a repaving and resurfacing has taken place on the Scenic Mountain State Park roads," Ron Alton, Big Spring State Park Manager, said.

According to the statement released by the Big Spring State Park, for safety reasons and to allow the movement of the construction equipment on the park road system, public access will be closed. The park is set to reopen once the work is complete.

"This project is just routine road maintenance, but will help in preventing cracking, which in turn limits the penetration from the water and ice that occurs when there are cracks," he said.

Alton and State Park staff apologize for any inconvenience this may cause and appreciates the communities understanding.

Once the sealcoating project is complete, the park will reopen to the public and gear up for the next Moonlight Rave Run, scheduled on July 12. Before summer wraps up, on Aug. 3, the annual Stargazing Party will take place. More details to come on that event.

Amanda Duforat is the managing editor at the Big Spring Herald. To contact her, email editor@bigspringherald.com or call 432-263-7331.

DAILY PRAYER

Thank You, Lord, for being an always present help to us during times of trial and trouble. Amen

Sage advice from a sixteen year old

“My policy for everything is to always listen to people because they have so much that they can teach you. Everybody knows something that you don't. And I always like to follow my policy of listening. It's kind of my golden rule.”

Caleb Lewis is a junior at Highland Park High School in Dallas. He's in the National Honor Society and takes advanced classes in Physics, English and French. He's looking forward to college but hasn't decided on a major.

“Engineering is one possibility, more specifically Aerospace and Aeronautical Engineering. Then there's political science and astrophysics. I've got a lot on my mind. I also need to find something that's going to pay well as a career. There are plenty of things that would be fun to learn but couldn't really get you anywhere financially.”

Caleb spent this past summer working at a tennis center taking care of customers at the counter and heading up the tennis camp for kids. He was on last year's tennis team that won state. A few months ago when he was fifteen, Caleb built a computer.

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

“I had a computer and it wasn't working right. I didn't like it, so I decided to build myself a computer. I learned how to do it and built a computer. It's very fast and looks great.”

Caleb found building computers fun. He has built 3 of them.

“The first one took 8 hours to build. The second one took 3 and a half hours and the third one took an hour and a half.”

He got his parts from Amazon. “Amazon has nearly everything these days, so I got everything I needed there: the central processing unit, the memory, the graphics card, the case, the mother board and the power supply. You can add whatever you want from there. Picking out the parts is harder than building the actual computer.”

He learned how to put the parts together by watching Utube.

“Utube is a great source for education. I learned a lot from different people on there. It's very straightforward. All you need is a screwdriver to put everything together. You have to pay attention to what you're doing. One little mistake can wreck the whole project. I tried to avoid those mistakes. There are certain rules to follow and you need to research them if you're going to build a computer.”

I asked Caleb if he plans to build more computers.

“Absolutely. I'd like to build a laptop for college. It'd be very hard to do but I'm curious to see if I could do it. I've only built desktop computers so far. If someone needs a laptop, I'd love to build it for him or her. It would really be fun.”

Caleb Lewis happens to be my grandson. He's a sharp cookie.

Recycling

Dear Editor:

West Branch, Michigan: The tour bus chose to stop there. Just in the door- someone from Phoenix, Arizona was depositing empty bottles into a recycling machine. Adjacently - some other one was depositing empty plastic containers into the machine and would receive 10 cents per item, according to the Arizona person. The room seemed highly popular. Local Big Spring representative of a major store had never heard of the program. A regional representative (in another state near Texas) thought that he had heard of it and provided telephone number of the stores West Branch (out in the middle of an area like Big Spring, in other words not influenced by metro cities. There, a representative confirmed nearly all stores in Michigan had such a program and it was state mandated. It seemed an excellent way to recycle along with the incentive of funds to shoppers. I'm told State of Texas doesn't have this program.

Next step will be an attempt to call to a Michigan, to some government entity, for additional information. Currently, it seems a “too good to be true” situation that will fit Big Spring. It would take care of a lot of recycling and recycle some part of the funds buyers had paid for deposits. It might be the answer to many big retailers wanting to recycle more than a third (currently) of all plastics.

Next will be a call to Texas, Senator, Mr. Kel Seliger, of Amarill (local office - Big Spring) and discuss it in public during next Big Spring visit. The same for State Rep. Mr. Drew Darby of San Angelo. Each of them will receive a copy of this letter.

If you want public recycling, with deposits returned to buyers (public), it will be your responsibility to contact state representatives and the State of Texas Senate and the State of Texas House.

Mort's birthday miseries

Radio listeners heard it from the lips of England's Prime Minister- the inimitable Winston Churchill. In the 1939 radio broadcast, he said Russia “is a riddle, wrapped in a mystery, inside an enigma.”

Fast forward 80 years to Uncle Mort's 107th birthday party on July 4. This old Churchillian quote fits my kin quite well, but perhaps deserves one additional phrase, like “scattered in gun powder packed in a blunderbuss.”

Anyway, there's mounting evidence that maybe God did make Mort after He broke the mold.

The mention of Mort's name in The Thicket invariably elicits groans. This is particularly true at meetings of the Commissioners' Court, where county financial decisions are made. When they hear the “putt-putt-putt” of his golf cart, they know he's arriving to request something.

At a recent session, he followed the guy seeking endorsement of an upcoming golf tournament planned for charitable benefit.

Mort wanted the county to fund a truckload of caliche “one more time” to “smooth out the ruts” on about 400 yards of roadway no one seems to own.

They call it “NML,” or No Man's Land, since surveys of the area are approximations at best. The stretch--dead-ending at Mort's place--is used mostly by attendees at Mort's birthday parties. When the creek's running high, it covers the road. At such times, guests have to grab a vine and “swing like Tarzan” to visit.

Seizing the chance to garner goodwill, Mort said he'd enter the golf tournament, returning any winnings to the charities. Further, if the creek turned out to be running high on his birthday, he'd make the first swing over the creek himself!

The commissioners okayed providing the caliche, and smiled at the prospect of Mort swinging golf clubs.

They remembered his long-ago claim of knowing “nothing about the sport--not even which end of the caddy to hold.”

Mort's golf pledge was all the talk, particularly about “shooting his age.”

The day of the tournament had a bright and clear dawning, and he showed up on the links a full hour before “tee-time.”

He had no idea that soon he'd qualify for “bonehead of the day” honors. Some of the comments between him and his caddy suggest that if he did shoot his age, it would be on the first nine holes.

Following are “snippets” “tween him (“UM” is abbreviation for Uncle Mort, and “SAC” stands for smart aleck caddy.) Their conversations were short, but packed punch, and warranted few paragraph breaks.

I'm pretty sure you'll agree that

Mort was generally “one-upped” by his caddy.

UM: “Stop fiddling with your watch.” SAC: “It's not a watch; it's a compass.”... UM: “Do you think it's a sin to play on Sunday?” SAC: “The way you play, it's a sin any day.”... UM: “This is the worst golf course I've ever played on.” SAC: “We're in a pasture. We left the course about an hour ago.”...UM: “I'm thinking of drowning myself in the lake.” SAC: “Think you can keep your head down that long?”...

UM: “I'd move heaven and earth to break a hundred on this course.” SAC: “Try heaven; you've already moved most of the earth.”

UM: “Do you think I'm improving?” SAC: Yep. You're missing the ball by much less now.”...

UM: “Do you think I can make the green with a four iron?” SAC: “Sure. By tomorrow at the earliest.”...UM: “That can't be my ball; it's too old.” SAC: “I'm not so sure; it's been quite a while since you teed off.”

UM: “How do you like my game?” SAC: “Interesting, but I think I prefer golf.” UM: “You may be the world's worst caddy.” SAC: “Not likely, sir. Too much of a coincidence.”

And so it went. Mort bragged that he “showed them a thing or two.” Witnesses say his “thing count” is as erroneous as his golf score card.

Fatality reported in Big Bend National Park

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK – On July 2, Richard Merrill, 54, of Friendswood, Texas, died while hiking on the Marufo Vega Trail.

Park Law Enforcement Rangers stopped to investigate a vehicle parked at the Marufo Vega Trailhead and found a note detailing Merrill's plan to hike from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m., with a request to notify the park if he hadn't returned by then.

That morning, temperatures at nearby Rio Grande Village were already 90 degrees Fahrenheit with 38% relative humidity at 10 a.m., and reached 106 degrees with 17% humidity by late afternoon. Under these conditions, a hiker will lose more moisture to sweat and evaporation than can be replenished by drinking and can quickly become dehydrated and experience heat illness.

Given this extreme heat danger, Park Rangers began search and rescue operations when conditions became more favorable and safe. That evening they were able to locate Merrill, deceased, a quarter mile off trail near the junction of the Strawhouse and Marufo Vega trails. Due to the rugged terrain and intense afternoon heat, recovery operations began early July 3, with the assistance of a U.S. Customs and Border Protection helicopter and crew.

"We are deeply saddened by this loss and would like to extend our sincere condolences to the friends and family of Mr. Merrill," said Superintendent Bob Krumenaker. "The environment of Big Bend in the summer is, sadly, unforgiving. We urge all hikers to be sure they are prepared for the summer desert conditions so they are able to return home and safely visit Big Bend again. I would also like to extend my thanks to the hard work of the search and rescue team under these extreme conditions, as well as to our Border Patrol partners for their assistance."

The park would like to remind visitors that hiking in the desert in the summer can be dangerous. For visitors coming over Fourth of July Weekend, we would like to urge caution due to extreme heat conditions. We recommend hiking only in the very early morning hours, and being off all trails by the time temperatures reach 95 degrees, which is usually between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. this time of year.

Freedom from what?

Editor's Note: Due to the holiday schedule, Lillian Bohannon's column did not make it in the Friday edition of the Big Spring Herald. We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused.

LILLIAN BOHANNAN

When I was very little, my mother and daddy would set boundaries for their children. We could watch TV if the dishes were done. We could go out and play if the rooms were clean. We could play with our friends whose parents were friends with our parents. We could go to the movies with our friends but had to be in at a given time.

If we ever broke the boundaries, we were told no the next time, but the freedom I felt as a child was one of security in knowing that my parents loved me enough to tell me when I had broken their rules.

Now I am (much) older and follow a different set of boundaries. Some I have set for myself, and some are set by my set of friends, and some are set by my church. But the most important boundaries are set by my God.

When I break the boundaries I have set for myself, I usually try again. When I break those that are set by my friends or church, I apologize and try harder to please. But if I break the boundaries set by my God, I am disappointed in myself for failing Him.

If you want to know what those boundaries are, you have to read His Word. That's the Bible. The Ten Commandments aren't ten suggestions. They were given for our safety. Most of them are written into the laws of our land.

But there is a law unto death. That is when we don't do what He desires for our lives. Freedom comes in America when we obey the laws of the land. Freedom comes in God's realm when we take Him at His Word. He says the Son will make us free indeed. Take Him at His Word. It's fun to follow Him.

Utah police say body of slain college student recovered

By LINDSAY WHITEHURST

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The body of a slain college student has been recovered in a Utah canyon about 85 miles away from a backyard in Salt Lake City where other remains were found last week, police said Friday.

The disclosure came in the case involving 23-year-old Mackenzie Lueck.

Authorities previously said some of her charred remains and personal belongings were found in a suspect's backyard in Salt Lake City. The body was discovered Wednesday in Logan Canyon, north of the city.

"I spoke with Mackenzie's family this morning. Another devastating call," Salt Lake City police Chief Mike Brown said. "Despite their grief, we hope this will help them find some closure and justice for Mackenzie."

The canyon is near Utah State University, where 31-year-old suspect Ayoola A. Ajayi sporadically attended classes for several years without earning a degree.

Lueck disappeared June 17, after she returned from a trip to her hometown of El Segundo, California, for her grandmother's funeral and took a Lyft from the airport to a park where she met someone.

Ajayi was the last person she communicated with, and his cellphone puts him in the park at the same time as Lueck, police have said.

He's being held on suspicion of aggravated murder, kidnapping and other crimes. Charges are expected to be filed next week, Salt Lake County District Attorney Sim Gill said.

No attorney has been listed for Ajayi.

Police have not discussed a motive for the killing or how Lueck died. It isn't clear how Ajayi and Lueck knew each other.

Authorities did not take questions at a Friday news conference or provide other details about the case.

Lueck was missing for nearly two weeks before Ajayi was arrested.

Lueck has been remembered as a bubbly, nurturing person. She was a member of a sorority and a part-time senior at the University of Utah studying kinesiology and pre-nursing.

Ajayi is an information technology worker who had stints with high-profile companies and was briefly in the Army National Guard.

He has no criminal history but was investigated in a 2014 rape allegation and was arrested in a stolen iPad case at Utah State in 2012. The arrest and the expiration of his student visa got him banned from the campus for about three years.

A native of Nigeria, Ajayi is now a U.S. citizen, records show.

His ex-wife has told reporters she was afraid of him, and police have investigated a report that he asked a contractor to build a secretive and sound-proof room in his home.

Neighbors reported a fire in his backyard at the time Lueck disappeared, police have said.

Salt Lake City Mayor Jackie Biskupski commended investigators handling the case.

"I and this community are here for the Lueck family as you continue to go through this process of grieving, of seeking justice and letting go of your loved one in a very tragic circumstance," she said.

Texas police identify ice cream licker as teenage girl

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Police in East Texas say a teenager from San Antonio is suspected of taking a tub of ice cream from a Walmart freezer, removing the top to lick the ice cream and then returning it to the freezer.

Blue Bell Creameries said in a statement that it determined a Walmart store in Lufkin was where "the malicious act of food tampering took place."

A short video posted to social media last week shows the teenage girl laughing as she places the top back on the half-gallon container and returning it to the freezer.

Blue Bell says the container that was "compromised" was found and removed.

The company says "food tampering is not a joke."

Lufkin police said Friday that they don't intend to charge the teen with tampering with a consumer product.

It's not clear if juvenile justice authorities may charge her.

Gunfire ignites fireworks in family car, injuring children

HOUSTON (AP) — Two young Houston-area children are in critical condition following an argument between their father and another motorist who fired into their family car and ignited fireworks that caused the car to be engulfed in flames. Harris County Sheriff Ed Gonzalez says a "road rage incident" led to the gunfire Thursday after the father and his wife had purchased fireworks. They were driving with their 1-year-old child and another child believed to be 1 to 3 years old.

Gonzalez says the father drove away following the gunfire but the family was forced to flee the car when flames consumed it.

Passers-by took the family to a nearby health clinic and the children were airlifted to a Galveston hospital with severe burns.

Authorities are searching for the shooter.

Ex-Cowboys player wanted on probation violation after arrest

DALLAS (AP) — A former Dallas Cowboys player previously convicted in a drunken driving crash that killed a teammate is now wanted for violating his probation.

The Dallas County Sheriff's office says a warrant was issued for the arrest of Josh Brent after the former defensive lineman was charged with assaulting a police officer.

Brent was arrested Sunday in the Dallas suburb of Coppell after police say the 31-year-old resisted an officer trying to handcuff him for public intoxication.

In 2014, Brent was convicted of intoxication manslaughter for his role in the crash that killed teammate Jerry Brown Jr. Brent was sentenced to 180 days in jail and 10 years' probation.

San Francisco to paint over historic George Washington mural

By SAMANTHA MALDONADO

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco will spend up to $600,000 to paint over historical artwork at a public school depicting the life of George Washington, a mural once seen as educational and innovative but now criticized as racist and degrading for its depiction of black and Native American people.

The "Life of Washington" was painted by Victor Arnautoff, one of the foremost muralists in the San Francisco area during the Depression. The San Francisco School Board's decision to paint over the 83-year-old mural is prompting some to worry that other artwork from the so-called New Deal era could face a similar fate because of changing sensitivities.

In addition to depicting Washington as a soldier, surveyor and statesman, the 13-panel, 1,600-square foot mural at George Washington High School contains images of white pioneers standing over the body of a Native American and slaves working at Washington's Mount Vernon estate in Virginia.

The board's decision last week comes at a time when the legacies of Washington and other historical figures who owned slaves are being re-examined. Some cities have changed the names of streets and buildings named after slave owners.

Richard Walker, a professor emeritus of geography at the University of California, Berkeley and director of the history project, Living New Deal, said the Washington mural is meant to show the "uncomfortable facts" about America's first president. For that, it was among many New Deal works of art considered radical when created.

"We on the left ought to welcome the honest portrayal," Walker said, adding that destroying a piece of art "is the worst way we can deal with historic malfeasance, historic evils."

Mark Sanchez, vice president of the school board and a third-grade teacher, said students who must walk past the mural during the school day don't have a choice about seeing the harmful images. "Painting it over represents not only a symbolic fresh start, but a real fresh start," he said.

Lope Yap, Jr., vice president of the Washington High School Alumni Association and a 1970 graduate, disagreed, saying when he was a student and saw the mural he was "awed by the subtle ways Arnautoff was able to critique American history." He said the depictions are "treasures, priceless art" and painting it over is tantamount to pretending the history depicted never happened.

"I'm not into censorship," Yap said. "I would want to deal with history so we can prevent this from ever happening again."

The mural is a fresco, which means it's painted on the wall and can't easily be removed. Painting it over won't happen immediately. Should a lawsuit or other delay arise, it will be covered up until the issues are resolved. The board plans to digitally archive the mural.

Most of the $600,000 earmarked for the project will go toward a required environmental review and to cover expected legal challenges.

George Washington High School has about 2,000 students. Nearly all are people of color and many come from low-income families. As early as the 1960s, some students argued the mural's imagery is offensive and racist. Renewed opposition emerged in recent years amid protests in the South and elsewhere over statues honoring Confederate heroes.

Arnautoff, a Russian-born communist and social critic, was hired with Federal Art Project funds as part of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal, a series of government programs meant to help lift the country out of the Great Depression of the 1930s.

He was one of a group of artists to paint murals at San Francisco's Coit Tower that prompted anti-communists to delay the tower's opening. Arnautoff's piece, called "City Life," shows urban workers crowding around a newsstand of socialist newspapers and magazines. The piece faced criticism for failing to include the conservative-leaning San Francisco Chronicle.

"Victor Arnautoff was far ahead of his time, and we have yet to catch up with him in terms of making school curriculum more inclusive and historically accurate," said Harvey Smith, president of the National New Deal Preservation Association.

Walker and other supporters of the mural worry that painting over it may signal that it's acceptable to destroy the thousands of other New Deal murals across the country. Activists have been successful in getting a series of New Deal murals at the University of New Mexico covered up. Other New Deal murals in New York and Iowa have been vandalized, as well as painted over and subsequently restored.

"The mural is an immense public treasure during one of the few periods of American history where you had the federal government supporting public art, public spaces, public goods," Walker said. "It's been the right that has always attacked the New Deal with its social programs."

Walker suggested rather than destroying the Washington mural, school officials should simply cover it and require freshmen to take a course on slavery and California's role in subjugating Native Americans.

To Sanchez, that's not enough.

"I understand the importance of art, and it should be the last thing we do, to attempt to cover any kind of art up," he said. "The starting point has to be from those who feel they are harmed and how that is unacceptable, especially given the history of this country. When we don't listen, we don't learn."

Cardinals hit 3 home runs, power past Giants 9-4

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On a night when he came within a double of hitting for the cycle, Dexter Fowler was more impressed with two defensive plays he made in center field than anything he did at the plate.

It's easy to see why considering what the rest of the Cardinals lineup did. Fowler, José Martínez and Paul Goldschmidt homered, Tommy Edman tripled in the go-ahead run in the fourth inning and St. Louis beat the San Francisco Giants 9-4 on Friday night.

"I told the umpire, 'Hey man, I still got it,'" Fowler said after driving in two runs and scoring three times. "Any time you can make plays to help the guy on the mound, it's definitely a plus."

The 33-year-old Fowler has spent most of his time in right field this season, but is likely to see more time in center now that Martínez is a mainstay in the lineup. Fowler's two running catches in the deepest parts of Oracle Park, including one to take away a hit from Mike Yastrzemski in the fourth, certainly helped as did homering for the second straight day.

"He's back to being in the strike zone," manager Mike Shildt said. "He's seeing the ball well, his swing feels good. Everything looks really good for Dex. Good at-bats, good ballgame."

Kolton Wong had three hits and two RBIs to help the Cardinals win their third straight and keep pace with Milwaukee in the crowded NL Central. Matt Wieters added two hits and an RBI in a rare place of catcher Yadier Molina.

Buster Posey had two hits and Alex Dickerson homered for San Francisco, which had its four-game winning streak stopped. The Giants scored at least seven runs in each of the four previous wins, but were held to one over the final six innings by St. Louis.

"The offense hasn't quite clicked here (at home)," San Francisco manager Bruce Bochy said. "Some things aren't explained. The pitching and offense just hasn't been good enough here. We had been playing good."

Martínez hit a solo home run off starter Drew Pomeranz (2-9) in the first. DeJong followed with a single before Goldschmidt hit his 15th, a two-run blast to deep center that traveled an estimated 449 feet.

San Francisco came back with two runs in the bottom of the first, then tied it on Dickerson's solo home run leading off the third.

Edman's triple in the fourth drove in Wong and put St. Louis ahead to stay. It's the third consecutive game that the Cardinals rookie has driven in the deciding run.

Fowler homered in the ninth after getting a single and triple in his previous two at-bats.

"We were trying to be too fine," Fowler said. "You go out and you just try to take good at-bats instead of trying to do something and manipulate the ball into somewhere you can't."

Dakota Hudson (7-4) overcame three first-inning walks to win. The right-hander allowed three runs and struck out six in five innings.

TRIPLING UP

Fowler's RBI triple in the seventh was the ninth of the season for the Cardinals, matching their total from 2018.

COULD USE AN OPENER

Pomeranz's problems in the first inning are nothing new. He has an 11.25 ERA and opponents are batting .365 with eight home runs off the left-hander in the opening frame. "I put us in the hole," Pomeranz said. "I have to do a better job in the first inning."

ROSTER MOVE

The Cardinals called up 1B Rangel Ravelo from Triple-A Memphis and optioned OF Lane Thomas to the Redbirds. Ravelo, 27, played 838 career games in the minors before making his major league debut in June.

TRAINERS ROOM

Cardinals: OF Marcell Ozuna is on pace to rejoin the team at some point after the All-Star break. Ozuna has been out with two broken fingers on his right hand but avoided surgery and has been progressing well in his rehab, according to manager Mike Shildt. ... Molina (thumb) was given the day off. ... RHP Mike Mayers (shoulder strain) threw before the game and will do so again Saturday.

Giants: LHP Travis Bergen (shoulder) suffered a slight setback in his rehab and will not throw for the next 10 days.

UP NEXT

Madison Bumgarner (5-7, 4.02 ERA) starts for the Giants on Saturday. The big lefty needs one strikeout to move past Tim Lincecum into second place on the team's all-time list in the San Francisco era. The Cardinals counter with RHP Miles Mikolas (5-8, 4.34). Mikolas won in his only career start against the Giants last season.

Twins set 1st-half homer record, rout Rangers 15-6

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Back home from their first losing road trip of the season, the Minnesota Twins put their record-setting power on display.

All-Star shortstop Jorge Polanco homered on his 26th birthday, Martín Pérez held his former team scoreless until the seventh inning and Minnesota routed the Texas Rangers 15-6 on a drizzly Friday night at Target Field. Polanco and rookie Luis Arraez went deep in a six-run second. Jonathan Schoop and Mitch Garver also connected to give the Twins a major league-record 165 home runs before the All-Star break — surpassing the 161 hit by the Yankees last year. Minnesota finished the entire 2018 season with 166 long balls.

"It's something special, something to be proud of," said Schoop, who went 3 for 5 with four RBIs.

That wasn't Minnesota's only impressive feat at the plate Friday night.

In the second, they slugged six extra-base hits in an inning for the first time in 53 years and only the second since the club moved to Minnesota in 1961. It also happened on June 9, 1966, when the team hit five homers and a Kansas City A's.

The 13 extra-base hits for the game tied a club record set earlier this season. And the nine doubles tied a franchise mark dating to June 9, 1934, when the Twins were still the Washington Senators. Minnesota had a season-high 20 hits, and its 15 runs matched the most the Rangers allowed in a game this year.

"I just think we made a lot of mistakes," Texas manager Chris Woodward said. "Up in the zone and middle of the plate is not a good recipe to keep that offense from scoring runs."

Pérez (8-3), who signed with Minnesota last winter after spending his first seven seasons with Texas, took a four-hit shutout into the seventh, again relying on the cut fastball that has been so effective for him this season.

"It was a big game for me, and special for me to win," Pérez said.

But he couldn't get an out in the seventh, giving up a walk and three consecutive hits for two runs before leaving to a standing ovation from the announced sellout crowd of 38,073. Ryne Harper allowed both inherited runners to score, the second on Shin-Soo Choo's two-run homer.

"I know he had a lot of success early on and a lot of teams hadn't seen that cutter," Woodward said about Pérez. "I thought he did a pretty good job of attacking the strike zone. He's always had the good two-seamer. Adding that cutter, they kind of play off one another. It keeps you from squaring up a lot of balls."

Minnesota entered 7-10 since June 6. A 2-4 trip to Chicago and Oakland cut its AL Central lead — as large as 11 1/2 games in early June — to six games, the smallest margin since May 20. But the Twins wasted little time staking Pérez to a big cushion, batting around in the second and stringing together eight hits off starter Adrian Simpson (6-6).

Ross Chastain leads Daytona sweep for Kaulig Racing

By JENNA FRYER

AP Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ross Chastain led a sweep for Kaulig Racing in the rain-delayed Xfinity Series race at Daytona International Speedway on Friday night.

Matt Kaulig entered the event determined to field enough Chevrolets to give his team a chance to win. It included a last-minute entry for current NBC analyst AJ Allmendinger, and Allmendinger pulled out of line on the final lap to nab third place and complete the Kaulig sweep.

Justin Haley was second as the three Kaulig drivers lined their Chevrolets up side-by-side for a victorious celebratory lap.

"I can't wait to get to victory lane. I've never even been to it," Kaulig said.

The monumental moment for the Kaulig team didn't last to the post-race party. Allmendinger's car was later disqualified for an engine violation and he lost the third-place finish.

Chastain, meanwhile, celebrated by carrying a watermelon to Daytona's start-finish line and smashing on the pavement. He comes from a family of Florida watermelon farmers and has made smashing the fruit his signature move.

"Oh my God!" Chastain screamed. "I came to these races and sat in the stands and watched as a fan as a kid. I just won at Daytona!"

Chastain last month won the truck series race in Iowa, but the victory was stripped because his winning truck failed post-race inspection. Chastain's disqualification was the first of its kind under NASCAR's new zero-tolerance policy regarding failed inspections.

The rule is designed to curb cheating, which is prevalent in NASCAR as teams manipulate the rulebook through research, development and gimmicks. But Chastain's team argued the failure was related to race damage, a claim that was denied during his appeal.

The race was delayed 2 hours, 35 minutes after NASCAR had already moved the start up roughly 15 minutes. The skies opened an hour before the scheduled start, putting all activity on hold.

Earlier Friday, qualifying for the Cup race was canceled because lightning in the area around the track made it impossible for NASCAR to inspect the race cars. The field for Saturday night's race was set on points.

Defending Xfinity Series champion Tyler Reddick won the pole for the Xfinity race.

2-time champion Kvitova back in 2nd week at Wimbledon

By CHRIS LEHOURITES

AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A week ago, Petra Kvitova wasn't even sure if she could hold a racket in her left hand, never mind play against some of the best tennis players in the world at Wimbledon.

She can do both.

The two-time Wimbledon champion reached the second week at the grass-court Grand Slam for the first time since her last title at the All England Club in 2014, beating Magda Linette 6-3, 6-2 on Saturday on No. 2 Court.

Kvitova, seeded sixth, broke her opponent three times while never giving Linette a chance to break back even once.

The 29-year-old left-hander from the Czech Republic was attacked in her own home in 2016, needing surgery on her playing arm. She reached the Australian Open final at the beginning of this year but then pulled out of the French Open with an injured left forearm.

She only decided to play at Wimbledon at the last minute.

On Monday in the fourth round, Kvitova will face either 2017 U.S. Open champion Sloane Stephens or Johanna Konta, who reached the Wimbledon semifinals in 2017.

Also, Carla Suarez Navarro made it to the fourth round at Wimbledon for the third time, but she has never progressed any further.

Suarez Navarro, who has yet to drop a set this week, beat unseeded American Lauren Davis 6-3, 6-3.

The 30th-seeded Spaniard will face either Serena Williams or Julia Goerges in the fourth round.

Williams could play two matches at Wimbledon on Saturday, first in singles and later with partner Andy Murray in mixed doubles.

Star struck: Indians' Alomar still awed by '97 All-Star shot

By TOM WITHERS

AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sandy Alomar Jr. smiles and slowly shakes his head while listening to the rundown of names on the American League's 1997 All-Star roster.

A roll call of baseball royalty.

There's Cal Ripken and Roger Clemens, Randy Johnson, Ken Griffey Jr., Frank Thomas, Jim Thome, Mariano Rivera, Mark McGwire, and his brother, Robbie Alomar. Throw in some of the big boys from the NL like Tony Gwynn, Greg Maddux, Mike Piazza, Barry Bonds, Barry Larkin, Pedro Martinez and Curt Schilling, and the galaxy of star power on the field in Cleveland 22 years ago is overwhelming.

In all, 19 current Hall of Famers, and others who will one day be immortalized in Cooperstown.

Alomar chuckles.

"That's why I was on the bench," he said.

Once he got off it, the Indians' former catcher — and present first-base coach — became the game's brightest star, a hometown MVP hero.

With the game tied 1-1 in the seventh inning, Alomar, who had overcome serious knee issues that had threatened to derail his career, connected for a two-run homer into the left-field bleachers off San Francisco's Shawn Estes that sent the crowd of 44,916 inside Jacobs (now Progressive) Field into delirium and pushed the AL to a 3-1 win on a night when pitching dominated.

As he circled the bases, Alomar's mind raced.

He thought about his 96-year-old grandmother, Toney Valazquez, who had passed away four days earlier in Puerto Rico. The Alomar brothers had small black ribbons pinned to their jerseys in her honor, and Sandy dedicated his performance to her.

And while the home run was special, Alomar's most vivid memory of that July night came after the game.

Moments after being handed the shiny silver MVP trophy by Commissioner Bud Selig, Alomar was joined by his 7-year-old son, Marcus, who ran onto the field to be with his big league dad. Surrounded by cameras and with fans chanting his name, Alomar posed for photos clutching the unexpected award and his beaming boy.

"You can't prepare for that because you don't know you're going to be an MVP," Alomar recalled last week. "I didn't know if I was going to play for heaven's sake. But it just happened in the moment, and he happened to be there and he just jumped in. It was a fantastic moment — the chance to have your son on the field pictured with the trophy in your home ballpark."

Cleveland is hosting the All-Stars for the sixth time, and while Monday's Home Run Derby and Tuesday's game will allow fans to see some of the game's blossoming young talent, Alomar said the '97 event was unique.

The Indians were in the midst of a glorious run.

They had ended a 41-year World Series drought in 1995, only to lose to Atlanta. But with a powerful lineup featuring Thome, Alomar, Manny Ramirez, Omar Vizquel and Matt Williams, they returned to the Series two years later — Alomar hit a tying homer off Rivera in the eighth inning of Game 4 of the division series to help eliminate the New York Yankees — before Cleveland fell to Florida in seven games.

In those days, Cleveland was also on the upswing, and the Indians had become local sports darlings after owner Art Modell's decision to move the beloved Browns to Baltimore a year earlier.

Alomar, who was in the midst of a 30-game hitting streak in 1997, appeared in his sixth and final All-Star Game in 1998.

The other five were great experiences. Nothing, though, compared to Cleveland.

"I'm just happy that I had a chance to be there, especially in my hometown ballpark with a community that was ready to thrive," he said. "This Indians did a great job organizing, so did Major League Baseball. I've been around many other All-Star Games, and I'm not knocking anybody down, but it was special."

"This is such a real, tight community. Everyone got on board. It was clean, in and out. All the activities were organized. Now, there's a lot more stuff."

Alomar has been in high demand the past few weeks, with media requests for him to reflect on '97 sometimes interfering with other duties. But just as he was as a player, Alomar has accommodated everyone.

Ever an All-Star.

"I hope that during this event, he gets recognized for not just for hitting the homer, but for being the player he was," said Indians manager Terry Francona. "I've known Sandy since we played winter ball in Ponce (Puerto Rico) for his dad. So to know him from then, then to watch his career and then to be able to have him on your staff. He's actually a better person than he was a player. And he was a really good player."

"He was as modest as they come," Francona said. "I love that."

Alomar misses playing, and is struck by how the game has changed since retiring in 2007.

"So much analytics," he said.

But he wouldn't change a thing about his two decades with the Indians.

"I had such a blessed career," said Alomar, a Cleveland coach since 2010. "I could have been done in 1994 after having knee micro-fracture surgery. That could have been my last year. The fact that I came back and played all those years with that injury, I'm grateful for all of that. To be able to stay and compete at that level with that injury. I'm so happy for that."

TWINS

TRAINER'S ROOM

Twins: DH Nelson Cruz exited in the fourth with right heel discomfort. The team called it a precautionary move, and Cruz didn't consider the injury a big deal. ... Minnesota utilityman Marwin Gonzalez returned to the lineup, in left field, after missing two games with a sore right big toe. ... LF Eddie Rosario (sprained left ankle) ran straight ahead on the field before the game but probably won't be activated Sunday when he's eligible, manager Rocco Baldelli said. "Once the (All-Star) break ends, we're hopeful he will be ready soon," he said. ... C Williams Astudillo (left oblique strain) is not close to resuming baseball activities. "It's a fairly significant oblique injury, and we have to let him heal," Baldelli said.

Rangers: Woodward said he prefers backup catcher Isiah Kiner-Falefa (sprained right middle finger) start hitting better on his rehab assignment at Triple-A Nashville before the Rangers bring him back. Kiner-Falefa was 1 for 10 in his first three games with the Sounds.

ROSTER MOVE

Twins: RHP Blake Parker went on the paternity list, and the Twins recalled RHP Kohl Stewart from Triple-A Rochester for his fourth stint with the big club. The Twins need a starter for Sunday, but Baldelli doesn't expect to announce one until after Saturday's game. Stewart pitched in relief Monday night.

UP NEXT

Twins: RHP Michael Pineda (5-4, 4.78 ERA) has never beaten the Rangers, going 0-4 with a 5.66 ERA in six starts. Pineda won at Chicago in his last start, allowing one run in six innings while tying his season high with eight strikeouts.

Rangers: RHP Jesse Chavez (3-3, 2.97) makes his third start since joining the rotation. Last time out he lost 6-2 at Tampa Bay. But this could be a good matchup for Chavez, who has allowed one earned run over 18 1/3 innings in four career appearances at Target Field.

Allie Garvey is heading home to the funeral of a childhood friend in "Someone Knows" (AUCD F SCO L) by Lisa Scottoline. She's not only grief-stricken, she's full of dread. Because going home means seeing the other two people with whom she shares an unbearable secret. Twenty years earlier, a horrific incident shattered the lives of five teenagers, including Allie. They played a dangerous prank that went tragically wrong. The teenagers never told anyone, believing that getting caught would be the worst thing that could happen. But time has taught Allie otherwise. Not getting caught was far worse. The dark secret has eaten away at her, distancing her from everyone she loves, including her husband. Because she wasn't punished by the law, Allie has punished herself. Now, Allie stands on the precipice of losing everything. She's ready for a reckoning, determined to learn how the prank went so horribly wrong. She digs to unearth the truth, but reaches a shocking conclusion that she never saw coming.

Intelligence officer Amy Cornwall's family knows too much in "The Cornwalls Are Gone" (AUCD F PAT J) by James Patterson. In her career as an Army intelligence officer, Amy Cornwall has seen haunting sights half a world away. None compare to the chilling scene at her Virginia home. It is empty. A phone call brings a terrifying ultimatum: locate and liberate an unnamed captive in forty-eight hours, or her kidnapped husband and ten-year-old daughter are dead. Now, in open defiance of Army Command, Amy must employ every lethal tactic she has to save them. To succeed, she must discover not only who dispatched her on this mission, but why. Without her family, she's dead anyway.

Police detective by day, celebrity food truck chef by night, Caleb Rooney, now has a new title: Most Wanted, in "The Chef" (AUCD F PAT J) by James Patterson. In the Carnival days leading up Mardi Gras, Detective Caleb Rooney comes under investigation for a murder he is accused of committing in the line of duty as a Major Crimes investigator for the New Orleans Police Department. Has his sideline at the Killer Chef food truck given him a taste for murder? While fighting the charges against him, Rooney makes a pair of unthinkable discoveries. His beloved city is under threat of attack, and these would-be terrorists may be local. As crowds of revelers gather, Rooney follows a fearsome trail of clues, racing from outlying districts into city center. He has no idea what-or who-he'll face in defense of his beloved hometown, only that innocent lives are at stake.

Former US Marine Jess Winslow reenters civilian life a new widow in "Deception Cove" (F LAU O) by Owen Laukanen. All she has with her is a falling-down house, a medical discharge for PTSD, and a loyal dog named Lucy. The only thing she actually cares about is that dog, a black-and-white pit bull mix who helps her cope with the devastating memories of her time in Afghanistan. After fifteen years, nearly half his life in state prison, Mason Burke owns one set of clothes, a wallet, and a photo of Lucy, the service dog he trained while behind bars. Seeking a fresh start, he sets out for Deception Cove, Washington, where the dog now lives. As soon as Mason knocks on Jess's door, he finds himself in the middle of a standoff between the widow and the deputy county sheriff. When Jess's late husband piloted his final "fishing" expedition, he stole and stashed a valuable package from his drug dealer associates. Now the package is gone, and the sheriff's department has seized Jess's dearest possession, her dog. Unless Jess turns over the missing goods, Lucy will be destroyed. The last thing Mason wants is to be dragged back into the criminal world. The last thing Jess wants is to trust a stranger. But neither of them can leave a friend, the only good thing in either of their lives, in danger. To rescue Lucy, they'll have to forge an uneasy alliance. Jess and Mason will have to fight back and find a way to conquer their doubts and fears to avoid becoming collateral damage in someone else's private war.

Roger's Review

Spider-Man: Far From Home

“Spider-Man: Far From Home,” the recently released installment in the Tom Holland-led Spider-Man film franchise, isn't the best Spider-Man movie ever. It's just the best live-action Spider-Man movie ever.

Roger Cline

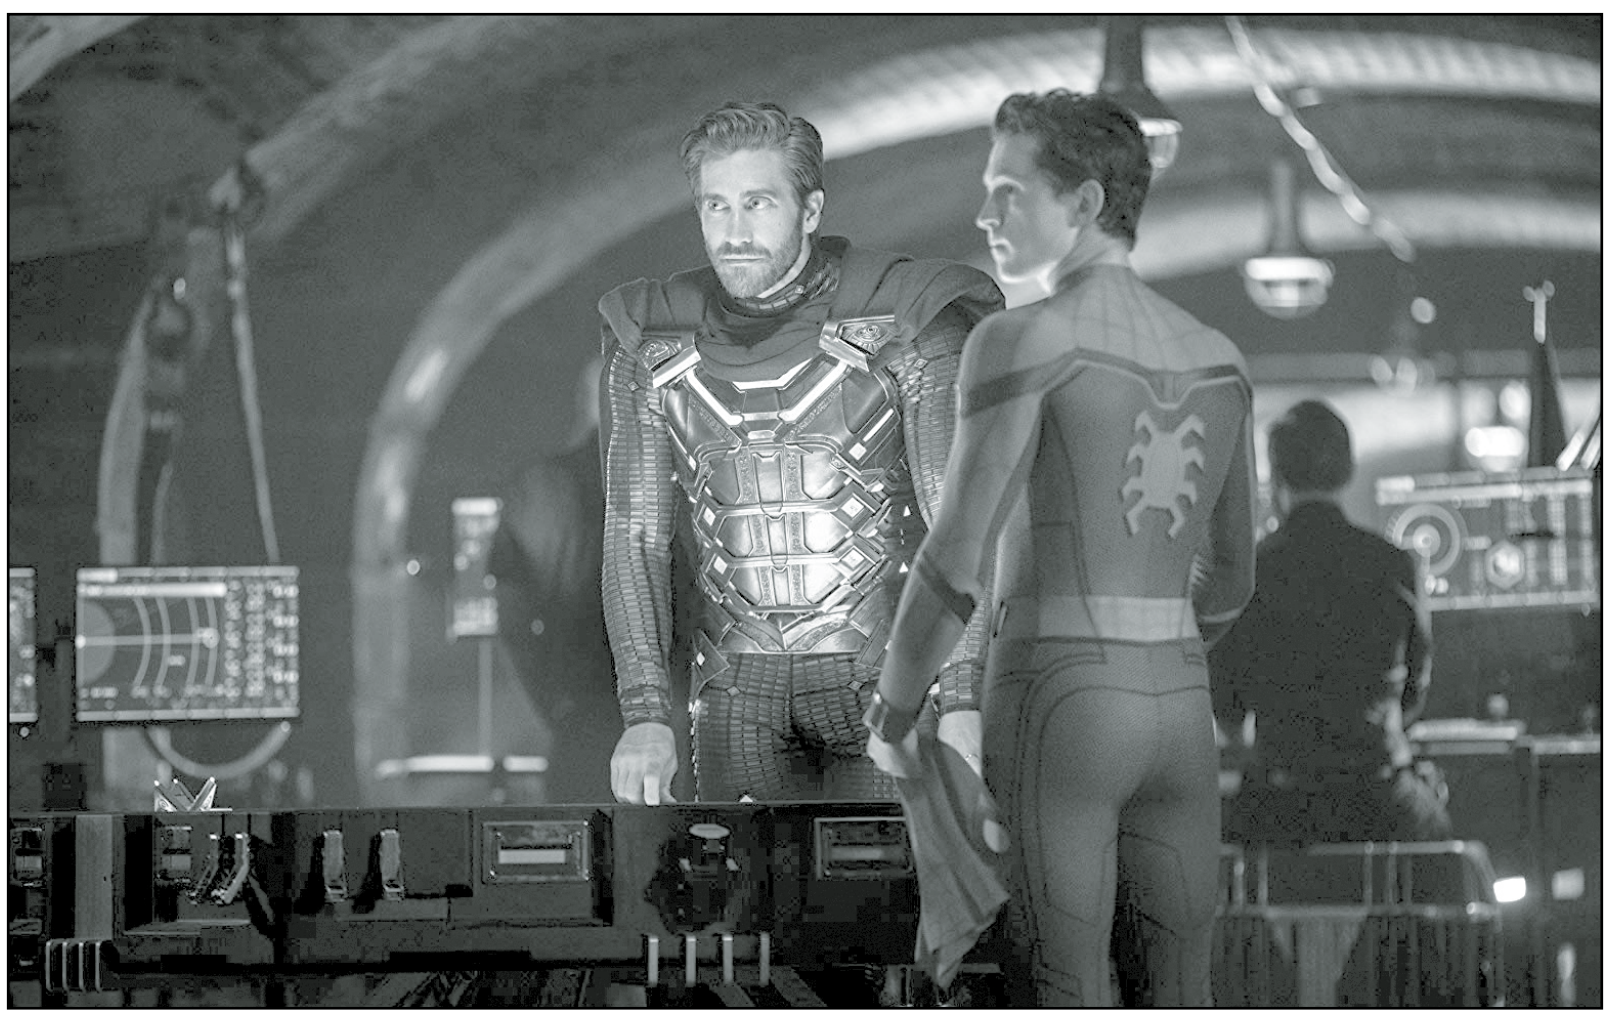

Last year's "Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse," the animated feature centered on Miles Morales' (voiced by Shameik Moore) alternate universe Spidey, holds the top spot in my heart, but "Far From Home" beats anything starring Tobey Maguire or Andrew Garfield; and narrowly edges out Holland's Spider-Man debut, "Homecoming."

Following on the heels of "Avengers: Endgame," "Far From Home" shows Peter Parker (the kid behind the Spider-Mask, if you're a noob, also portrayed by Holland) grieving the loss of his hero and mentor, Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.); preparing for a class trip to Europe; planning to romance his crush M.J. (Zendaya) during the trip; dodging calls from S.H.I.E.L.D. boss Nick Fury (Samuel L. Jackson), which he's sure will interrupt the trip; and trying to ignore the budding romance between his guardian, Aunt May (Marissa Tomei), and S.H.I.E.L.D. handler Happy Hogan (Jon Favreau). He's got his hands full.

Unfortunately, an interfering teacher arranges the seating for the flight to Venice so that M.J. is with hunky student Brad (Remy Hii) – they seem to have a good time watching movies, Peter's friend Ned (Jacob Batalon) is with attractive student Betty (Angourie Rice) – they totally hit it off, becoming boyfriend/girlfriend, and Peter is with, well... the teachers – nerdy Mr. Harrington (Martin Starr) falls asleep on Peter's shoulder.

In Venice, Peter carries through with his plan to buy a gift for M.J., but their trip to the museum is ambushed by a giant water monster. Peter, caught without his Spidey-suit, dons a carnival mask before joining the fray, trying to keep the creature's collateral damage to a minimum.

A new superhero (Jake Gyllenhaal) flies onto the scene blasting the monster with green misty energy bolts, and eventually defeats the liquid leviathan. Later on the news, the gang hears the newscaster calling the new hero "Mysterio." Even though it's explained to them that "Mysterio" is the Italian word for "Mystery" – they're calling him "Mystery man" – the name sticks and becomes the students' default name for the hero.

Google Translate tells me the actual Italian word for mystery is "mistero," but close enough I guess.

Later in their hotel room, Ned is suddenly incapacitated by a tranquilizer dart, fired by Nick Fury who was seated in the room's shadows. He recruits Peter to an Avengers mission to stop the "elementals" aided by Quentin Beck, a/k/a Mysterio (he likes the name), who is apparently a refugee from alternate Earth-833 (The MCU is on Earth-616, apparently). The elementals, giant creatures like the water-behemoth, destroyed his world, he says.

When Peter bows out – he wants to enjoy the rest of his school trip and live a reasonably normal life for a few days – Fury has the trip's itinerary "upgraded" to Prague, the next suspected attack site for the elementals.

I'll go ahead and stop the narrative there. Also look out for Cobie Smulders as S.H.I.E.L.D. agent Maria Hill; J.B. Smoove as Julius Dell, another of Peter's teachers; Tony Revolori as "Flash" Thompson. Also, don't forget to stick around for the mid-credits scene. There's some fun there.

Although other critics generally agree that "Spider-Man: Far From Home" is quite good, I have seen a review or two complaining that the story line is disjointed and hard to follow. I had no problems with it. It is a complex plot with some twists and turns, but I never lost the thread of what was going on. In fact, I enjoy that complexity, and it provides interactions that keep me interested.

And the movie makes it clear that Spider-Man's story is an ongoing, changing and developing story, and I look forward to seeing where it takes me in the future. Nine out of 10 stars.

BIG SPRING HERALD Quiz Bowl

To the right are a sample Tossup question and series of Bonus questions similar to those used in National Academic Quiz Tournament "Quiz Bowl" competitions, the premiere general knowledge team quiz competition for high school students.

While the format is that used by NAQT, this questions and others in this series are authored by Herald Staff Writers.

Here are the rules.

For the "Tossup" question, begin reading at the beginning. There is one answer for the entire Tossup. At any time, if you know the answer, stop reading and answer. If you get the correct answer before you reach the • dot, you get 15 points. If you stop and answer before the dot and get it wrong, you lose 5 points. If you get it right after the dot, you get 10 points; if you get it wrong after the dot, you get no score.

You only get a shot at the three Bonus questions if you get the tossup correct. They're worth 10 points for each correct response, and no score for any incorrect response. Answer the bonus questions in order without looking ahead to the next question.

Ready?

TOSSUP:

"Big Bertha," the 43-ton German gun used in World War II, contained this substance rather than iron as an essential component of its steel. This substance's ore was often confused with lead or graphite ore until 1778. In fact, the name of this substance is taken from the Greek word for lead. This • silvery-white metal, number 42 on the Periodic Table, is often used in alloys with other metals to increase hardness, strength, electrical conductivity and resistance to wear and corrosion.

BONUS:

For 10 points each, identify the original performers of each of the following rock hits:

1. Living After Midnight
2. Ballroom Blitz
3. Kiss Me Deadly

Cmr. Bush announces launch of new Texas Veterans Land Board website

Special to the Herald

AUSTIN - Today, Texas Land Commissioner George P. Bush announced the launch of the new Texas Veterans Land Board (VLB) website. The redesigned website allows the VLB to efficiently and effectively serve Texas Veterans and their families by placing information only a click away.

The redesigned website offers quick access to essential information for Veterans who wish to access benefits offered by the VLB. The website also features a new calendar function, allowing individuals to locate events that are ongoing at the Texas State Veterans Homes and Texas State Veteran Cemeteries, in addition to Veterans events where a VLB representative will be present to assist Veterans, Military Members and their families. Further, the website is fully responsive and provides more information regarding programs and services available to our Veterans than ever before.

Commissioner Bush is committed to making government more efficient and bringing new ideas and technology to the General Land Office. As technology continues to evolve, so must the way in which we communicate with our Veterans.

"As Texas Land Commissioner, nothing is more important to me than fighting for our Veterans," said Commissioner Bush. "That's why the GLO and VLB have led the way in increasing and streamlining Veteran services. From buying a home to building retirement homes, our office is working every day to honor those who have honored us with their service. The redesigned website provides increased functionality and ties together information regarding all of the services that the VLB has to offer, furthering our mission of taking care of Texas Veterans."

The VLB website will be updated on a regular basis with new events, blog posts, activities, and information. Visitors are encouraged to explore the redesigned website and sign up for the latest updates from the Veterans Land Board. To learn more about the VLB, visit <https://vlb.texas.gov/>.

In the early days of the Texas Republic, land was awarded for military service during the Texas Revolution. In 1946, this tradition was formally recognized with the creation of the Texas Veterans Land Board (VLB) to administer benefits exclusively for Texas Veterans. Today, the VLB continues to expand the programs and services available to Texas Veterans, Military Members, and their families. The VLB offers land, home, and home improvement loans; nine long-term care facilities; four Texas State Veterans Cemeteries; the Voices of Veterans Oral History Program and a Statewide Veterans Call Service Center.

Game Warden Field Notes

Special to the Herald

The following items are compiled from recent Texas Parks and Wildlife Department law enforcement reports.

Fear That Rumbling Sound

At about 11:30 p.m. on June 21, a Government Canyon State Park police officer received a missing persons call from the San Antonio Police Department. It seems the missing person called 911 from somewhere in the park reporting that an animal had been following and growling at her, so she had taken refuge by climbing a tree. The park police officer searched her last reported location to no avail, but was able to make contact on her cell phone to reassure her help was on the way. She urged him to please hurry because an animal she believed to be a wild pig was nearby and growling. He informed her he would turn on his truck siren and asked her to listen. She was unable to hear his siren, so the officer told her to use her iPhone to send him her location by text message, which she did. The officer then hiked to that location and found her and a male subject in a tree. She warned the officer that the pig was still close by and she heard it just a few minutes before he arrived. Shortly after that, the officer heard a car drive over the rumble strips nearby on Galm Road and watched as the woman's body language immediately changed. The officer asked if they believed the noise they just heard was a pig and both nodded. He explained it was only cars crossing rumble strips on the road nearby. Embarrassed by the misperceived threat, the lost hikers were reassured by the officer that the unknown can be scary and their reaction surprisingly common.

Jet Ski Roundup

On June 3, a marine theft unit game warden responding to information about a possibly stolen jet ski for sale on social media went to the location to investigate and ended up seizing a pair of stolen jet skis. There were approximately 20 more jet skis at the location, some of which had identifying numbers removed. The warden called for reinforcements and subsequently seized several more jet skis (3 stolen and 2 with no identifying numbers). The investigation ended with eight seized vessels, including one stolen out of Florida back in 1996. Property hearings to determine ownership are pending.

Stuck in the Middle

On June 9, several game wardens were patrolling the Rio Grande River near the Roma Port of Entry when they observed a group of 23 individuals stranded on an island on the U.S. side of the river. Wardens approached the group and learned they were not U.S. citizens, had been stranded on the island overnight and required immediate assistance. Wardens radioed Border Patrol vessels in the area and worked with them to transport the group to safety.

Crossing the Line

Nearly a year-and-a-half after game wardens received a complaint from a landowner in Falls County about a helicopter flying over his property shooting feral hogs, and just one week before the case was set to go to trial in June, the helicopter pilot and the gunner both pled guilty to Class A misdemeanors for hunting non-game animals without landowner consent. Game wardens made the cases after an extensive investigation documenting 34 dead feral hogs on the complainant's property, along with evidence collected using drones, metal detectors and a K9 game warden search dog. The investigation ultimately led to four arrest warrants and multiple Class C citations being issued in addition to the Class A guilty pleas.

Can't Run from the Law

In late May, a Hill County game warden received a call from a complainant who stated he had observed someone shooting from the roadway near Hubbard. The warden responded to the area and soon after received a call from a man admitting that he had shot a feral hog from the public roadway. He then stated that he went on to the private property to retrieve the hog, but after seeing a vehicle he fled the area. The subject stated that he knew his actions were wrong, and he called to confess because he believed a game warden would come knocking on his door since he'd seen the TV show Lone Star Law. The landowner of the property was contacted, and he elected not to file hunting without landowner consent charges. The subject was issued citations for hunting from a public roadway.

Guess Who?

I am an actor, screenwriter and director born in New York on July 6, 1946. I spent the early part of my acting career on the brink of homelessness. However, that all changed when I shot to fame in 1976 playing an Italian boxer from the streets.

Answer: Sylvester Stallone

The bidding:

Opening lead — king of spades.
Assume you reach four hearts on the bidding shown, and West leads the king of spades. How would you play the hand?
You seem to have four inescapable losers — two spades and two clubs. The only realistic chance is to find the opposing clubs divided 3-3, in which case dummy's fourth club can be established for a spade discard. The fly in the ointment is that if West gains the lead while you are trying to set up the long club, he will cash two spades to defeat you.
You must therefore assume not only that the clubs are divided 3-3, but that East has the K-Q-x (or K-Q-

J) as well as just the one spade he is marked with on the bidding. However, even if East has the K-Q-x of clubs, you will have to play very carefully, as the actual declarer discovered when he went down one.
He won the opening spade lead with the ace, cashed the A-K of trump and then played the ace of clubs. All would have been well had East routinely followed low, but instead he alertly dropped the queen of clubs under the ace. As a result, West eventually gained the lead with the jack, and the contract was kaput.
To neutralize the potential unblocking play by East, declarer should cross to dummy with a trump at trick two and lead a club toward his hand. If East plays low, South takes the ace and concedes two tricks to the K-Q.
If East instead splits his honors when the first club is led, declarer allows him to hold the trick. Assuming East returns a diamond, South wins in dummy and leads a second club toward the A-10. If East plays the king, declarer again lets him win, while if East follows low, declarer takes the ace and then concedes a club to the king. Dummy's remaining high trump later provides the entry to the established club.
By handling the clubs in this delicate fashion, South assures that West can never gain the lead, and the contract — with a hefty assist from Lady Luck — comes rolling home.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ANSWER:

THIS IS WHAT HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE LOOKS LIKE.

You might not see or feel its symptoms, but the results — a heart attack or stroke — are far from invisible or silent. If you've come off your treatment plan, get back on it, or talk with your doctor to create a new exercise, diet and medication plan that works better for you.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Retrograde Reorientation Drills

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you cause people to think twice, count that as a win. You can move them and inform people. You have this power at your fingertips. It will mostly come through things that you make.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Fallow time is as essential to your work as the time spent work time is. Stillness defines movement. Space defines matter. Pauses define music. And sleep defines your experience of reality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Sometimes you change the group; sometimes the group changes you. Mostly, it's all happening at once. This group you're in is like a big ball of baking ingredients today, mixing together until it's all something else entirely.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll see neat places on the internet, in books, on television, and it'll stir an appetite in you, not only for the sights but for the experience of breathing the air there.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your plans and efforts need financing. This is no longer an idea, or even a goal. It's an action. You'll decide that you're going to attain it, figure out the first steps, and then execute them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Be aware that your loved ones crave your attention, and they will get it one way or another. Today, it will be better to fill the needs of others lovingly in the way you want to than to wait for them to be uncomfortably without you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Of course you matter profoundly to loved ones. You may find this surprising, but you can be unforgettable in the lives of complete strangers, too. What you think is a casual interaction will have a lasting impact.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Take some of the pressure off of yourself. Maybe you don't have to change the world. Maybe the world will change and all you have to do is witness, participate and maybe take few notes along the way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll be daring, but not in the typical ways. Sometimes, it's just daring to be the first person to say hello or to endeavor in any way to make things nicer for people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Hope drives

By HOLIDAY MATHIS today's action.

You believe in the heart of future generations, and you'll put your support behind that belief in whatever way you possibly can.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You have quiet questions that have lived inside your soul for an eternity. You are still searching for the answers, and though they may never come, they will organize your experience in beautiful ways today.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There are so many injustices that people take for granted in everyday life that you won't have to look far to find things that can be improved upon. Be the change.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (July 7). You'll get the sneaking suspicion that you've more going for you than you've learned to count on. There are unseen forces ready to lift you when you need it most and people who root for you at a distance. You've only to gesture, to beckon them into your world, to receive the buoyancy of loving support. It's your year. Virgo and Gemini adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 40, 2, 29, 1 and 16.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: In most lifetimes, there comes a heady moment in which a person realizes that he or she has a handle on life and has already learned just about everything there is to know about it. This moment usually comes early, as its certainty is the very hallmark of youth. In the best-case scenarios it is brief and followed up by one of reality's famous gobsmacks, themed along the lines of: "What a fool I've been! What I don't know about this infinitely complicated and vast universe actually accounts for approximately everything."

And yet we still must go on as though we have a clue. That's the theme this week, which starts off with the Mercury retrograde in Leo. Being a creative and entertainment-focused place for Mercury, the backward Leo journey speaks to our sense of personal story. Our own story is the one thing we know about more than anyone else. Where we've been, what we've seen and what we think about it -- that's something to hang on to, check, rewrite and refine in the week to come. And while we're at it, we may as well paint ourselves as the hero in our individual narrative. Every good story needs one.

Annie's Mailbox

Breaking Free From Abusive Behavior

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been married for 1 1/2 years, though we started going out more than three years ago. We should still be at the honeymoon stage in our relationship, but I am writing because he has changed recently in really bad ways. He calls me names, puts me down, belittles me and makes me feel worthless. Before this, he begged me to give up my apartment and move into his house. Yet recently, he made it clear that I would never be on the deed. I have a child from my first marriage, and initially my husband welcomed her with open arms. Now he doesn't acknowledge her existence. He tells me that he loves me and can't live without me. Well, he hasn't done one thing to make me feel that way.

We have tried two different marriage therapists, and, of course, he didn't like either one. Now he refuses to go back. He's home everyday after work and doesn't go out with friends or anything. I knew he had a lot of insecurity issues when we met, and he asked for a lot of reassurance, which I had no problem giving. A few months back, he called my job and questioned my boss, which actually got me fired. I haven't been able to find work because I have a child that I have to get to and from school and I have no help from any family or friends. He has called numbers in my phone and questioned people. (Of course, he didn't find anything.)

He constantly puts me down about not working, tells me he can get better and that I'm not even pretty. I don't know what made him change or if this is who he really was all along but didn't show

it. I am completely heartbroken. I love this man so much, yet he really made sure I was trapped with him, and now I am worn down and feel worthless. I don't even like the person I am anymore. -- Please Help Guide Me

Dear Please Help Guide Me: You are not even close to the honeymoon stage; in fact, you're at what sounds like a nightmare stage. I know this can be hard to hear because you say that you love him "so much," but his behavior is abusive. Being cruel to your daughter is one example of this. She did not ask to be related to this man and does not deserve anything but the utmost kindness and respect from him. Getting you fired from your job, and then complaining that you don't have a job, is another example of cruelty. Luring you into his house as his spouse and then announcing that your name will never be on the deed, is yet another example.

Marriage is about love and partnership. It sounds like your husband took that vow to belittle and control you. As others in similar situations can attest, it can be difficult to see the warning signs or to recognize isolating behavior until it can feel like too late to change anything. However, it's never too late. No one is allowed to put you down or tell you that you're worthless. ## Pet Talk: Detecting the Subtle Signs of Pain

By The Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences

COLLEGE STATION, JULY 5, 2019 – The first step in caring for a sick or injured animal is being able to recognize the signs of pain that indicate something is wrong. Acute pain tends to be easier to identify, but chronic pain can have a variety of less-noticeable symptoms.

To help pet owners recognize these symptoms, Dr. Daniel Eckman, a veterinarian at the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, discusses the most common indicators of pain in cats and dogs.

“Signs of chronic pain in cats may include a reluctance to jump or a change in jumping, a change in overall mobility, a change in sleeping locations or positions, and the inability to get comfortable when laying down,” Eckman said.

Chronic pain may cause cats to have changes in appetite or thirst and to use the litter box less often, especially if it has a high rim to climb over. Odd grooming behavior, such as excessive licking, biting and scratching at one spot, or lack of grooming, can also indicate that a cat is in pain.

Cat owners may notice more subtle behavioral changes, as well, such as odd facial expressions, increased vocalization or a reluctance to be petted.

Similarly, dogs also tend to be more withdrawn while in pain, and may even show aggression when approached or touched.

“Signs of chronic pain in dogs may include limping, difficulty getting up or down from a lying position, changes in jumping ability, restlessness, and difficulty walking on a slippery floor or going up and down stairs,” Eckman said.

Like cats, dogs may also exhibit odd grooming behaviors or facial expressions, and may even pant or tremble when in pain.

“Determining the cause of pain may be difficult, so it is best to team with your veterinarian to identify the sources of pain and the best ways of treating it,” Eckman said.

Dogs and cats often have the natural instinct to hide signs of pain, as this would keep them alive in the wild, so it is very important that pet owners know the subtle signs and take pets to a veterinarian if they exhibit any signs.

Eckman recommends visiting the International Veterinary Academy of Pain Management blog for more information on recognizing signs of pain in cats, dogs, large animals and exotic pets.

Our pets may not be able to verbally communicate with us, but they do have their own ways of telling us when they need help. As pet owners, it is our job to recognize those behavioral changes and do what we can to keep our animals free from pain.
