Cross Roads Young Marines assist in SMMC flag retirement ceremony

The Cross Roads Young Marines were at Scenic Mountain Medical Center last week to assist in a flag retirement ceremony. Staff of SMMC and family members of the Young Marines were on hand to witness the short ceremony.

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

Last week, Scenic Mountain Medical Center enlisted the help of the Cross Roads Young Marines to aide in a proper retirement of the United States flag that was flying in front of the hospital. The flag had become tattered and worn and was in need of replacement.

“We wanted to make sure we were disposing of the flag properly and we enlisted the Young Marines due to the partnership we have formed with them over the years, and knew we could trust in their due diligence in the ceremony,” April Arms, SMMC Executive Assistant, said.

The Wisdom of History: Lecture 9: Ancient Greece and the Middle East

By ANNA GUTIERREZ
 Staff Writer

We have reached Lecture 9 in the series, Wisdom of History and the final lecture of this group regarding the impact the Middle East has had throughout history.

Dr. Rufus Fears, the lecturer, states, “The desire for power runs throughout history, from ancient to modern times. In the Middle East, Israel rose and fell as a superpower as described in the Old Testament’s book of Samuel, the first true work of history. Samuel is an attempt to interpret past events, to explain how Israel had declined from a great and powerful nation to one in exile. The answer: King David’s failure to obey God’s commandments led to his personal and political downfall. Even skeptics of theological interpretations of the past can see in David’s story the human qualities – greed, deception and bad judgment – that have repeatedly caused kingdoms to fall.”

About 445 B.C., 40 years after the Persian War, Herodotus wrote his Historia, which means researches. He wanted to know why all throughout history, great nations have risen and fallen. He also wanted to explain why the Middle East was different from the western world as there has been conflict between the two all throughout history.

Herodotus begins with the rise of the Persian Empire. He again shows that is it power over people that drives history.

In 560 B.C., Croesus ruled the four kingdoms of the Middle East, and he had conquered the Greek cities of Asia Minor, which is now Turkey. Croesus asked Athenian statesman Solon who the happiest man in the world was, expecting Solon to name Croesus. But Solon said that no man or nation is happy until the end is known, a warning about power.

By 546 B.C., all of Iran had been united by King Cyrus forming a new power, Persia. Worried about this new power, Croesus asked a Greek oracle at Delphi whether he should launch war against the Persian Empire. Croesus interpreted the oracle’s words and launched a great war, and was defeated. Croesus was captured and was to be burned alive. At the last minute, he shouted a prayer wishing for others to learn from history, which was why he had lost his kingdom. Cyrus spared Croesus and made him an advisor. Under Cyrus' rule, the Persian Empire flourished. After Cyrus died, Darius became king.

Herodotus hoped this would be a lesson to the people of Athens. He pointed out the mistakes of the Persians, hoping they would learn. Of course, they didn't.

Darius wanted to conquer Athens but was defeated by a smaller army. The Persians should have learned they weren't invincible. They had been defeated by an army of free men, the Greeks, compared to a much larger army of slaves of a despot.

In 480 B.C., the son of Darius, Xerxes, again went to Greece with an army of more than a million men.

At the passing of Thermopylae, 300 Spartans and 5,000 of their allies battled the Persian army. Xerxes lost 20,000 of his men to a much smaller army. Xerxes was eventually victorious, but he sought to further expand his empire. Against the advice of his counselors', for the naval battle in the Bay of Salamis off the coast of Athens, and his fleet was destroyed. By 479 B.C., the Greeks had destroyed the army of Xerxes, and thus began the fall of the Persian Empire.

The next lecture will take place Tuesday, March 10, at Noon, at the Howard County Library basement classroom. The topic will be The Destiny of the Athenian Democracy.

Pitching leads Big Spring Lady Steers to two more wins at Crossroads Tournament

By SHAWN MORAN

Herald Sportswriter

The Big Spring Lady Steers capped off the Crossroads Tournament on Saturday with a pair of wins over the Hawley Bearcats (3-2) and Wall Hawks (7-0).

“We needed a couple of wins just to start feeling better,” Lady Steers manager Chelsey Jordan said. “Our team just needs that energy and the confidence so it feels good to have that right now.”

After a slow start against Hawley, the Lady Steers were facing a 2-0 deficit and needed an offensive spark. After a trio of walks and a single by pitcher Kalyn Whitehead, catcher Kylee Lynch and shortstop Sarah Wood hit back to back RBI singles. The strong half-inning at the plate for the Lady Steers helped put them in the lead for good.

Whitehead was a force on the mound after starting off the game by allowing two first inning runs. She had two strikeouts in the game and retired eight straight batters from the second through fourth innings. The sophomore pitcher/outfielder also went 2-for-3 at the plate and crossed home plate for one run.

“Kalyn got better every inning,” Jordan said. “She started throwing her changeup more and it was dirty. No one was touching it. Kalyn is a good outfielder and is learning to be a great pitcher.”

Big Spring stayed hot going into their second game of the day. Matched up against Wall, the Lady Steers quickly jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning that they would never relinquish.

Brinly Watkins led off the game with a double that had Big Spring already in scoring position. A few batters later, second baseman Vanessa Viasana rocketed an RBI triple to the outfield that brought home three runs.

Viasana also stole home plate in the same inning and helped the Lady Steers build a four-run lead early in the game. The second baseman would finish the game 3-for-3 with four RBI, five stolen bases, and two runs scored.

On the mound, Watkins started her game with four straight strikeouts. She would go on to send six of the first eight Lady Hawk batters back to the dugout with a strikeout on their stat sheet. Watkins did not allow a runner to advance past second base in the entire game. She would finish the game with seven strikeouts and zero runs scored against her.

“She’s that dynamic player that you want out there going up to bat when you’re in a sticky situation,” Jordan said. “Pitching-wise, she’s our most consistent. If I need a strike, I’m putting Brinly in.”

After starting out the season with a rough 2-10 record, the Lady Steers finished their home tournament (held at Coahoma and Forsan) by going 5-1. After an extremely busy start to the season, Big Spring is currently 7-11 and trending in the right direction.

With a game against Frenship looming before getting into the district part of their schedule, the Lady Steers will look to build on the momentum they created this past weekend. With a great performance against a tough district rival such as Hawley, the Lady Steers should have an increased collective confidence when they return from spring break.

UP NEXT: The Lady Steers varsity and JV will travel to Frenship on Friday to take on the Lady Tigers (5:00/7:00)

Dallas Cowboys Corner

By SHAWN MORAN

Cowboys extend offer to Prescott

The Cowboys have reportedly offered Dak Prescott a three-year deal with a yearly average salary of $33 million. The deal is said to involve $105 million guaranteed and would keep the Mississippi State product in Dallas for at least the next few seasons. The Cowboys organization has said that they will not let Prescott get away this offseason and are sure to continue negotiating the contract up until the start of free agency.

If no deal can be reached, expect the Cowboys to apply the franchise tag to Prescott. After doing that, they will be able to continue working out a long-term deal for the Cowboys starter.

Two restricted free agents to receive tenders

Blake Jarwin and Cooper Rush are two third-year players expected to sign a restricted free agent tender with Dallas when free agency begins.

This means that Rush will most likely remain as the backup quarterback behind Prescott for next season. Jarwin adds depth to the tight end position and will be working to improve his role with the expected departure of Jason Witten.

Jarwin is likely to receive a second-round tender which will cost around $3.3 million next season. Rush is expected to receive a tender worth around $2.1 million. Both players went undrafted in 2017 and are still looking to breakthrough.

Annie's Mailbox

Black Sheep Finding New Pastures

Dear Annie: I'm 20 years old and from New York. I've been in and out of my house since I was little. My mom and I would get into small arguments, and she would decide to send me to my dad's house. This took a toll on me; I feel like she doesn't want me here.

I came back a year ago, and she promised everything would change. But it's still the same, only worse. I want to go to college, but she won't let me because she's worried about how her rent would get raised because of it. To me, that's not fair. I have an older sister, and she has already graduated from college. So why not me?

I feel like the black sheep in this house, and she wants me to get a job, but it's so hard to find one. She thinks it's so easy, but it's not. I've had so many negative thoughts, but I won't do anything because that would make me weak. Please, I don't know what to do. -- Black Sheep

Dear Black Sheep:
The way your mother is treating you says everything about how she feels about herself. You are 20 years old and sound like a thoughtful and capable young person. If you want to go to college, then go to college. Don't let your unhappy mother spoil your dreams. The fact that you wrote this letter shows that you are on a path to success, strength and liberation from your mother. Continue to look for a job for yourself, not for her, and continue to look into ways to go to college for yourself and not for her. Ask your older sister and your father -- and friends or counselors -- for support in navigating this situation with your mom and the dark thoughts that arise. Perhaps your mom's worries are more about losing her youngest daughter than losing money on rent.

Dear Annie: I have a gift-giving question for you. My son and daughter-in-law were divorced several years ago. They share custody of my grandson, and I see him often. My ex-daughter-in-law has gone on to remarry and, last year, had another son. I remain friendly with her and her new husband and saw them all this past Christmas and gave both my grandson and his new brother gifts. My question is about Valentine's Day. I plan to give my grandson a card and gift, as usual, sent to my son's address. Is it OK to give his little brother a card and a gift as well? I do not want to appear tacky or tasteless. Your advice is appreciated. -- A Question of Taste

Dear Question of Taste: Giving a gift to your grandson's little brother is very kind and thoughtful. Nothing tacky or tasteless about it.

Dear Annie: When my husband and I moved to Gettysburg, we found ourselves having lots of guests. One way to not feel "used and abused" is to ask guests to make themselves at home in your kitchen and surprise you with dinner one evening -- their menu choice, their ingredients.

It's amazing how often they "make" reservations for the group at a local restaurant! -- Enjoy Those Guests

Dear Enjoy Those Guests: What a funny suggestion, albeit a little passive-aggressive. Why not just suggest that you all go out?

Opening lead — seven of spades.

This deal occurred near the end of a tight battle between two U.S. teams in the semifinal of the 1997 women's world team championship.

When the deal arose, the U.S.II team was leading U.S.I by only 5 IMPs. At one table, a U.S.II pair played in four hearts making five.

At the other table, Mildred Breed and Tobi Sokolow of U.S.I reached six hearts as shown. Breed's five-heart bid invited her partner to bid slam if she had control of spades, and Sokolow obliged.

South won the spade lead, cashed the K-Q of hearts, then overtook the jack with the ace. The ten of diamonds was successfully finessed, and the diamond jack was covered by the king and ace, East showing out.

With the diamonds failing to divide evenly, it might seem declarer had to lose a spade and a club. But Sokolow proved otherwise. She recognized that her only real chance was to play for a squeeze, and that to develop the required position, she would have to bring herself to a point where she had all the tricks but one.

Accordingly, after taking the king of diamonds with the ace, she conceded a spade to East, who returned a club to the ten, jack and ace. Sokolow then ruffed dummy's last spade to create this position:

South

When the heart ten was cashed, West could not safely let go of a club or a diamond, and the slam was home, giving U.S.I a 13-IMP pickup. Sokolow's team won the match by 5 IMPs, and then went on to defeat China to capture the world title.

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ANSWER:

Supermoon and the Dunning-Kruger Effect

ARIES (March 21-April 19). What's boring will become interesting when you rewind time to understand the history or when you zoom in closer to understand the intricacies and inner workings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). In any given moment, there are a number of things you can do other than try to regulate your psychological experience of it. The sooner you can get into action (and thereby out of thinking) the better you'll be.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Whatever it was you were looking forward to, now it seems like not quite enough. Dare to juice up the rewards. Commit to scarier challenges. Ultimately, you create amazing momentum toward your goals.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You will be touched by scenes of companionship -- friends laughing together and people holding hands or helping one another. Even mundane civility will be heartening. It's a sign that humanity is doing fine.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You seek hours that could easily be defined by a sense of vitality and engagement, as opposed to hours characterized by the weight of problems. Place the issues in a mental jar to open and deal with later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The virtue of humility is difficult to quantify, as anyone claiming to be abundantly humble defies humility's very definition. And so, it takes one to know one.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You'll be magnetized to the abstract, mesmerized by art, seduced by poetry and music. Strange how you'll find more reason and logic in these things than in the math of the universe.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). If you find yourself thinking about your position in a group, then count yourself among the psychologically advanced. That you are even conscious of such things gives you an advantage here.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). External fixes are much easier than internal ones, which might take more time and where time itself has a different nature, as the historic and futuristic are equally possible places to visit or live inside.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). When your mind throws words at you, those words can become your experience. The trick is to only identify with the thoughts that help you. In other words, don't believe everything you think.

which leads to plans and alliances. Virgo and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 20, 15, 13 and 33.

NAME THAT SUPERMOON: There are a host of possible names for the Virgo full moon, which is the second of four supermoons this year. You could go with "worm moon," an association having to do with ground thaw and the prevalence of earthworms, as seen in the beaks of robins and blue jays. "Crust moon" is another thaw-related option, as snow forms a crunchy crust that becomes most satisfying underfoot. You could, of course, stick with the bird-bound theme with the "crow moon," which certainly holds an ominous glamour. Then again, it would be remiss not to give a nod to "sap moon" an acknowledgment of the sweet maple sap that begins to flow in March and the start of the annual tree tapping.

Most of these names originate from the indigenous peoples of the Americas, with various tribes having their favorites, although there's no reason why you can't also contribute your own ideas to the mix. Though many have named, claimed, circled, walked and even stuck flags in the moon, last time I checked, that round rock was owned by neither worm nor crow nor sap nor crust. It somehow belongs to each and all.

Today in History

Today is Monday, March 9, the 69th day of 2020. There are 297 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History: On March 9, 1945, during World War II, U.S. B-29 bombers began launching incendiary bomb attacks against Tokyo, resulting in an estimated 100,000 deaths. On this date: In 1841, the U.S. Supreme Court, in United States v. The Amistad, ruled 7-1 in favor of a group of illegally enslaved Africans who were captured off the U.S. coast after seizing control of a Spanish schooner, La Amistad; the justices ruled that the Africans should be set free. In 1916, more than 400 Mexican raiders led by Pancho Villa (VEE'-uh) attacked Columbus, New Mexico, killing 18 Americans. During the First World War, Germany declared war on Portugal. In 1933, Congress, called into special session by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, began its "hundred days" of enacting New Deal legislation. In 1959, Mattel's Barbie doll, created by Ruth Handler, made its public debut at the American International Toy Fair in New York. In 1964, the U.S. Supreme Court, in New York Times Co. v. Sullivan, raised the standard for public officials to prove they'd been libeled in their official capacity by news organizations. In 1976, a cable car in the Italian ski resort of Cavalese fell some 700 feet to the ground when a supporting line snapped, killing 43 people. In 1981, Dan Rather made his debut as principal anchorman of "The CBS Evening News." In 1987, Chrysler Corp. announced it had agreed to buy the financially ailing American Motors Corp. In 1989, the Senate rejected President George H.W. Bush's nomination of John Tower to be defense secretary by a vote of 53-47. (The next day, Bush tapped Wyoming Rep. Dick Cheney, who went on to win unanimous Senate approval.) In 1997, gangsta rapper The Notorious B.I.G. (Christopher Wallace) was killed in a still-unsolved drive-by shooting in Los Angeles; he was 24. In 2005, Dan Rather signed off for the last time as principal anchorman of "The CBS Evening News." In 2009, President Barack Obama lifted George W. Bush-era limits on using federal dollars for embryonic stem cell research. Ten years ago: Vice President Joe Biden, visiting Israel, condemned an Israeli plan to build hundreds of homes in east Jerusalem. Former television producer Robert "Joe" Halderman pleaded guilty in New York to attempted grand larceny for trying to blackmail talk show host David Letterman. (Halderman was sentenced to six months in jail; he actually served four.) Doris "Granny D" Haddock, a New Hampshire woman who'd walked across the country at age 89 to promote campaign finance reform, died at age 100. Five years ago: In northwestern Argentina, two helicopters collided and burst into flames shortly after taking off near the remote settlement of Villa Castelli, killing both pilots and eight French nationals. (Among the victims were Olympic champion swimmer Camille Muffat (moo-FAY'), Olympic bronze-medalist boxer Alexis Vastine and pioneering sailor Florence Arthaud, who were contestants on a European reality TV show which was being shot in the sparsely populated region.) Solar Impulse 2, a Swiss-made solar-powered aircraft, took off from Abu Dhabi just after daybreak in a historic first attempt to fly around the world without a drop of fossil fuel (however, overheated batteries grounded the plane in Hawaii). Apple CEO Tim Cook unveiled the Apple Watch in San Francisco. One year ago: R&B singer R. Kelly walked out of a Chicago jail after someone who officials said did not want to be publicly identified paid $161,000 that Kelly owed in back child support. (Kelly would be arrested in July and ordered held without bond as he awaited sex-related charges in Chicago and New York.) Julia Ruth Stevens, the last surviving daughter of Hall of Fame baseball slugger Babe Ruth, died at an assisted living facility in Nevada at the age of 102; she had been a decades-long champion of Ruth's legacy.
