Technical difficulties kicked off Tuesday's City Council meeting

By ERICA MORSE

Herald Contributing Writer

The Big Spring City Council meeting got off to a rocky start Tuesday evening, with technical difficulties just minutes after the meeting opened and ending in a heated debate with an abrupt adjournment.

The meeting - which generated a medium-sized turnout even with current social distancing guidelines - experienced technical difficulties with audio on both the Channel 17 broadcast and the live stream.

Several citizens turned out to personally witness the hot topic of the evening, the discussion regarding City Manager Todd Darden's employment.

City Councilman Jim DePauw thanked Darden for his 32 years of employment with the City, but ultimately motioned for immediate termination in favor of someone with a "fresh perspective" for Big Spring. However, Mayor Shannon Thomason told De-Pauw his motion was out of order, citing the disciplinary hearing section of the contract Darden was extended for employment.

"A complaint must be placed in writing, and signed by the person making the complaint. A copy of the signed complaint must be presented to the affected City employee no later than 180 days after the complaint is filed and before any disciplinary action may be taken against the City employee," Mayor Shannon Thomason said.

Mayor Thomason stated since no written charge had been submitted by Councilman DePaw or any other person against Darden, DePaw's motion was out of order.

DePaw appealed the Mayor's decision, but his appeal did not yield a second, and was ultimately overruled by the Chair, according to Robert's Rules. With no written complaint to be submitted or discussed the agenda item's surrounding City Manager employment and any action related became a moot point, at Tuesday's meeting.

"The City Manager is a different type of City employee - he's one of only two that has a contract", Councilman Jim DePaw said after the meeting. "He's a different type of City employee. I feel like the Mayor's got it wrong, and I'll ask for an Executive Session for the next meeting".

On the item deliberating the employment, duties and evaluation of the Internal Auditor - also listed as an Executive Session agenda item - Mayor Thomason noted that the acting Internal Auditor

Thank a Veteran Day

Special to the Herald

The freedom that our nation is able to enjoy - even in this time of uncertainty and limited outings - is owed to those who fought for our country. Even in the midst of all that is taking place across the nation, giving honor where honor is due is something that we can still take part in. This month, as the Big Spring Herald stands with the community and recognizes Thank a Veteran Day, the featured veteran of April is U.S. Navy Estella Craven.

"I served out of a sense of duty," Craven said. "Many in my family have served for our great country. For me, serving was a way to continue that tradition of service and honor."

Craven served from 1988 to 1994 for the U.S. Navy as a Master at Arms.

"When I enlisted, we were a nation at peace, but shortly thereafter the first Gulf War - Operation Desert Storm had begun,"

"WHEREAS, the City of Big Spring, in recognition of the courage, honor, devotion and sacrifice of our service men and women, hereby establish the 15th day of every month as "Thank a Veteran Day", and this day shall forever stand as a day to honor those that have selflessly served each citizen of this Great Nation."

The Big Spring Herald stands in support of all Veterans. The above is part of a proclamation presented by the Big Spring City Council in honor of everyone that has served our Country. Please take a moment today to thank a Veteran. This proclamation was presented by Mayor Larry McLellan on behalf of the Big Spring City Council on Tuesday, April 10th, 2018.

God Bless our veterans!
If you know a veteran we should recognize, please send the information to editor@bigspringherald.com.

Financial support arrives for small, local businesses during COVID-19

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

Small businesses and rural areas have been feeling the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic before cases even arrive in their community. The Presidential and Governor Orders directing non-essential businesses to close their doors, along with new restrictions placed on bars and eating establishments has brought some businesses to close their doors or at least make adjustments that have had a negative financial impact.

While there is currently no end in sight, there are a few relief efforts that have been pushed down from the Federal level to support and ease some of the financial burden small businesses are going through.

"I would recommend small business owners reach out to their lenders in regards to the Payroll Protection Program and inquire about the forgivable aspects of this loan," Cameron Winegar, LeadingEDG representative, said.

According to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce website, the Payment Protection Plan (PPP) which was rolled out Friday, April 3, 2020, after the U.S. congress passed a bill to fund this program using $349 billion dollars. Funds designated under this plan are available to small business owners, the self-employed, private contractors, and sole proprietors. This is a two-year loan with a six-month deferment period, and a 1% interest rate. The loan is designed for 75% of the loan to be used as payroll and the other 25% to be put towards mortgage interest, rent, and utilities. This particular loan is intended to be spent within eight weeks of distribution. The amount of the loan can be as high as two and a half times your average monthly income. Business owners do need to be aware there are strict punishments written into this bill to ensure the restrictions are not violated.

"Small business owners should also reach out to their accounts in regards to the Economic Injury Disaster Loan which is specifically for those businesses with 500 employees or less. There is potentially up to $10,000 as an initial draw that doesn't need to be repaid," Winegar said.

The Economic Injury Disaster Loan can cover up to $10,000 in economic relief for those businesses who employee less than 500 employees. You can find the application form on the SBA website. This loan has similar requirements to the PPP.

Those wishing to apply for the PPP loan should print the application form that can be found at <https://home.treasury.gov>, or at the SBA website <http://www.sba.gov/>. Once the application has been printed, small business owners are encouraged to contact the lender to verify that their business will qualify. A list of qualified lenders can be found on the SBA website. Along with the list of lenders is detailed information concerning proper documentation needed to qualify for this loan. Once you find an approved lender, they should be able to walk you through the final steps to apply for the loan.

According to his study conducted by Neil Bradley with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, 24% of small business owners have already shut down their operations across the nation and 40% of the remaining business owners, believe they will shut down operations within a couple of weeks. Bradley's study also shows that 25% of small business owners plan on adding additional employees within the next year.

While COVID-19 and the restrictions that have accompanied it have had a noticeable negative impact to businesses – large and small – there are those who are seeing a silver lining and even a few who are seeing a positive impact.

"In times like these there are opportunities for new types of businesses to grow, but it's going to ultimately depend on the type of business," he said. "It may not be the best time to open a sit down restaurant, but it may be a great time to open some type of e-commerce store. With that said, our economy is experiencing hardship overall, which generally isn't good for most."

As the COVID-19 situation continues to change daily, so the do provisions of the support that is being released for individuals and small businesses.

"Some of our clients are worried about making payroll. For those of you who are please check with your commercial bank/lender to discuss payroll programs. We've noticed some lenders have been rolling out resources for making payroll. There is also new information from congress.gov discussing the matter," Winegar said.

A new streamlined process has been issued by the SBA for the EIDL. There is now a portion of this loan that can be forgivable. Winegar cautions that while it may be possible to accept these loan funds a client could be made ineligible for other types of loan products/resources listed in the stimulus package.

For those looking for more information regarding these loans and updates regarding the application process are encouraged to visit www.sba.gov/disaster-assistance/coronavirue-covid-19.

recently resigned and any further deliberation would be moot.

The City Council discussed the possible appointment of a local health authority for the City during the COVID-19 crisis and beyond. Discussion included expected and required training, education and background for this particular position, along with financial compensation and time expected to be allocated to this position. At the conclusion of the discussion Council determined that a Local Health Authority would fall under the prevue of both the City and the County. Mayor Thomason advised the discussion would be bought to the County for their input and possible partnership.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, Fire Chief Craig Ferguson provided the most recent COVID-19 stats for Howard County. According to Ferguson a total of 77 tests have been conducted with 74 negative results returned, one positive case confirmed, and one death related to COVID-19. Questions loomed regarding the the recent death and why it was attributed to Howard County numbers with the death not taking place in Howard County. Ferguson explained the allocation of the positive patient matches with the listed mailing address. In the case of the patient who passed last week, Big Spring was the mailing address on record.

During Tuesday evening's meeting the Council also discussed and approved the following agenda items:

- Tyler Canady presented the Bis Spring EDC's financial statement and the comprehensive annual financial report for year ending September 30, 2019, by Bolinger, Segar, Gilbert & Moss

- The first reading passed of a resolution amending the City of Big Spring personnel policies and procedures to remove requirements in selling back of accumulated vacation leave

- The first reading passed of a resolution renaming and amending the City Council of Big Spring's Code of Conduct and Ethics in order to update and clarify rules related to Council Conduct and ethics

- The first reading of an ordinance amending the Code of Ordinances entitled, "Administration", in order to clarify Council Parliamentary standards of conduct, agenda preparation and review procedures, meeting and Executive Session procedures, update State Law references and clarification of posting requirements to improve transparency.

- The Council approved a service agreement with TML Multistate Intergovernmental Employee benefits pool – with an amendment for the City Manager to amend that agreement

- The Council approved an agreement with TML regarding the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) Regulations

- The Council approved an agreement with TML Health Benefits Pool regarding Continuation of Health (COBRA) Coverage

Joe Bright continues to make his mark on the sport of basketball in Big Spring

By SHAWN MORAN

Herald Sportswriter

Joe Bright was born in Chicago, Illinois and moved to Minnesota with his family when he was eight years old. That year was the first time that he picked up a basketball and started to play.

He has been in love with the game ever since.

Bright attended Cooper High School in Robbinsdale, Minnesota and became one of the best basketball players in the state. He was a highly recruited player who was on the All-State team and planned to attend Toledo University upon his graduation from high school in 2009.

That all changed when one of Bright's high school coaches took an assistant coaching job at Howard College.

"My coach, Jeff Mayock, who was my assistant coach in high school got the assistant job at Howard College with Coach Adams," Bright said. "He just talked to me with an opportunity to go to a bigger school than Toledo University in the future and I chose that route."

Bright was a two-time captain as a member of the Hawks and was a focal point of the 2009-10 National Championship-winning team. As a junior college player, getting to recruit all the way to a national championship game can do wonders for recruitment to a four-year university. Bright decided to stay for his sophomore season in Big Spring and really left his mark on the game.

During his sophomore campaign, Bright was named the Region 5 Defensive Player of the Year and made the All-WJCAC Team. Bright was the vocal leader on the court and loved to do all the dirty work near the basket. He was able to use his size to lockdown opponents on the defensive end while he also learned and improved enough to play at the Division I level.

"It was amazing," Bright said about his time at Howard. "I wouldn't change it for anything. The people that I met in Big Spring are the reason I'm in Big Spring. The city was always great to the players and we always handled ourselves correctly. We won a national championship and I wouldn't change it for anything... Actually if it was four years, I still talk to my old teammates and they all agree, I'm pretty sure we all would have been here for four years."

The next stop: Stephen F. Austin University.

"I chose Stephen F. Austin due to it being my main goal and my dream to play on ESPN and to play at the highest level. I wouldn't change it for anything," Bright said.

Bright played his junior and senior seasons in Nacogdoches and saw limited playing time during his tenure as a Lumberjack. Over his two seasons, he started five games while averaging 1.5 points per game and 1.4 rebounds per game.

What was his favorite experience while a member of the Lumberjacks?

"Playing my former Hawk teammate, Carlos Emory who went to Oregon, in a Christmas tournament at Oregon," Bright said. "It was a great experience to see us both at the highest level and we're both from Minnesota so we both had an appreciation for all that we had accomplished."

Knee injuries slowed Bright over his basketball career and never allowed him to reach his full potential. After six knee surgeries, Bright still had the passion and wanted to keep his dream of playing professionally alive, but his body was telling him something different.

The 6-foot-4 forward said that he was not sure what he was going to do following his graduation from Stephen F. Austin and still had plans to try playing overseas.

Instead, he received a phone call that would send his life in a different direction.

"I grew up playing nothing but basketball and I had a bachelor's degree but I honestly didn't know what to do with it," Bright said. "Debra Lewis asked me to come down and substitute, I did it, and ever since then I've just loved it. She always told me to try to stay close to the game even though I can't play it, I can always be a part of it."

Since then, Bright has lived in Big Spring and is a teacher and coach. He has a website (joebrightbasketball.net) that tells about his life and it is also where you can schedule a training session with him.

For the past three years, Bright has been running Joe Bright Basketball Training where you can have one-on-one private sessions or a group sessions where the whole family can improve their skills. In a short biography about Bright on his website, the following is written about his love for the game:

"His passion continues to be closely connected to basketball, and is now centered around helping youth and young adults reach their full potential. Joe is also a motivation speaker where he speaks to different youth groups to inspire them to dream big."

Bright is also an assistant coach on both the Big Spring girl's and boy's varsity basketball teams. He has a wealth of knowledge about not only what it takes to be able to play at the next level but also how to succeed once you get there.

For over 20 years, Bright has been in love with the game of basketball. In those 20-plus years he has accomplished many of his personal goals and helped others achieve their's as well.

"My goal is to continue to train and continue to help the youth and develop them not only basketball-wise but as young men and young ladies off the court," Bright said.

Joe Bright is going to continue to teach the sport that is so near to his heart to anyone that wants to improve. For over 20 years he has loved the game of basketball and lived out the dream of playing Division I basketball. Now, he will continue to spread his knowledge of the game to anyone who wants to improve and possibly live out their own dream playing college ball.

Tour de France rescheduled to start Aug. 29

This year's Tour de France will start on Aug. 29 and finish on Sept. 20 and will be followed by cycling's two other major races.

The International Cycling Union announced the new dates after consulting with race organizer Amaury Sport Organization. The Tour could not start as scheduled on June 27 because of restrictions related to the coronavirus pandemic.

The UCI also says the world championships will go ahead as planned from Sept. 20-27 and will be followed by the Giro d'Italia and the Spanish Vuelta. No official dates were given for those two major races.

The UCI says prestigious one-day road classics such as Paris-Roubaix and Liège-Bastogne-Liège will be maintained at dates still to be defined.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

The Sun and Jupiter Square Off

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Make it a point to get more support. Know who has your back, is on your side and will promote and help you. Rule out those who have had the opportunity to help before but didn't.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Your daily life doesn't automatically include telling people how much they are loved. That's something you have to add. You'll go out of your way to show people you value them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your best friends are sometimes also the ones who give you the most grief, extra work and drama. Be open to breaking old habits and finding new ways of interacting that serve everyone better.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The norms go out the window when originators are in the room. You're such a person. Your fresh ideas are just part of the package that comes with you. You won't even realize how creative you're being.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You've extended yourself. You've worked hard to learn, get hands-on experience and see what others needed you to see. Now it's your turn to be understood and to let people in on what you're dealing with.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You were eager for good to triumph over evil. Now you realize it's not so much about good and evil as it is about power and how a game is played. Rules will get broken by all sides.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You've tuned into the whispers of trends and dramas. These are soft words that are not to be taken too seriously as they can so easily drift when the wind blows a different direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You can't help but notice that everyone has a void. As much as you'd like to fill in the blanks and supply what's needed, don't rush to do so. More listening and understanding must happen first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). If it doesn't bring you challenge, money or joy, then what does it bring you? Your answer to this question may have you cutting something out of your life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Sometimes you think if ideas were dollars, you'd be much richer. And what if they are? Apply your sign's famous follow-through now. Brainstorm... you're on to something!

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Interruptions are costly. Even once an hour is too much. Precautions taken to make yourself difficult to interrupt will ultimately save you from wasting your hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You can always make your natural impressionability work for you. For instance, fill your eyes, mind and experiences with beauty and you become even more beautiful.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 15). Good enough isn't good enough for you this year. You're going for greatness on all levels, starting with improving a relationship or striking up a new one that makes your personal life sing. Your work dynamic will change, allowing you to develop talents and devote more of your time to what matters to you. Gemini and Cancer adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 33, 2, 22 and 18.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION: "I'm an Aries and we are known for our bad tempers. What is the best way to come back together after a fight? And when should you just call it quits?"

Into every relationship, little rain must fall. Conflict is normal, and, done right, working out differences can bring people closer together. After a fight, let time and space do some of the work for you. Feelings need time to die down. Put distance between you and the other person. Distract yourself until you notice that you feel calmer about the situation. Chances are that all of the negative feelings won't go away, but you should get to a place where you feel reasonable instead of reactive. Reflect on what happened. It might help to write it out. Missteps were made on both sides. Own what's yours and decide if apologies are in order. Don't demand apologies from others, as a "sorry" gotten in this manner is meaningless.

As for calling it quits, if the relationship is abusive, quit it immediately. Also consider calling it quits if you think that trust is broken beyond repair, if no one is making an effort, or if you bring out the worst in one another.

Feeling Alone Even When Connecting

Dear Annie: I have a longtime friend who lives on the other side of the country. We're all retired now. We used to tell each other all about our lives, but for the past few years, I only hear from her how wonderful her life is and how she plans and goes on so many vacations. They have lots of money, and I'm glad that they are so happy.

But I'm not so happy on this end. I'm stuck here in a life I didn't really know I was going to get. I'm married, but that is of no help. We have no friends or family around us, and now, with this virus going on, I'm scared. I have family in hard-hit areas of the world. I try not to complain, but I can't paint a happy face over this.

So how do I go about trying to reply to her over-the-top happy emails about herself? Other than a one-sentence, "How are you?" there is no concern for what I might be going through. Is she just so self-absorbed that it doesn't occur to her that not everyone is so well-off? Or am I just jealous and being a martyr? -- Do I Have an Unconscious Friend?

Dear Friend: Given the level of uncertainty and isolation that many Americans, and the rest of the world, are feeling, it is understandable that you can't paint a happy face over this. Everyone deals with anxiety differently, and some people become completely narcissistic and can only focus on what they're doing and boasting about how fabulous their life is. No one likes a braggart. On the other hand, you are very self-aware to question if you are jealous. My guess is that it is a mixture of both. On the one hand, she is bragging and being obnoxious, and, on the other, you might be more sensitive to it because you are having an understandably difficult time being far away from family and friends during this pandemic.

The best way to feel better fast is to focus on the good in your life. When you say you are "stuck" in a life you never wanted, I ask you to seek out ways to get unstuck. Write down goals and dreams that would allow you to live the life of your dreams. Focus on how you can achieve them each day, all the while appreciating what you already have. Try and find moments of joy in this time of uncertainty. I know it is challenging, but as we focus on positive things that happen each day, the more joy we will feel and the more joy we will radiate out to the world.

Dear Readers: Please send in any positive stories you would like to share in the midst of this pandemic. While there is a great deal of suffering because of it, there is also a great deal of connection, slowing down and appreciation of the beauty of the world and our loved ones. Out of every storm comes a rainbow.

Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.

The bidding:

Opening lead — seven of diamonds.

On many deals, declarer is guided to the best line of play by information he has gained during the bidding. Opening bids, overcalls, preempts — even the failure of the opponents to bid — all can prove of great value.

Consider this case where South took advantage of East's bidding to bring in a contract that would very likely have failed had East not painted such a clear picture of his hand.

Declarer played low from dummy on the opening diamond lead, East inserting the nine. Had East taken the ace, South would have had 10 tricks.

After winning with the queen, declarer cashed the A-Q of spades and then led a heart toward his hand. East rose with the ace and returned the queen, attempting to short-circuit the possibility of being thrown in with a heart later and being forced to lead a diamond.

But South could not be denied. He had already concluded that East had to have at least five cards in each of the two suits he had bid. Since East had already shown up with two spades, he could not hold more than one club.

Accordingly, after taking the king of hearts, declarer made the key play of cashing the ace of clubs before leading the king of diamonds from dummy.

East won with the ace and cashed another diamond, but was then forced to lead a red card. This allowed South to discard the queen of clubs as he ruffed in dummy, and the contract was home.

There was nothing the defenders could do at any point to prevent this outcome. East's three-diamond bid — tactically questionable since it seemed likely that North-South held the balance of strength — simply gave away too much vital information.

Here's How it Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, April 15, the 106th day of 2020. There are 260 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History: On April 15, 2013, two bombs made from pressure cookers exploded at the Boston Marathon finish line, killing two women and an 8-year-old boy and injuring more than 260. Suspected bomber Tamerlan Tsarnaev (TAM'-eh-ruh-n tsahr-NEYE'-ehv) died in a shootout with police; his brother, Dzhokhar Tsarnaev (joh-HAHR' tsahr-NEYE'-ehv), was tried, convicted and sentenced to death. On this date: In 1452, artist and inventor Leonardo da Vinci was born in or near the Tuscan town of Vinci. In 1850, the city of San Francisco was incorporated. In 1865, President Abraham Lincoln died nine hours after being shot the night before by John Wilkes Booth at Ford's Theater in Washington; Andrew Johnson became the nation's 17th president. In 1912, the British luxury liner RMS Titanic foundered in the North Atlantic off Newfoundland more than 2 1/2 hours after hitting an iceberg; 1,514 people died, while less than half as many survived. In 1945, during World War II, British and Canadian troops liberated the Nazi concentration camp Bergen-Belsen. President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who died on April 12, was buried at the Roosevelt family home in Hyde Park, New York. In 1947, Jackie Robinson, baseball's first black major league player, made his official debut with the Brooklyn Dodgers on opening day at Ebbets Field. (The Dodgers defeated the Boston Braves, 5-3.) In 1955, Ray Kroc opened the first franchised McDonald's restaurant in Des Plaines, Illinois. In 1959, Cuban leader Fidel Castro arrived in Washington to begin a goodwill tour of the United States. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles resigned for health reasons (he was succeeded by Christian A. Herter). In 1974, members of the Symbionese Liberation Army held up a branch of the Hibernia Bank in San Francisco; a member of the group was SLA kidnap victim Patricia Hearst, who by this time was going by the name "Tania" (Hearst later said she'd been forced to participate). In 1989, 96 people died in a crush of soccer fans at Hillsborough Stadium in Sheffield, England. Students in Beijing launched a series of pro-democracy protests; the demonstrations culminated in a government crackdown at Tiananmen Square. In 1998, Pol Pot, the notorious leader of the Khmer Rouge, died at age 72, evading prosecution for the deaths of two million Cambodians. In 2007, riot police beat and detained dozens of anti-Kremlin demonstrators in St. Petersburg, Russia, on a second day of protests against the government of President Vladimir Putin. Ten years ago: An ash cloud from an Icelandic volcano drifted over northern Europe, causing the largest disruption of flights since the 2001 terror attacks. President Barack Obama, visiting the Kennedy Space Center, predicted his new space exploration plans would lead American astronauts to Mars and back in his lifetime. Civil rights leader Benjamin Hooks, onetime executive director of the NAACP, died in Memphis, Tennessee, at age 85. Five years ago: Douglas Hughes, a postal carrier from Florida, flew a one-person gyrocopter onto the West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol as a protest against money in politics; he later pleaded guilty to operating a gyrocopter without a license, a felony. Former New England Patriots star tight end Aaron Hernandez was convicted in Fall River, Massachusetts, of first-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison for a late-night shooting that claimed the life of Odin Lloyd, a 27-year-old landscaper who was dating the sister of Hernandez's fiancée. (Hernandez killed himself in his prison cell in 2017.) One year ago: A fire swept across the top of the Notre Dame Cathedral as the soaring Paris landmark underwent renovations; the blaze collapsed the cathedral's spire and spread to one of its landmark rectangular towers, but fire officials said the church's structure had been saved. The South Florida Sun Sentinel and the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette won Pulitzer Prizes for their coverage of mass shootings at a high school and a synagogue; also recognized was the Capital Gazette of Maryland for its coverage and courage in the aftermath of a deadly shooting

Transfer portal causing college basketball coaches headaches

By DAVE SKRETTA

AP Basketball Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Gregg Marshall began his career as an assistant at tiny Randolph-Macon and Belmont Abbey, but it was during eight years on the staff of Hall of Fame coach John Kresse at College of Charleston that he learned to build a basketball program.

Marshall learned how to recruit players who fit his style. He learned how to find overlooked gems, guys who were still growing or had yet to discover their shot. He learned how to sit in their living rooms and convince moms and dads that their sons would get a good education and in four years be prepared for the real world.

Many of those lessons have helped Marshall become Wichita State's winningest coach. But many have lost their value, and the reason is simple: The NCAA transfer portal has forced coaches to build teams rather than programs.

The system was implemented two years ago, intended to help ease the burden on administrators, increase transparency and empower athletes who complained about being prevented at times from going elsewhere. But in the eyes of many coaches, the portal has made transferring too easy, giving players an easy out for any reason: amount of playing time, location, level of competition, even something as silly as school colors.

"It's created a system in which, when problems arise, (players) are not going to fight through the problems and adversity," Marshall said. "You're going to make a move. It's going to be easy to do. That's the problem I see with it."

The Shockers went 23-8 and spent much of last season hanging around the Top 25, and they were likely to receive an at-large bid to the NCAA Tournament had it not been canceled. Fast forward a few weeks and Marshall is wondering how he might need to replace seven players who placed their names in the transfer portal.

They run the gamut from high-scoring guard Erik Stevenson, who has committed to Washington, and talented freshman Grant Sherfield, who is headed to Nevada, to role players that hardly saw the floor. But together, they left Marshall with a roster full of holes that he must plug even while the coronavirus pandemic has put the brakes on recruiting.

So much for those lessons he picked up from Kresse back in Charleston.

More than 500 names have been entered into the portal in the month since the season ended, and new names are added by the day. Some come from big-name programs in search of a fresh start, others from small schools with something to prove. Many are graduate transfers who can play immediately, though most will have to sit out a year under NCAA transfer rules.

"You have to respect each young guy's decision because that's the culture we live in today," Missouri coach Cuonzo Martin said. "You have guys leaving teams. That's just the way it is. But when you're talking about freshmen, they have to have the opportunity to play from Day 1 or you'll be looking at a lot of this."

No brand of school is unaffected, either.

Johnny Juzang and Kahlil Whitney jumped into the portal after their freshman seasons at Kentucky, and Alex O'Connell made the move after his junior year at Duke, creating holes for the bluest of blue bloods. Some Power Five programs such as Iowa State, with five players in the transfer portal, have begun to resemble a bus stop with players coming and going.

Then there are the mid-majors such as George Washington, which likewise watched five players enter the portal — four have already found new homes. In a bit of symmetry, the Colonials have filled three of those scholarships with transfers of their own from Southern Miss, LSU and Vanderbilt.
