Oil prices hit all-time low Monday, dramatically dropping, market closes -$37.63

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

West Texas oil prices hit an all-time low Monday as oil prices plummeted. In less than a couple of hours oil prices took more than a 300% drop going from less than $5 a barrel to well below $0. By mid-afternoon oil was sitting in the negatives and steadily declining. The oil market closed at -$37.63 a barrel on Monday afternoon.

"This price drop was drastic and unless there is some relief that comes from the government, about which there is ongoing discussion, it will be difficult for producers and oil producing regions.' Quincy Krosby, Prudential Financial Chief Market Strategist, said. "The shale producers are incredibly important. It's difficult to imagine the producers in the Permian Basin and across the country of being left without aide.'

As Krosby stated, the decline of oil prices have a domino effect on the economy. If you have shale producers default on their debt, they go under, they let people go and then the banks in the region aren't getting paid and are under pressure, as well as the other companies associated in shale production and hydraulic fracturing.

"The government is determined to cushion the downturn in hopes of coming out of the shutdown businesses and consumers are poised to once again engage in economic activities," she said.

According to Krosby there is ongoing discussions at the higher levels of government about financial aide programs or facilities, to keep producers from producing, to stop oil production but still be paid until the global demand picks up.

Monday's oil prices decline was the first time in history that oil prices dropped as quickly and as low as they did. The last major downturn, as referenced by Krosby was in November 2014, when the Saudis began pumping oil at increased rates. The idea behind the increased production was to put pressure on those producers who were unable to function because of lower prices and then to dramatically drop prices forcing a consolidation in the industry.

'This had a major effect on shale producers. The message from this was to tell those countries that had found oil and gas that it may be good to go explore and drill now with high prices, but that prices would eventually drop and shelf those projects. Many of the shale producers did go out of business and consolidation did take place.'

The attack from the Saudi's on the oil industry came to a stop when Brent Oil reached $28 a barrel, causing them to not be able to sustain their financial support programs. However, before the pressure was backed off, the high yield shale producers had to deal with tremendous consolidation.

"What was surprising for shale producers was they were able to come back at a lower price thanks to the introduction of technologies," she said. "The changing technologies enabled them to come back with profitability."

While the price drop of 2014 was related to increased production, Monday's drop is the opposite end of the spectrum and are the result of the collapse of demand. The oil reserves have reached capacity at this point and oil producers no longer have anywhere to send their oil.

"Forward looking the contracts are at a higher price with the assumption that as the global economy turns the corner, the global price will begin to inch higher as demand picks up albeit slowly,' Krosby said.

As West Texas begins to look ahead at to the next step, Krosby offers a light at the end of the tunnel, even amidst the COVID-19 pandemic.

According to Ray Perryman, Economist with the Perryman Group, said oil prices have declined due to the combination of plummeting demand as economies and industries around the world shut down due to COVID-19 and rising supply, as well as threats of even more due to the collapse of talks earlier this year among major global oil producers to try to bring discipline to the market.

"The recent agreement by OPEC+, the United States, and other nations is not sufficient to rebalance markets due to the unprecedented effects of shutting down huge segments of the world economy, though it is an important step to keep the supply overhang from getting as big as it would other wise," Perryman said.

According to Perryman, as the economy begins to recover from COVID-19 restrictions and travel prohibitions, oil markets can normalize rather

"I anticipate that prices will recover to sustain able levels for West Texas producers in the next few months. In the 1980s, prices fell to around $8.00 per barrel," he said. "That recovery took a while because there were massive structural problems in the market and the economy which exacer bated a growing oversupply situation - the savings and loan and real estate collapse."

He continued, "If you want to go back further prices fell to around a dime per barrel in the East Texas oil field in the 1930s. That one also lasted a while as a result of the Great Depression and the Dust Bowl. This time, the basic structure of the economy was sound going into the COVID-19 disruptions and once major parts of the economy are able to resume operations."

Krosby added, "It is fortunate that the government at this point, as opposed to back in 2014-15 is that the focus is completely on cushioning the downside of this shutdown. The government is all in, whether its the Federal Reserves, the Treasury Department, Administration and Congress, they are all in. I would be shocked if the government turned its back on the shale producers. This isn't about protecting companies that are going under; it's about making certain the economy doesn't go deeper into a downturn and then perhaps evolve into a depression."

Adopt - A - Senior initiative taking off on Facebook

By ERICA MORSE

Herald Contributing Writer

2020 was the year Jacque Foster-Richardson and her family have been waiting for - the year her son, Taylor, was to walk the stage at Coahoma High School to accept his di-

Due to COVID-19, however, Taylor won't be celebrating with a typical graduation this year. His mom, Jacque, was becoming increasingly frustrated knowing her son is missing out on important moments from his senior year.

"It was 2:00 in the morning – on Thursday, April 9th – and I just made the Facebook page," Jacque Foster-Richardson said. "I was thinking about Taylor and all the other kids who aren't going to have a normal graduation and wanted to do something to support them."

In its first week, the official group, 'Adopt a High School Senior – Howard County Texas Area – has developed a membership of over 1,180 members. The group includes parents of area high school seniors, local residents and business owners seeking to support the students. Currently, there are approximately 200 seniors from Co-

to 3:30 every day, and the rest of the time I'm trying to do this page," she said. It's exploded just in the first five days," Jacque Foster-Richardson said. "I had to hire a couple people to help me run it."

The seniors first fill out a form, which is provided in the Facebook group. It contains information about the student's likes and dislikes from their favorite scent to their favorite candy or snack. The senior's parents then post that information, along with their teen's photo in the group, for their student to be 'adopted'. Posts seeking a sponsor contain the hashtag, "#NotAdopted. When a senior is chosen, the post is changed to the hashtag #Adopted. From there, the family and the sponsor connect via messenger, where they exchange more information. So far, 66 area high school seniors have been 'adopted' by good Samaritans in the region.

The student's parent or legal guardian must post their child's adoption request, especially since the parents communicate directly with the adopter. "We've had some high school kids try to post for their friends, but we want to make sure every student and their information remains protected," Foster-Richardson said. "We don't publish any personal

Pair of Buffalo ballers named to TABC All-State Academic Team

By SHAWN MORAN

Herald Sportswriter

It has now been over one month since the last sporting event around the city of Big Spring happened. Even though the UIL has now canceled the rest of the spring sports season, there are still some postseason awards rolling in.

The Texas Association of Basketball Coaches (TABC) has recently selected their Academic All-State teams. On that list was two Forsan Buffaloes: seniors Ryan Buske and Jonathon Gabehart.

To be named, or even nominated as, a Texas Academic All-State player the athlete must (1) be in good standing with the team, (2) have good moral character, (3) be a senior and (4) have an overall grade point average of 92 or higher throughout entire high school career.

That means that Buske and Gabehart not only dominated the books this year as much as they were forces on the court, but also have been excelling in the classroom since the day they first walked into Forsan High School.

The duo made the 2A list after thriving both on the court and in the classroom. The Buffs' were knocked out of the first round of the postseason this year, but these two multi-sport stars were still excelling in their classes.

At the end of last week, Forsan superintendent Randy Johnson tweeted out from the school's personal Twitter account about the cancellation of the remainder of the in-person school year and the rest of spring sports.

Johnson said, "But first, there are about five weeks of school remaining. We want all of our students to reach their full potential and to accomplish their goals. A serious approach to schoolwork and a 'finish strong' attitude are both important in these last few weeks."

With Forsan and all the other local high schools shut down because of the coronavirus, students have had to get used to the idea of their own bedroom or kitchen table serving as their classroom. While a lot of students might have trouble with distance learning, that was obviously not an issue for the pairing of Buske and Gabehart.

The duo have now played their final games in the black and silver and will be heading off to college in the fall. They both join teammate Zane Riffe as seniors who have been honored with postseason awards this year.

With all of that talent leaving the team heading into next year, the Buffaloes and Head Coach Cory Richardson will be working through some things such as team chemistry and how to play smart on

"We'll miss those guys and we'll miss the leadership. I think we have ballplayers and we have athletes but their leadership is going to be hard to replace," Richardson said.

Now that three veteran players who are at the top of the top of their games will be graduating and departing, Forsan will need to build that chemistry up over the offseason. There will be some new team leaders such as Paul Evans, Mason Hillger, and Cayden Morgan that will take over the reigns from Buske and Gabehart.

While Buske and Gabehart might not have been the highest scorers on the team, they were both extremely consistent and always seemed to knock down a shot whenever the team needed it.

Buske was a force on the low block in many games this past season. The big man used his frame to outmuscle and outmaneuver the opponents under the basket for a healthy heaping of rebounds over the course of the year.

On the other hand, Gabehart was an active player who seemed to get his hands into a ton of passing lanes and collected steals. He also has a nice midrange shot but did most of his damage close to the basket. Even when he was not able to get the ball to fall, Gabehart was tremendous at drawing fouls. The way that both of these players played the game of basketball shows their intelligence off of the court. They both play the game extremely smart and with their strong fundamentals showing

Now that sports are over for the remainder of the school year, Forsan and Richardson can even start looking ahead to the next basketball season soon. They will have to replace some top-level talent and teammates in the fall but with the mark that players such as Buske and Gabehart have made on the program, it will not be difficult for the younger players to step up and take over those well-established roles.

UTPB to continue streaming historic Falcons games online

By SHAWN MORAN

Herald Sportswriter

The University of Texas-Permian Basin has recently been streaming games that have gone down in history as some of the best the Falcons have ever played. The athletic department is calling these streams UTPB Classics and have been streaming them on Youtube for the last couple of weeks.

This week, the Falcons go all the way back to when the volleybal team upset No. 10 Tarleton on Senior Day in 2018. The Falcons handed Tarleton their only loss of the Lone Star Conference schedule on the final day of the regular season. It was the biggest upset in program history and the first win over a ranked team in the Tim Loesch era.

The Falcons advanced to their first ever LSC Tournament and used it as a springboard to win 20 games in 2019. After the season, Skyler Friel was named a Lone Star Conference First Team selection after setting the program's hitting percentage record.

That game will be streamed on April 24 at 1 p.m. on the UTPB Youtube chan-

There are also a couple of other options for Falcons fans to watch when they get online. The Falcons have also posted the men's basketball team win over Texas A&M-Commerce that clinched the conference regular season title back

If you enjoy the volleyball stream later this week, then taking a look at another Falcons classic victory on the court will also quench your thirst for sports in this trying time. In the other classic, the Falcons show off their skills and get a playoff victory over Dallas Baptist. It was the first Lone Star Conference playoff win for the Falcons in their program's history and also the first team that surpassed the 20-win mark.

With no sports currently on, Falcons fans and other sports enthusiasts should check out the UTPB Youtube channel this Friday afternoon.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Avoiding Scammers

Dear Annie: As a public service, please make your readers aware of the grandparents phone scam. My elderly parents were victims of this scam. Someone called them claiming to be a narcotics detective and told them their grandchild had been arrested and they needed to send bail money in order to have her released from

He said they must not discuss this with anyone, even the family. They put a girl on the phone claiming to be their grandchild. She was crying hysterically in order to disguise her voice. She begged them not to tell her parents or anyone else. My parents were given specific directions on getting the money, how to pack it and send it. The scammer requested $22,000 in cash in $100 bills. He said time was of the essence and if they didn't follow his directions or if they told anyone, their grandchild could be facing a

Annie's Mailbox ®

Unfortunately, my parents fell for this scam and sent $22,000 in cash to a residential address in Florida. I am shocked that my parents fell for this scam, as there were so many red flags. My parents may be elderly, but they are both mentally sharp. These scammers are pros and have an answer for everything.

They prey on the grandparent's love and concern for their grandchild. My dad was told he would receive a certified check in the mail reimbursing him all of the money after their grandchild was released from jail. He even followed up with them on where the package was in transit, calling them several times over a two-day period, always reminding them that they must not discuss this with anyone.

I have reported this matter to the FTC and the FBI, but I am aware that my parent's money is gone forever. I just want to get this information out to the elderly and also to their friends and family. I do not want to see another person scammed and lose their money to these evil people. You may think your parents would never fall for something this devious, but I thought that, too.

My parents are so embarrassed and ashamed that they fell for this scam. I'm sad that they didn't contact someone for advice, but he was just so convincing. -- Sad Daughter

Dear Sad Daughter: I am so sorry that your parents had to go through that. Shame on whoever stole from them -- and probably many other desperate, loving grandparents. Thank you for alerting others to the problem. I'm hoping that your letter helps save others.

Dear Readers:

Here are some fun tips to make the most out of your days in quarantine.

--Start a gratitude journal. It can be as small as writing one thing you are grateful for every day.

- -- Call a family member or friend to check in on them. This will make both of you feel good. It's a win/win.
- --Move your body. Create a workout space inside or maybe on a patio or in your backyard. Take all precautions listed by the White House, if you venture outdoors.

Either way, South now had nine unassailable tricks — two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and a club — and so made three notrump. Of course, he would have gone down had East taken the ace of spades at trick three and returned a heart.

East should have viewed with grave suspicion South's failure to overtake the jack of spades with dummy's king at trick three. He probably thought declarer had blundered by playing low from dummy, but it turned out that South was dumb like

The hand demonstrates that psychology can sometimes play a key role in bridge. Declarer saw an opportunity to create the impression that he had erred, and East cooperated by falling for the ruse.

Today is Tuesday, April 21, the 112th day of 2020. There are 254 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On April 21, 1976, clinical trials of the swine flu vaccine began in Washington, D.C. On this date:

In 1509, England's King Henry VII died; he was succeeded by his 17-year-old son, Henry VIII.

In 1789, John Adams was sworn in as the first vice president of the United States. In 1816, Charlotte Bronte, author of "Jane Eyre," was born in Thornton, England.

In 1836, an army of Texans led by Sam Houston defeated the Mexicans at San Jacinto, assuring Texas independence. In 1910, author Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, died in Redding, Connecticut, at age 74.

In 1918, Manfred von Richthofen, 25, the German ace known as the "Red Baron" who was believed to have downed 80 enemy aircraft during World War I, was himself shot down and killed while in action over France.

In 1926, Britain's Queen Elizabeth II was born in Mayfair, London; she was the first child of The Duke and Duchess of York, who later became King George VI and the Queen Mother.

forces closing in, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu resigned after nearly 10 years in office and fled the country.

In 1989, the baseball fantasy "Field of Dreams," starring Kevin Costner, was released by Universal Pictures. In 2009, the sole survivor of a pirate attack on an American cargo ship off the Somali coast, on which Captain Richard Phillips was held for ransom, was charged as an adult with piracy in federal court in New York. (A prosecutor said Abdiwali Abdiqadir Muse (AHB'-dih-AHB'-dih-kah-dir wah-lee moo-SAY') had given wildly varying ages for himself before finally admitting he was 18. Muse later pleaded guilty to hijacking, kidnapping and hostage-taking and was sentenced to more than 33 years in prison.)

In 2016, Prince, one of the most inventive and influential musicians of modern times, was found dead at his home in suburban Minneapolis; he was 57.

Ten years ago: Pope Benedict XVI promised "church action" to confront the clerical abuse scandal. Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger was suspended for six games for violating the NFL's personal conduct policy. (Commissioner Roger Goodell handed down the punishment after prosecutors decided not to bring charges in a case involving a 20-yearold college student who'd accused Roethlisberger of sexually assaulting her.) Juan Antonio Samaranch, 89, who'd served as president of the International Olympic Committee for 21 years, died in Barcelona, Spain.

Five years ago: An Egyptian criminal court sentenced ousted Islamist President Mohammed Morsi to 20 years in prison over the killing of protesters in 2012. The head of the Drug Enforcement Administration, Michele Leonhart, announced her retirement in the wake of allegations that DEA agents had attended sex parties with prostitutes. Pope Francis accepted the resignation of U.S. Bishop Robert Finn, who'd pleaded guilty to failing to report a suspected child abuser. Mary Doyle Keefe, 92, the model for Norman Rockwell's iconic 1943 Rosie the Riveter painting, died in Simsbury, Connecticut.

One year ago: President Donald Trump spoke with the newly-elected Ukrainian leader, Volodymyr Zelenskiy, to congratulate him on his landslide election victory. (A second phone call in July, in which Trump solicited Zelenskiy's help in gathering potentially damaging information about principal Democratic rival, Joe Biden, would lead to Trump's impeachment by the House.)
