City, County, Emergency Mgmt. issues statement on re-opening

Gov. Abbott Executive Order allows re-opening to begin May 1

Editor's Note: Howard County Judge Kathryn Wiseman, Big Spring Mayor Shannon Thomason and Howard County Emergency Management Team issued a release addressing the re-opening of Texas. The release addresses the guidelines for Howard County and Big Spring.

Special to the Herald

On Monday, April 27, 2020, Governor Abbott issued an Executive Order to start reopening the State of Texas. The order included guidelines for opening restaurants, retail establishments, movie theaters, museums, and libraries. The order also gave approval for outdoor sports with no more than four participants and provided guidelines for churches to expand their services. Governor Abbot's Executive Order includes the specific guidelines that each business shall follow. We strongly recommend that citizens continue to practice social distancing, wash your hands, stay home if you're sick, and wear a mask when in public areas. Citizens should also simply stay home when possible. Don't make unnecessary trips into public. Keep in mind that local establishments may require citizens to wear a mask and can refuse service to anyone.

Inside of Howard County, to include the City of Big Spring, businesses outlined in the Executive Order may open on May 1, 2020, to fifty percent (50%) of their capacity, if they follow social distancing guidelines and sanitizing guidelines set forth by the CDC and the Texas Department of State Health Services.

At this time, and by Governor Abbott's orders, gyms, public swimming pools, interactive amusement venues such as bowling alleys and video arcade, massage establishments, tattoo studios, piercing studios and cosmetology salons shall remain closed.

The use of drive-thru, pickup, or delivery options for food and drinks remains allowed and highly encouraged throughout the limited duration of the Governor's executive order.

We are each called upon to be Texans; to act responsibly as we re-engage the economy, to continue following all health precautions and sanitizing guidelines, and to care for our vulnerable neighbors.

Anyone with questions regarding the specific guidelines for each business may visit the Governor's Open Texas website at www.gov.texas.gov/open-texas.

Recognizing area students: BSHS Senior Olivia Bancroft

By COL. ALLEN MORRIS

Special to the Herald

The Big Spring Herald has been recognizing Star Students each week as part of the education page. Due to distance learning being implemented for the past several weeks, students and teachers have been adjusting to this new way of "normal." However, the accomplishments these students have achieved still deserve to be recognized, and this week the recognition goes to Big Spring High Olivia Bancroft.

She is the daughter of George and Elissa Bancroft and has lived in Big Spring almost all of her life. Had you asked her a few years ago, she would have said, "I am in the class of 2021," but her drive and ambition for her future and for those with whom she will share her future have changed that answer to be, "I am in the class of 2020." Not only will Olivia be a high school graduate one year early, she will start her university studies this fall as a member of the Junior Class.

When asked to explain what is important to Olivia, she said, "My family and my education are important to me. Without the support of my parents, I would not be the student nor person I am today. Because of them I am able to take on as many [school and work] hours as I can handle. At the moment I am taking twenty-five college hours while still in high school. My parents encourage me when I feel overwhelmed and they congratulate me when I have accomplished something, no matter how big or small. I am always reminded of how loved I am through their constant support. I hope to one day repay them for all they have done for me."

When asked what inspires her, Olivia said, "My favorite Bible verse is: Commit your works to the Lord and your plans will be established. Proverbs 16:3" According to Kelly Ralston, who helps students learn English Language Arts at Big Spring High, "Olivia is a beautiful young woman who is determined, ambitious, and driven. Olivia's smile is as bright as the highlighter that she uses on her super-organized day planner. She's simply a sweetheart. She deserves good things in her life."

Amy Ogle Aquatic Director at our local YMCA said, "Olivia has worked for me for three years. She has grown into one of the hardest working young ladies whom I know. She has been a big part of our lifeguard family. She has become part of our Alive Group that is head of all the new lifeguards that come to work our summers. Olivia takes on new tasks with heart and a smile. On many occasions, I have given her a new task and she puts everything she has into it. Olivia works the 5am shift without complaint and that is rare among teens. Recently she has been given new duties and was assigned to teach on our new aqua boards. She is extremely good at it. I am so proud of everything she has become. I know she will do amazing things in her life. The YMCA family is so proud to call her one of us."

Additionally, Amber Griffith, who also helps students learn English Language Arts said, "Olivia Bancroft is an excellent student; she is always thinking of others. I'm afraid that when it comes to being interviewed and Olivia is asked what her greatest weakness is, she is going to have to respond with an answer like, "I insist on getting things done in a timely manner and I am only satisfied with doing my best." Because, in my experience as her former teacher, those were her greatest weaknesses. Olivia has a kind and giving heart and on more than one occasion has made my day brighter. I am honored to have called her name on my roster and I sincerely look forward to seeing her continue to grow and conquer everything that is put in front of her."

Bancroft said, "I am very excited to start this new chapter of my life and very proud of the one I have just completed. In just twelve months, I will have accomplished 55 to 61 college hours (according to AP exam scores). This fall, I am very eager to continue my undergrad studies through Southwestern Governors University, where I will be enrolled as a seventeen-year-old college Junior. During this time, I have decided to remain at home so that I may continue to work, save, and live rent-free."

She continued, "Through Southwestern Governors I will obtain a Bachelors of Accounting. Immediately after graduation, I will either attend graduate school at the Brint Ryan School of Business at the University of North Texas or enlist in the United States Marine Corps. Whatever the order, I do plan on doing both things and eventually, I hope to become a CEO of a large corporation."

It is easy to be excited for Olivia's future and equally so for those who are lucky enough to get to spend it with her.

By SHAWN MORAN

Herald Sportswriter

The 2019-20 school year is going to end differently than any previous year of school in memory. With the coronavirus pandemic shutting down in-person teaching for the remainder of the year, students have had to revert to distance learning while stuck at home.

Even though the seniors will be sent off without spending the last few months in the classroom, it is still important to recognize the achievements that these students have put in for the last 13 years. After starring on the baseball diamond every spring, Sarmiento would receive his transcript at the end of the semester and see that he was usually No. 1 in the class.

Now, he is the 2020 Big Spring High School Valedictorian.

"He was like a son to me," Steers baseball coach Daniel Carrillo said. "Him growing with the program and when he would go and try to set an example, it always sounded like me out there. He's one of the few kids that I've ever coached that has trusted in me and everything I would say and he would believe in it. He wouldn't question it and he would just what he learned out onto the field. He was like a second coach out on the field and a phenomenal teammate."

Sarmiento often took his smarts from the classroom and translated them onto the baseball field. Whenever Carrillo needed to make an adjustment, Sarmiento acted as another coach on the field and would relay the message to the other players. He was never afraid to ask his coaches' questions and he also made some pretty sweet plays from his second base position through his years in the black and gold.

During the shortened 2020 season, Sarmiento had gotten off to a great start and was one of the Steers most consistent batters. He also helped complete a few nice double-plays from his spot in the field and even caught a scorching line-drive in the playoffs last year that had everyone in awe of his reaction time and pure skill.

"I don't know how he grabbed it but he did and it was just a phenomenal play," Carrillo said. "He's always been more athletic than people thought. His demeanor every day at the ball park was positive. He just came in and worked and worked."

Sarmiento does not have a favorite subject in school but if he were to pick a class he believes he is best at, it would be English. He has recently applied to Angelo State University and plans to attend there before transferring to Lubbock Christian University.

Why did he decide on that route?

"In Texas, if you're valedictorian, you can get your associates' from any public institute in Texas," Sarmiento said.

Sarmiento plans to study so that he can go into assisting people as a pastoral counselor. It is a cause that is near-and-dear to his own heart and he would like to make a difference in people's lives who have been through similar struggles that he or his family members have gone through.

It is not easy for a young student-athlete who dedicates so much time to sports to be able to also excel in the classroom. With all of the additional practice time and time spent on road trips with his team, Sarmiento still always found a way to get his schoolwork done. This kind of dedication is a lot coming out of a teenager which only shows the maturity and intelligence of the Steers' Valedictorian.

"He has the whole package," Carrillo said. "Character, work ethic, and everything else. He just has it."

This school year is ending like any other and there is still uncertainty surrounding the school's graduation ceremony. There have been rumors that the graduation will go on at Memorial Stadium but there has been no official rule yet. Whether or not the ceremony will be in-person is still yet to be decided but one thing is for certain: If Sarmiento needs to deliver a speech, he will be ready.

"I have a decent idea of what I want to say and how I want to go about it but I'm not sure if that'll happen," he said.

His family, friends and even fans will hopefully have a chance to see Sarmiento up on stage to speak to and motivate his fellow graduates. After four years of excelling at everything he has put his mind to, it is now a time to celebrate all of his outstanding accomplishments and be excited about what his future holds.

Big Spring and all of its citizens will not soon forget the impact of Anthony Sarmiento in both the classroom and on the baseball diamond.

Skeptics loom as NCAA builds guardrails around compensation

By RALPH D. RUSSO

AP College Sports Writer

For more than 60 years, NCAA leaders have insisted college athletes had to be amateurs and to be amateurs they could not be paid for being athletes — by anybody.

That will no longer be the case. The NCAA announced Wednesday it is moving forward with a plan to allow college athletes to earn money for endorsements and a host of other activities involving personal appearances and social media content.

It's a big deal — "unprecedented," Ohio State President and NCAA Board of Governors chairman Michael Drake called it. But there are important details to be sorted out before NCAA membership votes on legislation in January and there are plenty of skeptical lawmakers and lawyers watching.

"The challenge of evaluating this is we don't know where they have landed yet," said Gabe Feldman, director of the Tulane University sports law program.

While athletes will be able to cash in on their names, images and likenesses as never before, the money won't come from the NCAA, schools or conferences.

The broad plan is to allow athletes to strike deals with third parties, but require them to disclose those agreements with their schools. The NCAA and schools want to regulate for improprieties so payments aren't actually recruiting inducements or pay-for-play schemes.

Guardrails is the word college sports leaders are using to describe those regulations. The next phase is building those guardrails.

There will be no cap on what the athletes can earn, said Ohio State athletic director Gene Smith, who led the group that produced the recommendations approved by the Board of Governors.

That's important because the NCAA is still fighting the appeal of an antitrust case in which the plaintiffs claimed the association and its member schools and conferences have been illegally capping compensation to athletes at the value of a scholarship.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Cat Scratch Moon

ARIES (March 21-April 19). There comes a point in every commitment when the newness has worn off and the grind begins. Stop and take a walk up the proverbial mountain so you can look down on this with the benefit of a sky-high perspective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You've been through challenges that other people can relate to. You'll notice a recurring theme here. You've dared to want more for yourself than was offered. Keep believing you can have that.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Ask a direct question, and then let silence be your friend. When you don't pre-judge or put words in the other person's mouth, you'll learn something surprising and useful.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Nothing works with all of the people all of the time. But you'll learn a few techniques for dealing with people that work with most, especially with traffic. Try something over and over until it becomes natural.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). When we believe a thing, it seems like a fact, and when we disbelieve, we assume it's a theory or an opinion. Your golden move today will be in being slow to decide what you believe. Let all the ideas entertain you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You want to be very aware of your feelings, especially when you're having a good time. So you prefer to keep a clear head, free of distracttion or anything that might dull your senses to the full effect of life.

LII-BRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You've an unconventional approach to a very conventional activity. This will be a fun thing to share with others, and you could even become very well-known for it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You'll give of yourself, and your kindness will elevate anything you add it to. Add it to words to make confidence. Add it to moments to make profound memories.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Sometimes knowing the theory behind a thing can help you learn it more or less completely. But mostly, experience is the best teacher. It puts things not only into your mind but also into your being.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You'll show up today in a way you can be proud of later when you're telling the story. These are, after all, notable times. The way you play it will go down in the history books.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Real-life situations can echo digital ones in that a login is often required to get to the good offerings. In today's case, setting up an account is more a matter of checking all the boxes that tend to the other person's needs.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There's no point to interacting on autopilot. Fresh topics, interesting questions and receptive, curious interactions will cause the spark that leads to exciting relationships.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 30). There's no reason to fret about the right move, because it's the right reason that matters most. As long as your intention is clear and pure, you're brilliant. Common-sense moves will be lucrative. Resist spending until and unless you're sure. Someone falls in love with you when you're unaware and not self-conscious. Leo and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 1, 47, 9, 13 and 22.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTION: Here is more on yesterday's question from a Capricorn reader concerned with how and what to reveal in early dates. "I haven't settled on a good pattern for letting people get to know me," the reader said. "I don't know which version of my story to tell." In the very early stages of getting to know a person, the vibes matter more than the actual facts. Since you're looking for a confluence of interests, it's more important to talk about where you are in life and what you're interested in than where you've been. One easy story to master about yourself is simply the one about what you like.

For instance: "The first time I heard an electric guitar, it was in the garage of my sister's boyfriend. The sound blew my mind. From then on, mastering different sounds on the guitar has been one of my favorite things to do. Also, I go to a lot of concerts."

"My dad worked in a bakery when I was kid, and I loved when he'd bring the fresh bread home. It's just something that brings me comfort now, and I love to try new recipes. Do you cook?"

These breezy stories tell a lot without saying much. But the most important part is how the other person reacts and whether you feel acknowledged and engaged by the reaction. More on Saturday!

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Kirsten Dunst entered show business at age 3 and developed a lifelong mutual love affair with film. Whether she's playing a vampire, a princess or a superhero's love interest, this Venus-ruled beauty captivates with a commanding presence. Dunst will star in "The Power of the Dog," based on the novel by Thomas Savage. She was born with the sun and Mercury in Taurus, and a moon in Leo, the sign of show business.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

One of the great advantages of playing in a suit contract, rather than notrump, is that the trump suit neutralizes at least some of the tricks the defenders would otherwise be able to take with their high cards or long suits.

However, this advantage does not protect a declarer in every case. If the defenders persist in leading their long suit, they might eventually run declarer out of trump and then be able to score whatever tricks remain in their main suit.

Here is a case where the defenders can prevail in that manner, provided they play properly. West leads three rounds of clubs, forcing declarer to ruff.

Superficially, it seems that South is now on solid ground, since he has four sure trump tricks, three heart tricks and four diamond tricks. Nevertheless, the contract will fail if West defends correctly.

At trick four, declarer leads the king of trump. If West takes the king with the ace, South easily wins the rest of the tricks. But if West ducks the king, leaving himself with the A-6-5 while South still has the J-10-8, West retains control of the trump suit.

When South continues with the jack, West ducks again, thus sealing declarer's fate. South cannot afford to lead another trump, because West would win with the ace and return a club to force out declarer's last trump, defeating the contract two tricks.

The best South can do, after West ducks the first two trumps, is to cash as many tricks as he can in diamonds and hearts. Sooner or later, West ruffs one of them with the six of trump, and the contract goes down one.

Tomorrow: Triumph of mind over matter.

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Finding Beauty in the Ugly Part of Aging

Dear Annie: I was very close to my grandmother, and when she died, I felt guilty at times, thinking that I might have been sharp with her. She had always been like a mother, and a friend. I guess I was mad that she was getting older. She never got bad enough that we couldn't have a coherent conversation about how she felt.

She would ask me to sing songs I knew she liked, and she remembered every word. She would recall funny stories about the family that always brought a smile to her face. She was always so mad at herself when she couldn't remember a word, or forgot what she was going to say.

I knew there would be a time when I would lose my buddy as I knew her. She would stare with a vacant look in her eye, and I always wondered where she was. I would always make a joke of it so as to not make her feel embarrassed. She would always make up something to not worry me, but I knew at that moment she wasn't with me.

I took her on walks, and she was in excellent health for 90. And very attractive. I was still sad, though, wondering if she was afraid. She had long ago told me that people don't realize that when you age, no matter how old, you are always the same person inside.

I started writing these observations down, and soon it was in poem form and people were asking for copies. Some even had it framed. It assuaged the fear and sadness in regard to our projections and conjectures about what people her age might be going through. So with what I had written down, along with what Grandma was able to tell me, I composed a poem. I hope it helps those who are, or will be, touched by this ugly part of aging.

"A Letter From Grandma"

"I've seen the way you look at me when you think I haven't heard what you said.

"Truth is I heard you, but I'm at a new place now, and it's somewhere in my head.

"I understand it scares you, but it's because it's all so new.

"Time was when it scared me, and made me more than a little mad too.

"But I've found this field of daisies where the skies are always so blue,

"and I've seen a spotted puppy with a child who looks a lot like you.

"I can jump so high and run so fast -- I'm so very young again I hardly have a past.

"I've seen you worry, and I know you stew
"Sometimes you even get mad -- I know that you do.

"It's because you love me, and you don't understand that what's happening to me is all part of a plan.

"Sometimes from where I am I think I see my mother.

"I see everyone I've ever loved, first one and then the other.

"When I'm here, I have strength, not an ache or a pain.

"I can play baseball or hopscotch and take long walks in the rain.

"Here It doesn't matter if I forget what I wanted to say.

"There's no stress or pressure, maybe someday I'll stay.

"It all happened so slowly, but someday you'll understand.

"Even you will visit this new place, and when you do, you and I will walk hand in hand."

Today in History

Today is Thursday, April 30, the 121st day of 2020. There are 245 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History: On April 30, 1945, as Soviet troops approached his Berlin bunker, Adolf Hitler committed suicide along with his wife of one day, Eva Braun. On this date: In A.D. 311, shortly before his death, Roman Emperor Galerius issued his Edict of Toleration ending persecution of Christians. In 1789, George Washington took the oath of office in New York as the first president of the United States. In 1803, the United States purchased the Louisiana Territory from France for 60 million francs, the equivalent of about $15 million. In 1900, engineer John Luther "Casey" Jones of the Illinois Central Railroad died in a train wreck near Vaughan, Mississippi, after staying at the controls in a successful effort to save the passengers. In 1911, a fire broke out in Bangor, Maine, destroying much of the downtown area before it was brought under control the next morning; two deaths were blamed on the blaze. In 1945, the radio show "Queen for Today" (later "Queen for a Day") premiered on the Mutual Network. In 1970, President Richard M. Nixon announced the U.S. was sending troops into Cambodia, an action that sparked widespread protest. In 1973, President Richard Nixon announced the resignations of top aides H.R. Halde- man and John Ehrlichman, Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst and White House counsel John Dean, who was actually fired. In 1975, the Vietnam War ended as the South Vietnam- es capital of Saigon fell to Communist forces. In 1983, blues singer and guitarist Muddy Waters died in Westmont, Ill., at age 68. In 1993, top-ranked women's tennis player Monica Seles was stabbed in the back during a match in Hamburg, Germany, by a man who described himself as a fan of second-ranked German player Steffi Graf. (The man, convicted of causing grievous bodily harm, was given a suspended sentence.) In 2004, Arabs expressed outrage at graphic photographs of naked Iraqi prisoners being humiliated by U.S. military police; President George W. Bush condemned the mistreatment of prisoners, saying "that's not the way we do things in America." Ten years ago: Heavy winds and high tides complicated efforts to hold back oil from a blown-out BP-operated rig that threatened to coat bird and marine life in the Gulf of Mexico; President Barack Obama halted any new off-shore projects pending safe-guards to prevent more ex-plosions like the one that unleashed the spill. Five years ago: Sen. Bernie Sanders of Vermont formally entered the race for the Demo- cratic presidential nomination with a news conference on Capitol Hill. Vietnam marked the 40th anniversary of the day communist forces seized control of the country with a parade through the capital of Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon). Rhythm-and-blues singer Ben E. King, 76, died in Hackensack, New Jersey. One year ago: Venezuelan op- position leader Juan Guaidó took to the streets to call for a military uprising against Nicolas Maduro; street battles erupted in the Venezuelan capital. The Trump admin- istration quickly declared enthusiastic support for the Venezuelan opposition effort. President Donald Trump and Democratic congressional leaders agreed to work toward a $2 trillion infrastructure plan but put off the question of how to pay for it. A gun- man killed two students and wounded four others in a lec- ture hall at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte; a student who helped end the shooting by tackling the gun- man was one of the two killed. (Former student Trystan Ter- rell pleaded guilty to first-de- gree murder and other crim- es.) Japanese Emperor Akihito announced his abdication; his 30-year reign ended at mid- night, when his son, Crown Prince Naruhito, became the new emperor. Peter May- hew, the towering actor who donned a huge, furry costume to give life to Chewbacca in the original "Star Wars" tril- ogy and two other films, died at his north Texas home at the age of 74. The musical "Ha- destown" earned a leading 14 Tony Award nominations.

What the NCAA will attempt to do is monitor deals athletes make and require them to disclose details. Boosters, those who support schools with donations, likely won't be immediately disqualified from working with athletes. But the NCAA fears individuals and companies using business relationships with athletes as cover for paying prospects to attend a particular school.

How to draw that line has yet to be resolved. The NCAA also has to figure out how to assess the fair-market value for an athlete appearing in a television commercial for a local business, signing autographs at a memorabilia shop or promoting a product or event on social media.

"It is still a moving target," Smith said. "But again, we just have to be reasonable. If I do a deal with Panera Bread and I do two likes and they pay me $50,000 for that, I'm not so sure that is in the realm of what we're talking about."

Big East Commissioner Val Ackerman, co-chair of the working group with Smith, said there has been discussion about creating a third party to make those assessments and manage disclosure.

"This has been referred to alternatively to as a clearinghouse or a registry or an NIL center," Ackerman said. "And I don't know that there would be an approval mechanism, but the notion would be to create the sunshine and the transparency that would allow us to monitor valuations and booster involvement. And if there are some concerning patterns, we would be able to help screen those out or figure out how to address those."

Athletes will not be allowed to use their schools' logos or brands in their personal deals. So if Clemson quarterback Trevor Lawrence appears in a TV ad, he won't be allowed to wear the school's familiar orange Tiger Paw.

While NCAA leaders celebrated the move as another example of evolving to better serve college athletes, there are plenty of skeptics. The NCAA has been talking with members of Congress about federal legislation that would render moot various state laws and perhaps stave off future legal challenges.

"This proposal is one step forward, one step back," tweeted Sen. Chris Murphy, a Connecticut Democrat who has been pushing for more economic rights for college athletes. "The NCAA wants to limit athlete endorsement deals in a way that could make them totally impractical. And the NCAA wants Congress to give it total power of athletes' compensation. That should be a non-starter."

California lawmakers have already passed a bill that would make it illegal for NCAA schools to prohibit college athletes from making money on endorsements, social media advertising and other activities. The law goes into effect in 2023. Dozens of states have followed California's lead; a Florida bill awaiting the governor's signature would go into effect July 2021.

"Recommendations today by the NCAA are about protecting their pockets, not student athletes," tweeted Republican Chip LaMarca, a Florida state lawmaker. "Now they are shifting blame for their deliberate inaction to states that have passed meaningful legislation to protect students' right to earn a living."

Jeffrey Kessler, the lead attorney in an antitrust cases against the NCAA that is still in appeals, said the NCAA's move toward NIL compensation for athletes "completely destroys every argument they've made in the past."

"Because their defense has been if you allow to permit any type of compensation to the athletes beyond what they call cost of attendance, this will destroy the whole concept of amateurism and destroy fan interest in college sports," he said.
