Covid-19 update for Howard County and Big Spring

Special to the Herald

Last week, the City of Big Spring and Howard County, along with Emergency Management announced Covid-19 updates would be taking place once a week, with information to be reported on Fridays. The Texas Health Department recently changed up the reporting process to communities, as they battle through the pandemic as well.

As part of the update, two new deaths related to Covid-19 were reported.

On Aug. 6, 2020, Howard County officials were notified of two deaths attributed to COVID-19, a 77-year-old male and an 89-year-old male. Both individuals were diagnosed with COVID-19 earlier this week and have succumbed to the illness.

Both County and City officials are saddened by this news and we extend our deepest condolences to their family members. We ask that you keep these families in your thoughts and prayers during this difficult time.

Also included in the update was the number of new cases that were reported for the Howard County area.

For the week of Aug. 3, 2020, the City of Big Spring and Howard County officials were notified of nineteen (19) new positive test results for COVID-19.

To date, Howard County and Big Spring have had a total of 161 positive COVID-19 cases. This week, there was a decrease in the number of active cases from 52 to 50. The number of people recovered from COVID-19 increased from 91 to 110.

With the continuing increase in the number of positive cases, County and City officials urge community members to take every precaution to protect yourself and your family members.

Please continue to practice social distancing, stay home when possible, wash your hands frequently, and wear a mask while in public areas. These are all things you can do to help prevent yourself and your loved ones from becoming ill from any respiratory illness including COVID-19.

Controlling brush to help save water

Special to the Herald
 PBUWCD

Anywhere you go water demands are on the rise. This is due to the rapid increase in population and industry growth. We are living in a time when every drop of water counts. This is why the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board has developed a State Brush Control Plan to rid the land of water sucking trees and brush in order to conserve water to better benefit the land and crops.

Invasive brush such as mesquites, juniper, and salt cedars are using as much as 10 million acre-feet (AF) of water in Texas each year. This is two-thirds of what Texas residents consume. The mesquite plant alone consumes 20 gallons of water per day. Due to the increase of water demands, highly-concentrated research on brush water use is becoming even more crucial to local ranching and farming producers. When mesquite, juniper and salt cedar brush species are managed, benefits can be seen in the water quantity, erosion, and in some cases water quality.

Modeling efforts from comprehensive studies suggest that removing brush should create water savings by increasing ground and surface water supplies. Most of the studies conducted showed that removing brush reduced the amount of water used and also helped reduce erosion in the examined areas. The idea is that by removing brush there would be less interception of rainfall which would provide more runoffs to streams, or that by clearing brush there would be more infiltration

Texas Sales Tax Holiday this weekend

AUSTIN — Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar reminds shoppers the annual sales tax holiday for certain clothing items, footwear, backpacks and school supplies is scheduled for this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 7-9.

The law exempts sales tax on qualified items priced below $100, saving shoppers about $8 on every $100 they spend. The date of the sales tax holiday and list of tax-exempt items are set in statute by the Texas Legislature.

The statute specifically excludes special clothing or footwear that is primarily designed for athletic activity (cleats, baseball gloves, etc.) or protective use (industrial or medical-grade masks) and that is not normally worn except when used for that activity. However, cloth and disposable fabric face masks meet the definition of an article of clothing and are exempt from sales tax during the sales tax holiday.

Apparel and school supplies that may be purchased tax-free are listed on the Comptroller's website at TexasTaxHoliday.org.

The Comptroller's office encourages all consumers to promote social distancing while shopping at local retail locations. During the annual sales tax holiday, qualifying items also can be purchased online or by telephone, mail, custom order or any other means (including in-store purchases) tax free, when either:

- the item is both delivered to, and paid for by, the customer during the exemption period; or
- the customer orders and pays for the item, and the seller accepts the order during the exemption period for immediate shipment, even if delivery is made after the exemption period ends.

Texas' sales tax holiday weekend has been an annual event since 1999.

The mask makers in Seminole

Tina Siemens works with the Heritage Project in Seminole. It's a group that does research on the history of the Mennonites.

Tina wrote a book titled SEMI-NOLE about the immigration of Mennonites to Seminole. Tina says the group was looking for ways to help out during the Corona crisis.

They looked into making masks for medical personnel and first responders.

"I know a lot of people who have sewing machines. All of the Mennonite ladies can sew. On our Facebook page I posted a message that said if anyone with a sewing machine would be interested in making masks, be at my house at 4 PM tomorrow."

Ten women were at her door at 4 p.m. the next day.

Eventually the number of women making masks in Seminole was seven times that.

"I have coordinated seventy plus women. Two of them were non-Mennonites and the others were all Mennonite ladies. The number included many grandmas, daughters, daughters in law and granddaughters. Mostly they make the masks individually at their homes. But I went into one home and around a large table six women were at the sewing machines making masks."

Tina made a sample mask as a pattern. She got it from the Internet. She added one special feature.

"I came up with the idea of having a slit in the face side so you can insert a panty liner as a moisture barrier as well as a filter. I heard that in China ladies were using a feminine napkin as a mask. I didn't think that was appropriate."

The project has been going on 4 months now. The ladies have created 2,363 masks so far.

Tina is a pro now and can make a mask in ten minutes. She has sent them all over the country, some to elected officials in Austin and Washington D.C.

Tina did some research and found out cotton was the preferred material to use. The pastor of the First Baptist Church in Seminole helped out.

"He announced to his congregation that anybody that has cotton material please get it to Tina Siemens. I now have bags and bags of cotton material that has been donated. We can make lots of masks."

Tina's 74-year-old father got involved.

"He saw me being busy with the masks and said he wanted to try it. So he got out his sewing machine that he had bought at an estate sale in Canyon years ago. He said he had it tuned and asked me to show him how to make a mask. So I have pictures and videos of my dad sewing masks for this project at age 74"

Tina says there are other women in Seminole making masks. They just wanted to help.

It seemed like the natural thing to do.

"It has been such a great experience to see the community come together. When our country is in need there are always people to step up to the plate and help."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Big Spring and I-27

Letter to the Editor

I have sent the letter below to various agencies over the last few years trying to explain why I think IS 27 should come down HWY 87 - My family and I moved to Howard County (Otis Chalk) in 1939, when I was nine, and to Big Spring on New Year Day 1950 - After I got old enough to think and look at a map I have never been able to see why the powers that be in Big Spring and Howard County didn't push hard to promote our city as the distribution center of West Texas - To this day this still escapes me as I try to explain in the letter !

"I would love to see IS 27 come through Big Spring Texas because it could become a mecca for those companies who wish to develop a distribution point for their products. The reason I believe this is, if you place a compass point on Big Spring and start at 100 miles North at Lubbock, then swing it East to Abilene, then South to San Angelo and West to Midland/Odessa.

Next, you would then extend it out to 300 miles and starting again North at Amarillo, then East to Fort Worth/Dallas, South to San Antonio then West to El Paso, all of these give or take a few miles, you should come to realize how many Million Potential Customers there are waiting within these areas to buy your goods.

This has always been a Mystery to me, for when we only had Highways 80 and 87, why more companies didn't take advantage of Big Spring as their distribution point !

We also have a great Air Port and Rail Service so there is nothing missing . Thanks for your time and consideration."

On the matter of making it

Wedged in my mind's recesses are these eight simple words: "If you can make it there, go back."

They're easy enough to understand, but application is a whole 'nuther thing.

These words captioned a cartoon a while back. It was drawn to warn folks relocating to New York City.

Though probably not intended, the cartoon has a serious undertone that may apply to folks from anywhere--cities, towns or rural.

It suggests that grass probably isn't any greener on their side.

Do you remember when your grass was greenest?

From a personal perspective--the point of view with which I'm most familiar--such a "magical" time was around 1950.

School days then were generally celebratory. World War II's bloody but successful victory was still on the minds of Americans, and we barely-teen kids were pretty good at "making do" with what we had.

We were "making it." Give us a pleasant 15-minute bus ride home--and a lay-out of peanut butter on crackers upon arrival--and we were set.

For the next two hours, we lived in make-believe, thanks to adventures provided on radio. We were eager to share ongoing joys and dangers provided by the likes of Bobby Benson and the B-Bar-B Riders, Sky King, ter all, Mom had enjoyed her two-hour spate of "serials" prior to our arrival, so it was our turn to "commandeer" the only radio in our home....

In days since, I've wondered why long-ago radio commercials seem far more ingrained than ads today. (Others of a certain age will remember: "My name's Buster Brown. I live in a shoe. That's my dog Tige. He lives in there, too.")

And what about cereal-pushing Tom Mix? "Take a tip from Tom, go and tell your mom, Shredded Ralston can't be beat."

One that held on for years lauded Morton Salt. "When it rains, it pours," the ad proclaimed.

Not until college years would I understand that the reference was to two different "its."

The first one, of course, was to the elements, meaning while raining. The second "it," however, switched to the king of salts, which don't clot when "it" rains. It still pours!

Hallelujah!
I've noticed that current rules are greatly relaxed when two meanings are ever so close, but "not quite hardly."

For example, it seems to me that being further along than I expected refers to an unexact distance, and farther suggesting a distance that can be more easily measured. Anyways, a current ad says Pep Boys are "going further to help you go farther."

Okay, grammarians. Help me out.

(I expect some emails suggesting better ways to determine which word to use. I need the help, and you need the practice.)

Said grammarians are likewise urged to drop a line to TV anchors who seem to care not a whit about whether they use number or amount. Some of their errors are on national TV, for crying out loud.

Recently, a network "talking head" said, "It was not announced the amount of lives lost."

Such a grievous error should shiver timbers of folks even mildly determined to "get it right." (When one uses the word number, it seems to me that with a bit more intent or research, it might be possible to exact an actual figure, with the word amount is more general, such as extent of damage, rainfall, etc.)

And don't get me started on the errors concerning podium. Only a few folks, it seems, know

It is NOT for "standing behind," as so many say. "Lectern" is their usual intent.

I'm tossing words aside for a spell. This is my 900th column since 2003, an average of 50 pieces annually. Appreciation is extended readers, including the 100+ newspapers whose editors choose to "run" it, and the others "if grocery ads aren't too big."

I'll be back in September.

This week's reviews include large print mystery. As Yuletide settles upon Gwenafwy Abbey, in "The Hour of Death" (LP M WIL) By Jane Willan, the Welsh convent's peace is shattered when Tiffany Reese, president of the Village Art Society, is found dead on the floor of the parish hall. Sister Agatha, whose interests lie more with reading and writing mysteries than with making the abbey's world-renowned organic Gouda, begins her investigation. Tiffany's half-brother, Kendrick Geddings, emerges as the prime suspect as he and Tiffany had been locked in a vicious battle for control of the family estate. But if Sister Agatha thinks she has the case wrapped up, she'll have to think again.

Independent and tenacious journalist Vivian DeMarco is back in Walton, Georgia, for one reason, to do her job and get out, in "Deadly Deceit" (LP M WAL N) By Natalie Walters.

When her boss suddenly dies under suspicious circumstances, Vivian's only hope for finding the truth, and the next big story, is small-town law enforcement's lanky poster boy, Deputy Ryan Frost. But the deeper they dig, the more twisted the truth becomes, and Vivian finds herself fighting for not only answers but also her life. False leads, incriminating emails, and someone called The Watcher force Vivian to confront the secret of her past and decide: How much is she willing to risk for the sake of a headline.

On vacation in Italy, British sisters Elena and Margot Standish are moving on from personal losses of the Great War in "Death in Focus" (LP M PER A) By Anne Perry.

While photographing the Italian landscape, Elena meets a striking man named Ian. She spontaneously shares a train trip home with him, but shocking events lead Elena to Berlin. Elena's grandfather, who, unbeknownst to his family was once the head of MI6, knows Adolf Hitler and the Third Reich are on the rise and realizes Elena may be in dangerous predicament. Her grandfather's MI6 contacts may be the only people who can get her out alive if Elena can tell the difference between her allies and her enemies.

There's nothing like a hot cup of murder to warm up the holiday season in "Christmas Cocoa Murder" (LP M OCO C) By Carlene O'Connor, Maddie Day, and Alex Erickson. Siobhan hopes for a quiet Christmas but her wishes are dashed when the local Santa turns up dead in a carnival dunk tank of hot cocoa. Christmas Cocoa and a Corpse by Maddie Day details how businessman Jed Greenburg is found dead with a chocolate Labrador retriever whimpering over his body. Was it hot cocoa that killed Jed, or was it Cocoa the dog? Alex Erickson's Death by Hot Cocoa describes a Christmas-themed escape game that seems like the perfect pre-holiday treat for bookstore café owner Krissy Hancock. But then the host is found dead in a pool of hot cocoa.

Texas Health Care Association Issues statement on HHSC's new allowance of limited visitation in Nursing and Long-term Care facilities

Special to the Herald

AUSTIN, TEXAS - Late yesterday afternoon, the Texas Health and Human Services Commission (HHSC) announced new guidance on visitation in nursing and long-term care facilities. This marks an important new chapter in the COVID-19 pandemic, as visitors have not been allowed in these facilities since the initial restrictions began in mid-March.

"These families and residents are more than deserving of these new guidelines that allow for limited visitation," said Kevin Warren, President and CEO of Texas Health Care Association (THCA). "Many of us could not fathom the kind of prolonged separation from our own loved ones that they have endured, and I am glad that we have finally begun to tackle this in Texas like other states."

Conditions for limited visitation at nursing facilities require no confirmed COVID-19 cases in staff in the last fourteen days, no active positive cases in residents, and for facility staff to be tested for COVID-19 weekly.

"While we are encouraged by yesterday's announcement, families have already begun to ask about visiting, but many questions about the testing requirements and additional conditions remain unclear to begin scheduling those visits," continued Warren. "Testing has been an ongoing challenge. Whether its administration costs, access, or delays in receiving results, there have been myriad of challenges in implementing a predictable and reliable testing protocol for long-term care. We look forward to working with HHSC and state leaders on this component."

It must also be noted that while the federal government is providing some testing support, it has initially focused on facilities with confirmed positive cases of COVID-19. As these visitation guidelines are laid out, a facility, rightly, must have no active cases so is therefore not eligible for assistance with testing from the federal government.

"If we are finally acknowledging the need for safe visitation to begin, then it is essential that we have a commitment to a long-term solution for adequate and rapid testing in our facilities," concluded Warren.

To schedule an interview with Kevin Warren, please reach out to Elliott Griffin at the information listed above.

Sparks fill TSTC Welding Technology lab this summer

Special to the Herald

Sparks from welding torches were a daily occurrence this summer at Texas State Technical College's Breckenridge campus.

Students have been completing labs in preparation for entering the workforce when they receive their certificates. But the work does not stop once the torches are laid down.

For Ethan Hammond and Zane Fitch, a career path has been blazed. "TSTC has helped me with more than just learning to weld things. They have helped me write a resume and given me advice on how to approach job interviews," Fitch said. "I know what to expect during a job interview, thanks to the people at TSTC."

That knowledge was one of the reasons Hammond chose to attend TSTC. The Cisco native said having someone help in the job interview process was important.

"Because of TSTC, I have my resume built right now," he said. Fitch said he first found interest in welding while helping his brother-in-law on a job site. He said TSTC was the route he wanted to take because of the hands-on training.

"I decided that I wanted to go to school and get a certificate. I knew that would open up more job opportunities for me," he said. "The hands-on approach offered here is great for us. We are able to learn things and put our knowledge to use."

Hammond has already put some of his skills to use by welding barbecue pits. He knows that this career path will benefit his family in the long run.

"This is a career in which you can actually work for yourself," he said. "I have done that with some projects after class."

Instructor Stephen Hope said his goal is to see the students succeed.

"It has been exciting to see all the students come in and know little to nothing about welding. To be able to help them understand the fundamentals and see the students succeed is such an amazing goal," he said.

Hammond said the Breckenridge campus has the perfect learning environment for future welders.

"We have 30 (welding) bays here, and it runs efficiently," he said. "Our class is small, but the work we do pays off. I think people interested in a welding career should consider coming here."

Hammond was drawn to the Breckenridge campus because it offered the program in a small town like his hometown of Cisco.

"This is a nice campus for the community. I wanted to go to a smaller campus, and this was the one that caught my attention," Hammond said.

Hope said he appreciates the work the students put in and knows the ultimate goal is at the end of the program.

"Working for TSTC has been such a wonderful experience. The greatest part is being able to watch the students graduate and pursue their new careers," he said.

Registration for the fall semester is underway. For more information, go to tstc.edu.

Texas Tech women's coach fired one day after report of abuse

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech fired women's basketball coach Marlene Stollings on Thursday, a day after a scathing newspaper report alleging a culture of abuse in her program.

Athletic director Kirby Hocutt announced the firing in a one-sentence statement while adding that he planned to address the decision Friday.

Players made claims of abuse over the past two years in season-ending exit interviews that were obtained through an open records request by The Intercollegiate, an investigative media outlet for college sports. The details were published by USA Today.

Players dreaded a heart monitoring system they said was misused in punitive ways, had to endure demeaning and threatening comments and were subject to sexually suggestive behavior from a strength coach who has since resigned, according to the report.

Players said the coaching staff demanded that they maintain a heart rate of at least 90% of capacity during games and that they faced loss of playing time or more conditioning work if they didn't. A pediatric sports medicine director said maintaining a heart rate that high would be "very difficult" to do.

Over two years, 12 of 21 players left the program, including seven recruited under Stollings, according to the report. She defending her program in a statement to the newspaper.

Hocutt initially defended the coach as well, saying he was confident steps were being taken to improve communication in the program following a review of the program by a four-person committee.

After the report was published, Hocutt said he spent more than an hour meeting with players and more than two hours in talks with players and coaches and that those discussions would continue Thursday. The firing was announced late Thursday.

The pandemic-shortened season that ended in March was Stollings' second at Texas Tech. She had previously turned around the programs at Minnesota and VCU and has done the same with the Red Raiders, a once-proud program that has fallen on hard times. Texas Tech finished 18-11 in Stollings' second season after going 7-23 the year before she arrived.

Emma Merriweather, a center who transferred to Kansas, said she was mocked about her weight in front of men's basketball players and admonished over showing signs of depression. She was later diagnosed with depression.

Brazilian center Marcella LaMark said she was called "dangerous" by Stollings because the coach said her fitness lagged so far behind her teammates. LaMark transferred to Pittsburgh.

Several players said coaches and staff berated post players with remarks such as "fat pig" and "grossly out of shape" and "gross disproportional."

VOLLEYBALL

Volleyball is a game of momentum and Braswell believes those celebrations can assist in keeping that positive momentum on Big Spring's side.

"(Those celebrations) give us momentum," she said. "Whether its subconscious or not, it gets in the other team's head a little bit and that's how you win volleyball games."

Each match lasted 40 minutes and there were no official scores kept, but the Lady Steers put up solid performances against all three opponents on Friday afternoon. With more practice time together and time playing together against an opponent, the team will improve even more and should make some noise inside the district this season.

By the end of the day, it was obvious that every team that participated in the scrimmages was exhausted from the constant play. After hitting the gym for the first time on Monday for practice, the return to game speed was a tough, but successful, welcome back to sports day for the Lady Steers.

"I need them to keep their same energy, even when they're tired," Braswell said. "We just need to keep playing with the same intensity."

The Lady Steers will return to Steer Gym on Saturday to face-off against a new opponent in Lamesa and Seminole will return for the second straight day.

GriefShare

It would be very unusual to encounter someone who has not been affected by the loss of a loved one through death. It seems that the older we grow, the more grief comes to our daily lives. "It seems in many instances those touched by death during the Covid-19 pandemic have often suffered isolation and a lack of closure," states Vivian Gordon, TBC Program Coordinator for GriefShare & DivorceCare. GriefShare is currently offering an online Summer Support seminar specifically for these difficult times. For information and registration, please visit our website at www.tbcbigspring.com.

death of a family member or friend are invited to consider joining the GriefShare support group held at Trinity Baptist Church. This program features Christ-centered, biblical teaching that focuses on grief topics associated with the death of a loved one. The DVD seminar features nationally respected grief experts and real-life stories of people, followed by a small group discussion about what was seen on the DVD. GriefShare Ministry of TBC will start our 9th 13 week seminar on Thursday, August 30th. We have registered 66 group members since October 2017 and over 60% of those were not members of our Church.

Many grieving people find they are only beginning the work of healing when friends or family have returned to their daily life routines. Past participants have related how helpful the information and follow-up discussions were to them.

"In 2015 I suffered the loss of my Mother and my Husband within 9 days of each other. I considered myself strong and thought I could handle the losses and I knew they both had accepted Jesus as their Savior and were with Him in Heaven. My grief must have been apparent because a close, dear friend from Church invited me to the GriefShare seminar at Trinity Baptist Church. I had excuses not to go: the program had already started; I was doing okay and I wasn't comfortable having to talk about my circumstances. My friend assured me that everyone there was in the same boat, so to speak, and each session was a stand-alone segment with participants choosing to come to the entire seminar or any one session. So I went and realized that maybe I did need help and the important thing for me was no one was required to share. I went and continued attending the rest of that particular seminar and hardly spoke a word. When time came for the next GriefShare seminar, I attended all sessions and I personally began sharing my grief, and thus healing. I still miss and love my Mother and my Husband, and certain events and memories bring back thoughts of my loss, but thanks to GriefShare I am able to move forward as they both would have wanted me to and be a comfort and willing listener to others who have lost loved ones." A former GriefShare group member shared.

Judy Ayer, also a former GriefShare participant shared the following:

"Three years ago I lost my Husband Steve. My whole world was turned upside down the day he died. I physically felt like I was in a constant downward spiral and I couldn't find a place to land. At one point I was convinced I was having a total breakdown and with my doctor's help I was looking to put myself in a center for grief recovery. Not only did I sink into a deep depression, but it took about a year and a half for me to just get over the shock of Steve's death and start dealing with the reality of what had happened. You have to understand that grief is a journey, and even though we all have some things in common along that journey, we all grieve differently. Loosing a child is different than losing your spouse. Losing a sibling is different than losing a parent and so on. That's where the GriefShare program comes in. Going to GriefShare kept me from completely losing it all. To my surprise, I learned that what I was feeling and thinking was actually normal for someone grieving, that in itself was a huge relief. I learned how to handle the different situations that I would come upon. I learned that a lot of people want to comfort you but don't know how. I also found out I had a huge support group and a safe place to go and cry and bare my thoughts and feelings. I knew when I left our meetings that what I said wasn't going anywhere else and stayed within the group. We cried with each other; we laughed with each other; we prayed together and discovered what the Bible had to say to us in our position. Most importantly, we learned that God was still there for us and wasn't going anywhere. I found out it was okay to even be angry at Him sometimes. God was there to listen and to be a comfort but most importantly, He was there to wrap me in His love. That's what GriefShare will do for you. I went through the program two times and I have continued to go to special programs like "Surviving the Holidays" and "Loss of a Spouse". I strongly encourage anyone who has ever lost a loved one through death to attend the seminar. It will help you in ways that you would never think of. But most importantly, it will help you start finding yourself again, rebuilding your life and strengthen your relationship with God. It will help you through your journey."

Wildflower Ministries Foster Care

When you read that, what came to mind? Is it, "I've always wanted to foster, but never knew where to start or just never got around to it?" Is it, "I could never do that because I'd get too attached?" Is it, "do we even have Foster Children in this town?" Is it, "I once reported a family and I don't know what ever happened to those children; I never saw them again." Is it, "My heart breaks because my child is in Foster Care and I don't know if I'll have what it takes to get them back: what if they forgot me." Is it, "I remember what it was like to grow up in foster care." It's different for us all. For us, it is, if it weren't for foster care our ministry would've never been born and we would never have become parents of 7.

Foster Care is something that can stir up many thoughts and emotions if we will allow ourselves to face the realities behind why foster care exists. Many times, it's an out of sight out of mind subject or an "I can't think about that" subject. Unfortunately, if we don't see families with foster children many times the only time it's thought of is by people who come in contact with a family that needs help and their children need to be removed. And then they get removed. But where do they go once they've been removed? I mean, surely, they're taken care of, right. Surely someone has their home open to them, right?

Well, not necessarily. There are many challenges faced not only by those who work for the system but also those who are involved in the system. Whether it be the children, the biological parents, the foster parents, or the families who have chosen to take their family or friend's children in. There's a plethora of needs we see in this area of ministry.

This ministry was born out of a heart given us by the Lord informed by the experiences He gave us when we were suddenly thrust into the world of foster care. When our world went from 3 independent kiddos, 12 being the youngest, to 6 with 3 under the age of 5, you could say a few things changed and we began to learn alot. That happens when you're in the thick of something. That's where we learned of the desperate need for foster families. That's where we found out had we not said yes to those three babies, they would have been spread out all over Texas. Why? Not only for a lack of foster families, but also a lack of foster families willing to take in sibling groups of that size.

As we learned, God gave us a heart for this while He designed a ministry that not only would seek to help children by recruiting Christian families who

The Pet Connection's Pet Talk, Where People & Pets Connect

The Pet Patrol, uniting lost and found pets

By MELANIE GAMBRELL

Pet Care Specialist

Being involved with rescue and finding lost and founds goes hand in hand. Sadly the majority of the time when I've rescued a pet there has been no owner's looking for them. Every once in awhile, you get lucky and the pet that you just saved has owners desperately looking for their for their fur baby. Recently I started The PET PATROL, Uniting Lost & Found Pets on Facebook.

I know there are many of just like myself, that when you see a dog or cat out in the middle of the street or notice them in an area where you believe they are lost our hearts sink. We want to help but sometimes not sure if and when our help is needed. That's probably the most difficult decision to make, do you stop and catch this animal? Or do you drive on and pray that it lives in the are you saw it in?

When I come upon what might appear to be a lost or wondering dog, I first look at my surroundings. If I am in a residential area, chances are that I will not stop unless I see that the dog/cat is in danger. Danger being about to get hit in traffic or if the animal seems elderly and lost or in distress (starving or injured).

Unfortunately, we have pet parents that don't feel the same about their pets as what you and I do and will let them run the streets without a care in the world. We have folks that will defend their right to let their pets run free because they live in the country and that's just what country dog do! You'll then see the post that says, "Well, he's done this before, but he always comes home." So always look around the area the dog/cat are in, they may be one of the free-runners and belong in that neighborhood.

A thing to remember also especially if traveling through a town, please don't pick up strays if you are not going to contact that local animal shelter or make attempts to find the owners. I've known several situation's where dogs have been picked up with the guides of "rescuing" them, but then attempts were never made to find the owners and now the dog's are in a totally different city and sometimes different state! This makes it very hard and difficult if the own-truly lost. If you are able to take pictures, please post them as quickly as you can, this helps with locating missing pets.

Many times I'll be able to tell even before I pull over to the side of the road or pull of into the ditch if I'll be able to catch the animal or not. You want to remember that we are trying to save that animal and not cause it more stress or danger or possibly be the cause of it getting hit by a car. Do some re-careful as not to get bitten and cause myself serious health issues. I will keep heavy towels and blankets in my vehicle. If you come upon an injured animal, these will protect you and them from further injury by covering their head and body. These will make it easier to pick up an injured animal to get them in for medical treatment and protecting your vehicle from bodily fluids. I even have an animal stretcher that I have used with severe cases. I was called in on a case where a dog was found under a bridge, right off the railroads tracks. This dog had been there for several days to weeks with a broken back. The stretcher was the only safe way to get him up the embankment and to the vets. If I have time to put it on, I carry a bright pink reflective vest. Many times you'll find yourself weaving in and out of traffic trying to catch an animal and we don't want you getting hit or the animal. From time to time, I will carry collapsible pet kennels or have a kennel in the car for safely containing rescues. These are just some of the items you might want to invest in if you find yourself picking dogs and cats up around your town. Be sure that your slip leads are easily accessible.

My goal and future hope for The PET PATROL is to bring the community together to help locate, catch and reunite pet's with their owners. As a pet parent I've known the pain and suffering, the heartache and feeling of loss when you have a missing pet. The what if's, hoping that they are somewhere safe, that they aren't cold, hot, hungry or thirsty and that they know how much I miss and love them and want them back home. If you are out looking for one our lost pets, make a copy of the pet's photo to carry with you and to show people in the area. Have your flashers on while driving and be cautious of other vehicles, we don't want you hurt or injured. Have a number to the pet's owner with you, sometimes contacting them through Facebook is time consuming and messages aren't seen.

My hopes are to do an alert either by watch party or by posting that a lost animal has been spotted in a certain area. I know a lot of you work, but may have friends that are like minded animal lovers and would help us drive that are in search of finding the missing pet. When

I had my radio show, we did this a few times and it was a wonderful feeling to see people out driving, walking, and looking for the missing animal. Trust me, if you haven't lost a pet before I pray that you never feel the pain of not knowing. If you are interesting in helping The PET PATROL or posting lost/found pets please go to The PET PATROL page and remember to invite your friends and family.

This is SCOOBY, SCOOBY went missing July 4, 2020 from the area of West 2nd Street here in Big Spring. There is a reward for the safe return of SCOOBY, her family is desperate to bring her home safe. SCOOBY was wearing a blue collar, she is tan with a small white strip between her eyes and a larger white patch on top of her nose. She has some white down her neck and on her chest. PLEASE if you any information on the location of SCOOBY please contact her family, Chad at 432-517-0302, Tye @ 432-213-1776 or Kara @ 432-213-3413 or myself at The PET PATROL. search on body language, the way they hold their ears, tail, the look in their eyes. A dog's posture or body language will say it all! Is this dog barking, growling, how's it holding it's tail, high, low, off to the side? Did the dog just roll over and pee or is it standing tall and facing you, looking straight into your eyes? If the dog/cat runs, DO NOT CHASE AFTER THEM! If you're not confident in reading body language or may be fearful, animals sense that and this may be something you need to call in a professional for. Make that phone call to your local Animal Control or Animal Shelter, they are experienced in catching fearful pets. Look on you phone and check local listings for lost/founds, The PET PATROL, see if there is a phone number to contact an owner of the pet.

Sometimes just reporting the last known area of where the pet was seen is a huge help, especially if the dog/cat is a traveler (covering miles).

Be prepared! At all times I carry several different items in my vehicle on the chance that I might need them. I have several slip leads, these are leads that you'll see at the vet's office, it's very simple to use and quick and easy to apply. I have several bottles of water, I carry canned food and dry, both dog's and cat's. If I see the same dog/cat in an area, especially out in the country, chances are they have been dumped. I'll set up a feeding station along with water and hoping to gain their trust, to attempt to catch at a later date. I have a catch pole, but I will only use this in extreme cases. This is a long pole with an adjustable noose at the end, used in more aggressive cases. I have a large live trap that I can set up and this is a very useful tool in my line of work. I carry several different sets of gloves, these are made of Kevlar and will protect my arms and hands. As a cancer survivor I have to be extremely ers are actively looking for their pets. Now, you've just stolen their dog/cat...

We need to always keep in mind that when rescuing dogs and cats off the streets that these aren't your pets to keep, re-home or adopt out. ALWAYS CHECK THE ANIMAL FOR A MICROCHIP! If you are unable to keep that pet safe while looking for it's owners, then turn that animal over to a legitimate rescue or contact your local Animal Control and let them take possession of the said animal. Several years ago I did a live radio interview with a local attorney and asked him what should be done when finding a lost pet. His advise was to post the said pet in your local newspaper for 3 days. This is where all legal documents and notices are placed, this gives anyone in the community the opportunity to view the notice. By making every attempt, calling all the Veterinarian Offices, contacting you local shelter, listing the animal on lost/found sites, this shows that you have made every effort to locate the rightful owners. Some rescues won't even talk to you until, 1st you've done all the above and 2nd ten days have elapsed.

Note, that Animal Control Services are held to a different regulation and in most cases, they only have to keep the animal for 72 hours before placing the pet with a foster, rescue, or adoption.

When making that first initial attempt to catch a dog/cat off the pictures if possible of the animal and note every description of that animal that you can, color, size, collar and tag if visible, if you can determine male or female, are the animal is in. Every bit of information that you can gather will help later if the owner is looking for their pet. Once you open that car door and the animal bolts, it doesn't leave us much time to get a description if the animal is

The history of the Presbyterian Church in Big Spring

By CARRIE HARVELL

Herald Contributing Writer

On Nov. 14, 1891, two men registered at a Big Spring hotel. These men were strangers in town, travel worn and weary from a long ride in an open buggy. With permission from the Methodist congregation they held services in the Methodist church.

Dr. J.H. Zivley along with Judge William Kennedy organized the Presbyterian Church. This was the beginning of the Presbyterian Church in Big Spring, Texas, the nucleus from which it has grown.

Four years after its organization, on Aug. 26, 1894, the little congregation was called together at four o'clock in the afternoon to discuss the erection of a Presbyterian church. It was unanimously voted. The little white building stood at fifth and main. It was constructed and furnished for $1,370.00, and was founded by 12 people, five of them children. In those days the church was split along lines left over from the Civil War. The church moved to its present location at Runnels and was dedicated on March 16, 1930. Mr. and Mrs. Settles gave one half of the cost of $70,000

One of the most noticeable, eye-drawing features of this church is the window. The chapel boasts a glorious stained-glass window.

"Someone bought the window at a very good price from a church that had some kind of catastrophic event. They did a restoration on it and sold it to the people here. Some of the glass is at least from the 1880's. From comparisons to other stained-glass windows it's believed to depict the story of the ascension," Nancy Kroger explained.

The history housed in the Presbyterian Church is more than religious based, but community based. The vision, the investment and dedication is what has held the historical presence of the church and built up from deep roots. In addition to the window that draws a gaze, the music from the organ is another story in itself. As a memorial to their mother, the Robb brothers donated a pipe organ that had been in the Ritz Theater – another historical staple in Big Spring.

On Nov. 13, 2016, the Presbyterian church celebrated 125 years of spreading the Gospel. The Pastor at that time is quoted as saying:

"125 years of anything lasting that long is pretty amazing. The history of West Texas is not that long. We've been a part of this community for a long time. Serving with the message of the gospel

Texas A&M AgriLife maps out Texas' working lands

Shows state's agricultural diversity, Texas A&M AgriLife 'support network' impact

By PAUL SCHATTEBERG

The working lands of Texas provide numerous ecological, economic and intrinsic benefits to communities. (Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service photo)

A new set of visual representations by the Texas A&M Natural Resources Institute, NRI, shows the breadth and diversity of the state's working lands for agricultural production as well as the statewide support provided by Texas A&M AgriLife.

"The Texas A&M AgriLife Support Network is a descriptor of a collective effort that brings advancements to Texas agriculture and all Texans," said Jim Cathey, Ph.D., associate director of the NRI. "Through maps and supporting text, the network shows the diversity of the state's environmental conditions and agricultural systems, as well as the statewide support provided by Texas A&M AgriLife."

"The 13 Texas A&M AgriLife Research and Extension Centers located throughout the state, combined with our statewide network of county agents and specialists, create an incredibly strong and effective support system for farmers, ranchers and others involved in land management and responsible for our state's working lands," said Patrick Stover, Ph.D., vice chancellor of Texas A&M AgriLife, dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and director of Texas A&M AgriLife Research.

Representing environmental and agricultural diversity

Texas has a range of agricultural production systems and strategies, which vary by regional differences in climate and landscape," said Alison Lund, NRI program coordinator, San Antonio, who helped create the support network's visual concept.

"The state's working lands are used for crops, timber, wildlife management, orchards, livestock and more, and each of these agricultural systems benefits from the support provided by Texas A&M AgriLife."

She said the support network effort was the first time the NRI was able to visually demonstrate the entire mosaic of different industry types in counties throughout the state.

"You can now see the variety of agricultural industries statewide and that some areas have two or three of them, and that these industries complement one another as opposed to competing with one another."

Lund said it is often easy to be "disconnected" from the land, but the maps showing the support network will help people

9x9 grid for a Sudoku puzzle with some numbers filled in.

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

ANSWER: 9x9 grid showing the solution to the Sudoku puzzle.

Contract Bridge

A diabolical deception

North dealer. North-South vulnerable. NORTH: ♠K 7, ♥A J 5 4, ♦A 9 3, ♣Q 7 5 2. EAST: ♠Q J 8 2, ♥10 6, ♦K 10 5 4, ♣A K 9. Declarer won the spade lead with the ace and drew trump in two rounds. He then crossed to the king of spades and led the deuce of clubs toward his hand! This placed East squarely on the horns of a dilemma. If South had the singleton or doubleton jack of clubs, playing low would cost a trick — an important consideration at match-point scoring. After much soul-searching, East decided to go up with the king, and from that point on, he was a dead duck. In practice, East returned a diamond to declarer's queen, whereupon South played the ace and another diamond, putting East back on lead. East had to return a spade or a diamond — either one yielding a ruff-and-discard — or cash the ace of clubs. Whatever he chose to do, declarer could not lose more than two clubs and a diamond, and the contract was home. Note that East would have done no better by returning a club or a spade after he took the club king. Once he fell into South's trap, all roads led to 10 tricks for declarer. Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Emo Advice for Venus in Cancer

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Life is pretty simple when you think of it in simple terms, which you very much will do today. You will do what you need to do to attract what you most desire.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). The ones who are lying around and having a good ol' time are either doing it very right or very wrong, and you'll likely have a strong opinion about that today.

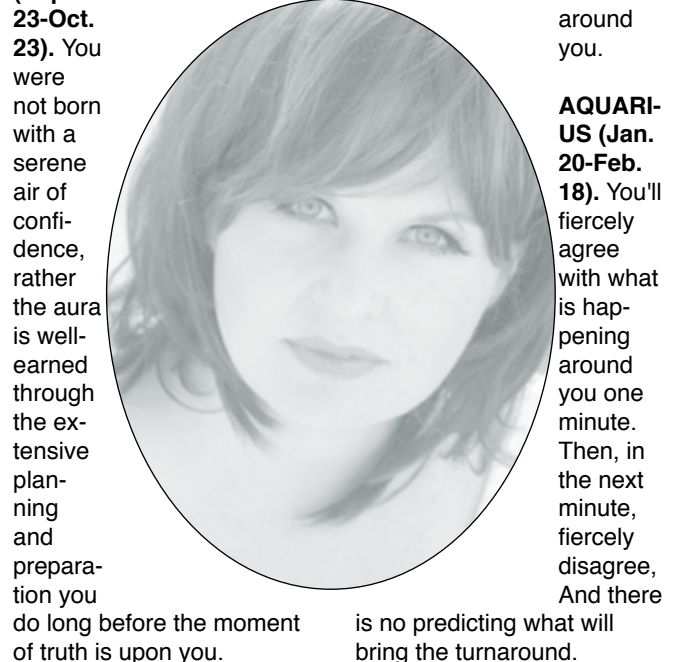

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The way people treat one another when they are in public versus in private will be two different things. The discrepancy is one to ponder or, if applicable, remedy.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll find yourself mentally weaving an alternate version of things. Not all fantasy is escape. Sometimes it's a creative way of understanding reality.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The guitarist can't play with silk gloves on. Friction is what vibrates those strings. Don't be afraid to dig into life with your nails. This day is waiting for you to give it a rhythm and sound.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Study past successes and failures for the keys to victory. To skip the research phase of a project is to waste time, as there is no use in repeating what didn't work before.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You were not born with a serene air of confidence, rather the aura is well-earned through the extensive planning and preparation you do long before the moment of truth is upon you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). When you are doing it your way, unselfconsciously and unapologetically yourself, you have no competition. No one can be you better than you can be you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). There will be a certain amount of peacocking involved in the discourse of the day, pretty feathers fanned out to impress, enlarging the perception of the bird without upsizing the bird itself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). People become associated with that of which they speak. You are drawn to intriguing facts, stories of warmth and kindness and descriptions of beauty. No wonder people feel elevated around you. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll fiercely agree with what is happening around you one minute. Then, in the next minute, fiercely disagree, And there is no predicting what will bring the turnaround. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You'll absorb some enthusiasm as you find yourself with bright, curious and passionate people. What you may not realize is how much you are rubbing off on them, too, in a very positive way. TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Aug. 9). Bounty will accrue in the way of friendships, love and exciting twists of your personal plot. A change that you've long dreamed about transforms a formerly ailing situation. Note that your personal luck sometimes rides against an unlucky backdrop of what's going on in the world. Find a tactful way to celebrate regardless. Aries and Aquarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 10, 3, 45 and 46. FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Home can mean so many things. It can refer to the shelter where you sleep, the town where your family resides or the wheelchair where you feel most comfortable. Home can be something else, too, less of a structure and more of a feeling of being rooted, regardless of where you may find yourself in the wide world. As the Venus transit gets underway in Cancer, we settle into key comforts in the domestic realm, and also in our psychic abode. Many will be inspired to make changes or invest in what seems necessary to create a strong and more lovely sense of home. Though some like the rush that comes with people popping up and yelling "surprise," a surprise birthday party is not, in and of itself, all that unpredictable a happening. Such is the case with many so-called surprises as Uranus rides direct. Recently, it has seemed that, with the right mindset, almost anything is potentially predictable. We choose to ignore prudence and then get surprised by what happens even when it's the most logical outcome. A reversal of Uranus comes at the end of the week, pausing the unsurprising surprises for some next-level thrills.

Annie's Mailbox

Alcohol's Grip on a Family

Dear Annie: I grew up with an alcoholic father. It made my childhood and teenage years incredibly difficult. It strained my relationship with my dad throughout my entire life. I have since been moved out of my parents' home, for about 10 years now, and the distance has made it easier to accept the fact that he will never change, despite multiple attempts. Now, my once very successful mother has fallen victim to the same alcoholism as my father. She lost her career that she had for 25 years and has thus lost her sense of purpose. She is now drinking alcohol to obliteration. Every. Single. Day. She has turned into my father -- something she swore would never happen to her. I have talked to her endlessly about the consequences. I have tried every approach to try and level with her -- from coming from a place of love and understanding to giving her tough love, and everything in between. I've encouraged hobbies and ideas to keep busy (although difficult during COVID times) and I even provided her with an online counselor. I feel like I have exhausted every avenue, and I understand that a person can only change if they want to change. This has become mentally and emotionally exhausting for me. I love my mom and know she is having a very difficult time. I am having trouble cutting ties entirely because I don't want to leave her during her time of desperate need; however, there is only so much more heartbreak I can handle. What else can I do to help my mom, and when is it appropriate to cut ties and take a step back for my own mental health? -- Exhausted from Alcoholism Dear Exhausted from Alcoholism: The time to take a step back and focus on your own mental health is now. Your love and commitment to your parents and their health and well-being is clear. It is also clear how much your parents' suffering and alcoholism is affecting you. So, yes, though it's important to support them, it is equally important to protect yourself from them. Your mother has succumbed to a very serious and addictive disease. Continue to tell her how much you love her and that you want her to get better. As much as you can, don't take on that burden of "healing" or "fixing" her. You have been through enough. And as you mentioned, a person will only change if they choose to change. Surround yourself with healthy friends and family as much as you can. The people we surround ourselves -- physically, virtually, mentally -- influence our thoughts and behaviors. It's time to celebrate you and your own ability to heal. Suggest AA and Al-Anon to your mom, as well as the help of a professional counselor who focuses on the issues of alcoholism and being married to an alcoholic. By stepping outside of her own problems and focusing on her husband, marriage and family, she might see her behavior with more clarity. Wishing you well. Your mother sounds very smart and successful. I'm hopeful that, in time and with help, she will pull out of this. And remember, there is still hope for your father.

RRC Commissioners assess more than $1 million in penalties

AUSTIN – The Railroad Commission of Texas assessed $1,157,423 in fines involving 389 enforcement dockets against operators and businesses at the Commissioners' Conference on August 4. The Commission has primary oversight and enforcement of the state's oil and gas industry and intrastate pipeline safety.

Twenty-four dockets involved $122,537 in penalties after operators failed to appear at Commission enforcement proceedings. Details on these Master Default Orders can be found on the RRC website here.

Operators were ordered to come into compliance with Commission rules and assessed $195,786 for oil and gas, LP-Gas or pipeline safety rule violations. Pipeline operators and excavators were assessed $839,100 for violations of the Commission's Pipeline Damage Prevention rules. Details on all these Master Agreed Orders can be found on the RRC website here.

In the absence of timely motions for rehearing, decisions are final as stated in these final orders.

About the Railroad Commission

Our mission is to serve Texas by our stewardship of natural resources and the environment, our concern for personal and community safety, and our support of enhanced development and economic vitality for the benefit of Texans.

The Commission has a long and proud history of service to both Texas and to the nation, including almost 100 years regulating the oil and gas industry. The Commission also has jurisdiction over alternative fuels safety, natural gas utilities, surface mining and intrastate pipelines.

Established in 1891, the Railroad Commission of Texas is the oldest regulatory agency in the state. To learn more, please visit <http://www.rrc.texas.gov>.

reconnect with the state's working lands and how the Texas A&M AgriLife centers statewide help meet the state's agricultural needs by interacting with Texans at local and regional levels.

The statewide patchwork of working lands Garrett Powers, geospatial specialist with NRI, said the maps describe the patchwork of working lands spread across the state. Each dot represents an area of 10 acres of a specific agricultural land use and is distinguished by color. The resulting map leaves a visual impression of the varying agricultural landscapes that define our state.

"The data that's represented by the map corresponds with acreage throughout the state that has an agricultural tax valuation," he explained. "Each dot represents 10 acres of land valued under that agricultural valuation appraisal."

He noted the maps also show how those agricultural appraisals change over space based on regional specialties. The maps also show more regional aspects of agriculture-related production in Texas. This map shows how the agricultural production of timber is prominent in East Texas. (Texas A&M Natural Resources Institute graphic)

"For example, timber is more prominent in East Texas, and crop production is more prevalent in the northern, central, southeastern and far southern parts of Texas," he said. "Then you'll find wildlife management to be more prominent in pockets around the Texas/Mexico border. These examples show how working lands are generating money and how the agricultural industry focus changes over the space of Texas."

Texas A&M AgriLife center statewide support "At the Texas A&M Natural Resources Institute, also part of Texas A&M AgriLife, we help tell the story of our state's privately owned farms, ranches and forests, otherwise known as working lands, which provide numerous ecological, economic and intrinsic benefits to our communities and beyond," Cathey said.

He said the Texas A&M AgriLife centers have become part of the fabric of their communities by helping solve agricultural problems through experimentation and testing, then sharing that knowledge by means of educational outreach.

"Each center tailors its studies and outreach programs to provide relevant, science-based and objective tools and solutions for their local landowners," Cathey said.

The Texas A&M AgriLife support network provides a virtual tour of the agricultural areas of the state, covering each region's primary agricultural production strategy based on its unique landscapes and its corresponding Texas A&M AgriLife center. It highlights specific regions of the state as well as the specialty work done at each center.

The centers and their areas of agricultural emphasis are: San Angelo: This center serves the West and Central regions of Texas by researching methods to improve sheep and goat production as well as fire ecology and rangeland restoration. The San Angelo center also works to ensure sustainability in livestock operations and compatibility with wildlife and recreation businesses.

Amarillo — The Amarillo center addresses issues relevant to the Texas Panhandle as well as neighboring states. Its primary focus is on cattle feeding operations and wheat production. The center also researches methods to extend the supply of water provided by the Ogallala Aquifer for crop irrigation.

Lubbock — The Lubbock center is situated in a region of heavy agriculture in the semi-arid northwest region of Texas. Staple crops like cotton, corn and sorghum are researched to improve production and pest resistance.

The efforts of the Lubbock center, along with other state and federal organizations, has reduced the use of insecticides in cotton production by 70%.

Dallas — Uniquely located in one of the state's largest metroplexes, initiatives of the Dallas center work to advance three areas: urban agriculture and forestry, water and land resources, and healthy human living.

in Reformed tradition. We are here to continue to enforce the understanding that the Gospel is free to all men, women, children, it is not an exclusive thing."

By the 1960's the church needed more room. In 1963 they built the southern section of the church, that is were they are today.

In the late 70's there was another Presbyterian church in town - St. Paul Presbyterian Church - located across from the local community college, Howard College. The two churches merged and relocated their sanctuary to the present day location.

The Presbyterian Church, from its inception, has been built upon a community of giving. Through openness of a community and numerous gifting moments along the way, the blessings are able to flow back out. The church family has a focus of giving back to the community in which they live. One of their greatest stories lies within one of their former members, the late Marj Carpenter, who not only served the church locally, but traveled to more than 100 countries around the world leaving an impact wherever she went.

Then again, that is a story for another time and a history all its own.

would give them a Christ centered loving home to live in, but also by seeking to help their parents be successful in their journey.

We learned that consistently, roughly 90% of children removed from Howard County were transferred outside of our county due to a lack of foster families and no family or friends to care for them locally. We heard many stories like, I tried to go to meeting once and no one was there. Or we talked to someone and they never called us back. While these kinds of things can happen it is important that these families have encouragement to try again and resources to other agencies they can try that they may know they have options and they CAN find one that fits.

We also learned there was a lack of local support for foster families. We knew only a handful of foster families including us and there were no resources here for us. We found there was a need es, having babysitters certified or organizing fellowship and training hours for foster families. We really couldn't ask for more out of them and the network of people they've connected us to!"

We praise the Lord for the many families He has called to foster and/or adopt and the many He's called to serve in so many other ways since Wildflower Ministries' inception in 2017. We are blessed to serve our community in this way and look forward to some plans we have for later this year. We still have many areas of ministry we hope to fill so if you feel your church would be interested in getting involved in Foster Ministry please feel free to reach out and we'd be glad to share info on how you and/or your church can get involved!

We are thankful for every door the Lord has allowed us to walk through and every person He's allowed us to cross paths with! We are blessed with a supportive family, church family, pastor, and foster community and look forward to the future the Lord holds in His hands.

RU Recovery is a Faith-based, Christ-centered, addiction and recovery program. It is discipleship, helping those who are seeking relief and a closer walk with God find a place of accountability and direction. RU started in 1996 in a church much like ours in Rockford, Illinois, which saw the need to help people in their struggles with addictive behaviors. The TBC RU Recovery Program has been meeting every week since 2012. We meet every Friday night from 7 to 9pm. We have a kids' program that runs at the same time to make it easier for parents to attend, and we also provide transportation as well. To date, there have been over 900 people come through our doors. Many have found the help they are needing and have seen their families restored, reputations rebuilt, and ultimately their relationship with God himself established. Our theme verse comes from John 8:31-32. "If ye continue in my word then are ye my disciples indeed, and you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

Freedom is found when we understand the truth about our relationship with God, His thoughts on our past behavior, our present state and our future with Him.

Lindsay has been coming to RU for about 6 years. She came straight out of prison to live with a cousin. She only had a few clothes saved for her and some hygiene products. She was only able to see her young daughter a couple of times a week, but she saw God's hand leading her step by step. Following His plan for her life, she is now a group leader in RU, helped initiate our on-going Ladies Jail ministry, and is half-way through a Bach-

Dealing with a divorce can be a rough road, but it's not one that has to be dealt with alone. Navigating the next chapter, after divorce, can be a thriving life, but does need time for healing in order to get there. DivorceCare is a support group for those in Big Spring wanting to find support through this chapter.

for a local place to feel safe to share our struggles and encourage one another, but there was none.

We found biological parents were facing uphill battles and need encouragement, too. We found that sometimes people just need a little help overcoming their fears and then end up growing more than they ever could've imagined once they finally jumped in. We learned how expensive it is to suddenly have a child or or three all at once who has nothing and YOU need to get them everything they need like yesterday.

Thus Wildflower Ministries was born, and while this year has of presented it's challenges, and has caused us not to be able to do all we were used to doing this is a snap shot of Wildflower Ministries:

Foster Closet Ministry- Open to bio parents, foster parents, adoptive parents, Fictive Kin Families. Speaking in churches for how they can be involved in raising awareness, capacity, and support for foster families; Hosting Monthly Informational Meeting; Hosting Foster/Fictive Kin family Support group; Networking-Connecting you with the people you need to get to where you need to be to succeed

Participating monthly meetings with several departments in CPS, foster and/or adoptive agencies willing to license families in our area, and CASA to work together to raise support and awareness in our community

Here are some things a couple of local foster families have said of WFM:

"WFM introduced us to the foster care ministry. They showed us the steps to take to become a foster family and they answered every question with had with pure honesty. When we received our first 3 foster kids, they were the first ones at our doorstep bringing diapers, clothes, baby furniture and just anything we needed. They checked on us often and continued to bring clothing as our kids grew. Our experience was just as great with our next set of foster babies and they continue to help us more than we could ever thank them for. They have laughed with us, cried with us and prayed for us on many occasions. They are always a soft place to land when the process just seems too much. They encourage us when others just don't understand what we are going through and they share their own struggles with their own foster experiences. They remind us of the ministry we are doing for the Lord and keep us focused. They have been our strength during this journey."

"Our Journey with Wildflower Ministries started several years ago with an informational meeting at our church. From there, God spent 2 years really working in our lives and hearts preparing us to become foster parents. Once we were licensed, Wildflower Ministries really became invaluable to us. Foster kids typically come with the clothes on their backs and not much else. Probably the biggest and most frequented blessing we've encountered from the ministry is the Foster Closet. Donations of all kinds are there and free for the taking. If they don't have what you need, they'll try to find it! This is such a HUGE help. It's not just donations either! Wildflower ministries really digs into the hearts of foster families and does what they can to provide whatever they can to make this life a little easier, whether that be coordinating re-certification class-

DivorceCare

There is little good news when it comes to divorce statistics. By some estimates the rate of divorce in first marriages is from 41% to 50%; the rate after second marriage is from 60% to 67% and for third marriage from 73% to 74%.

"Most people will say that separation and divorce are the most painful and stressful experiences they have ever had" said Brad Daniels, Associate Pastor of Trinity Baptist. If you are facing this, you know it's a confusing time when you feel isolated and have lots of questions about issues you've never encountered before. No matter what the circumstances, divorce is a painful process for most people and healing from divorce is very difficult. At DivorceCare groups, people in separation and divorce find tools, teaching and support to help them deal with their pain and give
