A Moment in Time The Haunted Cash Register

Heritage Museum

Last September, I went on a ghost hunt in the location of Big Spring's first cemetery. As I was walking in the weedy lot, I looked over to see a "ghostly" mystery, or at least I thought I had. Lying on a muddy street on north Scurry, between the former Front/ First Street and 2nd was a large square object. Curious, I turned it over to find it was an old cash register. A check was lying along the ground partially underneath the cash register and dated 1978. It had never been deposited and was in pristine condition. A cash register found on the site of the former cemetery by the tracks. It had to be something phenomenal or maybe even paranormal.

I tried to lift the cash register, but it seemed to weigh a ton. However, I was shocked at how the cash register was in such good condition considering it had rained the night before. In fact, I almost got stuck on that same road. I went home and could not get the old cash register out of my mind. If I left it there, no one would ever know what happened to it. If I picked it up, would I be arrested for theft? Since it was technically on the road, I thought I would be in the clear. At 11:00 pm, I convinced my grandson and his friend, to go with me to get it. They loaded it into my pickup and quickly took apart the drawer thinking there could possibly be thousands perhaps millions of dollars inside! Disappointed, they found nothing, but underneath the drawer was a tag that read "The National Cash Register Company" Made for Ben McCullough- 1945. I kept thinking the cash register had been dumped there, in the weeds, along the road a long time ago and the very thought that it was on hollowed grounds would have kept the cash register in this great condition. Amazingly, this cash register and check had been preserved for 41 years

Once I arrived home, I immediately started to research Ben McCullough. He owned the old Wes-Tex wrecking in the 1940s. So, what if someone robbed the wrecking yard in 1978,

El Paso sees largest number in hospitalizations due to COVID-19

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The El Paso area has reported its highest number of hospitalizations due to the coronavirus since the pandemic began, officials said Sunday.

A record high 449 hospitalizations were reported for Saturday, with 129 of those patients in intensive care, according to El Paso health officials.

In the El Paso area, only seven ICU beds are available, according to the Texas Department of Health and Human Services.

Hospitalizations have been steadily increasing in the El Paso area since early September.

The increase in hospitalizations and cases prompted El Paso officials last week to implement tighter restrictions to combat the spread of the coronavirus.

El Paso Mayor Dee Margo had announced that visitors to facilities that care for the elderly will not be allowed, and businesses not considered essential must cut back to 50% of their capacity from 75%. Restaurants are limited to takeout and drive-thru service after 9 p.m., home gatherings are temporarily banned and bars, which had not been allowed to reopen, will remain closed.

The number of new daily COVID-19 cases recorded in El Paso soared Thursday to a record-breaking 838. That number dipped to 684 on Saturday.

The increase in cases in the El Paso area has prompted Republican Gov. Greg Abbott to send doctors, nurses, respiratory therapists and personal protective equipment to support hospitals there.

Abbott has also deployed medical personnel and supplies to the Texas Panhandle as the coronavirus has again surged in that part of the state. Hospitalizations are increasing in Amarillo and Lubbock, mirroring overall numbers across the state.

Texas health officials reported 3,048 new confirmed cases and 30 new deaths on Sunday. The newly reported cases raised the state's total to 823,779 since tracking and tracing of the pandemic began in March, according to the Texas Department of State Health Services.

An estimated 82,347 of those cases were active with 4,226 requiring hospitalization.

The true number of cases in Texas is likely higher because many people haven't been tested, and studies suggest people can be infected and not feel sick.

Since Oct. 1, the number of people hospitalized because of COVID-19 has risen 34% in Texas after the state relaxed restrictions in mid-September, citing a decrease in hospitalizations.

Former Democratic power broker James A. Johnson dies at 76

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — James A. Johnson, a former Democratic campaign operative who was CEO of housing lender Fannie Mae in the 1990s and served as chairman of Walter Mondale's presidential bid, died Sunday at his home in Washington. He was 76.

Johnson's son, Alfred, confirmed that his father had died, telling The Washington Post and Wall Street Journal that the cause was complications from a neurological condition.

A native of Benson, Minnesota, and the son of a prominent state lawmaker, Johnson had a political, cultural and business resume that prompted Harold M. Ickes, President Bill Clinton's deputy chief of staff, to dub him "the chairman of the universe." Johnson chaired the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the Brookings Institution think tank and Fannie Mae all at the same time.

Besides running Mondale's failed run for the White House against Ronald Reagan in 1984, Johnson was a key player in the presidential campaigns of Eugene McCarthy, Edmund Muskie and George McGovern.

He turned his political savvy into business success. David O. Maxwell, former head of Fannie Mae, hired Johnson as vice chairman in 1990, after Johnson had helped the company hold off privatization efforts by the Reagan administration. Johnson was promoted to chairman and CEO the next year.

Johnson immediately set his sights on maintaining Fannie Mae's lucrative government privileges and ensuring that new regulations were not overly burdensome. Johnson and his lobbyists helped fashion a 1992 law signed by President George H.W. Bush that aimed to reduce the chance of an expensive taxpayer bailout if Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac had bad loans on their books.

It also opened up a new era of home ownership for families who were previously unable to get mortgage loans.

After retiring from Fannie Mae at the end of 1998, Johnson served on the boards of several companies, including UnitedHealth Group, KB Home and Target, and was vice chairman of the Washington private-equity firm Perseus. He had chaired the advisory council of the Stanford Center on Longevity since 2011.

Federal officials making changes to some oil-lease terms

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal oil lease sale in November will be the first in a decade to offer 10-year leases at some depths.

Since 2010, leases in depths of 800 to 1600 meters (about a half-mile to nearly a mile) have run for seven years, with a three-year extension available for companies that have started a well on their lease.

"After a careful analysis of the past 10 years' data, ... BOEM is reverting to offering the 10-year primary term in these specific water depths," the Bureau of Offshore Energy Management said in a news release Thursday. Leases in deeper waters remain at 10 years. In shallower waters, the leases are for five years, with a three-year extension for companies that start a well within those first five years.

The agency is offering about 78 million acres (31.6 million hectares) in water from nine feet to more than 11,115 feet (three meters to 3,400 meters).

Like all sales since August 2016, the sale on Nov. 18 will be livestreamed, Bids will be read publicly.

COVID-19 related deaths in our community. County and City officials extend our deepest condolences to their family members. We ask that you keep these families in your thoughts and prayers during this difficult time.

Big Spring and Howard County's COVID-19 statistics continue to improve; however, County and City officials still urge community members to take every precaution to protect yourself and your family members. Please continue to practice social distancing, stay home when possible, wash your hands frequently, and wear a mask while in public areas. These are all things you can do to help prevent yourself and your loved ones from becoming ill from any respiratory illness including COVID-19.

took out all the cash and dumped the register in the old cemetery where it remained protected and untouched by ghostly spirits. This could really be something big! But, as I began to think about it, the mystery fell in place. Wes-Tex Wrecking had recently closed their doors. I am sure they were cleaning out warehouses and storage facilities. Someone probably took it to the dump and another nosey person like me, found it and was going to take it home to pry it open with hopes and dreams of a lot of cash stuck inside. Once they discovered it was empty, they dumped it on the deserted road by the train tracks. The check must have been wedged up under the drawer and fell out when the cash register dropped on the ground.

Well shoot, the other story was so much more interesting. Now I am stuck with this heavy old cash register. Maybe, it will start ringing up sales at night and I will find a drawer full of cash. A girl can dream.

Lady Steers fall to Snyder in three sets

By SHAWN MORAN

Herald Sports Writer

The Big Spring Lady Steers (12-12, 4-4) dropped their district matchup to the Snyder Lady Tigers over the weekend in three straight sets.

"We played hard but this game was humbling," Braswell said. "Now we know that we still have to work and just because we've been doing great and playing hard doesn't mean we can begin to take any days off. This loss showed us that we're still working toward something."

The Lady Steers are currently sitting in third place in District 3-4A and have two remaining matches at home against Levelland and Sweetwater. Big Spring lost their first meetings against both of those teams in four sets but will be looking to redeem themselves the second time around.

In fact, if Sweetwater were to lose their final two games and Big Spring wins theirs, the Lady Steers would have the inside track at finishing in second place behind the strong Snyder Lady Tigers squad.

"We still have a chance and I believe in this group of girls. We've had some adversity thrown our way but they always seem to bounce back and we'll just need to do that next week," Braswell said following Saturday's game.

Big Spring now has just two regular season games left and their squad will be looking to finish strong and move into the postseason with a ton of momentum.

UP NEXT: The Levelland Lady Lobos will come to town on Tuesday evening to challenge the Big Spring Lady Steers for a second time. The Lady Lobos won the first meeting in four sets.

enough for a second-place team finish behind Andrews.

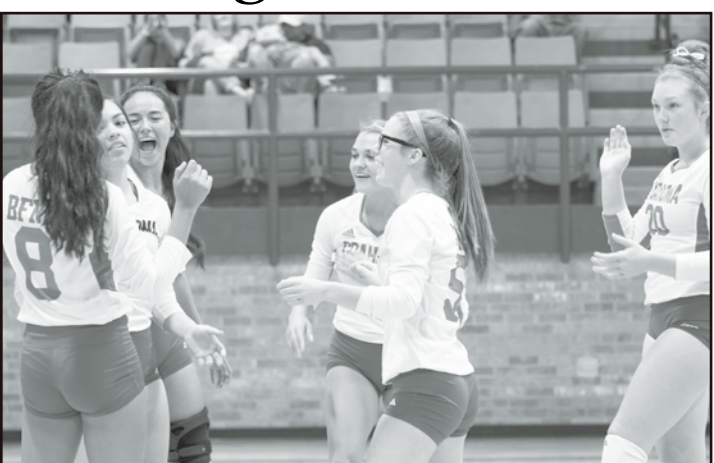

On the women's side, the Lady Steers had a strong collective performance running the 2-Mile Race and finished in fifth-place as a team.

Junior runner Elisabeth Jones was the top finisher for the Lady Steers (6th, 13:10.50), with freshman Erin Mendoza (9th, 13:19.10) finishing close behind for two Top 10 finishers. Sophomore Felicity Yanez (35th, 15:13.40), freshman Alexa Mehan (41st, 15:35.00), freshman Analisa De Los Santos (16:06.30), and sophomore Esperanza De Los Santos (46th, 16:28.60) were the other Lady Steer runners.

Big Spring will race next at District on Oct. 28 at Mae Simmons Park in Lubbock.

Bulldogettes victorious over Compass Academy in three sets

The Bulldogettes celebrate after scoring, during the match against Compass Academy.

Special to the Herald

COAHOMA — Two big digs by sophomore Christian Everett helped to disrupt an Odessa Compass Academy comeback which the Bulldogettes took full advantage of to earn a huge district win on Saturday.

"We've been talking about how one play can change the momentum of the game and change the outcome of the game," said CHS Head Volleyball Coach Jamie Bonner. "We have been talking about how we have to do all the little things. I think they really took that to heart because they understand doing the little things right makes the big plays happen for us. Those two plays by Christian were huge, and I think it gave us the mentality to finish."

The outcome of Saturday's game was a reversal of when the two teams met during the first round of district. Compass left the victor after winning the tie-breaking fifth set, 15-17. This time, Coahoma defeated the Lady Cougars in three sets: 25-15, 25-15, 25-21.

Heading into that third set, the Bulldogettes rode the momentum to an early seven-point lead over the Lady Cougars. However, Compass Academy started to rally and got within one point of a tie.

"At the beginning of the set we were really on top of things then we started losing our momentum," said Bulldogettes outside hitter Julia Cox, who had 11 kills for the day. "At the time out, we decided we needed to step back up and pull it all together and hopefully get a win."

Ashley Romero, middle blocker for the Bulldogettes, added communication within the team was key to the win.

"We worked as a family and worked hard," she said.

Everett's timely digs not only prevented certain kills but gave a shot of energy throughout the team.

"When Christian or anybody on our back row is getting digs, it pumps us up," Cox said. "All respect to other teams, they can really hit the ball, but I am glad we have back row players who can certainly pick it up, so it gets all of us ready to get a set and get a hit and get a kill."

With the win, Coahoma improves 3-3 in district and 12-4 for the season, but will face two more challenging games this week with Sonora on Tuesday and Crane on Saturday.

"We worked hard this past week to prepare for today's team," Bonner said. "We have to have the same mentality going into the next two games. We know they are going to be tough games, but I think they proved to themselves that they can play with anyone in our district."

Livesay Takes Lead On Fog-Shortened Day At Bassmaster Elite On Chickamauga

Special to the Herald

DAYTON, Tenn. — The tournament's shortest fishing day yielded Lee Livesay's biggest bag, which allowed the angler from Longview, Texas, to take the Day 3 lead of the Guaranteed Rate Bassmaster Elite at Chickamauga Lake with a three-day total of 43 pounds.

After a 2 1/2-hour fog delay, Livesay backed up his first two weights of 13-0 and 13-3 with a Day 3 limit of 16-13 and overtook Day 2 leader Stetson Blylock by a margin of 1-15.

He did so by fishing a frog around matted vegetation — and was very specific in the type of vegetation he sought.

"I'm doing what I like to do. I like to pick up a big rod and a frog and hunt them," Livesay said. "I'm not just fishing, I'm hunting individual fish. I know which mats they're under; it's just whether they eat it or not."

Livesay said he's targeting mats in two main scenarios. The first are located off small main-river bars. The key is what he calls supershallow water.

"Everybody's fishing the deep mats, but you can't catch them there," Livesay said. "You might get a hit every now and then, but it's random. I fish around the shallowest mats with a little rock under them and two of them have current under them."

Livesay's other mat scenario is on the back side of an island bar with a small depression in a flat. The area has scattered rock and tiny cheese mats (topped-out grass coated with a bubbly yellowish algae) within a larger mat.

"It's 100 percent confidence, knowing where the fish are and not leaving," he said. "Also, I'm being quiet; I'm push poling into some areas, keeping my trolling motor up and sitting there for (long periods).

"I'm casting as long as I can throw it. I caught a couple close today, but my best bites are coming way out there. Also, I'm trying to throw upriver and bring it down on my current-related spots."

Livesay caught all of his fish on a Scum Frog Launch Frog. He baited between black and white baits and made key modifications to each.

"I'm adding two 1/8-ounce tungsten weights and trimming the legs down really short; I don't want them to have anything to miss," Livesay said. "If you put this frog in the water, it sinks like a rock, but it makes a trail in that mat."

Livesay's starting spot was close to takeoff, so he was fishing while many of his competitors were still running. His first fish was a 4-pounder, followed by solid keepers that went 2-12, 2-5, 2-4 and 2-0.

He has great confidence going into Championship Monday.

"This is the first time I've felt it," he said. "I've been third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, but this is the first time I've felt like I had a shot. I've never had the right fish left and the confidence level."

"The good thing is I only had to hit my main spot one time. I missed one other big one in there and never went back."

Livesay said he'll follow the same general game plan, but he'll have a Zara Spook on his deck in case he sees schooling bass like the ones that surprised him Sunday.

"On my first spot where I caught that 4 (pounder), some big ones came up schooling out in the open behind me," he said. "Tomorrow, I'm going to have that frog on my left side and I'm going to have that spook on my right side."

"I may also have a 3/8-ounce football jig for a NetBait Paca Craw for the bluffs."

Annie's Mailbox

Lost Intimacy

Dear Annie: My wife and I have been married coming on 19 years. We have two kids. Since we had children, she never seems to want to be intimate with me -- so much so that she went to her general doctor for some help. That was three years ago. She finally figured things out and determined that it was stress-related. I take care of the kids during COVID-19 and work full time. Not sure I can stay in this marriage; in fact, I am close to done. I am very lonely. Any advice? -- Sexless in Seattle

Dear Sexless: You have two children to think about. Don't give up before you have tried marriage counseling. Making a life-altering decision is never a good idea during a global pandemic. Everyone's stress levels are way up. Instead, use this as an opportunity to find a good marriage therapist and work on your marriage.

Dear Annie: My boyfriend and I have been together for almost a year, and we're expecting a baby. But ever since we've known that I was expecting, it's like our whole relationship turned upside down. He thinks that I'm cheating on him behind his back with his cousin, which I'm not. Every month until today, we would always have arguments over the same conversation, and I really cannot handle it anymore. I can only take so much. I just want our relationship to go back to how it was before, when we were happy. -- Distraught

Dear Distraught: You are wise to write in now, because my guess is that, if left unaddressed, his jealousy will only worsen once the baby arrives. Try to show him more affection and reassure him that you love him. Perhaps the pregnancy has triggered some old hurt and insecurities from his past, leaving him to feel vulnerable and act out. Be understanding, and try to talk to him. It sounds like he might be a little obsessed or stuck on the idea of you with his cousin. If the talking doesn't seem to go anywhere and he is almost harassing you, it is time to seek professional help from a therapist.

Dear Annie: I have two beautiful children, a daughter and a son. I raised my son, while my daughter's father raised her. My son does everything for me, and he is married and has a 4-year-old boy. My daughter is a pharmacist, just divorced, and has no children. She never comes to see me -- no birthday gifts or Christmas presents. I'm 60 and in not-so-good health. I feel her dad probably talked about me over the years. I left when she was 9. But I still had my visitation rights. Do you think I'm a bad mom? -- Bad Mom

Dear Bad Mom: I am not here to judge whether you are a bad mom or not. It sounds like you probably made some not-so-great decisions when your children were young. You are 60 now, and a lot of time has passed. You can't go back in time, but instead of blaming your daughter's father for your daughter's behavior toward you, take responsibility and repair it. Admit your mistakes, and just tell her how much you love her and that you want a relationship with her. But don't expect her to take care of you. Remember, you are the mother.

The bidding:
West North East South

4♥ 4♠ 5♥ 5♠
Pass Pass Dble

The United States won the 2009 world team championship, defeating its archrival, Italy, by 36 IMPs in the 128-board final. The showdown between the two bridge giants, whose rivalry goes back more than half a century to the days of the legendary Italian Blue Team, was still in doubt with five deals to play, but the U.S. closed strongly to capture the Bermuda Bowl.

The victorious American squad was comprised of Nick Nickell, Bob Hamman, Jeff Meckstroth, Eric Rodwell, Zia Mahmood and Ralph Katz. Italy was represented by Lorenzo Lauria, Alfredo Versace, Fulvio Fantoni, Claudio Nunes, Giorgio Duboin and Antonio Sementa.

Today's deal from the final produced a huge gain for the U.S. When Rodwell and Meckstroth held the North-South cards, the bidding went as shown. East's three diamonds indicated a heart fit, and the bidding followed natural lines thereafter. One can hardly blame Lauria, East, for doubling five spades holding two aces, but Meckstroth lost only the diamond ace for plus 1,050.

At the second table, with Hamman and Zia East-West, the auction took a decidedly different turn:

West North East South
1♥ 2♣ 3♠ 3♠
4♥ Pass Pass Dble
Pass 4♠ 5♥ Dble

North led the club queen, ruffed by South, who then made a subtle slip by cashing a top spade before leading a diamond. Zia rose with the ace, ruffed a spade in dummy and then, with characteristic panache, announced that he would run his trumps and that if North had the K-Q of diamonds, the contract would make on a squeeze! This was indeed the case, as North could not keep both clubs and diamonds guarded when the last trump was cashed, so the U.S. gained another 650 points.

Note that if South had not cashed a spade before leading to a diamond, there would have been no squeeze.

Tomorrow: A dazzling accomplishment.

Mars Foretells Familiar Clashes

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Nothing brings out your best like a situation that demands it. This is why you don't mind problems. They are a chance to show up and work out parts of you that wouldn't otherwise be known.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Resist the hurry to the end. As soon as you cross the finish line, you'll be back at the beginning of uncharted territory. Savor these moments in this part of the cycle. You'll look back on them fondly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You'll see the challenge and it won't look fun, but fun is not the point. This is your chance to be better. It's not about what you have to do; it's about what you get to do.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). When you can help someone get past a hurdle, make an improvement, or think of a problem differently, this is no small win. Some people go to school for years to learn how to do this and still come up short. Take the victory.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You are too far inside of the problem to see it from a useful perspective. You might even be too far inside to see it as a problem. This is why intelligent friends with insight are an invaluable source. Tap it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22).

You've been known to handle yourself very well in a crisis. It's because of this that you are not thrown by the small stuff that the people around you are griping about. You'll float on over it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). It's as though your words are magic. Something you say will come true. Something you write will materialize. If you really want to get powerfully intentional, write it and then say it often.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). There's something you wanted to do. Now you're not entirely sure you can handle the logistics. Get it all down on paper. If the puzzle still isn't coming together, enlist the help of an earth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You respond to the moment in a way that others would not. Of course! You're an original! If it doesn't work out, they'll call you impulsive. And if it does, they'll call you spontaneous, or maybe even genius.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). It's important to keep the momentum and so you march on, whether or not there's anything to march toward. The point is the movement -- one foot in front of the other.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You like to play out a game until the conclusion. Hopefully, it's your victory, but if it's not headed that way, then you'll still abide by the rules of good sportsmanship and stay in it until the very last play.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It's not like you to do an about-face in the middle of a journey. Nonetheless, when you know you're going the wrong way, sometimes the only turn to make is a U-turn.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 19). Staying in the bubble is too safe for the likes of you this year. You'll pop it and venture out. Because you dare to meet different people and try new approaches and be the foreigner in unknown environments, you'll grow to trust yourself. You're admired and seen for your enormous capabilities. Libra and Sagittarius adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 6, 30, 14, 38 and 49.

HOW TO WORK THE MERCURY RETROGRADE (INSTEAD OF LETTING IT WORK YOU): As the planet of communication backs it up, we get to review our recent history in a new light. To make the most of this introspective and retrospective time, here are Mercury's top suggestions. (Part Four, see archives for earlier signs) LIBRA: Known for weighing your options more carefully than others might, you get called "indecisive" more than you enjoy. The Mercury retrograde is a time when this works for you rather than against you. Your thorough accounting prevents you from executing knee-jerk responses and impulsive moves that can have unexpected and disproportionate consequences under this passage. And if you never decide, that's fine, too -- maybe even better! SCORPIO: The solar change this week sees you coming into your own, so don't let Mercury throw any shade your way. Typically, it's your honesty that tips off Mercury's mischief. People just can't handle it straight. Temper it with a little sugar, or better yet, think twice about sharing at all. Just because something is true doesn't mean it needs to be said.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Beginner

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
