By ROGER CLINE

Howard County Commissioners will hold a special meeting to conduct a budget workshop at 1 p.m. Monday. The meeting will be held in the County Judge's Conference Room on the second floor of the Howard County Courthouse, 300 S. Main St.

County Judge Kathryn Wiseman will lead a discussion on appointing an Emergency Management Coordinator for the county, after which the commissioners might take action on the issue.

BSISD to hold public meeting Monday for citizen input on ESSER III grant

By ROGER CLINE
 Herald Staff Writer

The Big Spring ISD will hold a public meeting Monday evening to give local citizens a chance to provide input on ways the district might use an approximately $9.6 million federal grant.

The purpose of the meeting, which starts at 6 p.m. Monday in the Big Spring High School Library, is to discuss options for use of the third installment of the Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief (ESSER III) grant.

Since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic, the district has received about $900,000 from the ESSER I grant and recently, about another $4 million from the ESSER II grant.

The ESSER III grant comes with strict stipulations about how it can be used, said BSISD Superintendent Jay McWilliams.

"Any time you get anything that is attached to the federal government, there are going to be, for want of a better word, quite a few strings attached," McWilliams said. "What was strange about the ESSER III, they released it, and immediately 2/3 of it were available, which is over $6 million. So where's the other 1/3? Well, the United States Department of Education and the whole group said each state has to submit a plan, and Texas, once they submit that, we'll get the other 1/3. That should be soon. So we're going to end up getting all of it." McWilliams said the requirements for the grant include planning meetings and public feedback.

"You have to have so many meetings that involve different stakeholders in the district," he said. "Stakeholders means people that are involved, whether it be parents, business owners, community leaders, that all are invested - or have some kind of investment - in Big Spring ISD."

The district has already had two meetings on the issue, expanding the scope of involvement each time, McWilliams said.

"We had our initial meeting several weeks ago," he said. "That only involved myself, my assistant superintendents, and several of our directors. All those people were together and we came up with a skeleton plan and prices of each one of these things that we think would qualify under ESSER. Then just the other day we had another meeting and it involved even more

Coming out of lockdown; returning to business

By MARK WILLIS
 Special to the Herald

As the number of people vaccinated grows and infections decline, everyone is feeling better as we begin to return to semi-normal. In the business of economic development, it appears that we will actually emerge from lockdown to a more robust growth cycle than when we entered.

The reasons for that include pent-up demand from consumers, some returning to work and some who now feel comfortable spending with a more secure vision of the future. Add to that the huge amount of investment capital that has been parked due to the COVID economic uncertainty is now looking to be deployed along with the massive federal government capital infusion to stimulate the economy and you have a recipe for a robust economic rebound in the second half of this year. It also helps our specific region when this anticipated growth helps propel oil prices higher.

As a result, the City and EDC are partnering to apply for several grants associated with that federal investment, that will hopefully allow our city to take advantage of the potential boom. Over the past month our office has seen more inquiries than in the last six months combined. Unfortunately, many of those leads are beyond our ability to successfully respond to, but if we are successful in our endeavors to secure grant funding that will not be the case for very much longer, as those funds allow the City to extend infrastructure to serve new potential business locations.

While the City and EDC were anticipating this renewed interest in certain sectors, though to be honest we had expected it to begin a bit earlier (second quarter), the recent surge of potential retail project interest has been a pleasant surprise.

COVID was supposed to accelerate the move from brick-and-mortar retail to delivery retail dramatically, with the expectation that an economic recovery would not abate that trend. The EDC does not offer incentives to individual retail prospects because the sector can not really be incentivized and incentives offered threaten existing businesses by giving newcomers a competitive advantage, but our office is often a first contact point for those businesses seeking potential location.

Due to that interaction with entities like the investment group in the process of refurbishing the Spring Town Plaza, certain mitigating factors that help traditional retail are

Improve your health, weight and your life by keeping your teeth

By DAVID WARD, DDS
 Special to the Herald

Dr. Charles Mayo, co-founder of the world famous Mayo Clinic, is quoted as saying "People who keep their teeth live an average of ten years longer than those that lose their teeth." What do teeth have to do with a long life?

Think about people and their relationship to food. Food and the enjoyment derived from being able to eat well, increases as we age.

Eating may be an afterthought to young adults.

The taste, texture, temperature, and presentation of the meal are increasingly noted by people as we mature into middle age.

By the time we are elderly it may be the highlight of our day.

What if, dentally, we can't enjoy that meal due to sore or missing teeth? What if we have to struggle to chew that food because even excellent dentures are poor substitutes for real teeth? And poor dentures are a real nightmare. Is nutrition going to suffer? Yes!

An article in the Journal of the American Dental Association discussed dental implications of "metabolic syndrome"- a combination of obesity, high cholesterol and triglycerides, high blood pressure, and high blood sugar. These people need to be exercising as well as eating a diet rich in fibrous fruits and vegetables. Studies have shown that maintaining the natural teeth are critically important for people with metabolic syndrome.

The reason is that as people progressively lose teeth, they will often alter their food selection. The fewer back teeth are present, the harder time they have eating a healthy diet.

Instead, they tend to select foods that are softer and higher in saturated fat, transfatty acids, and cholesterol. Therefore they get less of the fruits, vegetables, healthy fats, carotene, folate, potassium, and vitamins C, E, and B6 that they need.

Along the same lines, studies show that more back teeth that people are missing,

This week's reviews are fiction audiobooks.

Veteran reporter Jack McEvoy has taken down killers before, but when a woman he had a one-night stand with is murdered in a particularly brutal way, McEvoy realizes he might be facing a criminal mind unlike any he's ever encountered in Fair Warning - Jack McEvoy #3 (AUUC F CON M) by Michael Connelly. Jack investigates, against the warnings of the police and his own editor, and makes a shocking discovery that connects the crime to other mysterious deaths across the country. Undetected by law enforcement, a vicious killer has been hunting women, using genetic data to select and stalk his targets. Uncovering the murkiest corners of the dark web, Jack races to find and protect the last source who can lead him to his quarry. But the killer has already chosen his next target, and he's ready to strike.

Just as Bruce Cable's Bay Books is preparing for the return of bestselling author Mercer Mann, Hurricane Leo veers from its predicted course and heads straight for the island in Camino Winds - Camino Island #2 (AUUC F GRI J) by John Grisham. Florida's governor orders a mandatory evacuation, and most residents board up their houses and flee to the mainland, but Bruce decides to stay and ride out the storm. The hurricane is devastating: homes and condos are leveled, hotels and storefronts ruined, streets flooded, and a dozen people lose their lives. One of the apparent victims is Nelson Kerr, a friend of Bruce's and an author of thrillers.

But the nature of Nelson's injuries suggests that the storm wasn't the cause of his death: He has suffered several suspicious blows to the head. Who would want Nelson dead? The local police are overwhelmed in the aftermath of the storm and ill equipped to handle the case. Bruce begins to wonder if the shady characters in Nelson's novels might be more real than fictional. And somewhere on Nelson's computer is the manuscript of his new novel. Could the key to the case be right there in black and white? As Bruce starts to investigate, what he discovers between the lines is more shocking than any of Nelson's plot twists and far more dangerous.

Years after her son's fatal overdose, grieving mother Rachel Higgins learns that his addiction may have grown out of damage suffered at the hands of a pedophile priest while he was in high school in Credible Threat - Ali Reynolds #15 (AUUC F JAN J) by J.A. Jance. Looking for vengeance, she targets the Catholic Church's most visible local figure, Archbishop Francis Gillespie.

When the archbishop begins receiving anonymous threats, local police dismiss them, saying they're not credible. So he turns to his friends, Ali Reynolds and her husband, B. Simpson. With B. out of the country on a cybersecurity emergency, it's up to Ali to track down the source of the threats. When a shooter assassinates the archbishop's driver and leaves the priest himself severely injured, Ali forms an uneasy alliance with a Phoenix homicide cop in hopes of preventing another attack. But Ali doesn't realize that the killer has become not only more unhinged but also more determined to take out his or her target.

If It Bleeds (AUUC F KIN S) by Stephen King is a collection of four brilliant new stories sure to prove as iconic as their predecessors "Mr. Harrigan's Phone", "The Life of Chuck", "Rat", and "If It Bleeds" each pulling readers into intriguing and frightening places. A collection of four uniquely wonderful long stories, including a stand-alone sequel to "The Outsider". Holly Gibney of the Finders Keepers detective agency is working on the case of a missing dog, and on her own need to be more assertive, when she sees the footage on TV.

But when she tunes in again to the late-night report, she realizes there is something not quite right about the correspondent who was first on the scene. So begins "If It Bleeds," a stand-alone sequel to "The Outsider" featuring the incomparable Holly on her first solo case.

the greater the likelihood of having a high a Body Mass Index (being fat or obese). Again, food selection tends to change for the worse as more teeth are lost.

So, you may ask, won't dentures correct this problem?

Unfortunately the answer is no. The reason is that most people can't bite near as hard with dentures, or even partials though they are better, because these sit on the soft gums. It is impossible to chew hard, crunch, firm or fibrous foods near as well as with real teeth.

So what are the solutions for this problem? Keep your teeth! Go see your dentist regularly. Realize that you will not be able to detect problems yourself until they are severe, whether cavities or gum disease. Brush and floss your teeth well. Avoid constant sipping or nibbling on sweet things.

If you are already missing some teeth, replace them, if at all possible, with implants or bridges. These are securely fixed into the bone or onto adjacent teeth so you can chew just as well as with natural teeth.

Finally, if you already have dentures or partials, at least make sure they have been relined within the last 5 years so they can work as well as possible. Much better would be to either replace them or support them with dental implants. These will greatly increase your chewing ability and help preserve your jawbone.

Being able to chew well really is important to quality of life and now it's becoming more obvious that ability to chew well is important to length of life as well.

Dining perfection

I have asked several of my friends who enjoy good food this question: how many perfect dining experiences have you had? So far, none has quickly responded with animated expressions of extreme satisfaction. No one has said, “O, yeah, let me tell you about this place.” It is indeed rare to have a perfect meal in a restaurant.

Usually when you ask a question like the one mentioned above it's because you want to compare the answer to something you want to say. Well I want you to know I have had only one perfect dining experience. It happened at a place called Stevenswood in Mendocino, California. Even though it happened a few years ago the memory is still as fresh today as it was the morning after the meal.

We were in California visiting wineries along the Russian River. We stopped at a motel called River's End, where the Russian River empties into the Pacific. When the proprietor asked us the reason for our visit, we said we were visiting wineries. He gifted us a split bottle of a red wine from the area. We sat on the deck outside our room and watched the sunset while enjoying the delicious pinot noir.

The next day we took a leisurely drive up Highway One along the Pacific Coast, one of the most scenic roadways in America. We checked into a motel in Mendocino near the spot where a symphony orchestra was performing an outdoor concert.

As dinnertime approached we were walking around and saw an inviting establishment called Stevenswood that had lodging, a restaurant and a bar. When we entered the restaurant we were impressed with the cleanliness, modern furniture, welcoming atmosphere and art that decorated the walls. When we were seated the friendly waiter handed us menus and a wine list. At the top of both were some printed words from the executive chef: “In order to live well, love well and sleep well you must first dine well.” The place was more cozy than fancy and the prices were reasonable.

As soft music put us in a relaxed mood, the waiter came over and asked if we were ready to order. As an appetizer, my wife Susan chose akvavit cured gravlax tartar. I had a salad with endive, field greens, crisp leeks and pistachios.

For the entrée Susan had pine nut crusted salmon. I had crusted ahi tuna. We chose a Chardonnay to accompany the food. For desert Susan chose an apricot dish while I enjoyed crème brûlée.

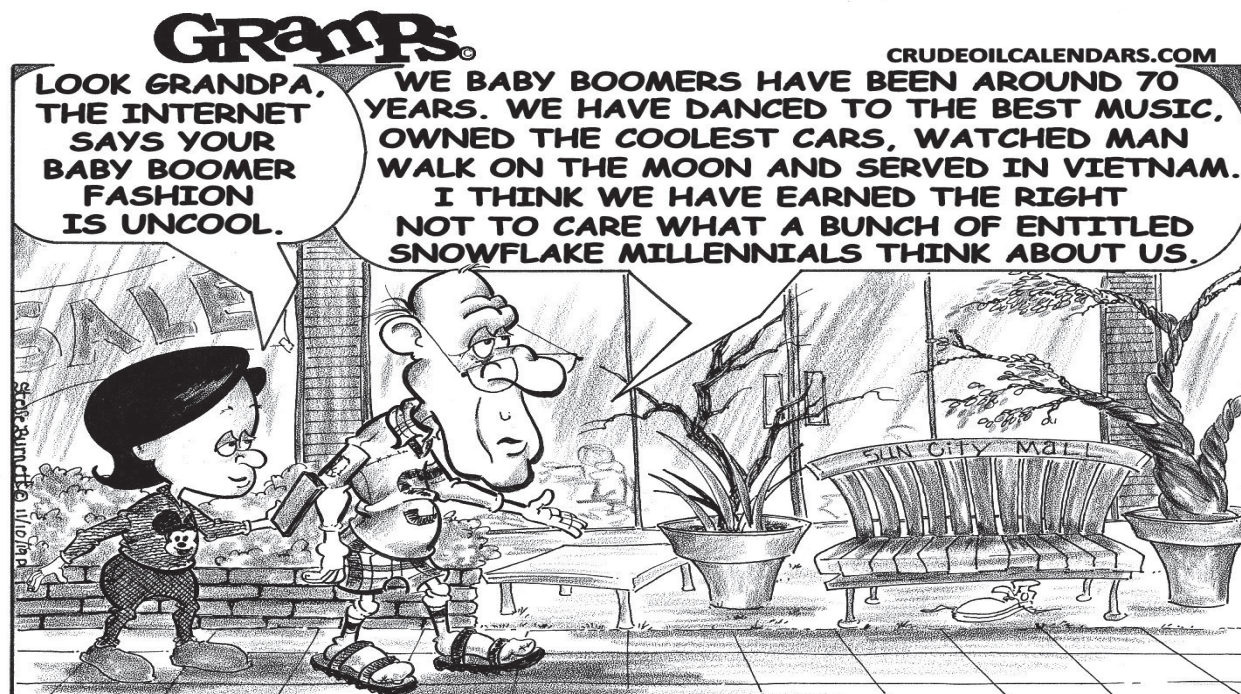

Every bite and sip was delicious. The waiter was attentive, the silverware, linens, glassware and comfortable seating made the diners enjoy being there. Everything was perfect. It is not often all the elements come together like that.

After the meal we went to the bar and had conversations with some park rangers who told us where the tallest trees in America were located. We hiked to them the next day. We kept the Stevenswood menus and wine list. I had forgotten about doing that but ran across them recently.

We've eaten in famous places all over the globe but Stevenswood stands out.

Such great memories.

Might makes right?

Ever-deepening Christian faith is called upon by believers who sometimes are challenged by their “trust and obey” commitment.

We need only point to COVID-19, which has laid claim to as many as seven million lives worldwide, and many times that number who have been affected greatly by the pandemic's countless joy-sucking tentacles.

We hear the screams of many people blaming COVID-19 about many of their hurts; this is understandable. Today, though, I am focusing on a family choosing to keep the faith.

Our youngest daughter, Jeanie McDaniels-along with husband Ryan, son Jonah and daughter Addison-uprooted their family recently to serve almost a year as house parents in a children's home. They've also dealt with ongoing family illness, and experienced the trauma of a real estate deal gone sour. Most of all, though, they've lost a loved one. The sudden death last August of Julie Choate-our oldest daughter and Jeanie's “big sister”--still hurts deeply.

Brenda and I, as well as Jeanie and her family, are not given to “towel-tossing.” Nor are we blaming COVID.

Instead, we're shedding light where we can, as well as looking for sometimes hard-to-find rays of sunshine.

First a strong suggestion: READ THE FINE PRINT. When the McDaniels signed a contract to build a new home in January, they were assured occupancy within seven months. Delays have been numerous, and no dirt has been moved. The family has attempted to be understanding with the company's litany of on-going excuses, many of which blame the city for permit delays.

Late in May, they received a stunning email informing them that the new construction price tag would balloon by $84,000, take it or leave it.

I join the McDaniels in being shocked that they must respond within 72 hours. Surely some negotiation is possible. However, the firm's sugar-coated assurances/apologies for the past 150 days are in keeping with its “right now” ultimatum. Big businesses typically have “been down the legal road,” fully understanding of ALL the fine print. The McDaniels own a home, so their lives go on. I hurt most for first-home buyers who thought they were going to be homeowners, but instead remain chained to rentals. READ THE FINE PRINT.

The family felt a ray of sunshine, however, during Addison's recent rainy day 14th birthday celebration. She wanted to go to a new restaurant. Knowing it might be crowded, we arrived in late afternoon, thinking there'd be seating available then.

We were wrong. At the “sign-in counter,” we learned there'd be a one-hour wait, and that we would be required to remain outdoors until our number was called.

It was pouring rain outside. We hurried to our cars, resolved to find another restaurant which would allow us inside....

Within a mile, we found Mooyah, a hamburger place tucked inside a shopping center. There, the atmosphere was inviting, and upon learning a birthday group was celebrating, manager Chad Hall pulled out all the stops.

He gifted her with milkshakes and put three cookies into her take-home bag. Chad's 16-year-old son Jacob was taking orders. Jacob repeated my query about senior discounts. Overhearing, Chad said, “How does a free burger sound?” He said this without knowing of my writing a syndicated column where compliments are frequently dispensed. He probably figured my white hair meant I'd been asking about such discounts for a quarter-century or so.

As I munched on a free burger, I learned that he's been in the restaurant business for 26 years, and in management for 15. He became manager of the locally-franchised Mooyah just nine months ago.

He highly values customer appreciation. We'll return to Mooyah.

If in McKinney, we'll try Country Burger, even if it no longer offers “double-doubles.” The burger place opened in 1973, the same year In-N-Out trademarked “double-double.” Recently, the owner received a mandate from corporate In-N-Out to remove “double-double” from the menu.

The Dugout: Breaking down the AL West

Welcome back to the Dugout, where we talk anything and everything baseball. This will be Part Two in a six-part series where I'll break down all the divisions in the MLB. We have previously gone over the American League East, so now we will glance at the A.L. West.

The A.L. West comprises five squads, just like all the other divisions in baseball. It includes the Oakland Athletics, Houston Astros, Seattle Mariners, Los Angeles Angels, and last but not least, the Texas Rangers. What I'll do now is run through each organization and break down how they have been performing or not producing so far this year.

We will lead off with the first-place club in the division, the Oakland Athletics. Oakland comes in with a division-best record of 33-25. The Athletics have an effective record with bats who can hit for power. They have a team total of 73 home runs this season, which is third-best in the American League. First baseman Matt Olson leads the way for Oakland with 14 home runs, a .274 batting average, .570 slugging, and a WRC+ of 159. WRC+ (Weighted Runs Created Plus) is a complicated stat, so I'll give you a simple translation. 100 is the league average, so Olson is 59% over average. Anything over 140 is exceptional. The Athletics have four bats in their lineup that have a WRC+ of over 100. Pitching is about average for Oakland as they sit mid-pack in team ERA with a 3.98. They don't have a lot of swing and miss in their rotation as the K% is only at 22.3%. Chris Bassitt has perhaps been their best pitcher to open the season. He carries an ERA of 3.53 and a K% of 26.5. He does a fine job managing the walks as he has only walked 5.6% of the batters he has faced this season. The Athletics seem always to have a skilled team every season. While I don't think the hot bats will continue all season long, and the absence of pitching depth worries me, they are in the operator's seat for now.

The Houston Astros are right behind the Athletics, as they sit in second place with a record of 31-24, which ranks them only a half-game behind the Athletics. Houston is a World Series contending team every year. This year, like most years, this team is an impressive all-around squad. They have solid hitting as they have the best team batting average in the American League with a .265; the Astros have had a decrease in the power with only 61 H.R., which is in the lower half of the American League. Even with the lack of control, they do an exceptional job of scoring runs as they lead the AL with 291 runs so far this season. Jose Altuve is undergoing another pleasant season this year after his struggles last season. The All-Star is batting .302, and he has 8 HR. and a 138 WRC+. Altuve is not the only one with a hot bat; Alex Bregman is off a torrid start to the season, batting .296, 6HR, and a 140 WRC+. The Astros have six starters who have a WRC+ over 120, including Altuve and Bregman. While the bats are sharp, it's the pitching that has shocked me so far this season. Even without Justin Verlander, who is presumably out for this season because of an elbow injury from last September, the Astros have had solid starting pitching. With the development of Luis Garcia, this season the Astros have several bona fide starters right now. Garcia has burst onto the scene this year and has showed he has the potential to be a future ace for the Astros. He owns a .272 ERA and a 28.2K%. Garcia is virtually a four-pitch mix guy. He possesses a four-seam fastball that sits around 93-94 MPH, a nasty cutter that sinks most of his swings and misses; he also incorporates in a slider and a curveball. Garcia throws a changeup, but very few. He relies on his four-seam to set up his cutter. His slider sweeps across the zone and has the remarkable depth that will also get swings and misses. His curveball is tight and has a good 12-6 movement as well. Garcia has all the pitches to be a top ace in all of baseball. He isn't the only arm this team has though, as they are the veteran pitcher Zack Greinke. The veteran light throwing rightly relies on movement and just throwing knowing how to pitch. Greinke has a 3.67 ERA, while he only has a 19.4 K%, that's not his game. He is a pitch-to-contact type of pitcher who relies on ground balls and good defense. The Astros will end up winning this division in my mind. The bats are just too solid, and the pitching is just too strong for them to not string together a long winning streak at some point.

The third-place team in the A.L. West goes to the Seattle Mariners with a 28-29 record. That puts them four and a half games back of the Athletics. The Mariners have not been as bad as I expected so far this year. I mean, don't get me wrong, they are still the Mariners, but it looks like they have some future players on the rise. Three of their top-five rated rookies have made it up to the big leagues this season, including their number one prospect, Jarred Kelenic. He is the number four overall prospect in all of baseball. Kelenic is a player that the Mariners will hope to build a future core around. So far this season, the rookie has struggled, but he plays for the Mariners, so I'll cut him some slack. As far as hitting and pitching, they rank near the bottom of the A.L. in most categories. While they have been struggling, they are only sitting one game below .500 ball. It won't happen this year, but who knows, maybe these young players will mature this season and get some at-bats under their belts, and in a few years, the Mariners may be a good team. I doubt it, but yet crazier things have taken place.

That brings me to what is the biggest letdown of the division. The Los Angeles Angels are in fourth place in the A.L. West. They have a record of 25-30, which puts them six and a half games back of the first place. The reason the Angels are struggling so far boils down to the horrific pitching from their starters so far. They have a terrible team ERA of 4.98, which is dead last in the A.L. They have a BB% of 10.6. That is just not good. Andrew Heaney has scuffled mightily this year. The Angel pitcher has an ERA of 4.76. Heaney isn't the only pitcher struggling so far this year. Jose Quintana has been bad so far; the veteran lefty has an ERA of 7.22 and a BB% of 15.7. All the pitchers are just off to start this season off. Now the bright spot for the Angels is the bats. They have one of the most dangerous lineups in all of baseball when all of them are healthy. They are led by one of the best players in all of baseball right now, Mike Trout. Trout is a perennial All-Star; he has a .333 batting average, a .624 SLG, and a crazy 198 WRC+. Trout has also chipped in 8 H.R. While Trout is a remarkable player, he may not even be the most impressive player on his team. That distinction goes to two-way player superstar Shohei Ohtani. He won the A.L. Rookie of the Year award in 2018. Ohtani is the only full-time two-way player in the MLB. This means the guy plays in the outfield and can handle the bat exceptionally well for himself. He has a .263 AVG, a .597 SLG, 153 WRC+, and has 15 H.R. so far this year. Did I mention the guy is also a starting pitcher every fifth day? He has a fastball that can hit triple digits. Like all the other Angel pitchers, he has battled this year. While his stuff is exciting, and he has a good 32.5 K%, he can also be wild when on the mound, which is apparent by his 16.9 BB%. In my mind, Ohtani is the most skillful player in the game right now. A guy who can throw 100 MPH and hit HR's consistently is far and few between. If the Angels can ever solve their pitching woes and these bats keep hitting, and everybody stays healthy, they will be a proficient team. Not sure they can catch up and contend for the division, but they will be entertaining to check out.

Ok, so now we proceed on to the last-place team in the A.L. West. We all knew this time would arrive; it's the Texas Rangers. So before I even break down this team, I need to apologize in advance to all the Rangers fans out there, two in particular "Poppy" and Coach Bogle. Ok, now that I have gotten that out of the way, let's break down this team. The Rangers have a record of 22-36 on the year, and they are 11 games back of first place. In my mind, the Rangers are about as good as I assumed they would be, to be fair. They are working through yet another overhaul. As long as the front office management intact, I don't see any change for the Rangers in the impending future. John Daniels is the President of Baseball Operations for the Rangers and has been in charge of the Rangers for 16 years. While he may not be the G.M. anymore, all the Baseball decisions go through this guy. Daniels has refused to change with the times, and the Rangers have been one of the worst teams in all of MLB for the last five years. Before this season, he declined to let the youthful talent get playing time, which might have benefited this "rebuild" a long time ago. I could go on this soapbox forever, but I regress; let us get back to the team that's on the field. The Rangers don't have an awful team. They do have an abundance of young upcoming talent. One of the biggest impacts of the year has been Adolis Garcia; the young slugger has come out of nowhere and has shinned so far this season as he is tied for second in all of baseball with 16 H.R., he is batting .283, he has a .567 SLG, and a 144 WRC+. As talented as he may be, he is nevertheless a swing-and-miss guy. If he cleans up all his strikeouts, he will be a valuable player now and in the future. Nate Lowe came over from the Tampa Bay Rays this off-season and has yielded some power to this lineup. Like some of the other power bats in Texas, he strikes out from time to time. Lowe is batting .244, SLG .392, a WRC+ of 114, and he has 8 H.R. so far this year. If he can clean up his strikeouts and look to drive the ball a little more, all of those numbers should go up. Joey Gallo has battled so far this year; he is only batting .205, has a .378 SLG, and has 9 H.R. Gallo has displayed extraordinary power at the plate when he hits the ball. It flies out of the park. He can't seem to correct those swings and misses and continues to strike out at an alarming rate. Now we push on to the pitching side of things, and the Rangers have scuffed there as well; they have a team ERA of .455, which puts them near the bottom of the A.L. ranks. Kyle Gibson has been pretty good so far. The veteran has an ERA of .224 and is the unquestioned ace of this staff. They do have some young talented arms like Dane Dunning that might fill a role as a quality starter. While I'm not too fond of Jon Daniels, the Rangers do have many young talented players that could all be good at some point. That won't materialize this year, but maybe in a few years, this team will look altogether different.

Ok, so that's a breakdown of the A.L. West. I think the Astros will ultimately put it all together and be the class of this division, but the Athletics never seem to go away; they will be there all season long and continue to fight. The Angels will be stronger, and they will catch up with the Mariners, but not confident they can catch the A's or Astros. As far as the Mariners and Rangers, well, just keep getting the young talent at-bats and playing time, and we will see what the future will hold.

AAA pitcher hospitalized but stable after liner to head

DURHAM, N.C.— Minor league pitcher Tyler Zombro was kept overnight at a hospital and remains in stable condition after being struck in the head by a line drive Thursday night, a frightening scene that prompted Triple-A Durham to suspend its game.

Zombro, a right-hander in the Tampa Bay Rays organization, was hit by a sharp line drive from Norfolk's Brett Cumberland in the eighth inning. Zombro crumbled awkwardly to the ground, lay motionless for a moment face down, then began to convulse uncontrollably as teammates and a trainer rushed toward the mound.

"As of this morning, Tyler remains under the care of the nurses and doctors at Duke University Hospital," the Rays said in a statement Friday. "The updates from overnight have been positive, and he remains in stable condition. We are overwhelmed by the support for Tyler and the wishes for his full and speedy recovery from fans and the baseball community alike. We will provide additional updates as he progresses."

Cumberland took a knee near first base while Zombro was tended to, and other players did the same across the field, many of them praying. Zombro was carried off on a stretcher and taken directly to the hospital.

The 26-year-old Zombro signed as a minor league free agent with Tampa Bay in 2017 after going undrafted out of George Mason. He was appearing in his ninth game this season with the Bulls, entering the night 1-1 with a 3.18 ERA. He has a 2.79 ERA in his minor league career.

The game was called off with Norfolk leading 12-4.

McWilliams said 20 percent of the funds – or nearly $2 million – must be used for “student enrichment.”

The meeting will start with a brief PowerPoint presentation outlining the grant and its requirements, and then members of the public will have an opportunity to suggest ideas for use of the grant funding.

“If we start going over our plan, somebody may say, ‘Hey, have you thought of this?’ and we’ll say, ‘You know what? We hadn’t. That’s a very good idea.’ You know, it’s just to get input. As part of the grant, we have to do that, and we want to do that.”

Community input received at the meeting will be discussed at the upcoming BSISD school board meeting, scheduled Thursday.

becoming clear. Those factors seem to be, at least demonstrating that traditional retail channel is far from dead.

To be sure a lot of the new interest in brick-and-mortar retail investment is driven by the depressed prices of the properties due to covid and on-line shopping, but the fact that these investments are being made with long-term horizons indicate it is something more and that there is still a demand for the in-person shopping experience.

The groups looking to return to traditional retail have concluded that the lockdown has reminded people that part of the shopping experience is more than simply purchasing a product but is also about the social interactions associated with the process. People long to get back to spending an afternoon or evening eating out, shopping and perhaps seeing a movie or visiting an entertainment venue. In Big Spring that bodes well for the redevelopment of the downtown area as a destination and in-person retail in general.

The Pet Connection's Pet Talk: Where People and Pets Connect

Remembering our special pets after they pass

By MELANIE GAMBRELL

Pet Care Specialist

The second Tuesday in June I ask you to take the time to celebrate the pets that have passed in your life. Every year at this time we observe World Pet Memorial Day. If you are like me you have so many loving and fond memories of those special pets that you have shared your life with that it's nice to know we can celebrate them.

There are different ways I have memorialized the loving memories of my pets, and I'd like to share some of those ideas with you. Maybe you have done some of the same things to celebrate their life even for a short time that they had with you, their love and memories live forever in our hearts.

- Getting a tattoo in memory of your pet
- Planting a tree or setting up a memorial garden
- Having a painting/drawing done of them
- Putting together a photo album of all your special times
- Creating an engraved stone with their name/paw print
- Doing a shadow box with their leash, collar, etc.
- Making a donation in their names
- Volunteering at a shelter or rescue in their honor

It's never easy to say goodbye; it's probably the hardest thing I have to do as a dog mom, a rescuer as a human being. Each time I say goodbye a piece of my heart is torn away and lost. They say you can't die from a broken heart, but I'm not sure that is true. When you have loved and lost that special friend there's no replacing that bond. Pets will come and go in our lives and with each, I hope you will be that person your pet knows that you can be.

Pets aren't disposable; they aren't trash to be dumped or abused. They have feelings. They feel pain and sadness just as you and I; they have a heart and soul. Please treat them as such, learn and enjoy the true friendship they have to offer. They will be there when no one else will be to comfort you, to lick away the tears and to let you know you're not alone.

Over the vast many years I've lost over 50 pets from livestock, exotic to domestic. Some I had only a brief moment, a stray dying along side the road that I helped cross the rainbow bridge; a dog saved from the kill shelter only to learn she was dying from bone cancer ...there's been so many. Others I had for many, many year love them and calling them family. When I learned my Golden Retriever Mallard Creek "Buckshot" had cancer I couldn't bear to think of being without him. So, I had him cremated and have done so with every dog and cat I have shared my life with, no matter how little of time we have had together. As my final wish, I too will be cremated. Every pet's ashes, dog and cat, we will be together again, mixed in as it should be, as one. It'll be a joyous day when I get to heaven because they will all be there waiting on me.

I hope that you'll take some time to appreciate the pets you call family. Reflect on those you have shared lives with and if you stop and listen real close, I bet you can hear a tiny jingle of their tags as they come down the hallway, they haven't left you. They are still watching you; they are still by your side and in your hearts.

*They will not go quietly
They will not go quietly
The pets who've shared our lives
In subtle ways they let us know their spirits still survives.
Old habits still can make us think we hear them at the door or step back when we drop a tasty morsel on the floor.
Our feet still go around the place
the food dish used to be.
And, sometimes, coming home at night
we miss them terribly.
And although time may bring new friends and a new food dish to fill,
that one place in our hearts
belongs to them ... and always will

State Sales Tax revenue totaled $3.4 billion in May

AUSTIN — Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar today said state sales tax revenue totaled $3.4 billion in May, the highest-ever monthly total and 30.1 percent more than in May 2020.

As with April's results, year-over-year increases for most tax revenues this month and in the coming months will be among the highest in the history of the data series. This is due to base effects: year-ago revenue collections to which this year's collections are compared were severely suppressed by the pandemic. Compared to May 2019, sales tax collections were up 12.9 percent.

The majority of May sales tax revenue is based on sales made in April and remitted to the agency in May.

"Resurgent consumer spending drove monthly state sales tax collections to a new high," Hegar said. "Supported by the end of pandemic restrictions, further vaccination progress and declines in COVID-19 cases and hospitalizations, continued recovery in employment, and federal stimulus checks and enhanced unemployment benefits, receipts from all retail sectors other than grocery stores surpassed pre-pandemic levels.

"Sales at retailers that had benefited from pandemic spending — online and big box general merchandisers, building materials and home furnishings stores, sporting goods and hobby stores — continued at elevated levels, while sales at retailers severely depressed last year, such as clothing stores and electronics and appliance stores, rebounded sharply from last spring.

"Spending at restaurants also surpassed pre-pandemic levels, with increased dine-in patronage adding to still elevated take-out and delivery business. While total spending in the sector increased sharply from a year ago, the recovery was uneven, with business at large popular restaurant chains up sharply while many smaller venues continued to languish. Spending at theme parks and live entertainment venues, though remaining below pre-pandemic levels, also was up significantly from a year ago, while business at fitness centers showed little evidence of recovery.

"Receipts from oil- and gas-related sectors fell below year-ago levels, as drilling and well development activity remained substantially below pre-pandemic levels despite the rise in crude oil prices in recent months."

Total sales tax revenue for the three months ending in May 2021 was up 19.4 percent compared to the same period a year ago. Sales tax is the largest source

Creating an event to remember - Events by Jessica Alvarez

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

Special moments such as weddings, engagement parties, quinceaneras, anniversary events and graduation parties are special milestones that many like to make picture perfect. While not everyone has the ability to create dazzling scenes or decorate for events such as these, there are those who have that talent and enjoy sharing it with others. One local event planner, Jessica Alvarez, is one of those people. Her passion for creating beautiful settings is the driving force behind her launching her own business: Events by Jessica Alvarez.

"I have a passion for events. I love making a client's special day as stress-free as possible and giving them everything they could imagine by transforming a venue," Jessica Alvarez, owner of Events by Jessica Alvarez, said.

Since 2015, Alvarez has been offering party planning services. She offers the rental of event decor such as table covers, chair covers, runners, sashes, centerpieces, balloon garlands, chandeliers, backdrops and more.

"There are other event planners out there, but one thing about Events by Jessica Alvarez is that I am local and affordable," she said. "Anyone who is looking to have a wedding, Sweet 16, quinceanera, birthday party, baby shower, or any other special

As Alvarez looks ahead to the second part of the year, her goal is to continue to impress her clients and expand to surrounding areas. The pandemic impacted her business, just as many other local

Something to think about...

The spiritual life requires a constant claiming of our true identity. Our true identity is that we are God's children, the beloved sons and daughters of our heavenly Father. Jesus' life reveals to us this mysterious truth.

RICHARD SCHNEGERGER

"After Jesus was baptized in the Jordan by John, as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn open and the Spirit, like a dove, descending on him. And a voice came from heaven: 'You are my Son, the Beloved; my favor rests on you' (Mark 1:10-11). This is the decisive moment of Jesus' life. His true identity is declared to him. He is the beloved of God. As 'the Beloved' he is being sent into the world so that through him all people will discover and claim their own belovedness.

"But the same Spirit who descended on Jesus and affirmed his identity as the Beloved Son of God also drove him into the desert to be tested by Satan. Satan asked him to prove his belovedness by changing stones to bread, by throwing himself from the temple tower to be carried by angels, and by accepting the kingdoms of this world. But Jesus resisted these temptations of success, popularity, and power by claiming strongly for himself his true identity. Jesus didn't have to prove to the world that he was worthy of love.

"He already was the 'Beloved,' and this Belovedness allowed him to live free from the manipulative games of the world, always faithful to the voice that had spoken to him at the Jordan. Jesus' whole life was a life of obedience, of attentive listening to the One who called him Beloved.

"Everything that Jesus said or did came forth from that most intimate spiritual communion. Jesus' revealed to us that we sinful, broken human beings are invited to that same communion that Jesus lived, that we are the beloved sons and daughters of God just as he is the Beloved Son, that we are sent into the world to proclaim the belovedness of all people as he was and that we will finally escape the destructive powers of death as he did." ~ Henri Nouwen

"See what great love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are!" ~ 1 John 3:1

What Is Vacation Bible School!

Many times as a child, I would go to Vacation Bible School at my little church in Northern Nevada. We would play games with our Pastor, learn Bible stories, sing songs, do crafts, and enjoy three blissful hours of Godly fun. I always look forward to this time in children's lives.

LILLIAN BOHANNAN

When I was 15, I got to be a teacher. That made everything look so different. I got to teach the Bible story, lead in the games, and lead the songs myself.

I think that's why I still love it today. Memories and friends are made in Bible School that you don't find in any other venue in life.

But, and you knew this was coming, without Jesus as the Cornerstone of Bible School, there is really no purpose.

It's not just a place to drop children for three hours of free time for parents. Jesus is the reason most churches have Vacation Bible School. If Jesus isn't taught, find a church that teaches about Him. Then get involved in that church and continue the education God has started in your child. Then, memories and friends made in Bible School will last for all eternity.

So it's Vacation Bible School time again. All summer, churches are involving their members in working to help children understand the cornerstone of faith. Jesus is that Cornerstone of faith in God.

Be involved and help your family understand what Vacation Bible school is all about. It's not just fun and games and a free babysitting opportunity. It's a way to learn about God's Heaven and how to get there through Jesus Christ His Son. Come on, let's change America, by changing our families in our God-loving churches.

Vacation Bible School could be the venue that could be a new beginning for you!

The Pharisee's Fingers

"For they bind heavy burdens and grievous to be borne, and lay them on men's shoulders; but they themselves will not move them with one of their fingers." — Matthew 23:4

When the scribes and Pharisees loaded the people down with strict and harsh rules, not even they themselves were willing to help the people carry the weight of these burdens with one of their fingers. But in 1 Peter 2:24, we see that Christ gave His whole body to remove all of these heavy burdens from our lives.

The nature of the Law is that it will never lend you a hand, not even one of its fingers. However, Christ offers us not just one of His fingers, but His whole body when He invites us to take His easy yoke and light burden.

When all is said and done, each individual person is responsible for keeping, observing and obeying each Law, conviction, standard, rule and regulation. This is the true nature of the Law – not a single human being can move or carry them on our behalf. Listen to those preachers who preach that we should live by religious rules and regulations, and you will hear them teach us that, not they, but we, are responsible for carrying those heavy burdens. Why? Because this is the nature of the deeds of the Law. Have you ever heard a single one of these preachers say – look, my dear brother or sister, I will be pure, holy and faithful in your place so that you will not be overwhelmed by all of the rules and regulations that I myself preach from the pulpit? I have never heard these words come from this sort of preacher. Why? Because this is the true nature of the system of religious rules and regulations.

God knew that the scribes and Pharisees had fingers, but He also knew that they would not use them to help the people with their burdens. So, God sent Jesus into a human body so that with His whole body (not just one of His fingers) He could carry all of our misery, sins and guilt in His own body on the cross. In His own body on the cross, Jesus was pure, holy, faithful and sinless in our place.

Reflections: Disciples in disguise

A number of years ago I attended a conference at the Harley Davidson factory in Kansas City. A number of pastors and church leaders assembled at the factory to spend a few days touring the facilities and visiting with the administrators. Some of us were there because we had a lifelong love of motorcycles. Most of us were there because we wanted to learn how the Harley Davidson leaders had transformed a nearly bankrupt motorcycle company into a model of success at the turn of the century.

BILL TINSLEY

The thing I remember most about the conference was a statement made by a young executive who spoke to the group. He had just returned from Europe where he helped introduce the Buell sport bike. He stepped to the microphone and introduced himself. He said, "I am a disciple of Jesus Christ disguised as a Harley Davidson Executive."

Since that time I have discovered disciples disguised in many walks of life: teachers, doctors, mechanics, students, professors, engineers, nurses, administrators, athletes, fire fighters, farmers, businessmen, soldiers, homemakers, ... the list is almost endless.

Many people consider themselves to be Christians. Far fewer think of themselves as disciples of Jesus Christ. To be a Christian usually means we give assent to the Christian religion, that we are comfortable with occasionally attending church, and we know we are not Muslim, Buddhist or some other religion. To be a disciple, however, raises the expectations to a whole new level.

Interestingly, Jesus never used the term Christian. In fact, the term is only found three times in the Bible, and twice it is used by non-believers. Jesus chose to speak about disciples. He said, "Whoever does not carry his own cross and come after me cannot be my disciple." (Luke 14:27). "If you continue in my word then you are truly disciples of mine. (John 8:31). "By this shall all men know you are my disciples, that you have love for one another." (John 13:35). "My Father is glorified by this, that you bear much fruit and so prove to be my disciples." (John 15:8). "Go therefore and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." (Matthew 28:19).

So, what does a 21st Century disciple look like? They look a lot like those we find in the first century. Those who followed Jesus then were fishermen, tax collectors, business men and business women, mothers and fathers. Today, they look like you and me. They come from every nation and every race. They can be found among the rich and poor, the educated and uneducated, the famous and obscure. Wherever you find fully devoted followers of Jesus Christ who have received God's grace and love others as God has loved them, you will find disciples in disguise.

Contract Bridge
By Steve Becker

How bad can bad luck be?

East dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

SOUTH
♠ A J 3
♥ A Q 6 5 4
♦ 6 2
♣ K 9 5

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 1♥ Pass 4♥
Opening lead — queen of diamonds.

A declarer who needs to find only one of three key cards favorably located to make his contract has good reason to feel comfortable. First, the chance that all three will be badly placed is very much against the odds. Second, if all three do turn out to be poorly positioned, declarer can always blame it on bad luck.

That was precisely the attitude South adopted after he failed to make four hearts on today's deal. He got his first dose of bad news when East turned up with the ace of diamonds, allowing the defenders to score two diamonds before declarer trumped the third one.

South then cashed the ace of spades, ruffed a spade and led a low heart to the queen, losing to the king. After taking West's trump return with the ace, declarer ruffed his remaining spade, crossed to the club king and led a club to the jack. When this also failed, he was down one.

While South was certainly unlucky, the fact is that he didn't give himself the best chance, and this ultimately cost him the contract. The key play came at trick six, when he led a low trump from dummy. When East produced the ten, presumably marking him with the K-10 doubleton or the singleton ten, the finesse should have been rejected.

Instead, declarer should have played the ace, ruffed his last spade in dummy and then exited with a trump. If East had the king, he would win and be forced to return a club or yield a ruff-and-discard, either of which would hand South his game.

If West had the king, the outcome would be less certain, but the prospects would still be excellent. In the actual case, on a low club return from West, South would play low from dummy, trapping East's queen. If West returned the ten instead, declarer would cover with the jack to achieve the same result.

Declarer also would succeed if West had the queen or the queen and ten. Only if East had both the queen and ten of clubs — a one-in-four possibility — would the contract fail after a club return by West.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Appetite Moon Reminder

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The act of wishing puts distance between you and an experience. What can you do to bring the experience closer to where you are? What can you do to have the experience (or a version of it) now?

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Talk to successful peers about your goals and challenges. Let them provide you with insights. It is in casual but purposeful conversation that you'll get some of your best tactics.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You may catch yourself fumbling through a speechless moment or failing to listen and respond as smoothly as you'd like. These instances only teach you to be more powerfully present in the future.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Emotions blend like colors, some indefinable, though no one will ask you to describe them anyway. For this reason, it's even more important to check in with yourself about your feelings. Demonstrate a you-to-you friendship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You read people's moods and expressions and catch the vibes that people don't even know they're putting out there. This sensitivity will steer you toward helping others in a way most people wouldn't think to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You could effectively get your life in order from the inside out, but it's easier to work from the outside in. As you clean and clear parts of your environment, your head becomes lighter, your spirit brighter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You don't like to let weather deter you from your plans, and that's why you move forward come rain or shine. The same is true for emotional weather. You'll do what you set out to do regardless of mood.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). A relationship gives your heart strong wings and emboldens you to soar with the eagles. This bird's-eye view makes problems seem small. And the people, cars, buildings and cities... all miniaturized by high-flying love.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). True to form, you're adventure-bound. This starts off well, partly because you are not worried about how it will end. You move forward with plenty of curiosity and very little expectation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Moments of feeling stuck are actually a gift -- a signal to stop and get a sense of your environment. Where's the wiggle room here? What can you move, or, more likely, let go of?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The answer is hidden in plain sight. Only those who know what it is and how to use it will be able to. This week's lessons are molding you into such a person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). What seems like a good idea at first may not play well into the endgame. Think through your entire strategy before you make a move. It won't go as you imagine, but there are many advantages to having a plan.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 6). Though the need for some degree of control over one's environment is a high priority in humans, you'll loosen your grip on the reins of life in order to perform tricks of flexibility and take financial and social risks. You'll be gloriously supported and achieve aims that would not have been possible from a constricted hold. Sagittarius and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 40, 2, 22 and 17.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Mercury retrograde check-in: How is the adventure going? At this point in the retrograde, many feel lost, which, with the right mindset, can be a plus. Not knowing quite where you are is a scintillating aspect of any adventure. For curious explorers, the unknown is a recurring and enjoyable feature of life. Foreign sights, sounds and words provide sparks of excitement. To make sense of things, we must broaden our awareness. Like students learning to read, we look for "context clues" to figure out meanings scanning the environment for hints to deepen our understanding.

The new moon and solar eclipse in Gemini moves energy from one area of life to another. Enjoy the changing scape. Like clouds passing over, the shift happens without regard to any individual influence. In fact, anyone trying to make clouds move will at best come across as a self-proclaimed weather lord, to comedic effect.

Noisy Next-Door Neighbors

Dear Annie: I believe your answer to "Canine Cacophony" provided some practical advice about how to deal with noisy dogs next door. CC had problems enjoying his/her outdoor space because of the noise.

I'd like to provide another perspective. We have one quiet dog. Our next-door neighbor has three noisy pooches who seem to be outside a lot. My neighbors are the kindest people, and they have been there for us in times of emergency and in every neighborly way imaginable. We count ourselves fortunate to have these neighbors -- dogs barking and all. Every relationship has its pluses and minuses, and I always say if you don't want to hear crying babies or barking dogs, suburbia is not for you.

That being said, we did put up a privacy fence and let our neighbors know how much we'd miss our backyard chats (there's always the front yard!). Our dog would definitely be in on the barking if he could see his neighbors, and the fence provides a measure of peace for all of us. -- Lucky in the Suburbs

Dear Lucky in the Suburbs: Good fences make for good neighbors. It sounds like you solved the problem.

Your positivity and perspective regarding your neighbors are what makes for a happier life. If we focus on the cup half full, we tend to get more joy and happiness in our lives. Acknowledging your gratitude for your wonderful neighbors while setting the boundaries that make sense for your family sounds like the perfect solution.

Seeing the good in our literal neighbor or our metaphorical neighbor leads us to live a more peaceful life.

Dear Annie: It's been interesting and uplifting to read the stories of people persisting in the pursuit of their dreams, proving that you're never too old.

These made me think of a story that may not be all that well-known.

Character actor Burt Mustin did not begin his professional acting career until after he had retired at the age of 67. He made over 150 appearances on TV and in movies in his career, working almost until his death at the age of 92. -- Retired Postal worker

Dear Retired Postal Worker: Thank you for sharing the story about the character actor.

Dear Annie: I am a 50-year-old man, and about three years ago, my wife divorced me after 16 years of marriage. I've never laid a finger on her, and I've never cheated on her. The reason for the separation was that I was hardly ever home because I was always doing side jobs along with a full-time job.

After the divorce, we were separated for about a year-and-a-half, and then we got back together. My wife is 60 years old -- 10 years older than me. She is beautiful and smart, but my issue is that when we got the divorce, after about a year, I was over her. It took a lot of grieving on my part, and now, I just can't find the love that I had for her before the divorce. It is affecting the will to initiate sex with her, or even to be intimate. I'm not sure what I'm supposed to do. I just want that love back that I had for her once before. -- Trying to Love Again

Dear Trying to Love Again: Ask yourself if you are really trying to love again or if you are living with resentment toward your wife for leaving you in the first place. I don't think your age difference is very important. What is important is how you treat each other. Pulling away from intimacy of all sorts with your wife is not the recipe for a successful marriage. With the help of a good therapist, explore if you can forgive her for the past and if you want to make the marriage work. It takes two.

Preparation and prayer

By JOELLE LUDINGTON

No one is prepared for the worst, death, sickness, catastrophes, war.
It would be nice if babies came with instructions, husbands, wives, life.
No one is even prepared for the worst.
But prayer changes things.
Our communication with God is everything. It's like a child in his mother's womb, it sustains you through everything.
King David inquired of God if he should pursue after the hoop. God answered him, pursue for thou shalt surely overtake them and without fail survive all.
As the song writer says,
"There's nothing I can't live without but Jesus
There's no place that I'd rather be than with him
Fame and Fortune
Friends and Loved Ones
I've learned to live without, but Jesus."
For everything inquire of God. Whether it is about your family, friends, marriage, finances and the list goes on. Pursue, overtake, overtake and without fail recover all.

Kid reporter Hilde takes on Corporate America in Season 2 of 'Home Before Dark'

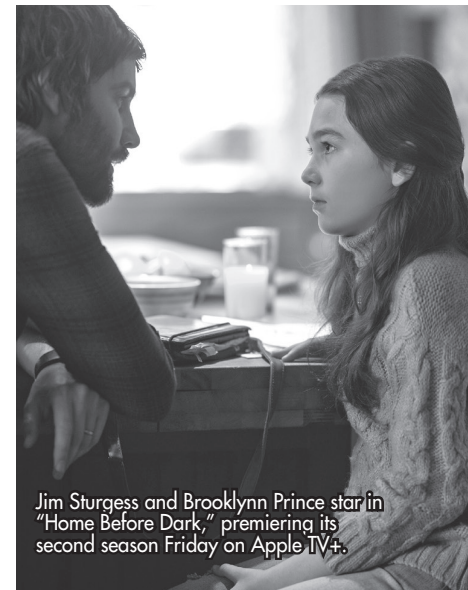

As kid journalist extraordinaire Hilde Lisko and her family try to move on from the Richie Fife story, her attentions turn to another more urgent case as "Home Before Dark" returns for its second season.

Premiering Friday, June 11, on Apple TV+, the new season opens with Hilde (Brooklyn Prince) rocked awake by the sound of an explosion on a nearby farm, which managed to elude the notice of her parents Matthew and Bridget (Jim Sturgess, Abby Miller), sister Izzy (Kylie Rogers), the police and the other citizens of the sleepy burg of Erie Harbor.

But the exploded utility transformer is only one symptom of a much bigger problem. There are dead fish and wildlife all around, helicopters are buzzing the farmer's cattle and even the farmer himself is being harassed. Hilde links it to a major corporation's efforts to persuade the farm's owner to sell them his land, and sensing a major story in the making, Hilde takes up the investigation – with the support of fellow journalist dad Matthew.

"She starts to sort of look into the water supply she believes is being contaminated," Sturgess explains. "A series of events kind of leads her to understand that this corporate world is affecting the small town in which they live and that this money-grabbing corporate industry is not taking care of the people that it's supposed to be. So it's a kind of David and Goliath story that (Hilde) takes on Corporate America in that way."

The new season was filmed over the course of more than a year in Vancouver, where the actors found themselves holed up after production suspended and Canada closed its borders because of the pandemic. During that time, Sturgess became a father for the first time to a son, and he says his on-screen role as dad-of-three Matthew Lisko served as excellent training for his off-screen duties.

"Anyone who has more than one kid I have complete and utter respect for," the British actor says with a laugh, "because I obviously just had my first. ... But it really helped being a part of the show and being around all the kids. I love hanging out with younger people. They're always a lot of fun. So it sort of worked nicely that I was sort of shooting the show, in which I'm playing a dad, and becoming a dad for the very first time. I mean, it all kind of fed into itself in a really positive way."

'Queen of the South' signs off with USA series finale

"Queen of the South" is going south.

The USA Network drama series wraps up its five-season run Wednesday, June 9, with protagonist Teresa Mendoza (played by Alice Braga) presumably settling one last score ... or several. Having fled to America after running afoul of a Mexican drug cartel, she has established her own successful trafficking operation, thus keeping enemies who have stood to gain from dethroning her.

Based on the international bestseller "La Reina Del Sur" by Arturo Perez-Reverte, "Queen of the South" has given Braga a meaty role she's expectedly grateful for. "This is not only the final season, it's the completion of her journey," the actress allows about her character. "She got to be the boss, and she's had to make decisions that she hadn't had to before. She kept trying to run away from that, but the time came for her to just give up and be that."

Braga ends "Queen of the South" satisfied with the course Teresa has taken: "There's so much that has happened to the character, and I'm really thankful to everyone who joined me on the journey and worked on it. It's been a true blast, a dream come true for an actress to have such an arc, and to be able to have such fun with it and to learn from it. Even if Teresa is an antihero, she's a heroine in areas of her own life, someone who has drive."

As with so many series, work on "Queen of the South" was interrupted by the coronavirus pandemic, which ended up making the final season a longer goodbye. "It's been very interesting, very emotional," Braga reflects. "We filmed the first two episodes, then we got shut down for six months, but we kept working on the scripts. I wasn't sure we'd be able to finish, but I'm glad we were able to, because you want to share that with the fans."

Since "Queen of the South's" followers have kept it going for five seasons, would Braga – also known for such movies as "City of God," "I Am Legend" and "Elysium" – be game for some sort of sequel movie or series?

Trying not to specify what happens to Teresa, she says, "I feel like her journey comes to a beautiful end, but many other characters in the show could do a spinoff. I think it's always interesting when you see a different perspective. You never know what could happen. If the fans are still there and want it, why not? My heart is open to whatever might come, but I'm not sure there would be another path for Teresa. In the drug world, a lot of people die."

celebrity q&a

BY GEORGE DICKIE

The short run of 'Rebel': Why it happened

Q: "Rebel" just started. Why has it been canceled already? – Jean Scott, via e-mail

A: Despite massive advance promotion and a strong cast led by Katey Sagal, Andy Garcia and John Corbett, the Erin Brockovich-inspired ABC show ultimately had several factors working against it. As typically is the case with cancellations, the first and foremost consideration was its ratings, which were especially telling because it had one of the strongest lead-ins possible ... "Grey's Anatomy," from the same showrunner (Krista Vernoff). While it's terrific when a new series can cash in on a boost from such an established program, that spotlight also makes it very apparent when it doesn't.

Had the executive who ordered "Rebel" stayed in the same job at ABC, that might have bought the show some additional time, but that wasn't the case. Industry veteran Karey Burke moved over to become chief of 20th Television, and since "Rebel" was inherited by her ABC successor, that left it more vulnerable – particularly from a ratings standpoint, even when factoring in post-broadcast views, which now can be a big factor in whether a show continues or not.

Q: Is "Cruel Summer" based on a book? – Jen Harris, Grand Junction, Colo.

A: No, despite the Freeform saga's incorporation of many themes familiar to readers of young-adult novels. The show, starring Olivia Holt, was created by Bert V. Royal, who also wrote the Emma Stone movie "Easy A" ... another project that dealt heavily in the rites of youth. There is a 2008 novel titled "Cruel Summer" by Alyson Noel, but it's not the same story.

OF 'THE KOMINSKY METHOD' ON NETFLIX

How was it working with Michael Douglas again on "The Kominsky Method"? It was his idea that cast you in Season 3, correct?

I think so. I know that he and (creator and executive producer) Chuck Lorre discussed it. You know, one of the things that I understand is quite unusual though I don't have much experience or any experience really doing series and Chuck Lorre wrote every episode and evidently that isn't (usually) the case. But I'm very, very glad he did. Michael and I just seem to have a natural connection of some kind. It just falls right in, you know?

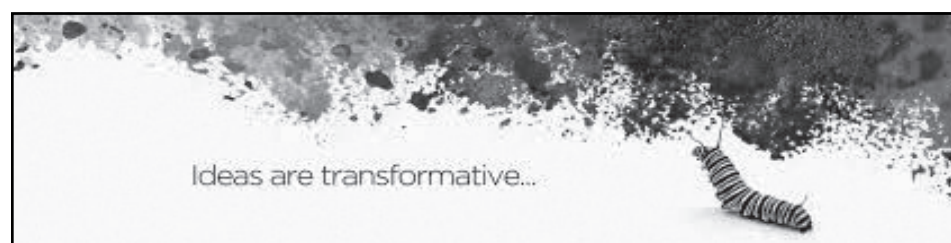

You first met when you did "Romancing the Stone" in 1983?

Yeah, yeah, yeah. He was producing as well as starring in it and so we had a meeting. He asked me out to lunch and we talked about it and I think I had to go in and do a film test to prove that I could be the wallflower that (her character, romance novelist Joan Wilder) is at the beginning, the insecure woman. And so I went in without any makeup and in tattered kind of clothes and stumbled over furniture. And he laughed and then said, "Yeah, OK."

One of the iconic scenes from "Romancing" was the mudslide in the Columbian rainforest but there were actual mudslides during filming. How was it dealing with that?

Oh honey (laughs), it rained so much that we started calling it "Douglasland" because every morning at 4 a.m., he'd have gravel trucks going in to try and lay down the road again. Oh, it was just a mess. It was absolutely a mess – but fun (laughs).

Get out, get away and dine at celebrity chef-owned restaurants

With COVID restrictions loosening and the hospitality industry coming back online, Americans can finally get back to two of their favorite pastimes: traveling and going out to eat.

And if they're so inclined, those who like to travel on their stomach can venture to locations around the country to dine in restaurants owned and/or inspired by their favorite TV chefs. So whether it's Italian, burgers or farm-to-table you crave, there is no doubt an eatery with a celebrity chef's name on it to suit your tastes. Such as the establishments below.

Emeril's New Orleans Fish House, Las Vegas: As the name suggests, seafood and Creole cooking are what's for dinner at Emeril Lagasse's establishment on The Strip at the MGM Grand, offering kicked-up versions of market-fresh fish and shellfish creations alongside flavorful steaks and inspired pork and chicken dishes. And if you're into wine, you can pair your dish with Wine Spectator favorites. Entrees are in the $40-60 range.

Craft Los Angeles: Tom Colicchio brought his "what's local is best" style of cooking from New York to this West Coast establishment that emphasizes seasonal dining and warm hospitality in its main dining room and patio. Among the items on the dinner menu are diver scallops, Wagyu sirloin, Alaskan halibut and a pork rack. Entrees run $32-62.

Bobby's Burger Palace, various locations: Burgers, fries and shakes are what's on the menu of this chain from chef Bobby Flay, which has locations in Maryland, Connecticut, New York, Las Vegas, Ohio, Georgia, New Jersey and Washington, D.C. As one would guess, the creations are imaginative with toppings ranging from blue cheese and bacon to green chilis and cole slaw. There are also salads and other choices for the health-conscious. Prices are sub-$10.

Gordon Ramsay Hell's Kitchen, Las Vegas: Head to Caesars Palace on The Strip to dine at this eatery that offers an a la carte menu with items such as beef Wellington, braised short ribs, jidori chicken scallopini and a dry-aged New York strip. Entree prices run $32-60. There is also a prix fixe three-course menu offered with ($149) and without wine ($90).

GDL Italian by Giada, Baltimore: Giada de Laurentiis shares her signature Italian dishes in an open-concept dining room in this restaurant inside Horseshoe Casino Baltimore, offering her own spins on traditional favorites like chicken parmesan, antipasti, baked lasagna and Tuscan ribeye. Prices are in the $35-60 range. After being closed due to the pandemic, it's slated to reopen this week.

Yassir Lester considers himself a writer and stand-up comic who happens to get nice acting jobs working with talented people. Not an actor, per se.

But he knows he's got a good thing going. In co-starring in two current series – as trader Yassir in Season 3 of the Sunday Showtime comedy “Black Monday” (on which he also serves as a writer) and providing the voice of Yangzi in Season 2 of Fox’s animated Monday sitcom “Duncanville” – the 36-year-old Georgia native stays busy year-round and gets to count the likes of Don Cheadle, Amy Poehler, Regina Hall, Rashida Jones, Casey Wilson, Paul Scheer and Andrew Rannells as his colleagues.

“I keep getting thrown into these situations where it’s not just everyone on this show is new,” Lester explains. “It’s people who are super-famous and established and then I have to run and catch up with them, essentially, or try my hardest. ... Just all these people who are just so good and are in it for real and know their voice and know their timing and have done this. And here’s me just putting on a goofy little (voice) hoping it works out.”

“Black Monday,” in particular, gives him ample opportunity to stretch his comedy muscles both as a writer and an actor. Creators Jordan Cahan and David Caspe assembled a cast capable of going off script and doing considerable improv, which plays into Lester’s background as a stand-up – someone who can think on his feet and be funny off the cuff.

“You’d be shocked how bad of a joke writer you could be and get away with it solely with performance,” Lester says. “And acting is literally just performance. And I’m not a phenomenal actor but I can perform well enough to convince people that I’m OK. And that all comes from stand-up comedy.”

best of... BEST JUDY GARLAND MOVIES

BY JAY BOBBIN

“The Wizard of Oz” (1939) Well of course. Generations continue to regale in the adventures of Dorothy Gale, Garland’s character who is whisked from a Kansas farm – along with Toto, of course – into a magical land where she makes fast friends with the Tin Man, the Scarecrow and the Cowardly Lion (Jack Haley, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr).

“Babes on Broadway” (1941) One of the best of the variations on the “Let’s put on a show!” theme well-covered by Garland and Mickey Rooney, this musical-comedy finds their characters staging a charity benefit.

“For Me and My Gal” (1942) Garland and Gene Kelly are expectedly terrific together as a performing team whose act – and budding romance – may be bashed by wartime obligations. The film is part of a Garland birthday tribute Thursday, June 10, on Turner Classic Movies.

“Meet Me in St. Louis” (1944) The duet of “Under the Bamboo Tree” by Garland and Margaret O’Brien is an irresistible part of this tale of four sisters who resent their father’s job transfer to New York – which means they’ll have to move from their beloved St. Louis with him.

“The Harvey Girls” (1946) Musical highlights including “On the Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe” help fuel this great Garland musical about several train passengers headed West to open a restaurant.

“Easter Parade” (1948) You surely know on which holiday this picture always makes a television appearance. Irving Berlin’s score fuels this saga with Garland, Fred Astaire and Ann Miller as performers whose career choices largely are dictated by their romantic ties, past and present.

“In the Good Old Summertime” (1949) The premise of unidentified loves that also has driven “The Shop Around the Corner” and “You’ve Got Mail” services this great musical, which – as Liza Minnelli points out in “That’s Entertainment!” – features her, at a very young age, with mom Garland in the closing scene.

“Summer Stock” (1950) Reunited with Gene Kelly, Garland is highly enjoyable as a farmer who lends her barn to a theater troupe, with typical MGM-musical romantic complications following in 3 ... 2 ... 1.

“A Star Is Born” (1954) Garland is the main factor setting this version of the much-told tale apart as she plays Esther Blodgett, whose showbiz career rises – under the stage name Vicki Lester – as that of the man she loves, Norman Maine (James Mason), sinks. Standout musical performances by Garland include “The Man That Got Away” and “Born in a Trunk.”

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

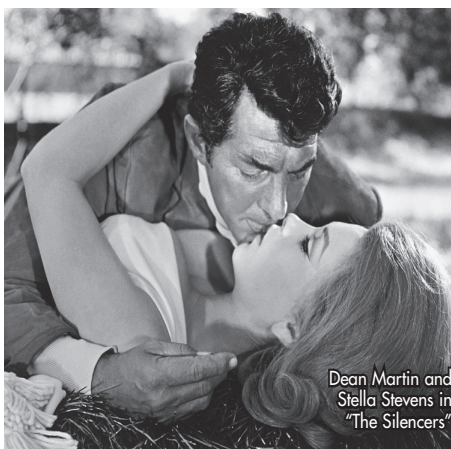

Dean Martin is Matt Helm, or vice versa, in 'The Silencers'

At the peak of the spy-movie craze, there was James Bond, of course ... but there was also Matt Helm. Novelist Donald Hamilton's rugged secret-agent character gave Columbia Pictures what would become a four-film franchise, but Helm's image underwent quite a transformation in the hands of Dean Martin, who reshaped it (with the help of directors and screenwriters, of course) to fit his famously casual persona. The first picture in the series – 1966's "The Silencers" – leads off a Turner Classic Movies birthday tribute to Martin on Monday, June 7.

Helm's professional cover is that of a professional photographer, and he just happens to have a specially rigged camera that fires knives for his work in espionage. Ostensibly retired from sleuthing, he's drawn back into active duty by the agency ICE. A villain (Victor Buono, whose consumption of cans of a diet supplement in the opening sequence sets the movie's tone) is bent on using a missile potentially to spark a nuclear war, and Helm is deemed to be the man to stop him.

If that seems like standard-issue spy stuff, the difference is Martin, whose breezy style lightens the proceedings considerably without making them totally comical. It's hard to say that any real suspense is generated here, but the star performs what action he's called upon to do quite ably, whether getting tough with a possible enemy agent (Stella Stevens) or handling weapons in the inevitable climactic shootout.

There's little question that certain elements of "The Silencers" belong to their original times – the name of Helm's alluring assistant, Lovey Kravetz (played by Beverly Adams) isn't likely to please come viewers now – but that somewhat dated feel, which was meant to be oh-so-hip 55 years ago (extending to Martin also singing on the soundtrack), offers its own sort of entertainment value today. That also goes for the special effects, decidedly low-rent when put up against modern standards.

Dean Martin and Stella Stevens in "The Silencers"

The Helm movies got progressively weaker with "Murderers' Row," "The Ambushers" and "The Wrecking Crew" ... so as TCM evidently knows, if you're going to see one of the pictures, "The Silencers" is the one. It also benefits from having such performing stalwarts as Arthur O'Connell, Robert Webber, James Gregory (who would reprise the part of Helm's boss in later movies), Roger C. Carmel and MGM-musical veteran Cyd Charisse, who basically is on hand for a couple of dance-performance sequences.

Even with all of them also on hand, "The Silencers" principally is Dean Martin's show, making it a fitting choice to start his birthday the TCM way.

"Everybody get up, it's time to slam now. We got a real jam goin' down. Welcome to the Space Jam!" This follow-up to the original 1996 film combines live-action with traditional hand-drawn 2D animation and 3D CGI effects to tell the story of a basketball icon (LeBron James) and his son (Cedric Joe) who end up trapped in a virtual world ruled by a rogue A.I. (Don Cheadle). Also expect to see Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and Porky Pig.

STEVE HARVEY

Broderick Stephen "Steve" Harvey was born on Jan. 17, 1957, in Welch, W. Va. — with his given first name taken from Oscar-winning actor Broderick Crawford. Harvey was raised primarily in Cleveland (where the street on which he lived was re-named for him), and he attended Kent State University and West Virginia University.

In the course of doing various jobs from autoworker to mailman, Harvey began performing stand-up comedy in the mid-1980s; he was homeless for several years during that period. Placing as a finalist in a national comedy contest did much to set Harvey on his eventual path, and he became the host of the syndicated program "It's Showtime at the Apollo." After landing the sitcom "Me and the Boys," he moved on to "The Steve Harvey Show," which ran for six seasons.

On the stand-up circuit, Harvey teamed with fellow comics Cedric the Entertainer, D.L. Hughley and Bernie Mac for the hugely popular "Original Kings of Comedy" tour — which Spike Lee filmed for theatrical release. Also a syndicated morning-radio host and a bestselling author ("Act Like a Lady, Think Like a Man"), Harvey has appeared in such movies as "The Fighting Temptations," "Love Don't Cost a Thing," "Johnson Family Vacation" and "You Got Served."

Harvey became the host of the syndicated game show "Family Feud" in 2010, guiding two family-based teams through guessing the most popular responses to a survey. While that version continues, he also presides over the ABC variation "Celebrity Family Feud," which begins its eighth season Sunday, June 6. He hosts the talk show "Steve on Watch" on Facebook Watch as well.

A syndicated talk-show host for several years, Harvey began hosting the Miss Universe Pageant in 2015, and he received considerable attention his first year when the "winner" he announced turned out to be incorrect. He also has hosted New Year's Eve specials for Fox.

Married three times, Harvey has four biological children (from his first two marriages) and three stepchildren. He and his family split their time between Atlanta and Chicago for many years, but he's now based in Los Angeles.

Sara Haines picks up the pace of 'The Chase' for Season 2

After a break of several months, "The Chase" is on again.

The Sara Haines-hosted ABC game show — based on a long-popular international format — returns for a second season Sunday, June 6. As more contestants match wits against "Jeopardy!" champions in a trivia showdown, "The Chase" will be sandwiched weekly between the Steve Harvey-fronted "Celebrity Family Feud" and Anthony Anderson's take on "To Tell the Truth" in a night of "Summer Fun & Games."

Now that "The Chase" has been established for American viewers, "We're going to be able to go faster," reports the pleasant Haines ... who already has been going fast by necessity, particularly during the initial two-minute question round in which she has to get numerous, often unfamiliar pronunciations right.

"We were introducing what was a new show to a lot of audience members," notes Haines. "You've got to make sure that you speak clearly and not too fast, but I've been given the green light to 'play' a little more. I'm excited, because I think that will amp up the energy. And there are surprises that I can't reveal!"

Sunday is only one summer night ABC is devoting to games. Wednesdays are now occupied by Elizabeth Banks' "Press Your Luck" and Michael Strahan's "The $100,000 Pyramid," with Joel McHale's "Card Sharks" contest "Holey Moley 3D in 2D" and Craig Ferguson's "The Hustler."

While acknowledging the bountiful summer game play ABC has, Haines — also a co-host of ABC's "The View" weekdays — admits to being "a little biased" in viewing "The Chase"

Pato O'Ward a force to be reckoned with in IndyCar

Pato O'Ward is one of IndyCar's brightest young stars. But the upcoming Chevrolet Detroit Grand Prix provided him with one of his darkest moments of 2019.

It was on the 2.35-mile, 14-turn street course on Belle Isle where the Mexico native turned in one of the worst performances of his rookie year in the series, finishing 14th out of 22 drivers in Race 1 and 11th in Race 2. It was one of seven races he'd run that year after signing a part-time deal with Carlin and he wound up finishing 26th in points.

But 2020, a bad year for most everybody, proved to be the 22-year-old's breakthrough season. In a pandemic-abbreviated 14-race schedule, he took fourth place in the IndyCar standings, registering four podium finishes and one pole. And in his inaugural appearance in the Indianapolis 500, he wound up in sixth place, thus earning him the race's Rookie of the Year honors.

This season, it's been more of the same for the driver of the No. 5 Chevrolet for Arrow McLaren SP, as he's in second place in series points as of mid-May, with two podiums in four starts, including his first IndyCar win at Texas Motor Speedway, which he considers his home track.

Saturday and Sunday, June 12 and 13, he'll be looking to put the bad memories of two years ago in the Motor City behind him when he vies with a field including Scott Dixon, Ryan Hunter-Reay, Josef Newgarden and Takuma Sato in the twin races of the 2021 Chevrolet Detroit Grand Prix, both of which air on NBC.
