Howard College board to discuss 75th Anniversary Monday

By ROGER CLINE
Herald Staff Writer

The Howard County Junior College District's Board of Trustees will discuss several items, including the college district's response to COVID-19 and Open Howard College, as well as plans for the college's 75th Anniversary celebration.

The board will meet at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Howarrd College – Big Spring Student Union Building Fireplace Room. Those wishing to attend the meeting remotely can do so by calling 1-888-204-5987 and entering the Access Code 3148424#.

Following the invocation and Pledge of Allegiance at the start of the meeting, several routine matters will be considered for approval, including the minutes of the June 23 regular meeting and financials for June; monthly reports of auxiliary services; personnel matters; and an Internal Audit Report.

In New Business, trustees will consider visioning and future directions for the Howard College system, including the COVID-19 response and 75th Anniversary plans mentioned above. The trustees will also consider a budget update, including updates from the Howard County Appraisal District regarding certification of values, a new chief appraiser and director, and the Appraisal District's budget; the Howard County Tax Assessor, including the 2021 tax rate calculation, reaffirmation of the agreement for assessment and collection of taxes and the tax collection fee budget; and Federal Funding.

The trustees will also consider matters related to the issuance and sale of Howard County Junior College District Consolidated Fund Revenue Refunding Bonds, Series 2021, including the adoption of an order authorizing the issuance of the bonds and establishing procedures and delegating authority for the sale and delivery of the bonds.

Following the business portion of the meeting, trustees will discuss performance measures and outcomes, including accountability measures and monitoring. Included will be discussion regarding operational, finan-

Don't start your new business alone

By MARK WILLIS
Big Spring EDC Director

With the slow return to normal (fingers crossed) after the end of the pandemic a number of people will be thinking of starting their own businesses to take advantage of the opportunities afforded as the economy recovers from the recession caused by the virus. Having been a small business owner myself, I applaud the courage and determination required to take that entrepreneurial leap, but I urge people making that leap to do all they can in preparation before doing it.

The truth of the matter is that four of five startup businesses fail within the first five years for a variety of reasons mostly associated with inexperience coupled with poor planning. It is not that the people starting the business do not have a good product/idea or that they are lazy, it is just that there is a lot more to being successful in a business than most of us realize.

This is not to say that a startup cannot succeed, Starbucks began with one location and, famously, Microsoft launched out of a garage, but that statistic of four of five failing within five years tell us just how unusual those examples are. First and foremost, one needs to understand the basics of the business one wants to start. For instance, if you want to open a restaurant you have to learn how to cook, and this holds true for any business one might want to pursue.

However, most people do know the details of the base business they want to get into, as often it represents a lifelong interest and passion. Yet most will still fail because of business management details they lack expertise to address. Most often this has to do with a lack of financial understanding and knowing exactly what the capital requirements of opening a business and keeping it going until it catches on entails.

Most of us when exploring opening our dream business find that we will have to get financing in addition to risking our own life savings and likely investment from family and friends. This generally involves banking, creating a business plan and marketing expertise most of us do not have.

Luckily in Big Spring and Howard County there is a source of help in this regard. The Big Spring Economic Development Corporation contracts with an entity that exists to help startup and small businesses in general, at no cost to the entrepreneur.

Avoiding heat stroke as summer draws closer to an end

By AMANDA DUFORAT
Managing Editor

Temperatures are starting to rise again, and summer weather and clear skies are allowing families to spend more time outdoors. As more time is spent in the heat, whether for work or for play, local health care providers are issuing reminders of signs to be aware of to avoid heat stroke.

"The best way to avoid heat stroke is to prepare, prepare, prepare. Drink plenty of fluids and rehydrate whenever possible; wear loose, comfortable, light colored clothing, a hat and sunglasses. It's important to seek shade and go indoors with air conditioning when possible," Brian Nelson, M.D. Emergency Room Physician, said. "It's important to avoid prolonged exertion and excessive alcohol."

Heat stroke is defined by your body overheating from primarily exposure to or by physical exertion in high temperatures. Heat stroke requires emergency treatment and can be identified by the following symptoms:

- High body temperature of 104°F or higher.
- Altered mental state or behavior - confusion, agitation, slurred speech, irritability, delirium, seizures, and coma can all result from heat stroke.
- Alteration in sweating. In heat stroke brought on by hot weather, your skin will not sweat although feeling hot and dry to the touch.
- Nausea and vomiting; You may feel sick to your stomach or vomit.
- Flushed skin; Your skin may

Seal coat contractor, budget filing delay discussed at County meeting Monday

By ROGER CLINE
Herald Staff Writer

Howard County Commissioners discussed several items during a special meeting Friday morning.

County Road Engineer Brian Klinksiek led off the meeting with request for the county leaders' approval of a contractor for county seal coat projects.

"It is my recommendation that we accept Lipham Asphalt and Paving Company for the late-season seal coat," Klinksiek told the commissioners. "This one, and that we move forward and go to contract."

Lipham Asphalt and Paving Company is a contractor located in Aspermont, Texas. Commissioners unanimously approved Klinksiek's request.

This week's reviews are fiction audiobooks. The Lake sisters are perfect opposites in A Walk Along the Beach (AUCD F MAC D) by Debbie Macomber. After their mother died and their father was lost in grief, Willa had no choice but to raise her sister, Harper, and their brother, Lucas. Then, as an adult, she put her own life on hold to nurse Harper through a terrifying illness. Now that Harper is better and the sisters are living as roommates, Willa has realized her dream of running her own bakery and coffee shop, bringing her special brand of caretaker to the whole Oceanside community. Harper, on the other hand, is always on the go. Overcoming a terrible illness has given her a new lease on life, and she does not intend to waste it. When Harper announces her plan to summit Mount Rainier, Willa fears she may be pushing herself too far. Harper, for her part, urges Willa to stop worrying and do something outside of her comfort zone, like taking a chance on love with a handsome new customer. Sean O'Malley is as charming as he is intriguing, a freelance photographer whose assignments take him to the ends of the earth. Soon Willa's falling for him in a way that is both exciting and terrifying. But life has taught Willa to hedge her bets, and she wonders whether the potential heartache is worth the risk. Life has more challenges in store for them all. But both sisters will discover that even in the darkest moments, family is everything.

Mma Ramotswe reconnects with an old friend who has been having problems with her daughter in To the Land of Long Lost Friends - No. 1 Ladies' Detective Agency #20 (AUCD F MCC A) by Alexander McCall Smith. Though Precious feels compelled to lend a hand, she discovers that getting involved in family affairs is always a delicate proposition. Mr. J.L.B. Matekoni finds himself embroiled in familial drama as well, when one of his clients asks for help evicting an unwanted houseguest who turns out to be the man's own brother. Elsewhere, Charlie and Fanwell are also involved in tricky matters of the heart, as Queenie-Queenie, Charlie's girlfriend, seems to have transferred her affections to Fanwell. It's up to Mma Makutsi to set things right, but she may be too distracted by her nemesis Violet Sepotho, who has somehow been appointed to the board of a charity. What is Violet up to now? As all of these mysteries are unraveled, Mma Ramotswe and the entire No. 1 Ladies' Detective Agency will be reminded of the value of tried-and-true wisdom to never judge a book by its cover.

Three stories in The River Murders - Mitchum #1-3 (AUCD F PAT J) by James Patterson. HIDDEN: After being rejected from the Navy SEALs, Mitchum becomes his small town's unofficial private eye but his investigation skills are put to the test when he must find his missing teenage cousin and uncovers a government conspiracy in the process. MALICIOUS: Mitchum is back. His brother's been charged with murder. Nathaniel swears he didn't kill anyone, but word on the street is that he was involved with the victim's wife. Now, Navy SEAL dropout Mitchum will break every rule to expose the truth, even if it destroys the people he loves. MALEVOLENT: Mitchum has never been more desperate. One by one his loved ones have become victims of carefully staged attacks. There's only one way to stop the ruthless mastermind intent on destroying everyone around him, to go on the most dangerous hunt of his life.

Caitlyn Sullivan, a daughter of Hollywood royalty, was already a star at ten, but still loved to play hide-and-seek with her cousins at the family home in Big Sur in Hideaway (AUCD F ROB N) by Nora Roberts. It was during one of those games that she disappeared. Despite her glamorous background, Cate was a shrewd, scrappy survivor, and she managed to escape her abductors. Dillon Cooper was shocked to find the bruised and terrified girl huddled in his ranch house kitchen but when the teenager and his family heard her story they provided refuge and comfort, reuniting her with her loved ones. Cate's ordeal, though, was far from over. First came the discovery of a betrayal that would send someone she'd trusted to prison. Then there were years away in Ireland, sheltered and protected but with restlessness growing in her soul. Then, finally, she returned to Los Angeles, hoping to act again and get past the trauma that had derailed her life. What she didn't yet know was that two seeds had been planted that long-ago night one of a great love, and one of a terrible vengeance.

In other business, commissioners unanimously approved an agreement with Walker Planning Group LLC for temporary contract services.

Wiseman said, along with the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ), Walker will inspect prospective temporary housing areas in Howard County.

"When someone wants to put in a subdivision or a manufactured home rental area, like RVs, we needed someone to look at their plans, look at their plat, and make sure they are doing everything according to our subdivision rules and also state rules, TCEQ rules," Wiseman said. "We need somebody to look at that and approve that plat, and then recommend whether or not the county should agree to let them do that. This has been a real problem for the county in the past. If you'll remember, in the last two oil booms, we had, especially, RV centers popping up everywhere, and it was up to the TCEQ representative for Howard County to look at everything. But their limit was, they could only look at the septic system. So there was some review, but not a total review."

Wiseman said that going forward, both the Walker Planning Group and the TCEQ will need to sign off on this type of housing areas in the county.

Commissioners also approved the sale of a tax deed parcel, designated Parcel R00008738, for $3,150. The parcel is designated "Lot 1, Blk. 107, of the Original Town of Big Spring."

Finally, County Auditor Jackie Olson alerted the commissioners that the filing date for the county's annual budget has been pushed back.

"Originally, we had to file the proposed budget with the clerk at the end of July," Olson said. "That wasn't a definite, but 'as soon as possible.' But the judge got notice that we don't have to do that until August 15. So I'm going to hold off, because we're out of balance right now."

Olson said she plans to file the budget by Aug. 13.

A worldclass garden near downtown Cowtown

When the summer heat is at its peak people in Fort Worth seek refuge in the shade and beauty of the city's Botanic Garden in Forest Park.

"We're very well situated," says Steve Huddleston, who served 26 years as the garden's senior horticulturalist. "We are just west of downtown Fort Worth in an urban setting and yet we have this green space here so close to the downtown area. It's a wonderful place for people to retreat and enjoy nature and see flowers. We're an outdoor museum of living plants so we fit very well into the museum district, the cultural district. We're the green lawn of the city, so to speak."

The garden has a significant history. "We are the oldest public Botanic Garden in Texas. We began in 1934. Our rose garden was the first public relief program in Fort Worth. It put a lot of men to work during the depression."

The garden covers 110 acres and even during the pandemic attracts 200,000 visitors a year. Steve says there is so much to see and experience he recommends visitors spend at least three hours in the garden.

"We have a water conservation garden, a perennial garden, a fragrance garden. In all we have about 25 gardens that feature different kinds of plants."

Throughout the year, the garden has all sorts of events and educational opportunities. The Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra does a concert over a 3-day period. There are formal teas in the garden and the exhibits are always changing. Just recently there were woodpeckers, gardeners, a praying mantis and other figures made from Legos

"Right now we have an exhibit called Stick Work which consists of saplings from American Elm and Rough Leaf Dogwood that were woven or fashioned into a structure that you can walk through, look through and explore. It's very interesting."

Sculptures are throughout the garden and there are several water features such as lagoons waterfalls and pools. A popular destination is the Japanese Garden.

"That's a 7-acre garden. It has 3 large pools filled with Koi fish and is beautifully landscaped with plants native to Eastern Asia especially Japan. We have a lot of interesting structures in there as well. The whole environment is very authentic."

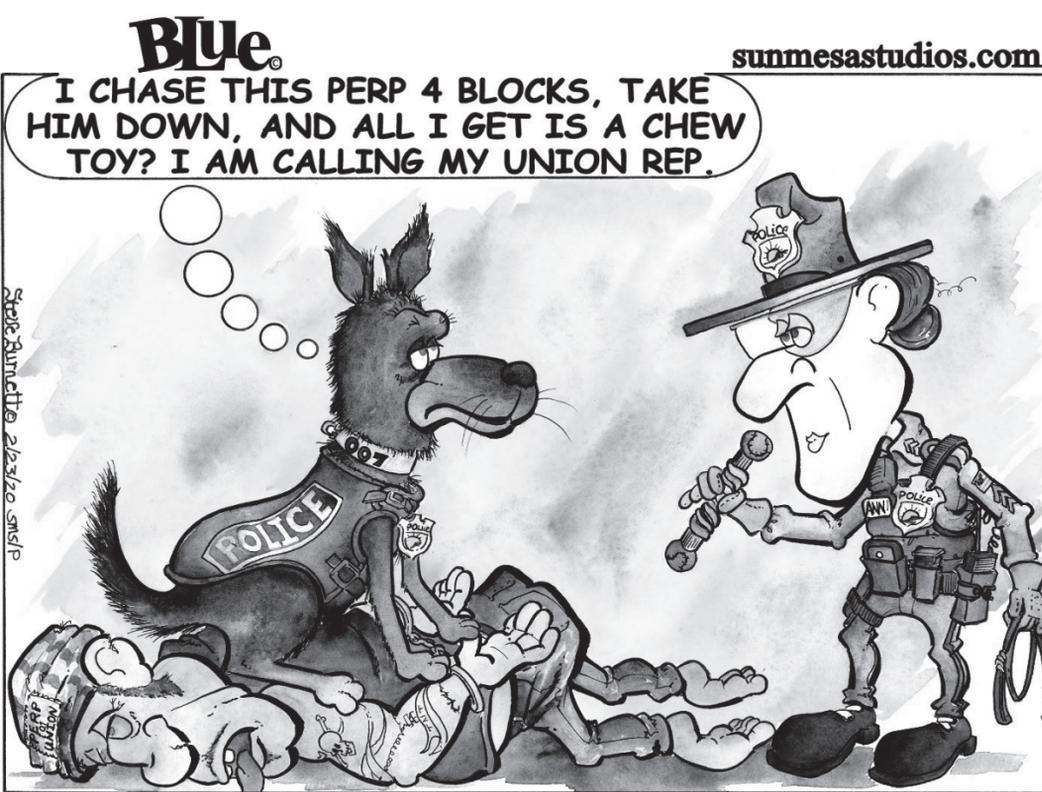

Steve thinks a visit to the garden is extremely uplifting.

"I love flowers. They are absolutely beautiful. Their form, their shape, their colors, their fragrance. They make us feel good."

A mushroom (devil's cigar) emerged from roots of cedar elm trees in the garden. The state legislature named it the official mushroom of Texas. It opens up like a star.

Hallie and space matters

What are the odds that two remote communities in the far reaches of West Texas would have much in common in what we've called the "space race" since Russia launched Sputnik. The USA shifted into overdrive with its Apollo 11 project for Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin to make first footprints on the moon.

Now, exactly 52 years later, Amazon founder Jeff Bezos and three other passengers have made a 66-mile journey to the edge of outer space, there and back in 10 minutes!

What, you may ask, does this have to do with two "far reaches" in West Texas? One is obvious, what with Van Horn being chosen for the Bezos' launching of Blue Origin. The other "far reach" is but 80 miles away in an even smaller community, Fort Davis, TX, where the crew of Apollo 11 had one of its final news conferences. (Fort Davis is located near McDonald Observatory, one of the crew's "prep" stops.)... At Fort Davis before the launching--and at Van Horn when the foursome returned the other day--probably similar questions were posed. Radio/TV/newspaper figures from throughout the world know which questions to ask and how to interpret responses.

In Van Horn, however, one person was missing who no doubt would have come up with a corker of a question. Her name was Hallie Stillwell, who made her earthly exit at age 99 a couple of dozen years ago.

For the longest time, this versatile ranch woman and a member of the Texas Women Hall of Fame, wrote a weekly column for the Alpine Avalanche. Her focus narrowed greatly for her readers who, let's say, were in the "teeming hundreds."

She was sent to Fort Davis for the Apollo 11 news conference, where world-renowned news personalities gathered. There, too, was Hallie, tablet and pencil in hand.

Don't think for a minute that Hallie was intimidated by the astronauts, scientific giants and golden-throated broadcasters. She had every bit as much spunk and grit as Marjorie Maine and Irene Ryan, who held their own against their husbands and the world in "Ma and Pa Kettle" and "Beverly Hillbillies" movies.

In whatever Hallie attempted, she scored high, perhaps the most versatile woman ever from the Old West.

Should Hallie be the subject of your Google prowling, don't stop with the first paragraph or two. Oh, during her early adult years, she was what her folks probably would have called a "proper woman," a schoolteacher and all.

Uh oh. She fell in with a rancher twice her age, and when 20 was in Presidio teaching school. (It was during her time there that Pancho Villa was creating havoc on both sides of the border.)

When her husband died at age 48 in a trucking accident, she took on all the ranching duties, but that's not all. She was a lecturer, author, historian and community leader. Finally, she moved into Alpine, where, for many years, she wrote her weekly column and was Justice of the Peace. To say she was "colorful" might be the understatement of the space age.

During my association with Sul Ross State University 1963-1967, I knew Hallie and another colorful character named John (Cas) Casparis. The Alpine municipal airport is named in his memory. In aviation, they say there are "old pilots" and "bold pilots," but no "old, bold pilots." Well, Casparis was, he who shot coyotes from the open cockpit and whose take-offs and landings did NOT always come out even.

He also liked to "fire away" at birds when he was airborne. (I don't know what kind they were, and like Hallie, he's not here to ask.)

He, too, was colorful...

For closure, let's spotlight Hallie at the news conference.

After the media moguls finished their barrage of questions, Hallie held up her hand, asking what millions wondered.

"You fellers don't really think you are going to set foot on the moon, do you?"

Looking at the big picture: why mental health is such an important topic

By DUSTIN POPE

Herald Sports Writer

The biggest news out of the Olympics so far is Simone Biles. The former Olympic gold medalist, and who is regarded the GOAT of women's gymnastics, pulled out of both the team event and the individual event at the Tokyo games. Biles, one of the most respected names globally, cited "mental health issues" as her reasoning for withdrawing from the Olympic events. Social media blew up after the star gymnast made the statement. Many of the observations and judgments were spiteful, and in my mind, out of order.

Mental health is a very tricky, sometimes even imposing, item to talk about. It can be rough for someone to accept they may be troubled or go through a rough time. The fact of the matter is that most of us will deal with some mental health issue at some point in our lives. Life can be trying; we all can go through the ordeals of everyday living. Sometimes it's just a lot to deal with, and we may not know how or the way to negotiate with life's complications.

That's why speaking up when you are struggling is very essential. So many times, it embarrasses people they may be depressed. Or maybe you are dealing with something way beyond depression; perhaps it is an addiction that you can't shake. Whatever you are working through, it is ok to reveal to someone. Let anybody who will listen know what's going on. Because when you don't speak up and communicate about your issues, then often, they can exacerbate. There is definitely nothing to be hesitant about for your mental health. So many individuals in this world remain mum and don't speak up when they need to the most. This can lead to a serious game. Mental health is no laughing matter. How we feel and how we negotiate with those feelings is so profoundly important. This life is way too short and precious to throw away over being too prideful to admit when you have a problem.

Over the last few years, mental health and well-being have been more common. There are many athletes and actors who have admitted their conflicts with addiction, and of course, being depressed. Many people wonder how these stars could even be depressed; I mean, they have everything they could ever want. Well, guess what everything they are human, just like you and me, and they likewise live lives we don't see. Some of these athletes and actors have the spotlight to let their troubles be admitted, so maybe their story will get out, and someone else will reach out for help. That is precisely what Simone Biles did at these Tokyo Olympics. As rough as it had to be for her with the Tokyo Olympics, she took a step back, and she placed her psychological health first. She recognized she wasn't ok, and she required aid. This is a prime illustration of what a staunch champion looks like; she came out in front of the biggest stage in the world and asked for help. If everybody who had problems did this, then we would make immense strides toward understanding more about how to deal with our emotional issues. Listen, you may not be Simone Biles, but if you are reading this, then I'm presuming you are human, and we are all susceptible to experiencing problems; no matter how much we want to be, we are not perfect. It is not a sign of weakness. It's a symbol of being a strong-willed person to speak up.

I dealt with many issues myself for an exceedingly lengthy time and just kept silent about it because it embarrassed me I felt depressed. I'll concede that I wasn't strong enough to accept that I had a problem. I was in denial, and I'm advising you from experience that's not the thing to do to yourself. I wasted years of my life struggling when I could have had peace long before I revived it. If I had just been brave enough to admit, I was struggling with my emotions.

With mental health in the limelight right now. This will be a positive subject. It will help get the word out that mental health is like any other injury you may undergo. It can be cared for and fixed; Get the proper help. If you or someone you know is struggling and may need help, please don't be scared to reach out. I can tell you from personal experience it will be the best thing you have ever done. Being content in your life is just as significant as any other aspect of life, so please get the help you need.

The Howard County 4-H club had four members compete in the State games at the National Shooting Sports Complex in San Antonio.

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

July 20-24, 2021, Howard County 4-H Shooting Sports members participated in the Texas 4-H State Games held at the National Shooting Sports Complex in San Antonio. Howard County had four representatives for Archery, including Brynlea Gordon 1st place in Clout, Erynn Kelley 4th place in Wand, Colby Jones 4th place in Clout, and Kaeli Woodall. Howard County also had seven representatives for shotgun, including Wiley Gaskins, Tye Gaskins, Landon Kelley, Kirby Huffman, Nathan Carpenter, Colt Woodall, and Garrison Proctor.

The courses were challenging, and everyone competed well. The 4-Hers had lots of fun within their events and met new people from around the State.

If you or anyone is interested in participating in shooting sports for the upcoming year. In that case, we will have our Howard County 4-H Kick-off meeting on September 12th from 2-5 pm at the GC Broughton Ag Complex on the Howard College campus.

Kings get defensive help with Baylor's Davion Mitchell

By MICHAEL WAGAMAN

Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The Kings finally have a defensive anchor in the backcourt. Sacramento also added some beef to its frontcourt with the addition of a 7-foot shot blocker from Portugal.

Davion Mitchell, a two-way guard whose defensive skills were pivotal during Baylor's championship run, was selected by the Kings with the ninth overall pick to improve a defense that has been among the NBA's worst for several seasons.

Sacramento also drafted center Neemias Queta, who set the Utah State record for career blocked shots.

"They both represent exactly what we're trying to build here," Kings general manager Monte McNair said. "We didn't go in targeting defense necessarily. We wanted the best players, the best talents, the best people we could get. We're obviously excited that they ended up to be two pretty darn good defenders as well."

Mitchell averaged 14.0 points, 5.5 assists and 2.7 rebounds while helping the Bears to their first national title in more than 50 years last season. The 22-year-old was the Naismith defensive player of the year, averaging 1.9 steals during his final season at Baylor.

"Coming into the league I can just do what I do best," Mitchell said. "Put pressure on the ball, make their life harder, guard the best players and try to throw something at them that they've never seen before. Me being myself, I think we'll be a really good defensive team coming in."

His defense earned Mitchell the nickname "Off Night" because of his opponents' tendency to have a poor shooting game against him.

"I hope there's many off nights in our opponents' future this year," McNair said. "I love everything that he brings, that he stands for. The mental-ity that he's going to go in and shut down the other team's best player, which he did all throughout his college career, (is) just an incredible asset to add into the team we're building here."

Mitchell should make an immediate impact in Sacramento, where the Kings were one of the NBA's worst defensive teams last season. At 6-foot-2, 205 pounds, Mitchell possesses an aggressive and physical attitude the Kings have been missing for years.

Coach Luke Walton's team was 28th in points allowed and 30th in defensive shooting percentage. Improving the overall defense was paramount to McNair's offseason plans as he tries to help the Kings end their NBA record-tying 15-year playoff drought.

2 package fragrance free wipes
1 box of Ziploc sandwich bags
1 art shirt (old large T-shirt)
1 set of extra clothing for accidents (shirt, pants, underwear, and socks)
1 large backpack, without wheels (small backpacks will not hold the take home folders)

Plastic blue and red napping mat (KinderMat 1" x19"x45" not the thick 2" one) Beach towel/blanket (no longer than 24"x44") optional - small pillow (no larger than 12"x16") with pillowcase. Due to limited space in our cart we are asking you NOT to send large mats, blankets, or pillows

We will be asking for snack money three times this year: $7 in August, $7 in December and $7 in March, or if you can send $20 at the beginning of school, this will cover your child's snacks for the year.

Please label all supplies with your child's name and emphasize to them that these supplies will be left at school.

Kindergarten

1 backpack (no wheels or pull-out handles so it will fit in the locker)
1 plastic school box
2 packages of #2 Pencils (please no plastic wrapped or glitter pencils - they will ruin our classroom sharpener)
2 boxes of Crayola crayons (no fat or fluorescent) - we only use the red, orange, yellow, green, blue, purple, brown, black, white, peach, pink, and gray, but the 24 pack is usually the cheapest at the beginning of the year
2 package of colored pencils - classic colors, not twistable
2 package of washable markers - classic colors only

Welcome back to classes
Aug. 12

Enjoy a healthy after school snack, after your first day of school:

INSTRUCTIONS

PEANUT BUTTER BANANA MUFFIN

Preheat oven to 375°F (190°C).
In a medium bowl, mix together flour, oats, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, and salt.
In another bowl, mash bananas then add peanut butter, honey, Greek yogurt, almond milk, egg, and vanilla extract.
Add wet ingredients to dry ingredients and mix until well combined.
Line the muffin tin with liners and evenly pour mixture into the cups.
Bake for 14-18 minutes. If you gently touch the top of the muffin it should spring back when done.

GLAZE

Combine the confectioner's sugar and almond milk in a small bowl. Whisk until smooth and creamy.
When muffins are cool, top muffins with almond milk glaze

INGREDIENTS

PEANUT BUTTER BANANA MUFFIN

1 cup (125g) All-Purpose Flour
1 cup (80g) Rolled Oats
1 teaspoon Baking Powder

United States MLB prospects, released players beat Israel 8-1 in Olympics

By RONALD BLUM

AP Baseball Writer

YOKOHAMA, Japan — Speedskating silver medalist Eddy Alvarez put the U.S. ahead with the first of his two RBI doubles, and the United States beat Israel 8-1 in the Americans' Olympic opener on Friday night.

Tyler Austin hit a two-run homer, doubled twice and drove in three runs in his home ballpark.

Denied players on 40-man major league rosters, the U.S. started a mix of prospects unneeded by major league teams this summer and released players. Nine of the 10 starters totaled a career WAR of -1.0; the exception was Todd Frazier at 25.1.

Joe Ryan (1-0), a 25-year-old Triple-A right-hander acquired by Minnesota last week in the trade that sent Nelson Cruz to Tampa Bay, relied on a 92 mph fastball. He allowed one run and five hits in six innings with three strikeouts.

Showing how far from the usual farm systems that Olympic baseball players come from, Israel brought in 42-year right-hander Shlomo Lipetz to relieve in the sixth inning. His day job is director of music programming at City Winery in New York.

Joey Wagman (0-1), a 30-year-old righty who has never pitched above Double-A, gave up three runs and four hits in three innings. Israel dropped to 0-2 in Group B of its Olympic baseball debut.

Alvarez, who earned a 2014 medal in short track speedskating, is now a Miami Marlins' Triple-A player and was a flag bearer during last week's opening ceremony. He looped a hanging curve off the end of his bat into short left field in the three-run third at empty Yokohama Stadium.

Austin, a former Yankee playing in his second season with the Central League's Yokohama DeNA BayStars, drove a high fastball on the next pitch over the right-center field wall for a 3-0 lead.

Danny Valencia, whose last big league season was 2018, drove in Israel's run when he lined an up fastball over the left-field wall leading off the fourth, cutting the lead to 3-1.

Frazier reached when Ian Kinsler bobbled his grounder in the sixth for an error and scored when Bubba Starling popped the ball into short left field and it hit off the glove of diving shortstop Scotty Burcham for an RBI single.

Alvarez and Austin hit consecutive RBI doubles in the seventh off Jonathan de Marte after center fielder Blake Gailen dropped Jamie Westbrook's leadoff fly ball for an error.

Starling added a run-scoring grounder in the eighth, and Boston prospect Triston Casas singled in a run in the ninth.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC 1, MEXICO 0

Melky Cabrera hit a run-scoring single with two outs in the fifth and Jose Bautista threw out the potential tying run at home plate as the Dominicans (1-1) beat Mexico (0-1).

Charlie Valerio, a 30-year-old catcher with Sioux Falls in the independent American Association, doubled leading off the fifth against Theodore Stankiewicz (0-1), a 27-year-old right-hander who pitched in Boston's minor league system and is with Tijuana. Cabrera, a 15-year big league veteran who last played with Pittsburgh in 2019, sliced a single to left.

Mexico threatened in the sixth after Isaac Rodriguez reached on a bunt single; a video review reversed the initial out call by the first base umpire. Rodriguez advanced on Valerio's passed ball, and Joey Meneses singled to left.

Bautista, a six-time All-Star who is 40 and made his last big league appearance in 2018, threw a one-hop strike to Valerio for the tag. With two on and two outs, Daniel Espinoza hit a flyout that center fielder Emilio Bonifacio snagged with a backhand grab on the warning track.

Ángel Sánchez (1-0), a 31-year-old right-hander whose only time in the major leagues was eight games with Pittsburgh in 2018, allowed two hits in five innings. Luis Castillo, a 25-year-old Arizona Triple-A right-hander, got three straight outs for the save, completing a four-hitter.

Dominican second baseman Gustavo Núñez injured his left knee in a third-inning collision with Seattle prospect Julio Rodríguez on a flyout by Isaac Rodríguez that the right fielder grabbed as he struck Núñez. Yefri Pérez replaced Núñez to start the fourth. Rodríguez felt pain in his lips and chin, manager Hector Borg said, but stayed in the game.

Djokovic loses to Zverev at Olympics, ending Golden Slam bid

By ANDREW DAMPF

AP Sports Writer

TOKYO — With his Golden Slam bid over for at least another three years, Novak Djokovic rested his head on Alexander Zverev's shoulder as his German opponent and friend consoled him.

"I told him that he's the greatest of all time," Zverev said. "I know that he was chasing history."

Djokovic, the top-ranked Serb who had seemed invincible in all of the biggest tournaments this year, lost to Zverev 1-6, 6-3, 6-1 Friday in the semifinals of the tennis tournament at the Tokyo Olympics.

Djokovic was attempting to become the first man to win all four Grand Slam tournaments and Olympic gold in the same year. He won the Australian Open, the French Open and Wimbledon this year and needed the Olympic and U.S. Open titles to complete the Golden Slam collection.

Steffi Graf in 1988 remains the only tennis player to achieve the Golden Slam.

"He won 20 Grand Slams," Zverev said. "So you can't have everything."

"At the end of the day he's the greatest of all time, because he's going to win the most Grand Slams, he's going to win the most Master Series, he's going to be the longest at the world No. 1, and I'm sure 99% that this is the case when it's all said and done," Zverev said.

Zverev's opponent in the gold-medal match will be Karen Khachanov. The Russian beat Pablo Carreno Busta of Spain 6-3, 6-3.

Djokovic, who hadn't lost since getting beaten by Rafael Nadal at the Italian Open final 2½ months ago, will play Carreno Busta for bronze.

On a humid and muggy evening, Djokovic committed a series of uncharacteristic errors after a strong start as the 6-foot-6 (1.98-meter) Zverev started to win free points with his big serve.

Djokovic was up a set and a break in the second before Zverev won 10 of the final 11 games.

"He's gone these last few months without any losses and for him it's a big loss ... just collapsing in the end," said Marin Cilic of Croatia, who won silver in doubles.

Cilic noted that the extreme heat and humidity at the Ariake Tennis Park throughout the tournament may have caught up with Djokovic.

"It's very unfortunate for him but still he's an unbelievable champion and he still has so many years ahead of him to achieve many great things," Cilic said.

When Zverev hit a backhand winner down the line that Djokovic didn't move for to close it out, Djokovic walked to the net where he received a warm hug from Zverev as the pair exchanged some words.

"Of course I'm happy that I've won, but in the end of the day I also know (how) he feels," Zverev said.

Djokovic's only Olympic medal was bronze in singles at the 2008 Beijing Games — his first. He could still win a gold at the Tokyo Games in mixed doubles.

Djokovic came back on the court little more than an hour later to play with Serbian partner Nina Stojanovic in the mixed doubles semifinals and lost that match, too, getting beaten by the Russian duo of Elena Vesnina and Aslan Karatsev 7-6 (4), 7-5.

It was the third consecutive day that Djokovic played two matches.

Viktor Troicki, Serbia's Olympic team coach, told The Associated Press on Thursday that the entire team was against Djokovic playing mixed doubles because they didn't want the event to tire him out with so much on the line in singles.

Djokovic can still go after the calendar-year Grand Slam by winning the U.S. Open — something no man has accomplished since Rod Laver in 1969.

The 34-year-old Djokovic is already the first man since Laver that year to win the first three major tournaments in a season.

Djokovic also already matched his longtime rivals Roger Federer and Nadal by winning Wimbledon this month for his 20th Grand Slam title. He was the only member of the Big Three to travel to Tokyo and Djokovic has been soaking in the Olympic experience like few other athletes.

Without Djokovic, though, the gold-medal match in singles will be lacking star power. Zverev's best career result was reaching the final of last year's U.S. Open, while the 25th-ranked Khachanov is coming off a quarterfinal appearance at Wimbledon and is now in the biggest final of his career.

Zverev called it "maybe the proudest moment of my career so far."

"Because I'm not only playing for myself I'm not only playing for my parents, for my brother, for my family," he added. "But I'm also playing for everybody, all the (German) athletes here back at the base and everybody back at home watching."

"Our Legacy Is You"

Keeping Big Spring Beautiful

By AMANDA DUFORAT
Managing Editor

One piece of trash; one Toasty Tuesday effort at a time, and a community working together to make Big Spring cleaner than it was the day before. Members of KBSB have been hosting Toasty Tuesdays for the past couple of years as a way to have the community join in the efforts and tackle the overall clean up in a group effort.

In addition to Toasty Tuesday efforts taking place during the Spring, Summer and Fall months, Keep Big Spring Beautiful takes part in community events to provide education and bring awareness to the importance of keeping the community clean. KBSB can be found at the Howard County Fair, involved in health fairs and back to school events. The Fall Sweep and Love Our Lake Clean Ups are also efforts that are hosted on an annual basis. The annual trash off is another annual event that is typically combined with the health fair and takes place in early Spring.

"Keeping our community clean is something that can only happen if we all work together. The weekly efforts are making an impact and we love to see new faces, but the real difference comes when people take their efforts to clean up their own neighborhoods," Susan McLellan, KBSB President, said.

In an effort to better understand the community needs, Keep Big Spring Beautiful is conducting a survey. Community members are encouraged to fill out the survey - 10 simple yes or no questions - and return the survey to the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce/Big Spring EDC office building at 215 W. Third Street.

"We are trying to get a grasp on the status of our community when it comes to litter," she said. "We are hoping the community will take a couple of minutes to answer the surveys and turn them back in."

Throughout the year, several opportunities are offered for those wishing to help clean up Big Spring.

- KBSB needs your help by answering the following questions of our litter survey. Please Mark YES or NO
1. Have you recently left trash in a parking lot? Y or N
 2. Have you recently thrown trash that was not bagged? Y or N
 3. Do you think Big Spring has a litter problem? Y or N
 4. Have you heard of Keep Big Spring Beautiful? Y or N
 5. Have you ever been cited for littering? Y or N
 6. Have you ever picked up litter that was not yours and disposed of it? Y or N
 7. Do you think the streets of Big Spring are cleaner than a year ago? Y or N
 8. Have you seen people throw trash out of their vehicle? Y or N
 9. Do you feel you are helping to reduce litter in our community? Y or N
 10. Have you heard of Toasty Tuesday Trash-offs? Y or N

Please return completed survey to 215 W. Third by mail or by dropping off at the office. For more information, call Liz Hafley at 432-934-4068

Scarlett Johansson sues Disney over 'Black Widow' release

By LINDSEY BAHR and ANDREW DALTON

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scarlett Johansson is suing the Walt Disney Co. over its streaming release of "Black Widow," which she said breached her contract and deprived her of potential earnings.

In a lawsuit filed Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court, the "Black Widow" star and executive producer said her contract guaranteed an exclusive theatrical release. The Wall Street Journal first reported the news of the lawsuit.

Johansson's potential earnings were tied to the box office performance of the film, which the company released simultaneously in theaters and on its streaming service Disney+ for a $30 rental.

"In the months leading up to this lawsuit, Ms. Johansson gave Disney and Marvel every opportunity to right their wrong and make good on Marvel's promise," the lawsuit said. "Disney intentionally induced Marvel's breach of the Agreement, without justification, in order to prevent Ms. Johansson from realizing the full benefit of her bargain with Marvel."

Disney said the lawsuit has "no merit whatsoever."

"The lawsuit is especially sad and distressing in its callous disregard for the horrific and prolonged global effects of the COVID-19 pandemic," Disney said in a statement. "Disney has fully complied with Ms. Johansson's contract and furthermore, the release of Black Widow on Disney+ with Premier Access has significantly enhanced her ability to earn additional compensation on top of the $20M she has received to date."

After its release was delayed more than a year because of COVID-19, "Black Widow" debuted to a pandemic-best of $80 million in North America and $78 million from international theaters three weeks ago, but theatrical grosses declined sharply after that. In its second weekend in release, the National Association of Theater Owners issued a rare statement criticizing the strategy asserting that simultaneous release lends itself only to lost profits and higher quality piracy.

Once taboo, hybrid theatrical and streaming releases have become more normal for many of the biggest studios during the pandemic, with each adopting its own unique strategy. This weekend, Disney is employing the same strategy with "Jungle Cruise," and next weekend Warner Bros. big budget "The Suicide Squad" opens both in theaters and on HBO Max.

The revised hybrid release strategies over the 16 months have occasionally led to public spats from not just theater owners, but stars, filmmakers and financiers who are unhappy with the potential lost revenues and the alleged unilateral decision-making involved.

The WSJ said Warner Media, for instance, paid over $200 million in "amended agreements" with talent over its decision to release its entire 2021 slate simultaneously in theaters and on HBO Max.

But none have been as public as Johansson's lawsuit. The actor, who has been in nine Marvel movies going back to 2010's "Iron Man 2," quickly became a trending topic on Twitter on Thursday after news of the lawsuit broke.

Ron Popeil was the sizzle of American ingenuity, personified

By TED ANTHONY

AP National Writer

Come, young ones: Gather around the glow of the smartphone's screen for a tale of a distant time when we watched TV on big boxy machines, and switched channels when we were bored.

There were commercials — several of them — between the segments of TV shows. What's more, in the distant era before streaming, you had to watch them all — or, if you had time, run to the kitchen or the bathroom. You couldn't pause, or fast forward, or take the screen with you.

And in the darkest, wee-est hours, when all the real programming ran out, the night creatures emerged — beasts called infomercials that were entire TV programs about people selling products that might be useful to you but that you probably didn't know you wanted.

These immediate forebears of home-shopping channels and, beyond them, the content marketing techniques of the 21st century were where Ron Popeil, an American original who gave the world the word "Ronco" and died Wednesday at 86, thrived.

America has always been smitten by both high-spirited inventors and yarn-spinning salesmen. Popeil was both, amplified by the airwaves into millions of homes. He was a gadget innovator like his father, yes, but a popularizer as well, a man who intuited consumers' common-sense needs, then found accessible ways to entice them into making purchases.

He titled his 1996 memoir "Salesman of the Century," and he was a 20th-century man to the core, a cultural descendant of both Thomas Edison and P.T. Barnum. He was a guy whose "As Seen On TV" commercials in the 1970s, from the astonishingly wireless Mr. Microphone to the Popeil Pocket Fisherman to the Rhinestone & Stud Setter, became pop-culture touchstones — because he managed to both come up with them and become their public face for the television-soaked generation we now call X.

He was CEO, sales rep and user-in-chief rolled into one. Be it the Showtime Rotisserie ("Set it and forget it"), the Food Dehydrator or aerosol cans of GLH-9 ("GLH" being short for "great-looking hair"), he was right there, barking out its virtues to us in the 1980s and 1990s as we laid in our beds and contemplated turning off the TV. He edited his own infomercials, scrawled out his own cue cards, wrote the copy for his "operators standing by."

He would call his babies by affectionate names (The Popeil Electric Pasta-Sausage Maker became, simply, "Pasta-Sausage"), and he was known to say things like, "I created the jerky category." Now and then he would drift into Shatner-style staccato to make his points: "A child! Can make! Homemade sausages!" he was found shouting on QVC one night in 1997.

But wait — there's more. As 20th century as he was — a Chicago open-market barker who used TV to propel himself toward success — he also saw the possibilities that were just ahead and are now playing out in the fragmented 21st century, an era when all media blends into one big glop and advertising becomes content, then becomes advertising again.

One reason for Popeil's ubiquity became evident when people poked fun at him — because he chose, craftily and strategically, to always be in on the joke. When Dan Aykroyd sent him up on "Saturday Night Live" in 1976 with the "Bass-O-Matic" commercial parody, Popeil realized it was free publicity, just as he did when "Weird Al" Yankovic recorded a parody song. Years later, Popeil guest-starred as himself on various TV shows from "The X Files" to the animated "The Simpsons" and "King of the Hill."

Most prominently, though, he cheerfully gave away his infomercial content to moviemakers looking for something to be playing on TV in the background of their films. In this way did he extend his reputation for ubiquity — and his growing wink-nudge pop-culture brand — for free, with no effort at all. Others did the work, and he got the eyeballs.

Even after success, bankruptcy and a second chapter of success, Popeil insisted that his drive to invent was more than mercantile; it was, he said, a bit obsessive. "I have enough money today," he told this reporter for a 1997 Associated Press profile. "But I can't stop. If there's a need for these things, I can't help myself."

In that profile, Popeil demonstrated how "GLH-9" was doing on the bald spot on the back of his scalp after several hours, some of them under a shopping channel's blistering lights. What didn't make it into the story was that Popeil exhorted the visiting journalist: "Touch it! It even feels real." The journalist did, and it did — sort of.

Interludes like that — in-person interactions that felt like moments in an infomercial — help explain the reverse: moments in his infomercials that felt like in-person interactions. Those were Popeil's stock in trade. The best performers — and that cohort includes the best salespeople — can make you feel as if they're not performing at all.

So in the 1970s, you believed that a Mr. Microphone could open the door to all sorts of ways to impress the opposite sex. In the 1990s, you completely bought the notion that if Ron Popeil could stand there, on the set of his infomercial, and make a delectable sausage of fresh salmon, dill, soy and crushed red pepper in two minutes, that somehow you could too.

You believed. Which has always been the underpinning of good sales. And you believed, too, that this guy — this garrulous man who was both nationally recognizable and RIGHT THERE in your room at 2 a.m., talking obviously to only you — would, tomorrow and next month and next year, keep visiting you late at night with things you never, ever knew you needed.

Or, as Popeil himself loved to say, wait — there's more. For Ron Popeil, his feet planted squarely at the intersection of Barnum and Edison, there always was.

Ice Cube pushing for sports fans to ride along with Big3

By DAN GELSTON

AP Sports Writer

Ice Cube tweeted a Big3 clip of famous faces — fighters, NFL and NBA players, and, yes, that was Kanye West in a ski mask — that pop up at Big3 games.

The brightest star of the 3-on-3 basketball league, of course, remains Ice Cube, the revolutionary rapper turned basketball businessman who returns to his roots when he performs Saturday during the Big3 slate of games in Dallas.

The A-listers seem to love Ice Cube's 3-on-3 basketball league.

Can he get the rest of the sports world to respect the game?

"They're treating these athletes like they was nobody," Ice Cube told The Associated Press. "That ain't cool. You cheered for them. You pretended like you loved them when they were part of the NBA.

When they get in a different league, you're acting like they don't exist? What kind of (stuff) is that? One day soon, you'll respect the league."

After Big3 skipped last summer because of the pandemic, Ice Cube resumed the supreme hustle to help the fourth-year league find its niche — with bigger live crowds, TV ratings that pop and media coverage that treats Big3 as more than a novelty — as it navigates a season where it's not even the only 3-on-3 game in town. Yes, halfcourt hoops made its Olympic debut in Tokyo, where the U.S. women's team won a gold medal.

"It definitely helps our effort," Ice Cube said Wednesday. "FIBA has always controlled amateur sports and so by us having a professional version of 3-on-3, it aligns with the NBA having the professional version of 5-on-5."

How about an Olympics/Big3 alliance?

"You can't bring the Fireball to the Olympics," he said, laughing. "Not yet. They'll catch up."

Birdy Marie, owner of the Fit Lab in Big Spring, encourages local residents to meet their fitness goals.

By DUSTIN POPE

Herald Sports Writer

Summer is here, and it's not too late to get that nice beach body we all conceive of. However, if you crave a beach body and not certain how to go about obtaining it, no fear, there is an extremely good personal trainer in Big Spring that can teach you the process.

A local Big Spring resident has set out to encourage individuals to realize all of their fitness goals. Birdy Marie who works at the Dance Lab also provides the Fit Lab. Marie has over 20 years of competitive dance experience. She is also a former Police Officer from Michigan. Health and Fitness has consistently been one of if not her top priority. After Birdy moved to Texas, she began teaching for Dance Lab, and she was also doing one on one private workouts with some of the Cheer and Dance moms. It was then she recognized she loved to bring her knowledge of fitness to encourage other make huge life changes. It was during the pandemic that she thought to herself, if you love helping people so much, then why not become a certified personal trainer, and that's precisely what she did. Marie soon realized that there were not a lot of personal trainers in this area, so she recognized she would have an excellent opportunity to influence and help many people. Since she is now a certified personal trainer, she is ready and willing to help anyone reach all of their health goals. Birdy is enthusiastic to advise anyone that wishes to learn, kids men, women, people of all ages it doesn't matter she is on a journey to help those that want to be helped, get healthier and feel confident in their own bodies. She offers free 30 minute consultations. Prices are forty dollars for one half-hour session, and fifty dollars for a full hour session. She also offers monthly plans. With her knowledge and expertise, there is no doubt that she will transform you into what you desire to be. Marie has already had a few great success stories of people who have come in and made significant gains in their health and fitness. She will only look to expand on this.

For most of us, the struggle of getting in shape is real. Just trying to understand how to get in shape is always an enormous obstacle. Birdy will give you all the information you need to make a huge lifestyle change. Once you start the fitness journey it becomes a lifestyle, a healthier lifestyle that always comes with not only health benefits, but self-confidence. To start your new journey contact Birdy Marie at 432-488-7797. She can also be reached at Facebook on the Fit Lab by Birdy. If you desire an alternative lifestyle for better health and a better body, call her you will not regret it.

New Delta Variant and Record-Breaking Gas Prices Cause Some Drivers to Reroute Plans for Remaining Summer Travel

Spike in demand and data from GasBuddy's Midsummer Travel Survey reveal though people are buying more gas, they may be staying closer to home

BOSTON (July 28, 2021) -- Summer travel has hit a roadblock this year, but not in the amount of people driving. It's in the distance people are willing to go. GasBuddy, today, released the results of its first ever Midsummer Travel Survey, revealing that 10 percent fewer Americans are now planning to take a road trip this summer than were in May. Yet, demand for gasoline last week hit the highest level of 2021, according to Pay with GasBuddy transaction data.

So what gives? While the recent spike in demand shows that Americans are still determined to get out this summer, wavering confidence in road trips says people might be worried about budgeting for high gas prices and seeking adventures closer to home.

In early May, 57 percent of Americans were planning to take a road trip, according to GasBuddy's 2021 summer travel survey. Since then, gas prices have risen to a seven-year high, a new variant of Covid-19 has spread throughout the country and a pipeline shutdown brought gasoline shortages to the Southeast. Today, only 46 percent have or are still planning to hit the road.

Gas prices have been steadily climbing since early November to prices we haven't seen since 2014, with a national average of $3.14 per gallon. Fifty percent of Americans now say high gas prices are deterring them from taking a road trip, up from 46 percent in May.

"With new Covid cases rising and gasoline prices at their highest level since 2014, some motorists appear to be re-thinking their summer travel plans," said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy. "However, while some may be trimming summer road trips, demand for gasoline remains strong across the country, with GasBuddy data showing that last week's consumption reached a 2021 high, topping the busy July 4 holiday weekend. That will keep prices from falling much even as Covid anxiety rises."

The spreading Covid-19 Delta variant may not keep people from driving, but it is affecting Americans' decision to take road trips. The percentage of people who are taking less road trips due to Covid-19 concerns increased from 22 percent to 28 percent from May to July.

The GasBuddy Midsummer Travel Survey was completed by 2,409 GasBuddy members between July 15 - July 19, 2020. Summer travel is defined as the period between May 31 - Sept. 6, 2021 (Memorial Day through Labor Day).

About GasBuddy

GasBuddy is the leading fuel savings platform providing North American drivers with the most ways to save money on gas. GasBuddy has delivered more than $3 billion in cumulative savings to its users through providing real-time gas price information at 150,000+ stations, offering cash back rewards on purchases with brand partners, and through the Pay with GasBuddyTM payments card that offers cents-off per gallon at virtually all gas stations across the US. As one of the most highly-rated apps in the history of the App Store, GasBuddy has been downloaded nearly 100 million times. Acquired by PDI Software in 2021, GasBuddy's publishing and software businesses enable the world's leading fuel, convenience, QSR and CPG companies to shorten the distance between the fueling public and their brands. President Biden orders tough new vaccination rules for federal workers

By ALEXANDRA JAFFE,

ZALDIVAR and JONATHAN

AP Writers

WASHINGTON — President Joe Biden has announced sweeping new pandemic requirements aimed at boosting vaccination rates for millions of federal workers and contractors as he lamented the "American tragedy" of rising-yet-preventable deaths among the unvaccinated.

Federal workers will be required to sign forms attesting they've been vaccinated against the coronavirus or else comply with new rules on mandatory masking, weekly testing, distancing and more. The strict new guidelines are aimed at increasing sluggish vaccination rates among the huge number of Americans who draw federal paychecks — and to set an example for private employers around the country.

"Right now, too many people are dying or watching someone they love die and say, 'If I'd just got the vaccine,'" Biden said in a somber address Thursday from the East Room of the White House. "This is an American tragedy. People are dying who don't have to die."

However, pushback to Biden's action is certain. It puts him squarely in the center of a fierce political debate surrounding the government's ability to compel Americans to follow public health guidelines.

The federal government directly employs about 4 million people, but Biden's action could affect many more when federal contractors are factored in. New York University professor of public service Paul Light estimates there are nearly 7 million more employees who could potentially be included, combining those who work for companies that contract with the government and those working under federal grants.

Biden, seemingly fed up with persistent vaccine resistance among many Americans, delivered a sharp rebuke to those who have yet to get shots, saying "they get sick and fill up our hospitals," taking beds away from others who need them.

"If in fact you are unvaccinated, you present a problem to yourself, to your family and those with whom you work," he said bluntly.

At the same time, he expressed sympathy for people who have received their shots and are "frustrated with the consequences of the minority that fail to get vaccinated."

And he again emphasized that the fight against the virus is far from over, girding Americans to remain strong in the face of setbacks in the pandemic.

"I know this is hard to hear. I know it's frustrating. I know it's exhausting to think we're still in this fight. I know we hoped this would be a simple straightforward line, without problems or new challenges. But that isn't real life," he said.

His comments came as some 60% of American adults have been fully vaccinated. He had set a July 4 goal to get at least one shot in 70% of adults and is still not quite there. The latest figure is 69.3%. And there remains significant resistance from many Republicans and some unions to vaccine mandates for employers.

Reflecting an awareness of the political landmines surrounding mandates, administration officials emphasize that their plan does not require workers to receive the vaccine but aims to make life more difficult for those who are unvaccinated to encourage them to comply. Biden directed his team to take steps to apply similar requirements to all federal contractors.

He also directed the Defense Department to look into adding the COVID-19 shot to its list of required vaccinations for members of the military. Service members already are required to get as many as 17 vaccines, depending on where they are based around the world.

Over and over, the president repeated that the vast majority of those falling ill and dying in the new wave of the delta virus are unvaccinated, putting others at risk and endangering the nation's fragile economic recovery and return to normalcy.

"It's an American blessing that we have vaccines for each and every American. It's such a shame to squander that blessing," said Biden.

He praised the recent increase in Republican lawmakers urging those who are not vaccinated — many of whom, polling suggests, identify as conservatives — to get their shots. And seeking to push back against skepticism among some Republicans over the safety of the vaccine, he gave a nod to predecessor Donald Trump, noting that it was "developed and authorized under a Republican administration."

"This is not about red states and blue states," he said. "It's literally about life and death, life and death."

Biden renewed his calls for schools to fully open this fall, although children under 12 are not yet eligible to receive the vaccine. And he said that public health officials do not yet believe Americans need a booster vaccine despite the highly contagious delta variant fueling the surge.

The new pressure on workers to get vaccinated could work because evidence shows people would rather get the vaccine than deal with burdens they consider onerous at work, said Lawrence Gostin, a professor at Georgetown University Law School.

Texas voting standoff jeopardizes pay for up to 2K workers

By ACACIA CORONADO

Report for America/Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — Donovan Rodriguez pursued a career with the state of Texas seven years ago because he viewed the work as public service and a steady income to provide for his family. But lately, his government job hasn't looked so stable.

Rodriguez, the chief of staff for a Democratic state representative, is one of close to 2,000 legislative workers who risk going unpaid after Republican Gov. Greg Abbott slashed their salaries from the state budget as punishment after Democratic lawmakers walked out in May to block restrictions on voting.

Paychecks could be restored during an ongoing special legislative session. That's currently at a standstill after many of the same 50-plus Democrats ratcheted up their political maneuver and fled the state for Washington, D.C. to keep thwarting the GOP's plans for reducing polling hours and ballot access in Texas' already strict voting laws.

The vicious cycle means employees who take calls and emails from constituents, help research and write bills and otherwise keep a legislative session moving won't be working when the new budget starts Sept. 1. Rodriguez and others say it feels like their livelihoods are collateral damage in the nation's most visible standoff over voting rights.

"There is always somebody who feels left out, who feels betrayed, by the governor when he chooses to veto legislation," Rodriguez said. "Unfortunately, it really hits home this time."

Democratic lawmakers sued Abbott over the June line item veto of more than $400 million in salary funds, claiming the action was unconstitutional. Rodriguez, who makes $73,000 annually, was named in the suit, which is pending before the Texas Supreme Court. Abbott's office declined comment but previously said the Texas Constitution grants the governor the "power to disapprove any bill."

It's not clear when the court might make a decision, keeping the state employees in limbo.

Abbott's move is unprecedented, at least in recent Texas history, and sparks an unusual constitutional debate about separation of powers, according to Joshua Blank, director of research for the non-partisan Texas Politics Project at the University of Texas at Austin.

3 ways educators can use newspapers in the classroom

The COVID-19 pandemic had a profound impact on communities across the globe. No individual, household or industry was unaffected by the pandemic, and the ripple effects of the virus may be felt for years to come.

Though many effects of the pandemic have been devastating, one unforeseen and potentially positive consequence of the spread of COVID-19 was a growing recognition of the invaluable role played by local newspapers. Responses to the virus and strategies regarding how to combat it varied greatly, and local newspapers were a go-to resource for citizens who wanted to learn about rules and regulations in their towns. For example, in England the Bishop's Stortford Independent, a local weekly paper in Hertfordshire, experienced a significant monthly web audience growth during the pandemic. Prior to the global outbreak in January 2020, the paper's monthly web audience was 260,000. By October, that number had spiked to 360,000, reflecting a growing need for local news outlets as readers across the globe sought to learn about the pandemic within their own communities and how local officials were responding to the threat posed by COVID-19.

If the pandemic illustrated the vital role local newspapers can play, it's important that readers recognize that role won't be any less valuable when COVID-19 is in the world's rearview mirror. Educators can help the next generation of readers recognize the importance of local newspapers by taking various steps to incorporate newspapers into their lessons.

1. Employ newspapers when teaching current events. Everyone was directly affected by the COVID-19 virus, making the story of the pandemic one of the most unique in modern history. Though children are often sheltered from global news stories about conflicts or economic crises, no such sheltering was possible during the pandemic, as kids were forced to learn from home and confront life with little or no access to extracurricular activities. Educators can show how local newspapers reported on the pandemic when teaching current events, us ing that example as the foundation for teaching current events in the future.

2. Utilize the newspapers when teaching ESL. Students who do not speak English at home or as their primary language can benefit greatly from their local newspapers. It might be easy to learn how to say certain words in English, but reading them in a newspaper gives ESL students a chance to see the words they've learned in context. And because local newspapers feature sections on everything from news to sports to entertainment, ESL students are sure to find a few articles that appeal to their existing interests.

3. Use newspapers to encourage a love of reading. Just like ESL students are bound to find something that interests them in the local newspapers, their English-speaking classmates are sure to find a recap of their favorite team's most recent game or a review of the latest superhero movie or a local news story about their town to pique their interest. Students may not realize it, but they're learning when reading such stories by developing their vocabularies, fine tuning their comprehension skills and catching up on current events.

The valuable role played by local newspapers was on display during the pandemic. That role won't be any less valuable in a post-pandemic world, and it's a lesson teachers can apply in their classrooms.

Opening lead — jack of spades.

Readers who enjoy solving double-dummy problems (where declarer is permitted to look at all four hands) are welcome to take a crack at this one. Obviously, if South decides to stake the outcome on a club finesse, which seems a reasonable thing to do, he goes down one. But if declarer decides to play East for both black kings, he can make the grand slam.

The jack of spades is taken by South's ace, and five rounds of trump are played, declarer taking care to discard dummy's queen of clubs on the fifth trump. He next cashes the A-K-Q of diamonds, producing this position:

North
♠ Q 8
♦ J
♣ A

West
♠ 10 9
♦ J 8

East
♠ K 6
♣ K 10

South
♥ 2

South now leads the six of diamonds. West cannot afford to discard the nine of spades because, if he does, the queen of spades can then be led from dummy, trapping East's king and West's ten at the same time and promoting dummy's eight into a trick. West therefore discards a club.

As dummy wins the jack of diamonds, East in turn feels the pinch. He cannot discard the six of spades because South can then lead dummy's eight and ruff out East's king to establish the queen. So East discards the club ten.

Declarer thereupon cashes the ace of clubs and scores the last two tricks with the deuce of hearts and deuce of clubs.

SUDOKU

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Advanced

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

You'll be surprised at what delicious healthiness becomes vital to your best life. Gemini and Libra adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 40, 1, 18 and 11.

Venus and Uranus will triangulate in earth signs midweek, highlighting materialistic notions and the holy grail of success concepts, "having it all." If you cannot think of anyone who embodies the notion of "having it all," it may be because you're a mature person, well aware that price tags are often not displayed in this case, that "it all" is a luxury you have to ask the front desk about or make a bid for at auction. Under these stars, consider striving for "a lot" and leaving "all" for the less-seasoned strivers.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: As the sun and Mercury conjoin in Leo, the signal worth heeding is part of the entertainer's creed: "Read the room."

The choice of topic can make or break any exchange. So many topics that matter to one person aren't worth taking up with the group because they will alienate most audiences. If there is but an elite few in the world who can relate, consider why you'd mention it in the first place. Certain topics will forever be precariously situated on a slippery slope ending in a puddle of grandiosity and pretention. Avoid them! This week, it's relatability that earns trust and, ultimately, harmony -- possibly even some fun.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: From "Game of Thrones" to "Aquaman," Jason Momoa's intensely visceral charisma has a way of bringing fantasy worlds to life. Leo is also the sign of playfulness, children, the heart and show business.

A Friend in Debt

Dear Annie: My wife and I are in a pickle. We are friends with another couple, "Josh" and "Vanessa." Vanessa happens to be a teacher at our kids' school. One day, I was picking up my offspring and started chatting with her. I could tell she was sad and asked her about it. That's when the floodgates opened. She started telling me how she's racked up credit card debt, and she said Josh doesn't know about it. Josh has been under a lot of stress, and she doesn't want to tell him. I consoled her and asked how much, thinking maybe a few hundred bucks.

Her: "17."
Me: "Thousand?"
Her: (slowly nods)

I lied and told her it's OK. I also told her she has to tell Josh. She agreed and said she's planning on doing it next month, after he's past a deadline at work. Then she asked whether my wife and I would lend her $500 for the time being so she could pay the minimum. I told her we'd talk it over.

So now we've got two questions. First, should we give her the money? Second, if need be, should we tell Josh at some point? If we were to tell him, Vanessa would hate us. But otherwise, Josh would hate us after eventually finding out. What would you do? -- Couple in a Conundrum

Dear Couple: Sit this one out.

Don't give Vanessa the money. Doing so would only enable her to maintain her spending addiction. Don't talk to Josh. Let Vanessa be the one to tell him. She'll have to do it soon anyway if you don't lend her the money for the credit card minimum.

I know you want to help, but resist. The road to hell is paved with good intentions, and it's got an express lane for people who get in the middle of their friends' relationship problems.

Dear Annie: Back-seat drivers are an absolute pet peeve of mine. I have been driving for 20 years, and I've never been in an accident, except one time when I hit a mailbox with my sideview mirror, and never had a ticket, except that one time in upstate New York.

I'm not an aggressive driver. I let people into my lane all the time. I don't try to drive fast, but I am busy (and frequently late to things) and do try to keep up with the other cars around me.

However, from the way some friends react when they're in my car, you'd think I'm Danica Patrick. And my husband is the worst. He constantly makes comments: "Stop tailgating." "Slow down." "You're driving really fast." And when he's not verbalizing his thoughts, I can see him bracing for impact by grabbing the handle above the car door.

People's constant feedback about my driving is getting on my last nerve. How can I instill in them the confidence to enjoy the ride when I am behind the wheel? -- Driving Me Crazy

Dear Driving: Well, you can start by being a better driver, because I doubt everyone who rides in your car is overreacting. You're sending your passengers into survival mode, and they're blurting things out in self-defense, not picking on you.

Consider enrolling in a defensive driving class for adults. Many insurance companies even offer discounts for completing such courses.

At the very least, I suggest you revisit the basics of driver's ed: Adjust your mirrors (while the car is still parked) to avoid blind spots; leave a car length in front of you for every 10 miles per hour of speed, etc. And leave the house earlier so you're not in such a rush to get places.

Those back-seat drivers will gladly hand over their keys, so to speak, once they see that you can steer them to safety.

Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.

The captains step aside and let the team take over in 'Buddy vs. Duff: Baker Battle'

There may be no "I" in "Team," but in the upcoming two-part special "Buddy vs. Duff: Baker Battle," there will be no Buddy Valastro or Duff Goldman, either.

Airing consecutive Sundays starting Aug. 1 on Food Network (and also streaming on discovery+), the hourlong competition specials find Valastro and Goldman kicked out of their bakeries by their own teams, who then go head to head in baking challenges to determine which team is best as their captains look on virtually.

For Valastro, it was a pleasure to watch them work.

"Those guys are so talented on both sides they don't need me and Duff to be there to hold their hands," Valastro, owner of Carlo's Bakery in Hoboken, N.J., says. "That's just the truth about it. And I was happy to be able to get my team out there without me to show how good they are as well. I always applaud those kind of efforts because everybody deserves a shot and ... and they're amazingly talented. And I think honestly why we've been so successful ... they're all amazing artists and they work really well together."

Indeed, Valastro certainly got to see that in action over the past year. In September of 2020, he had his right (dominant) hand impaled repeatedly by a metal rod in a malfunctioning pinsetter in his home bowling alley, which required multiple surgeries and lengthy rehabilitation. He's nearly fully recovered now, estimating that the hand is back to 90 percent of its pre-accident capabilities, and he's doing everything he did before with no limitations.

During his recovery, he learned to perform some functions with his left hand and to rely more heavily on his team. Beyond his baking talents, he says his value to the team lies in finding efficiencies and being the one who pushes everyone to think big. Getting on the same page is rarely an issue.

"Me and my team, they speak my language," Valastro says. "They know what I'm thinking before I think it. Half the time, we don't really even argue because we agree. ..."

"We come in with a vision ..." he continues, "and the vision is a collaboration of everybody. We sit in a room and we brainstorm with, 'Alright, what's the cake gonna be?' And then we come up with an idea and then 'Oh, maybe we can add this' and 'Oh, maybe it should be this' or 'Maybe it should be this.' And then we kind of like land on, 'This is what the cake is gonna be.' And then once we go there we usually don't deviate from the plan too much. We don't have to."

MotorTrend's 'Motor MythBusters' looks under the hood of real-life car myths

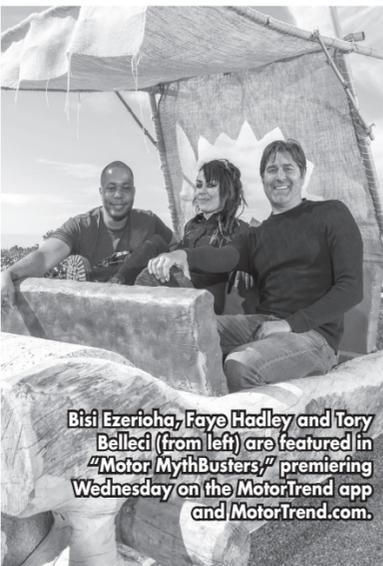

Can the car from "The Flintstones" be replicated into an actual functioning vehicle? Do classic Hollywood car chases hold up under the scrutiny of science? Can human urine serve as stopgap coolant for a car overheating on the highway?

These questions and more are confirmed or denied on "Motor MythBusters."

Premiering Wednesday, Aug. 4, on the MotorTrend app and MotorTrend.com, the automotive version of "MythBusters" searches for the truth behind popular car myths using a mix of scientific method, curiosity and good, old-fashioned ingenuity. Putting them to the test are Tory Belleci of the original series, mechanic Faye Hadley ("All Girls Garage") and engineer and race car driver Bisi Ezerioha, who conduct outrageous builds in their garage and then try them on the track before drawing their conclusions.

"What's really fun about this new version of 'MythBusters,' Belleci, the show's host and an executive producer, explains, "is we're really diving into the mechanics of the vehicles and we're doing things that people could potentially try at home. You know, we're always saying, 'Don't try this at home.' But some of the things we're doing to these engines a mechanic could try on his own car or her own car and see if what we're doing would work."

One that couldn't be replicated by the average car owner comes up in an early episode, in which the team recreates the turbo-charged beater from "Fast and Furious 8" using an early 1970s Chevrolet Monte Carlo, a boat turbo, a can of nitrous oxide and a lot of trial and error. The goal was to see if the modifications to the 50-year-old 350 engine could get the car up to the speeds in the movie - well above 100 mph.

The trouble is the runway on which the test was conducted was three miles long and it took much of that to get the auto up around the desired speed, which left Belleci, the driver, at loose ends.

"So I'm sitting there driving," he says, "and it's like, OK, I'm halfway down the runway and I haven't even hit the nitrous yet. And then, boom, I hit the nitrous and then ... I have to drive for 16 seconds going at this speed. And you just see the end of the runway coming up on you so fast ... and all that's left is just like bushes and trees. And it can get ugly."

Jennifer Nettles went to Broadway by way of 'Chicago'

Q: I found it interesting that Jennifer Nettles was the star chosen to introduce the Broadway segment on this year's "A Capitol Fourth" special. Has she performed on Broadway? - Heather Ross, Kansas City, Mo.

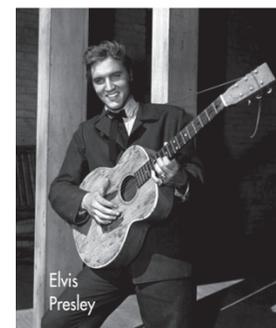

A: She has, and it got a lot of attention at the time, given her well-known roots in country music. The Grammy-winning artist who attained fame as half of the duo Sugarland had a limited run as Roxie Hart in the popular musical "Chicago" in 2015, and she acknowledged her stage work (and what she has said is her lifelong love of theater) by performing "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'" from "Oklahoma!" on PBS' recent Fourth of July special.

Also, her recently released album "Always Like New" draws from such stage classics as "My Fair Lady" and "Annie."

Though she hasn't been back on the Great White Way regularly since her "Chicago" stint, Nettles has continued her acting pursuits. Besides starring in two NBC movies inspired by Dolly Parton's "Coat of Many Colors" song, she has appeared in the series "Underground" and "The Righteous Gemstones," and she also was in the Oscar-nominated film "Harriet."

Jennifer Nettles

Elvis Presley

Q: Having enjoyed Turner Classic Movies' festival of Elvis pictures, I'm wondering which ones were his first and last movies. - Richard Schyuler, via e-mail

A: The first was the 1956 Western "Love Me Tender," retitled from "The Reno Brothers" to match the name of Presley's legendary theme tune. Though his swan song as an actor was the 1969 drama "Change of Habit," his last feature film released was the 1972 documentary "Elvis on Tour" (which was included as part of the latest TCM tribute to him) After that, his remaining media appearances were in televised concert specials.

Robert Hays

OF 'FASTEN YOUR SEATBELT' ON A&E NETWORK

Your movie role as substitute pilot Ted Striker in the classic comedy "Airplane!" would seem to make you a natural to tell air passengers' true stories as the host of "Fasten Your Seatbelt." How did you get the job?

(The producers) came to me about it, and as I thought about it, two of the dearest people I've met were ("Airplane!" co-stars) Peter Graves and Robert Stack. And both had hosted (reality) things; Peter did "Biography," which I used to love, and Bob did "Unsolved Mysteries." So, I thought this would be kind of like carrying on the tradition, and what better way to do it than with something that has to do with airplanes?

You're the son of a fighter pilot. Do you feel that connects to your "Airplane!" legacy?

Ah, my hero! He was the greatest guy. My parents were the most wonderful couple. My dad was a Marine who was in World War II, Korea and Vietnam, highly decorated. He was 6'3", and my mom was a little 5'2" elf, and everybody loved her. That was like me and Donna (Pescow) on (the sitcom) "Angie," the height difference.

I grew up around air bases, seeing all the jet demonstration teams like the Blue Angels and the Thunderbirds. And Dad was a really great pilot, so I had it in my blood.

How have airline crew members been with you if they've recognized you aboard their flights?

It happened all the time in the years following the first showings (of "Airplane!"). I used to get invited up into the cockpit on international flights - you can't go in on U.S. flights, so as soon as we'd take off or land, they'd want me to come up and take pictures with them - but on the international flights, they'd have me come up and sit there for hours, just asking me things and showing me all this stuff. It was great fun.

Ideas are transformative...

Turn to the Magnolia Network for innovative culinary content

Joanna Gaines

There's a new kid on the foodie TV block and it's actually the work of someone with whom viewers are likely very familiar.

Magnolia Network, a joint venture of Discovery and Chip and Joanna Gaines, offers up a plethora of programming devoted to culinary pursuits, with everything from how-tos and new ideas to cultural and historical perspectives, growing your own produce and even old favorites. And the good news much of it is streaming right now on discovery+ and the Magnolia Network app. Such as the following.

"Magnolia Table With Joanna Gaines" (Available now): Now in its third season after premiering on discovery+ in January, this family-oriented entry finds Gaines in her kitchen sharing her favorite recipes, revealing where they come from and why she keeps returning to them again and again.

"Family Dinner" (Available now): Andrew Zimmern ("Bizarre Foods") is your host for this series in which he visits families across the country to hear their stories and explore how our regional, historical and cultural heritages inform what and how we eat.

"Homegrown" (Available now): As the title suggests, this recently premiered offering follows Atlanta-based farmer Jamila Norman as she assists families in transforming their outdoor spaces into functional backyard farms and highlights the joys and benefits of growing your own food.

"The Artisan's Kitchen" (Available now): Professional baker and flour expert Bryan Ford brings his Honduran heritage and New Orleans upbringing to bear on his creations in this series as he offers up ideas for new recipes as well as remixed classics.

"Zoe Bakes" (Available now): Pastry chef and cookbook Zoe Francois is your host for this series in which she breaks down the secrets of pastry chefs and home bakers and shows how to create beautiful and tasty confections right in your own kitchen.

"Ranch to Table" (Premieres Friday, Aug. 6): This new series follows seventh generation California rancher and entrepreneur Elizabeth Poett as she runs her family's 14,000-acre ranch and creates regional dishes using her own fresh ingredients.

"For the Love of Kitchens" (Premieres Friday, Aug. 6): You can't have cuisine without a kitchen and in this series, Paul O'Leary, Helen Parker and Robin McLellan and their team of craftspeople design beautiful state-of-the-art kitchens from their facility in a 16th century mill in the English countryside.

"The French Chef" (Available now on Magnolia app only): From the network's substantial library comes this classic 1962-73 series featuring legendary chef Julia Child as she sought to take the mystery and intimidation factor out of French cuisine, featuring recipes from her "Mastering the Art of French Cooking" bestseller and emphasizing the use of fresh and sometimes hard-to-find ingredients.

InFocus

"Growing Up Animal: Season 1" (Disney+ — series premiere, Aug. 18)

From National Geographic comes this six-episode unscripted original series that takes viewers on the intimate and extraordinary adventure of baby animals such as chimps, sea lions, elephants, African wild dogs, lions and grizzlies, from the safety of the womb to the uncertainty of birth and their tentative first steps.

Checking in with ALEXANDRA DADDARIO

celebrity scoop BY JAY BOBBIN

At a time when the coronavirus pandemic was limiting work options for many performers, a stay at "The White Lotus" looked quite good to Alexandra Daddario.

The cast and crew of HBO and HBO Max's current Sunday series created their own "bubble" by largely taking over a Hawaiian resort for the two months of filming writer-director Mike White's comedy, about a Maui hotel's staff and the diverse guests they service.

"Everybody has their own thing" happening in the show, the friendly Daddario confirms. "Each story is as important as the others, and they all intersect. That was great for all of us, because we all had our down time. And on the set, I always felt that I was doing something that was meaty. You weren't just waiting around. Everyone was shooting their own little movie."

Daddario particularly enjoyed acting with "Saturday Night Live" alum Shannon, with whom she also worked in the William H. Macy-directed 2017 movie "The Layover." Deeming her "a delightful person," Daddario says simply, "She's Molly Shannon! She's a legend. Like in a tennis match, it's always better to have somebody who makes you better."

However, notes Daddario, "You're not going to be funnier acting with Molly Shannon. She's always going to be the funniest, but when you feel the scene being uplifted by her, it helps. I wish I could be as funny as she is."

"Of Human Bondage" (1934) brain tumor, then falls in love with the doctor (George Brent) who operates on her.
"The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" (1939) Davis and Errol Flynn have the title roles in the tempestuous royal love story.
"The Letter" (1940) Another W. Somerset Maugham work was the source of Davis' turn as a murder suspect whose claim of self-defense might unravel because of a certain letter.
"The Little Foxes" (1941) Lillian Hellman's play centers on a wealthy Southern family - with Davis playing one member - beset by problems while also causing them for others.
"Now, Voyager" (1942) A spinster, portrayed by Davis, undergoes a radical transformation after spending time in a sanitarium.
"The Corn Is Green" (1945) A schoolteacher (Davis) becomes the patron of a promising student (John Dall) in the screen version of Emlyn Williams' play.

movie review

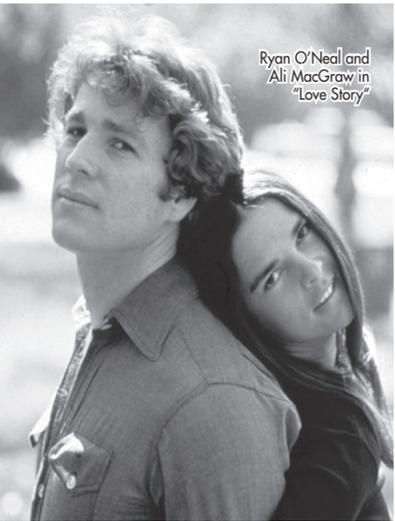

BY JAY BOBBIN

'Love Story' still warms many moviegoers' hearts

More than 50 years later, love still means never having to say you're sorry. At least that would be the view of Oliver Barrett IV, one of the most famous romantics in screen history ... thanks to "Love Story," the enormously popular 1970 drama now streaming on Paramount+. As portrayed by Ryan O'Neal, wealthy college-hockey player Oliver was embraced by audiences around the world for his relationship with "smart and poor" music student Jenny Cavilleri (Ali MacGraw, in the role that cemented her stardom, though she didn't make all that many movies after this).

The very clever move made by then-Paramount Pictures chief Robert Evans was, after optioning Erich Segal's original screenplay, to have the writer turn it into a novel first. The gambit paid off, since the book became a huge bestseller, making many theater patrons eager to see the film - which they did in droves, since at the time, the Arthur Hiller-directed "Love Story" quickly landed among the top-grossing attractions ever released.

The tale it tells is quite simple. While working on a class assignment, Harvard's Oliver meets Radcliffe's Jenny when he needs a book from her school's library. She immediately starts giving him attitude, which both infuriates and intrigues him, and he quickly puts her to the test of being able to take it herself when he turns it around on her. Which she can't.

Ryan O'Neal and Ali MacGraw in "Love Story"

Thus a love story is born, and it doesn't take long for Oliver to make an impulsive marriage proposal to Jenny. Then it's a matter of selling their engagement to their respective parents: Jenny's baker father (a wonderful John Marley) is more open to the idea, while Oliver's stern business-titan father (a properly rigid Ray Milland) warns his son, "I'll not give you the time of day" if the vows are taken. (Oliver's angry response? "Father, you don't know the time of day.")

The marriage happens, but "Love Story" then takes a turn that has been parodied endlessly over the ensuing years, though it meant an intensely heightened need for tissues by those who experienced it at the movies. The scene that both opens and closes the film is iconic, and enough to put any fan in touch with the related emotions immediately.

Segal wrote the sequel "Oliver's Story," and a big Paramount paycheck lured O'Neal back for the 1978 screen version, but "Love Story" is the sort of lightning bolt that's hard to catch twice. And fortunately, it's still around to warm the hearts of new generations.

KELLY RIPA

Kelly Maria Ripa was born on Oct. 2, 1970, in Berlin, N.J. A ballet student at a young age, she was a cheerleader in high school, where her drama teacher recommended that she pursue a career in acting. Though she started college in pursuit of a psychology degree, she dropped out to go to New York and seek acting jobs.

Ripa first was seen on national television as a dancer on the show "Dancin' on Air," which evolved into "Dance Party USA." She also had thoughts of becoming a newscaster, but her next TV stop would turn into a long one ... "All My Children," the weekday serial on which she played Hayley Vaughan for 12 years (1990-2002).

While she was on "All My Children," Ripa appeared as a guest on "Live! With Regis and Kathie Lee," then was among those summoned for a co-host tryout opposite Regis Philbin after Kathie Lee Gifford left the syndicated weekday talk show. She was named Gifford's successor in February 2001, and her joining the program (while she still was working at "All My Children") led to a near-immediate increase in its demographic among younger viewers. From 2003 to 2006, Ripa also starred with Faith Ford in the primetime sitcom "Hope & Faith."

The retirement of Regis Philbin from daily TV in 2011 put Ripa in the position he had been in when she was hired for "Live!," working with a parade of guest co-hosts in what effectively were tryouts to find a permanent on-air partner for her. Eventually, Michael Strahan got the job, and he stayed for just under four years before he moved to ABC's "Good Morning America" full-time.

For a year starting in May 2016, Ripa sat with a second succession of guest co-hosts on "Live!" until a deal was made with Ryan Seacrest, who has shared "Live With Kelly and Ryan" with her since then.

The sister of a children's-book author, Ripa is married to actor Mark Consuelos, with whom she worked on "All My Children." They have two sons and a daughter, and they reside in Manhattan.

Pro Football Hall of Fame Game kicks off NFL 2021

The parched, arid desert that is the football offseason thankfully comes to an end for NFL fans in the first week of August with the return of preseason action.

And that gets going Thursday, Aug. 5, on Fox, with the Pro Football Hall of Fame Game, which this year pits two storied franchises that have a long history as Ben Roethlisberger and the Pittsburgh Steelers face Dak Prescott and the Dallas Cowboys at Tom Benson Hall of Fame Stadium in Canton, Ohio.

Not only is this contest the kickoff to the preseason, it also stands as the opening event of Hall of Fame Weekend, a four-day celebration that culminates with the Induction Ceremony on Sunday, Aug. 8. This year's crop, as in years past, have connections to the teams on the field as two former Steelers, guard Alan Faneca and defensive back Charles Woodson, and one Cowboy, wide receiver Drew Pearson, will be entering the hallowed halls along with Pittsburgh sportswriter and scout Bill Nunn. Others to be enshrined are quarterback Peyton Manning, wide receiver Calvin Johnson, safety John Lynch and coach Tom Flores.

The Steelers and the Cowboys are no strangers to this particular event or to each other. Both teams have played in this game six times, each sporting 3-3 records at Canton dating back to 1963. They've also met 30 times in the regular season over the past 61 years, with the Cowboys winning 16 times.

But it is in the Super Bowl where these teams played as it featured 20 players, coaches and front-office personnel (including Pearson and Nunn) that would wind up in the Hall of Fame, an NFL record. That game was won by the Steelers 35-31 at the Orange Bowl in Miami.

Certainly, Thursday's exhibition contest doesn't carry the importance of a Super Bowl but it is significant in that it's the first Hall of Fame Game

Bromell hopes perseverance pays off in gold at 2020 Tokyo Olympics

It's been a long journey back to the Olympics for Trayvon Bromell, one that almost didn't happen.

Indeed, the 26-year-old native of St. Petersburg, Fla., had considered retirement since the Rio games in 2016, and it was issues with his left heel that were the reason why.

Painful bone spurs first reared their head that summer five years ago, and then he crumpled to the ground in the 4x100m relay at Rio and had to be helped off by wheelchair. The diagnosis was every sprinter's nightmare: a torn Achilles.

Two surgeries followed, as did many hours of rehab, and Bromell wound up missing all or most of the 2017, 2018 and 2019 seasons. He feared his career was over and discouragement set in.

But a funny thing happened on the way to retirement. In 2020, Bromell got healthy, hired a new coach and began training again. And on July 4 he had his own Independence Day celebration by running his best time in the 100m in five years, 10.04 seconds – not elite but certainly one that said he was close. Those were followed a month later by two more personal bests of 9.90 and 9.87 seconds at various competitions. The comeback was on.

Fast forward to 2021 and Bromell set a world record in the 100m with a time of 9.77 at the NACAC New Life Invitational in Florida in June. Now, the man who two years ago was ready to give up the sport entirely finds himself as the unlikely favorite in the 100m sprint in Tokyo.

Viewers can watch Bromell go for gold in the men's 100m sprint at the 2020 Tokyo Olympics Sunday, Aug. 1 on NBC and Peacock.

The STREAM Scene

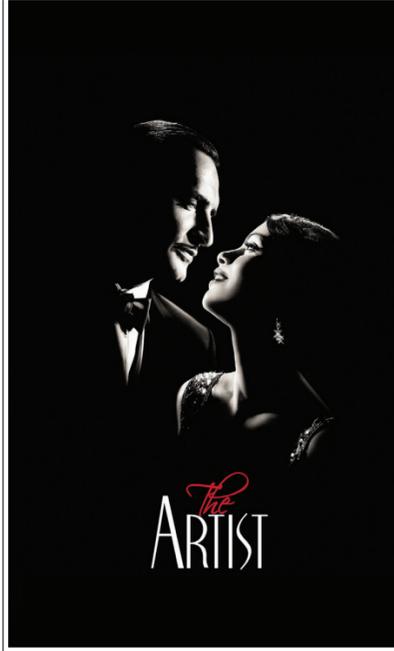

Where all the top choices can be found in one place!

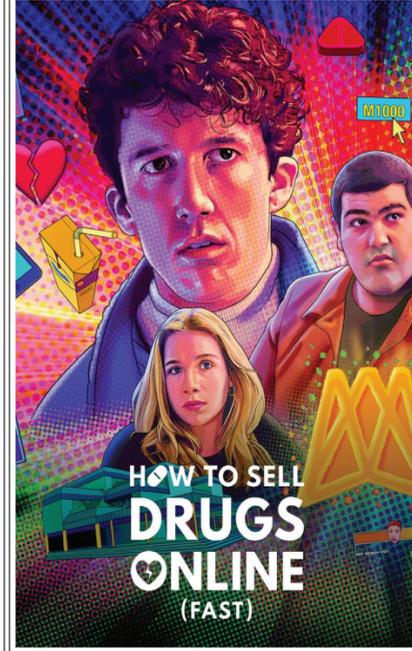

“Movie: Val”
 Fans of Val Kilmer will get an up-close-and-personal look at the mercurial “The Doors” and “Batman Forever” actor in this documentary from first-time directors Leo Scott and Ting Poo, which uses home movies, on-set clips and footage shot by Kilmer himself to chronicle a life lived to extremes and reveal what it means to be an artist and a complex man. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: The Artist”
 This best-picture Oscar winner is an affectionate tribute to movie history, with director Michel Hazanavicius going so far as to make it a silent film. Jean Dujardin also earned a statuette as an actor who fears what the dawn of talking pictures may mean for his career — and who falls for a chorus girl (Berenice Bejo) whose star is rising. John Goodman also stars.

“How to Sell Drugs Online (Fast)”
 Season 3 of this crime caper from Germany finds Moritz (Maximilian Mundt) alone and desperate as he struggles to hold onto power as CEO of MyDrugs while reuniting with Dan (Damian Hardung) and Lenny (Danilo Kamperidis), whose condition is deteriorating, for one last job. Bjarne Madel and Lena Klenke also star. (ORIGINAL)

“The Simpsons: The Good, the Bart and The Loki” (Available now)
 The long-running Fox series meets the Marvel Cinematic Universe in this animated short that finds Loki (voice of Tom Hiddleston) banished to Springfield, where he joins forces with Bart (voice of Nancy Cartwright) to fight against his toughest adversaries. “Simpsons” regulars Dan Castellaneta and Yeardley Smith are also in the voice cast. InFocus

“Truth Be Told: Season 2” (Apple TV+ — season premiere, Aug. 20)
 The second round of this original drama series follows investigative reporter-turned-true crime podcaster Poppy Parnell (Octavia Spencer, “The Help”) as she takes on a case that deeply involves a childhood friend, media mogul Micah Keith (Kate Hudson, “Almost Famous”). Christopher Backus, Alona Tal, David Lyons and Katherine LaNasa are among cast returnees.
