County approves tax rate and budget

By ROGER CLINE
 Herald Staff Writer

Howard County's tax rate and budget for 2021-22 will both be higher than in 2020-21.

County Commissioners officially set the new rate at the "No New Revenue" tax rate of 32.7545 cents per $100 valuation, a rate which will bring in the same revenue as last year, despite being higher than last year's tax rate of 29.9562 cents per $100.

According to County Judge Kathryn Wiseman, the commissioners originally planned to set the rate at the "Voter Approval Rate" of 33.9629 cents per $100, but Commissioner Jimmie Long (Precinct 3) made the motion to instead approve the No New Revenue rate.

According to County Auditor Jackie Olson, the No New Revenue rate will bring about $700,000 less revenue into county coffers over the course of the year than the Voter Approval Rate.

At the same time as his motion to approve the 32.7545 cents per $100 tax rate, Long proposed accepting the county's Annual Budget as presented, totaling $18,512,000, up slightly from last year's total.

Commissioners approved both the tax rate and budget unanimously.

At the start of the meeting, West Texas Centers (WTCMHMR) CEO Shelley Smith asked the commissioners to approve a memorandum of agreement showing that Howard County is providing matching funds to WTCMHMR; to use state of Texas grant money to hire three Mental Health Deputies, officers specially trained in mental health crisis intervention; to approve WTCMHMR's "Non-Standard Contract for Psychological Evaluation" for new Howard County peace officers, a required document for those officers; and a memorandum of understanding for jail case worker mental health services provided in the Howard County Jail defining the role of the case workers in the jail setting.

Commissioners unanimously approved all items presented by Smith. Next, Wiseman asked the commissioners whether – considering her upcoming retirement at the end of 2022 – they wanted to appoint someone else to serve on the regional I-27 Advisory Committee. Wiseman currently serves on the committee, whose goal is to extend Interstate 27 – which currently runs from Amarillo south to Lubbock – from Lubbock through Big Spring to San Angelo.

Commissioners responded by asking Wiseman to continue to serve on the committee for the time being.

“I say, you need to stay there,” said Commissioner John Cline (Precinct 4). Commissioners unanimously approved Wiseman retaining the post.

County Treasurer Sharon Adams presented personnel considerations, her monthly Treasurer’s Report for June and July, and the monthly Payroll Report. Adams also presented a policy required by the State of Texas called the Emergency Responder Paid Quarantine Policy, which ensures that emergency personnel afflicted with coronavirus continue to receive pay during their quarantine. Commissioners unanimously passed the measure.

Olson presented an item including two bids on 10-foot chain-link fencing for the new landfill: one for $343,580 and the other for $685,420. Commissioner Long moved to table the item, and instead request bids on eight-foot tall fencing.

“I think at this time, instead of looking at the 10-foot fence, we can save a little money by going with an eight-foot fence,” Long said. “Due to our investigation and after some elevation checks, I believe an eight-foot fence will be sufficient and would save us a significant amount of money.”

Commissioners unanimously approved following Long’s suggestion and the item was tabled pending new bids.

Olson also presented the Monthly Financial Report, as well as invoices, purchase requests, and budget amendments during the meeting. All were unanimously approved, except for a single purchase request for a door at the Justice of the Peace Precinct 1, Place 1, office. The item was tabled for future study.

An item presented by Commissioner Long concerning Four Sevens Operating Company was discussed during a closed executive session prior to the meeting, and no action was taken.

An item was mistakenly placed on the agenda concerning the Texas Commission on Jail standards which had been approved at a previous meeting, so no action was needed.

County Elections Administrator Jody Duck asked commissioners to appoint election judges for the upcoming November election, and to set a special meeting date to canvass the election results. The commissioners set Nov. 15 as the date for the meeting.

County Indigent Healthcare Director JoAnn Valle asked permission to go out for bids on pharmaceutical services at the Howard County Detention Center, the Howard County Care/Indigent Welfare, and the Juvenile Probation Program. The commissioners unanimously approved the request.

Valle also asked the commissioners to consider approval of physicians’ contracts for the Indigent Healthcare Program for the upcoming fiscal year, which was also approved unanimously.

County Road Commissioner Brian Klinksiek told commissioners that a planned contract negotiation with Delek/Tokai Transportation for a right-of-way through county land had been canceled.

Klinksiek also asked the commissioners to consider restoring the speed limit on Centerpoint Road from 50 miles per hour to 65 miles per hour now that construction in the area is complete.

Commissioner Long moved to table the item.

“They’re fracking 14 wells,” Long said. “I’d like to keep those trucks slowed down, and, more or less, residents out there, so they don’t run up on some of those sand trucks out there.”

Commissioners unanimously approved tabling the item.

“We just want to see that area just catch on fire for Jesus and host a night where it’s a safe environment where younger kids can be. Sometimes when you start school, it can be stressful and cause some anxiety and things like that. We just want to provide an atmosphere that takes the kids’ minds off of that and brings them into an environment of peace and fun...,” Hannah Ferguson of the Inner Court leadership team, said in a previous interview.

For two hours, the youth enjoyed activities outside and had an opportunity to take home a new set of Airpods. The evening was wrapped up with a worship service provided by Inner Court. During the worship service there were about 10 youth who dedicated their life to the Lord, choosing to get baptized.

“The night was such a success! We beat up a car, rode a mechanical bull, ate free ice cream, played dodgeball, all with the intention to put kids of this city in front of Jesus,” Mikayla Miner, one of the event organizers, said. “Thanks to Inter Court Worship that is exactly what we did.”

Champion Culture Youth, the Life Church, youth organization, will meets Wednesdays from 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m. on the Life Church Campus. For more information about Champion Culture and their plans for the Fall visit and follow the Champion Culture Facebook page <https://www.facebook.com/ChampionCultureLifeChurch/>

“We are seeing God move in our city and move in our kids,” Miner said. “We had 12 kids get spontaneously baptized. God is good!”

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

You don't have to see all 52 cards to play a hand to best advantage. There are times when the correct method of play can be determined as if the opposing cards were face up on the table.

Consider this deal where West leads a club against three notrump. Declarer starts with six tricks and is a decided favorite to score three more by establishing dummy's diamonds.

He wins the club with the queen

Tomorrow: A crucial defensive play.

The Problem Is You

Dear Annie: My husband and I are trying to figure out how to emotionally support our adult daughter, who is 40 years old. She is going through a very emotional period in her life.

She has been married for about a year, has "major issues" with her spouse and is not certain she can "stay in the relationship." But from our conversations with her and what we've observed, the issues she describes seem to be all "her." For example, she expects her spouse to give his undivided attention to her all day on his day off from work. She is not even willing to allow chores such as mowing the lawn or doing the laundry to interfere. She doesn't want him to be reading, talking on the phone or checking emails -- just paying full attention to her. Her sister is extremely concerned about her as well.

Her behavior is wacky, and she is highly offended that we are not "supporting" her when she obsessively describes arguments with her spouse. We are all concerned about mental health issues but are at a loss.

We've encouraged her to seek therapy, which she has started, but she is already looking for a different therapist. Her sister is going to ask her own therapist for advice on how to be more supportive. We'll do the same.

But we can't bring ourselves to agree with her that the spousal behaviors are abusive, because they simply are not. This opinion is based on what we've observed firsthand; not by what she says about what happens. We can say, "we are so sorry you are unhappy," but this is not the affirmation she is seeking from us. This family dynamic is new to us and is stressing us all out. Any advice? -- Stressed Out Family

Dear Stressed Out Family: It does sound like your daughter could be suffering from a mental illness, or maybe just extreme insecurity or narcissism. Regardless of the diagnosis, which hopefully her new therapist will be able to make, you are also suffering. The best thing to do is to consult a professional yourself about how best to support your daughter during this difficult time of her life -- and yours.

Dear Annie: You recently published a letter from a person whose father had died, and whose sister refused to tell her 6-year-old child about the loss. There is a resource that would be useful to the sister: ChildrensRoom.org. -- Sympathetic in Boston

Dear Sympathetic in Boston: Thank you for your suggestion. I hope this brings her more comfort.

Dear Annie: I was in a similar situation as "Grieving Grandmother" but just the opposite. My grandmother and parents did not like my choice of spouse, so we were uninvited to family gatherings. At first, I was hurt, and then I thought, "who cares?" So for the last 30 years, my holiday gatherings on Thanksgiving and Christmas have been filled with my "new" family. Seniors whose children don't have time for them. Young people whose parents cut them off because they are LGBTQ or different. Widows and widowers, and other various "forgotten" people. They are not forgotten in my house. For the last 30 years, my life and home have been filled with joy, laughter and happiness. My advice to that grandmother is to write those so-called daughters-in-law off and surround herself with others that will love her and want to spend holidays with a woman who loves and wants to host them. She won't regret it. -- Grandfather to Those Without

Dear Grandfather to Those Without: Surrounding yourself with supportive and loving people is always important, and will make you feel more supported and nourished.
