Recycling, K-9 programs headline BSISD board meeting

By ROGER CLINE

Herald Staff Writer

BIG SPRING

A pair of Big Spring ISD faculty members and a group of third graders were recognized at Thursday evening's school board meeting for their participation in a recycling program at Washington and Goliad elementary schools.

Cadet Bryant, a counselor at the two schools, spoke about the program.

"If you take a plastic bottle...three quarters of that bottle, if you fill it up with oil, that's how much oil it takes to make that bottle. Plastic bags...anything plastic is an oil product. We make so much of the stuff here in West Texas, and I never see it being regenerated. I just see most of it going to waste in the trash," he said. "I just said, 'I've got to do something about this.

So I started calling around, and sure enough, there's a new company here, Howard startup company. To make a long story short, they're the ones that are picking up stuff County Recycling. They're a for us. Since the beginning of school, since we started this. between Washington and Goliad, they have recycled over 1,000 – actually it's 1,300 pounds of stuff. That's just between two campuses. Can y'all imagine what's going to waste in our whole town if you know that that's being saved between just two campuses? It takes 20 plastic bottles - 20 regular-sized plastic bottles equals one pound. Okay? Our kids have recycled about 200 pounds of plastic bottles. That's just unbelievable." Washington Elementary School Bilingual Teacher Selene Moreno addressed those present at the meeting in Spanish.

Bryant applied for and received a grant from the local H.O.P.E. Foundation, an organization that provides

Less than 48 hours shy of 20 years ago, the world as it once existed was forever changed. A moment in history that is forever etched not only in the history books, but in the minds of those who were alive when it happened. This year marks the 20th anniversary of the terrorist attacks that took out the World Trade Center towers, resulted in a plane crashed in Pennsylvania, attack on the Pentagon, and the loss of countless lives - a moment that would forever change our nation.

On Sept. 11, 2001 an unexpected and tragic day took the lives of thousands of Americans, but brought a unity that can't be rivaled. Unity and a sense of patriotism that had never before been seen swept across all 50 states and even spread over the ocean and across the nation. The community is invited to join together once again for the 15th annual 9/11 Memorial Service, set to take place at Spring Creek Fellowship on Sept. 11 at 4 grants to assist with educational innovation.

Following the recycling program recognition, personnel from FOCUSS K-9 Services gave a report and showed off their chocolate labrador Tank. BSISD Safety and Security Officer Jim Wommack explained that FOCUSS has been chosen to take over the K-9 drug and firearms inspection services for the district. "What we do in education is all about relationships," Wommack said. "We built a relationship with the FOCUSS group in terms of how they can help us, and it's a proactive approach. We want to be visible. We want to educate our children from the young ages all the way up to high school." FOCUSS Vice-President Rick Hempel addressed the board at the meeting. "We've been in business since 2015," he said. "FOCUSS stands for Forming One Common Understanding of Safety and Security. Our ownership and management is all active and retired first responders - police officers, paramedics and firefighters. We wanted to find a way in our retirement to not only go out and do safety projects and things like that for plants, but to find a way to help make our communities safer."

Hempel said that Tank and any other service dogs assigned to Big Spring schools will be cross trained in detecting narcotics, including cocaine, marijuana, heroin, methamphetamines and ecstasy: as well

"You would never train a law-enforcement-specific dog in the state of Texas to find firearms. (Tank) could never go to work for a police department, because we trained him to find firearms," Hempel said. "Also, we don't know what the legislature's going to do in the next few years with marijuana. Most of us can see it being legalized in the next few years. It's just the way society's changing. So a lot of police dogs now, when we train a dog for law enforcement, we don't even train them on marijuana anymore."

Hempel pointed out that marijuana will still likely remain forbidden in public schools, so dogs like Tank are able to help enforce those rules where police dogs may

In other business, the board approved minutes of its regular meeting Aug. 12, as well as the public hearing and special meeting held Aug. 30.

The board renewed approval of its District of Innovation Plan. Superintendent Jay McWilliams explained that the Texas Education Agency assigns the "District of Innovation" title to many school districts across the state, giving them special privileges to follow locally crafted plans for student success.

Big Spring ISD's Innovation Plan includes several components, including two-vear mentoring for new teachers: extended teacher planning time; technology services aligned with instruction; and an innovative school calendar featuring a flexible start and end date, professional development opportunities for staff each six week period, and flex days for student interventions and enrichment.

The plan also features system-wide practices to support strong families and community relationships. The plan can be found on the district's website at bsisd.esc18.net by clicking "About BSISD" in the top menu and then "Required Postings." "District of Innovation Plan" is included under the "Administrative" heading. School board members unanimously approved renewing approval of the plan. The board also approved routine items, including approval of expedited and general state waivers, and approval of employment recommendations, including Karen Davidson and Big Spring Intermediate School, Choir Director Gershom Garcia at Big Spring High School, and Assistant Superintendent of Operations Jeff Perez.

McWilliams gave his regular report including resignations and retirements; an enrollment report with current enrollment at 3,619 students district-wide; and a report on the status of COVID-19 in the district, including, as of Monday, four staff members and 25 students positive for the disease.

McWilliams also reported that installation of new artificial turf at the softball field will commence Sept. 20.

"Last year's remembrance looked a little different, and may this year as well with the current situation we are in, but we are still taking the time to remember those who have given the ultimate sacrifice," Mike Tarpley, organizer of the Memorial at the Plaza annual event, said.

The ceremony will still include recognition of those, from Howard County, who lost their lives in wars following the Sept. 11 attack. The ceremony is projected to last less than an hour, and the community is invited to attend. Once again the ceremony will take place inside the sanctuary at Spring Creek Fellowship. According to Tarpley, this year the Big Spring choir will be performing. The Howard County Volunteer Fire Department and the Cross Roads Young Marines will be offering their support in the ceremony as well.

"Join us in remembering those lost in the 9/11 attacks and honoring our own local fallen heroes and first responders," Tarpley said. "This year, with the events taking place in the world, and it being the 20th anniversary, it's an opportunity for us to come together as a community once again and find that unity that first came to light as the ash began to settle from the buildings falling."

Social distancing will be encouraged for those who attend the event. Masks are encouraged as well.

Scenic Mountain Medical Center will also be hosting a short ceremony around the flag pole at 9 a.m. Saturday. The ceremony will include a prayer, the playing of Taps, and those attending will be able to take some breakfast to go at the conclusion of the ceremony.

For more information about the Memorial Ceremony at the Plaza, contact Mike Tarpley at 432-556-2227.

In addition, the following weekend - on Sept. 18 - will be the 9th annual Dove Hunt Community Ceremony honoring four veterans. The ceremony will take place at First Methodist Church this year. The community is invited to attend both events and show support for those who have made the chose to serve their country.

We know it is there, but no one wants to talk about it. How will people respond? It's uncomfortable and challenging. For too long, we have avoided difficult conversations in the church. The longer we ignore them, the bigger the elephants grow. If you've wondered how to address issues like politics, pornography, sexuality, mental health, or racism from a biblical perspective, then you won't want to miss this new series starting in September. It is time to discuss the Elephants in the Church.

The light of the world

"Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am No, I am not talking about the absence of the sun, the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." John 8:12

Have you ever stopped to think about what this world would be like without light? Several words come to mind: chaos, trouble, fear, uncertainty, confusion, aimlessness, ignorance, anger, but most of all - death, a whole lot of death. Yes, death everywhere; unexplainable, unnecessary, senseless, painful death. I look around me, and I see evidence of darkness, not just in the lives of people I meet, but in the world in general. It's a dark, dark world out there. All you have to do is look around you, and it won't be long until you see evidence of the dense, moon or stars, but rather, the darkness which has conquered our own hearts. The world we live in today is so advanced in science, technology, phycology, numerology and every kind of "ology" we can possibly think of, but it just keeps getting darker and darker, because we keep looking to ourselves for the answer to the darkness which has so evidently surrounded us. What is the answer to the darkness we are experiencing in our world today?

The answer is love. Yes, love; pure, unadulterated, non-political, non-religious, scandalous, unconditional love. But where can we find this love? We find it in Jesus, the Son of Jesus was, and is the literal, physical, practhick, palpable darkness which exists in this world. tical, palpable embodiment of God's love. Jesus said that He is the light of the world because He came to express and fulfill the love of God the Father. God's love is the light of the world. No love, no light, because love is the light. Proverbs 10:12 says that love covers all sins. Well, I am very sinful, and when I see that God has loved (forgiven) me through Jesus, I can see the light. This light is so bright and powerful, that I can see nothing but Jesus and the fact that He has forgiven all of my sins. Its dark out there, but Jesus is the light of the world because His love is the light of life. So, if in this dark world, we ask "where is the light", we must first ask – where is the love? Where is Jesus? Jesus is in the unconditional forgiveness of sins because He is the end of the Law for righteousness to all who believe. And He is our righteousness because on the cross, He said...

...it is finished!

Reflections: Remembering 9/11

This week our nation looks back to remember and reflect on 9/11. Twenty years have passed, and an entire generation has grown up with no knowledge of a world without TSA security lines, a world where passengers stepped off the plane to be embraced by loved ones at the gate, a world where spectators entered public buildings and stadiums without metal detectors and bag searches. Mid-twenties and younger have learned about 9/11 from history books.

Those of us who lived through it remember where we were and what we were doing when the airplanes slammed into the twin towers. That moment changed our world.

On Sept. 11, 2001, the Atlantic and Pacific oceans vanished. Not literally, of course. But prior to that date we felt isolated from a distant and violent world in which terrorists attacked innocent crowds. We felt protected by the vast bodies of water that separated us from Europe, Africa and Asia. After 9/11 those barriers no longer existed. We were connected and vulnerable, a feeling that has increased with cyber-security issues, Covid, and the fall of Afghanistan. Every generation has its 9/11 to remember, a staggering event that freezes the moment in memory. For those of us who grew up in the 1960s, it was November 22, 1963, the day John F. Kennedy fell to an assassin's bullet at Dealy Plaza in Dallas. For our parents it was December 7, 1941, a quiet Sunday morning when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

Every generation experiences events that threaten to steal their freedom, destroy their dreams and leave them frozen with fear. But one event stands alone that places all others in perspective. One event above all others enables us to rise above our fears to embrace the future. September 11, 2001, November 22, 1963 and December 7, 1941, are all dated in reference to the birth of Jesus Christ

The prophet Isaiah predicted Jesus' life when He wrote, "In that day the Root of Jesse will stand as a banner for the peoples; the nations will rally to him, and his resting place will be glorious," (Isaiah 11:10). Paul summed up His significance when he said, "But when the fullness of the time came, God sent His son," (Galatians 4:4). It was the perfect moment. Everything in history is dated in reference to His birth as BC, AD or BCE, CE. From Him flow the faith and courage to face any disaster, to overcome any foe and to live with confidence knowing that goodness and righteousness will prevail upon the earth.

An old song captures the experience of millions who have persevered and prevailed through devastating tragedies for more than two thousand years. Bill and Gloria Gaither wrote it and first sang it fifty years ago. "Because He lives, I can face tomorrow. Because He lives, all fear is gone. Because I know who holds the future, and life is worth the living, just because He lives ... we can face uncertain days, because He lives."

Bill Tinsley reflects on current events and life experience from a faith perspec tive. Download his eBook, Upon This Rock Free on Amazon Sept 8-12. Visit www. tinsleycenter.com. Email bill@tinsleycenter.com.

If God is not real

By JOELLE LUDINGTON

If God is "not real" why does the world try so hard to prove He (God) does not exist.

Why are we such a threat to other countries.

Why is there so much a rebellion. Why do people oppose righteousness and conviction pieces of the heart of Why blame God

Raise your fist towards heaven and persecute a people call His own.

If God's not real.

Romans 18:32 Amplified Bible Because that which is known about

God is evident within them - in their inner consciousness, for God made it evident to them.

God does exist by faith.

Something to think about...

Can you be a Christian without going to church? That is a question I hear from time to time. The truth is that you don't go to church, you are the church.

But, I believe that some assembly is required. Regardless of how challenging it can be to put all the pieces together at times, we truly need each other to experience life the way God intended. Scripture is clear - we cannot separate our vertical relationship with God from the horizontal relationships with one another. We were created for community. We were made for each other.

Eugene Peterson says, "The gospel pulls us into community. One of the immediate changes that the gospel makes is grammatical: we instead of I, our instead of my, us instead of me."

We gather together in Christian community to encounter the manifest presence of God in our lives, to seek the Lord with all our heart, renew our spirit, to deepen in our walk and hold fast to the faith, to build each other up, to serve and work together for the Kingdom's sake. Christ gave himself up for the church.

And despite all of her faults and failures, He loves the church. I believe it is God's chosen vessel to bring His presence, healing, hope, and salvation into the world.

The Scriptures encourage us to continue gathering together. "Let us hold unswervingly to the hope we profess, for he who promised is faithful. And let us consider how we may spur one another on toward love and good deeds, not giving up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but encouraging one anotherand all the more as you see the Day wrote. "Church attendance matters And not for the growth of the organization itself, but more importantly, for the formation of the people.

Why? Church is participation. It is our submission to the body of Christ. It is part of our salvation... transforming us from the idolatry of self into worshipers of God. Church is formation. It is an identity. It is practice. It is a dress rehearsal of how to be Christian. As we partake in sacrament, we are accepting the grace of God. As we sing praise, we are aligning our minds and bodies in worship. As we listen to the Scripture being read aloud, we are practicing hearing

As we anoint and pray, we are practicing a faith beyond our own reason. As we fellowship, we are practicing hospitality. Church is participation. And being a Christian requires practice. It is a discipline not an experience. It requires apprenticeship in order to be lived.

To be a Christian requires the body of Christ...the Church." ~ Pastor Shane Ash

The hope for our world will not be found in some form of government, it is not in a particular political party or in human leaders, our hope is in Christ. He is our only hope. (see Psalm 146) And we are the Body of Christ bringing His love, grace, and peace into the world.

May we continue to keep the main hing the main thing and make parapproaching." ~ Hebrews 10:23-25 ticipation in Christ-centered community a priority so that we might live This morning, I was reminded into His purposes and experience His promises in our lives!

A small prayer by K. Rae

May we never underestimate the power of one, Lord, the power of You. Amen

The Chalet is temporarily closed for the safety of our volunteers.

We apologize for any inconvenience, & hope to re-open in October!

He called me by name

When I was a child, I didn't like my name.

I tried all during my childhood to change it. "Lil" was put on my High School sweater. I remember it well because it changed my name throughout four years. That caused me a little confusion because my childhood friends continued to call me by my birth name—and new friends called me Lil.

> We have all had the experience of Mom or Dad calling our full name and reprimanding us for an infraction of their just rules. Now that I am older, it doesn't really matter what people call me, as long as I know they mean me.

by my name when I was twenty-four years old. It was the most beautiful experience

I have ever had. He called me to Him-LILLIAN self, wrote my name in the Lamb's BOHANNAN Book of Life in Heaven. It will remain there throughout eternity.

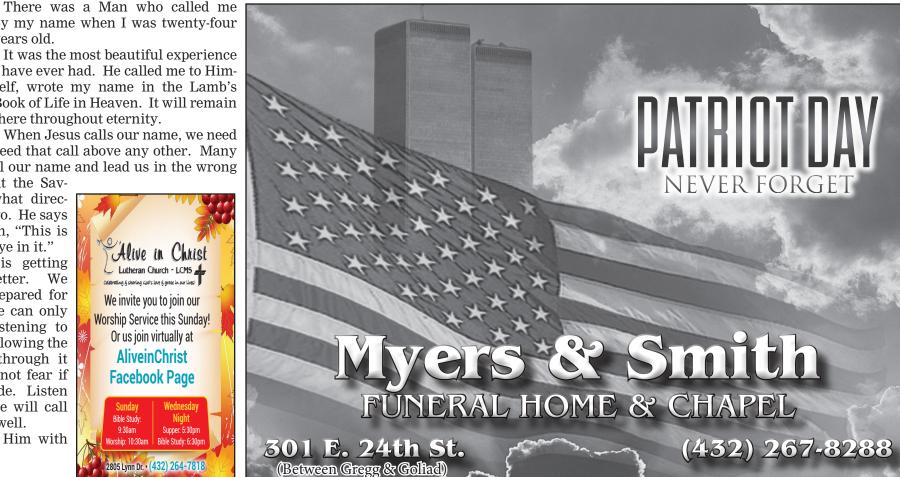

When Jesus calls our name, we need to listen and heed that call above any other. Many people will call our name and lead us in the wrong direction. But the Saviour knows what direction I need to go. He says to His children, "This is the way, walk ye in it."

The world is getting worse—not better. We need to be prepared for the worst. We can only do that by listening to the call and following the Creator God through it all. We need not fear if He is our Guide. Listen to Him and He will call your name as well.

Then follow Him with all your heart.

Week 3 High School Football Breakdown

By DUSTIN POPE

Herald Sports Writer

It's Friday night, and once again, we are set for some great Friday night high school football activity. All of the local teams will be in action. Some outstanding games are taking place this week as we have the Big Spring Steers, 2-0, traveling to Monahans to take on the 2-0 Lobos. Next, the Coahoma Bulldogs take on Eldorado in Eldorado. The Forsan Buffs will take the short road trip to Stanton to take on the Stanton Buffaloes. Finally, the Garden City Bearkats will take on Water Valley in Water Valley. So this week will be full of extraordinary action for whoever you root for.

We will lead off with the Big Spring Steers. The Steers have been particularly remarkable this season as they are now 2-0 on the season. They traveled to Vernon to take on the Vernon Lions in week one and won a close game heading into the fourth quarter, 31-22. Week two was much more of an eruption as the Steers had their home opener last Friday and blew out the Lubbock High Westerners. This season has been all about how well QB

Gabriel Baeza has been playing as he has thrown for over 300 yards in each game this season. He uses this dynamic offense created by head coach Cannon McWilliams to spread the ball around and hit receivers in open space. The Steers have been making big plays all season long. The defense has also played very well to start the season. They have put pressure on the opposing team's QB and help generate some key turnovers. Big Spring has just looked dominant to this point. They will take on their sternest test of this season to date Friday night as they will drive to take on the 2-0 Monahans Lobos in a battle of unbeaten teams. Monahans, much like Big Spring, haven't been challenged to this point of the season. They beat Clint in Clint week one, 49-17. Then in week two, they beat Andrews in Monahans 35-20. The Lobos, much like Big Spring, run a spread offense, and they also, like Big Spring, have a QB who can run the ball when needed. This should shape up to be one heck of a game. Monahans will be imposing, specifically on their home field, but I think this Steers team is the real deal. I believe they will go into Monahans and handle business and come home with their third win of the season in as many games. They will hold the game in Monahans this Friday. They set the kickoff for 7 p.m.

The Coahoma Bulldogs are now 1-1 on the season as they got back on track in week two. The Bulldogs went to Miles this past Friday and blew out the Miles Bulldogs 54-0. This was coming off the heels of an unpleasant week, one in which they dropped a game to Forsan 35-14. The Bulldogs looked like a completely different team when they took on Miles. You can tell they learned from mistakes made in the first game. QB Billy Bailey was fantastic last week as he threw for four TD passes in the first half. This game could have been much worse if Coahoma hadn't called off the dogs in the second half of this game. Coahoma played about as a perfect game as you can. The defense was also locked in, as they never let Miles get into a grove. The Bulldogs will look to keep the energy going. They will take a road trip to Eldorado to take on the Eldorado Eagles. The Eagles come into this matchup with a 1-0 record. They beat up on San Saba in week one by a final score of 42-20. Last year the Bulldogs handled the Eagles 59-34; they will do the same thing this year and improve to 2-1. The game will be held in Eldorado. They set this Friday kickoff for 7:30.

Forsan pushed their record to 2-0 after going down to post and beating the Antelopes 22-6. In week one, the Buffs could win their first Howard County Bowl in five years when they defeated the Coahoma Bulldogs 35-14. The Buffs looked wonderful this past Friday night against Post. Major Stockton kept up his admirable play as he went 6 of 10 for 76 yards and a TD through the air.

He also added 46 yards rushing on 12 carries and a TD. Nate Hernandez also had a great game running the ball as he carried the rock 11 times for 75 yards and a TD. Limiting the Antelopes to six points, the Buffs defense played well, but Cayden Morgan was flashing all over the field. Morgan ended the night with 22 total tackles, nine solo, and 13 assists. He also contributed on the offensive side of the ball as he had 22 yards receiving. The speed of this Forsan team is something to behold as they create so many mismatches all over the field. They can blow past people on both sides of the ball. The speed will be a significant difference-maker this season. The Buffs will look to make this a 3-0 start as they will have a battle of the buffaloes this week. Forsan will travel down to Stanton to take on the Stanton Buffaloes. Stanton comes into this game with a record of 1-1. They won week one when they faced Grape Creek but lost in week two against Merkel 19-0. Last year, Forsan won this game with a final score of 27-6. The Forsan Buffaloes will look to keep the early season momentum on track, and I believe they will. The game will be in Stanton this Friday, and kickoff will be at 7:30 p.m.

Garden City evened up their record this past Friday night as they destroyed O'Donnell. The Bearkats won the game 48-0. This game was a blowout from the coin toss. The Bearkats looked good all game long. Garden City had 412 yards of total offense and held O'Donnell to 190. QB Seidenberger Logan passed for 124 yards and 3TD and was 9 of 10 from the field. RB Sebastian Balcazar led the way on the ground as he ran the ball 17 times for 194 yards. Mason Walker chipped in for three carries and 35 yards. John Lopez carried the ball seven times for 33 yards, and Jordan Jones had two carries for 21. The Bearkats played a complete game of football

Water Valley Wild Cats come into this matchup sporting a 2-0 record. This will be no simple test for the Bearkats, but they will compete on every single play and will come out victorious. The game is this evening in Water Valley, and they set kickoff for As you can see, they loaded this week with all splendid games. Unfortunately, all of our teams travel this week, so let's pray for safe travels for these teams and fans traveling with the various teams. This should be an exciting week for football, and we should learn a lot about all of our local

Eddie George, other former All-Pros, making impact at HBCUs

By TERESA M. WALKER

AP Sports Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Eddie George picked a good time for a career change.

He's one of several high-profile former pro athletes to give up their lavish retirement lifestyles, roll up their sleeves and accept historically Black colleges and universities coaching positions at a time when the country seems ready to embrace social change.

Television networks, which already had contracts with the Southwestern Athletic Conference and the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, now have new storylines thanks to coaches who bring name recognition and a known brand to the side-

There are at least 13 former pro athletes coaching football or men's basketball at an HBCU, with seven hired since 2019. The star-studded group includes Deion Sanders at Jackson State; former NBA champion and All-Star Mo Williams at Alabama State; 11-year NFL veteran Sean Gilbert at Livingstone College; and Bonzi Wells, the 11th overall NBA draft pick in 1998, just hired at LeMoyne-Owen.

"It's high risk, high reward," SWAC Commissioner Charles McClelland said. "The biggest challenge that high-profile coaches have to deal with coming to historically Black colleges and universities is that those resources that they are accustomed to are not necessarily there all the time."

Many of the high-profile coaches earned tens of millions in salary during the pro careers and now are working in athletic departments operating on a fraction of those dollars.

George, being paid $400,000 a year, says it's a calling for him to be coaching at an HBCU. He didn't have to relocate to take the job at Tennessee State, which is where he first practiced when the then-Houston Oilers relocated from Texas to Tennessee. Nashville also has been his home for a quarter cen-

"You want to enhance that world and bring a light to the HBCU world and the great storied programs that have produced NFL talent and great talent into the world, period," George said. "That comes along with it. But at its core, at its impetus, it's always first and foremost these young men that are in this building."

Seeing former professional athletes coaching at an HBCU is nothing new for anyone paying atten-

Super Bowl MVP Doug Williams went to Grambling State in 1998 for his first of two stints coaching his alma mater. McClelland hired former WNBA star and Naismith Hall of Fame player Cynthia Cooper in 2006 when he was AD at Prairie View and again at Texas Southern. The woman who has a statue on the Nike campus helped bring gear Prairie View normally couldn't get.

Still, it's hard to imagine the timing could be any better for this new wave of coaches. George, Sanders and others have elevated HBCUs to a level where they've never been before. McClelland and administrators like him hope all the attention translates into new revenue streams and increased support.

The SWAC has led FCS attendance in 43 of the last 44 seasons, and McClelland said the market, excitement and fan bases were there already — now it's being fueled by the celebrity status these coaches bring to the sidelines.

All of it will be on full display Saturday night when George and Tennessee State square off against Jackson State and Sanders in the Southern Heritage Classic in Memphis.

The game usually draws nearly 50,000 fans, but McClelland said with the former NFL standouts coaching against each other the matchup that will be televised on ESPN3 will attract new fans.

"Individuals that might not necessarily know anything about Tennessee State or Jackson State now know something about Deion Sanders and Eddie George (and) are going to watch that game, and we can open up our brand to other entities and other individuals," McClelland said. "So it is definitely significant."

George is looking forward to stepping into the spotlight at the Southern Heritage Classic, which pits schools once coached by College Football Hall of Famer "Big" John Merritt.

"This is another opportunity for us to showcase our talent, to showcase our coaches, the brand of our schools, and show the the pageantry and the tradition of HBCU football on a grander scale, hopefully," George said.

He and Sanders have been on the sidelines less than a year — George was hired in April, and Sanders was introduced Sept. 21, 2020 — but have already made their presence felt.

Sanders' connections helped his Tigers get uniforms by Under Armour with Walmart assisting with a new turf field. George has former NFL head coach Hue Jackson as offensive coordinator and is pushing for a new turf field for TSU's indoor practice facility and other improvements.

Tennessee State kicked off a fundraising campaign the day George was hired, though the new coach says he's being patient as he learns what the university has done before he arrived and how he can help use his corporate ties best now.

It also helps that these coaches have personal experience dealing with endorsement deals with new name, image and likeness rules. Sanders is in a new ad for Aflac, while George is part of Nissan's Heisman House commercials that roll out each sea-

"No one wants you to endorse their product if you're not good," Sanders said.

Ultimately, winning games is how all coaches are measured.

George knows he won't get some athletes determined to play at a program like his alma mater Ohio State or Alabama. His pitch to players to attend TSU is for them to lay the groundwork for the next stage of success at a program that has produced the likes of Ed "Too Tall" Jones and Claude Humphrey. Then he sprinkles in the promise of growth with a new stadium and better facilities. "We're going to try to get to the FBS level, know those are our aspirations to take this program to new heights," George said of his lure to players and recruits. "So you're our forefather. You're building bricks and layers, a foundation for what's to come."

How long Sanders and George remain in their respective positions is anyone's guess. College coaches leave, get fired, move on; it's part of the business. But even if they use HBCUs as stepping stones to other endeavors, McClelland said it's a win-win for both the conference and the schools.

"If Coach Prime gets an opportunity to leave, if Coach George gets an opportunity to leave, it's only going to be because they were successful at Jackson State and Tennessee State," McClelland said. "And as athletics director, that's all that you can ask for."

The FanDuel Sportsbook at the downtown Phoenix arena where the Phoenix Suns play and temporary betting windows just down the street at the Arizona Diamondbacks' Chase Field run by Caesars Entertainment are set to take in-person bets.

FanDuel expects hundreds of bettors to be on hand for the start of live sports wagering. The action was made possible by a new law enacted by the Legislature and signed by Republican Gov, Doug Ducey this spring. Gambling other than old-school contests like Bingo run for charities was banned outside of casinos run by Native American tribes before the law was passed.

Arizona now will join more than half the states in allowing betting on sports, just three years after it was allowed by the U.S. Supreme Court. The state hopes to pull in tens of millions of dollars in annual revenue from legalized gambling.

The governor's office negotiated new agreements with the tribes to allow betting on live and fantasy sports. In exchange, they were allowed to expand their table game and slot machine offerings and run their own sports books at their casinos. Ten tribes also won licenses to take sports bets online. Online fantasy sports wagering became legal late last month, with Arizona being one of the few states where it was still banned.

But it is the professional teams that will be the first to open actual retail location sports books, according to the Department of Gaming, because a needed addendum to the tribal gaming compacts has not been finalized. Seven of the 18 tribes or sports teams that were awarded licenses last month will be able to take online bets on Thursday.

The FanDuel Sportsbook at the Footprint Center, home of the Suns, Phoenix Mercury and Arizona Rattlers football team, opens at 9:15 a.m. Thursday. A ceremony attended by Ducey and retired Suns players Channing Frye and Richard Jefferson and FanDuel executives is scheduled for 3 p.m. An official watch party for the NFL season opener featuring the Dallas Cowboys and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers starts at 4 p.m., with kickoff set for 5:20 p.m.

The sportsbook, with 7,400 square feet (687 square meters) of space and an outdoor terrace, has five betting windows plus one for VIPS, a large video wall, 40 HD televisions and 26 self-service kiosks. The watch party will be held in the Footprint Center's Pavilion, a slightly larger space.

The Diamondbacks plan to open their own sportsbook outside Chase Field early next year in partnership with Caesars. The state law allowed licenses for up to 10 professional sports teams and eight were awarded last month, and they and tribes can partner with sportsbooks. The team licenses allow retail and online bet-

In addition to the Suns and Diamondbacks, the state awarded licenses to the Mercury, Rattlers, Arizona Cardinals, Arizona Coyotes, TPC Scottsdale and Phoenix Speedway. Retail locations must be close by the playing sites, but permits have not been finalized for their locations, Gaming Department spokesman Max Hartgraves said Wednesday.

Online wagers are being accepted Unibet, WynnBET, BetMGM, DraftKings, FanDuel, Barstool Sports and Caesars.

In many ways, the online licenses are much more valuable than being able to run a traditional "sports book" at a tribal casino or at or near a professional sports team's stadium. That's because online operations can run around the clock with little overhead and aren't limited to gamblers physically being in a venue.

Annie's Mailbox ®

Husband and Son Won't Stop Drinking

Dear Annie: My husband and I have been married for 34 years. We have two grown children, both of whom still live with us. They work and pay rent toward our mortgage. I have no problem with their living at home, and I don't think my husband does either. The problem I have is that both my husband and my son are alcoholics. They both work hard, but when they are off, they get drunk, and my daughter and I have a hard time dealing with all the issues.

My son is a closet alcoholic. He stays in his room and drinks, and when he comes and emotional, and he gets depressed. My husband can drink beer all day and spend his day doing yard work. In the afternoon, he takes a nap, and when he wakes up, he continues to drink.

out, he is very talkative

They both know they need help, but neither one is making any effort to get that help. My son went to a detox center over a year ago. Unfortunately, since the pandemic hit just after he was released, he did not get follow-up counseling and ended up relapsing.

I spend a lot of time with my best friend, who I've known all my life. Once a year, we go on a small trip. The problem is my husband makes me feel guilty and gets angry at me for these trips. But I just need to get away and have someone to whom I can vent. It seems like my husband just expects me to stay home while he is out doing yard work. Should I be trying to do more to get them to quit drinking? Am I in the wrong here for spending time with friends? -- Between a Rock and a Hard Place

Dear Between:

No and no. It's up to your husband and son to get the help that they both clearly need. Spending time with your friends outside the house is a very healthy thing, a way of setting boundaries. Unfortu-rearing against those boundaries. It seems he's not content to just self-destruct; he wants to drag you down with him. If things continue this way, you may need to consider whether you can truly live under the same roof as him without it taking a toll on your mental health. To gain some clarity and insight, I encourage you to make an appointment with a therapist who specializes in addiction. You may also find solace and strength in support groups such as Al-Anon (https://www.al-anon. org) or SMART Recovery Family and Friends (https://www.smartrecovery.org/family).

Dear Annie: I've been in a relationship with "Wanda" for three years, living with her for eight months. She's cheated on me many times. When I found out, we'd already been dating for two years, so I figured I'd stay. However, I suspect it's still happening. On top of this, she hits me, spits on my face and calls me names. I guess it's pretty clear that I need to walk away, but for some reason, I don't. I think it's because I'm 38 and have never had a serious relationship work out in the long term. Call me crazy, but I just can't seem to leave. What advice do you have for me? -- Beleaguered Boyfriend

Dear Beleaguered

You deserve better. You owe it to yourself to get out of that house and out of that relationship. Please call the National Domestic Violence Hotline (800-799-7233) -- which deals with all forms of domestic abuse -- for emotional support and assistance making an exit plan. Instructions for the Venus Change

Self-consciousness is a product of not knowing yourself. When you feel uncomfortable with being seen or overly aware of critical eyes, take it as an invitation to learn yourself better. The stronger your relationship with yourself, the less other people's opinions will matter to you. This is the first lesson of Venus in Scorpio.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If anything close to perfection can be achieved, it will only be without the ego. But without the ego, perfection doesn't matter in the least because being fully present to the process is all that matters. TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Making a wrong choice doesn't mean you owe yourself admonishment. This is all a learning process. Now you know the right move, and soon you'll do it so many times it will come automatically to you. GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You know what you want, and you ask for it in a way that makes it easy for people to say yes to you. Just make sure they through and you're golden! CANCER (June 22-July 22). You're courageous and adventurous. Even when something is completely unfamiliar to you, you are still able to open your mind and heart to it. You'll thrive creatively because of this.

are really qualified to follow

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The mystic Osho said that all artistic activity is on the way toward becoming religious. Start a practice of creativity today, and it will lead you to a sacred place in your own soul

22). Add people to your world. The more reciprocal and uplifting relationships you have, the better balanced your perspective will be -- and, it follows, your mood

No role can represent the entirety of your being. A role is something you do, not someone you are. An expansive spirit pervades your being and inspires you to handle things without defining yourself in the process. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.

21). You have built much in your life, but the current relationship will not be created through building. It will come together through allowing, granting and gaining access to another person. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). People will say just what you wanted them to. Is it as satisfying to hear as you thought it would be? Does it accomplish your original goal? Decide what to do next with your growing CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-

Jan. 19). The strèssful situation will pass; the problem will be solved; the transition process will be successfully completed. When they ask why you're so confident, ultimately, you will credit this experience.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.

18). The scene may meet your standard on paper, but that doesn't mean it really fits. Try things for a while, and then decide. Take your time because this decision will alter the course.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Avoid twisting yourself up into a knot to prove how flexible and willing to please you are. Instead, walk tall and follow your own rules. Just for today, it's better to err on the side of rigidity.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

(Sept. 10). The Venus transit coinciding with your solar return shows a shift in relationships. Some get deeper; others lighten up. Also, new subjects will fascinate you, and as you follow your people come into your world. The fresh influences enliven your scene and make existing ties more dear. Sagittarius and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 15, 4, 44 and 39.

WEEKEND LOVE FORE-

CAST: ARIES: Employ curiosity, discretion and empathy to get to the heart of the matter. TAURUS: You'll meet the eyes of another and share, for a brief moment, the same mind. GEMINI: Your personal life will fall right in line with your list of priorities. CANCER: Communication skills and social savvy will land you just where you want to be. LEO: With a stranger, you will share a moment suspended in time, connecting in a way that isn't possible with people who are a part of your day to day. VIRGO: Anyone who makes you feel like you shouldn't ask questions is also waving a red flag. LIBRA: As good dancers know, opposing sides can cooperate with one another to beautiful effect. SCORPIO: Giving makes you come alive. To love is more fulfilling than being loved. SAGIT-TARIUS: Whether setting up a computer or a social circle, think about compatibility issues before you start the installation. CAPRICORN: You don't usually talk about the rewards and benefits that come with being on your team, but now might be a good time to casually bring it up. AQUARIUS: Do what works for you. If you compromise now, you'll be compromising the entire relationship. PISCES: A shared sense of humor isn't essential to having a good relationship, but it makes things a lot more fun.

No. 15 Texas, Arkansas to meet in throwback matchup

By CHIP SOUZA

Associated Press

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — One of college football's most storied rivalries ended 30 years ago when Arkansas left the Southwest Conference for the greener pastures of the Southeastern Conference.

The Razorbacks played Texas nearly 80 times before Arkansas switched, and many of those battles played prominently on the national stage. The most famous was The Big Shootout in 1969 when the Longhorns rallied late in the fourth quarter to edge the Hogs 15-14 and claim the national championship with President Richard Nixon in attendance.

Saturday's game in the Ozarks won't carry the significance of those great games of the 1960s, but the matchup with No. 15 Texas (1-0) will mark Arkansas' first sellout since 2017 and is likely a preview of things to come once the Longhorns join the SEC in 2025.

"Pretty cool to think this is the 79th time these two schools have met" said first-year Texas coach Steve Sarkisian, who won his debut at home last Saturday against Louisiana-Lafayette. "We are old Southwest Conference foes. We obviously have a great amount of respect for Arkansas. They play hard, they are physical and they are tough. We know it's going to be a hostile environment."

Sarkisian has seen first-hand the atmosphere in Fayetteville as an assistant coach at Alabama. But even that likely won't prepare him for the greeting he will receive when he trots onto the field in front of what likely will be the largest crowd in the history of Donald W. Reynolds Razorback Stadium.

Texas running back Bijan Robinson gives Sarkisian confidence. Robinson ran for 104 yards on 20 carries and scored a rushing and receiving touchdown in the 38-18 win last week.

Arkansas (1-0) is coming off a 38-17 home win against former SWC foe Rice. The Razorbacks trailed 17-7 at one point in the game before scoring 31 straight points keyed by two interceptions from safety Jalon Catalon that set up two short touchdowns.

ON TARGET

Two Arkansas linebackers were ejected from last week's game for targeting. All-America linebacker Grant Morgan played just a handful of snaps before he was tossed after a hit on Rice quarterback Wiley Green in the first quarter. Bumper Pool, the other starting linebacker, was ejected with a little over eight minutes left after a hit on a Rice receiver. Morgan will not have to sit out any of the Texas game, but Pool will miss the first half.

NOT SO SPECIAL TEAMS

Against Rice, Arkansas fumbled the opening kickoff, had a punt blocked and shanked another punt. The blocked punt led to a Rice field goal.

"I think we have to simplify and make sure we all know what we're doing," coach Sam Pittman said. "We read the demeanor of the guy instead of making sure that we blocked him. They weren't trying to block the punt or anything, we just let a guy go. Certainly, we have to try and win special teams, and you talk about it all the time. You can't win games getting punts blocked."

RIDGEWAY TO RETURN

Arkansas defensive tackle John Ridgeway, a transfer from Illinois State who had an appendectomy a week ago, is expected to play Saturday against Texas

"He's looked great," Pittman said. "I'm not a doctor so I'm not sure how long it takes to come back from that surgery, but I do know that we were anticipat-

Berhalter swaps 5 starters for WCup qualifier vs Honduras

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras — Forward Ricardo Pepi was given his U.S. national team debut as under-pressure coach Gregg Berhalter changed five starters for Wednesday night's World Cup qualifier at Honduras.

Defenders George Bello, Mark McKenzie and James Sands also were inserted into the lineup along with forward Josh Sargent. They joined captain Christian Pulisic and midfielders Tyler Adams and Kellyn Acosta in what appeared to be a 3-5-2 formation.

The U.S. was coming off an opening 0-0 draw at El Salvador and a 1-1 tie against Canada at Nashville, Tennessee.

Pepi, Bello, McKenzie and Sands were making their World Cup qualifying debuts.

Honduras coach Fabian Corio changed eight starters after switching nine in the previous match, a 0-0 tie at El Salvador, keeping only goalkeeper Luis López and forwards Anthony Lozano and Jonathan Toro.

He restored the back four from the opening 1-1 draw at Canada: Andy Najar, Maynor Figueroa, Marcelo Pereira and Diego Rodríguez.

Also new were midfielders Kervin Arriaga, Carlos Pineda and Deybi Flores, and forward Bryan Moya. ing two weeks and it's going be one week. He's a tough guy and doesn't seem to be having any pain from it at all after practice."

SARK HIGH ON CARD

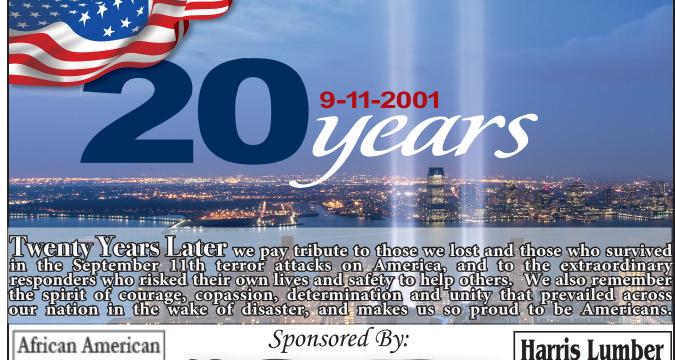

Sarkisian was pleased with Hudson Card's performance in his first start. Card completed 14 of 21 passes for 224 yards and two touchdowns and also ran for a score in the opener against Louisiana-Lafayette after winning the starting quarterback battle with Casey Thompson.

Sarkisian said he thinks Card will be able to handle his first road game on aturday.

"His personality — he's just an even-keel demeanor guy," Sarkisian said. "This will be another new for him. I can't predict the future, but we're going to do everything we can to have him ready."

STRENGTH vs. STRENGTH

Arkansas' Trelon Smith rushed for 102 yards on 22 carries and scored a touchdown against Rice. He might find the going tough against a Texas defense that held the Ragin' Cajuns to 76 yards rushing.
