Remember 9/11 - Never shall we forget

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

20 years ago our world changed forever as soon as the first plane hit the North Tower at the Trade Center. Within a few hours, thousands of lives were lost – a total of four planes had fallen from the sky - and endless confusion spread far and wide. At the time, I was only 15 years old – the same age as my oldest is now – and I had no idea what this truly meant. I knew an attack had taken place and it was inevitable that a war had begun, but I don't think the true weight of the events hit until I grew up and had a family of my own.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of Sept. 11. There will be two local ceremonies in recognition of the lives lost that tragic day; 9 a.m. at SMMC a short ceremony will take place at the flag pole and at 4 p.m. at Spring Creek Fellowship the Memorial at the Plaza will take place.

The nation was hurting, fear was spreading faster than answers could be provided. On that day, and in the days and weeks to follow, it didn't seem to matter where you were when the attacks happened, the pain was real and the hurt was deep. A sense of patriotism, of unity, of love was evident as support for the military grew bountifully, American flags went up everywhere and communities grieved together. For the first time, in a long time, the world seemed to be unified and mourning the lives lost.

"I was in math class. I remember the sadness and how scared everyone instantly was. So many people were lost that day," Vanna Carlin, veteran and Big Spring resident, said. "Also because of that day so many of us chose to serve our country. It is so important to remember 9/11 because of the lives lost; how Americans came together, and how this was the beginning of a war that so many of us would serve in and also

Howard County Commissioners to consider burn ban during Monday's regular afternoon meeting

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

The Howard County Commissioners will convene for a regular meeting Monday, Sept. 13 inside the 3rd Floor Courtroom at the Howard County Courthouse, at 3:30 p.m.

Once the meeting has been called to order there will be time allowed for citizen input. This is an opportunity to members of the community to address the Commissioners Court with any concerns, thoughts or ideas. Once citizen's input has concluded, the Commissioners will move into the action items on the agenda and receive reports. Howard County Judge Kathryn Wiseman will lead discussion on a petition to dissolve water board. After discussion has wrapped up the commissioners will possibly move to a vote.

The topic of a burn ban will be presented once again by Howard County Volunteer Fire Chief Mitchell Hooper. Howard County has not received rain in the past couple of weeks, but has experienced high temperatures causing vegetation to become dry. Country Treasurer Sharon Adams will discuss personnel considerations with commissioners. County Auditor Jackie Olson will ask for approval on invoices, purchase requests and budget amendments. Discussion will take place regarding authorization for the county of Howard to issue requests for proposals for administrative services and requests for qualifications (RFQs) for professional services for the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021. County Clerk Brent Zitterkopf will deliver the monthly report for August.

The Texas VINE/SAVNS County Service Agreement Renewal (FY2002) will also be up for discussion and possible approval. There will also be consideration to award fuel bids.

County Commissioner for Pct. 2 Craig Bailey will lead discussion on an MOU

Howard County 4-H kick off event slated for Sunday

By ROGER CLINE
 Herald Staff Writer

The Howard County 4-H program is gearing up for its new year with a party Sunday afternoon. The event will be at the G.C. Broughton Jr. Ag Complex at 2411 Echols St.

Ag Extension Agent Tommy Yeater said the program is for kids from third through 12th grade, and that participants must be at least eight years old.

"They have to be in third grade and eight years old to begin 4-H," Yeater said. "The eight-year-old thing is pretty normal. I haven't heard of any seven year olds being in third grade."

This year's kick-off event will include the newest take on dodge ball – Gagaball.

"We do have a road show crew coming this year, which is new. It's a group out of Brownwood, the 4-H center in Brownwood sends a group out," Yeater said. "They're going to set up...Gagaball? I never heard of it. It's like dodge ball, but it's got to be waist down. Supposedly it's the kid's new thing that they like."

Food is included, he added.

"We'll have pizza for the kids and water," he said. "Basically we're promoting 4-H, and we'll have some leaders, and some kids who are leaders in my program already. They'll have some tables with different projects. Whatever project they're good at. They'll be explaining those to whoever's interested. We just started our new enrollment. We typically run about 85, but they have to re-enroll every year. When their projects come up, that's when they usually sign up. We're probably at about 30 right now, but 85 is a typical year for us."

Yeater said 4-H gives participants a chance to design, create, and follow through on a project from start to finish. While 4-H typically focuses on agricultural or livestock so many lives would be lost. This is a day that changed my life forever."

For the first time in a long time an attack was taking place on American soil. The planes didn't only attack in New York taking out the Twin Towers, but the Pentagon was hit and numerous lives were lost in the plane that went down in a Pennsylvania field. Heroism rose up that day across the nation and continued for years to come. For days after the attack, the skies were clear as all planes were grounded; and first responders from all states sent resources to shift through the rubble.

"My heart skipped a beat that day, and I was frighten for us as a nation. Watching the horror unfold on TV in New York was so sad and yet, I knew we were going to war with these evil and wicked people. I will never, ever forget that day," Allen Nichols, Howard County resident, said.

Airport security and the nature of travel has forever been changed due to those attacks.

In the weeks to follow pictures began to emerge, phone calls were released, and so many people's final moments on this earth were shared with the world. There were thousands of first responders that sacrificed their lives that day doing what they took on oath to do; men and women rushed in as many were trying to get out to ensure that the lives that could be saved were saved.

Fast forward a few years later and the reminder of that horrific day was presented before me once again, as I stepped into my Ethics in Mass Communication class at West Texas A&M University. The first major event that we were presented with was 9/11 ... what would you do? How would you have covered that event? Two questions that I couldn't answer ... it's the tragic loss of human life and that is a sacred moment that should only be grieved by the family, but it was an attack that shook our nation and the world as we knew it so every detailed - every minor detail - of that day and the days to follow mattered. It was a story that was meant to be shared. The photos that captured the final moments of thousands of people's lives were once again placed before me, but this time I was being asked would I have taken that photo? Would I have chosen to film the destruction and then share it with all the world?

There is a fine line when it comes to the tragic events such as 9/11, but it is a story that deserves to be told; a story that deserves to be honored; a story never to be forgotten. I lived through that day while many others didn't and sitting on that college campus and remembering what I felt as I first heard the news as I sat in a high school math class, the passion that I never knew existed would stir inside me and the importance of every person's story became my driving force.

Every person who was alive that day and lives to remember the tragic events carries a piece of that day with them. There is a lesson, a memory, a feeling that we each can't ever really shake. Big Spring Herald reporter Roger Cline shares his take on the memory that day has left on him:

In September of 2001, I was 31 years old. Six months earlier I had met the love of my life and moved to Colorado City, Texas. I had worked as a newspaper reporter before, at the Port Arthur News - Port Arthur is my hometown and where my parents still live today - and for six months at the Mid-Valley Bureau of the McAllen Monitor, stationed in Weslaco, Texas.

In Weslaco, I felt more alone than I ever had in my life. I knew nobody outside of the two guys I worked with - my boss and one other reporter. I delved deep into the online universe, and met Shirley Wyrosdick Limones. She was 11 years my senior, but we found something in each other, and were set to be married September 22.

That impending marriage was the big item on my radar. Shirley and her family were in charge of the wedding. I made a few minor contributions. I invited groomsmen and best man - my brother Marty Cline. I chose the groom's cake - dark chocolate with cherry pie filling in between the layers and on top. And I was plotting the honeymoon - a surprise to my bride - which turned out to be a B&B in Fredericksburg. It was nice and within our budget.

September 11 was a fairly average day, given those background items. I had just arrived at work when I heard the news that a plane had hit a building in New York. It was mildly interesting. For some reason, I pictured some small plane - a cropduster (what would a cropduster be doing in New York City?) or some crazy man's private one-seater. In no way did I envision a huge passenger jumbo jet...nor did I picture one of the most iconic buildings in that city's history.

Of course, in the few minutes between the first and second wreck, I didn't think a whole lot about it. A plane crash. They happen all the time. This one was somewhat unique because of what it hit, but nothing else, and nothing related to me or my life.

Seventeen minutes later, all that changed. Another one? What? They read that wrong. Why would two planes hit the same building so close together? Of course, within just seconds, it dawned on me, as I'm sure it did on everyone. We were under attack. This wasn't some random, mildly interesting accident after all. It had just replaced the Challenger Space Shuttle explosion as the most significant disaster during my lifetime. And it wasn't over yet.

Half an hour later, another one hit the Pentagon. The airlines were shut down. Nobody was allowed to fly. Not that I was flying, but this is America - important people are flying all the time. It's how America works. America is broken if nobody is flying.

Another half hour, another crash. This time, not into a major iconic American building, but in a field in Pennsylvania. What was the point of that? Why did the terrorists attack an empty field? Only later did we learn about the struggle inside that plane and the heroism of its passengers.

As the timeline of the various crashes played out through the morning, there was also the fire and inevitable collapse of the World Trade Center buildings, and the loss of the thousands of Americans trapped inside.

At the time, I felt very lucky that no one I knew was on board one of those planes, or worked at the World Trade Center or Pentagon. I know it was a selfish thought. For me, a few phone calls were all it took to confirm that no one I knew was physically affected by the attack, but we were all spiritually affected. We vowed to avenge the fallen. We vowed never to forget.

I guess no one who was around then has forgotten that day, now 20 years gone. But there are a lot of people who are younger than 20 years old, or who were just infants when it happened. They haven't forgotten, exactly; they just never knew about it in the first place. It's hard to express feelings of shock, horror, disbelief, outrage, anger, through a history book or a newsreel. Look back at the newsreel of the Hindenburg Disaster.

"Oh, the humanity!" Think about how you feel watching that newsreel, and then think about how a 15-year-old feels looking at the film of 9/11. There's no way it can have the immediacy for them that it has for someone that lived through it. That's just how time works, I guess.

September 11, 2001 won't be forgotten, but time is already working on it, wearing down the rough edges. There will be other disasters, just as there will be other triumphs, other innovations and discoveries, other crimes. Other events that will always be remembered. Other news. That's why we're here.

As we look back on the event that has been marked down in history books may we never forget the lives lost that day, the sacrifices made on American soil, and may we once again remember the unity that we had in the days and weeks following. We stand united in the most horrific of tragedies that my generation has experienced and we learn. We learn that as long as we stand united, no matter the damage, we can recover, we will rebuild, and we shall never forget.

oriented projects, some other focus areas are being supported now as well.

"It gives the youth an opportunity to have a project, to broaden their horizons," he said. "Our food and nutrition project is really taking off. We've always had traditional livestock projects, but now at those traditional livestock shows, they're also including cooking shows, archery, a lot of other contests that 4-H also has projects in, but it gives those kids opportunities for scholarships, big scholarships. Our Foods and Nutrition Group went to district last year, and they did very well. In our archery, we have a young lady who is very good. She won third in Houston last year, and she's 14 now I think. She goes just about every weekend, or every other weekend and she's at a shoot somewhere across the state of Texas representing us."

Local participants also have the opportunity to represent Howard County in shows around the state of Texas as well as locally.

"The big shows I'm talking about are the State Fair of Texas, San Antonio, Houston...San Angelo and Austin are usually our smaller shows," he said. "Locally, we have our County Stock Show, which is in January."

Yeater said the cost to sign up for 4-H is $25. The program is also seeking adult volunteers, who must submit to a screening process before being accepted into the program.

"The sheriff is one of my volunteers, and they have to screen him every three years. The Texas Parks and Wildlife game warden is a volunteer, and he has to go through the screening," Yeater said.

What's Next for Allora

In Italian, the word allora is an expression used for calming people. There is a 17-year-old girl who lives near Fredericksburg named Allora and she is definitely living up to her name. She sings, writes and loves to ride horses.

Allora Leonard of Willow City got her first name from her great great grandmother. I interviewed her just after her 17th birthday.

“It was great,” she told me. “I got to hear my new song on the radio for the first time and had a big birthday party. I really enjoyed it.”

Allora is a teenage sensation whose accomplishments rival those of someone much older. She is a singer and songwriter who is in the midst of a 150-performance schedule this year.

“I started performing when I was about 6 years old. I sang the national anthem at some of the rodeos where I used to compete. I would sing to my horses and the staff started hearing me and invited me to sing The Star Spangled Banner at the start of the rodeo and it's just taken on a life of its own.”

Allora grew up on a ranch and enjoyed hunting rabbits and deer while developing an appreciation and love of the outdoors. She quickly took to riding horses.

“I started barrel racing in local rodeos when I was about 3 years old. I also got my Women's Pro Rodeo Association card when I was 11.

She competes in reined cowhorse events where horses work a cow in an arena and perform maneuvers such as circling the cow and turning it in a required manner. Her favorite horse is a mare named Mama T.

“She and I were lucky enough to win the national title.”

Allora wrote her first song at age 12 and has written other things besides songs.

Doctors have a 'word' to say

Most hunters are so gung-ho, they'll hunt anything that'll run from 'em.

Similarly, TV news folks salivate at the prospect of all-out chases to pluck credible opinions on controversial topics.

This was the case recently when a neurosurgeon was questioned by a Dallas TV reporter. The query concerned the ongoing debate about whether a helmet law should be enacted for motorcyclists. His answer was, uh, a no-brainer.

Explaining that many serious injuries incurred by riders without helmets would otherwise be minor, Dr. Jeremy Denning mentioned that some physicians have coined a word that reveals their opinions.

“They call them ‘donor-cycles,’” Dr. Denning said.

End of interview.

Meanwhile, operators of four-wheel vehicles often give law enforcement personnel reasons to coin names for certain drivers—names that are unfit to appear in a family newspaper.

James Davis, who was playing in big bands before they invented instruments that “plug in,” has to smile when he remembers a traffic pull-over several decades ago. Decked out in a tuxedo—common evening apparel for him—he was ready to tickle ivories at a country club gala. However, he was running a bit late, and his foot was a bit heavy. Soon, the red light and siren on the vehicle behind him made stopping his best choice.

The traffic officer rattled off his obligatory lecture, then backed off with “just a warning.” Noticing Davis' spiffy tuxedo, the officer barked, “If you weren't late for your own wedding, I'd throw the book at you.”

Bill Sanders, a federal government retiree, has reason to smile about a similar offense recently.

His wife Carolyn chuckled as her hubby was red-lighted to the roadside. As the officer strode toward the Sanders' car, she hoped he would make the usual inquiry, the one to determine if the driver has a good reason for speeding.

“I'm late getting to a Crime Stoppers' meeting,” Bill answered sheepishly....

The truth, of course, is hard to beat. His speed wasn't THAT MUCH over the limit, and he was indeed en route to the aforementioned meeting. Later, he served as county president for Crime Stoppers.

When Sanders began his career in government service, his assignment was in Austin. It was during the presidency of Lyndon B. Johnson.

One day, the Johnsons were in town, and Lady Bird was planning a barbecue picnic at the ranch. She decided on a “Yellow Rose of Texas” theme.

Sanders' supervisor instructed him to get a dozen garbage cans painted for the event.

The cans are to be painted exactly as Mrs. Johnson instructed,” he said. “They are to be ‘yellow rose yellow’—not ‘lemon yellow,’ not ‘mustard yellow’ and not ‘sunrise yellow,’” the boss warned.

For emphasis, he repeated the mandate, asking Bill if he fully understood. Bill said he did. The ever-resourceful Sanders gave serious thought to the assignment. He feared grave consequences if the painted cans were a hue or two off. So, his first stop was at a floral shop. He purchased a bouquet of yellow roses before proceeding to the paint shop. “Paint these cans the same shade as these here roses,” Sanders said. “Make sure it's not ‘lemon yellow,’ ‘mustard yellow’ or ‘sunrise yellow.’” He asked the painters if they understood; they said they did. The eager-to-please painters “yellowed up” the cans just right, and Bill “got it right” for almost 40 years in government service....

I'll end this week's piece by dredging up the old chauvinistic yarn about a traffic officer who finally prevailed after a lengthy high-speed chase.

The veteran DPS guy thought he'd heard them all, but this offender offered a new excuse.

“Officer, I tried hard to outrun you for good reason,” the driver said. “A week ago, my wife ran off with a trooper, and I figured he was trying to bring her back.”

Week 3 Friday night final: Forsan keeps early-season momentum, Steers, Buffs, and Bearkats all fall

Herald Photos

Top Left: Major Stockton and the Forsan offense run a play this Friday night, Sept 10, in Stanton. Forsan went on to win this game easily 45-7. Top Right: The Forsan Buffaloes run out on the field with American flags in a tribute to 9/11.

By DUSTIN POPE
Herald Sports Writer

Well, it was a tough night of football if you're a fan of any local team besides the super-hot Forsan Buffaloes. All our regional teams, except for the amazing Forsan Buffs, lost this Friday night. Big Spring traveled down to Monahans only to come up short 28-13. Next, the Coahoma Bulldogs lost to Eldorado 56-24, and last, and certainly not least, the Garden City Bearkats fell to Water Valley 54-8, but those Forsan Buffs pushed their record to 3-0 as they put yet another beating on an opponent this time it was the Stanton Buffaloes winning 45-7.

Let's lead off on a bright note. The way the Forsan Buffs are playing is such a good story. This young team has come out on fire, and they are playing great football right now. This Friday, they traveled to Stanton to take on the other Buffaloes. This was not even close as the Forsan Buffs came on rolling and kept that same momentum going. The Forsan Buffs are playing some great football right now, and tonight was no different. Forsan came into this Friday with a perfect 2-0 record. They made it an easy 3-0 as they outclassed yet another opponent on the year. Stanton was just no match for Forsan in the battle of the buffaloes. It was Forsan rushing attack that led the way for them tonight. Chris Mendez led the way with 16 carries for 150 yards and a TD. Nate Hernandez was second on the team in rush yardage as he had 119 yards and a TD on 18 carries. Kevin Kligora carried the ball 11 times for 93 yards and a TD, and Major Stockton continued his excellent play as he took the ball six times for 21 yards and 2TD. Stockton also completed four balls for 107 yards and a TD. So far, the speed on the field has stood out to me every time Forsan takes the field; they are dangerous. So far, there has been no team that can match up with them. They have played tremendous football to this point in the season, and they have earned that 3-0 record.

The Coahoma Bulldogs fell to 1-2 on the season on the road in Eldorado. Facing a tough Eldorado team, Coahoma came up short this Friday night as they lost the game 56-24. It wasn't for lack of effort in the game as the Bulldogs fought to the very last whistle; unfortunately, they just came up short. This Bulldog team will still be very dangerous. They just ran into an adamant team in the Eldorado Eagles. The Bulldogs are loaded with talent across the board; they are just a very young team. Once this team puts it all together, they will be the dangerous week in week out.

This Friday night, the Big Spring Steers lost their first game of the year as they fell to the Monahans Lobos in Monahans 28-13. The Steers started on the right foot as they took the opening drive and scored easy. However, it was tough sledding for the Steers after that as they ran into a good team in Monahans. The Lobos did a great job at controlling the clock all game long by keeping the ball on the ground for the most part. Big Spring still played very hard all game long; it just wasn't their night tonight. No doubt that they will learn from this and will come back even more potent than ever before.

Garden City went down the road to take on Water Valley. Unfortunately, like most of our local teams' things just dint go their way as they lost 54-8. The Lobos send the Bearkats to a 1-2 record on the year. Like all our other teams in this area, they played their butt off. But they just played a better team tonight. This team leaves it all on the field for every play; they play hard. The Bearkats will undoubtedly bounce back from this, and they will grow stronger as a team.

While it was a tough night for most of the teams in this area, the top story must be the play of the Forsan Buffaloes. This team is flat out on fire right now, they are playing with significant confidence, and it shows in their play on the field. As for the other team, hey, you learn from this week and get better, plain and simple. I know that every group will come back stronger.

No. 17 Coastal Carolina wins third straight over Kansas 49-22

By PETE IACOBELLI
AP Sports Writer

CONWAY, S.C. — Reese White was thinking even bigger for No. 17 Coastal Carolina after his strong start to the season.

White finished with 102 yards and three rushing touchdowns and the Chanticleers beat Kansas for a third straight year, 49-22, as the fledging FBS program hosted a Power Five team for the first time Friday night.

White is a junior who was a backup behind last year's rushing leader, C.J. Marable, during Coastal's breakthrough season in college football's top division.

So far, White is filling in very nicely. He had two rushing touchdowns in a 52-14 victory over The Citadel last week and wondered if he couldn't do even better.

How about his first-ever 100-yard performance and those three critical TDs. "I wanted to add one to the total," he said. "I thought, 'Why not go for three?' and I did it."

So is four on the table when Coastal Carolina travels to play Buffalo next week?

"Maybe," White said with grin.

Quarterback Grayson McCall threw for two scores and ran for a third in the victory.

It was a big spot for a program on the rise and Kansas (1-1) didn't have the firepower to spoil the home team's "White Out" promotion in front of the largest crowd here ever at 17,697.

"I never imagined this could happen," said freshman defensive tackle Josiah Stewart, who set a team record with 3 1-2 sacks. "It's unreal."

Much like the Chanticleers' wins at Kansas the last two years that certainly raised eyebrows. This one wasn't much of a shocker as Coastal Carolina showed off a deep, talented offense and a relentless defense to put away its Big 12 Conference opponent.

White had touchdown runs of 2, 19 and 3 yards against Kansas after two touchdowns in team's 52-14 opening victory over The Citadel last week. McCall began the scoring with a 33-yard TD pass to Jaivon Heiligh, then had a 2-yard scoring run.

White talked this week of going for three touchdowns after his two a week ago.

Kansas quarterback Jason Bean, a North Texas transfer, had touchdown runs of 34 and 46 yards as the Jayhawks drew to 28-22 midway through the third quarter.

However, the Chants responded with White's final two touchdowns to open up a 20-point lead.

Kansas entered after snapping a 13-game losing streak in the opener and hoped to keep the momentum going on Coastal's teal blue turf.

But the Chanticleers and McCall proved too potent for first year Jayhawks coach Lance Leipold's program. They scored on three of their first four possessions and got a blocked punt for a TD by Alex Spillum to take a 28-9 lead.

McCall finished 17-of-21 passing for 245 yards. Heiligh had six catches for 122 yards, his fourth consecutive game with 100-plus receiving yards.

Spillum, a speedy, 6-foot-2, 190-pound safety, blew through the line to block the punt deep in Kansas territory. He followed the ball into the end zone and covered up for the score.

About the only mistake Coastal Carolina made was exuberance. What looked like an interception by cornerback D'Jordan Strong was celebrated wildly by Coastal's players. An unsportsmanlike conduct flag few for excessive celebration and, when the pick was overturned on review, Kansas had the ball back and a first down.

The Jayhawks continued on a 66-yard touchdown drive for their last lead, 9-7.

Bean led Kansas with 102 yards rushing.

"Our margin of error is very small right now. I think that's pretty evident," Leipold said. "We had some moments where we were knocking on the door, but just couldn't quite get over the hump."

THE TAKEAWAY

Kansas: The best thing for the Jayhawks? Coastal Carolina comes off the schedule after beating Kansas the past three years. The Chants figured to be an easy takedown when the games were made, but Coastal turned this into a one-sided contest.

Coastal Carolina: The Chanticleers have an offense that has looked unstoppable through two games. McCall leads the way with NFL-caliber receivers like tight end Isaiah Likely and receiver Heiligh catching everything thrown their way. White has stabilized things at tailback in place of last year's top rusher, C.J. Marable.

9-11

Coastal Carolina coach had a team patch remembering the Sept. 11 attacks with the 20th anniversary Saturday. He said his players will have a LAF session — Life After Football — on that day where they'll talk to a former fire chief who spent four months working the rubble and smoke of the Twin Towers. "We're going to share about that because it was impactful," Chadwell said.

RETURN OF BEAN

Kansas quarterback Jason Bean has excelled in both of his recent games at Coastal Carolina, although he lost both. Bean was quarterback of North Texas last December in a 56-28 loss to Appalachian State in the first ever Myrtle Beach Bowl. Bean finished 251 yards and two touchdowns passing. As Kansas QB, he had scoring runs of 34 and 46 yards in the loss to the Chanticleers.

UP NEXT

Kansas opens Big 12 Conference play at home against Baylor on Sept. 18. Coastal Carolina travels to Buffalo on Sept. 18.

Bryant cheered in Wrigley return, Giants win 5th in row

By MATT CARLSON

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Kris Bryant drew a pair of standing ovations in his return to Wrigley Field, then Evan Longoria and Brandon Belt homered in the seventh inning to send the San Francisco Giants over the Chicago Cubs 6-1 Friday for their fifth straight win.

The Giants, who entered 2 1/2 games ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the NL West, improved to a major league-best 91-50.

It was 1-all when Longoria hit a two-run homer that put San Francisco ahead. Belt connected for a two-run drive later in the inning.

While all eyes were on Bryant in this one, Belt has been fueling the Giants during their most recent surge.

The 33-year-old first baseman added a double and two walks, giving him eight hits in 17 at-bats his last four games.

"I don't know if I can get more confident than I am right now," Belt deadpanned. "I just named myself captain."

Belt apparently proclaimed himself captain of the club on recent flight. Longoria joking responded by taping a "C" on the front of Belt's jersey before Friday's game — and Belt wore it while reaching base four times.

"I wasn't going to wear it, but everybody thought that I should," Belt said.

Not only is Belt swinging a hot bat, Longoria is picking up the pace, too, as the Giants roll toward the finish.

"I think I'm in a pretty good spot," Longoria said. "I think I need a few more high-leverage at-bats."

Rookie Frank Schwindel hit a solo drive for the Cubs, giving him 12 homers and seven in the last 11 games. Chicago lost for just the second time in 10 games.

Bryant was traded to the Giants for two prospects at the July 30 deadline as the rebuilding Cubs unloaded marquee stars who were set to become free agents after this season. The 29-year-old got a standing ovation from the crowd of 29,439 during a pregame video tribute and again before his first inning at-bat.

The slugger was the NL Rookie of the Year in 2015, then the NL MVP in 2016 when the Cubs won the World Series to end a 108-year championship drought. In this one, Bryant went 0 for 3 with a walk, run and struck out swinging twice.

"There was a lot going on in terms of emotions," Bryant said. "It was pretty hard to contain it all."

"It kind of got the best of me and it was kind of hard to play baseball after that," he said.

Longoria hit a full-count fastball from Trevor McGill (1-1) high into the bleachers in left-center for his 11th homer and first since Aug. 17. The third baseman, who returned last week from a bruised right hand, added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Belt tagged Michael Rucker for his 22nd homer, a shot to the basket in left. LaMonte Wade Jr. had two hits and an RBI.

San Francisco's Dominic Leone opened with two perfect innings on a bullpen day, and the Giants used eight pitchers in a combined two-hitter. Camilo Doval (2-1) got the final out of the sixth for the win.

Kyle Hendricks allowed one run on four hits over six innings in a no-decision. He struck out four, walked two and was back in form after three rocky starts when he had a 10.13 ERA over 16 innings.

"It was good to see him back to being the way he normally is," said bench coach Andy Green, who is running the team with manager David Ross out after a positive COVID-19 test. "It was good to see him be him."

Schwindel gave the Cubs home runs in 16 straight games, one short of the team record set in 1998.

LOVE FOR KB

After watching the video tribute while standing in front of the Giants dugout, Bryant strolled to home plate for handshakes and hugs with Cubs owner Tom Ricketts and other team officials.

The Cubs presented Bryant with a 2016 World Series championship pennant and a replica No.

17 panel — his uniform number in Chicago — from Wrigley Field's vintage center-field scoreboard.

The crowd cheered again when he struck out to end the inning first inning.

Bryant told reporters he got a voicemail message from Ricketts when he was traded, but he said things were so hectic — the Cubs were in Washington — that he never returned the call.

CHAT 'EM UP

With Longoria back in the lineup at third, the versatile Bryant played left field — where he hoped to resume friendly banter with fans in the bleachers.

ROSTER MOVE

The Cubs placed LHP Adam Morgan on the bereavement list before the game and recalled RHP pitcher Tommy Nance from Triple-A Iowa.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Giants: Manager Gabe Kapler said OF Alex Dickerson (right hamstring strain) would be sent on a rehab assignment after Friday's game. ... INF Donovan Solano (COVID-19) ran the bases on Friday. ... Wilmer Flores (left hamstring strain) is expected to rejoin the team on Sunday.

Cubs: RHP Keegan Thompson (right shoulder inflammation) is expected to throw a bullpen session in the next few days, Green said.

UP NEXT

Giants RHP Kevin Gausman (13-5, 2.58) faces Cubs RHP Zach Davies (6-10, 5.16) on Saturday afternoon.

Soccer legend Pelé remains in intensive care after surgery

SAO PAULO — Retired Brazilian soccer star Pelé remained in intensive care on Friday as he recovered from surgery to remove a tumor on the right side of his colon.

Hospital Albert Einstein in Sao Paulo said in a statement that 80-year-old Edson Arantes do Nascimento was recovering "in a satisfactory manner," though still in intensive care. The hospital said on Monday that Pelé was expected to be moved to a regular room on Tuesday.

The hospital also said Pelé is "awake, actively talking and keeping his vital signs in normality."

The three-time World Cup champion also said on his Instagram that "each day I feel a little better."

He went to the hospital for routine exams at the end of August when the tumor was found. The hospital said in a statement then that the tumor was identified during routine cardiovascular and laboratory exams. It added it collected samples to be analyzed but has not released the results.

Pelé, the only male player to win three World Cups, has had mobility problems since a failed hip replacement surgery in 2012. He has been forced to use walkers and wheelchairs in public. He has also been admitted to several hospitals in recent years for kidney and prostate procedures.

Pelé won the 1958, 1962 and 1970 World Cups, and remains Brazil's all-time leading scorer with 77 goals in 92 matches.

The Howard County Bowl was the official kick off to Football season in Howard County. This year, the Buffaloes may have taken the win on the scoreboard, but all students who received a scholarship this year, were the real winners. There were 17 students from each school - Forsan and Coahoma - who received scholarships from the monies raised from the Howard County Bowl. Football season has kicked off and the Bulldogs are making their way through their schedule.

Pictured above: The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, along with Chamber Ambassadors, celebrated the opening of Tea2Go with a ribbon cutting. In addition to ribbon cuttings, the Ambassadors visit a different Chamber member business to show appreciation for their investment into the community each week. The investments made by local businesses contribute to the growth and success of the community. Tea2Go is officially open for business and is located between Faye's Flowers and Ward's Western Wear on Gregg Street.

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce is heading into Fall with a line up of networking events, in an effort to provide local business owners with an opportunity to network and form new partnerships across Howard County.

The Thank You presentations continue to take place on a weekly basis. The presentations are aimed at showing the Chamber members how much their support to the Chamber and the community means. Through the support of local business, growth is taking place across Big Spring and Howard County.

In addition, more Ribbon Cuttings are starting to make their way to the event calendar. New buildings, new business, upgrades and renovations have been the featured presentations this year. More construction is taking place in our community which means growth is happening.

The Chamber of Commerce celebrated a Ribbon Cutting for Tea2Go this past Friday and is looking forward to the September Alive After 5 event. This month's event - Let's Toast to Campaign 2022 - is hosted by the United Way of Big Spring and Howard County and will take place at 215 W. Third.

Alive After 5 will take place from 5 p.m. until 6:30 p.m. Local business owners, Chamber members and community members are encouraged to stop by and find out what the United Way is focusing on this year as they step into a new campaign. The goal this year is set at $200,000.

There will also be an opportunity to find out how to join the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

"Being part of the Chamber opens a door of connection to other local business owners, industry leaders, and community resources by providing an opportunity to further connect with the community," Debye ValVerde, Executive Director at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, said.

Another annual venture offered by the Chamber - Leadership Big Spring - is gearing up for a new semester. Last year the Leadership Big Spring class was put on hold in order to help slow the curve of cases in Howard County. This year, the class is set to begin Oct. 14 and register is now open. Applications can be submitted by e-mail or more information can be obtained by calling the Chamber office at 432-263-7641. Class size is limited this year in order to allow for Covid precautions to be put in place. The class registration will close at 10 participants.

US stocks open higher, clawing back some the week's losses

AP - Stocks are opening higher on Wall Street Friday, clawing back some of the ground the market lost in this holiday-shortened week. The S&P 500 was up 0.3%. Technology companies had some of the biggest gains. Dave & Buster's Entertainment soared 10% after the restaurant chain reported results that blew past analysts' forecasts. Bond yields held steady even after the Labor Department reported that inflation at the wholesale level jumped 8.3% last month from a year ago, a sign that investors agree with the Federal Reserve's assessment that the current burst of inflation will be temporary.

World shares advanced Friday after President Joe Biden spoke by phone with China's Xi Jinping.

Benchmarks rose in Paris, London, Tokyo, Shanghai and Hong Kong. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note was steady at 1.31% and U.S. futures were higher. Crude oil prices rose.

Biden initiated the 90-minute call with Xi, which centered on discussing the way ahead for the U.S.-China relationship. The White House said the leaders during the call agreed to engage "openly and straightforwardly" on issues where the nations are at odds and where there is agreement.

"President Biden and Xi's phone call has spurred hopes of a thaw in U.S.-China relations. That is ostensibly good for trade everywhere and spurred a decent rally in stocks across Asia," Jeffrey Halley of Oanda said in a commentary.

Investors appeared to take in stride a decision by the European Central Bank on Thursday to dial back some of its massive emergency pandemic support for the economy as the 19 countries that use the euro rebound from the coronavirus recession.

Analysts said investors were reassured by ECB head Christine Lagarde's insistence that the shift was only a "recalibration" of existing stimulus — not a signal that pandemic support is being phased out.

Germany's DAX gained 0.1% to 15,643.96 and the CAC 40 in Paris rose 0.4% to 6,7089.48. Britain's FTSE 100 picked up 0.3% to 7,047.34. The future contract for the Dow industrials was trading 0.5% higher, while the future for the S&P 500 climbed 0.4%.

In Asian trading, Tokyo's Nikkei 225 gained 1.3% to 30,381.84 while the Hang Seng in Hong Kong jumped 1.9% to 26,205.91. South Korea's KOSPI added 0.4% to 3,125.76. The Shanghai Composite index climbed 0.5% to 3,703.11.

Investors have been assessing the pace of economic growth amid worries that the rapid spread of the coronavirus delta variant will dampen consumer confidence and spending.

In New York, the S&P 500 fell 0.5%, its fourth straight drop, to 4,493.28. The Nasdaq pulled back 0.3%, to 15,248.25.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 0.4% to 34,879.38.

Small company stocks fared better than the broader market. The Russell 2000 index gave up 0.60 points, or less than 0.1%, to 2,249.13.

Fed officials have indicated they expect to dial back on stimulus measures by year's end, and Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen has warned Congress that she will run out of maneuvering room to prevent the U.S. from breaching the government's borrowing limit in October unless the debt ceiling is raised.

In other trading, U.S. benchmark crude oil rose 73 cents to $68.87 per barrel in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. It gave up $1.16 to $68.14 per barrel on Thursday.

Brent crude rose 89 cents to $72.34 per barrel.

The U.S. dollar rose to 109.96 Japanese yen from 109.73 yen. The euro was trading at $1.1842, up from $1.1825 late Thursday.

The sting of the insects can be painful to your pets and could result in a dangerous situation.

BRYAN-COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 27, 2021 – Curious cats and daredevil dogs are always eager to investigate anything moving across the carpet or in the grass.

If that object of your pets' curiosity is a scorpion, your pet may find itself in a situation worse than just getting painfully stung – your animal can be in a potentially dangerous situation.

Dr. Dalton Hindmarsh, a veterinary resident at the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences (CVMB), explains what our pets may encounter when it comes to scorpions, and how to treat, as well as prevent, their painful stings.

Texas is home to more than 18 species of these eight-legged critters, which can be recognized by their distinctive curved tail that curls up and over its back.

To avoid being stung by scorpions, it is helpful to understand their habits as well as their natural habitats; they are naturally attracted to humid conditions and are particularly active during the rainy season.

"Scorpions are nocturnal and come out at night. During hot, dry weather, scorpions may seek water or shelter indoors," Hindmarsh said. "Their bodies are flat, which allows them to hide in small cracks, under rocks, wood piles, or other debris."

Because of this, pet owners often do not see scorpions lurking around and may only learn of their pet's proximity to one after hearing a yelp.

"The best way to minimize the risk of scorpion encounters is to keep debris away from the house, sealing cracks/crevices, and treating with pesticides," Hindmarsh said.

And for the pooches or kitties that cannot resist a good dig, Hindmarsh advises keeping a watchful eye on what they could unearth.

Although most scorpion stings are not lethal, they do have a common factor – they are painful. To respond appropriately to scorpion stings, it is crucial to recognize the symptoms, which almost always include lameness or limping.

"Scorpion stings cause a painful numbness to tingling sensation, which usually resolves in a few hours," Hindmarsh said. "Some dogs may also develop a slight self-resolving cough."

"It is also possible for an allergic reaction to develop, which could range from mild, localized swelling, hives, and itching to life threatening vomiting, diarrhea, respiratory distress, and/or collapse," he said.

There is a wide range of severity when it comes to scorpion stings, so it

Fall flavors shine in a chewy cookie

Fall is a season of cooler temperatures
and changing leaves, and it also marks the return of autumn flavor profiles.

Root vegetables,
roasts and heartier
fare are prime cooking ingredients this time of year.

In terms of baking,
treats spiced with ginger and cinnamon are in demand each fall.

Carrot cake and oatmeal cookies are familiar favorites this time of year.

In this recipe for “Carrot Cake Oatmeal
Cookies” from “Live
Well Bake Cookies” (Quarto Group) by Danielle Rye, delicious spiced carrot cake is transformed into a soft and chewy cookie.

Carrot Cake Oatmeal
Cookies
Makes 22 cookies

1 cup all-purpose flour, spooned and leveled 1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1/4 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon ground
ginger

1 1/2 cups old-fashioned rolled oats

1/2 cup (1 stick) unsalted butter, softened

1/2 cup packed light
brown sugar

1/4 cup granulated sugar

1 large egg, at room temperature

1 teaspoon pure vanilla
extract

3/4 cup lightly packed freshly grated carrots

1/3 cup raisins

1/3 cup chopped walnuts

1. Preheat the oven to 350 F. Line two large baking sheets with parchment paper or silicone baking mats and set aside.

2. In a large mixing bowl, whisk together
the flour, baking soda,
salt, ground cinnamon, ground nutmeg, and ground ginger until well combined. Stir in the old-fashioned rolled oats and set aside.

3. In the bowl of a stand mixer fitted with the paddle attachment or in a large mixing bowl using a handheld

mixer, beat the butter, brown sugar and granulated sugar together for 1 to 2 minutes, or until well combined.

4. Mix in the egg and vanilla extract until fully combined, making sure to stop and scrape down the sides of the bowl as needed.

5. Mix in the dry ingredients until just combined, then fold in the grated carrots, raisins and chopped walnuts until fully incorporated.

6. Using a 1 1/2-tablespoon cookie scoop, scoop the cookie dough onto the prepared baking sheets, making sure to leave a little room between each one.
Gently press each ball
of cookie dough down
to slightly flatten it.

7. Bake for 12 to 15 minutes, or until the tops of the cookies are set and the edges are lightly browned. Remove from the oven,
and allow the cookies
to cool on the baking sheets for 5 to 10
minutes, then carefully transfer the cookies to a wire rack to cool completely.

8. Store the cookies
in an airtight container at room temperature for up to 3 days.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Here is a hand that demonstrates the type of thought process that is necessary to become a successful player. West's opening lead against four hearts is the king of diamonds, on which East plays the deuce and South the queen. West's first problem is what to play next.

If West thoughtlessly continues with a diamond, declarer ruffs and plays three rounds of trump, securing the contract as the cards lie since the defense cannot cash their two spade tricks. But if West is fully alert, he realizes that South's queen of diamonds is sure to be a singleton because East would not play the deuce of diamonds with any holding other than the 10-9-2.

Accordingly, West shifts to the ace of spades, on which East plays the nine to ask for a continuation. But West can't oblige and reverts to diamonds.

Declarer ruffs and plays the A-K of trump. If West is asleep at the switch, he follows low to both trumps, and South easily makes the contract by leading another trump.

But if West is thinking along the proper lines, he does not follow low twice to the A-K. West realizes that declarer will surely make the contract if left to his own devices, so on the second trump, West plays the queen, hoping East started with the J-x-x.

Once West rids himself of the queen, it doesn't matter whether declarer next plays another trump or tries to run dummy's clubs; in either case he goes down one, losing two spades, a heart and a diamond.

Annie's Mailbox

Self-Reflection Is Essential

Dear Annie: I feel the need to provide a different view to the "Grieving Grandmothers" who wrote in saying that their daughters-in-law keep their grandkids and sons away from them.

First, your son is a grown adult who can make choices for himself, so maybe start taking the blame off the daughter-in-law. Second, maybe reflect on yourself to see if there are reasons your son does not want to attend gatherings with you or have their children around you.

I'm sure my mother-in-law could write in saying all these things about me, but it is not the truth. My husband finds his mother and immediate family unhealthy and toxic.

We ended up in marriage counseling because the weight of trying to deal with all of it was affecting our marriage. It was our therapist, not me, who suggested to my husband that he create boundaries with his own mother.

While it is easier to blame someone else, it may be worth looking inward to see what we are bringing to the problem. -- Family Scapegoat

Dear Family Scapegoat: Self-reflection is always a good thing.

I'm glad that your husband was able to create boundaries with his mother, but try not to throw the baby out with the bathwater. Just because she is not perfect does not mean you don't have to show her some respect and compassion.

Grandchildren intuitively love their grandparents, and anything that helps them get together, with the oversight of the parents, is a good thing. Boundaries set by the parents can promote harmony -- provided they include entrances and exits for the grandparents.

Dear Annie: I resembled the woman who wrote to say that she was staying married for the sake of her son. My then-husband quit his job shortly after the birth of our fourth son, and it took me seven years to realize that honor, marriage, family and commitment mean partnership -- not martyrdom.

I worked full time, went back to grad school to enhance my earning power and did nearly all of the housework while he remained unemployed. As time wore on, the environment grew toxic, as I was constantly angry and worried.

One night, I came home in tears at 10:30 p.m. because I had gone to the grocery store after night classes and could not afford to buy basic groceries. Somehow, I suddenly realized I was not being a good role model for our sons. I asked myself what advice I would have for a stranger in the same situation. I found an attorney. I gave my husband 60 days to land a job -- any job, even part-time -- or I would file for divorce.

After 30 days, I reminded him of my ultimatum and said that I was still serious. At 60 days, I said I was going to the lawyer today. He asked for counseling. I said it was too late. I checked out as soon as the 60-day timer went off. Staying for the sake of the children is noble in thought, but not worth it for anyone involved. -- Been There, Got Out and Lived Happily Ever After

Dear Been There: You were really being taken advantage of, and your resolve is admirable. Sounds like your husband pushed as far as he could, figuring you would cave, but you did not. If you really are living happily ever after, more power to you.

If, on the other hand, you want to allow your husband back into your life, his willingness to enter counseling could be a healthy first step toward reconciliation. The good news is that the decisions about your future are up to you, and not anyone else, because of your strength of character. Thanks for sharing your story.

This week's reviews are large print western books.

Zack Keech's business was cattle in Shootout at Sioux Wells (LP W FAR C) by Cliff Farrell. Railroads were a nuisance, an interloper on the free range and a pain in Zack's saddle-tanned anatomy. Zack only wanted the money he figured was due him for a train-triggered stampede, but found himself working as an undercover agent for two most unusual railroad owners and the notorious Wild Bill Hickok. Furthermore, he found himself with not only a lot of self-declared enemies out to gun him down but even his supposed friends had to pretend that he was an outlaw and a man that Sioux Wells would be better off without. This is an action-filled story of cattlemen, railroaders, a black-eyed vixen and one stubborn trail driver, punctuated by the crackle of gunfire and the thud of some very surprised corpses. The Civil War is over in A Thou- sand Texas Longhorns (LP W BOG J) by Johnny D. Boggs. The future of the American West is up for grabs. Any man crazy enough to lead a herd of Texas longhorns to the north stands to make a fortune and make history. That man would be Nelson Story. A bold entrepreneur and miner, he knows a golden opportunity when he sees one.

But it won't be easy. Cowboys and bandits have guns, farmers have sick livestock, and the Army has their own reasons to stop the drive. Even worse, Story's top hand is an ornery Confederate veteran who used to be his enemy. But all that is nothing compared to the punishing weather, the deadly stampedes and the blood-thirsty wrath of the Sioux.

There's serious trouble brewing in the Choctaw nation, and it goes by the name of Tiny McCoy in Pray for Death (LP W JOH W) By William Johnstone. This small-time cattle rustler is expanding his brand by brewing batches of whiskey in the Choctaw territory of Muddy Boggy Creek.

Tiny and his partner have also turned the illegal brewery into a robber's roost for outlaws, cutthroats, and killers of every bent.

Local lawman Jim Little Eagle is under attack and outgunned. But when he sends a wire to Fort Smith asking for backup and the U.S. Deputy Marshal Tanner shows up, Little Eagle knows they're in for one hell of a bloodbath. If anyone can drive those murdering devils to their knees and saying their prayers, it's Will Tanner.

Young Gordon Elliot was sent to Alaska by the Commissioner of the General Land Office in The Yukon Trail (LP W RAI W) by William MacLeod Raine, to investigate the validity of the Kamatlah claims. Elliot was sent because they knew he didn't scare easily and that he could be trusted to bring back the facts. He was also warned about Colby MacDonald, the biggest man in Alaska, bar none.

What the Commissioner couldn't know was that Sheba O'Neill was also going up the Yukon to Kusiak and that both Elliot and MacDonald would fall in love with her. Or that MacDonald would be set upon and nearly murdered by thieving miners he had once fired and that Elliot would be charged with the crime. Or that a crusty old timer, Gideon Holt, would give Elliot not only the facts he needed to prove that MacDonald's claims to the Kamatlah coal mines were invalid, but also would link the great man directly with the death of Sheba O'Neill's father. Elliott and MacDonald fight a bitter battle for love, power, and wealth.

What you need to know about protecting dogs from parvo

Information from a Texas A&M veterinary expert about the highly contagious disease

BRYAN-COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 3, 2021 - Pet owners know that their beloved furry companions are susceptible to various health problems, ranging from heart murmurs to parasites to contagious diseases. But for dogs and puppies, in particular, there is one diagnosis that is the last thing any pet parent wants to hear - that of parvovirus.

According to Dr. Michael Hung, a second-year internal medicine resident at the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, canine parvovirus, also known as parvo, is one of the most fatal viruses a dog can contract.

"Parvovirus is the world's most common canine infectious disease," Hung explained. "This is a viral infection that is well-known for its contagiousness and severe damage to the intestines, particularly among puppies. It causes serious diarrhea at its best and life-threatening shock at its worst."

Because it is highly contagious, canine parvovirus can quickly jump from dog to dog. The virus typically enters through a dog's nose or mouth and is shed through saliva or diarrhea.

The parvovirus is not airborne, but nearly all surfaces can carry it, including human skin. After an individual has been exposed to the disease, an infestation can occur on the ground, on surfaces in kennels, on their hands, and on their clothing. A dog can also carry contaminated fecal material on its fur or paws.

Because of this, if an owner comes into contact with a dog suspected to have parvo, they should wash their hands thoroughly with soap and water to further prevent the spread. Disinfectants are necessary for cleaning toys, clothes, and cages.

"The virus can be found anywhere worldwide and year-round, but this infection seems to be more common in the summer months and warm/humid environments," Hung said. "The virus can persist in most environments, but dogs are more at risk in heavily trafficked locations like dog parks and boarding facilities."

Unfortunately, puppies between six weeks and six months old have a high susceptibility to illnesses because their immune systems have not yet fully developed.

However, parvovirus is also very preventable with proper vaccinations. While there is little debate on why the parvovirus vaccine is a core vaccination for puppies and dogs, there are some concerns on whether feed-store vaccines are reliable and effective.

"Vaccines require appropriate administration, storage, and verification of good health of the patient for which it is intended," Hung said. "Veterinary personnel are specifically trained to ensure that the appropriate requirements are met and can give dependable proof of vaccination."

"Furthermore, if something happened to go wrong with the vaccination (i.e., vaccine failure or vaccine reaction), veterinary personnel can also make sure that your pet gets the attention or help it needs," he said.

Although the highly effective parvovirus vaccine has reduced the risk of this disease, it is still widely prevalent, so owners should watch out for the common signs of parvo. These include vomiting, lethargy, inappetence, abdominal pain, fever, and bloody diarrhea.

"Parvovirus infection absolutely requires veterinary attention and support. If your dog is diagnosed with parvovirus, it should be kept separate from other dogs until it has been treated and has recovered," Hung said. "Owners with parvovirus-infected dogs should also be wary of their property and clothing so they do not spread the virus unknowingly to other owners and their dogs."

Parvo is a severe and highly contagious disease. Nevertheless, understanding how it spreads, the symptoms, the treatment options, and the best ways to prevent it will help you keep your four-pawed friends safe.

STING

is imperative to stay sharp on scorpion prevention and take quick action when necessary.

Veterinary care should be sought immediately if pet owners see any of these signs or suspect their pet has been stung by a scorpion. It is imperative that scorpion stings be treated urgently, Hindmarsh said, even though the majority are not fatal.

"Owners should monitor for signs of an allergic reaction and seek further veterinary care if an allergic reaction develops or their pet has progressive pain (i.e. continued limping)," Hindmarsh advised. "I would not recommend giving any over-the-counter medications without first consulting a veterinarian."

Scorpion stings can be scary, but by taking the right precautions and veterinary actions, pet owners are much more capable of taking the bite out of the scorpion and returning the bark back to their furry friends.

Howard County Sheriff Office getting involved in community

The Howard County Sheriff's Office was able to take part in several of the community events in the past 12 months, including the annual First Responders Trick or Treat event, several parades and charity events.

Patrolling and serving the county is only a small portion of the workload, just as it is with the BSPD.

The deputies are doing their part to keep the residents of Howard County safe, but also taking time to help educate and support local businesses, organizations and families in numerous areas.

One of the big additions for this past year was the approval from Howard County Commissioners Court to add a new division in the department.

The new unit will allow the HCSO to focus on illegal dumping, thefts, burglaries and narcotic issues in the county.

While law enforcement may not be one of the areas thought to be impacted by the pandemic, in reality, there was a hard hit to the jail as overcrowding became an issue.

According to Sheriff Stan Parker, the COVID counts caused the courts and prison systems to be shut down for a period of time which caused the local jail to become overcrowded.

As the year progresses, the Sheriff's Office is aiming to continue to address the problems and crimes and hopefully make a larger impact on them this year.

"With all the negativity about Law Enforcement in our country today, we are fortunate to work in a community that fully supports us. We have a great working relationship with our schools and the community as a whole, and we appreciate the support from everyone."

To protect and to serve the Big Spring community

To protect and to serve is the oath that was taken for those who are part of the Big Spring Police Department. Part of that oath involves serving the community partners, school districts and other community outreach efforts. Throughout this past year despite being in the middle of a pandemic, the local law enforcement did what they could to still support community events.

This past year included visits to local elementary schools, participation in the annual SMMC Back to School event and Northside Movement's Head to Toe event. Safety Pup even made an appearance, along with a couple of officers, to the annual health fair that was held Downtown.

Over the past several months the Big Spring Police Department has welcomed some new faces to the squad, but it has also said goodbye to some important support service people as well. Long time Chaplain Joel Miller retired the past year after serving as a Chaplain for all First Responders in Howard County from October 2004 until March 2021. Big Spring Police Department along with Howard County Sheriff's Office and Big Spring Fire Department celebrated the contributions made by Miller in a retirement party at the law enforcement center.

Adapting to the ever-changing circumstances that this past year's pandemic has brought had the officers adapting and adjusting to the challenges of COVID. Changes were made to the way calls were handled with officers having to do over the phone reports at times. While the officers were able to take part in a few of the community outreach events, there were several events that did not take place due to the pandemic. According to Chief of Police Chad Williams, the department is looking forward to getting back to a normal schedule of outreach opportunities and interacting with the community, as soon as the case numbers decline and it is safe to do so.

While there are many downsides to the pandemic that have been experienced throughout the community, the Big Spring Police Department had an opportunity to connect with the community through the Emergency Management efforts and played a role in helping educate and serve. In addition, the community showed their support through the numerous donations of personal protection equipment that was provided to first responders and other needed supplies.

"Our community has always been great about showing their support and this year it has really been a big help. We appreciate the support, the donations, the encouragement that our residents have provided these past several months," Chief Williams said. "This is a tough time for everyone with so many uncertainties, but one of the things that makes Big Spring so great is the community support that is extended in times of needed. We work together, we live together and we survive all circumstances together."

As the year progresses, the Big Spring Police Department is looking forward to the implementation of the new digital radio system and also getting back involved with Community Outreach events.

"We appreciate the patience the community has shown to our staff during these trying and challenging times due to the COVID pandemic as we have all had to make numerous sacrifices in the way we go about our lives and conduct business," Chief Williams said. "With all the negative national media coverage on law enforcement, our community continues to show their support for us in numerous ways and we appreciate our partnership with our citizens to work together for a safer community."

HC Volunteer Fire Department

The Howard County Volunteer Fire Department was able to get a much needed slower season with the large amount of rainfalls that have fallen this past year. The rainfall totals were larger than the previous few years and in turn helped lower the fire danger across Howard County. While there were still fires to respond to, containment was a little bit easier and the fires didn't spread through dry vegetation as quickly as it has before.

However, this year was still an active year with some new equipment coming into support the Howard County Volunteer Fire Department. According to HCVFD Chief Mitchell Hooper, the department received a new truck at the Coahoma station, new radios and other new equipment. Grants, foundation monies and local community support is the foundation of support for the department. Chief Hooper said there are some exciting things on the horizon, but final details of the support have not been released yet.

The HCVFD did receive substantial support from the Big Spring Area Community Foundation this year, in the amount of $20,000, along with Dora Roberts and Broughton Foundation grants.

"We honestly can't say 'Thank you' enough to these foundations who continue to support us," HCVFD Fire Chief Mitchell Hooper said. "The monetary support they provide allows us to purchase much needed equipment which enables us to better protect the community."

Hooper added, "We also couldn't do what we do without the support from the community. A huge thank you goes out to the Road and Bridge Department as well. People don't realize how much support they provide when it comes to battling the grassfires and wildfires in our county."

C.A.S.A. of West Texas - Court Appointed Special Advocate

To recruit, train, and support, in the best interest of the child. Court Appointed Child Advocates are a volunteer based organization who are doing what needs to be done for the youth in the community who need a support system as they go through the foster care system.

"A CASA, often times, is the only consistent adult in the child's life, which is why they are so crucial," Hope Stalder, Volunteer Recruitment and Marketing Specialist, said. "Without one, they are much more susceptible to fall through the cracks of an overburdened child welfare system."

Since 2000, CASA has been serving Howard County. A new building is being erected on Scurry Street, which will allow for much needed space for the organization and the services rendered. The main focus of CASA is to serve children who have been removed from their home due to severe child abuse and neglect. A judge will appoint one of the volunteers to serve as the child's guardian ad litem; they are tasked with advocating for the child's best interest. An assignment can last from 12 to 18 months and sometimes longer depending on the circumstances.

"Howard County is the second largest county served by CASA of West Texas, out of the seven county area," she said. "Our organization provided advocacy to 133 children last year (2020) in Howard County alone. We need a strong presence in this community for these victims."

Volunteers are the foundation of CASA, but there are other ways to support the organization. Donations are appreciated and accepted, from monetary to items such as snacks, new stuffed animals, and more. According to Stalder, the best form of support is to help spread the word. The more people who know about the services provided through CASA the more of an awareness is raised and the more youth that can be supported in their journey.

The new CASA building is a representation of community and a testament to what can happen when community comes together and how donations are utilized. According to Stalder, a few of the big contributors included the FMH Foundation, Mabee Foundation, Scharbauer Foundation and Permian Basin Area Foundation. There were also numerous individual and business donations that helped fund this project.

"We have seen a if we do not have a volunteer that is able to accept the case, we have to decline it and a CASA will not be assigned at that time. However, one can be requested at any point throughout the duration of the case and can be appointed if we had one become available."

She continued, "We need to keep our community safe and protect these children who are so defenseless more often than not. Volunteers are always needed and extremely vital for each case. These children are often not able to speak up for themselves. CASA volunteers can provide a voice to the court on what is in the best interest of the child and help them navigate through this very traumatic time in their life. One person can really make the greatest impact for these children and their families."

Anyone in the community can report suspected abuse by calling the Child Protective Services hotline at 1-800-252-5400.

Veterans: Some gave all; to all we say Thank YOU

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

Serving those who served our nation has been the mission of the DAV (Disabled American Veterans) for the last 100 years. Originally organized on Sept. 25, 1920, DAV aims to serve veterans of the Armed Forces, their families, survivors and communities. Last year, DAV celebrated 100 years; and the Big Spring DAV Chapter 47 is celebrating serving Big Spring for 70 years.

"The foundation was laid well all those years ago and because of that we are still serving veterans 100 years later," DAV Chapter 47 Commander Ed Meiser said. "DAV has been recognized by the BBB (Better Business Bureau) as a Wise Giving Alliance. The DAV utilizes 85 percent of the income received to provide services to veterans; not many organizations can say that."

A proclamation read by Mayor Shannon Thomason last year during the anniversary celebration described some of DAV's history and purpose:

"Whereas, Disabled American Veterans (DAV) was founded by World War I veterans on September 25, 1920 and was chartered by an Act of Congress on June 17, 1932; Whereas DAV is dedicated to a single purpose: empowering veterans to lead high-quality lives with respect and dignity; Whereas DAV accomplishes this by ensuring veterans and their families have access to the full range of benefits available to them, by fighting for the interests of American's injured heroes, and by educating the public about the needs of veterans transition back to civilian life," Mayor Thomason read. "Whereas, DAV has fought tirelessly for equal access to critical VA caregiver benefits and services for severely disabled veterans of all generations, resulting in legislation to expand eligibility to those injured prior to September 11, 2001, as part of the VA Mission

Act ...."

The idea for DAV – originally named Disabled Veterans of the World War (DAVWW) – was first presented in 1919 at a Christmas party hosted by Judge Robert Marx. According to the DAV website, Judge Marx directed conversation at the party to the topic of doing something about the mess the government had made of its programs for veterans, a belief held by many whom attended the party. As a new year turned, two organized groups laid the initial groundwork for the new organization. In the Spring of 1920, after several meetings had been held, Judge Marx presented articles of confederation for the DAVWW. After being in touch with the War Department, Marx found out that 741,000 veterans were eligible for membership and with that information, an idea took root.

"Currently there are over 1 million members in the DAV; more than 4,200 in Texas DAVs, and about 415 members in the Big Spring Chapter," Commander Meiser said.

The mission statement still holds service to veterans and empowering veterans to lead high-quality lives with respect and dignity as it's foundation, even 100 years later. The DAV continues to accomplish this goal by ensuring veterans and their families can access the full range of benefits available to them; fighting for the interests of America's injured heroes on

Howard Co. Emergency Services Chaplains Corps

HERALD Staff Report
The Emergency Services Chaplain Corps has been serving Howard County since 2004. In order to be a Chaplain, there is a required 32 hours of training. The training can be completed at your own pace, according to Miller. Those with a religious background are highly encouraged to apply.

“You need to have a call from God,” Former Senior Chaplain Joel Miller said. “That is the first thing I asked those who walk in wanting to become a Chaplain. You have to have a call from God to be able to do this.”

The Chaplains are ordained/licensed clergy and/or laity who train to be available to serve our Public Safety Departments, Victim Services, SMMC Hospital personnel and the families and citizens of Big Spring and Howard County. They are to assist personnel and citizens while standing by at the scene, at the hospitals, as well as major incidents where families are displaced and are in need of support and help.

This past year, Chaplain Joel Miller celebrated his retirement. However, the love that he has for the Chaplains Corps is not one that fading away. According to Miller, the ideal number would be to have at least seven, if not more, chaplains. As Miller stepped down, Chaplain Jacqueline Roland stepped into the Lead Chaplain role.

cases through local healthcare facilities, or even outreach regarding depression and other cases.

“Our job is to take care of people who need help, whether it’s from stress, depression or a traumatic experience,” Miller said. “About 75% of the assistance we offer has to deal with depression, financial support such as finding a place to stay for the night, transportation, food, and other necessities. However, there are those rare occasions where we have to deal with delivering bad news or helping someone get through hearing that bad news.”

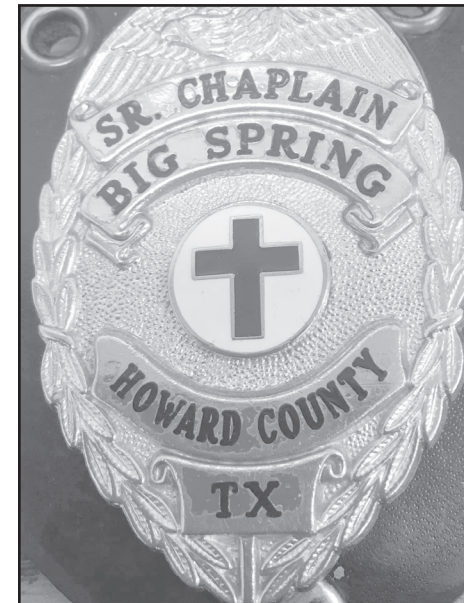

The Chaplains this year include: Chaplain Marie Karns, Chaplain Scott Jimenez, Chaplain Johnny Smith, who serves in an emergency capacity only, and Chaplain Betty

One of the outreach efforts that the local DAV Chapter 47 continues is the holiday meals served to the local veterans in the Domiciliary at the West Texas VA Medical Center. Pictured above is a previous holiday meal that was held at the Travel Center Country Kitchen restaurant. This year, due to the pandemic the meal was altered for the safety of the veterans, but was still provided by the DAV. Another annual event aimed at honoring veterans is the Dove Hunt, which is also hosted by the DAV Big Spring chapter. Pictured above right is a previous set of honorees after they received their Quilts of Valor during the closing ceremony, at Spring Creek Fellowship Church.

Capitol Hill; and educating the public about the great sacrifices and needs of veterans transitioning back to civilian life.

The local DAV chapter provides support financially to those veterans who are in need, whether it be with medical care, utilities or other day to day needs. Funds are raised through local fundraisers, including the annual Forget Me Not Drive, along with donations to the chapter. This year, due to the current pandemic, the Forget Me Not Drive had to be cancelled. However, through the generosity of a local veteran and metal craftsmen, the DAV was able to host a fire pit fundraiser which raised almost $5,000 locally.

Bigger risks and rewards in Season 2 of 'Flipping 101'

The episodes are longer, the flips are riskier and the storylines are more personal for Tarek El Moussa and his family as "Flipping 101 With Tarek El Moussa" returns for its second season.

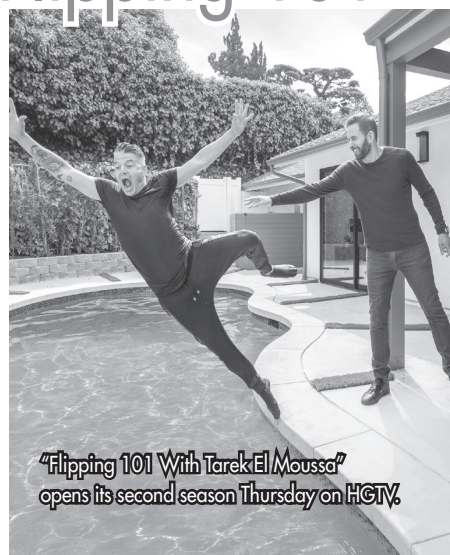

Premiering Thursday, Sept. 16, on HGTV, the sophomore round expands each of the 12 episodes to an hour as El Moussa coaches more newbies on the ABC's of house flipping in the Los Angeles area. The show will also delve into his home life with fiancée Heather Rae Young, the real estate agent to whom he proposed in the Season 1 finale, and her two children. The couple just bought a beach house in Newport Beach and so the episodes will also devote time to their renovations.

"In this season you get to see everything in more detail," El Moussa explains. "There's more design, there's more coaching, there's more training. And the properties this year, I think the designs are much better than last year. I think the projects are bigger than last year. I think some of the flippers, they took on riskier projects than last year. So overall, I think it's going to be a very exciting season."

Thursday's opener gives an indication on just how risky the flips can be. Here, a Las Vegas couple take on a property in Anaheim that needs major work, acting as their own general contractors and bringing in construction help from Sin City against El Moussa's advice.

Their plan ultimately led to a bevy of problems and El Moussa says that being one's own general contractor is probably the most common mistake rookie flippers make.

"(They) try to manage the project themselves as opposed to hiring a general contractor and they do that to save money," he says. "But in the end, their lack of knowledge and experience shows and in the end most of the time it actually costs more than if they just hired a professional contractor."

On the positive side, El Moussa gets great satisfaction when his mentees succeed. He's made a good life for himself flipping real estate for nearly two decades and he's happy to show others how they can, too.

"I was a 20-year-old kid when I got into real estate," he says, "and I got a real estate coach a few months after getting into the business and it changed my life. I found a mentor, I found a coach and now it's my turn. I get to give back, I get to coach people, I get to train people and I literally get to watch people change their lives right in front of me. So it's just extremely rewarding."

'Today's' Dylan Dreyer turns a page by becoming an author

Dylan Dreyer has done many things in her career, particularly since joining NBC News and "Today," but she's adding a new occupation to her resume: author.

As she and her husband Brian await the November arrival of their third child, the morning-program meteorologist is launching a children's-book series. Due Sept. 28, "Misty the Cloud: A Very Stormy Day" – which she wrote in collaboration with Alan Katz, with illustrations by Rosie Butcher – uses weather elements to explain emotions via the tale of a cloud whose bad mood causes a thunderstorm, though others assure her she'll feel better and the skies will clear.

The cheerful Dreyer explains the seed for "Misty the Cloud" was planted 10 years ago, before she became a mom. "My husband and I were going on vacation," she recalls, "and we had carry-on luggage, and his was sitting there and mine had a little orange bow tied around it. We imagined them being a couple and thought of a story about them traveling the world together, but we didn't know how much we ultimately could do with that."

"Then, Brian said, 'Well, you know so much about weather. Isn't it cool how much the weather correlates with our feelings? A sunny day makes you feel happy, and a stormy day makes you feel kind of angry.' A couple of bottles of wine later, we started coming up with what we thought were all these genius ideas, and it just kind of snowballed from there ... no pun intended!"

Dreyer notes that once she and her spouse started getting serious about writing, "We realized that we didn't know how to write for kids. Then, once we had kids, we noticed more how those books are written. I knew the ones I liked and the ones I didn't like so much, and I knew I wanted to invest some humor and make it something that parents would enjoy reading out loud. My co-author Alan has written numerous children's books, and he brought it to life. I think it was just a perfect collaboration."

Though couched inside a children's story, weather remains expectedly important to Dreyer (who also hosts NBC's Saturday-morning program "Earth Odyssey With Dylan Dreyer") as the saga of Misty unfolds.

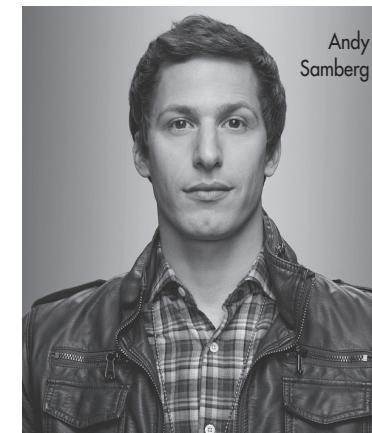

"When I was in local news, in Boston and Providence and even Erie, when I would go to talk to schools – especially kindergarten through second grade – it was hard to keep the kids' attention. I always wished I had a book about weather to read to them first, then go into the weather discussion, but that didn't really exist. That's why I wanted this to be something that parents and teachers can use."

The TV path of Andy Samberg

Q: I'm sorry "Brooklyn Nine-Nine" has reached the end of its run. Did Andy Samberg star in any other series after he left "Saturday Night Live"? – Pete Davies, Columbus, Ohio

A: Though he made guest appearances on such shows as "30 Rock," "Portlandia" and "SpongeBob SquarePants" (in voice only, of course) during that one-year interim, Samberg pretty much went right from "SNL" into the police comedy that lasted eight seasons, the first five of those on Fox and the last three on NBC. For that "rescue" after the Fox cancellation, it certainly didn't hurt that the show was made by NBC corporate cousin Universal Television. While he also has made such movies as "Popstar: Never Stop Never Stopping" and the acclaimed "Palm Springs" – both of which he also produced – we'd expect that Samberg will find other home-screen avenues for himself. One that's coming up fairly soon is "Baking It," a Peacock competition series for the holidays that he'll co-host with fellow "SNL" veteran Maya Rudolph.

Q: I find Serinda Swan of "Coroner" very interesting. What other work has she done? – Michael Carr, via e-mail

A: The West Vancouver-born Canadian actress began performing at age five, when she was in the Ted Danson movie comedy "Cousins." Once her career began in earnest about 15 years later, she began booking guest roles on such series as "Supernatural," "Psych," "Smallville" and "Hawaii Five-0." Her first part as a series regular was on "Breakout Kings," then she also was a star of "Graceland" and "Inhumans." Additionally, Swan had recurring roles on "Chicago Fire" and Dwayne Johnson's "Ballers," and she played actress Anne Bancroft in the limited series "Feud: Bette vs. Joan." She has had the lead part on "Coroner," which originated on Canada's CBC Television and has aired on The CW in America, for all of its three seasons to date.

Selena Gomez

OF 'ONLY MURDERS IN THE BUILDING' ON HULU AND DISNEY+ IN CANADA

This is fair to say, your first TV show since you were an adult, right? How is it different now making this than the ones you made when you were a kid?

What I'd say is the level of sophistication of the material is first the reason why I wanted to do this. But I don't know. I was a kid; I didn't know what I was doing. I was just riding around on set and now I just – I feel like a sponge and I soak up all the wisdom that I can. It's really nice to be back on TV and it's nice to be casted as my actual age, which never happens.

When you're working with such seasoned talent as Steve Martin and Martin Short, what has really been the thing that you've learned the most just from working with them?

How they lead a set is so commendable. They are so humble and they are kind and they are there till the very end and they are just really – they've set such an example for me. They've been doing this longer than I've been alive and if anything like I would be so lucky to have a career that lasted that long. ... I love the way they talk to people. I love the way that they just come to set and make everybody feel good and that makes me want to be that and do that more. So, I don't know. Plus, I'm just so lucky. I just sit down and laugh all day. ... So, I'm very happy to be doing this.

Celebs become videographers in Season 3 of Fuse's 'Made From Scratch'

BY GEORGE DICKIE

If Fuse's "Made From Scratch" seems to have taken on a more intimate tone in Season 3, it might be because of the way the eight episodes were shot.

Premiering Wednesday, Sept. 15, the new installments of the half-hour series that follows musical artists in their kitchens as they and kin prepare family recipes were actually shot by the subjects themselves. There were no production crews this time around, a concession to the pandemic, only camera packs and lighting shipped to the celebs' homes with instructions on set-up and use.

According to Jon Scarlett, Fuse Media's vice president of content and a producer on the show, all the artists acquitted themselves quite nicely as their own videographers.

"It worked well with kind of the overall narrative of the show," he explains. "It's not just playing on titles, it's not just about the artist's background and how they're made from scratch or even how the dishes they're creating are made from scratch. But really the show itself is made from scratch in the way that the artists themselves are taking it upon themselves to really produce it and shoot it."

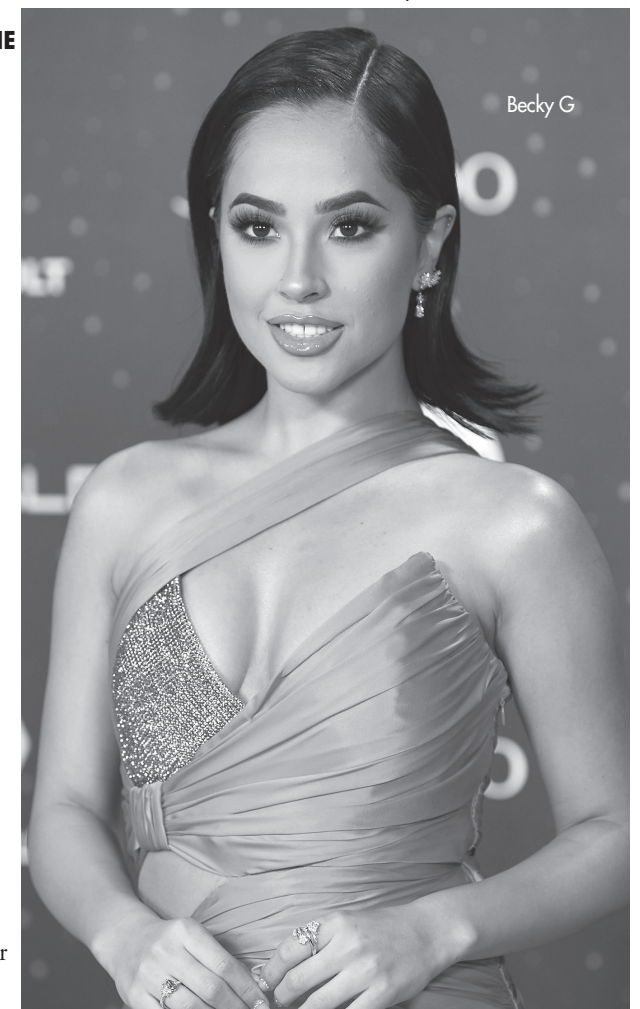

This season, the focus shifts to younger artists as viewers get to go inside the kitchens of pop singer/actress Becky G, singer/songwriter Maria Isabel, rapper Smino, R&B singer Joyce Wrice and singer/songwriter/actress Tinashe, and watch them prepare a dish with a close family member as they let down their guard and reveal how family and food has shaped their identity as people and artists.

"One of the best environments for that is in the kitchen," Scarlett says, "or hanging around the dinner table and having a home-cooked meal with somebody you grew up with. So we were able to lean into that."

"And obviously this show is not a cooking show," he continues. "We're not lifting out recipes and having the audience kind of follow along what they're making. It's more about the interaction and the sharing of anecdotes and stories and really heartfelt conversations around food and dining with a loved one. And that's really what the show is about. More so than just kind of two people in the kitchen cooking, it's really about sharing those intimate moments."

But still, while the emphasis is on family and intimate moments, the recipes prepared in Season 3 will be made available via the "Made From Scratch" web page (www.fuse.tv/shows/made-from-scratch/Pj1MPw0nxc13) and social media for anyone who wants to follow along.

Checking in with KELLI BERGLUND

celebrity scoop
BY JAY BOBBIN

Going from playing a struggling Los Angeles actress amid supernatural goings-on in the fantasy comedy “Now Apocalypse” to her current role as a rural Georgia wrestler’s girlfriend in the drama “Heels” was a complete about-face for Kelli Berglund, one that has brought her great satisfaction.

“Crystal’s fight is honestly something that I was so excited to portray on screen,” the 25-year-old actress explains. “Because you meet Crystal in these first few episodes and you just feel for her instantly and you wonder, ‘When is she going to get her big break? Why is everyone treating her this way?’ And you just want to see her succeed. I mean, I have been there. I’ve been a girl that comes from a small town that has a big dream and sees herself beyond the small town. So obviously I love that Crystal and I are in the same boat there. But the transformation that we watch with Crystal over the eight episodes is so unbelievably exciting.”

But in preparing to play Crystal Tyler, the girlfriend and valet for wrestler Ace Spade (Alexander Ludwig) in the Sunday Starz drama, the Southern California native undertook extensive training, hitting the gym every day and learning the basics of faux-wrestling. She even got to try a move or two like the hurricanrana and has the bumps and bruises to prove it.

“People like to think that wrestling is fake, ...” Berglund says, “but it’s full stunt work. Those bumps are real, it hurts. They’re throwing those flips or kicking each other. Like it’s full-on.”

Full name: Kelli Michelle Berglund
Birth date: Feb. 9, 1996

Birthplace: Moorpark, Calif.

Family: Is the eldest child of Mark and Michelle Berglund; has a younger sister, Kirra

TV credits: “Hip Hop Harry,” “Kickin’ It,” “Mighty Med,” “Pickle and Peanut,” “Lab Rats: Bionic Island,” “Lab Rats: Elite Force,” “The Night Shift,” “Love Daily,” “Now Apocalypse,” “Fosse/Verdon,” “Animal Kingdom,” “The Goldbergs”

Movie credits include: “How to Build a Better Boy (TV, 2014), “Dolly Parton’s Christmas of Many Colors: Circle of Love” (TV, 2016), “Raising the Bar” (2016), “1 Night” (2016), “Going for Gold” (2018), “Ghost in the Graveyard” (2019), “Hubie Halloween” (2020), “Cherry” (2021), “Mark, Mary & Some Other People” (2021)

BEST LAUREN BACALL MOVIES

“To Have and Have Not” (1944) The film that brought Bacall, in her screen debut, to the attention of the public – and certainly to that of leading man Humphrey Bogart – this Ernest Hemingway tale is included in a Thursday, Sept. 16, birthday tribute to Bacall on Turner Classic Movies.

“The Big Sleep” (1946) By then married to Humphrey Bogart, Bacall reteamed with him and director Howard Hawks in novelist Raymond Chandler’s classic mystery that finds detective Philip Marlowe investigating a wealthy family.

“Dark Passage” (1947) A woman (Bacall) shelters a suspected wife-killer (Humphrey Bogart) who’s determined to find the real murderer.

“Key Largo” (1948) Director and co-screenwriter John Huston’s excellent take on Maxwell Anderson’s play again unites Humphrey Bogart and Bacall, this time as two of the hostages of a crime boss (Edward G. Robinson) at a hotel in the path of a hurricane.

“Bright Leaf” (1950) Bacall and Patricia Neal play rivals for a would-be tobacco-industry magnate (Gary Cooper).

“How to Marry a Millionaire” (1953) Bacall, Marilyn Monroe and Betty Grable lend glamour to spare to this comedy about several apartment-sharing models determined to land rich husbands.

“Woman’s World” (1954) Playing the wife of Fred MacMurray, Bacall is half of one of several couples in which the husbands are considered for a huge job promotion.

“Written on the Wind” (1956) Dorothy Malone won an Oscar here, but Bacall has the central female role as a secretary who inspires a romantic rivalry between a geologist and a playboy (Rock Hudson, Robert Stack).

“Designing Woman” (1957) Bacall and Gregory Peck make a marvelous romantic-comedy team as recently acquainted newlyweds dismayed to discover they have little in common.

“Harper” (1966) Though the part really is a extended cameo, Bacall is terrific as the client who hires Paul Newman’s title detective to find her missing husband.

'The Meg' tries to put teeth back in shark movies

For a number of years, the "Sharknado" cable movies kept shark thrillers alive ... but after the last of those was televised, the theatrical-movie industry apparently felt it was time to sharpen itself up on that genre.

Thus we got "The Meg," an old-fashioned scare show that has nothing on "Jaws," though it tries to lift a few elements from that classic tale. In the film - which TNT shows Thursday, Sept. 16, and Friday, Sept. 17 - a prehistoric shark the size of a small island targets an undersea research lab and its crew. You also might think of the film "Deep Blue Sea," and that's how shameful "The Meg" is about ripping off other waterlogged fright fests. "Flipper" may be the only fish tale that hasn't been cribbed from in this case.

Action star Jason Statham plays the chiseled leader of the undersea team, and he's haunted by a tragedy from his seafaring past. (Hello, Quint!) Though he gets top billing, he's not the most interesting person on board, thanks to a cast that also includes such familiar faces as Rainn Wilson of "The Office," Robert Taylor of "Longmire" and Masi Oka of "Heroes" and "Hawaii Five-0."

And then, there is that massive shark, called a Megalodon ... or "The Meg" for short. In a way, this film got stolen from itself, since Syfy premiered a thriller called "Megalodon" within days of "The Meg's" release. With that striking a similarity, we'd say what's good for the goose is good for the gander. But, of course, we'd never say that.

The easiest way to get audience members to jump out of their seats with something like "The Meg" is to have the creature sneak up or pop out at unexpected moments - but with such a picture, you expect that to happen at almost any turn. With that said, there are some reasonable jolts in "The Meg," and that's what viewers will come to it for. (Unless they mistakenly think they're going to see a biography of Meg Ryan.)

Director Jon Turteltaub knows how to make movies, as he's proven with "Phenomenon," "While You Were Sleeping" and "National Treasure." With "The Meg," he tackles a category that's tried and true ... but in spite of a couple of true scares, and the fact that the result had a surprisingly big opening due largely to clever marketing, some may wonder why he tried.

REESE WITHERSPOON

Laura Jeanne Reese Witherspoon was born on March 22, 1976, in New Orleans. At a very young age, she began appearing in ads, then took acting lessons and won a talent contest. Nicknamed "Little Type A" by her parents because of her drive, she began studies at Stanford University (majoring in English literature), but left to start her professional career.

Auditioning for a small part in the film "The Man in the Moon," Witherspoon landed a central role instead, and she soon found television work in the miniseries "Return to Lonesome Dove" and several movies. "A Far Off Place" and "Jack the Bear" were among her early theatrical features, and she got big boosts toward stardom from "Fear" and "Freeway."

Working steadily in such movies as "Pleasantville," "Best Laid Plans" and "Cruel Intentions" (the latter also starring her then-husband-to-be, Ryan Phillippe), Witherspoon landed the iconic role of hugely

'You Bet Your Life' revival brings Jay Leno back to TV regularly

BY JAY BOBBIN

Once a popular series leaves the air, it isn't necessarily forever ... and that's particularly true of game shows.

In recent years, there's been a real renaissance of that format, especially with ABC getting back into the (forgive us) game by reviving numerous contests for its "Summer Fun & Games" concept. Syndication also has been a big market for such revivals, and it's about to offer another example proving what's old is new again.

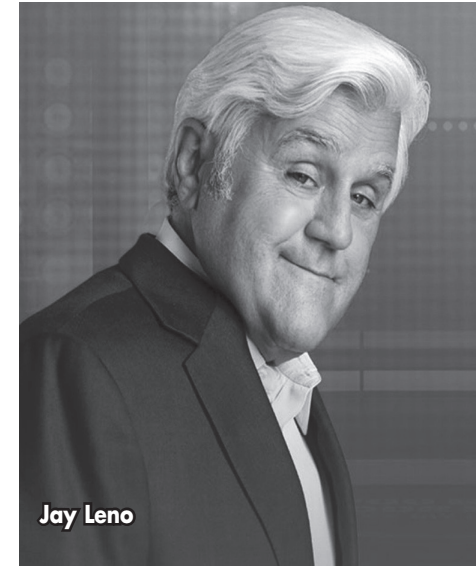

"You Bet Your Life" nominally was a game, but it also was a showcase for host Groucho Marx to bounce wisecracks off contestants (and, sometimes, off announcer George Fenneman as well). The show's television rebirth in weekday syndication Monday, Sept. 13, will service another comedy star known for humorous interactions: Jay Leno is taking the reins of the new "You Bet Your Life," reportedly incorporating some elements from his "Tonight Show," with his former "Tonight" bandleader Kevin Eubanks by his side again.

Comedy stars generally have fared well as game-show-reboot hosts, and here are some other examples.

Steve Harvey: The comedian-actor-author has had a long run as the latest survey revealer on "Family Feud," also parlaying that into "Celebrity Family Feud."

David Letterman: "The Tonight Show" host

Joel McHale: Known for his snark, the "Comedy Central" host

Jay Leno

Brady also continues as a regular on the pseudo-game "Whose Line Is It Anyway?"

Alec Baldwin: The often-comedic actor has spent several years holding the same style of stick microphone used by predecessor Gene Rayburn on the current iteration of "Match Game."

Anthony Anderson: Concurrent with his run on the hit sitcom "black-ish," Anderson - along with his "Mama Doris" - has been presiding over "To Tell the Truth."

Joel McHale: Known for his snark, the "Comedy Central" host

2021 a key year for Giants' Daniel Jones

It's Year 5 of the rebuild and the New York Giants' faithful are more than ready to see some winning football.

Toward that end, Big Blue GM Dave Gettleman made a few moves this offseason to bring in offensive talent via free agency (WRs Kenny Golladay and John Ross III, TE Kyle Rudolph) and the draft (WR Kadarius Toney) to give some life to an attack that ranked second-to-last in 2020, ahead of only their MetLife Stadium co-tenants, the New York Jets.

It also gives Daniel Jones some weapons to work with. This is a make-or-break year for the third year signal caller. In an era when rookie quarterbacks are expected to perform at a high level right away, the Giants' patience with Jones, whose drafting with the sixth overall pick in 2019 raised eyebrows, is an exception to what has become the rule. But that patience is wearing thin.

And rightly so. The Giants' record in Jones's starts over the past two seasons is 8-18 and he's consistently ranked in the bottom third of the league in many key categories, right there among journeymen and potential trade pieces.

True, he was without explosive runner Saquon Barkley last year but now he's back and presumably healthy. Given his return and the team's offseason moves, there are no more excuses.

The future is now for Jones and the Giants, and they can be seen in action Thursday, Sept. 16, when they drop in on the Washington Football Team in a game airing on NFL Network.

“LuLaRich”
 This four-part docuseries from executive producers/directors Jenner Furst and Julia Willoughby Nason chronicles the unraveling of LuLaRoe, an infamous multi-level-marketing company run by eccentric founders that enticed young mothers with work-from-home opportunities while recruiting independent retailers to peddle their increasingly bizarre and defective clothing products. (ORIGINAL)

“The D'Amelio Show”

(ORIGINAL)

“You vs. Wild: Out Cold”
 Bear Grylls is back for another adventure in this interactive special that enables viewers to make the key decisions as he faces harsh winter elements, huge rock walls, freezing dark tunnels and dangerous wildlife in order to survive and save his pilot following a plane crash. (ORIGINAL)

“Descendants: The Royal Wedding” (Sept. 17)
 In this fourth animated installment of Disney Channel’s “Descendants” features, it’s the social event of the season in the United States of Auradon as power couple Ben and Mal (voices of Mitchell Hope and Dove Cameron) get ready to tie the knot.
