Early voting concluded; Election Day Nov. 2

By ROGER CLINE
 Herald Staff Writer

The number of Howard County residents who turned out early to vote in the 2021 General Election was quite small, according to County Elections Administrator Jodi Duck.

Duck said only 443 of the county's 16,801 voters cast their ballots early in person this election, while 249 voted early by mail.

"It's really sad," she said. "We're at about four percent turnout, Duck said Thursday afternoon. It's very low. Odd years are usually really slower because there's no person involved in it. It's just all word stuff. It just generally makes for a low turnout.

And lack of information that it's even happening."

There were no contested of-

On the state level, propositions on the ballot address such far-flung topics as whether charitable organizations linked to pro sports teams should be allowed to conduct raffles at rodeo venues; whether counties should be allowed to issue bonds to fund infrastructure and transportation projects in undeveloped or blighted areas; and whether the state or any of its smaller political subdivisions should be prohibited from legally limiting religious services or organizations.

Other propositions on the state lineup involve judiciary eligibility requirements and whether the state's Commission on Judicial Conduct should be able to investigate complaints against candidates for state judicial office; extending rights to residents of nursing or assisted-living facilities to designate an essential caregiver who can't be barred from visiting the resident; allowing the legislature to extend a limit on homestead taxes to elderly surviving spouses of disabled individuals who live in the home in question; and providing a homestead tax exemption to surviving

Miller recognized for Exemplary Aviation

Robert Miller (left), local attorney, recently received an award for 50 years of exemplary aviation flight experience. The Wright Brothers Master Pilot Award was presented during a special ceremony.

By ROGER CLINE
 Herald Staff Writer

This past September, a Big Spring resident and small-plane pilot was honored for a remarkable achievement: "50 years of exemplary aviation flight experience, distinguished professionalism, and steadfast commitment to aviation safety." After he received his pilot's license in 1976, local attorney Robert Miller has had a perfect flight safety record, and was awarded the Wright Brothers Master Pilot Award by the Federal Aviation Administration.

"Basically what this is, is 50 years of flying. Basically 50 years of flying without a suspension, revocation, ticket... you know," he said. "No black marks on your record. And what's so ironic, I didn't know the FAA did this, but this is part of a file copied from the FAA of me. Here's my application and references, and logbook showing when I soloed, to show there's no blemishes on my record in 50 years. No tickets or deviations, no landing on the wrong runway, changing altitude without permission. Those are all things that are involved. They even have my test scores from when I took the private, commercial and instruments. That was back in the '70s. That was 1976. Temporary certificate issued in 1976."

Miller said he has logged about 5,500 hours of flying over his 50 years.

"I never flew for hire, like a commercial deal or anything like that," he said. "This is strictly private, and whatever I do as a lawyer. The current airplane I'm flying...I've flown all over the country. It's out here at the airport in the hangar."

Miller got his start flying during college, he said.

“I was at the University of Pennsylvania. I come home to where my parents were living in Oak Brook, Illinois, just temporarily, and I’d come back and just do some flying lessons,” he said. “Did tail dragger. I never soloed. Then I went back to law school, then I was gonna get drafted in Vietnam and got accepted in Navy OCS.”

Miller said he was stationed on an aircraft carrier while in the Navy, but his job in the service wasn’t as a pilot.

“Then when I got out of the Navy, I was temporarily going to law school in Portsmouth at William and Mary. So that summer, I started flying in a local flying school just to get the license. So I did that,” he said. “Then I got out of law school and I came here, and Roger Brown, who I was associated with, he was flying, so we both were flying, so we got an airplane. Then I’ve just been flying ever since.”

Miller said flying is a great way to get around, and he loves to take his wife Mary for a spin in the sky.

“I hate driving,” he said. “We go to the football games, so we flew over there Saturday, spent the night, went to the game at noon, and flew back yesterday afternoon. We’ve been to Niagara Falls, we’ve been to Hudson Bay and Churchill. We went with a group of other people. We’ve been to Prudhoe Bay, north of Fairbanks in Alaska. But I’ve had different airplanes. I haven’t had the same airplane through all of this. Mary and I like flying, just to get around. Rent cars have gotten so expensive. Have you noticed?”

Miller said he’s proud of the Master Pilot recognition.

“There’s roughly 680,000 pilots in the United States. Approximately, so I was told,” he said. “I don’t know if that’s living now, but there’s only 6,800 master pilots, out of all the pilots. It’s a recognition. I’ll be honest with you, three or four years ago I didn’t know anything about it. It’s not like I was going to make sure I got it. Then we were at an airplane get-together about three years ago, and I thought, ‘Well, I’m going to be 50 pretty soon.’ So when it came up to be June of this year...back when it was November of ‘20, because it takes the FAA six to eight months to approve it. It’s a recognition, and also to encourage other pilots to be safe. You have people killing themselves flying these planes.”

Miller said he’s been afraid plenty of times while flying his planes; and, during his speech accepting the Wright Brothers award, he related some of his more hair-raising moments behind the stick.

“I said to them, ‘If you’re a pilot and you said you’ve never been scared, either you’re lying or you’re stupid,’” he said. “There’s three occasions. One time – I wasn’t rated yet – I took some people from here to go to a game. I told them, ‘If we don’t make it, you know, I’m pilot in command. We got in a little weather and I turned around and came back and landed. I said, ‘Guess you don’t go to the football game. That’s it.’ Then another time I wasn’t rated, and I had a surveillance approach. I don’t know if they still do it anymore, but it’s flight service. You key your mic for 10 seconds, and then you let it go, and then you key it again. They’ll tell you to turn 10 degrees left, right, or hold it. Off the radio signal, they’re vectoring you to an airport. It doesn’t land you, but at least it gets you below the clouds and you can see it. Then one time, Mary and I were leaving here and we went to Tucson, and we were under these clouds and all of a sudden, boy, it started hailing, snowing, ice...and we were about 15,000 feet. I didn’t wait for Center to give me permission. I just told Center, ‘I’m going down. I’ve got to get out of this stuff.’ There have been some incidents. But the more I fly, the more cautious I’ve gotten. You see a line of thunderstorms, you just land, wait til it all passes over, spend the night and take off the next day.”

As far as his hopes for the future?

“I hope I keep flying. I’m 75 now, I’ll be 76 in January, I’d like to be able to fly until I can’t, I guess,” he said. “I don’t know, 85...there are people 85 or 90 that still fly. It just depends on what kind of person.”

Ballinger's Haunted Hotel

Dan LaFave teaches computer technology at Grape Creek High School near San Angelo, where he lives. He moved to West Texas from the valley where he investigated reports of ghosts. One was in the home of a deputy sheriff who worked nights. “When his wife, home alone, washed all the dishes at night and put them in the cabinet, she’d walk toward her bedroom and would hear a racket. When she returned to the kitchen all the dishes that she had just put up would all be back out.”

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

He is certified in the paranormal field and for the last 30 years has been on hundreds of spook searches. He has written a number of books on the subject and has been in broadcast and print media telling about his experiences. He and his wife Connie (who also hunts ghosts) formed a company in 2008 called Graveyard Shift Paranormal Investigations. After his mother died and left him some funds, he purchased the Old Park Hotel in Ballinger, a former brothel that is now a popular destination for people looking for paranormal experiences.

“When we bought the building we were told that the place was haunted by as many as 30 spirits. When we moved to San Angelo I had never been to Ballinger before, but something about the town was really reaching out to me. The whole time we walked around in there for the first time I just felt like we were being watched, that eyes were on us. And all of a sudden this old woman’s voice filled the whole hallway around us and said hello. And she said it in a welcoming manner, almost like she was welcoming us to the building.”

He and Connie give tours and groups can rent the entire 10-room hotel for $300 a night. Dan had an experience the first night he slept in the hotel. “All of a sudden I feel like a woman’s hand is caressing the top of my head. I felt for my wife next to me but she was fast asleep. I opened my eyes and there was a woman standing 14 inches from my face. She was pale white and she had an old black dress on. She was just looking at me. And I’m looking at her. When I got up nobody was there.”

There are other spooky things at the Old Park Hotel. “You will hear what sounds like a cowboy walking along the hallway late at night. You can actually hear his spurs jangling. He even turns the door handles on occasion. People have heard that and opened the door but there’s no one in the hallway.

“Something else weird happens a lot of times. We get what are called cold sensations. In the back of the hotel there is no air conditioning at all. In the summer it gets a little warm. What’s interesting is when you’re standing there in a group with everybody sweating all of a sudden you feel a cold draft come from nowhere. You’re just chilled to the bone. We’re not making this stuff up. It’s very real. A lot of history does seem to mix with the paranormal so anywhere you have historic places there seems to also be paranormal related events happening. Our job is to confirm that people aren’t going nuts when they see or hear unusual things.”

One last story before this chapter closes

Two years and nine months ago, I made a transition in my life that many didn’t understand. Many questioned why; Why walk away from the current position to return to a place I once had been? The answer at the time was simple, it was my dream job and a stepping stone along the way to big goal. As I stepped out of the position of Marketing Manager for a hospital (a position I never imagined myself holding) and into the Managing Editor position (a goal achieved, dream come true) I was certain I had found my long term.

Well, I can’t say I’m surprised, especially after the events of this past year. This has been a year of change, a year of unexpected, and a year of growth, and I honestly didn’t expect the end of the year to be any different. Staying in my comfort zone was not in the cards for this year and that was evident as the year rolled in. There was nothing normal about life as we know it, and then loss came, frustration came, and of course, change came.

As I sit here tonight, pecking away at this keyboard (I’ve tried for a good three weeks now to put the right words down) I realize how bittersweet this moment is. Once again, I am stepping out of one position (Managing Editor) and stepping into a new journey (Journalism/Yearbook/English Teacher), but this time, the questions didn’t come as to why the move or how could you walk away from this.

For those who know me, you understand the hard decision that came with this transition, but I realize that you also see what I have never seen - the potential, the adventure that awaits.

I was certain that I would put in at least a good 10 years, 20 years, maybe even 30 years, as Managing Editor, BUT GOD had different plans for me.

There is nothing about this transition that was planned, but there is evidence of God’s handiwork all over it.

I will be the first to say, being a teacher has never been in the wheelhouse of jobs I would like to hold, but when the opportunity arose that would allow me to share my love, my passion of journalism (real, local, true, grassroots journalism) with the upcoming generation there was something about my soul that jumped for joy. I have always wanted to make a positive impact in this community, and over the years I have been given many opportunities to do so, but there is something about this opportunity that is pulling at my heart and it’s not something I can ignore.

I love sharing the stories of this community; there are some important stories to be told and it has been my honor to tell so many of them. I have made some great friends along the way, learned new things about life and our community, and even experienced some things I never would have otherwise, but I can honestly say I believe it is time for the next chapter in my story.

In a time where so many are quick to blame the media and the trust is fading fast, this is an opportunity to make an impact and do my small part to ensure that trust in journalism, in our society, in our world can return. Media isn’t perfect and even I believe everything should be taken with a grain of salt and each person left to make their own educated decision from it, but I have also seen the beauty and importance of journalism and the impact it can have on a rural community.

I am honestly a little bit scared of this new journey, but I am thankful for all those who have already spoken words of encouragement and helped shine a light onto the potential I had yet to see. As with anything, it will be a journey, there will be bumps along the way, but one thing I know is there will be lessons and blessings in it all.

To the community of Big Spring and Howard County, thank you for trusting me with your stories. I will continue to speak about the importance of a local newspaper and local media, and I encourage you all to continue to support local business, local sports, local schools, and local news outlets.

I look forward to the transition because I know God is faithful and there are good things up ahead. I’m stepping out of my comfort zone by faith, and I can’t wait to see what this next chapter holds.

I know the impact my journalism teacher had on my life - Oh, if only she were here to see me now - and I pray that I can touch one life as she so impactfully touched mine. She opened my eyes to a world beyond high school, to an opportunity to pursue a passion and encouraged me to be the best version of myself. If it wasn’t for her, I can’t imagine the stories that would have gone untold. (Thank you Mrs. C for believing and encouraging a young girl and pushing me beyond my comfort zone.)

Here’s to the next chapter in

Steers lose heartbreaker to Fort Stockton Panthers

Herald Photos/MaLinda Pope

By DUSTIN POPE
Managing Editor

It was an incredibly hard night of football for two of our local Steers, but it was business as expected for one. Big Spring and Coahoma both came up short tonight. The Steers lost a heartbreaker at Memorial Stadium against the Fort Stockton Panthers 29 to 28. The Bulldogs lost 52 to 19 against Lubbock Roosevelt. Forsan pushed their record to a perfect 9-0 as they destroyed Stamford 30 to 6. I was at the Big Spring game, so I will give you my breakdown of that game. I will have more on both Forsan and Coahoma in Monday's publication of the Big Spring Herald.

Well, some games are just instant classics, and that is what this game was. Fort Stockton and the Steers played an outstanding football game that came down to the last seconds to determine who would win this game. The Fort Stockton Panthers came into this district matchup with an excellent 7-1 record. Big Spring came with a 6-2 record. Both teams knew what would be at stake tonight, as the winner of this game was in the driver's seat to win the district title.

Fort Stockton received the opening kickoff, and it did not take long for them to put the first points on the board. On their third play of the game, the Panthers broke loose for a 67-yard touchdown run, stunning the home crowd. The extra point was good, and after only 47 seconds, Fort Stockton had a sudden 7 to 0 lead. Big Spring then got their chance to get the ball, and as they were working the ball down the field. On a vital third and three, they were called for a penalty that nullified a first down. This was one of the many calls that I would call questionable from the refs on this night. After the penalty, it forced the Steers to punt the ball away. The Panthers got the ball back, and like the first drive, they got straight to work. They scored again, this time on a 38-yard touchdown pass. The Panthers missed the extra point this time, but they still had a 13-0 lead after only three minutes had gone off the clock. Knowing they needed to score to stay in this game, the Steers found some energy on this drive. They drove the ball down the field, finally scoring when Baeza found Devin Manning from thirty-eight yards out. They called the extra point no good, so the score was now 13 to 6. It was a substantial score for Big Spring to stay in this game and put the pressure back on the Panthers. With 6:49 left in the first quarter, we had a football game. The Panthers got the ball back and once again marched the ball down the field as the Steers struggled to stop their running attack. Fort Stockton went all the way down the field, but this time as they inched closer to the end zone, the Steers' defense stiffened up. Big Spring stood steady as the Panthers tried to score from their own four-yard line.

On a big fourth and two from the four, the Panthers rolled the dice and went for it. The Steers' defense stepped up big time as they kept the Panthers from the end-zone, forcing a turnover on downs. It was an impressive stop for the Steers' defense, but they had to start their drive from their four-yard line. After a couple of plays, the Steers had their first vital mistake of the game when they had a fumbled handoff giving the Fort Stockton Panther the ball on the Steers 11-yard line. It was too much to ask for the Steers to keep this offense out again when they were so close to the end-zone. The Panthers scored on a three-yard touchdown run. They went for the two-point conversion, and it was good now, making the lead 21-6 with 1:17 left in the first quarter.

After a rough first quarter for the Steers, they were still not out of this game. All they needed to do was put up a score, and they would be right back in this game. That is absolutely what they did with 4:53 left in the first half. Baeza found Kaegen Mitchell on a beautiful 33-yard touchdown pass to cut into this lead. Cobos made the extra point, and suddenly, this was a 13 to 21 game. After that score, it was more of a defensive second quarter of play as both teams sought to find any flow for the rest of the first half. At halftime, the Steers trailed the Fort Stockton Panthers 13 to 21.

Big Spring received the ball at halftime, realizing they needed to put together a solid drive and work the ball down the field and this game up. They were doing precisely that Baeza was picking apart the Panther's defense as the Steers moved the ball down the field with efficiency. Then, as they had some momentum, they had their second fumble of the night, giving the ball back to Fort Stockton on the Stockton 22-yard line. Once the Panthers got the ball back, they did a great job of managing the clock by running the ball and getting five or six yards per carry. Fort Stockton took the ball down to the Steers 38-yard line when they faced a fourth and inches. Big Spring defense stepped up four on another fourth down and caused another turnover on downs. After that big fourth-down stop, it gave life to the Steers as they pushed the ball down the field again on the defense. Baeza broke free from about thirty yards away on a great touchdown run.

Big Spring then caught the Panther's defense sleeping when they lined up swiftly after the touchdown and punched in the extra point to tie this game up at 21-21 with 1:21 left in the third.

With a tie game going into the fourth quarter, the crowd knew they were watching something extraordinary. It came down to 12 minutes of football. The Steers' defense once again held firm, causing the Panthers to punt the ball away. Then the Fort Stockton punter did an incredible job, forcing the Steers to start this drive from their four-yard line. The Steers now were ninety-six yards away from their end zone and needed to get some room and flip field position. Well, Baeza and this Steers offense did more than that. After a couple of big plays, they were on the Panther's side of the field. They marched down the field as Baeza showed why he is the best player in this district. With 8:00 left in the game, Baeza found Fizer 14 yards away to give the Steers their first lead. Big Spring went for the extra point and got it, making this a 28 to 21 game. With eight minutes left in this game, it was now Fort Stockton's turn to see what they could do. Like they had for much of the night, they moved the ball on their ground, controlling the clock. Fort Stockton was able to score a touchdown with 5:18 left in this game. They then went for the two-point conversion and the lead; unfortunately, the Steers could not keep them out of the end-zone. The Panthers converted the crucial two-point conversion, giving them a one-point lead at 29 to 28.

That is how this game would end. It was a tough, heartbreaking loss for the Big Spring Steers. So, there were some questionable calls by the refs in this game, to say the least, but before I go off on a long rant, I want to calm down and watch the game film first. The Steers played their butts off tonight. They left it all on the field, and they came up a little short. It happens in life, but this will not keep this team down; they still have to go to San Angelo next week.

I do not have all the game stats for either the Forsan game or the Coahoma game yet, but I will have some more on both games on Monday. Like I mentioned earlier, Forsan won against the Stamford Bulldogs 30 to 6 to push their record to a perfect 9-0. Coahoma lost to a top team in the state in Lubbock Roosevelt 52 to 19. I will always have a recap of all the games with a preview of next week's game in the Thursday paper. Until then, stay safe, and I'll see you next week.

Adversity arrives: Cardinals finally lose, now must regroup

By DAVID BRANDT
AP Sports Writer

TEMPE, Ariz. — Kyler Murray threw the football, A.J. Green never turned around and a golden opportunity for the Arizona Cardinals to move to 8-0 for the first time in franchise history instead ended with a gut-wrenching interception.

Maybe it's for the best.

The adversity after a tough loss comes sooner or later for just about every team in the NFL. The Cardinals made it to nearly November without that feeling, but now it's here after a 24-21 loss to the Green Bay Packers on Thursday night.

"We knew it would come at some point," Murray said. "We fought the whole game. We just came up short. If we make the last play, we're not talking about this. It is what it is."

Make no mistake, Arizona (7-1) still looks like a good football team and a contender to win the NFC West. But the Cardinals also looked like a pretty good team last year after starting with a 6-3 record only to fade down the stretch, finish 8-8 and miss the playoffs for a fifth straight season.

Murray's confident that won't happen again.

"This is a very mature group," Murray said. "We have a lot of old veterans, a lot of leaders on this team that I don't think would let that happen, so I'm confident in us bouncing back and forgetting about this one."

It's true that this version of the Cardinals has plenty of veterans and more talent than in 2020, but it's also a team that's getting beat up in a hurry. Defensive lineman J.J. Watt is likely out for the season with a shoulder injury, star receiver DeAndre Hopkins is nursing a hamstring injury and the Cardinals were using third-string center Sean Harlow against the Packers because of injuries to Rodney Hudson and Max Garcia.

Even Murray was limping by the end of the game, though he said he was fine.

Thanks to the Thursday night game, the Cardinals have a few extra days to rest before traveling to face the San Francisco 49ers on Nov. 7. That'll also give them some time to try to clean up issues like slow starts, costly penalties and occasionally poor tackling.

The Cardinals can't be perfect anymore, but they can still be very good.

"It's a team that battles, it's a team that doesn't give up," linebacker Jordan Hicks said. "That's the makeup of this team."

WHAT'S WORKING

Arizona's defense has shown an uncanny ability to come up with big fourth-down stops.

The only reason the Cardinals had a chance to win Thursday was because of a dramatic goal-line stand late in the fourth quarter. Devon Kennard batted away a pass by Aaron Rodgers on fourth down, which was the 11th in the past 15 tries that the Cardinals had denied the opposing team's fourth down try.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

The Cardinals have had a nasty habit of slow starts throughout the season. They've fallen behind early in games several times this season, including against Vikings, Jaguars, Rams, Texans and Packers this season.

Falling stars: Astros big hitters stuck in World Series skid

By BEN WALKER

AP Baseball Writer

ATLANTA — The loudest noise when Jose Altuve, Carlos Correa and Alex Bregman stepped to the plate came from the crowd, not their bats. Greeted by chants of "Cheater!" all night, the Astros stars went almost silent in Game 3 of the World Series.

Forget any worries that Houston's lineup would be depleted without a designated hitter in the National League park. The greater concern for the Astros: When will their big hitters break loose?

Because the sight of Altuve flipping his bat after yet another strikeout clearly wasn't part of this postseason plan.

Held hitless until the eighth inning, Houston finished with two mere singles Friday night in a 2-0 loss to the Atlanta Braves and fell behind two games to one. "I think we didn't swing it for one game. I think we flush it and move on to the next day and have a short memory. You have to in this game," Bregman said.

Through much of the lumber slumber, the most skill Houston showed with a bat was a bizarre yet heads-up bunt by Bregman.

Bregman was standing on the top step of the dugout in the sixth when Altuve grounded a foul that was about to hop into the bench. As some Astros began to duck out of the way, Bregman alertly bunted the eye-high ball harmlessly back onto the dirt.

As for the lack of hits that counted, maybe the weather was to blame — temperatures in the 40s, misty and windy, causing frosty breaths on the field.

More likely, it was the matchup — not a single Houston hitter in the lineup had ever faced Braves starter Ian Anderson.

"Like I told you a couple days ago, when you haven't faced a guy, the nod goes to him for a while. He was effectively wild," Astros manager Dusty Baker said.

Good enough to shut down the top-hitting team in the majors this year.

Altuve, whose home run and double sparked a 7-2 win in Game 2, dropped to 2 for 13 in the series with six strikeouts. Correa is stuck at 1 for 10, and Bregman is mired at 1 for 9.

Yordan Alvarez, who pounded Boston pitching in becoming MVP of the AL Championship Series, is struggling at 1 for 8.

"Well, you count on those guys, but no one can hit all the time. You get spoiled by the fact that they're hitting almost daily. Again, I keep referring to the law of averages," Baker said. "The more those guys get out, the more they're one at-bat away from a hot streak. That's how hitters think."

"It's like, 'OK, if I'm not hitting today or tomorrow, then somebody's in trouble in the near future, the very near future,'" he said.

Playing at Truist Park for the first time since their illegal sign-stealing scandal was revealed, the Astros and their struggles gave the crowd plenty to revel over.

Houston didn't come close to a hit until pinch-hitter Aledmys Diaz blooped a leadoff single in the eighth on a ball that looked catchable. Bregman opened the ninth with a single to the right side through the shift on a ball that wasn't stung, either. "Obviously, they shut us down offensively," Bregman said.

But as Baker said recently, he doesn't panic. No need to now.

"Invariably when you shut us down, usually our guys come back the next day and score a bunch. So I hope history repeats itself," he said.

AN EDUCATIONAL JOURNEY ...

Superintendent Jay McWilliams reaches beyond the school walls

By DUSTIN POPE

Managing Editor

One of the many elements I treasure about my job is the being able to talk to leaders. The head coach of the football team or the assistant coach to the JV team are all leaders of young people. This time, I got to chat with one of the most important leaders of all. He was a legendary head football coach, and has since grown into the head of Big Spring ISD. I'm speaking of Jay McWilliams. I had the opportunity to sit down with one of the best leaders and men I've ever had the chance to meet and get his story from his coaching career to where he is now as the Superintendent for BSISD.

Like most of these narratives, Mr. McWilliams' father was a head coach who subsequently converted to the principal. His father retired from being a principal in Andrews. Jay McWilliams moved to the West Texas town of Andrews when he was in fifth grade when his father received a coaching job there. So, soon after that preceding Christmas, the whole McWilliams family moved from Iowa Park, where Mr. McWilliams father had just helped win back-to-back state championships, to Andrews. Jay spent the rest of his high school time in Andrews as he graduated from there. He then elected to further his education and went to Angelo State University. There was never a doubt what Jay wished to do with his life; he didn't go to college without an agenda. McWilliams knew absolutely what he preferred to do. He realized he wanted to coach and teach.

After college, McWilliams was lucky enough to be a student-teacher at San Angelo Central, a huge school. Also, during his time there, he would go through spring football. He was lucky enough to get to work with a legend in coaching: Jimmy Kaylene. Before Jay even had graduated from college, Jimmy offered McWilliams a job at John Glenn Jr. High. So he had taken his first coaching gig; he was now a junior high coach. While he had his sights set on loftier goals, this was his start, and he took full advantage of it. During that time, he learned how to teach the game, because at the junior high level, sometimes the kids may not know a lot about whatever sport you are trying to teach them. During his time there, he also learned how to deal with younger children and started becoming a leader and a teacher. He spent two years at Glenn and received much knowledge from the job that helped him succeed in his career.

After two years at Glenn

Jr. High, he had another monumental life change when he met his future wife. It was a chance encounter as they met at a Christmas party in Andrews. I say chance because she was from Louisiana and just happened to be at this particular Christmas party in Andrews, Texas. Sometimes our wonderful Lord works in inexplicable ways to help us find that extraordinary person, and this is truly an illustration of that. So, merely five months after they met at that Christmas party, they were married. That's genuine love and a tremendous story about how people meant to be in love find one another.

So now he is a married man getting ready to settle down when he received a phone call from an old coaching buddy in Andrews. He asked Jay if he would be interested in coming to Andrews and being the Junior High Coordinator. Being a newly married man, he decided it was the best thing for his new family to move and take the job. So he and his wife packed up and moved back to Andrews. But, of course, he wasn't moving to an unknown. He had grown up in Andrews, and his parents still lived there, so there was also family security in the town. So he started his Andrews coaching journey as the head of the Junior High. He spent about five years there, picking up a wealth of insight. Finally, the head coach of Andrews took another job and left. So Jay thought to himself, maybe this was a good time for him to do the same. Perhaps this was time to get out of his hometown and look for something different. By then, he had already had both of his kids, who are only 13 months apart, so the McWilliams family was growing.

He decided to find another job; back then, it wasn't as easy as it is now; there was no internet to speak of, no Facebook posts asking for coaches. Jay had to find a job the old-school way. He had to get an old-school directory, go through it, find schools, mail in a resume, and then wait to hear. So while he was working through the guide, he knew he had an idea of where he might want to work. He thought Graham, Texas, might be a nice place, so as he is scrolling through the Gs, he stumbles upon an area called Granbury, a town outside of Ft. Worth. So he decided, well, why not send them a resume as well? It will not hurt anyway; maybe they would call him. Once again, this is before cell phones were a thing, so all you had back then was a landline. In another twist of fate, Jay and his wife are getting ready to take a trip down to Baton Rouge. Before they left, one of the kids came down with chicken pox, so they had to cancel their trip. So, within just a couple of days of having to cancel of their trip, he got the phone call from Granbury. After a short interview process, Coach McWilliams had his first varsity job. He would be the secondary coach for football, and he was asked to step outside of his box and coach friend. So he called up this friend, and they wanted to talk to him about becoming the head football coach in a town named Harper. For those of you who don't know, Harper is between Kerrville and Fredericksburg.

Not knowing where Harper exactly was, he took the interview. He accepted the job. Harper was a moderately small town, as they had been a six-man team, but they grew; they played eleven-man for a season or two before McWilliams took over as the head coach. So now he had his first head coaching job, and he was ready to use all the knowledge that he had collected throughout his years of coaching to step up and make this work. His first year as the head coach, they went 3-6-1, not too bad for a squad that hadn't played eleven-man football for that long. Next thing you know, in three short years, he had taken this team to an 8-2 record.

So after his achievement at Harper, where he built the program from the ground up, he took a job in Eden. Before he got to Eden, they were a 0-10 team, so he knew he had to rebuild another program. He was getting used to turning programs around. In his first year as the head coach, his team went 5-5. He ultimately got to a 7-3 record. Coming from a 0-10 team to a 7-3 record is exceptional in just a few years.

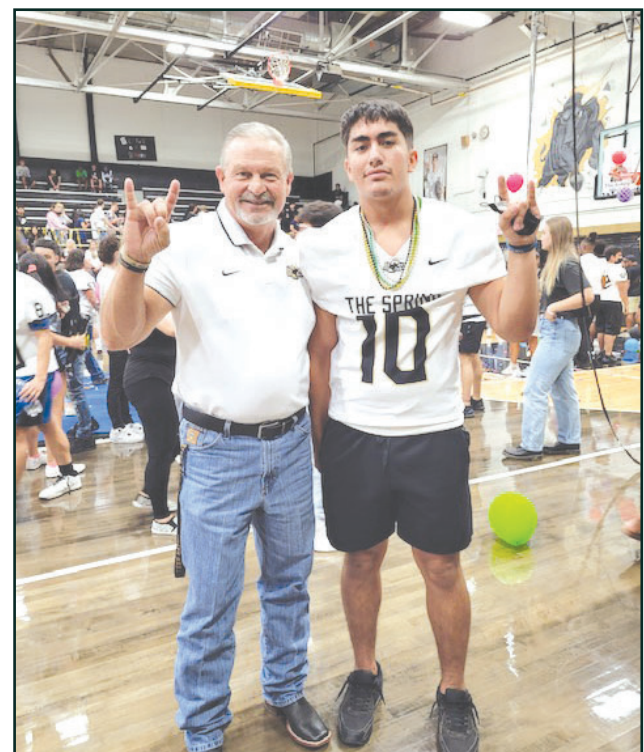

While he was still at Eden, he learned about a head coaching job at McCamey. So he moved back to west Texas. His family was close. This would be another rebuilding project. McCamey had a bad reputation. So he takes the McCamey job in the year 2000. He was able to make the football facilities better. Now known for being a bona fide leader of changing football teams, he was also picking up the reputation of producing men from the ground up. He knew his way of coaching, and he knew how it would be to help not only turn the football team around, but how to build up the young men in the program. In his first year as the head coach, they had a 5-5 record. That would be the worst record they ever had while he was there. He proceeded to build and excel at McCamey, crafting a solid football program. After their 5-5 record, they went 9-1. Now you understand that this was a team that had not made the playoffs in 13 years, and here comes coach McWilliams instantly turning this into a team to be respected. A couple of years later, the McCamey Badgers were 10-1. They took on Morton in the playoffs; Morton was a top-three ranked team in the state of Texas. McCamey ended up blowing out Harper 34-0. So this team who had had a 13-year playoff drought just four years ago was now beating the top three teams. This started a string of fantastic seasons for McWilliams and his Badgers. In the 2006 season, the team started slowly at 2-4. Still, like the coach and leader he is, he took control of this team, let the freshman girls' basketball team. He likewise helped coach the track team that year, so he had three different sports he was helping with. With a full plate and his first varsity coaching job, he definitely saw the fruits of his labor pay off. It turned out he was a pretty good coach for girls' basketball. So following his success with the freshman girls' basketball team. He was also moved up to be the offensive coordinator for the varsity football team. Right after he got the offensive job promotion, the varsity girls' head basketball coach stepped down. They asked Coach McWilliams to take her place. So he accepted, and man, was he getting coaching experience. That year he was the varsity football offensive coordinator, head girls' varsity basketball coach, and, oh yeah, one of the head track coaches, as well as all the classes he was teaching. Talk about learning quickly. After that year of having so much to do, they wanted to lighten his load a bit, so they let him focus on football. So he had a fantastic run at Granbury. One day he went into the teacher's conference room and checked his mail. He had a note to call a

Fiscal Notes: Winter Storm Uri 2021

AUSTIN – Texas is the only state in the continental U.S. with its own electric power grid, serving 90 percent of its population. Independence from the national grid has its benefits, but extreme weather events like Winter Storm Uri last February have exposed a lack of proper planning and uneven weatherization procedures.

In this special edition of Fiscal Notes, the Comptroller's office takes an in-depth look at Winter Storm Uri, which knocked out power for nearly 70 percent of Texans and disrupted water utilities, leaving many Texans without heat or running water for extended periods in the frigid cold. It resulted in between $80 billion and $130 billion in financial losses to the state economy, and it claimed at least 210 lives.

"The unprecedented snow and ice storm that pushed through Texas last February is still on our minds, especially for those who lost loved ones," Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar said. "And yet the storm also highlighted the can-do spirit of Texans and community partnerships who provided snow-boots-on-the-ground assistance to fellow citizens when they needed it most."

This issue of Fiscal Notes, released recently, also examines the immediate response to the storm and the legislative actions that followed: The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department saved defenseless wildlife; and Gov. Greg Abbott signed a complex array of electric power reform bills that are expected to make big changes to the state's electric market and regulatory entities to reduce the risk of electricity disruptions from extreme weather events in the future. In addition, our agency eased restrictions on dyed diesel fuel to help ensure that enough fuel was available for disaster relief; we also extended due dates for state taxes and fees. Many other agencies not covered in this issue assisted in noteworthy ways as well.

Fiscal Notes furthers the Comptroller's constitutional responsibility to monitor the state's economy and estimate state government revenues. It has been published since 1975, featuring in-depth analysis concerning state finances and original research by subject-matter experts in the Comptroller's office.

Fiscal Notes is available online and can be received by subscribing via the Comptroller's website.

Additionally, online exclusives are regularly published in Line Items and feature economic matters impacting businesses, communities, governments and others. New this month, a Fiscal Notes video examines the alphabet soup of economic recoveries, with special attention on K-shaped recoveries.

When a disaster strikes, it is wise to have a plan for transporting and eventually treating large animals.

By Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences Staff

Preparation is always key in any type of emergency response, but this is especially true when taking care of large animals in a disaster situation.

Unlike household pets, which can usually be quickly and easily transported, moving large animals can take time, which is usually in short supply during a disaster.

According to Dr. Wesley Bissett, director of the Texas A&M University College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences' Veterinary Emergency Team, there are several things to prepare and practice when it comes to show animals and horses.

"A simple one is just making sure your animal is trained to load into a trailer," Bissett said. "Time is going to be the major factor in getting you and your animals to safety, and you don't want the first time you're loading an animal to be in that situation."

Another tip from Bissett is to create a "go kit" inside waterproof containers that includes three to five days' worth of food and water and at least two weeks' worth of medications, as well as first aid supplies, cleaning supplies, and extra lead ropes, halters and blankets.

"Resources could be scarce immediately following a disaster, so making sure you have at least several days' worth of supplies ready to go can make a huge difference," he said.

It's also important to have copies of your animal's medical records (and Coggins papers for horses) and a way to identify the animal, such as having them freeze-branded or microchipped, in case you're separated.

"If you have to temporarily house your animal in an emergency shelter, having those medical records and identification methods will make the process significantly smoother," Bissett said.

For livestock herds, preparation is even more important because of the number of animals that can be involved.

"A big key for preparing a livestock herd is just being aware of what parts of the property will usually flood first," Bissett said. "Where are the low-lying areas? What parts of the property get cut off from others? Every disaster is different, but this will at least help you determine potential evacuation routes and where to place food and equipment so that you aren't trying to make those decisions in the moment."

Evacuating a herd and positioning food and equipment will take a significant amount of time, so Bissett recommends having a formal written evacuation timeline and sticking to it if it looks like a disaster could be

Profitable Exxon, Chevron emerge as global economy rebounds

By MICHELLE CHAPMAN

AP Business Writer

Exxon Mobil reversed the losses it suffered last year during the pandemic with a $6.75 billion third quarter profit as demand pushes the price for a barrel of crude past $80 for the first time in years.

The oil and natural gas company company earned $1.57 per share, or $1.58 if non-recurring items are removed.

That beat Wall Street expectations by a penny, according to a survey by Zacks Investment Research.

A year earlier it lost $680 million, or 15 cents per share.

Exxon does not adjust its reported results based on one-time events such as asset sales.

Revenue was $73.79 billion, also topping expectations.

Shares of Exxon Mobil Corp. climbed slightly before the market opened on Friday.

Elsewhere in the sector, Chevron Corp. reported similar results, moving to a strong profit after posting a loss a year ago.

The San Ramon, California-based oil company's results also beat analysts' forecasts.

Exxon's oil-equivalent production rose 4% to 3.7 million barrels per day in the third quarter. Production volumes in the Permian Basin averaged about 500,000 oil-equivalent barrels per day, up approximately 30% from a year earlier.

Oil companies were under pressure during the pandemic to curtail drilling after demand plummeted because so many people were staying home. Prices fell and exploration and production budgets were slashed.

That resulted in less oil and gas on the market and in storage, which in turn raised prices. But things have started to turn around as people get vaccinated and return to offices and begin to travel.

The average U.S. price of regular-grade gasoline spiked 13 cents over the past two weeks, to $3.44 per gallon. The price at the pump is $1.22 higher than a year ago. Industry analyst Trilby Lundberg of the Lundberg Survey said Sunday the rise comes as the cost of crude oil surges.

The energy sector has far outpaced the broader market in 2021. The S&P 500's energy stocks are up more than 50%, compared with a roughly 20% gain for the overall index.

Exxon, based in Irving, Texas, said it's looking into investing in lower-carbon business ventures. Its low-carbon investments are expected to be approximately $15 billion from 2022 through 2027. But the company, along with others in the sector, have faced growing criticism on climate change.

On Thursday ExxonMobil CEO Darren Woods said that his company "does not spread disinformation regarding climate change" as he and other oil company chiefs countered congressional allegations the industry concealed evidence about the dangers of it.

Woods was among top officials at four major oil companies testifying as congressional Democrats investigate what they describe as a decades-long, industry-wide campaign to spread disinformation about the role of fossil fuels in causing global warming.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks edged lower in morning trading on Wall Street Friday, pulling major indexes back from record highs as investors review the latest round of corporate earnings.

The S&P 500 fell 0.3% as of 10:16 a.m. Eastern. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 23 points, or 0.1%, to 35,703 and the Nasdaq fell 0.5%. The indexes remain on track to notch a weekly gain.

The benchmark S&P 500 had more gainers than losers, but big technology stocks were falling and weighing down the broader market. A mix of companies that rely on direct consumer spending also fell and offset gains elsewhere.

Bond yields rose. The yield on the 10-year Treasury rose to 1.59% from 1.56% late Thursday.

The latest batch of corporate earnings raised concerns that a persistent supply chain shortage could crimp economic growth through the rest of the year. A wide range of companies have warned that they are facing higher costs and will have trouble meeting a surge in demand for products.

Apple fell 3.4% after the iPhone maker's fiscal fourth-quarter revenue fell short of analysts' forecasts because supply shortages are making it difficult to meet demand. Internet retail behemoth

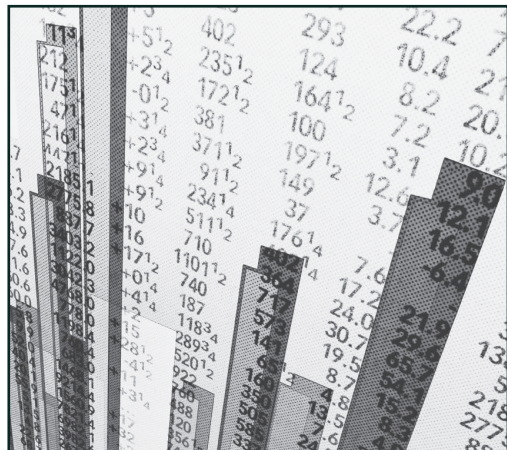

Amazon shed 3.5% after higher costs and supply chain problems crimped its third-quarter financial results and its revenue forecast.

The warnings from Apple and Amazon raise concerns that the economic recovery faces a bumpier road ahead through the holiday shopping season as people pay more for products and wait longer to receive everything from everyday purchases to gifts.

The latest data from the Commerce Department shows that consumer spending grew just 0.6% in September, a cautionary sign for an economy that remains in the grip of a pandemic and a prolonged bout of high inflation.

Investors are wrapping up a busy week of earnings with several large companies reporting mixed results. Starbucks fell 7.4% after reporting solid fiscal fourth-quarter profits, but weak revenue. U.S. Steel jumped 12.2% after the steel maker reported strong third-quarter financial results and raised its dividend.

Outside of earnings, European and Asian leaders of the Group of 20 large and fast-growing economies are meeting in Rome. Wall Street is also looking ahead to next week's meeting of The Federal Reserve as that central bank moves closer to trimming bond purchases that have helped keep interest rates low.

approaching.

"One of our natural tendencies in disaster situations is to wait as long as we can in the hope that we don't have to do anything," he said. "But when you're talking about a large number of large animals, food, and equipment, if you wait too long, it could be too late. You need to have an idea of how long the process is going to take."

A disaster situation for a large animal herd could mean more than just natural disasters, though, and Bissett said the VET can help ranchers make continuity of operations plans.

"Having a good biosecurity plan in case of an infectious disease outbreak can make a huge difference in how impacted your operation is," he said. "A good biosecurity plan can not only help minimize infections to the herd but even allow you to continue operations during an outbreak."

Finally, for all kinds of disasters and whether you have one show animal of several thousand head, Bissett said to be familiar with the local emergency management offices and plans.

"Getting to know your local animal control offices, veterinarians and emergency veterinarians, county AgriLife agents, and other people in your local emergency management will help not only prepare you for disaster but could also allow you to help others," he said. "In times of disaster, people will come together and help, but you need a plan on how you're going to communicate and coordinate resources or you could create even more problems."

the operator or lessees of record of adjacent tracts and tracts nearer to the proposed well than the minimum lease line spacing distance. If you have questions which are specific to the Application or the information set forth in this Notice, please contact the Commission's Drilling
Permit Unit at (512)463-6751.
If a hearing is called, the applicant has the burden to prove the need for an exception. A Protest should be prepared to establish standing as an affected person, and to appear at the hearing either in person or by qualified representative and protest the application with cross-examination or presentation of a direct case.

Hearty chili for autumn days

People choose to adhere to a vegetarian or vegan diet for various reasons. Some people avoid animal products because of ethics, while others want to control their weight with low-calorie foods. Still others may have food allergies or intolerances that make a vegetable-based diet their best option.

Cooking vegetarian or vegan can introduce a person to a wide variety of new foods and flavors. That's why even people who eat meat like to periodically experiment with vegetarian or vegan foods.

When the weather starts to cool, soups and stews become staples of many people's diets. With this recipe for "Four Bean Chili" from "Vegan Cooking for Beginners" (Publications International, Ltd.) by the PIL editors, home cooks can experiment with a meatless chili that doesn't skimp on flavor even if it isn't brimming with beef, pork or lamb.

Four Bean Chili
Makes 8 to 10 servings

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 medium carrots, chopped
- 1 red bell pepper, chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons tomato paste
- 2 tablespoons packed dark brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons chili powder
- 2 tablespoons ground cumin
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 can (28 ounces) diced tomatoes
- 1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 can (15 ounces) small white beans, rinsed and drained
- 1 can (15 ounces) light kidney beans, rinsed and drained

- 1 can (15 ounces) dark kidney beans, rinsed and drained
- 1 can (15 ounces) pinto beans, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup vegetable broth
- 1 can (4 ounces) diced mild green chiles
- 1 ounce unsweetened baking chocolate, chopped
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar.

Heat oil in large saucepan over medium-high heat. Add onions, carrots and bell pepper; cook and stir 10 minutes or until vegetables are tender.

Add garlic, tomato paste, brown sugar, chili powder, cumin, oregano and salt; cook and stir 1 minute.

Stir in tomatoes, tomato sauce, beans, broth, chiles, and chocolate; bring to a boil. Reduce heat to medium; simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in vinegar.

Chili is even better served with cornbread. Make batter while the vegetables are cooking in step one and bake it while the chili is simmering.

Cornbread
Makes 12 servings

- 3 tablespoons boiling water
- 1 tablespoon ground flaxseed
- 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 3/4 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/4 cups plain unsweetened almond or soymilk
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil

Preheat oven to 400 F. Spray 8-inch square baking dish or pan with nonstick cooking spray. Combine boiling water and flaxseed in small bowl; let stand until cool.

Combine flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder, and salt in large bowl; mix well.

Whisk almond milk and oil in medium bowl until well blended. Add to flour mixture with flaxseed mixture; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened. Pour batter into prepared baking dish.

Bake 25 minutes or until top is browned and toothpick inserted into center comes out clean.

Opening lead — ace of spades.

The scene was Monte Carlo in 1976. Italy, the favorite, was playing Brazil in an early round of the World Bridge Olympiad. Forty-five nations were entered in the event.

Pedro Assumpcao was North for Brazil and Gabriel Chagas South when this deal occurred. The opening notrump bid showed 13 to 15 points, and two clubs was Stayman, indicating interest in a major. Two diamonds denied a four-card major, and three clubs by North was also an artificial bid, asking South to pinpoint his distribution.

Three hearts announced precisely 2-3-4-4 distribution, and North — knowing that his partner also had only a doubleton spade — decided to take his chances in a 4-3 heart fit rather than in notrump.

So, while the overwhelming majority of the 44 other North-South pairs floundered in three notrump and went down one after the automatic spade lead, Assumpcao and Chagas found the best game contract of four hearts and easily made it after West led the ace and another spade.

It was clearly one of the best-bid hands of the tournament, but, unfortunately, there was an ironic twist. It turned out that their Brazilian teammates at the other table had been incorrectly seated North-South in the 30-board match, instead of East-West, and the entire match had to be cancelled — even though the Brazilians had soundly trounced their world-famous Italian opponents at both tables.

Instead of replaying the match, which would be normal in such circumstances, the authorities decided to award each team an above-average score. Although this was somewhat unfair — especially to the Brazilians, who had played so well — justice was served in the end when Brazil wound up winning the Olympiad and its first world championship.

Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS then you do.

Trine of Abundant Treats

Mercury, ruler of communication, angles Jupiter, the planet of abundance, with such sweetness that it's like the world is a Candy Land board, complete with a molasses swamp and a gumdrop mountain. This trine of good fortune shines on costumes, too, which are a form of communication. The costumes we choose say a lot about us.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). TRICK: Your knack for storytelling will have an audience glued to the tale of what happened to you. TREAT: You'll realize how far you've come. You're definitely not the same person from the story.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). TRICK: That part of your image that you've carefully cultivated will, for the most part, draw the desired response. TREAT: People want to hire you to do the thing you really love doing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). TRICK: You'll unexpectedly hear from someone and be momentarily rattled; it won't be readily apparent how to respond. TREAT: Everyone will be impressed by what you come up with when life forces you to improvise.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). TRICK: Your life is so full you will need to lose something just to get wiggle room. TREAT: Paring down will feel addictively good. You'll soon have plenty of space for fresh energy to flow through your world.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). TRICK: They'll look to you to teach and inspire them. However, you're new to this, too, so how are you supposed to help? TREAT: You don't need to know everything -- just the next step.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). TRICK: The behavior of others will test your patience. TREAT: You can't change another person, but whatever work you do on yourself will favorably alter the relationship dynamic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). TRICK: The spooky part is not knowing where a relationship is heading. It takes a little faith to find out. TREAT: Someone schemes to scintillate and entertain you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). TRICK: You'll notice something you missed out on, (SET ITAL)almost(END ITAL), and then swoop in with a quick save. TREAT: An attack of unexpected cuteness will make your heart swell.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). TRICK: You'll believe in your abilities, even when you've never done the thing before. You get the feeling you can pull something off, TREAT: Laughter will be sweeter than candy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). TRICK: You feel like you know a person before you actually do because you're paying good attention and picking up on dozens of tiny clues. TREAT: The effect plays like the strumming of heartstrings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). TRICK: The competition will be heightened. You'll be challenged in a way you haven't been. TREAT: This excuse to reach deeper will tap reserves of grit you didn't know were there.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). TRICK: You'll tap into a force greater than your individualistic needs and act in service of generosity itself. TREAT: Rituals you've observed since childhood now seem more profound and yet somehow lighter.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 31). No chasing necessary; love comes to you as a byproduct of your other pursuits. You'll be struck with a major idea, complete with its own engine. A team forms; what you build together will be a source of pride for all. The foundation form takes longer than anticipated. Remain unhurried; do what's necessary to get it right. Aries and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 20, 14, 9 and 2.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The Scorpio message, activated by the sun and now Mars, too, centers around our identity in the midst of transformation. Self-worth is not determined by how fast we can run, who wants to date us or how much money we have. And yet, these external signals do tend to make us feel some kind of way about ourselves. Knowing that messages from the outside world can color a mood makes it more important to do core work such as positive self-talk, personal rituals, meditation and other practices that strengthen the self-concept from the inside out.

And now, a word from Venus in outgoing Sagittarius. Friendly encounters with a professional such as a hairdresser or personal trainer may lift the spirits, but it is also important to note that relationships with service providers are not the same as personal relationships in which no money is exchanged. The attention we buy comes at a much lower cost than the attention we earn -- a fact that is reflected in the value of the relationship.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Academy Award-winning filmmaker Peter Jackson was born on Halloween, which may have contributed to his macabre sense of humor. A playful Scorpio born under an entertaining Leo moon, Jackson started his career with alien splatter comedies and grew to international acclaim with films such as "King Kong" and the "Lord of the Rings" franchise.

Annie's Mailbox

Ex-Boyfriend Claims He Has Changed

Dear Annie: I am a 54-year-old man who has been a teacher for over 20 years. I'm a confident and intelligent person who graduated with honors from a very good university. I am married with two children, and I'm a veteran of the U.S. Army.

My problem is that there are two people in my life, my boss and my wife, who speak to me like I'm a complete idiot. Much of what I say to my boss and my wife is contradicted, corrected or outright disagreed with. It's gotten to the point that I don't even feel like talking to them anymore.

I have begun to predict what they'll call me out on, and I'm almost always right. The thing is I'm not as wrong as they would have me believe. Their point of view is just different from mine.

I'm tired of trying to talk to them, and I hate that feeling. When I do stand up for myself, I'm suddenly an overreacting jerk who they are shocked and appalled at. This has been a problem all my adult life, from other ex-bosses and ex-girlfriends to former co-workers.

My current co-workers and my few friends have noticed it, too, and can't understand why they treat me this way. I don't understand it either. Any suggestions? -- Confused and Frustrated

Dear Confused and Frustrated:

Either you are a wonderful human being who is surrounded by unhappy people or you are interpreting someone having a different opinion as he or she treating you like an idiot. If you really feel that you are being bullied, then the next time your wife or boss makes you feel stupid, ignore them. If they see that they get a reaction from you, they might keep doing what they are doing. Bullies feed on seeing their victims affected by their actions.

Marriage counseling would be a wonderful place for you and your wife to figure out whether she is taking you for granted and mocking you, or if you are feeling like an idiot because she has a different opinion.

Dear Annie: I have an ex-boyfriend, and our relationship has been off and on for more than eight years. He has a drug addiction problem, though he is clean for now. During those eight years, he cheated on me all the time.

He is now telling me that he has changed his life and wants me back, which is a pattern for him every time he breaks up with someone. I have taken him back before, and every time, he wants money from me. He also has me constantly doing things for him.

He makes me feel as if it is my fault if something happens to him if I refuse to take him back -- that he will start doing drugs again or something else that is harmful to him. I don't like feeling this way.

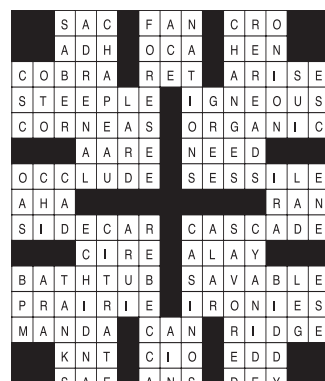

My question is, is eight years too long to start over? Can someone change their ways? I was raised to listen to my gut. And my gut is telling me that nothing has changed. -- Torn

Dear Torn: Always listen to your gut -- and your entire body. A lot of times, our body knows something is not right before our mind figures out why. This guy sounds like a loser who thrives on taking advantage of your feelings of guilt, which he creates.

Say no to him, and explain that if, over a long period of time -- at least a year or two -- he stays clean and sober and still wants you back, you will reconsider. But if he harms himself in the meanwhile, that's his problem, not yours.

Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.

Have questions about Medicare? Come to the ABCs of Medicare, a free class by Jennifer Walker, Medicare Specialist. Learn about Medicare and all your options. There will be one class a month from November to January. Classes will be held in the basement of the Howard County Library. The following is a schedule of the classes; Friday, Nov. 19 from 10:30 - 11:30 a.m.; Wednesday, Dec. 15 from 10:30-11:30 a.m.; and Thursday, Jan. 27, from 10:30-11:30 a.m. Follow our Facebook page and look out for the posted reminders.

This week's reviews are large print fiction, western and non-fiction titles.

Where does the story of the Owens bloodline begin? With Maria Owens, in the 1600s, when she's abandoned in a snowy field in rural England as a baby in Magic Lessons (LP F HOF A) by Alice Hoffman. Under the care of Hannah Owens, Maria learns about the Unnamed Arts.

Hannah recognizes that Maria has a gift and she teaches the girl all she knows. It is here that she learns her first important lesson: Always love someone who will love you back.

When Maria is abandoned by the man who has declared his love for her, she follows him to Salem, Massachusetts. Here she invokes the curse that will haunt her family. And it's here that she learns the rules of magic and the lesson that she will carry with her for the rest of her life. Love is the only thing that matters.

In Luck and a Horse - A western duo (LP W BRA M) by Max Brand, Traynor is believed to be a weak young man, having let Dr. Parker Canning steal his love, Rose Laymon, away from him. When Traynor is driving into Little Snake he is robbed and Traynor's best friend and stage guard, Sam Whitney, is killed by the robber.

Traynor chases the thief and discovers his dropped Stetson, which is identified as having been sold to Dr. Channing less than a month earlier. The medic takes off after Traynor confronts him, and despite a physical weakness, overwhelms him. Traynor finds him chasing the only man who can save him.

There are two things a man can never escape: his past and his destiny in Bury the Hatchet - Buck Trammel Series Bk #2 (W JOH W) by William W Johnstone.

For Buck Trammel, that past includes a fatal mistake that ended his career as a Pinkerton, and a deadly shootout with the Bower gang in a Wichita saloon. Call it luck or call it fate, but the famous Deputy Wyatt Earp was there to give Buck some advice: run for your life. Maybe it was Earp's warning that saved him from the gang's wrath. Maybe it was destiny that brought him to the town of Blackstone, Wyoming, where his biggest problem is a father-son brewing war. But Trammel's luck is about to run dry.

Gear up and find the best of what's out there, and what isn't worth the money when it comes to fishing in The Total Fishing Manual (799.1 CER J) by Joe Cermele. Including lures, baits, flies and tackle for any situation in any style of water.

Hit the Water From streams and ponds to big lakes and the open ocean, get all the info and field-tested strategies you need be successful where you're fishing. Hook a Prize the experts at Field and Stream and professional fishing guides around the country lay out the do's and don'ts, where those sneaky fish are hiding, and how to put yourself in best position for the catch and much more.

Whether Bobber fishing with newbies or looking to reel in a prize white marlin in the open ocean these are the tricks, tips and techniques to get the job done.

them know they could win and that he believed in them. They went on an incredible run, making it to the State Championship game. The team played Alto in the big game. They lost the game, but Coach McWilliams had taken this team to the State game. He took a team amid a 13-year non-playoff drought to a team that made the State Championship game. He continued to have a lot of success in McCamey.

So after coaching for 21 years and being known for turning things around, he still had one more dream he wanted to fulfill: to be a principal. After his '07 coaching season, the McCamey superintendent was retiring. So they moved the principal up to take over the superintendent's job. Once the old principal was moved up, he came to Jay, who had coached for 21 years and asked him to take over as the principal for McCamey. He took some time to think about it and took the job. So his first full year as the principal was in 2008. He was not new to McCamey. McWilliams had coached and been the AD for eight years, so everyone knew who he was. He ended up being their principal for eight years. So he was at McCamey for 16 years.

After his 16 years at McCamey, McWilliams never thought he would even leave McCamey; he was happy there comfortable. Then, out of the blue, he gets a phone call from a friend from Region 18. His friend told him that Big Spring had an opening for being the assistant superintendent. So he starts the interviewing process for the job. After the interview process, he knew they would offer him the job, so he had to decide. He decided that if they offered him the position that he would take it. So now he had to come back to McCamey and let them know he was leaving.

It was hard for him to move on when you spend so much time in one place, but he knew it was right for his career.

So now, he takes the next step in his journey. He was excited to start the new phase of his career. So eventually, after learning how to do the job, Jay McWilliams stepped up to become the new superintendent of Big Spring. Mr. McWilliams has been great at his career. The way he loves and cares for this school is excellent. He is always at the sporting events or anything that these kids do. He is so involved in the day-to-day lives of these kids. I truly believe that comes back to his coaching days. He is just a natural leader and a dang good one at that. There is nothing this man will not do for this school to make it better. He dedicates himself to turning around programs and has a fantastic track record of it. Jay McWilliams is what this town and school need because he knows how to get the best out of every situation.

My time being able to speak to Mr. McWilliams was terrific. His story about how he became this natural leader is simply unique. There is no telling what the future holds for this man, but I can tell you whatever it is, it will be dazzling. We here in Big Spring are lucky to have such an influential leader in charge of the school.

Halloween festivities kicked off last weekend in the community. Pictured at right are kids taking part in one of the games set up at Howard Harvest. This weekend the festivities continue with trunk or treats and fall festivals at local businesses. Trick or treating will take place Sunday on Halloween Day.

Halloween Safety CHECKLIST

COSTUMES

- ✓ Wear flame-retardant materials.
- ✓ Avoid billowy costumes.
- ✓ Wear white or light-colored costumes (use reflective materials in the evening).
- ✓ Avoid wigs (they can burst into flames).
- ✓ Makeup is safer than masks.
- ✓ If you are wearing a mask, take it off between trick-or-treat stops.
- ✓ Avoid oversized shoes.
- ✓ Props such as magic wands and swords should be cardboard, not metal or wood.
- ✓ Carry a flashlight.
- ✓ Avoid jack-o-lanterns illuminated by candles.
- ✓ Avoid dogs (even your own dog may be frightened by your costume)

TRICK-OR-TREAT DOS AND DON'TS

- ✓ Parents should set rules, such as boundaries and curfews, and enforce them.
- ✓ Young children should be accompanied by a parent or responsible adult.
- ✓ Older children who are not accompanied by parents or adults should travel with friends.
- ✓ Stay in your own neighborhood and only go to those homes which are well lit.
- ✓ Do not go into a building or home to accept a treat.
- ✓ Have parents check treats before opening them.
- ✓ Have a parent or other adult cut all fruit and candy into sections before eating them.

Emily Bader stars in "Paranormal Activity: Next of Kin," currently streaming on Paramount+.

Streaming and screaming: Halloween content anytime, all the time

By now, you've likely overdosed on all the Halloween programming on broadcast and cable TV over the past several weeks, thus making the actual holiday on Sunday somewhat anticlimactic from a viewing standpoint. But rest assured, there is plenty of content still to be had.

If you're a streamer (and who among us isn't these days?), you'll find a veritable wealth of Halloween programming, ranging from horror movies to spooky reality TV and even a few comedies. So fire up the streaming device of your choice and take in the following.

"Halloween Kills" (Peacock): This highly anticipated slasher film picks up following the events of 2018's "Halloween" and finds masked killer Michael Myers on the loose again after having escaped from the basement of Laurie Strode's (Jamie Lee Curtis) burning house, prompting her, daughter Karen (Judy Greer) and granddaughter Allyson (Andi Matichak) to form a mob with other survivors of his reign of terror and hunt him down.

"Paranormal Activity: Next of Kin" (Paramount+): In this latest installment of the "Paranormal Activity" film franchise, a documentary filmmaker follows Margot (Emily Bader) as she ventures to a secluded Amish community to learn more about her long-lost mother and extended family, only to encounter a series of strange occurrences that seem to portend something sinister. Roland Buck III, Dan Lippert and Henry Ayers-Brown also star.

"Muppets Haunted Mansion" (Disney+): In this holiday special, world-famous haredevil the Great Gonzo takes on his greatest challenge yet – spending one very daring night in the most grim place on Earth, the Haunted Mansion. In addition to guest appearances by Chrissy Metz, Craig Robinson, John Stamos and the late Ed Asner, the show features many Easter eggs sure to please Disney die-hards. Will Arnett, Yvette Nicole Brown and Taraji P. Henson head the human cast.

"Eli Roth Presents: A Ghost Ruined My Life" (discovery+): Part of Discovery's "Ghostober" is this new hourlong series from the actor and horror maven that presents shocking stories of hauntings that have left emotional and sometimes physical scars on those unlucky enough to have experienced them.

TCM recalls the 'Hollywood Victory' of World War II-era stars

Author Christian Blauvelt helps present an evening of World War II-themed movies Thursday into early Friday on Turner Classic Movies.

For many top talents, supporting America's wartime efforts has meant contributing however they can ... including deciding which films to make.

A new book being published Tuesday, Nov. 2, under the Turner Classic Movies banner – "Hollywood Victory: The Movies, Stars, and Stories of World War II," by Christian Blauvelt – recalls activities of luminaries including James Stewart, Hedy Lamarr, Edward G. Robinson and glamorous spouses Clark Gable and Carole Lombard. Blauvelt joins host Alicia Malone on TCM to present an evening of related films Thursday, Nov. 4, into early Friday, Nov. 5.

Starting with Robinson's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," the lineup also includes "Hold Back the Dawn" with Charles Boyer and Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn's "Edge of Darkness" and John Garfield in director Howard Hawks' "Air Force." It wraps up with "Hollywood Victory Caravan," with Bing Crosby and Bob Hope among stars playing themselves.

"The 1940s is my favorite movie decade," explains author Blauvelt, who also wrote a 2019 book for TCM on New York-set movies. "It's a decade in which you had so many different kinds of movies, and so many different audiences that Hollywood had never tried to reach before. People often think there wasn't very much diversity in Hollywood then, but it was a time when there very much was. And on top of that, the quality was just so good."

Blauvelt says he designed "Hollywood Victory" to be "a sweeping narrative, the story of Hollywood and World War II from start to finish. At the beginning, I talk about how Hedy Lamarr came from Austria to America on the S.S. Normandie, with (movie-studio mogul) Louis B. Mayer aboard as well. She had a huge impact on developing technology that could have helped win the war later on. I wanted to introduce all these people and make you feel hooked by their journeys, then come back to them and bounce their experiences off each other."

Among those experiences: performing in USO tours; serving military duty, as Stewart and Gable did; commiserating with soldiers at the Bette Davis-arranged Hollywood Canteen; boosting morale via pin-up images of Betty Grable, Rita Hayworth and others; making training films, as was done by such legendary directors as Frank Capra and John Ford; and promoting the Good Neighbor Policy, meant to unify the United States with Central and South America.

Blauvelt reflects that even if "Hollywood Victory" isn't "the most exhaustive book ever" on its subject, "I wanted to make sure it had a degree of immersion to it. The chapters are short, but you still feel like you're being told a story – almost like a novel – and all of it comes together as one narrative."

celebrity q&a

BY JAY BOBBIN

Rose McIver has ghosts of TV series past

Q: I know that Rose McIver, who's now on "Ghosts," did "iZombie" for several years. What other series has she been in? – Doug Champion, via email

Rose McIver

A: The New Zealand native had appeared in a couple of TV movies that led to the "Hercules: The Legendary Journeys" series, and then in a comedy-drama called "Rude Awakenings," before she landed the part of the Yellow Ranger in "Power Rangers RPM." Her next continuing role would be quite different – in "Masters of Sex" – and stints on "Once Upon a Time" (as Tinker Bell) and "Play It Again, Dick" (a "Veronica Mars" spinoff that ran on the CW Seed streamer) also led to her five-season tenure as "iZombie" heroine Liv. McIver actually had one more ongoing series stop after that and before CBS' current "Ghosts," in Hulu's "Woke."

Q: It was interesting to see Daniel Craig and the other stars of "No Time to Die" do so much promotion of the movie on TV. If its release date had been moved again, would those appearances have been canceled? – Michael Kirby, Sacramento, Calif.

A: Interesting question. We only can speak to it from the standpoint of speculation, but it probably would have depended on the given program and how far in advance of the scheduled appearance the movie's date change was made. After three previous changes, most people in the know were banking on the latest one sticking, which it ultimately did – complete with a traditional royal premiere in London.

Craig was booked to host NBC's "Saturday Night Live" the weekend the latest James Bond movie originally had been slated for release last year, and he already was in rehearsals for that by the time the film's move was announced, so he honored that commitment ... though a related guest spot by him on "The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon" was canceled, since Craig suddenly had no movie opening to talk about. (He did make good on that by appearing with Fallon earlier this month, just after "No Time to Die" finally debuted.)

Padma Lakshmi's 'Taste the Nation' heads a packed week of culinary programming

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Padma Lakshmi is never one to sit still for too long and she again proves it in a limited "Taste the Nation" series that's upcoming on Hulu that's one of several culinary offerings to hit the small screen in recent weeks.

In "Taste the Nation: Holiday Edition," a four-part series that begins streaming Thursday, Nov. 4, the host and cookbook author travels the country to highlight the unique holiday traditions among immigrant groups in various U.S. cities.

So in the four episodes, Lakshmi connects with the Jewish-American community of New York's Lower East Side to explore the true meaning and culinary traditions of Chanukah; heads to Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts to deconstruct the holiday narrative behind the Thanksgiving feast and learn about the traditions and food of the local Wampanoag Nation; ventures to Miami to meet up the Cuban-American community and find out about their holiday, Nochebuena; and goes to Los Angeles to take in the sumptuous flavors of Koreatown. A veritable cornucopia of international cuisine.

For fans of Thai cuisine, the Food Network/discovery+ special "Getting Spicy With Pepper Teigen" is certain to pique interest. Premiering Saturday, Nov. 6, the half-hour offering puts the cookbook author and matriarch of the Teigen family (which include her daughter, model/TV personality Chrissy Teigen) front and center as she and eldest daughter Tina share stories from the Teigen sisters' childhood while preparing an enticing feast inspired by family recipes that are easily accessible. Be ready to take notes.

Over on HBO Max, the recently premiered third season of "Selena + Chef" finds the actress now with blond tresses and a little more savvy in the kitchen but still prone to the odd mishap. As in seasons past, she'll be cooking for family, friends and special guests, which this season include Lakshmi, actress Ayesha Curry, photographer Esther Choi and chefs Aarón Sánchez, Fabio Viviani, Jamie Oliver, Richard Blais, Gabe Kennedy, Kwame Onwuachi and Sophia Roe. No doubt, with a first aid kit nearby.

The notion of a cheat day, where one day a week people throw culinary caution to the wind, is a familiar one for those who try to eat to stay fit and now the Sunday Cooking Channel series "Cheat Day USA" addresses it. The recently premiered series follows host Robert Irvine ("Restaurant: Impossible") around the country to some of his favorite haunts to highlight some of the incredible variety of decadent dishes he's encountered. You'll gain a pound or two just by watching it.

And for fans of competition series, the season finale of "Halloween Wars" Sunday, Oct. 31, on Food Network sees the final two teams going head-to-head for the $25,000 prize as they craft cakes that show what happens when two monsters square off in a duel. Zak Bagans is the host.

InFocus

"Mayor of Kingstown: Season 1" (Paramount+ — series premiere, Nov. 14)

From "Yellowstone" co-creator Taylor Sheridan and Hugh Dillon comes this 10-episode original drama series that follows the McLusky family — power brokers in Kings-town, Mich., where the business of incarceration is the only thriving industry and systemic racism, corruption and inequality run rampant in it. Dillon, Dianne Wiest, Jeremy Renner and Kyle Chandler head the cast.

"The Hot Zone: Anthrax" (National Geographic — series premiere, Nov. 28)

Inspired by true events, this new three-night "scientific thriller" revisits a terrifying 2001 crisis that struck just weeks after the 9/11 terror attacks, as letters containing deadly doses of anthrax are mailed to unsuspecting victims in Florida, New York and Washington, D.C. This anonymous assault claimed five lives and triggered more widespread panic across the United States. Tony Goldwyn and Daniel Dae Kim head a large cast that also includes Dawn Olivieri, Dylan Baker, Enrico Colantoni and Harry Hamlin.

Checking in with JENA FRIEDMAN

As host, writer and executive producer of the six-part AMC+/SundanceTV series "True Crime: Indefensible," Jena Friedman falls back on her improvisational skills and the experience she gained as a field producer on "The Daily Show" to tell the stories of real crimes and a criminal justice system that at times didn't do the victims, well, justice.

It also helped that she had good teachers. "I don't think I could have done this show in the way that we did it if I hadn't been a field producer for three years with Jon like that ...," she says, referring to her ex-boss, former "Daily Show" host Jon Stewart. "My training is telling stories in five minutes like those 'Daily Show' field pieces and so telling a story succinctly and not like mulling over the gratuitous details but really trying to get to the heart of the matter as soon as possible, is what I personally really wanted to do, one of the things to do in the series. And I think that's something that we achieved."

Friedman's sardonic wit is most evident in her interviews with prosecutors, attorneys, victims and others connected to the cases she investigates, and she says her chops as a stand-up comic have also proven to be useful.

"You could maybe say that having comedy in your background is maybe a little disarming to people," she explains, "and maybe it helps people open up and be a little bit more candid than they would with a typical interviewer, I guess."

But, she adds with a laugh that "you would have to ask the people that I talk to. I can't speak for them."

BY GEORGE DICKIE

"It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown" (CBS, 1966) Perhaps the granddaddy of the genre, this animated classic sees Linus waiting patiently in the pumpkin patch for the appearance of the Great Pumpkin to the ridicule of Snoopy and the threats of Lucy, while the rest of costume-clad Peanuts gang go about the business of trick-or-treating. As everyone enthuses over the sweet treats they received at each doorway, Charlie's dejected "I got a rock" perfectly and hilariously captured the character's haplessness.

"The Simpsons: Treehouse of Horror" (Fox, 1990-present) OK, so technically this isn't a special but this series of Halloween-themed episodes this year marks its 32nd installment, making it as much of a holiday institution as trick-or-treating or black and orange. The episodes feature typical "Simpsons" brilliance: parodies of TV shows and movies, which this year include "Parasite," "The Ring" and "Bambi"; opening segments with the tombstones of dead celebrities and canceled Fox shows; and the obligatory couch gag - with a Halloween theme, of course.

"Halloween Is Grinch Night" (ABC, 1977) This Halloween-themed musical (and prequel to "How the Grinch Stole Christmas") takes place on "Grinch Night," when a sour-sweet wind causes a chain of events that annoys the Grinch into terrorizing the denizens of Whoville by unleashing the horrors of the Paraphernalia Wagon on the town. But a polite little Who with a big heart would convince him to reconsider. The half-hour production would win an Emmy in 1977 for outstanding animated program.

BY JAY BOBBIN

Sean Connery's James Bond spies 'From Russia With Love'

Just as most people have their favorite screen James Bond, most have their favorite James Bond movie.

For many purists, "From Russia With Love" ranks extremely high on the list. Currently streaming on Hulu, the 1963 caper came close on the heels of Sean Connery's debut as Agent 007 in "Dr. No" ... and much of the appeal of the second round rests in the actor's cool confidence in a role he grew into very quickly. There's also satisfaction for Bond devotees in the film being one of the most literal adaptations of a novel by Ian Fleming, since gadgetry began to compete heavily with story with the follow-up, "Goldfinger."

Though Bond – or someone we think is him – appears in the pre-credits sequence that became a standard Bond element with "From Russia With Love," it actually takes a while for him to enter the picture in full. Early scenes are devoted to introducing various villains such as Rosa Klebb (Lotte Lenya), she of the poison-tipped knife concealed in her shoe, and impressively strong henchman Red Grant (Robert Shaw, 12 years before his "Jaws" turn as Quint).

They're in on a plot to discredit Bond by luring him with a much-coveted decoding machine, then filming him while being seduced by one of their allies played by Daniela Bianchi. A problem is that she genuinely falls hard for our hero (of course), leaving her loyalty in doubt until the moment when it counts the most.

While "From Russia With Love" has many highlights, the culmination of a tense trip aboard the Orient Express surely is among the best. Returning from "Dr. No," director Terence Young stages a train-compartment fight that's as brutal as it could be, and it's held up very well over nearly 60 (!) years. The helicopter and boat chases that follow also continue to stand nicely.

Another cast member hugely deserving of mention is Pedro Armendariz, who was terminally ill when he filmed the part of Bond's jovial Turkish contact Kerim Bey. The performer makes every moment he's on the screen count; this entry also marked the first appearance of Desmond Llewelyn as weapons expert Q (the briefcase he gives Bond for the mission is legendary), and Bernard Lee and Lois Maxwell are back as boss M and secretary Miss Money Penny.

The James Bond series got (and pretty much stayed) a lot flashier after "From Russia With Love," but this espionage saga handles its intrigue quite honorably, a huge reason it remains so cherished by so many 007 aficionados.

Music fans will most definitely take interest in this three-part, six-hour original documentary from "The Lord of the Rings" director Peter Jackson, which uses in-studio footage shot in early 1969 to show how Paul McCartney, John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr made their 12th and final album "Let It Be."

JESSE SPENCER

Jesse Gordon Spencer was born Feb. 12, 1979, in Melbourne, Australia. He has two older brothers and a younger sister, all of whom are in the medical field; their parents founded the Australians Against Further Immigration political party.

While in college – and after starting a music career with the Australian Boys Choir – Spencer auditioned for the long-running Australian serial “Neighbours” and won the role of Billy Kennedy, which he played for six years. Though he continued with his education, he ultimately deferred a university acceptance to focus on his acting. He appeared in the movies “Winning London” (with Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen), “Uptown Girls” and “Swimming Upstream.”

In 2004, Spencer began the role of Dr. Robert Chase on the drama series “House,” and he remained with the show for its entire eight-season run. The show yielded a couple of extracurricular connections for him: He and title star Hugh Laurie became members of the music act Band From TV, along with such celebrities as Teri Hatcher and Greg Grunberg (“Heroes”); and Spencer became engaged to fellow “House” star Jennifer Morrison, though that ended less than a year later. (Their “House” characters married and divorced each other on the show.)

Since 2012, Spencer has played Lieutenant (and later Captain) Matt Casey on the filmed-on-location, Dick Wolf-produced NBC drama series “Chicago Fire.” Formerly married to paramedic Gabriela “Gabby” Dawson, Casey now is involved romantically – finally – with her former partner, Sylvie Brett (Kara Killmer), after a long period of fits and starts when their relationship didn’t quite get to the next level.

Spencer often has made crossover appearances in his “Chicago Fire” role on the NBC sister series “Chicago Med” and “Chicago P.D.,” particularly on occasions when all three shows are connected by the same story.

Active in Australian theater during his younger years, Spencer has appeared in productions of “The King and I,” “Scrooge,” “Peter Pan” and “Jack and the Beanstalk.”

After relationships with actress-singer Louise Griffiths and surfer Maya Gabeira, Spencer got engaged to wife Kali in 2019 following a five-year courtship. They married in June 2020.

Judge Judith Sheindlin metes out ‘Judy Justice’ anew

BY JAY BOBBIN

Numerous television-courtroom rivals have come along, but after all of them over all these years, there's still no one who serves up justice quite like Judge Judith Sheindlin.

After her 25-season run on the syndicated “Judge Judy,” the no-nonsense weekday-TV icon is continuing to do what she's so well-known for, but in a new place with the aim of making her cases even easier for audiences to access. Sheindlin brings her brand to the streaming, Amazon-owned IMDb TV with the debut of “Judy Justice” Monday, Nov. 1 – and while she's retaining the same producers, she'll have new on-camera colleagues.

Kevin Rasco, who serves as bailiff, is a former Los Angeles probation officer, Whitney Kumar is the court stenographer, and law clerk Sarah Rose is the program's resident analyst. It's a good bet Rose's observations will register loudly and clearly with the show's star: Sheindlin is her grandmother.

Sheindlin began her career as a corporate lawyer, but left after two years and became a prosecutor in the New York family-court system. She eventually was promoted to the position of supervising judge, promoting a newspaper article, a “60 Minutes” piece and her first book ... all of which led to her being offered a TV series, and thus, “Judge Judy” debuted in 1996, maintaining huge ratings through the end of its first-run episodes.

One thing “Judy Justice” is giving Sheindlin is complete ownership of the program, something she didn't have with ViacomCBS for “Judge Judy” (and leading to several much-reported lawsuits over profits from that series. some involving talent agency Rebel

Vikings’ Cousins playing winning football on a losing team

Lost in the Minnesota Vikings’ sluggish start to the 2021 season has been the stellar play of their quarterback Kirk Cousins.

Indeed, the 10th year veteran has been one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal season for the purple and white, losers of three of their four first games, and it may serve to punch the 33-year-old team captain's ticket out of town and to a team in need of a steady hand under center.

As of early October, Cousins’ stats have placed him among the top signal callers in the league, connecting on 108 of 157 passes (a 68.8 completion percentage) for 1,121 yards and nine touchdowns against only one interception, giving him a quarterback rating of 105.6.

But what's not reflected in the numbers is the fact that Cousins had the Vikings in position to win two of those contests. However, late-game mistakes in Weeks 1 and 2 against Cincinnati and Arizona undermined what had been otherwise solid team performances. So the Vikings could just as easily have started the season 3-1 instead of 1-3.

Cousins was supposed to be the final piece to a Super Bowl team when the Vikings signed him in 2018 but that hasn't happened. With his contract due to expire at the end of 2022, Cousins may find himself traded to a contender after the 2021 season, especially if the team continues to lose – and if it can fetch a nice price for a quarterback still at the top of his game.

Cousins and the Vikings can be seen in action Sunday, Oct. 31, when they host the Dallas Cowboys in a Sunday Night Football telecast on NBC.

The STREAM Scene

Where all the top choices can be found in one place!

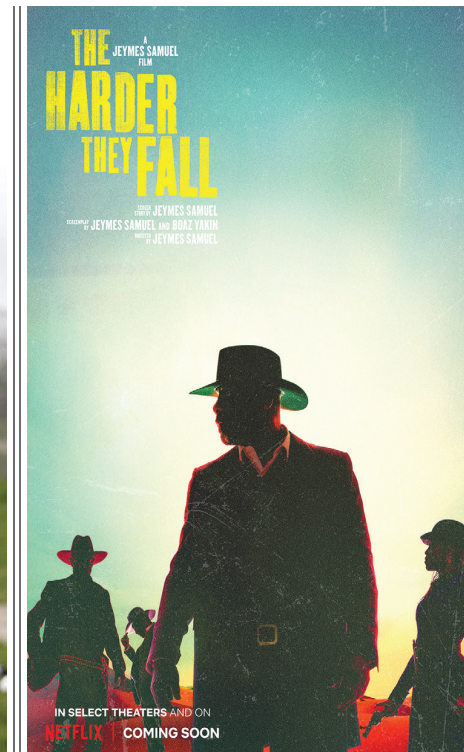

“Movie: American Traitor: The Trial of Axis Sally”

From director Michael Polish comes this 2021 drama that recalls the case of Mildred Gillars (played here by Meadow Williams, “Boss Level”), who stood trial for treason for broadcasting Nazi propaganda to U.S. troops during World War II. Al Pacino plays James Laughlin, the lawyer who defended her. Thomas Kretschmann and Mitch Pileggi also star.

“Movie: Jacinta”

First-time documentarian Jessica Earnshaw’s deeply intimate portrait introduces viewers to Jacinta, a young Maine woman with a troubled past that includes addiction and imprisonment, who tries to maintain her sobriety and reconnect with her 10-year-old daughter Caylynn, despite being surrounded by the forces that led her into trouble in the first place. (ORIGINAL)

“Movie: The Harder They Fall”

From director Jeymes Samuel (“They Die by Dawn”) comes this Western that follows Nat Love (Jonathan Majors, “Lovecraft Country”), an outlaw who reunites with his old gang when he learns the man (Idris Elba, “Luther”) who killed his parents two decades ago is being released from prison. Regina King, Zazie Beetz, LaKeith Stanfield, and Delroy Lindo also star. (ORIGINAL)

“Fauci” (Available now)

From National Geographic comes this feature-length documentary that profiles the infectious disease specialist and lifelong public servant who has served under seven presidents who became the face of the war on the COVID-19 pandemic as well as a cultural icon and a target for attacks from political adversaries.

InFocus

The 95th Annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade (NBC — new special, Nov. 25)
 Last year, the COVID-19 pandemic mandated a dramatically downsized version of this annual crowd-pleasing extravaganza, with the parade closed to the public and filmed as a television-only event and no college and high school bands. Much of the glorious excess is expected to return for Thanksgiving 2021, however, with in-person spectators back, albeit in smaller-than-traditional numbers. Macy's also reports all participating volunteers and staff must be vaccinated, and other health guidelines will be followed.

To complete this puzzle, place the numbers 1-9 in the empty cells, so that every row, column and 3-by-3 box (in bold outline) contains all nine digits.

Each number 1-9 may appear only once in each row, column and 3-by-3 box.
