Commissioners approve precinct adjustments at Friday meeting in populations between the districts – from 14.47 percent to

By ROGER CLINE

Herald Staff Writer

In a short special meeting Monday, Howard County Commissioners took steps to equalize the populations of their districts within the county.

"Precinct 1 (Commissioner Eddilisa Ray) had about 550 less people than the requirement, and Commissioner (Craig) Bailey (Precinct 2) had about 550 more," said Howard County Judge Kathryn Wiseman. "So the deviation was about 14.47 percent, and the state requires that you have to redistrict if you are more than 10 percent over the deviation rate. There were three commissioners' precincts involved."

Wiseman said that involvement of a third commissioner's precinct - Precinct 4, represented by Commissioner John Cline - was required because Precincts 1 and 2 do not share

By making adjustments to the precincts' boundary lines, commissioners were able to re-balance the numbers of constituents in each precinct. Precinct 3, represented by Commissioner Jimmie Long, did not change during the adjustment. The change brought the maximum deviation – or difference

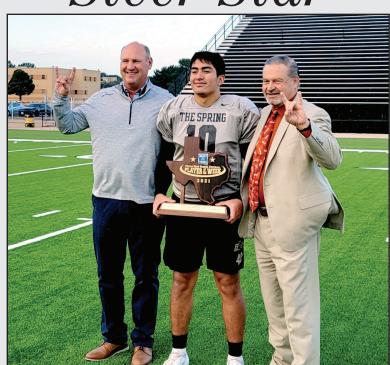

"We moved about 550 people – and we have to watch out for the ethnic mix, also," Judge Wiseman said. "We found some precincts that were the right mix, and put 550 into John Cline's precinct. He's Precinct 4. Then we moved about 550 people from John Cline's precinct into Eddilisa Ray's Precinct 1."

Wiseman said that the reason it's necessary to level the population of the commissioners' precincts is to ensure equal representation for the county's residents.

"It's all about voting," she said. "We have to make sure that we have the correct percentage of ethnic mix; we've got to make sure we have the right percentage of population. So that one population or ethnic mix does not make all the decisions for Howard County. That's what Commissioners Court is all about: representing the people. Making sure that we're serving the people. To do that, we have to adjust if we're over percentage of people or ethnic mix."

During the meeting, commissioners called a public hearing to allow residents to speak regarding the redistricting plan, but no members of the public opted to speak on the issue.

Gumbo is not the only use for okra, a vegetable brought to the US by slaves in the 1660s. Dallas has an event called Okrapalooza every year about the time okra is harvested. Elizabeth Dry turned a trashy vacant lot into a community garden ago and named Promise of Peace To raise money rent on the propwent to her comgoogled okra fes-Texas, ""And there

The fund raising event has grown considerably and now attracts hundreds of people. It is an upscale event with an admission charge of 85 dollars. Guests get to sample gourmet okra dishes and custom made wines and beers while listening to live music. They also get to hear about okra recipes and ways to eat healthy. 'We have several musical groups that play 45 minute sets. During that time guests will be tasting the okra dishes, going from chef's table to chef's table and they learn about stuff. There are two prizes. One is a people's choice award and the other is a choice of 6 judges. The winner will be judged on presentation, complexity, flavor and all that."

This year's event was at the Cotton Mill in McKinney. Twelve chefs were on hand producing everything from pickled okra seeds to okra ice cream.

"We've got a very diverse group of cooks. There's personal chefs, there's chefs from 4-star restaurants, there;s chefs that actually farm their own food."

Elizabeth says there are no big corporate sponsors. This is for the community.

"The chefs love it. It's one of the most down to earth, fun, love-filled events I've ever been to. And these chefs create masterpieces that have never been replicated. People told me that I need to ask the chefs what they'll be cooking.so nobody will be cooking the same thing. Well they never have in 12 years. And we've had an average of 15 chefs per festival since it started. And that's a lot of different

This year because of Covid the number of guests was limited to 150. Everyone seemed to like the Cotton Mill and it will probably take place there

"We received so many compliments from guests, chefs, musicians and nearly everyone was pleased with the winners. The judges' favorite was Olivia Lopez who is cultivating heirloom red, yellow and blue corn from Mexico to preserve her culture. For Okrapalooza she did an okra enchilada that was unbelievable. She used two different colors of corn, blue and red. The people's choice award went to Adam West who owns Local Yokel Restaurant in McKinney. He did a churro that was incredible. He folded okra into the flour and somehow made it sweet with a dipping sauce."

Freedom from court could be imminent for Britney Spears

By ANDREW DALTON

AP Entertainment Writer

LOS ANGELES — Britney Spears' independence day may finally have arrived.

At a hearing in a downtown Los Angeles courtroom on Friday, a judge will decide whether to terminate the conservatorship that has exercised vast control over the pop superstar's life and money for nearly 14

With no significant opposition from anyone involved, it appears likely Judge Brenda Penny will dissolve the legal arrangement. Britney Spears' attorney, her parents, and the court appointees who control the conservatorship all publicly support termination.

Jodi Montgomery, the conservator who oversees the singer's life and medical decisions, has developed a care plan with her therapists and doctors to guide her through the end of the conservatorship and its But Penny has not given overt signals to what she will decide, and she has considerable discretion and power. Legal or bureaucratic hurdles, or lingering concerns over Spears' medical care or finances, could still slow down what might seem like the inevitable end. It is not clear whether Spears, 39, will take part in the hearing. Fans who have demanded the court

#FreeBritney, whom she has credited with bringing her to this point, will be outside the courthouse in Penny sided decisively with Spears and her attorney Mathew Rosengart at the last hearing in September, when she suspended the singer's father James Spears from the conservatorship that he had controlled at least in part since he first sought it in 2008. The judge made no finding of wrongdoing against James Spears, saying only that the "toxic environment" made the move necessary.

"The current situation is untenable," Penny said.

Prior to that hearing, James Spears reversed course and supported terminating the conservatorship. Rosengart argued that he should be suspended and have no role in the legal arrangement's endgame. He has vowed to pursue an investigation of James Spears' handling of the conservatorship even after it ends.

The attorney said he planned to take a "top-to-bottom look" at the actions of James Spears and his representatives and suggested that law enforcement should investigate revelations in a New York Times documentary about a listening device placed in his daughter's bedroom.

James Spears' attorneys said Rosengart's allegations ranged from unsubstantiated to impossible, and that he only ever acted in his daughter's best interest.

The post-conservatorship fight has in some ways already begun. James Spears has parted ways with the attorneys who helped him operate it, and has hired Alex Weingarten, a lawyer specializing in the kind of litigation that may be coming.

The Forsan Buffs celebrate there 22-15 victory.

By STEVE BELVIN

Special to the Herald

BROWNWOOD - The Forsan Buffaloes looked adversity in the eye - several times, and never blinked. It accumulated into a hard earned 22-15 win over the Goldthwaite Eagles Friday night in bidistrict play at Gordan Wood Stadium.

The No.12 ranked Buffaloes, now 10-1 for the season, had their hands full with the Eagles, who finished the season with a 5-6 mark . Just like they have all year, the Buffs came up with the big plays when they needed them.

The game ended in dramatic fashion. Trailing 22-15, Goldthwaite marched from its own 33-yard line to a first and goal situation at the Forsan sevenyard line. The Forsan defense hung tough . On third and goal from the two, Forsan's Caden Morgan and another teammate dropped Goldthwaite quarterback Jackson Patrick for a two yard loss. On fourth down Patrick tried to run it again but host of Buffaloes hit him hard, made him fumble and the ball was recovered by linebacker Ernesto Rivera at the Forsan one with 1:42 left in the game. The outcome was sill in jeopardy however as Forsan was flagged for illegal celebration and the ball was moved half the distance to the goal, leaving Forsan with the ball at the one foot line.

On the first play Forsan signal caller Major Stockton barley got out of the end zone to avoid a safety. On second down running back Nate Hernandez ran for eight yards and all was good in Buffalotown as Forsan ran out the clock.

Forsan had other standout plays also. On the opening possession of the game, Forsan stopped Goldthwaite. But the Goldthwaite got off a 45 yard punt and the ball rolled dead at the Forsan one-yard line. Forsan couldn't move the ball and punted Nolan Park got his team out of a hole by booming a 68-yard punt, getting his team out of troubled waters.

Park, a junior, who also doubles at lineman and kicker, showed his leg strength all night. Constantly kicking the ball into the end zone on kickoffs and barley missing a 44-yard field goal as time expired in the first half. The ball hit the right goal post, it would've e been good from 54 yards.

Forsan trailed 9-7 at the half. It could've been worse if not from a strong effort from linebacker Josh Cervantes who chased down Goldthwaite running back Lane Evans on a 32-yard run. It made the agles settle for a 29-yard field goal by Saul Va-

Forsan's first half touchdown came on a nine yard scramble run by Stockton.

Goldthwaite's other touchdown came in the third quarter when Evans caught a seven-yard pass at the Forsan two. He was jarred from the ball by a hard hit in which his teammate Aaron Anzua got in mid air and strolled into the end zone for the score.

Forsan's other two touchdowns came on a 60yard pass from Stockton to Cervantes in the third period and a Hernandez five yard scoring run in the fourth period. Morgan also killed a Goldthwaite scoring threat in the third quarter by picking off a pass. The Buffaloes helped its own cause by not turning the ball over, compared to two turnovers by Goldthwaite.

Forsan's next opponent in the area round, will be New Deal, a 63-21 winner over Olton.

COAHOMA — Bullodgette basketball returned on Tuesday night with a matchup against Andrews at the Coahoma Elementary School competition gym. Madison Rodgers led the Coahoma varsity squad to a 33-28 win over the 4A Lady Mustangs with a game high of 15 points. The Coahoma High School senior also sank three out of four baskets from the charity stripe.

From the tipoff the Bulldogettes played a fast-paced offense and got off multiple unsuccessful shots until senior Katelyn Johnson nailed a three-pointer at the 4:45 minute mark. Tied at 3-3, Rodgers sank a free throw to put Coahoma in the lead 4-3. Teammate Annalyse Mendoza followed with a two-point bas-

"They were a little rusty at the beginning. You can expect that," said Bulldogette Head Coach Joe Mireles. "We only had a few days of practice with many of them coming to us straight out of volleyball, but we regrouped with our defense. It kept us in the game."

By the second quarter any remaining rust had been stripped away with a 14-point rebound by the Coahoma team. Junior Shae Lang started the early Bulldogette onslaught 27 seconds in when she nailed a basket to even the game at 8-8.

Rodgers was quick to capture another two points. CHS freshman Hannah Wells and Johnson added two more baskets before Rodgers buried both of her free throws to give the Bulldogettes an eight-point lead by mid quarter.

Andrews wasn't done. The Lady Mustangs chipped away at the deficit thanks mostly to multiple Coahoma fouls to end the half down by three (20-17).

Returning from the locker room, the Bulldogettes ramped up their defense allowing the Lady Mustangs only two points the entire third quarter while adding nine more to their score. At the start of the last quarter, Rodgers nailed a couple of two-point baskets and sophomore Isabella added a third, which was enough to hold off an Andrews' ninepoint rally for the win.

"You could tell we had a little fatigue at the end," Mireles said. "Our legs are not with us yet, but it didn't hurt." This year's Bulldogettes features a 12-member with five returning varsity players and consisting of three seniors, two juniors, sophomores, four freshmen, and a new coach.

Before taking over the helm of the girls program, Mireles served as the head coach for the Coahoma boys basketball program for a number of years. He replaced Jim Kinnear, who retired from education at the end of the 2020-

21 academic year. In sub-varsity action on Tuesday, the Bulldogettes fell to the Lady Mustangs. Next, Coahoma (1-0) hosts

US food banks struggle to feed hungry amid surging prices Costs are up, and bottlenecks at factories and ports he's still seeing new people every week. Costs are up, and bottlenecks at factories and ports he's still seeing new people every week.

By JANIE HAR

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — U.S. food banks already dealing with increased demand from families sidelined by the pandemic now face a new challenge surging food prices and supply chain issues walloping the nation.

Higher costs and limited availability mean some families may get smaller servings or substitutions for staples such as peanut butter, which some food banks are buying for nearly double what it cost two years ago. As holidays approach, some food banks worry they won't have enough stuffing and cranberry sauce for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

"What happens when food prices go up is food insecurity for those who are experiencing it just gets worse," said Katie Fitzgerald, chief operating officer of Feeding America, a nonprofit organization that coordinates the efforts of more than 200 food banks across the country.

Food banks that expanded to meet unprecedented demand brought on by the pandemic won't be able to absorb forever food costs that are two to three times what they used to be, she said.

Supply chain disruptions, lower inventory and labor shortages have all contributed to increased costs for charities on which tens of millions of people in the U.S. rely on for nutrition. Donated food make it difficult to get goods of all kinds.

If a food bank has to swap out for smaller sizes of canned tuna or make substitutions in order to stretch their dollars, Fitzgerald said, it's like adding "insult to injury" to a family reeling from un-

In the prohibitively expensive San Francisco Bay Area, the Alameda County Community Food Bank in Oakland is spending an extra $60,000 a month on food. Combined with increased demand, it is now shelling out $1 million a month to distribute 4.5 million pounds (2 million kilograms) of food, said Michael Altfest, the Oakland food bank's director of community engagement.

Pre-pandemic, it was spending a quarter of the money for 2.5 million pounds (1.2 million kilograms) of food.

The cost of canned green beans and peaches is up nearly 9% for them, Altfest said; canned tuna and frozen tilapia up more than 6%; and a case of 5-pound frozen chickens for holiday tables is up 13%. The price for dry oatmeal has climbed 17%.

On Wednesdays, hundreds of people line up outside a church in east Oakland for its weekly food giveaway. Shiloh Mercy House feeds about 300 families on those days, far less than the 1,100 families it was nourishing at the height of the pandemic, said Jason Bautista, the charity's event manager. But

"And a lot of people are just saying they can't afford food," he said. "I mean they have the money to buy certain things, but it's just not stretching.'

Families can also use a community market Shiloh opened in May. Refrigerators contain cartons of milk and eggs while sacks of hamburger buns and crusty baguettes sit on shelves. Oakland resident Sonia Lujan-Perez, 45, picked up chicken, celery, onions bread and and potatoes enough to supplement a Thanksgiving meal for herself, 3-year-old daughter and 18-year-old son. The state of California pays her to care for daughter Melanie, who has special needs, but it's not enough with monthly rent at $2,200 and the cost of milk, citrus, spinach and chicken so high. "That is wonderful for me because I will save a lot of money," she said, adding that the holiday season is rough with Christmas toys for the children.

Many people also rely on other government aid, including the federal Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP.

Kate Waters, a spokeswoman for the USDA, which administers the SNAP program, said there were no immediate plans for an emergency boost in SNAP benefits to compensate for the rising food costs. But she said that previous moves by the Biden administration earlier this year and new funding for food banks should ease the burden.

Texas Crop and Weather Report - Nov. 12, 2021

Written by Paul Schattenberg,

Special to the Herald

While prospects for cool-season crops in South and Central Texas look positive, increased production costs and pandemic-related challenges will likely have a negative impact on pricing and producer profitability, said Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service experts. Producers in the Rio Grande Valley are planting cool-season crops such as onions, leafy greens, carrots and kale, said Juan Anciso, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension vegetable specialist, Weslaco.

The planting window is critical for cool-season crops due to the time they take to mature. Onions take 160-170 days from seed to harvest, cabbage takes 90-110 days, and carrots take 90-plus days for fresh market and 150-180 days for those being pro-

"It was dry for a while and that had a negative effect on a few early season plantings," Anciso said. "But recent rains have helped these and other newly planted crops while not impeding the producers' ability to plant more. We have also had generally mild and cooperative weather in most of the re-

Prospects for South Texas cool-season crops

Anciso said although there were issues with some stands in late September and with irrigation water having a higher-than-normal salt content, plant stands are now looking good, and the overall prospect for cool-season crops is positive.

"Of course, this depends on whether or not the weather continues to cooperate," he said.

Cool-season crop plantings in South Texas peak in October, and Anciso said conditions have been positive so far for these.

This year, onion acreage in South Texas is still at about 6,000 acres, with 1,500-2,000 acres of carrots

"Grower diversification has led to a reduction in onion planting, as producers plant additional coolseason crops such as spinach, parsley, cilantro, collard greens, okra, celery and others," he said. "Some growers in South Texas grow from 10-20 different cool-season crops."

Anciso said the financial impact of the COVID-19 pandemic does not seem to have affected consumer desire for fresh produce.

"If anything, it looks like consumer demand for fresh produce has actually increased," he said. "However, long-term effects from the pandemic, such as difficulty in getting some supplies and equipment, problems with transportation, and the increased cost of fuel and chemical inputs, have had a great impact."

He said at a recent meeting, South Texas producers told him their production costs had gone up by about 30% from last year.

"Costs are up for chemical inputs, especially fertilizer and fuel," Anciso said. "In addition, adequate labor is harder to find, and land rents have gone up as well."

Good news about citrus

Anciso said a pleasant surprise in this year's crop prognosis for South Texas was that there will actually be some citrus production.

"Things looked really bad after the freeze, and it appeared as though there would be no citrus production whatsoever this year," he said. "And while many younger and older fruit trees died during the freeze, a number of healthier citrus trees that were from 5-20 years old survived and are producing

He said the citrus industry in South Texas estimates that production might be 20% to 30% of that in a normal year. "The estimate may be a little high," Anciso said, "but the fact there will be any citrus production at all is remarkable. It looks like there will be grapefruit and oranges coming out of the Lower Rio Grande Valley again. However, we will have zero lemon and lime production, as these particular citrus trees were all killed by the freeze."

Brace for higher prices

Anciso did warn, however, that although fresh cool-season vegetables and fruits from South Texas will be available, their cost at the grocery store will be higher due to the higher costs of production and

"Consumers can expect price increases on both fresh and canned vegetables," he said. "Increased production costs will be passed along to the consumer. Of course, market prices for our cool-season crops will also depend on how competing crops in California, Florida and Mexico perform, but producers everywhere are experiencing higher production costs."

Texas Winter Garden crops

"So far, the cool-season crop prospects for the Texas Winter Garden area are positive," said Larry Stein, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension horticulturist based in Uvalde. "We have already started to see some early cabbage, and that is looking good. Also, producers are starting to plant spinach and other been good for planting."

Stein said recent moisture also helped with the breakdown of leaf or litter trash left from crop rotation, also benefiting the cool-season crop planting process.

He said one potentially negative weather factor may be the spate of heavy winds in that region.

"The wind gusts have been strong and blew around a lot of sand and other material that may have damaged some of the earlier cool-season crop stands, but that has been the only real negative in the weather to this point," he said.

Stein also noted that, so far, pest and disease pressures in the Winter Garden area have been mini-

"We have not seen any significant armyworm activity, and the rains have been moderate, so there hasn't been any real disease pressure due to excess moisture," he said.

While the weather has been cooperative for the producers, Stein said other factors also beyond their control have been less kind.

"There have been significant increases in the price of fuel, fertilizer and other production inputs," he said. "While it looks like producers are on track for a decent cool-season crop result, these additional costs will surely have an impact on consumer prices and producer profitability."

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

CENTRAL

The region had above-normal precipitation, and cooler temperatures were prevailing. Soil moisture was adequate in most counties. Range and pasture conditions were generally good, as were crop conditions. All seeded cereal grains were emerging evenly and in excellent condition. The uncertainty in the price of inputs, particularly, the very rapid rise in fertilizer prices, was causing growers to reassess planting intentions. Soil moisture conditions were excellent, and soil temperatures have been declining, making for ideal planting conditions. Wheat planting activity began the harvesting of corn, and cotton was essentially complete. Yields were normal to slightly above normal. Stock tank levels were rising. Livestock were at about 95% in good condition.

ROLLING PLAINS

Much-needed rain fell in parts of the region, but it was not sufficient. Conditions were generally cool and windy, and there were signs a first freeze may

Some wheat fields were blasted by high winds and likely received some damage, but generally, wheat pastures and fields were in good condition. A small amount of cotton was still being harvested. Ratoon rice was maturing and close to harvest. The pecan harvest continued. Range and pasture conditions remained in good condition for the most part. Good grass was available for grazing, and there were ample supplies of hay for fall and winter. Winter pasture planting was underway. A few producers were hoping to get another cutting of hay, provided the weather holds. Vegan Pumpkin Peanut Butter Soup Serves 10

- large leeks, sliced
- tablespoon coconut
- cups fresh pumpkin puree
- 1 cup creamy peanut butter
- 4 cups vegetable broth
- 14 ounces coconut milk (1 can)
- teaspoons salt
- teaspoons Chinese five-spice powder (or 1 teaspoon cinnamon)
- teaspoon cayenne pepper

Toppings: Sriracha sauce

Purchase a "pie

Vegan coconut yogurt

Fresh roasted pump-

pumpkin" (also called a "sweet pumpkin"), which are typically around 2 to 4 pounds.

On average, each "pound" will yield about 1 cup of pumpkin puree. Using a sharp knife, carefully cut the pumpkin in half lengthwise. Use a sharp spoon or ice cream scoop to scoop out all seeds and strings (reserve the seeds for roasting).

Drizzle the pumpkin with olive oil, salt and pepper. Line a cookie sheet with parchment paper and place the pumpkin halves skin side down.

Using the tip of a sharp knife, carefully place a few slits in the skin of the pumpkin. Roast in a 375 F oven for 40 minutes to 60 minutes. It will entirely depend on the size of your pumpkin.

Remove from oven and allow to cool. When cool enough to handle, scoop out the flesh and set aside.

Pumpkin soup:

In a large pot over medium-high heat, melt coconut oil. Add sliced leeks and 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Sauté for 5 to 8 minutes or until leeks are soft and creamy.

Add vegetable stock, pumpkin puree, peanut butter, coconut milk, and spices to pot.

Stir well to combine, and allow to simmer for 15 minutes.

Working in batches, add soup to a highspeed blender and blend until smooth.

Return to pot and taste for seasoning adding more salt if needed. Serve with a drizzle o sriracha and a spoonful of vegan (plain, unsweetened) coconut yogurt.

♦ K Q J 4 2 ♥10 8 7 2 ♣K 3

The bidding: North South West East Pass Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead — four of hearts. Assume you're declarer at four spades. West leads the four of hearts to East's ace, and East cashes the K-Q of diamonds before exiting with a heart to dummy's king. How would you continue?

When the deal occurred, South played the K-Q of spades, disclosing the 3-1 trump break. He then led the heart eight and ruffed it with dummy's nine. Had East followed to the third heart, South would have been home free, later ruffing his remaining heart with dummy's ace. As it was though, East overruffed the nine with the ten for down one.

While South was unlucky to find East with the 10-x-x of spades and a doubleton heart, he did not give himself the best chance. Before trying to ruff the heart at trick seven, he should first have cashed the K-A of clubs and ruffed a club in his hand.

When West shows out on the third club, the opposing distribution becomes an open book. East is known to have started with exactly three spades and six clubs, plus the two hearts and two diamonds he has already played, so West has all the remaining hearts and diamonds.

Declarer is thus forewarned of East's impending heart overruff. At the same time, he becomes aware that there is a surefire way to make the contract. This is the position after the third club has been ruffed:

North ♠ A 9 ♦ 10 7 West East ♥J9 ♠ 10 ♦ A 9 ♣J86 South ♠ J 4 V 10 8 When declarer now leads the jack of spades, West is stymied. If he discards a diamond, South overtakes the jack with the ace and ruffs a diamond to establish dummy's ten. If West discards a heart instead, declarer plays the nine of spades on the jack and ruffs a heart to establish the ten of hearts in his hand.

SUDOKU 6

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle! 8 2 1 2 7 9 6 8 9 symbol, but Scorpio, as the sign of transformation, draws from many symbols beyond the scorpion, the most recognizable being the phoenix. This mythical bird famously lives a long life and, at the end, gives birth to its baby self. The energy of regeneration echoes through the solar journey through Scorpio, bringing with it an awareness of the tenderness of youth.

We bestow gentleness on children as we recognize their vulnerability and need of protection. There's also a reflexive feeling of appreciating our own journey and perhaps longing for the simplicity of innocence. The child is blissfully unaware that food and homes must be paid for, that driving is privilege, that even work itself must be hunted down. The broad dimension of reality we experience is born of a thousand insults and hardships, without which we couldn't understand the workings of the world.

It is good to remember that inside each person is every age they have ever been. The 3-year-old and the 8-year-old are still in there experiencing what the 10-year-old does. To regard yourself protection and sweetness is appropriate at every age. You should not make yourself work for selflove. At this time of the year, which can have a certain harshness to it, extending a soft and gentle attitude inward is both gracious and supportive of well-being.

CELEBRITY PRO-FILES: Contractor Chip Gaines and his wife Joanna are the stars of the HGTV reality series "Fixer Upper" in which homes and lives are transformed by the talent and creativity of this team. Fittingly, Scorpio is the sign of transformation, and Gaines has natal sun, Mercury, Venus and Mars all in that part of the sky. Uranus and Pluto in Libra speaks to deep, exciting and unpredictable partnerships.

'Yellowjackets' brings athletes' past trauma into the present on Showtime

The word "reunion" typically connotes a happy regathering. Then, there's the reunion that fuels "Yellowiackets."

Premiering Sunday, Nov. 14, the Showtime drama series ocuses on four women 25 years after surviving a wilderness plane crash while members of high school soccer team. The show flashes back frequently to that ordeal, helping to explain the respective issues that they still have now. Melanie Lynskey "Two and a Half Men"), Juliette Lewis ("Natural Born Killers"), Christina Ricci ("Black Snake Moan") and Tawny Cypress ("Unforgettable") play the quartet in the present day.

"I honestly was so excited to read something that was so different," Lynskey reflects. There was a genuine sort of edge to this, something very tense in the writing. And I really loved that it was so femalecentered, and every single one of the women was so well-drawn nd interesting. By the end of the pilot, I felt like I knew everybody, and they were all unique individuals. I'm very, very nervous of signing long-term show contracts, and I just was like, 'I can't wait to see where this goes. I can't wait to do this for as long as I can do it.' "

Since "Yellowjackets" visualizes the plane crash often, a younger foursome of actresses also portrays the central characters. Sophie Nelisse ("The Book as the teenage Shauna, recalls that working on that part of the show's set was, "very claustrophobic. The plane was slightly tilted to the side, so I think it was really helpful for us to be in an environment like that. It made it very realistic. When we got there on the first day and saw how real it looked. I think we felt very scared, and it really helped us get into our characters' bodies and motions.' Ella Purnell also is among the vounger cast members. "Yellowjackets" executive producer and (with Bart Nickerson) co-creator Ashley Lyle says, "We knew we didn't want to be a show about what happened, but about why it happened. We figured the best way to do that was to just play it all in the beginning, so that the question is more, 'How did they get from Point A to Point B?' Obviously, there are rifts in the group, but it's really a team.

"What was interesting to us about having it be a championship soccer team is that it's all about collaboration," adds Lyle. "Spoiler alert: It's not really a soccer show, but it's about how these girls were able to really work together, then to see how that might really start to fall apart and shatter over the course of a season. The circumstances bring out both the best and the worst in them."

Pregnancy, Peter bedevil Catherine in Season 2 of Hulu's 'The Great'

A newly ascendant Catherine appears to be gaining ground in her war with Peter as Hulu's irreverent historical comedy "The Great" returns for Season 2.

Premiering Friday, Nov. 19, the 10-episode sophomore round finds a very pregnant Catherine (Elle Fanning) grappling with impending motherhood as well as trying to liberate a country that perhaps doesn't want to be. She'll also battle with her court, her team, and even her own mother to bring the enlightenment to

And then, of course, there is the lingering presence of Peter (Nicholas Hoult), the husband she despises and now has as her prisoner. He's clearly still in deeply love with her and their unborn child and as determined as ever to retake the throne, so it remains to be seen whether this couple and their love/hate relationship are

In addition to Fanning and Hoult (who are also executive producers), the series returns much of its first season cast, including Phoebe Fox, Adam Godley, Gwilym Lee, Charity Wakefield, Douglas Hodge and Sacha Dhawan. And as in Season 1, the profane, loopy comedy is even more in evidence this time around, driven by the well. chemistry between Fanning and Hoult.

"I felt like Season 2 we were really going for it and embarrassing ourselves and saying lines just trying things which then inevitably is just funny," Fanning explains. "And sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't so we're always trying to just see what sticks. And that's what's so great about the set and the environment that at times.'

we create on the set because it's very warm and loving and no judgment. So yeah, I can laugh at anyone right in their face and it's like no judgment, right? I think it's a good thing."

"There's a little bit of judgment in those moments when you're on the receiving end of

The new round also has a very parental theme, as Catherine now sports a very pronounced baby bump and evinces some of the strange cravings that come with pregnancy, including one disgusting one she indulges in the first episode.

But the unborn child also serves as her shield against any harm Peter might be contemplating, which Fanning says Catherine understands very

"She knows if, you know, while ... (the baby is) in there, she's safe and Peter's not going to kill her with the baby in there," Fanning says. "So she's kind of understanding that and then also having to become a mother to the country. So the baby bump really symbolized a lot of things, but it was, yeah, fun to wear, I guess. It was hot

Amazon's 'The Wheel of Time' brings bestselling book series to life

Fans of the fantasy book series "The Wheel of Time" can sink their teeth into an epic adventure in a new show upcoming on Amazon.

The so-titled series, which begins streaming Friday, Nov. 19, is set in a sprawling world where magic exists and only certain woman have access to it. It is in this world where Moiraine (Emmy winner and Oscar nominee Rosamund Pike, "I Care a Lot," "Gone Girl"), a member of the powerful organization of women known as Aes Sedai, sets forth from the small town on Two Rivers on a dangerous, globe-spanning journey with five young men and women, one of which is the Dragon Reborn. prophesied to be either the savior or the destroyer of humanity.

The series was shot over the past two-plus years primarily in Prague, Czech Republic, with a large cast that also includes Sophie Okonedo, Zoe Robins, Madeleine Madden, Marcus Rutherford, Daniel Henney, Barney Harris and Josha Stradowski. It also features spectacular mountain landscapes, ample special effects and the performance of Pike, who executive producer/showrunner Rafe Judkins reports was an easy sell to take on the role of Moiraine. "She called me and said, you know, 'This character is me, like I feel her in my bones ..., 'he recalls with a laugh. "She just understood the character so fundamentally and had such an amazing grasp of her. And she in all of her work previous to this as well, she's done such a nice job understand it and why our characters miss it."

of balancing warmth and coldness, balancing the softer sides of her characters with the very hard edges of her characters. ... So having an actor that can move really seamlessly between those two things has been amazing for us."

Also a character in this is the village of Two Ri vers. The set construction here, Judkins notes, was elaborate and painstaking and the location of it in the Slovenian Alps only added to the show's mystical atmosphere.

"They're a little bit more raw," Judkins explains, "like they've seen less use over the centuries than the Swiss Alps that we're used to, so they have this really raw, new feeling to them that was perfect for the Two Rivers. ... You really

Q: One of my favorite actresses in cable movies is Cindy Busby. Will she have any new films for the holiday season? - Diane Wallace, Providence,

A: Two, in fact ... and they're both debuting on the same weekend. First, on Dec. 18, the actress stars in Lifetime's "Toying With the Holidays" as a workaholic single mother who brings her son to her hometown to experience its seasonal train ride. #### Q: Why did Jesse Spencer leave "Chicago Fire"? -Rita Talamine, via email

A: In a press conference with television reporters (including this one) last month, just before he departed the NBC series as a series regular in the show's 200th episode, the actor explained that he has been doing series work steadily for 18 years – since he went directly from "House" into "Chicago Fire" – and he felt it was time to take a break.

It's important to note that he could resurface on "Fire" in a guest capacity, particularly since the producers will try to keep the long-distance relationship between Matt Casey (Spencer) and Sylvie Brett (Kara Killmer) going, even if Casey isn't seen on the screen. Also, at least for the time being, Spencer and his wife are keeping their Chicago residence

Do you see common design elements that clients on the show opt for?

Well, "open-concept" is probably still one of the most requested design changes, meaning an open floorplan that allows living spaces to flow from one area to another on the main floor. Also, looks like homeowners all across the country wish they lived in Cali by asking for beachy, California cool vibes.

What design elements do you try to steer them away from?

We usually shy away from certain materials that can be high maintenance or hard to clean, like marble countertops, in favor of quartz or another zero maintenance material.

What are the most common problems in homes that you encounter on the show?

We see a lot of DIY projects gone wrong. People trying to make "improvements" to their home but at the end of the day they're actually creating problems. Cutting into support joists, wiring exposed in the walls - the list goes on. It can be scary what you find in the walls.

Have you heard of homeowners flipping the homes after you've renovated them?

Every once in a while, we see a listing that says, "Renovated by The Property Brothers" or something similar. But for the most part, the families we work with have strong roots in their community and couldn't see themselves leaving.

What do you find most satisfying about

Seeing the looks on our homeowners' faces the minute they walk through the door to their renovated home. It never gets old. They know their lives have changed for the better and getting to be part of that is so humbling and

'Well Done With Sebastian Maniscalco' brings comedy with food knowledge

Say one thing about Sebastian Maniscalco, he'll do anything for good television.

And so it was this past summer in the premiere episode of the discovery+ series "Well Done With Sebastian Maniscalso," viewers were treated to the sight of the stand-up comic getting seasick during a fishing trip off the coast of Southern California and later butchering the fileting of a whitefish.

A gamer the man certainly is.

"I knew I had a problem with nausea when I go on a boat but I wanted to get over that fear," the boat, maybe I'll have a better result. And within five minutes, I was on the floor. It was not a good scene for me. But you know, we did the episode and it turned out to be good TV for me. I mean, I have no problems showing my weaknesses on television."

Season 2 begins streaming Tuesday, Nov. 16 (the same date Season 1 joins the prime-time lineup on Food Network) and finds the Illinois-born, Los Angeles-based comedian once again doing a deep dive a little sushi night at the house and have some laughs into the world of food while offering up his signature witticisms and wry social commentary.

The new round of six episodes will find Maniscalo returning to his old job of bartender to create a signature cocktail for fellow comic Whitney Cummings; explore why children are picky eaters with Nick and Vanessa Lachey, learn how noodles are used in different cuisines around the world with comic Bobby Lee; and examine canine food habits with "Dog Whisperer" Cesar Millan.

Doing this series has been a blast for Maniscalco, who is into food and wine (he hates the term "foodie") though he's the first to admit he has next 48-year-old explains. "So I figured, oh, this is a bigger to no chops in the kitchen. He enjoys spending time around cooks and cooking and filming these episodes in a way has brought him back to his childhood.

"For me, food has always been a connection to my family," he says. "That's kind of where it all happened growing up, at the kitchen table. We would sit down, discuss life, what happened during the day. And that's kind of continued throughout my life, not only with my family, but my friends. So I think if we could get and get blasted on sake, I think it would be a nice little evening."

Amy Robach feels she's in good company

While partnered with T.I. Holmes and Dr. Jennifer Ashton in hosting ABC's "GMA3: What You Need to Know" - billed as "a third hour of 'Good Morning America,' and airing early-afternoons – Robach covers a wide range of subjects during an hour that initially was strongly pandemic-based. The health crisis remains a major element of the program, but Robach appreciates how the varied content and her colleagues have helped her branch out. "I couldn't have picked two better teammates to sit with me on that set, so it's pretty remarkable," she reflects. "I do have a fun side, but I tend to be more all-business when I do my job. T.J. has found a way to bring out that side of me, and it's been a lot of fun. You can't be that person without being in a safe space and with people you trust, especially when vou're in a situation where credibility and authority matter." Also the co-anchor (with David Muir) of the ABC newsmagazine "20/20," Robach counts "The View" co-host Sara Haines among her closest friends. Haines initially had the "GMA3" slot with "Strahan, Sara & Keke," and Robach reports that when it was replaced by what originally was titled "Pandemic: What You Need to Know," all remained well between How I Let Go of Control, Held on to Hope,

"We had a good conversation about it," Robach recalls. "Anyone who's been in this business knows nothing is permanent. It's through those times that you grow not only professionally but also personally, and friendships can actually grow stronger through those times. And it all worked out really well for both of us."

'Close Encounters of the Third Kind' still exist in Steven Spielberg's sci-fi classic

Even if it didn't contain five of the most famous music notes in movie history, "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" would be one of the most memorable science-fiction movies vet made.

Showtime presents the "Director's Cut" of the 1977 blockbuster Thursday, Nov. 18, and Friday, Nov. 19 – and if ever a filmmaker earned such a revisiting of his work, it's Steven Spielberg, whose name was as much a selling point for the picture as anything after his monstrous success with "Jaws." Audiences were eager to see what he would come up with next, and in a hallmark of his work, he imbued the story he wrote about alienspacecraft sightings on Earth with a humanity that has been a trademark of his career.

Spielberg reunited with two of his "Jaws" collaborators – star Richard Dreyfuss and composer John Williams - to tell the story of several people whose lives are changed, understandably, by unusual experiences eventually traced to the presence of extraterrestrials in our orbit. Melinda Dillon plays a mother distraught when her young son (Cary Guffey) vanishes in the wake of an at-home light show stunning enough to beat anything ever put forth on a stage, but much of the plot centers on the utility-company worker portrayed by Dreyfuss.

After the truck that he's in shakes, rattles and almost rolls during a bizarre outage of all power sources in his area, he becomes obsessed with visions of an enormous mountain, making models of it ... even one out of mashed potatoes at the family dinner table. He starts to wonder if he's going crazy, but a team of scientists including one played by iconic French moviemaker Francois Truffaut) also is getting signals about possible

Eventually, all relevant parties converge on Devil's Tower in Wyoming, the site indicated by the Dreyfuss character's visions. The resulting meeting is a display of sheer screen wonderment, and a big reason the movie has three versions: the original release, a 1980 "Special Edition" that Columbia Pictures wanted, and this 1998 "Director's Cut" that offers the film in the form that Spielberg ultimately wanted it in.

As for the music-note series used here to ommunicate with the aliens, its familiarity has had t redeployed in satirical ways since (one example: the ound made by the keypad James Bond uses to open locked door in "Moonraker"). "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" is good for much more than hat, though ... and it's universal in so many ways, it edly will continue to stand the test of time.

Jesse Lamont Watkins was born on Jan. 18, 1969, in Rocky Mount, Va. After his parents divorced and his mother remarried, he took his stepfather's surname. His family moved to Buffalo, N.Y., then a teacher convinced him to join a drama program.

Martin continued his education at the Buffalo Academy for Visual and Performing Arts and New York University's Tisch School of the Martin toured with the John Houseman-co-founded Acting Company, then returned to New York and worked as a waiter while pursuing performing jobs. After some Broadway work, he was cast in "Rent," the eventually much-honored musical written by restaurant co-worker Jonathan Larson. Martin also went to London with several other original cast members to open the show there.

Martin played Detective Ed Green for almost a decade, though he was given some time off to make the movie version of "Rent." He also made crossover appearances as Green on "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" and "Law & Order: Criminal latent."

Following his "Law & Order" run, Martin did Shakespeare in the Park productions including "The Merchant of Venice," which then went to Broadway for a limited engage-

After appearing in the second season of the musical-drama series "Smash," Martin took the role of police detective Joe West the foster father (and now father-in-law) of the title hero's alter ego, Barry Allen – on The CW's "The Flash," which begins its eighth season Tuesday, Nov. 16. Martin was absent from much of the fifth season of the show while nursing a back injury.

Martin got to work on a pet project by playing Marvin Gaye in a biography movie named after one of the singer's biggest hits, "Sexual Healing," but production was stopped because of financial problems when roughly two-thirds of the picture had been filmed. It never has been completed.

Kendra Wilkinson is getting into a new line of work, and cameras are there to document it.

The reality-television veteran became known for her association with the Playboy empire via the series "The Girls Next Door" and a couple of subsequent shows. Though she's staying in the genre, the approach is a bit different in "Kendra Sells Hollywood," which discovery+ begins streaming Wednesday, Nov. 17. The program traces her beginnings as a Southern California realtor, making up in spirit and determination what she lacks in experience as she handles various properties.

"I just decided to actually pursue real estate without anyone knowing about it," Wilkinson explains. "I went and studied and passed the test, and then, one thing led to another and I'm back on TV documenting this part of my journey. It hasn't been easy, and I have already been through my fair share of trials and errors, ones that realestate agents probably wouldn't want on camera. I am giving you the raw, authentic journey of what

Raiders' Carr steps up after coach steps down

In the wake of the Jon Gruden email controversy rose a leader the Las Vegas Raiders always knew they could count on. And now the rest of the Indeed, after their head coach's resignation on Oct. 18 after the surfacing of offensive emails, many expected the Raiders – who were 4-2 at the time and tied for the lead in the AFC West – to fold like a cheap suit. But their veteran quarterback wasn't about to allow that. "I'm still here as a leader," Derek Carr told the media after the Raiders' emphatic 34-24 victory over the Denver Broncos that following Sunday, one in which the 30-year-old Fresno State product clearly rose to the occasion by completing 18 of 27 passes for 341 yards and two touchdowns with no interceptions for a 134.4 quarterback rating. The vintage performance not only gave interim coach Rich Bisaccia his first victory but also earned Carr NFL Player of the Week honors for Week 6. And that game has merely been a microcosm of his season so far. Through six games, Carr is among the best in the league in many key categories, > including passing yards (1,946; second), yards per game (324.3; second), completions (149; eighth) and touchdowns (10; tied for 11th). But more importantly, he's kept the Raiders in the playoff hunt in the AFC at a time when things could have gone the other way. Truly, the sign of a leader. Carr and the Raiders can be seen in action on Nov. 14 when they play host to the division rival Kansas City Chiefs in a game airing on NBC's Sunday Night Football
