Poindexter leaves for Russia missions

By Darwin Robinson

Alissa Poindexter, 19, of Lockney is going on a missionary journey of her life time.

As you read this story, she will be on her way (Wednesday/ Thursday) to Moscow, Russia and then on to Tomsk, Siberia.

The next 18 months Alissa will be working with a veteran missionary family, Jim and Lavonne Norville, who have been ministering there, through a church, an orphanage and helping handicapped children and delinquent juveniles for the past 13 years.

Alissa is one of a five member team of Adventures In Missions (AIM) that is sponsored by the Sunset Church of Christ Missions School in Lubbock. She has already completed 8 months of mission training preparing for

Why is Alissa going to Russia? She responded, "I want the people there to see God's love and the great sacrifice He has made for them. The door to Russia was opened in 1993 and I only know of 13 missionaries in Russia now. I hope to get to know the people (on this trip) and then go back after I get a college de-fund-raising event that allows participants from all walks of life

- including cancer survivors, medical support staff, corporations, civic organizations, churches and community volunteers -- to join together to fight cancer. Relay For Life reminds us that progress has been made in the fight against cancer and that everyone who participates is making a difference. The event will kick off at 6:00 p.m. with a victory lap by local cancer survivors and their caregivers. A hamburger dinner will be served to each cancer survivor, and the public can purchase a plate for $3 per person. Teams will begin walking immediately after the Survivor's Lap and will keep one member of each team on the track throughout the event. At 8:00 p.m., Floyd County's Wall of Hope will be unveiled. The banner, which was generously sponsored by Mangold Memorial Hospital, will be signed by all event participants and sent to Washington, D.C., for a national unveiling in September. At 10:00 p.m., a Luminaria Ceremony will celebrate those who have won their battle against cancer and honor those who have not. Floyd County residents are encouraged to purchase a Luminaria for a "donation from the heart" and participate in the moving ceremony. Closing ceremonies for the event will take place at 11:30 p.m., and the event will conclude at midnight with a final lap around the track. Local entertainers will perform throughout the evening, including Highway 70, BS, and other local performers. Teams will be selling food and other items during the event, and the public is invited to come join

All money raised through Relay For Life will be used to support the American Cancer Society's lifesaving mission of eliminating cancer through research, education, advocacy, and service. The American Cancer Society has donated more money to cancer research than any other organization outside the federal government. contest got a unique entry this week with the submission of Stacy Reeves, of Floydada, and Jay Leno reading The Hesperian-Beacon at Universal Studios in California.

Reeves told Leno her hometown newspaper was having a photo contest and she just happened to have the newspaper folded up inside her camera case.

Reeves said Leno was very gracious and kind and more than happy to help her in the contest.

Stacy, her husband, Mike, and her daughter, Marla, were in California with the Floydada Band when Mike and Stacy noticed Leno filming his "JayWalking" segment at Universal Studios.

Stacy says she wormed her way up to the area and struck up a conversation with a man who was helping Leno with the filming. "He asked me where I was from and what we were doing in California," said Stacy. "At some point he stopped and responded to something he heard on his ear piece. It wasn't a bad thing, but it brought an exclamation from him of, 'Oh my God!'

"Then I said, 'He's Mine

Stacy said she always tries to respond with that comment when she hears the slang term, 'Oh my

"The worker laughed and then asked if I wanted to be part of the "Jay Walking" interview," said Stacy.

She jumped at the offer and after signing release forms Stacy faced Leno, his camera, his microphone, and his quick wit.

ment of Jay Leno features Leno back weren't all that bad. hitting the streets and asking people questions about common historical facts, people and places in the news, etc. This segment, which aired on Friday, June 9, had people on the street being asked about common teenage slang terms. Leno was checking to see if he could find any "hip" parents who understood teenage slang terminology. Some of the questions asked of the participants were, "What is the definition of the term, 'Grill'? What is the definition of "Bust a cap off?" "Getting Jiggy?" "Whale Tale?"

"Going Commando?" or "Blog?" Stacy said the only thing she tent and photo impact."

The Hesperian-Beacon photo thinks she got right was the question about "Getting Jiggy". I told him I got Jiggy in Church--AND IT WAS A BAPTIST CHURCH TOO!" He laughed and said he didn't think Baptists were supposed to dance. We shared a couple of Baptist jokes after

Stacy was stumped at first over the question of "What do you think when you hear the term--he has a nice grill?" After some thought, Stacy said, "Well, my son would think a nice grill was one that had the option of cooking with propane or charcoal." The correct answer was, "Grill" refers to someone putting jewels and gold in their front

Leno told Stacy that "Busting a cap off..... wasn't really a nice slang expression. She asked, Does it have something to do with a donkey?" Leno told her "No--it meant to shoot someone" Stacy agreed with Leno and said, "You're right--that's not very Watching the Jay Leno show it seems obvious that Leno was just as entertained by Stacy as she was by him. "I really enjoyed talking to him," said Stacy. He was a regular, down to earth guy."

Stacy said she had a great time on her band trip. The kids were great the whole time and the 23 The popular Jay Walking seg-hour bus trip up and the 23 hours

A Father's Day Musing

by: Tim Robinson June, 2006

The headlines of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch on May 28, 2006 was both shocking and discouraging. It read: "Godfrey man kills sons, self." The story continued by giving us the disturbing de-

Dr. Edward Van Dyk, 43, employed at Alton's Memorial Hospital, was on vacation with his wife and children in Florida celebrating their 10th wedding anniversary. For some unknown reason, Dr. Van Dyk took his two sons, ages 4 and 8, who were still in their pajamas, and threw them off a balcony which was 15 stories high! He then jumped himself!

As I analyzed this very disturbing event, I was struck by this thought: What Dr. Edward Van Dyk did is more common than we think. When a father does not provide for his wife and children an example of integrity and moral character to follow, in essence, he is throwing his children off a balcony.

In no way do I wish to minimize the tragic deaths of two young boys or the unbelievable grief of a wife and mother. But please consider with me another great tragedy that seems to go unnoticed today: The lack of leadership within homes provided by fathers that love God with all their hearts!

I had the privilege of growing up in a home where my father provided for me a consistent example to follow. Though my dad was far from perfect, he led (and continues to lead) a quiet and humble life that was shaped by God's priorities. Growing up, I knew, without ever asking, that God was worth serving; that God's Word was important; that prayer was real; that the local church was a priority; that it's better being honest and poor than being a rich liar; and that hard work will not kill you (though it will try).

I also learned that money doesn't grow on trees (yes, I've looked) and that I wasn't born in a barn.

The strange thing about all this is that I do not recall having any long discussions with my dad about any of these matters. He simply allowed these priorities to shape his life, decisions and character. Every day, I saw the same thing. There was in our home a benevolent dictatorship. My dad provided loving leadership. There was a steady devotion to living in such a way that you would never have to regret yesterday. My dad lived each day with a consistent passion for excellence in what he did. And rarely did the challenges of tomorrow shake his courage. Since my father has been and still is a pastor, for many years, I believed this was the reason he lived a life of integrity. But as the years continue to pass, I now realize that my dad would have lived this way, regardless of his occupation. He would have been a lawyer with integrity...a salesman with integrity...a pig farmer with

Of course, my dad would be quick to point out that the source of his strength and integrity is not within himself. My father has a loving and living relationship with the Person, Jesus Christ. Many years ago, as a boy nearing his teen years, he understood his condition as a sinner and accepted God's free gift of salvation. Again, years later, my dad entered the ministry to serve the Lord full-time.

The irony is that both I and my older brother are also in the ministry today. I have often questioned the reason of why we are in the ministry. Was it to make my dad look good? Was it to follow his colorful career? Or is it because my brother and I saw a man of integrity, every day, satisfied and content serving the Lord?

I hope I never have to read about a father throwing his sons off a balcony again, either literally or figuratively!!! Thanks dad!!!

Dear Editor:

I became very upset when I read about the flags being stolen form the Lockney Memorial Park. I am addressing this letter to the Hesperian-Beacon with the hope that it will be printed and a prayer that the person or persons who stole the flags will read it and understand how they have disappointed me and every other hard working American.

Whoever stole the flags have no understanding of the values these flags represent. Our country is a symbol of freedom to every freethinking person in the world. We would not be that symbol of freedom if not for the struggles of the veterans and hard working Americans before us.

The United States has become a target of every sort of fanatical zealot that believes by attacking the United States; it will in some way free him from his present station in life. They believe the United States is forcing our religious and political beliefs upon them. This cannot be further from the truth. Throughout the history of our country we have fought countless battles and wars protecting man's right to be free. The United States has also become the final destination for millions of immigrants from around the world who can only dream of the freedoms that we, as Americans, so often take for granted. The reason they flock to our country is because their countries and their leaders have failed them. These leaders failure to embrace the concept of a free society is putting not only the United States, but also the entire world in peril. We, as Americans must continue to be the leaders that the rest of the world expects us to be. We cannot allow ourselves to be-

The United States must continue to fight for what is right. This fight, at times, may seem to be a losing battle, but there is no alternative. I would like to thank the citizens of Floyd and the surrounding counties for your never-ending efforts to recognize, not only the veterans, but also the everyday people who continue to stand up and make a difference.

It's time to renew your memberships. The $20 annual membership fees for Lockney Senior Citizen Center are due July 1,

Lunch at the Center costs $3.50 for members and $4.00 for nonmembers. Take-out meals start at 11:00 a.m. and we start serving lunch at 11:30 a.m. Call 652-2745 by 9:30 a.m. if you want to eat lunch at the Center. It is located on 118 W. College

Every Thursday we have a pot luck supper at 6:00 p.m. (bring a dish) and have fun playing games such as "42", Dominoes, Hand and Foot, Amtrack and others in the back afterward. Sometimes we also have special music on Thursday nights such as our own Molly Huffman, Betty Jones and her son Cecil Jones. Come enjoy a night out with us.

These talented people are part of a group known as the Walmart Drivers who play every second Sunday evening from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. at Mama Mia's Pizza Place in Plainview. Molly plays the fiddle, Betty plays either the piano or guitar, Cecil plays the bass fiddle and sings. Other drivers play and sing as their schedules allow.

This year's Senior Citizen quilt is the "Trip Around the World" pattern in vibrant colors and will be raffled off as a fund raiser for the Center. Tickets are currently on sale for $1.00 each or 6 for

MRS. DUSTY RYAN ANDERSON

Nee Kayla Christine Vines

Kayla Christine Vines and Dusty Ryan Anderson were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony Saturday, May 20, 2006 at 5:30 p.m. in the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Waco. Reverend Walter F. Albers performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Jim and Julie Vines of Waco. She is the granddaughter of AJ and Lou Etta Probst of Brady and Jerry and Sue Vines of Comanche.

The bridegroom is the son of Mike and Barbara Anderson of Floydada. He is the grandson of Louis and Ferne Anderson of Floydada and Joyce Adkins of Ralls and the late Lawrence M. Simmons, Jr.

Miss Melissa Thornton of Stephenville and Miss Krysten Ward of San Angelo, both friends of the bride, registered guests. A large arrangement of white and pink roses and tiger lilies and the couple's engagement picture decorated the registration table.

Serving as ushers were Steve Rothfuss of Las Colinas and Trevor Truss of Las Colinas, both college friends of the groom.

Organist Steve Randolph of Waco provided selections of music as the guests were seated. "Jesu, Joy of Mans Desiring" by J. S. Bach was played as the grandparents and parents were seated by the ushers. "Pachelbel's Canon in D" by Johann Pachelbel was played during the lighting of the candelabras by the ushers.

As the ceremony began, Blair Probst of Arlington, cousin of the bride, was escorted by her father, Jerry Probst, uncle of the bride, to the prayer altar to light a candle in memory of Kayla's sister, Brittany Lynn Vines.

The groom's mother was then escorted to the altar to light a single candle. She was followed by the bride's mother who also lit a single candle beside the Unity Candle. The bride's attendants and groomsmen entered the sanctuary as the organist played "Trumpet Voluntary" by Jeremiah Clarke.

Matron of Honor was Christi Rater of Morgan Mill, friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Blair Probst of Arlington, cousin of the bride, Jackie Franks of Stephenville, friend of the bride, Casey Shows of Stephenville, friend of the bride, Abby Probst of Brady, cousin of the bride and Keely Probst of Brady, cousin of

The bridal attendants wore fuchsia satin princess line floor length gowns with spaghetti straps that featured an empire waistline trimmed with a black satin band, bow and streamers with a sweep train. They carried bouquets of pink and white Mona Lisa roses and antique hy-

Best man was Monty Anderson of Collinsville, brother of the groom. Serving as groomsmen were Todd Anderson of Itasca, cousin of the groom, Brady Anderson of Meridian, cousin of the groom, Brad Hodges of Hurst, college friend of the groom, Aaron Fells of Hico, college friend of the groom and Scott Parvin of Saginaw, friend of the groom. The groomsmen were attired in black notch twobutton tuxedos with ivory shirts and vests and ivory cravat ties. Their boutonnieres were two pink sweetheart roses with green leaves and baby's breath.

Serving as flower girls were Jaylee Anderson of Meridian and Maci Anderson of Itasca, both cousins of the groom and Karlee Hare and Katie Hare, both of Stephenville and both friends of the bride. They wore identical pink and white taffeta tea length dresses, white lace socks and white shoes. They carried rosekissing balls and dropped pink rose petals from white wicker

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her father as the "Bridal March Traditional" by Wagner was played by the organist. The bride wore a gown of ivory satin, designed by Emme Bridal. The gown featured a strapless neckline accented by a gathering empire waistline. The gather split open and down the front and was decorated with gold stitched embroidery and seed beads. The corset back flowed into a chapel length train and was similarly decorated with the embroidery and seed beads. She wore a rhinestone and pearl tiara with an ivory fingertip satin edged veil. She carried a bouquet of antique hydrangeas, pink cymbidium orchids, pink Mona Lisa roses and stephanotis.

The dance floor was decorated with white lights and pillars of pink and white balloons. The guest enjoyed music by DJ Doran Belknap of Waco.

The buffet dinner of beef and chicken shish kabobs, Hawaiian meatballs, cheese trays, salads and fruit trays were catered by George's of Waco.

A special toast was made to the bride and groom by the best man and brother of the groom, Monty Anderson. The couple enjoyed the first dance of the evening. Bubble vials were distributed to guest to use as the couple left the reception.

The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Brazos River Steak House in Waco on Friday, May 19, 2006.

The bride graduated in 2002 from Central High School in San Angelo. She is attending the University of North Texas in Denton where she is pursuing a degree in Child Development and Family Studies with a teacher certification. She is employed by Children's Courtyard in Keller.

The groom is a 2000 graduate of Floydada High School. He is a 2005 graduate from Tarleton State University in Stephenville where he earned a degree in Exercise and Sport Studies with a minor in Biology. He graduated Magna Cum Laude and is an alumni member of Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He is pursuing a degree in the Physical Therapist Assistant Program at Tarrant County College.

Prenuptial parties honoring the couple included a bridal shower in Brady on April 25, 2006 at the home of Lou Etta Probst; a bridal shower on May 8, 2006 in the home of Rhonda Stovall and a lingerie shower on, May 13, 2006 in Stephenville, hosted by friends of the bride. A bridal brunch in honor of the bride and her attendants was hosted by the bride's aunt, Debra Probst, on May 20, 2006 at the Café Cappuccino in Waco.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio the couple will reside in Haltom City.

... at the Museum

By Bettye Jackson

Since my first day as the new Director of the Floyd County Historical Museum and every day thereafter, I have gained a tremendous respect for the "behind the scenes" people involved with the day to day operation of the museum. The former Director, Carolyn Hardy, the Board of Directors and the volunteers all give unselfishly of their time and knowledge to make the Museum one of the best, if not the best, museums of its size in the state. I would be remiss if I did not include the Mary Lou Bollman Genealogy Center in the "best" category. We have three genealogy experts who are walking encyclopedias on the families, and history of Floyd County. Carolyn Hardy, Nancy Marble and the ever present Janet Milam are always willing to help anyone find their ancestral heritage.

Almost daily we have people come to see the museum who are from out of Floyd County and out of the state. The last two weeks people have registered from Albany, Oregon Louisiana; Leander, Lubbock, Amarillo, San Antonio, Pampa and Plainview, Texas and Mangum, Oklahoma. Almost without exception, they express how impressed they are with the museum and genealogy center, saying that it far exceeded their expectations.

The exploration at the Coronado site is on going. Dr. Don Blakeslee and a grad student, Carol Shallue, from colleagues, Don Henkle and Leroy Elliss were at the dig site from May 22, to May 26. They stopped by the museum before leaving to share their finds with us. About 20 artifacts were found and catalogued.

We have received memorials honoring the passing of friends and loved ones including Clara Reecer, Myrtle Mann, Jewel Burrow, Enrique Garcia, Phil Dunavant and Delise McGuire. Acknowledgments of these memorials are sent to the families. We appreciate the gifts of memorials to the museum and the fact that a bereaved family would ask that memorials be made to the museum to honor the passing of a loved one. These gifts help to keep the museum financially sound.

We are down to the last Floyd County History books that will be sold. If you have thought you would like to purchase one for yourself, a family member, or as a gift, but have procrastinated about doing so, we would encourage you to do it before they are all gone.

Genealogy research has been done for several people in the last two weeks. Those families researched have included Scott, Miller, Bradley, Ramos, Robbin, Gound and Marshall.

I consider it such a privilege to be a part of the Floyd County Historical Museum. I hope all of you will come by to visit with me, but most of all I hope you will come to the museum to see for Wichita State University, and his yourself what we are so proud of.

The Bias' left Oklahoma on May 17, "feeling the Lord wanted us to go home" to Apache Junction, Arizona. The 5 year old donkey, "Jenny Sue", is doing all the work by pulling the wagon. "We average about 15 miles per day, some more and some less. We travel six days a week and we rest and worship the Lord on Sundays," said Shawn. They have already traveled around 350 miles. "I really need another animal to give Jenny Sue a break from this load. She gets pretty tired pulling up the hills," said Shawn. They say records were made to be broken and unofficially results of the 2005 growing season proved the truth of that statement. The only real question about the 2005 crop left unanswered was where all that cotton was actually produced.

By Shawn Wade

The information needed to answer that question was made official June 9 with the release of final county level production figures from the USDA National Agricultural Statistics service. In a nutshell, the 2005 crop is just as impressive on paper as it was in the field, especially in the Texas High Plains.

Statewide, 2005 Upland Cotton production totaled a record breaking 8.44 million 480 pound bales according to the final tally reported by USDA NASS on June 9

Topping the 2004 production mark was considered a long shot going into 2005, but in the end a near perfect combination of weather, technology and know how allowed it to happen with relative ease. The 41 county High Plains production area served by Lubbock based Plains Cotton Growers produced 5.626 million bales of cotton in 2005. High Plains cotton accounts for 66 percent of the State's 2005 Upland Cotton production total and 24 percent of a U.S. crop that totaled 23.259 million bales.

The 2005 crop's Top Ten cotton producing counties in the High Plains region (reported in 480 lb. bales) were: Hales, 513,000; Lubbock, 467,000; Gaines, 461,000; Lynn, 429,000; Terry, 409,000; Dawson, 400,000; Hockley, 381,300; Lamb, 312,000; Crosby, 296,000; and Floyd, 230,000.

The All Cotton yield per harvested acre in the region average 786 pounds across all counties. The region's top producing county in terms of overall yield per harvested acre was Parmer County where growers averaged 1163 pounds per acre in 2005. Ten other counties in the region averaged 900 pounds per acre or more for the growing season.

Acreage wise the High Plains planted 3.72 million acres of cotton in 2005 and harvested 3.43 million acres, a difference of 284,200 acres. This calculates to a low 7.6 percent abandonment

Acreage abandonment totals could look significantly different for the 2006 crop unless the situation facing producers in the field changes dramatically over the next few weeks. Hot, dry temperatures, and a general absence of rainfall in predominantly dryland production areas, have put

Regardless of the individual circumstance, every acre of the High Plains needs a good rain sooner rather than later. Benefits of such a rain will range from easing irrigation usage to keep the young crop going, to establishing dry-planted acres.

House to Debate Progress of Global War on Terror

The House will turn its attention to the Global War on Terror this week. Members of Congress will have the opportunity to express their thoughts on the progress of the war thus far and discuss our nation's future efforts to defend itself against terrorists.

This debate comes on the heels of an important victory in Iraq. America and its allies in the War on Terror won a significant victory when our troops killed the leader of al-Qaeda in Iraq, Abu Musab al-Zarqawi. There will surely be another terrorist who rises to take Zarqawi's place, but the fact that our military was able to take down this important figure shows that our military and intelligence gathering efforts are paying off. As the new Iraqi political structure takes shape and the terrorist networks are dismantled in Iraq, America and its allies come closer to victory.

There are some who subscribe to the theory that the United States would be safer if we pulled our troops out of Iraq and Afghanistan and kept to ourselves. But U.S. troops were not in Baghdad in 1993 when terrorists attacked the World Trade Center for the first time. U.S. troops were not in Afghanistan when terrorists attacked U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania. U.S. troops were not fighting a full-scale War on Terror when 19 terrorists hijacked planes and crashed them into buildings in New York and Virginia in 2001.

Whether it is al-Qaeda or groups like Hezbollah and Ansar al-Islam (a group that has operated in Iraq since 2001), these terrorists share the common goal of bringing the United States to its knees. This will be their goal as long as Americans possess the religious and other individual freedoms that are the essence of our nation's identity. As a result, we must take the fight to the terrorists and ensure that they find no safe harbor.

USDA Extends CRP Contracts

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) decided last Wednesday to allow the option of extending Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) contracts for all Bailey and Kent County farmers with expiring contracts. USDA made the right move by allowing these additional extensions. Bailey and Kent County farmers will now have more time to make the transition away from the CRP land and to better plan for their farms' futures.

USDA's decision means that all farmers in these counties with CRP contracts expiring between 2007 and 2010 can extend those contracts for a set length of time based on the environmental benefits produced from their enrolled land. A large number of those CRP contracts are set to expire beginning in 2007, and the extensions will help prevent large amounts of land from leaving the program all at once, thus providing a smoother transition. Without this change, thousands of acres in 14 counties nationwide, including 40,000 acres in Bailey County alone, would not have had the extension option.

Dairies look at wheat silage as protein source

By: Kay Ledbetter

Wheat is usually grown for grazing and grain, but the expanding dairy industry is creating a market for wheat as a protein-rich silage, said two Texas Cooperative Extension special-

Dr. Ellen Jordan, Extension dairy specialist in Dallas, said wheat silage has been used in other areas and now dairies moving into the Panhandle are finding it works as an excellent for-

"We will probably be seeing more people consider growing wheat for silage as an alternative to growing it for grain," Jordan said. "It will be on a year-by-year basis, depending on the price for a crop, versus the price for silage.

"If you have good wheat prices and a high yielding crop, it may be better to grow it for the grain," she said.

Dr. Brent Bean, Extension agronomist in Amarillo, said dairy producers are seeking growers out. They want small grain silage, whether it be wheat or triticale.

'We probably saw more go that way this year because the potential for a good grain crop looked minimal," Bean said. "Also, they cut it for silage so they wouldn't have to keep wa-

Producers are asking more questions about varieties and quality as well as tonnage, he said. More test plots of both triticale and wheat varieties are being planted to compare strictly their silage potential.

In order to get the high quality forage needed by the dairies, producers must cut the wheat earlier, Jordan said. Wheat cut in the boot stage or very early flowering stage to get higher protein.

Producers need a balance between quality and tonnage, she said. The earlier the forage is harvested, the higher protein and energy value are, but less tonnage is available.

"If the farmer is getting paid strictly off tonnage, then it's a detriment to him," Bean said. "One thing that could be done is the dairies could start paying for quality or percent protein per ton. This tends to be more fair for everyone involved.'

Many production practices, such as planting dates and seeding rates, will probably stay the same whether the crop is being grown for grain or for silage, said. Bean said, although more research is needed in that area.

One management practice is different, Jordan said. Any small grain silage should be field wilted so the moisture content drops to 65 percent before it is ensiled.

The growing season plays a key role when determining whether to harvest a crop for grain or silage, she said.

"We may be able to reduce the spring irrigation by harvesting the wheat at an earlier stage, so what happens with the wheat crop may be determined by the rainfall and how much water is available for irrigation," Jordan said.

Wheat silage supplements corn silage, she said. Small grain silages cut at the earlier stages are higher in protein, but lower in energy, than corn or sorghum si-

Producers can split their risks by growing a combination of the two: forage sorghum or corn as summer crops and wheat or triticale as winter crops, Jordan said.

"Some producers will double crop and grow both silages on the same land in the same year," she Silage transactions take various forms. Some dairies contract with growers to raise wheat for silage, other raise their own for silage. Some producers raise wheat silage without a contract and negotiate later with dairies.

Jordan said when deciding to sell a wheat crop as silage, producers need to consider:

* Will it be sold as it stands in the field?

* Who will harvest and truck to the silage point?

* Who is responsible for packing into the silage pit?

* Price should include percentage of dry matter. * Possible deductions for anything too wet should be determined in advance.

* Will the silage be paid for at harvest time or as it is used? * Will there be a protein premium or deduction based on quality? * What's the risk as compared to other harvesting methods?

* Does the producer want to consider retaining ownership and selling it from a silage pile over the course of a whole season?

Commissioners' approve tax abatement at meeting

By Darwin Robinson

The County Commissioners met Monday, June 12, and voted unanimously to designate a certain area of eastern Floyd County as a Reinvestment Zone. This vote was necessary in order for the court to give tax abatements to Renewable Energy Systems (RES) of Colorado (Whirlwind Energy, LLC) to construct 26 Wind Energy turbines near the caprock

Immediately following, the court unanimously approved a ten year tax abatement on eligible property in the designated area to RES. The abatements are for these years: 2008 - 100 percent; 2009 - 80 percent; 2010, 2011 and 2012 - 75 percent; and 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018 - 35 percent.

In other matters, the commissioners approved a recommendation by County Budget Clerk Debra Burson to join the Texas Association of Counties for Unemployment Compensation for county employees at a cost of $2,000 to $2,500 per quarter year for the first five quarters.

Burson told the court, "I believe this is the best route to go. We have had very few claims and we should get half of this money back. After these first five quarters, we will get a new rate. Other (nearby) counties are paying from $30 to $87.50 per quarter.'

In a related matter, the commissioners voted to keep county employees' retirement benefits at the same rate as last year.

A public assistance program and a request for unclaimed capital credit money were also approved by the court.

The commissioners approved two farm contracts. One was in Precinct 2, south of Lockney, to clean out a waterway by Delton Jack. The other one was in Precinct 4, one mile north of Jim McGaugh's house, to dig a pit for soil conservation by Jerry Miller.

$48,000 was transferred out of the Road and Bridge Fund by the court into the four precincts at $12,000 each to be used for general expenses.

Commissioner Lennie Gilroy of Precinct 2 was given permission by the court to advertise to sell a two ton heavy duty chain hoist, plus A-frame stand.

County Treasurer Elva Martinez presented a Financial Report to the commissioners. The report showed a Beginning Balance of $867,837.27, with Receipts of $133,540.37. Transfers In and Out were $180,082.01, with Disbursed of $272,341.96, leaving an Ending Balance of $729,035.68.

First United Methodist Church of Lockney invites all children to become Treasure Seekers at their summer Vacation Bible School, ADVENTURE OF THE TREASURE SEEKERS: EXPLORING GOD'S PROMISES.

The action begins June 25th and ends June 29th from 5:30 to 8:00. There will be daily "Discovery Digs" for children to explore the Scriptures and find God's promises. This program offers fun, interactive activities that combine the world of archaeology with the discovery of treasures in the Bible. Each day, children will take part in an actual dig and find treasures that remind them of the Bible story and God's promise for that day.

Children will also be involved in singing great Treasure Seekers tunes, create some memorable crafts, and make many new friends.

Meet us at First United Methodist Church at 102 W. Poplar on June 25th at 5:30 to be a part of ADVENTURE OF THE TREASURE SEEKERS. For more information, call the church at 652-2193
