

Change Of Wing Command Due In April

Colonel Brunson, TAC DCO Set To Take Reins

A new wing commander has been named for Reese AFB to replace Col. James M. Breedlove, a brigadier general nominee, but the new commander is not expected at Reese until next month, nor to take over his new duties until possibly mid-April.

Named as the new Reese AFB Wing commander is Col. Carl L. Brunson, who is currently serving as deputy commander for Operations for the 35th Tactical Fighter Wing, Phan Rang Air Base, Republic of Vietnam. He is a command pilot, 44 years of age, and a June 1950 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y. He also holds a master's degree.

Colonel Brunson is expected to arrive at Reese in mid-March. Colonel Breedlove has been notified of his pending assignment to Headquarters, Air Training Command, Randolph AFB, Tex., in the capacity of deputy chief of staff, Operations, replacing Brig. Gen. James H. Watkins, who has been nominated for his second star. General Watkins departed earlier this week for Southeast Asia where he will assume the duties of chief of the Air Force section, Military Assistance Command, Republic of Vietnam. It is expected that Colonel Breedlove will assume his new job, replacing General Watkins, by mid-April.

Stripes Added By 23 Reesites

Twenty-three Reesites added stripes Monday as a result of the latest promotions announced by local personnel officials. Also announced were the selectees for the FY 71B cycles for promotion to master sergeant and technical sergeant. For complete details see page 3.

Roundup Letters Show Increase

A Reesite sends us a thought-provoking letter which is published in today's Roundup. He ironically asks if a person should sit by and see government property damaged or destroyed by acts of vandalism in the BOQ without taking action—or at least reporting the offender to authorities. What would you do? Letters to the Roundup are on page 2.

Deduction Details Given In Article

This week's tax article, the third in a series by the Judge Advocate Division aimed at assisting the military taxpayer in preparing his tax return, deals with deductions allowed on income tax returns. For the whole story see page 6.

Reese Seventh In ATC Meet

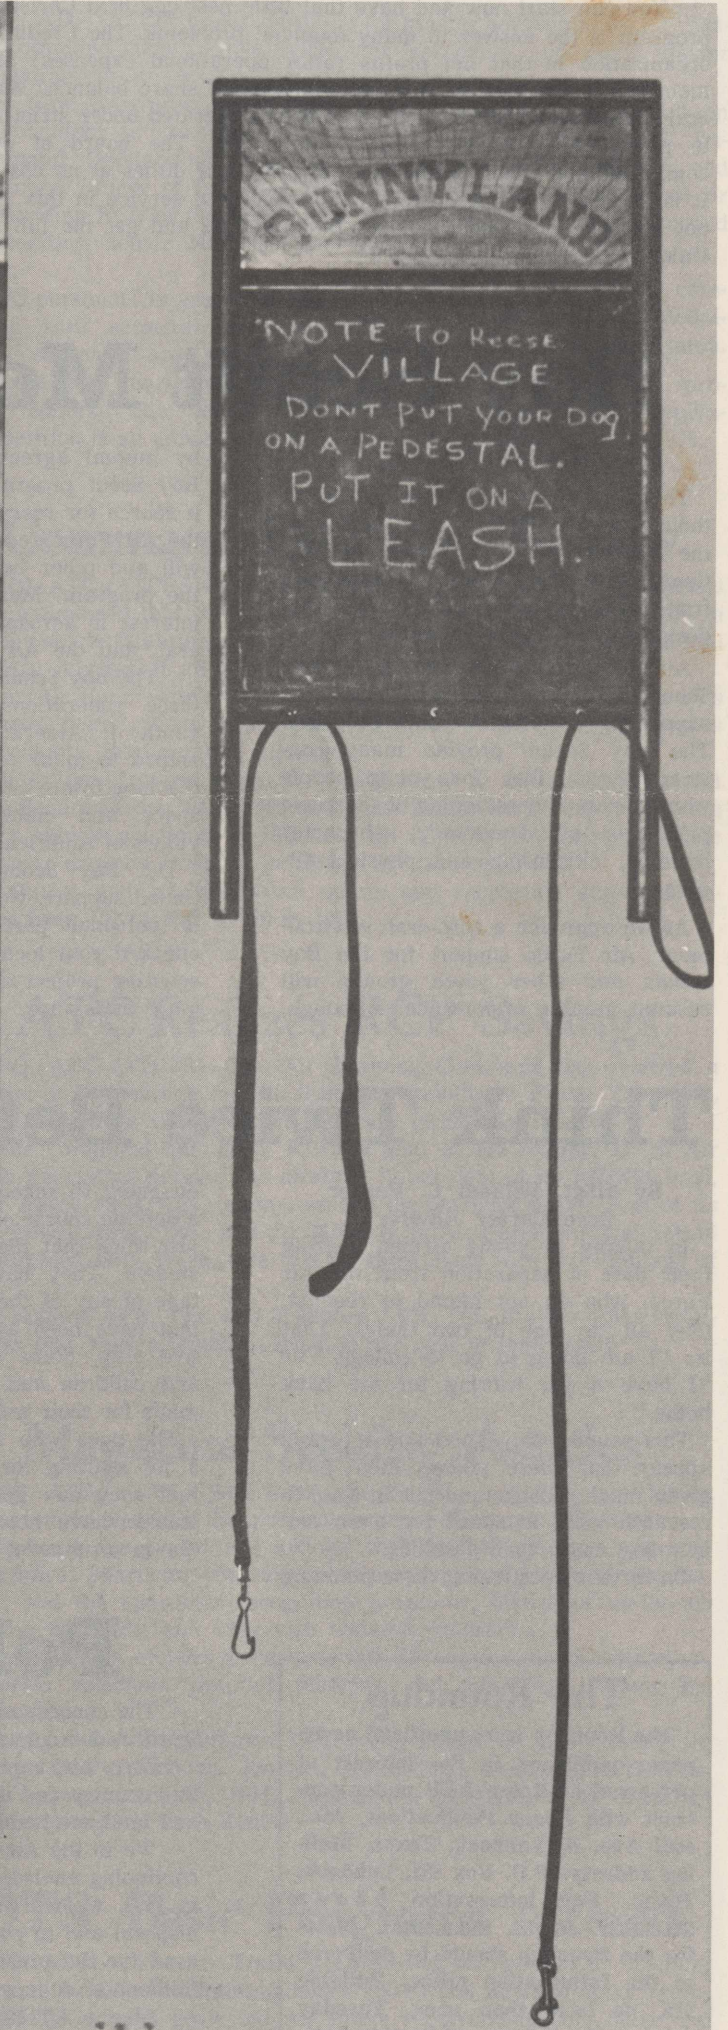

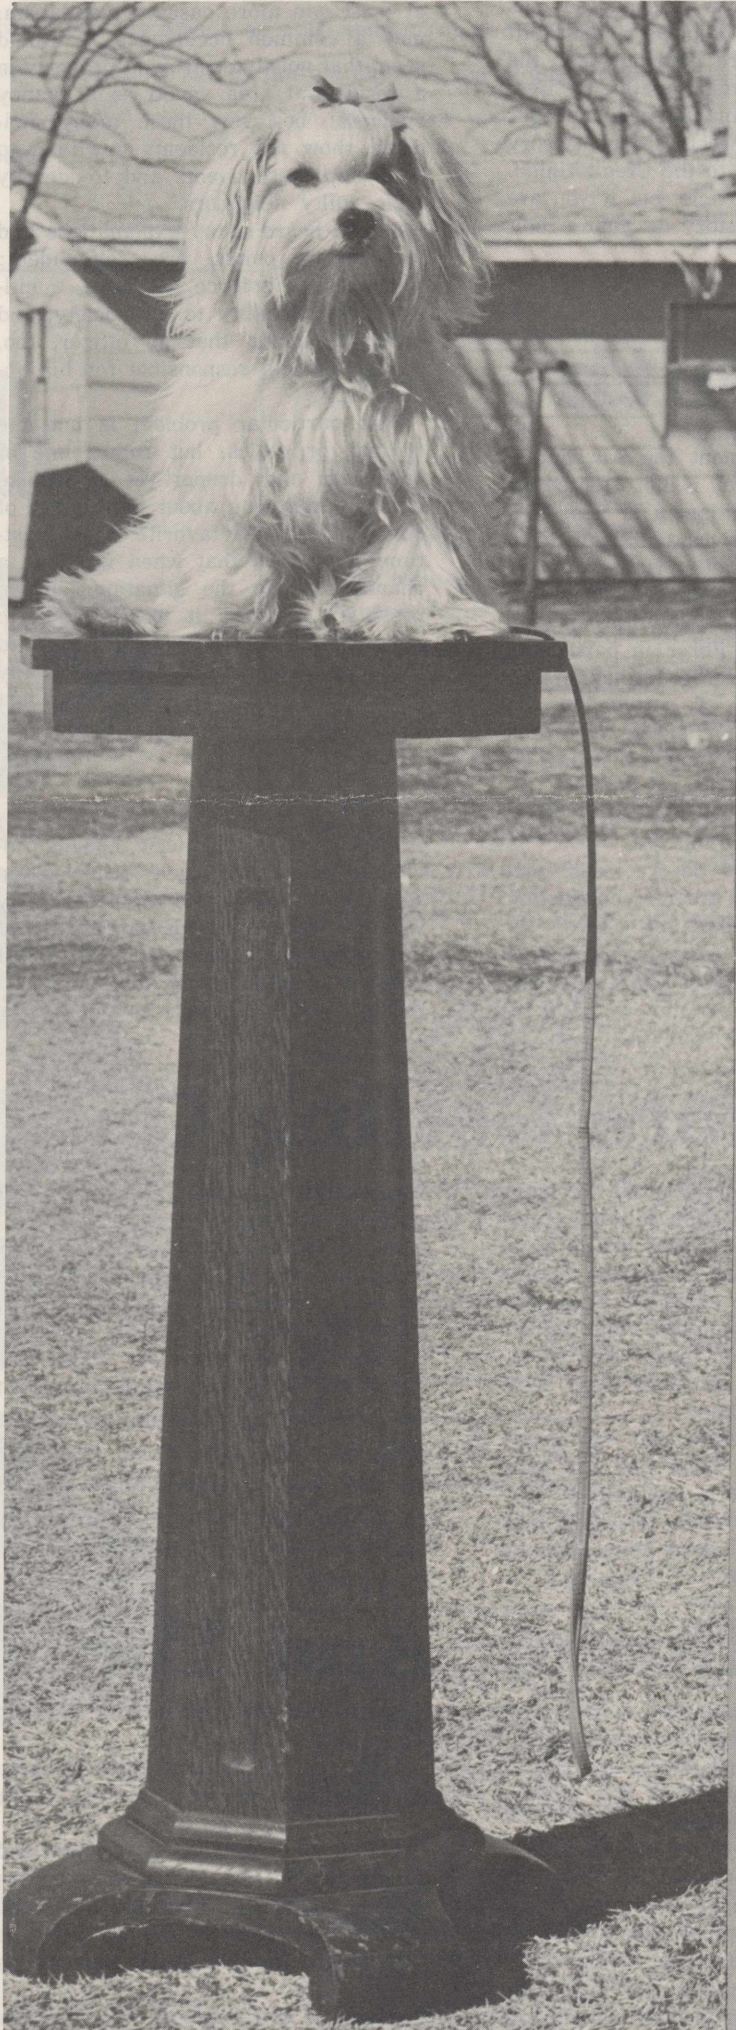

The Reese Rattler base-level basketball team was eliminated from the Air Training Command Basketball Tournament last week—but not without putting up a great fight, and taking seventh place among the 16 teams entered. For more on that turn to page 7.

FOR THE COMMANDER . . .

Value Of Credit Union Largely Overlooked

By Maj. Henry A. Proctor
Commander, 3500th Organizational Maintenance Squadron

During my tour of duty as squadron commander of the 3500th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, I have had many occasions to help individuals in their financial planning. I have been surprised that many people are not utilizing one of the finest services on base—the Reese Air Force Base Federal Credit Union. This Credit Union was established in 1951.

The purpose of the Credit Union is to provide members with the opportunity to receive a fair return on their savings and a low interest rate on loans. Any military or civilian employed at Reese AFB, Air Force retired, and any members of the Air Force who are serviced by the Accounting and Finance Office are eligible for membership. Also, dependents of civilian and military members are eligible for membership. A small deposit — $5 — is all that is needed to become a member. Wouldn't it have been great to have a little nest egg for Christmas goodies?

You can start now and have that little nest egg next Christmas. A sound savings program is the answer to many financial problems. The Credit Union is a non-profit organization in that net profits (after operational expenses) are distributed to the members in the form of dividends on deposit share balances semi-annually. By Federal regulations, the Credit Union must be operated under strict management in order to protect the interest of the membership. The board of directors, supervisory committee and credit committee perform their duties at no cost to the Credit Union. It is impossible to fully explain this wonderful service in this article, but if you are not already a member, stop by Building T-32 and get the full story on your Credit Union.

Boy Scout Month

(An AFNS Editorial)

The Boy Scouts of America mark their 61st anniversary this year with the observance of February as National Boy Scout Month, a departure from previous years when a week was designated for annual salutes.

Air Force cooperation with Boy Scouts offers an excellent means of supporting a national youth program. The Boy Scouts provide many constructive activities for young people which stress understanding of the basic principles of democracy, character building, citizenship and physical fitness.

As we approach a zero-draft environment, Air Force support for the Boy Scouts and other youth groups will assume greater importance. Although, by mutual agreement the Air Force-Boy Scout program is not treated as a source for recruiting, it is clear that the Air Force receives significant good will and other benefits from youth in the program. Many develop an active interest in aerospace activities in general, and the Air Force in particular.

The Boy Scout program has offered three generations of service to the youth of America. Service that has helped to make our country strong by teaching future citizens self-reliance, respect and independence—the basic values of American life.

The Boy Scouts deserve our continued support. No greater contribution is personal participation. Have you checked your local program? The base scouting project officer has a need for your assistance.

Letters To The Roundup

Dear Sirs,

Sure, we've all read those stories: An old lady robbed and beaten in Brooklyn while a crowd of onlookers watch at a distance. Or a lone policeman getting ganged up on at a busy street corner as people stroll by complacently. And there is always the classic story of the raped girl who refuses to testify so she won't have to relive that dreadful experience. They have always struck me as appalling exposes of the residents of some far-removed slum or ghetto subculture.

Whatever type of culture one may label the Reese BOQ community, this attitude of non-involvement is flourishing here. The past weekend provided at least two more cases of vandalism, now a common occurrence. It would seem that noisily destroying property in a residential area would be a chancy business; however, these many incidents show the residents unwilling to help stop these events and to identify their guilty neighbors.

I have heard many explanations and feel certain points are self-evident: The need to enforce the laws, a citizen's responsibility to his society, and even the notion that an officer, too, should be held responsible for his actions.

This particular problem is not one of fear or ethics, but rather one of unconcern and, deeper yet, of selfishness. Complaining about the quality of our quarters is a favorite Reese past-time; why is it that when we have a chance to help the situation, silence prevails? I guess it would have to happen right in our own back yard to make us respond. But this isn't really "our" backyard is it? No, we're just renters here.

R. B.

This is one of the most thought provoking letters we have received in some time. We agree wholeheartedly with the writer that this vandalism and destruction is senseless. At a time when there is a great outcry for savings in money, materiel and real property within the Air Force, such actions are detrimental to the Air Force and should be stopped. To remain silent is to give mute consent. Help stop this useless waste by a few immature individuals either by direct action, or by speaking up and identifying them.

To The Roundup:

I have read and listened with awe to the ravings and inquiries of the leaders of the Air Force on the "liberal" policies of the Air Force towards the younger airmen.

Granted, the Air Force has not required liberty passes for being off-base overnight, as has the Navy. Further, the Air Force has never disallowed any junior officer the right to man the helm of the ship. But it has barred liquor to airmen under E-4, whether they are 21 or not, allowed bachelor officers the privilege of unescorted female visitors in the BOQs without making equal arrangements for bachelor airmen. It has required the spit and polish routine to the point of pulling men from their duty to stand inspection for minimal dirt and grime. We seem to be able to sacrifice the time in which these men should be earning their meager salaries but are unable to overlook a speck of dust. A man's appearance should be neat, but not to the point where he is taken from his duty to spit and polish his wardrobe.

The idea of hair being a certain length is not a big thing. If it isn't big enough to be considered worth doing something about, then what is the point in arguing about it? Let the hair go the length the younger troops want it. The older troops don't have to wear it any longer than they want it.

How many of the old-timers let their side-burns go to the new limit when the reg was changed? A lot of them. So why the hassle? If even the old-timers like it that much, why limit it there?

Let's stop hassling and get something done. If the issues are not as important as the old-timers and younger airmen make them out to be, don't hassle. Open it up and go on. Give in if it's not important. It's important to us!

Think Twice Before Getting Out

By MSgt. William C. Parker
Base Career Advisor

In talking to young airmen nearing their date of separation from the Air Force, who do not intend to reenlist, they all say one of two things. That is: "I am going to go to college," or "I have a job waiting for me back home."

This sounds very good and it would appear that these young men have given much thought and put in time to research what is ahead for them and in many cases their families.

On further questioning those planning on going to school really do not have a definite course of study in mind. They just think that they would like to be a student. They have not taken advantage of any of the education programs that have been available while on active duty. Some of them have wives and children and no plans have been made for their welfare.

The ones who state that they have a job waiting for them and are sure that they can get a job without any trouble have not really checked into the labor market where they hope to settle after separation. They have not checked into what is happening nationwide in the employment fields. They think that back home will be the same as they remember it four years ago when they came into the Air Force.

Personnel who are now in the Air Force will be on the ground floor when the all-volunteer program starts and with the many benefits we now have and are soon to receive. Much thought should be given before leaving the Air Force for what could be the unknown.

Pollution And You

The concern over the condition of our environment has made pollution a common word in our conversation, newspapers, and other media.

Dirty air, unpure water, and land damage—in other words pollution—is a sickness this country can ill afford. But, positive steps to reclaim the purity of our air, water and land are being taken.

We in the Air Force can be proud of the fact that we have had an effective and continuing environmental protection program for many years. In the six years ending in 1972, we will have spent more than $100 million to improve facilities for waste disposal and to combat pollution. More than half the land owned by the Air Force is used for the preservation of fish and wildlife resources. The Air Force also spends millions of dollars each year to combat noise.

All the Air Force environmental protection programs will continue, but each Air Force member must do his or her part to fight pollution and bring our relationship with our land into close harmony.

Your efforts can range from simply picking up a piece of trash paper to the submission of new ideas for reducing pollution. Your actions can take many other forms, from tuning that car engine to taking an active part in base self-help conservation efforts.

You have a right to a pollution-free environment but, first, you have a duty to control pollution. It's the concern of every individual. It's up to you.

(An AFNS Feature)

QUESTION: If I am stationed at a location other than where my records are maintained, and I have a personnel problem, how can I get it resolved?

ANSWER: You should contact the first sergeant or the personnel representative in your unit. They will contact the personnel office where your records are maintained to provide you with requested information. The Air Force Military Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Tex., is developing a publication covering personnel procedures for geographically separated units.

More Command Recognition Due

HQ. ATC (ATCPS)—Air Training Command plans to give more recognition to its people during 1971. New programs have been implemented to recognize the command Outstanding Noncommissioned Officer of the Quarter, Outstanding NCO of the Year and Outstanding Senior NCO of the Year.

ATC personnel in grades of sergeant, staff sergeant and technical sergeant are eligible to compete for quarterly and annual honors. The Senior NCO competition is an annual program for master sergeants, senior master sergeants and chief master sergeants.

Candidates will be judged on effectiveness ratings, self improvement, social, cultural and religious activities, Air Force or civilian awards or titles won and speaking ability.

Annual winners in both categories will receive an ATC Medallion and an engraved wrist watch.

Details concerning the programs are found in ATC Regulation 900-13, dated Dec. 16, 1970.

Command Fatalities Hit Low

HQ. ATC (ATCPS)—Air Training Command ground safety officials have announced that the command reached an all-time low in 1970 in motor vehicle fatalities, private and government vehicle accidents and military injuries of all types.

An Air Force-wide multi-media education traffic safety course was initiated in 1967. Since its inception ATC has shown yearly decreases in accidents, fatalities and injuries.

Fatalities dropped from 56 in 1969 to 40 in 1970. Injuries of all types declined from 594 in 1969 to 434 last year. There were 194 private motor vehicle accidents in 1969 and 164 in 1970. Government vehicle accidents dropped from 147 in 1969 to 117 last year.

Injuries and fatalities from sports and recreation activities declined from 152 in 1969 to 120 in 1970.

ATC Realizes RCP Savings

HQ. ATC (ATCPS)—The Air Training Command has realized a savings of $4.7 million for the first four months of Fiscal Year 1971, in the Resources Conservation Program (RECON).

The command has a FY RECON goal of $13 million. U. S. Air Force Recruiting Service has attained 75 per cent of its RECON goal, while Reese AFB, Tex., claims second by reaching 69 per cent of its goal. Lowry AFB, Colo., and the 3636th U. S. Air Force Survival School at Fairchild AFB, Wash., are tied for third place with a percentage of 61.

Lackland AFB, Tex. and Sheppard AFB, Tex. are the other installations that have attained at least 50 per cent of their goals.

Magazine Seeking Articles

HQ. ATC — The USAF Instructor Journal is seeking articles on instructor development for publication in its Summer 1971 issue.

Particularly needed are articles that discuss the how and why of technical instructor courses, cross training, and instructor evaluations; and the instructor recognition programs, instructor on-the-job training programs and in-service training programs.

Additionally, articles are needed that discuss instructor motivation, instructor selection, practice teaching and advanced training for instructors.

Articles for the Summer 1971 issue should be sent directly to Editor, USAF Instructor Journal, ATC/TTSJ, Randolph AFB, Tex. 78148, before March 15, 1971. Appropriate photographs or drawings should accompany each article.

OTS, Basic Programs Altered

HQ. ATC — The Air Training Command has altered its training programs for Officers Training School (OTS) and Basic Military Training (BMT) to meet projected Air Force requirements and make the Air Force more attractive.

A greatly improved classification and assignment system has been implemented. It gives nearly 80 per cent of all basic trainees their choice in one of their preferred job specialties.

OTS has eliminated field training, improved safety training, revised drug abuse training and included information on the Officer Development Program. Also, more instruction on the officer assignment system has been added and a practical applications laboratory has been instituted.

NCOA Chapter Reorganized; Dinner-Dance Scheduled

In an effort to revitalize participation and increase its membership, the governing body of the Mark T. Kuykendall Chapter of the NCO Association was reorganized at its monthly meeting

Reese To Host Dental Meeting

The Reese AFB Dental Service will host the monthly dinner meeting of the South Plains District Dental Society tomorrow at the Officers Open Mess. The society is composed of dentists from Lubbock and surrounding communities.

A social hour will start activities at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner. Principal speaker for the occasion will be Col. Charles W. Semands, assistant base dental surgeon and chief of prosthodontics at Sheppard AFB, Tex. His presentation will concern the field of prosthodontics and is one of the many continuing education programs in which the society and base dental staff participate throughout the year.

on Jan. 8. The chapter will now be operated under an executive committee concept, consisting of committee members.

Selected as new executive committee members were CMSgt. Elmer C. Martin, SMSgt. Kenneth Robinson and MSgt. Clifton G. Smith Jr., who join Sgt. James Ishee and TSgt. Thomas McKnight to comprise the governing committee. Operation of the chapter by the executive committee precludes the necessity of monthly membership meetings; however, quarterly membership meetings will be held to keep the members advised of chapter activities. Selected as the new chapter treasurer at the Jan. 8 meeting was SSgt. Edward Morrison. SSgt. Jack Howard was also selected as secretary.

The chapter has scheduled a dinner and dance at the NCO Open Mess Feb. 12. A cocktail hour will precede the dinner and the NCO Open Mess will provide a reduced-price bar from 6 to 9 p.m.

Honorary membership in the chapter will be extended to the wing and base commanders.

Allowable Income Tax Deductions Explained

By Capt. Peter O'Loughlin
Assistant Staff Judge Advocate

(This is the third of a series of articles aimed at assisting the military taxpayer in preparing his federal income tax return. The previous article discussed income, while this article deals with deductions reducing the amount on which the tax is finally levied.)

There are four general kinds of deductions for the typical military taxpayer. The first is for capital matters and is entered into line 15 of Form 1040. The second is "adjustments," which are entered into line 17 and are subtracted out toward reaching "adjusted gross income" in line 18. The third is the category of personal nonbusiness expenses, claimed by itemizing on Schedule A or by taking the well-known standard deduction. The fourth is the deduction for the personal exemptions of the taxpayer, his spouse and his dependents.

Usually the taxpayer's first question about deductions is what comes under the line 17 adjustments. The reason for this interest is, of course, that deductions in this category can be taken while still claiming the benefit of the standard deduction. Line 17 adjustments are for expenses connected to the taxpayer's business of being an employee, while personal, nonbusiness expense relate to the standard deduction or itemized deductions and the deductions for personal exemptions. These two categories of deductions will be the subjects of subsequent articles in this series.

Moving Expenses Emphasized

For the typical military taxpayer, available line 17 adjustments include the sick pay exclusion, moving expenses, and travel expenses. Of these three, by far the most important is the deduction for moving expenses. This deduction regards PCS moves and is explained in detail in a recent letter memo available at the legal office. The other possible adjustments are much less important. The sick pay exclusion is now a factor only in those infrequent situations when there is more than thirty days of absence from duty. Similarly, travel expenses (regarding TDY assignments) can be deducted only to the extent that they exceed the tax-exempt TDY allowances and only if precise, timely records are maintained.

The category of deductions regarding capital gains and losses is also very noteworthy and has been the subject of frequent inquiries this year. On the whole, the rules on this matter are complicated, requiring mathematical computation and careful segregation of long-term from short-term transactions. Schedule D of Form 1040 clarifies and facilitates this set of rules, however.

Capital gains and losses enter Form 1040 through line 15 and Schedule D and generally involve transactions in corporate stock, bonds and personal residences. Initially, gains and losses from all such transactions are reported in their entirety on Schedule D, whether the property was held for a long term (more than six months) or for a short term (less than six months). Then, if there is only a net long-term capital gain, 50 per cent of this net gain is available as a deduction on Schedule D. If there is also a net short-term capital loss, then 50 per cent of the excess of net long-term capital gain over the net short-term capital loss is available as a deduction on Schedule D. High-income taxpayers can take advantage of an alternative maximum percentage tax on such net gains.

On Capital Transactions

This year there is a great deal of interest about the rules regarding losses on capital transactions. If net capital losses exceed net capital gains, then the full amount of all short-term capital losses are deductible to the extent they exceed any net long-term capital gains. In addition,

50 per cent of any net long-term capital losses are also deductible, to the extent they exceed any short-term capital gain. However, there is a $1,000 limit on this deduction. If there is an excess of such amounts after reaching the $1,000 limit, this excess may be carried forward for use in succeeding years.

Military taxpayers should also note further the special rules regarding the sales of their personal residences. As for all taxpayers, any loss on such a sale is not deductible. But in addition, no gain enters line 15 of Form 1040 if the taxpayer purchases a new principal residence of the same price within one year before or four years after the sales, so long as he is on active duty. The four-year limitation is suspended while the person is in the combat zone and for 180 days thereafter. On the other hand, civilian taxpayers are subject to the strict requirement that any gain must be recognized and included in Form 1040 unless there is an appropriate purchase of a new principal residence within one year before or one year after the sale.

The big news this week is promotions. Our operations officer, Maj. Richard L. Moore, has been notified it is time to shuck the gold leaves and put on silver. Congratulations, Colonel Moore. Others have been selected for promotions to major, although it may be some time before they actually don their leaves. They are Captains Marvin H. Eichmeier, Harold D. May and David E. Thrans.

Captain May, by the way, is one of two flight commanders who are leaving this week. He will train into the McDonnell-Douglas F-4 at George AFB, Calif. The other is Capt. Wayne L. Wood, of C Flight, who will go to Florida to fly the North American OV-10.

First Lt. Roger W. Strandburg has departed Brahma Flight for Randolph AFB, Tex., and a TDY course to become an academic instructor at the Student Squadron. First Lt. Robert A. Carson, of C Flight, will be doing the same at a future date. C Flight has a new IP, 1st Lt. Carl D.

Sakal. He brings his wife, Kathy, with him.

The suspense is over for 1st Lt. Robert W. Buchwald and wife, Barbara. It's a girl—Katherine; 7 pounds, 9 ounces.

D Flight showed the wives of 72-03, Section II around the flight line Friday, hosted by 2nd Lt. Robert B. Taylor. Afterward both B and D Flights had an informal get together for students, IPs and wives.

Congratulations to Capt. Arlan J. Anderson of Check Section. He is our Outstanding IP for January and February.

On the sports front, both the basketball and bowling teams came out on top last week.

Capt. Leo B. Hunt has returned from Bootstrap schooling at Omaha, Neb. Welcome back! I overheard Capt. (soon major) Newt Campbell say: "I know Leo Hunt quite well, and I think this TOPLINE program is just what he wants."

The players returned to the base this past weekend and will prepare to finish up in the City Parks and Recreation Department sponsored Lubbock City League.

Goal Reached For 15th Straight Year

Suggestion Program Participation Praised

Col. James M. Breedlove, 3500th Pilot Training Wing commander, has added his appreciation to that of Headquarters, USAF, for Reese's part in making the Air Force the top participant among Department of Defense entities in the Military-Civilian Incentive Awards Program.

A DoD memorandum sent to the field stated: "Recently the military departments and other DoD components sent reports on the operation of their Incentive Awards Programs during Fiscal Year 1970. Our analysis of the data submitted revealed that tangible first-year benefits derived by Air Force from its civilian and military awards program were unmatched by any other DoD component."

Headquarters, USAF has established a goal of 30 per cent participation in the program for FY 1970. This was exceeded at Reese, as the goal has been for the past 15 consecutive years.

In reporting Reese participation in the program, Fred Flewellen, suggestion program monitor, said: "Reese AFB personnel are playing a major part in improving the base economically by offering quality suggestions. Civilian personnel attained a participation rate of 30.21 per cent during FY 1970 with first-year net tangible benefits of $77,525. The adoption rate for the number finalized was 35.92 per cent for which they were awarded $7,005. Of the military suggestions, 26.73 per cent were adopted during the year while their participation rate stood at 30.16 per cent. Military suggestors earned $3,740 in awards while saving the base $42,876." Mr. Flewellen noted that a large number of military suggestions for the period being reported are pending evaluation by higher headquarters, meaning the awards and savings were not finalized at the close of the fiscal year.

In adding his appreciation to Reese personnel for their participation, Colonel Breedlove stated: "Our austere situation in funds and manpower demands that every effort be made to improve the efficiency and economy of our operation. In view of the basic contents, it is readily apparent that much has been accomplished in this area through the Suggestion Program. Accordingly, I wish to add my appreciation for the past performance of our people and I solicit their active participation in this important program during 1971."

Colonel Breedlove added: "With respect to the Suggestion Program participation among military and civilian personnel here at Reese, my sincere appreciation for their achievements during FY 1971."

Campaign Service Designated

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS) — Air Force has identified its 11th campaign in Vietnam and established a starting date for the 12th, for purposes of determining eligibility for the award of the Vietnam Service Medal.

Major commands were advised that the 11th campaign has been designated the Vietnam Winter-Spring 1970 Campaign, with an opening date of Nov. 1, 1969, and a closing date of April 30, 1970. The 12th campaign, which began May 1, 1970, will be named when the termination date is established.

The original period of service for the award of the Vietnam Service Medal, designated the Vietnam Advisory Campaign, was between Nov. 15, 1961, and March 1, 1965.

Survival Training Established

HQ. ATC — A survival training division has been established in the Directorate of Operations at Air Training Command headquarters to direct all Air Force survival/life support training.

Under the leadership of Lt. Col. Russell D. Terpening, the division will direct the training of some 35,000 aircrew members annually.

In its initial act of becoming responsible for all survival instruction ATC will assume control of the Arctic School at Eielson AFB, Alaska, Feb. 1. The Jungle School at Clark AFB, Philippines, will come under ATC control April 1. Later this year the command will become responsible for all water survival training.

Security Police Career Eases

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS) — Air Force has advised major commands that manning in the security police career field has balanced sufficiently to permit removal of restrictions in March for airmen who wish to consider retraining.

Deficit manning prompted Air Force to suspend retraining of all career airmen from the security police specialty in December 1968. Management efforts implemented since then have helped to alleviate the shortage, according to officials at the Air Force Military Personnel Center.
