

Dormitory dedication planned for tomorrow

Building 420, one of three airmen's dormitories at Reese, will officially be named Alexander Hall in dedication ceremonies to be held in front of the building at 10 a.m., tomorrow.

The dormitory is to be named in memory of the late Capt. James E. Alexander, a former Reese instructor pilot who died June 16, 1972 of injuries sustained in the March 7 crash of his Northrop T-38 Talon jet trainer.

Those Attending

In attendance at the dedication will be Captain Alexander's parents, Air Force Col. and Mrs. Glenn R. Alexander, and Captain Alexander's brother, Air Force Capt. Jon R. Alexander, and his wife.

Colonel Alexander, presently stationed at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., will unveil a plaque commemorating his son during the ceremony.

Biography

Captain James Edward Alexander was born July 23, 1946. A 1968 graduate of the Air Force Academy, he was on the Commandant's List while a cadet and was awarded his "jump wings" upon completion of his Airborne Training. Captain Alexander was an avid participant in intramural sports.

After receiving his Undergraduate Pilot Training at Randolph AFB, Tex., he volunteered for duty in Vietnam and flew 1160 combat hours and 167 combat missions as a DeHavilland C-7 Caribou aircraft commander and instructor pilot. Among other honors, Captain Alexander earned the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, the Vietnamese Service Medal, and the National Defense Service Medal.

Speakers at the dorm naming will be Col. Walter H. Baxter III, wing commander, Capt. Jim Bettcher and TSgt. Darrell E. LaMontagne, base NCO career advisor.

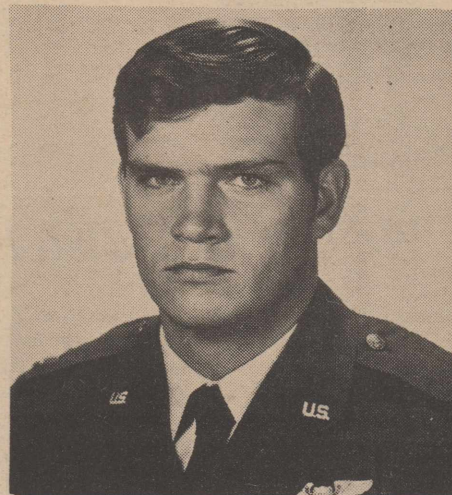

Reese pilots will perform the famous "missing man formation" in a fly-over during the ceremony.

Following the dedication ceremony, a reception will be held in the NCO Open Mess.

One of Three

The dormitory is one of three scheduled to be named after Reese personnel who have died in the line of duty while stationed here. Building 220 will be named Bartlett Hall Apr. 28 in memory of the late Capt. Dennis R. Bartlett. Building 320 will be dubbed Price Hall, June 16 honoring the late Capt. William R. Price, Jr.

"We are here also to support and aid

... through better management techniques"

Lieutenant Barnett

1st Lt. Leslie W. Barnett Management Engineering Officer

With the present degree of inflation and the great increase in the cost of personnel, it is no wonder that our defense budget has been curtailed to its present level.

These cuts in available funds have triggered off a series of manning reductions and civilian hiring freezes which has forced commanders and supervisors to utilize their manpower resources more efficiently now than ever before. This is happening at all levels of management from the Department of Defense to the lowest working level within a base.

No longer will the military be seen as an endless pool of manpower where a unit may mismanage their personnel resources and continue to operate. Under these tight conditions, managers will have to turn to better management techniques which will increase the efficiency of their manpower utilization.

The function of Management Engineering Detachment II, an extension of the Directorate of Manpower and Organization at Headquarters, Air Training Command (ATC) is to evaluate and determine the manpower required to accomplish Reese's mission and to provide an in-house management advisory service to assist Air Force managers in improving their organizational effectiveness.

The Detachment, commonly known as MED-11, is commanded by Capt. Wayne

H. Bonham and is composed of two branches. The manpower branch, headed by Mrs. Donn N. Yarbrough, provides assistance in the determination of manpower organizational structure and manning requirements within the base. Manpower reviews are usually made at the request of individual offices to solve general management problems and improve their organizational structures.

Procedures are analyzed to determine if more effective methods could be employed in accomplishing the mission. These services are available to any work center within the base when the time is not taken up by Air Force and Major Command directed studies.

So what is this article to you—commanders and supervisors who work day by day in accomplishing your mission with a limited amount of manpower resources. MED-11 is not only here at Reese to evaluate and determine manpower requirements and organizational structures for this base, and in so doing, economize in the ever increasing cost of personnel. We are here also to support and aid Reese's commanders and supervisors through better management techniques so that Reese's mission will continue to be accomplished efficiently and economically.

Managers and supervisors currently experiencing management problems or having questions on the subject should direct all inquiries to this office. We are located in bldg. 35 and the extension is 2713.

Article 15 myths cleared up

By Bob Reed
ATC Office of Information

Eavesdrop on a bunch of Air Force guys and gals rapping about Article 15 sometime. You'll probably come up with about the same amount of factual information that would emerge from a similar discussion on what causes warts.

Warts exist; but you don't get them by handling frogs. Article 15 is a legitimate part of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ). But it is not a club which can be used by a commander to discipline anyone he doesn't happen to like, disregarding clearly spelled-out military legal rights. (Which brings up a fringe tidbit: A civilian's basic legal rights don't just disappear in a puff of Air Force-blue smoke when he enters the service.)

But back to exploding myths about Article 15: First, not just anyone can impose it—only the commanding officer of a unit, or (on rare occasions) someone to whom the authority has been legally delegated. And it can only be given for some clearly stated act or omission which has breached the UCMJ.

An NCO can't give an Article 15 on his own. He has to convince the commander that it is merited, so had better be sure of his facts. And—contrary to widespread misunderstanding—neither can a Judge Advocate. His job is to make sure that everything is done by the book.

And how many airmen know that they don't have to accept Article 15s? They can say "no," and will then probably be given an opportunity to present their cases at a court-martial, more like a civilian trial.

However—a big however—if guilty, an airman had better think twice before pursuing the latter course. An Article 15 does go onto a military record and can possibly affect future promotions, assignments or security clearances. But it doesn't damage him when he returns to civilian life as a court-martial conviction would, since that becomes part of his permanent record. There is no need to even mention an Article 15 to a prospective employer.

If you're about to have an Article 15 laid on you, make sure that the commander (who is just as interested as you are in getting at the truth) knows all about your side of the story.

How? It's quite simple. Talk to a legal officer immediately—before sign anything. That's why he's there. That's what the government pays him for—to advise you. (You can't beat price, either: It's free.) He will see that your specifically stated right to have written statements or other pertinent documentary evidence attached to the file is observed.

Now wait just a minute before you run out and nail up a shingle as a gilt-edged guardhouse lawyer! Remember: These are just a few sketchy highlights of a very complex subject. Go to an expert, the one best qualified to lead you through legal bramble patches—your legal officer. It's your right.

STC seeks aid from enlistees

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS) —The United States Air Force Special Treatment Center (STC) at Lackland AFB, Tex., is looking for highly qualified enlisted personnel who want challenging work and the opportunity to assist drug abusers with their problems.

The STC is the Air Force's central facility for drug rehabilitation and there is an immediate and continuing need for staff members. To provide for stability in manning, the STC has been designated as a major command controlled special duty assignment under Air Force Manual (AFM) 39-11.

Program Breakdown

In a program ranging from nine to 13 weeks, the STC treats airmen who are physiologically or psychologically dependent on drugs to such an extent that they cannot be effectively treated at their local installations. The program consist of one to two weeks of psychiatric evaluation (Phase III) and seven to 11 weeks of behavioral reorientation (Phase IV).

Volunteers must possess one of the following Air Force Specialty Codes (AFSCs): 702X0; 704X0; 732X0; 734X0 A, B or C; 741X0; 741X1; 751X0; 751X2; 791X0; 902X0; 903X0; 904X0; 906X0; 914X0; 914X1 or 915X1.

Mandatory Prerequisites

Mandatory prerequisites are covered under AFM 39-11, paragraph 3002b. Applicants must be interviewed and recommended by their respective commander. The recommendation must include a statement verifying that the applicant is one of highest quality in appearance, moral character, emotional stability and maturity.

Other prerequisites include the need that the individual must have no known history which indicate conflicts with the mission or objectives of STC. He must have a sincere desire to work with patients undergoing rehabilitation and he must be a volunteer for STC duty.

The applicants for STC duty must have an outstanding record. This must be supported by his last three airman performance reports (APRs). A full-length photograph of applicant and a current physical profile are also required.

A desirable qualification, but not a mandatory one, is that the applicant have a college degree in behavioral science or a related field.

The application should be submitted on Air Force form 109 in accordance with paragraph 3002c of AFM 39-11 and be sent to: Special Treatment Center, Lackland AFB, Tex., 78236, Attention: RH.

Supply man named Airman of Month

A supply specialist assigned to the Research Section of the Item Accounting Branch of the 64th Supply Squadron has been named Airman of the Month for February.

A1C Barry J. Jennison was nominated for the honor by Maj. James R. Price, chief of supply. The letter stated in part, "His duty performance has been outstanding. He demonstrates initiative, judgement, leadership and knowledge of the supply concept in every task he has performed."

Airman Jennison's duties consist of researching for item identification, classification and initiating item record loads into the 1050-II Univac computer. He also prepares and maintains some control records and Air Training Command (ATC) requirements.

Major Price's letter continued, "Airman Jennison is career-minded and has enlisted in the Air Force for six years. I consider Airman Jennison an outstanding citizen in all aspects. It is a pleasure to have men of Airman Jennison's caliber. I strongly recommend his selection as the Wing Airman of the Month," he concluded.

Presently in training for his on-the-job-training (OJT) 5-skill level, Airman Jennison is interested in furthering his education. He is also attending on-base college in history, algebra and English.

Strength adjustment plan confirmed by President

WASHINGTON (AFNS)— Air Force has announced a strength adjustment program to meet the fiscal year 1973 end strength confirmed by President Nixon's budget which was forwarded to Congress Jan. 29.

Air Force is recruiting the minimum number necessary to maintain its enlisted career force. This policy, coupled with voluntary loss actions, is enabling Air Force planners to work toward a FY 73 enlisted end strength of 572,795 which is 26,979 fewer members than were onboard at the end of FY 72.

Difficult Reduction

Officials indicate that coping with required officer reductions will be more difficult. Officer strength for the end of FY 73 has been targeted at 115,122, more than 6,000 below the FY 72 total.

Although nearly 5,000 officers have been separated or retired to date as a result of previous actions, officials said it is now clear that they will not induce sufficient losses to meet the targeted strength figure for FY 73. In order to generate additional losses, Air Force has approved implementation of the following additional programs:

An early release program is being offered to selected rated officers who have dates of separation between July and December 1973. Requests for separation will be evaluated on an individual basis for mission impact.

Certain officers serving in limited assignment status will be reviewed for possible medical separation or retirement.

Early Retirement

Some reserve officers with more than 20 years service who are serving beyond 20 years because of service commitments incurred as a result of a promotion will be retired as soon as possible. It is mandatory that six months of the two-year service commitments be served.

Officials emphasized that in all actions being taken consideration will be given to mission requirements and hardships on the individual.

These new policies represent the latest in a series of actions taken by the Air Force to cope with its declining strength problem.

As in the past, Air Force's loss management programs are tailored to the size of the reductions required. They rely on those actions which cause minimum disruption and hardship to Air Force people while sustaining combat capability to meet mission requirements.

The sales will be conducted in the Mathis Recreation Center

Bowling team continues lead even through tense moments

By Capt. Charles M. Thrash

A couple of weeks ago I quoted Capt. Skip Franklin on how he thought the 35th Flying Training Squadron (FTS), Section II, bowling team would have no problems in continuing their dominion of the bowling league.

Well, Skip had second thoughts after the article went to press and then began to think maybe his team couldn't live up to his boasts.

When our Section I bowling team heard of Skip's remarks, they vowed revenge. Last week when the showdown occurred . . . Skip buckled under the pressure. He only managed an opening game of 144—well below his normal average of nearly 200. However, the remainder of the team was able to withstand the pressure and the Section II team walked off with their third victory in four tries.

Several members of Class 74-03 have had some unique adjustments to make during undergraduate pilot training (UPT). It seems the transition from Army helicopter to Air Force jet jockey has its trying moments.

At first they kept calling for permission to perform a hover check instead of asking for taxi instructions. Next they kept thinking that trim was the fancy markings around the airplane.

However, we understand they finally began to make some progress when the former copter pilots realized that the Cessna T-37 lands at an airspeed slightly above zero knots.

TB case discovered, brought under control

By A1C Buddy Lerch

A case of active tuberculosis (TB) was recently identified at Reese, and USAF Hospital officials here say they are "on top of the program" in treatment of the affected member, an Air Force NCO, and all "possible contacts" he has made.

Testing and Treatment

Over 175 people who have come in close contact with the sergeant have been tested and those affected are undergoing treatment for the curable disease.

Since the disease was discovered, the sergeant has been sent to the USAF Regional Hospital at Sheppard AFB, Tex. for confirmation of the preliminary diagnosis and subsequently to the Air Force Treatment Center for Chest Diseases at Scott AFB, Ill., for treatment.

Of the 175 people interviewed and tested for infection to date, only 18 produced a positive reaction to the TB tine test, meaning simply they have come in contact with an active case but are not necessarily active cases themselves. These people are undergoing a treatment which kills the TB bacillus.

It was pointed out that no other active cases have been diagnosed, and that hospital officials do not anticipate any more active cases, but will keep looking.

Contacts Sought

TSgt. Samuel P. Forbes, NCOIC of Military Public Health, is personally seeking out every possible true contact made with the infected sergeant, and is seeing to it that each one comes in to the hospital to be tested. According to Sergeant Forbes, "We would rather be over-cautious now than sorry later. By going ahead and treating each positive contact, we eliminate the risk of one of these contacts developing an active TB case later."

The sergeant continued, "Because the close contacts that had positive skin tests are being put on preventive therapy, the people around them are under the impression these positive contacts have an active case, and that is not true. 'It's simply a safety precaution. The only thing we are trying to get across to the public is that there is no reason for panic. We are on top of the program, and are following up every lead and every contact.'"

Survivor benefit questions posed

Editor's note: The following questions are some of those often asked concerning the Survivor's Benefit Plan (SBP).

The following is a part of a series supplied for information concerning SBP and the answers have been provided by the Military Personnel Center (MPC) at Randolph AFB, Tex.

QUESTION: If, at retirement, a member does choose less than full retired pay as his or her SBP base amount, may the retiree later up participation to the maximum level?

ANSWER: No. The member who has a spouse or dependent child at retirement and elects less than maximum participation has made a permanent decision on SBP concerning the extent to which he or she will participate to protect that spouse or child. Regardless of how the dependency picture may change in the future or how many such survivor protection needs may increase as time passes, the retiree cannot later participate at any higher level and thus leave for survivors—a spouse or still-dependent child—the maximum monthly payment provided by the law.

QUESTION: What is a member who has a spouse at retirement determines that, at this time, he or she does not need survivor protection for the spouse and declines all participation in the plan? Can he or she enter the plan later and provide an SBP monthly payment for the spouse?

ANSWER: No. Even though the member's financial or health picture changes significantly and survivor protection under SBP later seems a desirable and needed asset, the member could not enter the plan to protect a spouse. Declining SBP participation for a spouse prior to retirement eliminates any future participation to protect a spouse. However, a member who has children at retirement may elect not to cover the children at that time; but, if he later acquires another child, he may elect to cover all eligible children.

QUESTION: I understand fairly well how the spouse protection works under SBP. However, I will have dependent children at retirement time, as well as spouse. How are the children affected by the new law?

ANSWER: Assuming that your retirement takes place after the SBP enactment date of September 21, 1972, you have the advantage of the automatic participation at maximum level if you do not reduce the extent of this participation or decline participation prior to retirement. Members who retire with dependent children as well as spouses pay a small additional amount to protect the children. If a spouse survives the retiree, the monthly SBP payment is made to the spouse. However, with the additional children's protection, the SBP payment flows automatically to eligible children if the retiree is not survived by a spouse. The payment would also flow to the children should a surviving spouse later remarry or die while the children were still eligible for SBP beneficiaries.

QUESTION: What is the cost for SBP protection when a member retires with both a spouse and a dependent child or children?

ANSWER: The cost—or deduction in retired pay—for the children portion of spouse-and-children participation is computed on an individual basis. The amount by which the member's retired pay is reduced will depend on his (or her) age at retirement, the age of the spouse at retirement, and the age of the youngest child covered. On the average the cost for this protection will run about 1/2 per cent of monthly retired pay (or lesser base amount if chosen). This amount is deducted from the retiree's retired pay only as long as at least one child remains an eligible SBP beneficiary, however.

Disability retirement statutes see change in administration

WASHINGTON (AFNS) Revised guidelines for administering physical disability retirement laws have been issued to the military services by the Defense Department.

The new guidelines are expected to result in a decrease in physical disability retirements.

Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson said the guidelines are designed to insure greater consistency in the way determinations of unfitness for duty are made. Previously there had been variations by the services in making these determinations.

Guidelines Given

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force Chief of Staff, outlined Air Force policy based on the Defense Department guidelines:

Effective immediately, a blue-suiter can be retired as unfit because of disability only when he is unable to perform the duties of his office, rank, grade or rating in such a manner as to reasonably fulfill the purpose of his employment on active duty. This same test applies at all phases in a member's career.

"It has long been recognized," said General Ryan, "that disability retirement pay is intended primarily to compensate those who cannot continue to serve because of physical disabilities. The disability retirement must not be misused to bestow tax benefits on those who have continued to draw pay and allowances, receive promotions, and remain on active duty while tolerating physical problems that have not actually interfered with the purpose of their employment on active duty."

Under the new policy no one who has been fit for duty can be unfit at retirement in the absence of "... some significant change in condition."

Policy Explained

The new policy requires a full explanation in all cases where a member has an established date of separation or retirement which is within one year of an unfitness determination; in cases where a member has been on flying status within one year preceding an unfitness determination; in cases where a finding of unfitness is based on physical defects that existed at the time of the member's last periodic examination but had not previously been found unfitting; and where a finding of unfitness is based on the combined effect of two or more defects when no one defect would justify a finding of unfitness.

Under the Defense guidelines

if the member has performed his duties until his time of separation it will be presumed that he is fit for duty. While a member may request review of the presumption of fitness, evaluation boards normally will be required to give greater weight to his continued performance than to clinical estimates by health personnel of his ability to perform his duties.

The guidelines are not intended to affect the future physical disability retirement or those few disabled members, such as amputees, who, although not qualified for normal military duty, are retained on active duty in a limited assignment because of their special skills or knowledge.

54th finally gets break from flying

By Capt. Roger Carter

Respite is finally approaching after all of these long days the 54th has logged these past few weeks.

Of course . . . that break will come in the form of the squadron flight suit party scheduled for tomorrow at the Party House. Features will include lots of free beer and plenty of entertaining conversation. The only unconfirmed event is that Capt. Norm Baker of Echo Flight has NOT as yet consented to sing.

First Promotion

One among our numbers has even more reason to celebrate. First Lt. John Dyer of Dawg Flight finally pinned on his silver bars last week. He is the first in the squadron to do so since the lifting of the freeze. Congratulations . . . now where is the keg?

Moves around the squadron have Capt. Geo. Roberts giving up his desk down at squadron operations for an assistant flight commander position with Bar-acuda Flight. Echo Flight's Capt. Bob Wallick is taking up permanent residence of sorts in Charlie Flight also in the assistant flight commander's role.

A usually reliable source around the flight line shows no truth to the rumor that the time hacks might be given in reference to the calendar.

Week's Award

The dazzling student and daring instructor awards of the week go to the heroic herd from Hawg Flight. So far as the records show they have chalked up a couple of medical firsts with the first student to every suffer an ear block riding in the mobile truck and the first instructor to get "ramp sick" during a pre-flight. Take two aspirin and mail in your DNIF statements, 2nd Lt. George Pidgeon and 1st Lt. Buzz Erickson.

Question of the week: Does one really earn an error during a Standardization/Evaluation check ride if he forgets his parachute?

USAF drug testing results releasable

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS)—July-December 1972 results of urinalysis testing for drug abuse in Air Training Command are now available.

In that time, permanent party personnel on ATC bases submitted approximately 24,000 urine specimens for analysis. Of that number, eight drug users were identified.

Those directed to submit specimens are chosen by random sampling based on the last two digits of their serial numbers, and must comply within eight hours unless excused for one of a very few officially acceptable reasons. If they neglect to do this—become "no-shows"—they are automatically required to submit three specimens a week for four weeks.

(The ATC Surgeon emphasizes that this is not punishment. Since everyone is—or should be, by this time—aware of the rules, failure to submit a specimen when ordered naturally arouses suspicion.)

The rate of no-shows within ATC has declined to .4 per cent, as opposed to the worldwide Air Force average of 2.1 per cent. While this is gratifying, commanders have been instructed to take all necessary measure to reduce the no-show rate to zero.

Week's menu given

The Wing Dining Hall has announced the menu planned for this week.

Today— Slated for the lunch meal are fried shrimp and Mexican pork slices. Clam chowder, fish filets and corned beef will be served at supper.

Tomorrow— Lunch will feature bratwurst, with supper seeing roast beef and veal steak served.

Sunday— Grilled steak will be served at the combination lunch-supper meal.

Monday— Lunch will feature baked chicken and veal loaf, followed by roast beef and roast pork at supper.

Tuesday— Fried chicken, baked lasagna and roast turkey will be served for lunch. Ham steaks will be the supper feature.

Wednesday— Lunch has braised beef cubes, grilled liver and meat loaf slated. Roast ham and Newport fried chicken will be served at supper.

Thursday— Salisbury steaks, prime rib of beef and braised pork slices are to be served for lunch, with barbeque country style ribs and beef stroganoff scheduled for supper.

'Palace Chase' program reviewed on cassette

This week's review of the Palace Flicks program centers around the sound-on-film cassette entitled "Palace Chase".

The program is available in the Consolidated Base Personnel Office (CBPO), bldg. T-815.

The five-minute cassette, aimed at all personnel, explains the what, why and how of the Palace Chase program which is designed to support the total force concept.

The program accomplishes this through the transfer of experienced personnel from the active force to the Air National Guard and USAF Reserve. The Air Force is composed of three elements—the active, the Air National Guard, and the Air Force Reserves. Together, they represent the total aerospace power of the Air Force. Each component has a vital mission in support of national security and each needs skilled dedicated officers and airmen to support that mission.

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS) —Details of a new program which allows active duty airmen to compete for Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps scholarships have been announced here by Air Force Military Personnel Center officials.

Formal education due new increase for airmen

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS)—A new program designed to assist airmen throughout Air Training Command strengthen their essential education skills will begin by the first of April.

The Career Advancement Program (CAP) has been formulated by ATC to "fill the gaps" in an airman's formal education. The program will focus on improving reading and communication skills. CAP is designed to help airmen be more successful on the job and to compete more favorably for promotion. It is not a remedial program.

The concept involves an on-base study center that is open at least four hours a day. Instructors design an individualized program and work closely with each student.

Normally, at least one instructor will be provided for every fifteen students enrolled, and instruction will be presented on a "self-discovery" format. Since the program is unstructured, students may enter at any time and remain in the program until his weaknesses are corrected.

Each potential student is identified, tested and counseled informally by an education counselor prior to his assignment to the center. Once enrolled, attendance is mandatory.

Since the flexible curriculum of CAP is conducted during normal duty hours, supervisors will be required to arrange duty schedules to permit participation. Airmen will not be required to "make up" the 12½ hours of duty time spent in the program each week.

Education officers will periodically evaluate and counsel each student and make recommendations to the instructor. A liaison NCO will also be appointed to help coordinate needs of the students and provide feedback to make the program more effective.

Community College gets accreditation with SCAS

Also accredited for a five year period was the School of Health Care Science at Sheppard AFB and the USAF Security Service School at Goodfellow AFB, Tex.

Affiliation of the CCAF with the SACS has been designed to undergo self study and be subject to SACS visitation during the coming year as the institution moves toward fully accredited status.

Air Force excels in athletics

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS)—Air Force members won interservice team championships in basketball, men's bowling, senior golf, fastpitch and slowpitch softball and volleyball during 1972.

Several airmen went on to national competition, winning individual titles in boxing, diving, judo, luge, shooting and wrestling.

In addition, Air Force personnel were also members of the Armed Forces team that won the national championship in basketball. In international competition, blue-suiters were selected for teams representing the United States in basketball, bobsled, boxing, cross-country, cycling, judo, luge, modern pentathlon, rowing, sailing, shooting, diving, track and field, volleyball, and wrestling.

Seven Air Force athletes participated in the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, and eight participated in the 1972 Summer Olympics in Munich, Germany. Capt. Maxine (Micki) King won a gold medal in the three-meter springboard diving competition and Sgt. Ricardo Carreras and Sgt. Jesse Valdez won bronze medals in boxing.

Top chess players vie for big tournament slots

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The American Chess Foundation has extended an invitation to the top six rated chess players from each of the three services to participate in the 14th annual Armed Forces Chess Tournament.

The event will be held in the Hall of Flags at the American Legion Building in Washington, D.C., Oct. 26 through Nov. 2.

Air Force will select its team from the top six scorers in its annual tournament to be held at Chanute AFB, Ill., Oct. 20-23.

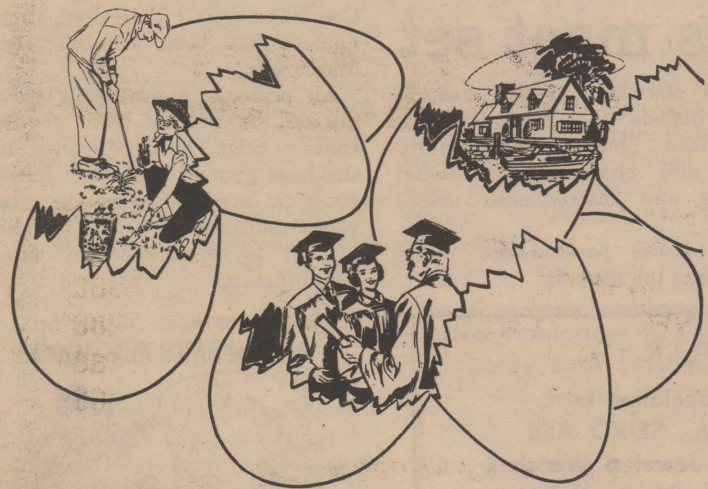

Tournament cosponsors are the American Legion, American Chess Foundation and the United Service Organization (USO).

Since 1961, Air Force and Army have each won the top award four times and tied twice. Air Force has produced the most individual champions with a total of six.

Last year Coast Guard Lt. Zaccarias Chavez and the sea services took all of the honors.
