"It is easy to follow these simple common sense rules and still enjoy water sports."

By Milo G. Johonnett Wing Ground Safety Officer

We need help! The Safety Office is snowed under with reports and schedules this time of year because a few people don't take the time to exercise simple rules of safety.

Recently, Maj. Gen. James E. Bolt, the Air Training Command inspector general, sent a message to all ATC commanders. In it he expressed "grave concern" over a number of recent drownings and "the apparent disregard for well-known and common sense safety precautions that should be observed in water recreation activities."

He also called for "positive remedial" actions to arrest this unfavorable trend. As a result, we're racking our brains to come up with new ways to stress safety rules of common sense. Perhaps the simplest way is to be state the facts: swim only in authorized areas where there are life guards; avoid horse paly around the water (especially on slippery pool aprons); wear life preservers when boating and watch your children at all times around water recreation areas. It is easy to follow these simple rules and still enjoy water

The same holds true for summer driving. That is to say, using your better judgement in trip planning, complying with all local, state and federal traffic laws, knowing not to drink before driving, resting when you're tired and other rules that maybe no one will know you've violated until it is too late.

With the Independence Day holiday coming up Wednesday and the fireworks, we see another potential heavy workload of accident reports. Follow all safety directives on the fireworks and make sure your children are well out of the range of any flying sparks and smoke bombs. Firecrackers are a tremendous hazard and should only be used when adult supervision is available.

Accident reports are a major function of our office and we seem swamped with them when there are many other things to be done. We must answer inquiries from higher headquarters, as well as answering other correspondence. On top of all this we have to administer and develop the routine portions of the accident prevention program

In the meantime, we need help! We simply do not have the time to investigate and report accidents. So, don't be a statistic. Instead, have a safe and happy life.

Slay calls for guarding of military name

By Maj. Gen. Alton D. Slay Lowry Technical Training Center commander

Whether it is a person, place, thing, idea or action—everything can be easily identified by its name. Even in limitless outer space or in the depths of the oceans, objects and places have been given a name so that they can be identified.

We as individuals also have names that we can be called, identified with, paid by, etc. Our names are our birthrights and something of which to be justly proud. As such, we naturally tend to guard them from blemish, whether by deed or accusation.

As members of the United States Air Force, we also have other names. We are known as airmen. This pegs us as members of a particular family-the U.S. Air Force-making us easily identified by profession and uniform.

We have a dual responsibility in not only guarding our family names, but also our military name. Our conduct and actions reflect upon us both as individuals and as members of the Air Force family as well.

We are more closely watched than our civilian neighbors because we are a part of a profession that is apart from the remainder of our nation's population. We dress differently because we must wear uniforms; our family life is most often quite different because of our constant moves, trips overseas, working hours, special facilities, type of work we do; and, most important, we comprise a small segment of the total American population. Because of these and other differences, we are noticed.

Because we are noticed, our actions and words take on more significance. Our words and deeds are the basis for judgments of other members of the military community as well as ourselves. It is important, therefore, that we exercise prudence in our speech and actions so that we contribute to the good family name of airmen.

Dear Colonel Baxter

During the graduation dinner for Class 73-09 I again had the pleasure of listening to you speak. In your talk you repeated the often used expression— 'The mission of the Air Force is to fly and to fight and don't you ever forget it!" I feel this is an incomplete statement of the Air Force mission.

The mission of the military is to execute lawfully given orders. We must of course be prepared to fly and to fight, but we should also recognize that we could be ordered to do other acts equally as important to the nation. Much of the current distrust of the military system stems from the widespread belief that the military is "prowar". We realize that this is not true. However, as long as the motto of "flying and fighting" is emphasized, confusion will exist in the civilian community

Even within the military community some confusion exists. Recently Air Force general confused the "flying and fighting" part of the mission with the overall mission of taking orders. General LaVelle violated the same trust as Captain Heck, the Boeing B-52 Stratofortress pilot who refused to fly combat sorties. Both officers sullied themselves and the Air Force.

I feel that you will generate the same respect for the Air Force if the motto you quote to both civilian and military communities reflects the overall mission of the Air Force-to support the United States through the execution of lawfully given order. Thank you for your concern.

> Respectfully. Capt. Robert J. Perkins

Dear Captain Perkins,

Thanks for your comment. Each person is entitled to his own opinion. I would also change General Ryan's abbreviated mission statement if I were generating it: "The mission of the Air Force is to fly, fight, and WIN."

New law permits voluntary early retirement for civilians

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Legistion permitting voluntary early civilian retirement as part of a current reduction-in-force (RIF) was signed into law by President Nixon June 12.

The law allows civilian employees to retire if their department is undergoing major reductions in force and they have more than 25 years of service or have 20 years of service and are more than 50 years of age.

Scheduler gains honor for month of June

Capt. Stephen B. Maddox has been named as 54th Flying Training Squadron Instruction Pilot for the Month of June.

Capt. Norman R. Baker, A Flight commander, cited two reasons in the choice of Captain Maddox for the honor. The first was "his ability as flight scheduler to insure all students met the graduating date of the last departing class. He succeeded in scheduling the flight out of a 200-sortie deficit in only 10 days. This feat was accomplished without any sortie deviations and without sacrificing student continuity."

Second Reason

Captain Baker continued, "The second factor of Captain Maddox's performance which deserved recognition is his desire to have the students learn. With the busy schedule we had in preparation for graduation, Captain Maddox still conducted three weekend study sessions for students. He helped them prepare for upcoming navigation checks and insured they had questions answered about their new assignments."

Native Texas

Prior to be assigned at Reese, the 25-year-old native of Pampa, Texas, was assigned to the 56th Special Operations Wing at Udorn, Thailand, where he served as forward air controller. flying the North American OV-10 Bronco and the Cessna O-1

Captain Maddox is a 1969 graduate of Texas A & M University with a bachelor of science degree in agricultural economics. He is married to the former Rosellin Malakoff, and they have two daughters. The Maddox family presently lives in Lubbock.

Researchers find cure for altitude danger

WASHINGTON (AFNS)-Air Force researchers may have found a solution to one of the most deadly factors facing pilots flying at high altitudes—contaminated

In an aircraft, oxygen contaminated with foreign elements can be toxic and cause serious illness or death. Demands placed on today's manned Air Force weapon systems require a rapid means of detecting these contaminants.

Research at the Environmental Sciences Division of Air Force Systems Command's Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine (USAF SAM) has now produced two prototype rapid-detectioninstruments—the portable infrared analyzer and the gas chromatographic analyzer—both of which can confirm, on the spot, whether the oxygen or its system is contaminated.

Until now there has been no rapid-detection system capable of analyzing oxygen at the point of delivery to the pilot. Present procedures require a sample of the aircraft oxygen supply be sent to a regional laboratory for analyses in event of a physiological incident. This procedure does not determine whether the entire oxygen system is contaminated.

Field tests of the portable infrared analyzer have shown this technique provides adequate sensitivity and analysis in about 15 minutes. It is compact and rugged, and can be transported without affecting its analytical ac-

Laboratory tests of the gas chromatographic analyzer are nearing completion, and field evaluation will commence shortly. Research and investigation efforts by USAF SAM scientists should result in an early solution to one of the many operational life support problems confronting the Air Force flyer.

Some officers face early outs

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS)-Faced with continued strength ceiling and budget limitations, Air Force has announced an FY 74 Early Separation Program for support officers.

Closely patterned after the FY 73 early-out programs, "Officer FY 74 Early Separation Program-Policy 1" is open to most nonrated officers, including chaplains and permanent Code 2 rated personnel, with total active Federal commissioned service dates (TAFCSD) from July 1, 1961 thru June 30, 1972.

Application deadline is Aug. 2,

Rated personnel other than permanent Code 2, officers of the medical service, and judge advocates may not apply. Also ineligible are officers assigned to or in training for the 16XXB, 17XX, 182X, 28XX, 30XX and 51XX specilities. Service academy and AFROTC scholarship graduates will not be released prior to completion of five and four years' active duty, respectively. Consolidated base personnel offices (CBPOs) have details on other ineligible cate-

Eligible officers may apply for early exit dates ranging from July 15, 1973 through June 29,

Overseas-based officers in short-tour areas (17 months or less) may apply for a separation date coinciding with their normal return date (DEROS). Those serving long overseas tours must complete at least a year of the tour and may not apply for a seperation date beyond their normal DEROS.

As in earlier programs, Air Force approval or disapproval of individual application will be based on Air Force requirements. Affecting this decision will be duty location, time on station, expenditure of funds for replacement, and TOPLINE year group restructuring to conform with TOPLINE objectives.

AF warns retirees on allotments

Denver, Colo. (AFNS)-If you don't want your allotments to come out of your retirement paycheck, stop them at least a month before the month of retirement, Air Force Accounting and Finance Center (AFAFC) spokesman ad-

Air Force Manual 117-105, "Military Pay," states that unless active-duty allotments are stopped before retirement, they will continue to be deducted from a member's retirement pay.

The lead time is necessary to meet computer schedules, say AFAFC officials.

AFMPC releases 26 career guides

The Air Force Military Personnel Center has announced the next 26 titles of the booklets in the airman career progression pattern program. The booklets will cover all aspects of each specialty, from number of remote tours one might except during a career to average years of service required for promotion to each grade.

There will also be information on the airmen personnel career plan, classification, training, education, incentive pay, commissioning opportunities, transition, separations and air reserve forces opportunities.

The career guides will cover the following fields:

Radio communications analysis (202XX); linguist interrogator (203XX); intelligence operations (204XX); imagery interpreter (206XX); Morse system and printer operator (207XX); aerospace control and warning systems operator/electronic warfare countermeasures (276XX); security (811XX); law enforcement (812XX); munitions maintenance (461XX); weapons mechanic (462XX); nuclear weapons mechanic (463XX); communications center (291XX); and radar repairman (303XX).

Also, communications equipment systems repairman (304XX); electronic computer systems repairman (305XX); flight/weapons control systems mechanic (322XX); communications and relay center equipment repairman (363XX); carpenter / mason / plumber / protective coating (552XX); cook dietician (622XX); fuel (631XX); material facilities (647XX); stenographer (704XX); instrumentalist (871-XX); radiology (903XX); medical laboratory (904XX); and pharmacy

Normal distribution of the career guides will be made by base personnel customer service centers. Many other enlisted personnel will receive their guides during formal technical training courses where the pamphlet material will be part of the instruction.

New airmen who don't receive technical training will be briefed on the pamphlets at their initial permanent duty station.

The first three pamphlets, which were announced earlier, are expected to be distributed within 60 to 90 days. They will cover the larger specialty fields such as aircraft maintenance (431XX), supply (645XX) and personnel

Center personnel managers say the entire series, covering all 158 enlisted specialties, will be available by early next year.

WHAT IS IT?—This somewhat strange looking aircraft pulled up on the flight line recently during a stop on a cross-country mission. It is a North American OV-10 Bronco. It is a two-man, twin-engined, lightly armed reconnaissance aircraft. (U.S. Air Force Photo by Sgt. Dennis Mehrenberg)

CCAF changes transcript criteria

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS) -Until recently, Community College of the Air Force transcripts were available only to airmen who had completed formal resident training since Jan. 1, 1968 at one of the Air Force Schools of Applied Aerospace Sciences, the School of Health Care Sciences, or the USAF Security Service School.

Beginning May 1, many courses completed between 1963 and 1968 can be added to the transcripts of active duty airmen. Education Services officers have information on the necessary procedures required to register airmen in Career Education Certificate (CEC) programs.

Courses completed within 19 years of the date an airman registers in a CEC study program can in many cases be added to the airman's transcript.

The necessary conditions are that the course be relevant to the airman's particular study program and that they have enough information on the course to describe it in terms of subjects and semester hours.

CCAF has developed a Work Center Management curriculum

for airmen who completed their technical training more than 10 years ago. They may be given credit for progress through the dual channel on-the-job training program for their specialty.

The Reese Education Offices is expected to have complete information on this particular program by early June.

Company plans highway safety presentation here

A special Highway Safe: ty Program, sponsored by Champion Spark Plug Company, will be presented at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the base theater July 11 by verteran Indianapolis race driver Duane Carter.

The program was first presented at military facilities in 1958, and since that time a team of drivers has been assigned to visit various bases to deliver a safety message.

In commenting on the program, Carter said, "On the racetrack or the highway, attitude is the biggest factor in safe driving. By keeping a car in good operating condition, being mentally

Carrying gas creates serious safety hazard

Publicity regarding gasoline shortage has prompted motorists in some parts of the country to carry an extra supply of gasoline in the vehicle luggage compartments of their cars, according to Reese Safety officials.

This practice creates a serious hazard and should be discouraged. A minor leak in the container could cause a serious concentration of fumes in the passenger compartment of the automobile. These fumes may be lethal after prolonged periods of breathing them or they may explode with the simple act of lighting a cigarette.

In the event of an accident, these containers are also subject to rupture and exploding. Reese Safety officials advise all personnel not to carry gasoline containers with extra supplies of "Deliverance" will kick off this week's scheduled features at the base theater tonight.

Showings begin at 8 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday unless otherwise noted. The Saturday matinee begins at 2 p.m.

Tonight

Jon Voight and Burt Reynolds star in "Deliverance", an action-packed adventure which pits four city businessmen against nature, themselves and depraved Georgian hillbillies. Nominated for three Academy Awards, "Deliverance" reaches peaks of suspense which are at times unbearable. The feature is rated R, patrons under 17 require accompanying parent or adult guardian.

Matinee Tomorrow

"Moon Zero Two", starring James Olson and Catherine Von Schell, is the story of everyday life on the moon in the year 2021. The show is rated G, all ages admitted.

Tomorrow Evening

Rory Calhoun, Stuart Whitman and Janet Leigh star in "Night of the Lepus". This return engagement tells the tale of a rancher who rids his ranch of coyotes, only to find later that rabbits have taken over. He meets a husband and wife scientist team who experiment in ridding the range of the pests. In their experimentation, they create a breed of mutant monsters which destroy all in their

Sunday

"The Gospel Road" tells the story of Christ in a unique way. Counteracting the trend of rockreligious muscials, Johnny Cash narrates the show which was filmed entirely in the Holy Land. The soundtrack contains songs written and sung by Johnny and June Carter Cash, Kris Kristofferson, Joe South and others, and is rated G.

Tuesday

"The Legend of Nigger Charley" focuses on the plight of a freed southern slave who kills his overseer and flees the plantation. He meets up with two other escaped slaves and they set out to seek their rightful place as free men on the Western frontier. The Show stars ex-football star Fred Williamson and is rated PG, parental guidance suggested.

Wednesday

"Skyjacked" is the suspense drama of a hijacking aboard a 707 jetliner and the event's effect on the passengers and crew members. Charleton Heston as the pilot and Yvette Mimieux as the head stewardess find themselves faced with decisions affecting the lives of their passengers and themselves as the hijacker forces the place to go the Anchorage and then to Russia. The thriller is rated PG.

Thursday

"Badge 373" is based on the real-life story of former New York Detective Eddie Egan, a though maverick copy. Egan himself served as technical advisor and co-star for the story, which depicts the suspension of the tough cop from the force and how he goes outside the law to bring some killers to justice. The film also stars Robert Duvall and Verna Bloom and is rated R.

'Truth' told concerning crazy crane cover-up

By Capt. Charles M. Thrash

Now that the bird season has passed the truth can be told about the cover-up that was attempted here at Reese.

It seems that back in the fall a sandhill crane and a Tweet were scheduled for an orientation formation flight through the local flying area. The Tweet was to act as lead and show the sandhill crane the safest routes through our areas

When the join-up took place it was suddenly obvious that the pre-flight briefing was not entirely complete . . . item 8(a) (Formation Power Settings) of the ATC Briefing Guide was over-

Outstanding Airmanship

Since the crane had to slow down to maintain the wing position, he soon began to develop control problems. This soon led to a full aft tail feather stall, and the crane was soon in a developed spin over Mound Lake. Only through superior airmanship on the crane's part-he remembered the basic lessons on spin recovery as taught at the Jonathan Livingston Seagull Flying School-was an accident miraculously prevented.

The final and true facts are reportedly soon to be disclosed when the sandhill crane wing commander winds up his investigation now being held at an undisclosed grain field in Lubbock County.

Fond Farewell

This is a good time to bid farewell to Capt. Rhip Worrell. Although Rhip is really an academic weenie, he authored this article before me, and anyone who suffers through this each week deserves some recognition. He is leaving for a year at the Puzzle Palace, and with his confusing approach to problems and situations, Rhip should get along well.

In the sports department the softball team is managing to hang on to a tie for the lead in their league. About the only thing that can be said for them is that most of their problems started developing when the bowling team put away their bowling balls and laced on their spikes.

Week's Award

The Gee Whiz Award this week goes to 2nd Lt. Pat Dunn of 74-05 Section II. Pat smartly taxied out to the active runway and waited patiently to take off. When he received his clearance to launch, he added power to take the active-nothing happened. He added more power, but still nothing happened. It was then that Lieutenant Dunn was informed his aircraft was slowly sinking into a soft spot in the asphalt.

It has not yet been determined whether the corrective action will be to repair the taxiway or put Dunn on the Fat Man Program.

Gas station signs contract with Shell

The possible closing of the service station at Reese and at 16 other installations has been avoided for a new contract that will be on a month-to-month ba-

The Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has announced an agreement with the Shell Oil Co. for gasoline supplied on a month-to-month basis. Originally, termination of the Reese gasoline supply was scheduled for June 22.

Maj. Gen. C.E. Hostelhorn, AAFES commander, commented, "I am happy to announce that some definite progress is being made in our negotiations with gasoline suppliers during the nationwide gasoline shortage."

The 16 Shell-supplied military stations besides Reese are Lockbourne AFB, Ohio; Camp Grayline, Mich.; Antigo AF Station and Oscoela AF Station, Wis.; Chanute AFB and Granite City Army Depot, Ill.; Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; Duluth AFB and Finland AF Station, Minn.; Pine Bluff Arsenal and Ft. Chaffey, Ark.; Barksdale AFB, La.; and Sheppard, Webb, Carswell and Ellington AFBs, Tex.

Under the monthly allocation program, these AAFES outlets will continue to receive the pro rata share of gasoline according to consumption figures of corresponding months last year.

New instructors add valuable experience

By Capt. Bugs Forsythe

The Squadron has gained some valuable and versatile experience in the group of new instructors who have joined our ranks.

Capt. Guy Sumpter adds his Lockheed C-141 Starlifter to the Elves. I heard Cargo Flight tried to talk Guy into joining them but he realized the Elves needed help and put the black and gold trim upon his helmet.

New Aardvark Second Lt. Jerry Hoverson and wife, Phyllis will join Aardvark Flight. Jerry is a Reese returnee having graduated in the 73-03 class.

Other pilots who will soon be dazzling our students when they get done with the local Standardization/Evaluation are Captains Mike Mahan, Gene Soper and Irving Greenberg. Mike has logged time in the C-141, Gene tried to hold the North American T-28 Nomad together for its last few missions and Irv has some exciting stories from the Firchild AC-119 Flying Boxcar.

Following Lubbock's claim to fame ball game Saturday evening, the squadron indulged in a softball game Sunday that was pretty noteworthy in itself. Section II burst to an early lead under the pitching of Capt. Dick Hall and the hitting of Mike Conner. However, Section I rallied in the last innings to emerge the victor by a walloping score of 14-9. The victors benefitted from a homer by Capt. Roy Westerfield, the fielding of Maj. Gene Stamps (on the losing team) and the swinging expertise of Capt. Jim Nuber.

Exculsion Noted

It has been brought to my attention that I haven't been including any reports about students in my article. I reall apologize as you studs barrag me with facts each time I go down the hall to gather information. One of my best sources of info is 2nd Lt. Al Weston of F Flight. The following is a recap of all the poop he has given

-Thanks a lot, Al, for those exciting tidbits of news. So, studs, if you want your flight's activities in print you must let me know!

The Ole Ace reported Nab 37 wasn't really running amuck in Dallas. It was actually a billiard ball that stole his flight suit.
