Reagan Warns Iran It Has Nothing To Gain By Waiting

By The Associated Press
Ronald Reagan warned Iran it has nothing to gain in the hostage negotiations by waiting for him to become President Jan. 20.

"I hope the Iranians will not have any idea there will be any profit to them in waiting" for the Reagan administration to take office, he told a Los Angeles news conference Thursday.

"We're not going to intrude" in Carter's handling of efforts to free the 52 Americans captured 370 days ago, he said. "I don't think there is any place for me to intervene in that regard. The president is still the president."

depending on the U.S. government's response to Iran's conditions.

He told The Associated Press, in a telephone interview from Beirut, Lebanon, that some of Iran's conditions for the release of the hostages "could be resolved within 24 hours and some in less than six months."

"These conditions should not be unmanageable," said Khamenei, referring to the terms laid down by Iran's Majlis, or Parliament, last Sunday. "This is not something which cannot be done. It depends on the action which the U.S. government will take."

Iran's Parliament said the hostages could be freed in groups as the United States meets each of its conditions.

Khamenei, a member of the seven-man parliamentary committee that drafted Iran's terms, said release of the estimated $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen in the United States was one condition that could be met immediately. President Carter froze the assets on Nov. 14, 1979, 10 days after Iranian militants stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and seized the hostages.

The Carter administration has so far made no public response on the release of Iran's assets or the other Iranian terms, including withdrawal of more than 360 lawsuits pending against Iran, return of the late Shah Mohammad-Reza Pahlavi's wealth, and a U.S. pledge of non-interference in Iranian affairs.

U.S. officials said earlier this week that direct talks with Iran were needed to resolve its demands. However, Khamenei said the Iranian government would "definitely not" negotiate directly with the United States.

Negotiations are being conducted at the State Department with the Algerian ambassador in Washington, who represents Iran's interests in the United States.

Bicyclist Takes Time To Visit Snyder Friend

With nothing else to do, Doug Roach of Longview decided he'd hop on his bicycle and do a little traveling. Wednesday, 5,400 miles and six tires later, he found himself spending the night with Bill Zimmerman of Snyder.

Roach's cousin, Don Roach of Lubbock, is Zimmerman's son-in-law, so the two knew each other through that connection.

Roach flew to Denver to begin his trip. That was July 1. From there he toured the western half of the country and even stayed a month with a friend in Los Angeles.

The trip was prompted, Roach said, "because there was 'nothing else to do. I had the time and could do it.' Roach also decided to make the trip after two knee operations, when he was told he shouldn't run any more.

When not bicycling around the country, Roach has tried his hand at construction work, house remodeling, and teaching voice.

He anticipates returning home to Longview by Thanksgiving.

Program For Crime Victims Out Of Funds

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The program established by the Texas Crime Victims Compensation Act to reimburse victims of crime is nearly broke after 10 months of operation, the fund's San Antonio director said.

Jerry Belcher said the fund probably would run out of money this week and that crime victims would be put on a waiting list until more money was allocated.

He made the comments while announcing that Bexar County benefitted more than any other large Texas county during the first year of the program.

Crime victims in Bexar County collected $58,375, or 22 percent of all claims under the act that authorized payments beginning last January, Belcher said.

He said victims from more populous Dallas County collected only $24,428.

It was the first report that 30-year-old Mohammad Jawad Baguir Tonguyan was wounded when he was grabbed a week ago, and was surprising since he seemed to be in good health when European TV networks filmed him in captivity.

There was no immediate explanation for the apparent mystery. Iran has demanded his release, citing "all international norms and treaties," but Iraq refuses on grounds he and others captured with him are "prisoners of war."

Iraq said its tank-led infantry, backed by rocket-firing helicopter gunships, killed 60 Iranians and suffered 21 dead in "noose-tightening" operations around Abadan as the war entered its 47th day today.

Tehran Radio conceded heavy fighting raged in the eastern districts of Abadan after Iraqi troops crossed the Bahmanshir River into Iran's besieged refinery city on the northern fringes of the Persian Gulf.

One member of Iran's Parliament, Hojatolislam Moosavi Khomeini, said in a Greek television interview Wednesday that Reagan's election victory could delay U.S. acceptance of Iran's terms.

Asked about this possible delay, Hojatolislam Sayed Mohammad Khamenei, a key member of Iran's Parliament, said Thursday: "I don't think so. It is not a question of the person of the president but the U.S. government. If they want to (protect) their interests and prestige, they would take action more quickly."

Khamenei said the release of the hostages could be arranged in hours or months,

City Building Has Gain In October

Building figures were off to a good start for the first month of the city's new fiscal year as October accounted for construction projects valued at 476,722.

This ran the total for the calendar year to $4,572,516 which will help make 1980 one of Snyder's biggest years for building.

Residential work accounted for most of the October construction. The city issued permits during the month for five new, single-family dwellings costing an aggregate of $309,805. Permits also were issued during the month for four mobile homes, adding $55,800 to the month's residential total.

Commercial building accounted for $40,000 and the remainder went for additions, alterations, accessory buildings and signs. In all, the city issued 21 building permits in October.

Snyder construction permits for October of 1979 amounted to $323,780 and at this time last year, the total for the calendar year stood at $2,791,960.

The past fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30, produced a total of $4,918,398.

Ask Us

Q.—What is the correct way to wear a senior ring before and after graduation?

A.—School officials say they know of no protocol on this subject in general practice now. We asked several other people, and some said that in times past a person wore the ring on the right hand before graduation and changed it to the left after graduation. Then there were those who said it should be worn so that the lettering on the ring faces toward the wearer before graduation and then reversed upon graduation. Apparently few pay much attention to such things these days.

Joblessness, Prices Increase In October

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices jumped 0.8 percent in October, equal to a 10.6 percent compound annual rate, and the nation's unemployment figure edged up one notch to 7.6 percent, the government reported today.

October's jump in the Producer Price Index contrasted markedly with September's 0.2 percent dip. The increase was fueled by rising automobile prices and significant boost in the cost of sugar, meat and other foods, the Labor Department said.

For the first 10 months of 1980, wholesale, or producer, prices have accelerated at a 12.4 percent annual pace, a rate very similar to the double digit mark of 1979 and further evidence of inflation's persistent nature despite the recent recession.

Wholesale prices had risen 1.5 percent in both July and August.

Unemployment, meanwhile, inched up 0.1 of a percentage point from 7.5 percent in September, the department said. But behind the nearly stable figure, there was significant movement. The unemployment rate for adult men declined over the month to 6.4 percent, while the rate for women rose sharply to 6.8 percent.

Unemployment among teenagers rose to 18.4 percent last month following a decline in September.

The number of unemployed workers, at about 8 million, returned to its August level following a September dip. Joblessness was up 1.7 million from October 1979, with adult men accounting for about 1 million of the over-the-year increase, the department said.

The factory work week rose, reflecting the nation's apparent emergence from the sharp but short recession that began late last winter.

Sparkle City Squares Host 9th Annual Dance Festival

The 9th Annual Sparkle City Square Dance Festival will get into full swing at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

The local square dance club is sponsoring the afternoon and evening activities. P.I. and Betty Youngkin, president, Bo and Nellie Womack, vice president, and Ned and Dora White, secretary, will act as hosts and hostesses to greet the guests from the surrounding towns. Chamber of Commerce Gold Coat will share these duties along with the W. B. McSpaddens and T. S. Thomases, festival officers.

Andy Petreer of Baton Rouge, La., an electrician by trade, will be the caller for the evening dance and 3 p.m. workshop. He records with Windsor, Lightning 'S', Bogan and Blue Star. His latest releases are "I Don't Want To Be Alone Tonight," "Wabash Cannonball," "I Don't Believe I'll Fall In Love Today" and "Robin Hood."

Ed and Sharon Campbell

from Dallas will be cueing the round dances in the evening and teaching the workshop at 1 p.m. Well known choreographers with many of the popular dances credited to their arrangements, the Campbells have also been members of the exhibition group, "Let's Dancers," who have performed at many regional and national conventions during the last six years. The Campbells have been on the staff at Fun Valley in Colorado, and are currently serving as officers in the Texas Round Dance Teachers Association.

Sleepy Browning, local club caller, will be Master of Ceremonies.

The Grand March will begin at 7:50 p.m., followed by the dance at 8 p.m. There will be no admission charge for spectators who may sit in the north bleachers. The public is invited to attend.

Iraqi Doctors Fight To Save Oil Minister

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraqi doctors are fighting to save the life of Iran's captured oil minister, who was "found seriously injured" when he was seized near the Abadan battlefield, the official Iraqi News Agency said.

It was the first report that 30-year-old Mohammad Jawad Baguir Tonguyan was wounded when he was grabbed a week ago, and was surprising since he seemed to be in good health when European TV networks filmed him in captivity.

There was no immediate explanation for the apparent mystery. Iran has demanded his release, citing "all international norms and treaties," but Iraq refuses on grounds he and others captured with him are "prisoners of war."

College Decides To Keep Money

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Pan American University regents, ignoring advice from the governor's office, have chosen to keep $58,324 which an audit report said should be returned to the state general fund.

The board of regents voted Thursday to use the money for faculty salaries. The governor's office in September said the funds should be returned because the university improperly juggled state and private funds to supplement president Ralph Schilling's salary.

"My feeling is we've got it behind us now," chairman John Lloyd Bluntzer of Robstown said of the controversy after the meeting.

The board rejected the recommendation from the special audit group of the governor's office in favor of different advice from state auditor George McNeil's office.

"It is our opinion that the board is not under legal obligation to reinstate amounts" to the state, Tim Weaver of the state auditors office wrote Bluntzer.

Neither the governor's office nor the state auditor found evidence of illegality in handling of the funds, they said.

Regent Billie Pickard of Raymondville, who sparked an investigation into the money, said after the meeting that the real issue was the failure of university officials to use private donations for purposes intended by contributors.

"I feel the money should be returned," Mrs. Pickard said. "It's crucial to the university and for the raising of funds for donations that we assure that the money they give will be going for purposes for which it was given."

Mrs. Pickard and two other regents appointed by Republican Gov. Bill Clements voted against keeping the money. The other six board members were appointed by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, a Democrat, implying that partisan politics were involved in the vote, Mrs. Pickard said.

"I guess it appears that way," she said. The governor's audit group said in its Sept. 22 report that funds solicited for upgrading the university's business school instead were used to pay supplements to Schilling's salary and for a regents' meeting in Dallas.

Explosion Traps 5 Miners

ROBINSON, W. Va. (AP) — An explosion ripped through a Boone County coal mine this morning, apparently trapping five miners, authorities said.

Spokesmen for the Boone County Sheriff's Department and state police said the explosion occurred about 6:45 a.m. at Westmoreland Coal Co.'s Ferrell Mine in Robinson, a small unincorporated community near the Logan County border in southern West Virginia.

The sheriff's department reported that five men were apparently trapped, and attributed its information to Westmoreland.

Friday update

Sees Trend To Conservatism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen sees the stunning Republican victories that will put him in the Senate minority as part of a long-term trend to conservatism.

"I think it's a further move to conservatism which was under way and was interrupted because of the (former President Richard) Nixon problems," the Texas Democrat said Thursday in an interview with The Associated Press.

He said he saw polls late last week that indicated Texans would vote for President-elect Ronald Reagan, but he was surprised by the depth of the Republican's victory.

The other cause of President Carter's loss, Bentsen said, was the deep concern about the economy that could be detected across the nation.

"I see Texas as a microcosm of the United States," he said. "It reflects pretty well what the United States did. I don't see that Texas is that much different from the rest of the United States."

Bell To Impose Interim Hike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell will impose a interim telephone rate increase next week because the Public Utility Commission has not yet acted on its rate hike request, a company spokesman said Thursday.

Because prolonged hearings on Bell's request delayed the decision beyond the statutory deadline, the company can seek interim rate relief if it assures it will make refunds should the temporary charges exceed those finally approved.

The company did not release a tariff showing the impact of the increase on individual customers, but a company official told the Dallas Morning News the new rates would amount to less than half the $326.3 million increase sought by Bell.

"Any rates implemented under bond will roughly parallel the Public Utility Commission's staff recommendation of $152.3 million," said Paul Roth, vice president for revenues and public affairs.

The newspaper said the new rates are expected to be filed Monday and be effective Tuesday.

Keeping tab on our neighbors: Danny Hukel of the Gatesville Messenger says that probably no single group gets kicked in the shins any harder than politicians.

"That's why Harry Truman's advice has to be constantly remembered by that legion of elected officials: 'If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen.'"

Yes sir. The sweet nectar of success may be reduced to mere bitter dregs from unsuspected sources in the twinkling of an eye. Just ask Bear Bryant.

Some people may be taking this equality business too far, according to Walt Finley of the Big Spring Herald.

"The faculty at Dartmouth College is demanding that fraternities accept women and sororities accept men," Finley observes. "Since the Latin 'soror' means sister and 'frater' means brother, there is going to have to be some name changing."

"And somehow, 'personalities' doesn't quite get it."

Bob Buckel of the Lamesa Press Reporter reminds that one of the blessings of recent cold weather, in addition to killing the leaves on cotton stalks and allowing farmers to go ahead with the harvest, could be a reduction in the number of flies hanging around.

It certainly had an effect on the flies around our office, and their population has indeed been reduced. Actually, it seems that the cold drove them inside, where they became targets for the old swatter.

Glenn Rea of the Springtown Epigraph says an English clergyman compiled this list of seven social sins:

Politics without principles, wealth without work, pleasure without conscience, knowledge without character, business without morality, science without humanity, worship without sacrifice.

a need to produce

We used to hear the Kingfish (Huey P. Long of Louisiana) promise his listeners a chicken in every pot and more, too. But he was a piker, if judged by the promises and the actual results of his health in government today, extending back to the Roosevelt New Deal and through the present Carter "deliverance" program.

These matters came to mind as we pondered some written commentary concerning our gross National Product (GNP) and how that of America has been in a lengthy decline. The GNP, as most know, refers in general to all the marketable goods and services produced by a country.

We go back only about 40 years to when our nation in war exercised its productive potential and pulled itself from a state of unpreparedness into a position of victor in World War II. And when that conflict came to an end, the country basked in an atmosphere of bustling industriousness and it had the greatest GNP per capita of any nation on earth.

Yet today we are behind several nations in GNP and others are about to pass us.

We are lagging for more than one reason but the big one is we do not invest enough of our GNP in new productive facilities. Nations that have passed us in GNP invest a larger percentage of their GNP in new facilities for production than we do.

Americans are diverting a large portion of the GNP into purchases not related to productivity. And government, through taxation and regulation, is taking away not only much of the GNP but much of the incentive to produce.

And as government grows larger, its possessions enlarge, and today it sits like a dog in a manger, on top of much that could improve our GNP.

The federal government is in debt. And deficit spending is now the "American Way."

One way the country can increase its GNP percentage invested in new productivity is by doing without some of the things for which the present GNP is spent.

And to complement the sacrifice the government can get off the "manger" and let private enterprise have some of the property of government.

Government owns a wide variety of property, including oil, timber, and other operations competing with private enterprise at taxpayer expense.

Dr. Gene Uxelton, director of the Center for Education and Research in Free Enterprise at Texas A&M University in College Station, said recently that the government should sell its property to finance national deficits.

"This would have the additional advantage of increasing productivity and stimulating the economy," he said. He stressed that property in the hands of private individuals will be used for productive purposes.

Dr. Uxelton said he agrees with many businessmen who charge that there is too much government interference in the economy, and added that excessive taxation, regulation, legislation and inflation stifle the free enterprise system.

He pointed out that America is still wealthy today "because we have had the freedom to pursue our own interests. But the increasing government intervention which diminishes voluntary trading destroys the gains from trading and actually reduces the general welfare."

He said that when government regulations are set up, people will find loopholes to get around them. And then there will be a need for new regulations, which will further restrict voluntary trading and reduce the wellbeing of the country's people. "Within this evolutionary process," he said, "government intervention introduces a downward spiral which if unchecked, could impoverish us all."

Voluntary trading produces gains, he added, and the free enterprise system generates wealth. One reason government is heading in the wrong direction, he said, is political leaders have been receiving bad advice from economic advisers. He can say that again.

Hey, I've just come up with a wonderful solution to end all wars.

Let the men give directions on how to get there. Trust me. No one will be able to find it. I have yet to follow the directions of any man and end up where, I'm supposed to be without stopping and asking a child along the way.

Some call it direction overkill. I call it death by instruction.

I am standing there with my car keys in my hand when I ask my husband, "How do I get to that new fish market on Torrence Street?"

He puts down his paper. "Okay, you go west on Silver Street two blocks and then turn north until you reach the freeway. At the freeway, go east and...

"English! English! You know I can't speak compass. She habla left or right?"

"And?"

"And you insist that wherever you are east is always on your right and west is always to your left."

"So?"

"So that's not true. Look, I'll draw you a map."

"Oh, Lord. Forget it. Just tell me when I get to the end of the street, which way do I turn?"

"North, rather right. Then turn right again and if you're blinded by the sun you are going in the wrong direction."

"I thought the sun always came up in the east."

"Not at 4:30 in the afternoon."

"Why do you always try to confuse me? I think you do that to make yourself important."

"And why can't you have a little patience?"

"At my age, patience is not a virtue... it's risky..."

Wherever lost women gather, at service stations, in obscure cornfields and on exit ramps, we talk about this thing that men have at giving directions.

One woman told an unbelievable story one day about being lost. She stopped at a service station and said, "I am trying to find where my son's baseball team is practicing. I'm looking for Prindle's Field."

The man stroked his chin and said, "Prindle's Field is about three miles west of Dake's Corners off the Hans expressway using the Mill Road exit. You go by two stop signs, make a right at the overhead and there's a church on the corner that used to be Presbyterian, but was bought out by the Methodist. You take a jog in the road and follow it through to a dead end, then turn left and you'll see a little filling station called 'Fred's.'"

She looked up and said, "That's the name of this station. Where's Prindle's Field?"

"That's what I'm getting around to telling you. You're there. It's behind the station."

my turn

I met Mamie on a bus back before they had special sections set aside for smokers. When a distinguished looking gentleman started to light his pipe, the driver informed him that smoking was not allowed, unless it was all right with the other passengers in the immediate area. As it turned out, the only one who minded enough to make herself heard was the elderly woman sitting in the seat next to him.

"I absolutely detest pipe smoke," was her stoney reply.

The driver then asked if anyone would be willing to sit next to the smoker. Under the adolescent notion that pipe smokers were full of worldly wisdom and apt to be superior conversationalists, I offered to rescue the distressed lady.

As we passed in the aisle, she confided to me, with a twinkle in her eye, that: "I've been married to that man for 40 years and still can't stand that silly pipe."

Knowing opposites attract, I feared I had consigned myself to a four hour stretch in a pollution seat with a pipe puffing bore. What rotten luck, I was right. All I could get out of him were a few sour notes on the evils of Rock 'N Roll and a lecture on how: "Roosevelt had nearly ruined this country."

At trip's end, all I had to show for 200 miles of plying my most provocative questions were a stuffy nose, an urge to vote republican and an overwhelming obsession to listen to some Led Zeppelin.

But nature has a law that says for every action, there is an equal reaction. (Or something like that) and on the return trip who should I see but the silver haired lady with the fire in her eyes.

No, she didn't mind sharing a seat with me, as long as she got to sit by the window. She opened up her end of the conversation by making a fool out of me.

"So you're from West Texas. Years ago my husband and our two children got the hankering to leave the city and head for the wide open spaces. We bought a ranch near Lubbock where we intended to raise cattle. I wanted to call it the Bar-J but my husband wanted to call it the Flying-W. And to further complicate things, one son wanted to call it the Suzy-Q and the other insisted we call it the Lazy-Y. We finally decided to call it the Bar-J Flying-W Suzy-Q Lazy-Y Ranch," she chuckled.

Then with a touch of sadness in her voice she recalled they had had to cut their losses and sell out the very first year.

"What happened, a drought?" I asked.

"Oh no," she said. "None of the cattle survived the branding."

I don't know what made me think of Mamie. I haven't been on a bus in a while. Yesterday we report card day here in Snyder, maybe that was it.

"I guess you noticed that my husband is somewhat of a grump," she said. "I never minded much, but it was sort of hard on the kids living with such an overbearing man. I remember once I stopped off at a store after picking them up from school and couldn't resist the urge to buy this lovely evening dress. On the way home the boys wanted to flip me. Heads, he sees your new dress first, tails, our report cards."

I suggested that had she been born a bit later she could have been a so called "liberated lady."

"No," she said. "I like being his slave. I can handle him better that way."

Then she explained that there was one moment in their 40 year marriage that made it all worthwhile. Their kids had grown up and left home and they were beginning to enjoy their newfound freedom and the tranquility of their comfortable home.

One day while she was out doing the marketing, he fell asleep in his recliner and his still-lit pipe set the place on fire. He escaped without a scratch but all their worldly possessions, things it had taken them a lifetime to get, went up in smoke.

"I'll never forget his words when he picked me up at the supermarket, she said. "They were a strange mixture of humor and humility, two qualities I never knew he had."

"Honey, I have some bad news and some good news," he mumbled. "First, the good news. We're eating dinner out tonight."

I guess if a person looks hard and long enough he can find some redeeming qualities in the worst of us. Still, I can't bring myself to feel guilty about tripping him as he exited the bus.

john cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Because they have won the election battles doesn't mean the Republicans have removed all questions about the leadership of the United States, especially in the area of economics.

Will Americans be patient? All the things the Republicans have promised — less inflation, lower interest rates, less regulation, greater fiscal responsibility and the like — take years, not months, to achieve.

The budget will almost certainly remain in the red for fiscal 1981 no matter what the new president does. He can influence it, but he cannot turn it around. It was pretty much shaped before the election.

How will voters accept another massive blob of red ink, perhaps $50 billion or so, when fiscal 1981 ends next Oct. 31? Will they delay judgment for another year, or will dissatisfaction begin to grow?

If the Republicans are correct, big budget deficits are the core of the problem with prices and interest rates, and so it is safe to assume that levels for each will remain unusually high through 1981.

Living standards, which have been falling for many months, are also likely to continue in that direction for many months more before any impact is felt from Republican remedies. Will people be patient?

The matter of jobs could be a real thorn. The more conservative political mood calls for fewer government jobs and more in the private sector. But that is likely to consume several years at least.

The dilemma for the Republicans is that their remedies are designed to deal with the long-term economy, while consumers or voters or whatever else they are called may be demanding immediate relief.

A return to greater output per man-hour, or greater productivity, for example, isn't likely to be accomplished until the budget imbalance is corrected and the rates of inflation and interest are lowered.

But greater productivity, it is acknowledged by both major parties, is the only reliable lever for lifting living standards. Will Americans be patient enough to wait for productivity to rise?

Patience is only one virtue Republicans must cultivate. They may also have to ask people to do with less in government services, and some Americans may be surprised to learn they voted for that.

In fact, while economic self-denial has been praised in spirit it has not been practiced on a national scale. People have been badly pinched, to be sure, but they have also indulged in expensive programs, sometimes delaying bills to another day.

If the Republican programs can be refined into one single descriptive phrase it is, it seems, that they seek growth through initiative in the private sector rather than through government spending programs.

But after years of burgeoning bureaucracy and dependence on public projects, that's a large order.

School Invaded By Head Lice

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Students at Oklahoma's largest private university celebrated an unexpected holiday at "lice parties" after school officials scratched today's classes in order to battle an embarrassing invasion of the tiny parasites.

All classes and business operations at the University of Tulsa were canceled so campus buildings could be fumigated in hopes of eradicating the head lice. Spokesmen at the school, which has an enrollment of 6,000, said they were puzzled about the infestation and could not isolate its cause.

The campus was closed "to allow us to do a thorough job on all facilities and to reduce chances of transmitting the pests to uninfected persons," said John L. Dowgray, vice president for academic affairs.

A weekend overnight visit by about 100 high school seniors was called off. It probably will be rescheduled, a spokesman said.

The outbreak became apparent earlier in the week when residents of one dormitory reported several cases of lice.

"We thought it was limited to one residence hall. Then we began finding it in other halls," said Jim Lamb, assistant director of university relations.

By Thursday, more than 200 cases of the blood-sucking pests had been found at the private university, where undergraduate tuition ranges upward from $80 per credit hour.

Campus nurses distributed free bottles of anti-lice shampoo and body lotion to students. A women's dorm was fumigated Wednesday. Two more dormitories were sprayed Thursday, keeping dozens of the 1,550 resident students from their rooms for 14 hours.

"Everybody's taking it in real good spirits, especially with the unexpected holiday," said Greg Frizel, president of the campus Student Association.

Frizel said the "rumor mill" was speculating that university officials had tried to hide the problem.

"People have it. They're embarrassed and they want to blame somebody. But the number of people who have it illustrates that it's not because of unsanitary conditions," he said. "I'm perfectly satisfied that the university reacted quickly."

Tulsa dermatologist Dr. Vincent Barranco said lice populations have been increasing nationwide. "Somebody came in infested and spread the lice around. It's certainly not the university's fault."

After examining some students, he said the problem may have been exaggerated.

"One student who was told she had lice didn't," he said. "It's gotten so that every speck of dandruff is thought to be a bug."

Meanwhile, students were making the most of the situation. A Thursday night get-together was promptly dubbed a "lice party."

A campus movie, usually attended by 100 students, attracted only 10 on Thursday, said Frizel, who speculated that many students were at a local pub "trying to kill the lice with alcohol."

Grass Fire Doused

A grass fire was doused Thursday by city firefighters. The fire occurred approximately 19 miles north of town on Highway 84 and was reported at 3:05 p.m.

Symptoms resemble senility

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm writing to you for information regarding senility. The doctors here say that there's no cure for it. My wife has been suffering from senility for the past two years. She's 66. The only help the doctors here prescribe is Hydergine and Cyclospasmol. This hasn't helped my wife's condition so I decided to see if you could make any suggestions or send me information that will be valuable to my wife.

DEAR READER — The first thing is to be sure senility is the basic problem. Many people have mental symptoms which resemble senility but are really caused by a disease. Some of these diseases can be corrected.

A classic example is the older person who has an imbalance in his body chemistry related to his salt and water. He can develop mental confusion, loss of memory and even coma. In these instances, correcting the chemical balance of the body will correct the problem.

In the wintertime, symptoms of senility are sometimes seen in older people because their body temperature is falling. This is increasingly important for people to know in view of the emphasis on keeping homes and offices at cooler levels. Older people should be kept warmer to help prevent this problem.

The only way to find out if a person has an underlying disease causing the symptoms is through a searching medical examination. This often includes an evaluation by a psychiatrist for an underlying depression. Depressions occur more frequently in older people and may present symptoms similar to ordinary senility. They can usually be helped with anti-depressant medications and other measures.

Often there are a limited number of things that can be done for the person who has generalized changes in the arteries in the brain.

I had planned to send you The Health Letter number 14-2, "The Aging Mind." It discusses most of the things that you are asking about. However, your letter did not include your address. I'd like to emphasize again to all readers to be sure their return address is on their letter, not just the envelope. If you'll send me your address, I'll send you this issue. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It's important to maintain nutrition in older people as some nutritional defects can cause symptoms resembling senility. There are some reports that suggest that increasing choline in the diet will help a little bit in some people. I'm not an enthusiastic fan for some of the unfounded claims for lecithin but it is a good source of choline.

In the process of digesting lecithin, the choline will be liberated and will be available for whatever benefits may be derived. I don't believe that it would be harmful so I have no objection to your wife using choline or lecithin as a source of choline on a trial basis. That, however, should not be a substitute for a thorough medical examination to understand her problem.

Released From Contempt Charge

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday ordered two officers of the Texas Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, released from a contempt charge that resulted from the writing of checks to defend the organization in a lawsuit.

The Supreme Court granted a writ of habeas corpus for Georgia Edman, state regent, and Crystelle Wickett, state treasurer.

The question before the court was whether the officers' expenditure of chapter funds for legal expenses had violated a 1977 injunction prohibiting them from spending chapter money for anything other than "ordinary business of the society."

The lawsuit by the Fort Bend chapter and others sought to block the sale of the Freeman Plantation in Marion County, state headquarters for the society. The Texarkana Court of Civil Appeals held the two women in contempt.

In 871, Danish invaders defeated the English forces of Alfred the Great at the Battle of Reading.

HONEY, SALE BEGINS—The Snyder High Vocational Industrial Club of America begins its annual Elster Kohnke Honey sale today. The club will be going door-to-door and will be taking orders for the honey. Above, Wallace

Local VI Club Selling Honey

The Vocational Industrial Club of America (VICA) Chapter 115, Snyder High School, will begin its annual honey sale today through Nov. 27.

Wallace Combest, faculty advisor, said that this sale is conducted to raise money for the club's employer-employee banquet and to help defray expenses for contests the students participate in.

The club will be taking orders for Elster Kohnke Honey and will be going door-to-door. Prices range from $3.50 to $11. The honey comes in old-fashion corked jugs or canning jars in little crates. Combest noted that the honey crates make very good Christmas gifts.

Anyone who has not been contacted by a student yet but is interested in purchasing the honey may contact Combest at 573-6301.

Love Affair Ends In Double Suicide

PEKING (AP) — Adam and Mao Mao were in love and wanted to marry. But he was an Arab student from South Yemen and she was a Chinese worker from Tianjin — star-crossed even before they met.

They never received permission to marry, despite two months of applications and entreaties to both their governments.

Adam Nasser was to have graduated Nov. 6, to have left for home on Nov. 18. Friends said he had vowed to come back and marry Mao Mao. She had said that she could not live without him and would kill herself on the day he left China.

Last Monday night, after laughing, joking and casually talking with a friend about their love problems, Adam, 25, and Mao Mao, 22, drank DDT in his bedroom at Qinghua University.

"Save him! Save him! Don't let him die!" Mao Mao screamed as she ran into the corridor to call his friends.

Within hours Adam and Mao Mao were dead, lovers in a country which extols brotherly Third World love but bitterly rejects love between Third World men and Chinese women.

Their double suicide is under investigation, but campus police, university officials, the Peking Education Department and the Foreign Ministry all have refused comment.

The South Yemen Embassy said only, "Adam Nasser and his Chinese girlfriend drank poison in his room." Officials had no further comment.

Yemeni and Pakistani students at Qinghua University, however, provided details of the love affair.

Adam came to Qinghua University to study engineering five years ago. He was one of six South Yemeni students among 60 foreign students. All are from Third World countries and complain about loneliness and discrimination by the Chinese. They say they are virtually forbidden to smile at Chinese women.

Two years ago he met Mao Mao, a factory worker from Tianjin who was in Peking visiting relatives. Even his closest friends never knew her full name or background. They said she was a lively young woman who liked Western clothes, including blue jeans. She was attractive but not beautiful.

The friends called her "a good girl, fair and honorable," as they discussed the double suicide Thursday afternoon at the university.

They said she came from a middle-class family who knew about the romance. They emphasized there was nothing improper about their love.

Mostly, Adam's friends said, the two young people kept to themselves. They seldom displayed physical affection. To be seen together in public, even merely holding hands, would have invited the cruelest criticism, they said.

Instead, they met off campus or she slipped onto the grounds to bring food and fruit to his tiny 9-by-12-foot room, furnished with a single cot and faded floral wallpaper. From his meager allowance of about $90 a month he bought her shirts, sweaters and slacks from the Friendship Store for foreigners.

Texas Court

Nixes Appeal

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court refused Wednesday to stop Eduardo Rodriguez from managing the Duval County Conservation and Reclamation District.

Rodriguez was appointed conservator of the district by the Texas Water Rights Commission in 1975 and filed several suits on behalf of the district to recover funds or property allegedly belonging to the district. René Martinez was named as a defendant in one of the suits.

Martinez sought a temporary injunction, claiming Rodriguez had no authority to bring the suit for the district. The temporary injunction was denied in July, and Martinez appealed directly to the Supreme Court.

The high court dismissed the appeal for want of jurisdiction.

Bible Executive Runs Prayer Ad For Reagan

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Blood oozing from a dead friend's ears and the recollection of a poor man singing brought a Lebanese teen-ager to his knees and to God on a sultry Middle Eastern day 33 years ago.

Now president of a huge Bible publishing company, Sam Moore is urging Americans to stand behind President-elect Ronald Reagan.

Moore's company — Thomas Nelson Inc. — is spending $50,000 for a newspaper "advertisement" which will run today in the Wall Street Journal and Nashville's two newspapers, The Tennessean and Nashville Banner. Moore said he decided to publish the message — entitled "A Prayer for Our President" — in the Journal to reach the nation's business community.

The three leading presidential candidates — President Carter, Ronald Reagan and John Anderson — all claimed before the election they were born-again Christians. And there are as many as 80,000 born-again Christians in this country," Moore, 50, said in an interview this week.

"We ought to be the salt of the earth, but these people were divided among the candidates. Some Christians aren't talking to other Christians because of the candidate they support. There's infighting in the house of the Lord."

Drafted a month ago, the prayer says, in part:

"Lord, You know everyone isn't happy. Many people are disappointed right now because their man didn't win... But whether or not we voted our man into office doesn't matter now. We have our elected President and we need help..."

"Our country is in serious trouble, Lord, trouble from all sides. The problems our President faces here at home are already enormous. The cost of producing food, clothing and other vital necessities has skyrocketed... Millions of our workers — many of them veterans — are being forced on welfare rolls while billions of hard-earned American dollars are flowing overseas to pay for grossly overpriced imports.

"Violence is in the headlines, pornography is on the newsstands and selfish pleasure is the goal... Please God, rekindle a new spirit within us, a new awakening."

Moore said he thought of the prayer because "our nation is suffering from a great malaise right now. As a people we need to open our eyes and see what's happening to us."

"We as a people ought to pledge our honor, integrity, support and loyalty to our president. We need to give a good day's work for a day's pay. And, we need to go back to our spiritual heritage. Our country needs God."

Textbooks Fail To Pass Critics' Examinations

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Textbook critics have urged deletion of material they claim makes fun of the American moon landing, dwells excessively on death and demonstrations and presents evolution as fact rather than theory.

And of suicide, death and demonstrations aren't enough," Mrs. Sheila Haralson said Thursday, one text concludes with an entire chapter on terrorism.

"What a way to end the school year," said Mrs. Haralson, a staffer for textbook critic Norma Gabler of Longview.

Dr. and Mrs. Monty Kester of Baytown criticized all seven proposed science books, including two alternates recommended by the State Textbook Committee.

On Saturday the State Board of Education board will approve as many as five textbooks each for several subjects, including basic reading, bilingual readers, science, psychology, sociology, graphic arts and business and trade.

The adoption of new textbooks is expected to cost $29.7 million.

Kester scoffed at the phrase "mysteriously transformed" in one of the texts. "This is a not a scientific term," he said.

The Kesters said the proposed science books "violate the rights of theistic students" by presenting a "secular, humanistic theory" of the earth's origin and ignoring "the theory of creation."

Mrs. Haralson asked the board to remove a poem from a 7th grade reader that refers to the American flag left on the moon as "litter."

"It's a beautiful example of irony," responded board member Virginia Currey of Arlington.

"The teacher's guide never brings up the word 'irony,'" said Mrs. Haralson.

"We had no intent to show disrespect for the American flag or the people who explored the moon," said Bill Ferguson of Macmillan Publishing Co.

Mrs. Haralson said another 7th-grade reader contains a poem and three stories dealing with death, including one in which a 14-year-old girl buries her father at night to hide his death from the family.

"Death is a very sensitive and personal subject," she said. "Because children mature at different rates, it is impossible for a teacher to know if particular students will have emotional problems with this subject. We are especially concerned because these deaths concern close family members. The emphasis could be traumatic for students with recently deceased or very ill family members. We think these selections should be deleted."

She said an 8th-grade sociology book includes at least 13 pictures of persons "demonstrating, striking, etc."

"While demonstrating may be included in the study of sociology, there is certainly no need to overemphasize it in the students' minds," she said.

Mrs. Haralson also described a chapter on suicide in the sociology text as "morbid and depressing."

"With the suicide rate already going up all over the nation, especially among young people, can we afford to subject them to this type of material?" she asked.

Networks Aim Cameras Where The Money Is

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Viewers have heard instant analyses, tidbits of speeches, projections and results since the Iowa caucuses last January, and must by now feel completely pollicked-out.

Yet, in the long course of the campaign, the network news organizations didn't televise a single complete speech, outside of conventions or paid political advertisements.

Network coverage seemed overwhelming, but when you peer through the haze you see the bare bones of what commercial television settles for in covering the political process.

It is understandably thus. Commercial television points its cameras where the dollars are, and the realm of public affairs isn't exactly a treasure chest. That's why Walter Cronkite is always saying that citizens should use network news as a headline service to be supplemented by newspapers and periodicals.

Or, they could watch cable TV. Viewers of the Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network could have seen full speeches delivered by every presidential candidate, including the Communist Party nominee.

Last week, CSPAN viewers were able to watch full-length replays of the Carter-Reagan debate, both as it happened in Cleveland and as rendered by Cable News Network, with John Anderson edited in.

CSPAN is a Washington-based cable industry-sponsored service that began as an experiment in new television, TV that didn't need or mean to grab audience. It was there to be used. It began in March 1977 with daily coverage of the U.S. House of Representatives.

This year, CSPAN President Brian Lamb decided to expand coverage to include speeches made in Washington by the various candidates and their representatives.

The idea was, rarely during a campaign does any network give the public an entire speech. We gave speeches of all the candidates, and their running mates, major or minor.

The 6 million subscribers to the 850 cable systems that take CSPAN had access to an uncommon amount of political matter before voting this week, including the Federal Election Commission's hearings on whether John Anderson could get a bank campaign loan. On Tuesday, when the polls closed in the East, CSPAN went off the air.

Next week, CSPAN returns to House coverage. Lamb would like to further expand CSPAN to 24-hour-a-day coverage of public affairs, but his enthusiasm isn't shared through the industry.

Obscenity Conviction Reversed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed a Harris County obscenity conviction on Wednesday because testimony was excluded about the local popularity of "Deep Throat."

After Michael Keller's punishment was assessed at 30 days and a $500 fine, he was placed on probation. He appealed the conviction.

Keller, who was charged with the sale of "Oversexed Secretary," an obscene film, contended the trial court erred in excluding testimony of a defense witness on the contemporary community standards in Harris County.

The defense witness would have testified he had seen "Deep Throat" and "Oversexed Secretary" and that "Deep Throat" was playing in its fourth year in Houston, making it the longest playing movie in Houston motion picture history.

The witness estimated 750,000 persons had seen "Deep Throat" in Harris County.

The court said the testimony must be admitted if Keller is tried on the charge again.

"Widespread attendance indicates community acceptance," the appeals court said.

Earthbound Scientists Tantalized By Voyager

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Voyager I spaceship, just days from a close encounter with Saturn, is tantalizing earthbound scientists with photographs revealing dozens of previously undetected ringlets within the giant planet's shimmering rings.

The latest photographs from the robot laboratory — a billion miles from home and still 4 1/2 million miles from the sixth planet — show rings within rings, ringlets of particles in what were thought to be empty spaces between rings and more bands of colored planetary clouds than current theories anticipated.

Most puzzling to astronomers are the fingers of darkness, which first appeared in photographs two weeks ago, reaching across the rings.

"With any scientific investigation of this magnitude, many of our longstanding theories — those cherished interpretations of the universe around us — are going to become casualties," Bradford Smith, head of Voyager's photography team, predicted Thursday.

Speaking at a Jet Propulsion Laboratory news conference, he said: "Our pre-Voyager knowledge of Saturn is poor. Much of what we are seeing and will see is new, so I think we can predict that much of what we thought we understood will be found to be wrong."

The spaceship will come closest to Saturn on Wednesday, when it will soar within 80,000 miles of the cloudtops.

After 38 months in space, the ship and its payload of scientific instruments are generally in good condition, said project manager

Raymond Heacock. And no major problems are expected as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mission approaches its climax.

Voyager pictures taken Monday showed a complex structure within the rings, which are believed to be frozen particles like dirty snowballs that reflect light and therefore appear to shimmer.

Scientists believed there were six rings, barely three miles wide but stretching nearly 300,000 miles from the planet, with dark divisions that were considered empty gaps.

But Monday's photographs have changed that concept, said Smith, a University of Arizona astronomer.

Voyager I showed "many, many individual ringlets — literally dozens, perhaps hundreds of these structures" spreading like ripples through the rings. And at least one of the gaps contains not less than four bright ringlets of particles.

But "the most baffling surprise that we have come up with yet" is the discovery of dark spokes or fingers reaching thousands of miles across the brightest parts of the rings, he said.

The dark structures form, remain intact three hours or more and then dissipate and form again.

"We don't even know whether they are dark because that's the nature of the particles or whether they're dark because there are simply fewer particles there (to reflect sunlight)," Smith said.

Photographs of the surface of the planet — mostly a ball of hydrogen gas with 815 times the volume of Earth — also are producing surprises.

Despite Brilab, Clayton Says Fourth Speaker Term Clinched

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bill Clayton, acquitted Oct. 22 of corruption charges arising from the FBI's Brilab "sting" investigation, says he has clinched a fourth term as House speaker.

Clayton issued a list of 98 House members and representatives-elect pledged to his candidacy for the 1981 speaker's race. He needs 76 votes to win.

"Today, you are seeing a miracle become a reality. I know there were some who questioned statements I made in February that I would prove my innocence of false charges by fall and maintain my posture as a speaker candidate," he said.

House members will elect the speaker — regarded as one of the three most powerful officials in state government — when the new Legislature convenes Jan. 13.

Only Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, opposes Clayton, and Clayton said at a news conference Thursday that his list of 98 supporters "should effectively end any speculation about a speaker's race."

Clayton's list included 28 of the 36 Republicans elected to the House on Tuesday.

Republicans are vitally interested in legislative and congressional redistricting — the major task of the 1981 session — but Clayton said they would receive no special consideration.

"Redistricting will be a thing I don't feel will be given any weight because of any particular group," Clayton said.

Among the well-wishers attending Clayton's news conference were his Brilab lawyer, Roy Minton, and acquitted co-defendant, Randall "Buck" Wood of Austin.

Clayton dismissed a question about whether he is thinking of running for governor — a move he was considering before the Brilab accusations were made public in February.

"I won't even consider that at this time. We are looking only toward the next legislative session," he said.

The speaker said he waited until after the election to announce his plans because he did not want Brilab to be an issue in anybody's campaign for state representative.

Clayton "saluted" Bryant for bringing "an opposing view to the race."

Bryant says the speaker has too much power and Clayton has used it on behalf of special business interests and against the consuming public.

The Austin American-Statesman quoted Clayton as saying in an interview that although he wants four terms as speaker, he would support a bill limiting future speakers to two terms.

He also is having a bill drafted to create a Public Servants Standards of Conduct Advisory Committee to clarify the law for public officials on such things as accepting money and favors and the use of state property.

Federal prosecutors charged Clayton with bribery, racketeering, conspiracy and fraud after he accepted $5,000 from a Houston-area labor leader, allegedly in return for his influence in reopening a lucrative state employee's health insurance contract.

But Clayton said he thought the money was a campaign contribution and he intended to return it at a later date. A state election code expert testified that politicians do not have to report contributions they do not intend to use.

GOP Elephant Stolen

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Republican elephant bank containing $1,500 was stolen from a GOP headquarters on the city's south side, by burglars who rifled the files, a party worker said.

Charlie Mellenbruch, manager of the GOP office, said the burglars removed a vent, entered through the roof of the one-story building then strolled out the back door with the bank, three TV sets, walkie-talkies and office equipment.

"We were sort of expecting something like this ever since the headquarters in Austin were burglarized about two weeks ago," she said.

"Because of that, there was nothing top-secret in the files. Anything we considered real important we carried out every night in briefcases."

Ms. Mellenbruch said the files contained voter lists and lists of campaign workers.

The 22-inch tall, 8-inch wide elephant was a piggy-bank-like container in which receipts from sales of bumper stickers and cash contributions were placed, she said, and contained about $1,500 in Republican Party funds.

She said the burglars also took three television sets, walkie-talkies and office equipment before leaving through a back door.

Auto Reported Stolen, Found

A car was reported stolen, then reported found early this morning by the sheriff's office.

The vehicle, a 1978 Chevrolet pickup, was reportedly taken from B. & F. Well Service on the Clairemont Highway. The report came in at 6:40 a.m., but the vehicle was found about 7:30 a.m. at 28th St. and Ave. F.

Area Teams On The Loose As...

Tigers Try Fort Stockton, 8 O'clock

AREA-Snyder High School takes to the road tonight, searching for its third grid victory of the season against a Fort Stockton team that has had its share of disappointments, too. Game time is 8.

In other area contests this evening, all at 7 o'clock, Ira, winds up its season by hosting undefeated Trent, Borden County travels to undefeated Highland, and Hermleigh buses to McCaulley.

Snyder goes into tonight's game with a 2-6 record, 2-4 in District 2-AAAA play. The Tigers have defeated Lamesa and Odessa Ector this year.

Fort Stockton is one win better at 3-5, having beaten non-conference foe Alpine and district members Ector and Sweetwater. The Panthers suffered through a case of turnovers early in the season, then lost several games by 1-3 points, including a 21-20 disappointment against state-ranked and undefeated Andrews.

Fans can expect a contrast in styles tonight. Fort Stockton, which runs out of the Wing T, is expected to keep to their ground game most of the time, passing only infrequently. The Panthers boast one of the district's top running backs in Eddie Pasqua, who had 684 total yards going into last week's tilt with Sweetwater; a game which Fort Stockton won, 43-12.

Meanwhile, the Tigers can be expected to be less conservative against the Panthers' highly-touted defense - one of the most begrudging units in District 2-4A, according to statistics.

Snyder will see the return of starting quarterback Mike Roemisch, who was ill last week. However, Coach Mike Jenkins also allowed that sophomore Brent Beck would handle some quarterbacking duties, and that Roemisch might even try his hand a tailback for a few plays.

Though both teams are out of the title race, tonight's contest has bearing for two schools which normally near the top of the running must already be thinking about building momentum and a winning attitude for 1981.

In other District 2-AAAA games, Andrews needing only one victory in its final two outings to secure the loop crown - entertains Sweetwater, while Lamesa is at Odessa Ector and San Angelo Lake View travels to Monahans.

Playing the spoilers role tonight could be Ira and Borden County, who face undefeateds in Trent and Highland, respectively. Though not in playoff contention, both Ira and Borden County could finish the season with strong records.

Ira, 6-3, could have its best mark in several seasons by upsetting the Gorillas tonight - a feat which is certainly realistic.

BC's Coyotes, 5-3, could reach 7-3 by upsetting conference favorite Highland, then defeating lowly McCaulley next week.

The only other District 2-1A six-man game tonight is interesting in that it pits two winless teams in Hermleigh and McCaulley.

Cats Conclude '80 Football Season

LAMESA-Snyder eighth grade football teams completed their seasons here last evening, playing the Tornados of Lamesa.

Snyder Black was defeated 7-2, while the Gold team lost 7-6.

Snyder Black scored a safety in the first quarter to take a 2-0 lead, but Lamesa countered with a touchdown in the second. The Cats later burst for a 90-yard touchdown run, but it was called back.

Defensive standouts for Snyder were Bobby Butler, Ferman Rocha and Larry Castillo, while offensively were mentioned. The Gold team fell behind 7-0 in the second quarter, then rallied to make it 7-6 in the fourth. Snyder went for the two-point conversion, but the effort came up short.

Listed as defensive standouts were Kyle Freeman, Abey Munoz, Harley Vineyard, Roy Silva, Donald Jeffery and Arturo Munoz. Defensively, Freeman, Jimmy Cain, Charles Bollinger, Paul Thompson and Tommy Holladay were standouts.

Snyder Black ended the season with a 3-3 record; Snyder Gold with a 3-4 mark.

Western Routs Juarez Cagers

EL PASO-Coach Larry Dunaway's Westerners extended WTC's winning streak to 40 straight here last night, defeating Juarez Tech 111-74. The Westerners, 3-0 for the current season, travel to Juarez, Mexico tonight to take on Juarez University - apparently a mix of players including some of the athletes off of the Tech team.

Six Westerners shot their way into double figures, as WTC had few problems in taking the win. Keith Denis led with 23 points and eight rebounds. Donald Warren sacked up 16 points, while Darren Lee had 15, Ceasar Scott had 14, Brett Smith scored 11, and Bryan Baker added 10. Chuck North, Troy Stevenson and Clarence Cephas notched 6 apiece.

"I felt like we played pretty sloppy the first half, with 17 turnovers," said the coach, via telephone this morning. "In the second half we settled down and started handling the ball. They had several kids 6-6 and 6-7 that were excellent jumpers and shooters, but their back court people were not used to handling the kind of pressure we put on them and we beat them with our press."

Dunaway had mixed feelings about the rest of the statistics, pointing out, "We're still not getting enough rebounds. We knew this was going to be our weak point this season, and it certainly is. If it were not for the press, we would have a tough time of it because we are not getting very many rebounds."

But on the other hand, "Ceasar had six assists and Troy had five. We had 32 assists for the night so we're averaging over 30 assists a game. That's very good teamwork," he praised. WTC shot 50 of 85, or 58.5 percent from the field.

The Westerners return to Snyder over the weekend and will host Angelo State University at the Coliseum Nov. 15.

Bears Hoping Shock Is Worn Off By Now

by The Associated Press
Just call Saturday's regionally televised Southwest Conference meeting between the Baylor Bears and Arkansas Razorbacks "The Trauma Bowl."

Can the No. 16 ranked Bears, their psyche deeply damaged by spoiler San Jose State, overcome the disappointment of losing the dream of an unbeaten season at the hands of the Spartans on homecoming?

Can the crippled Razorbacks, their team decimated by injuries and still in deep shock from a fourth quarter blitz last weekend by Rice, somehow maintain a jinx that has seen them win every other year since 1963 in Waco?

It's daytime. It's on television. It has pathos. Move over soap operas.

Baylor was rated a six-point favorite over the Razorbacks for the 11:30 a.m. regionally televised meeting. The Baptists scheduled their annual homecoming parade for 8 a.m. after the game was moved to the morning hours from the regular 2 p.m. kickoff.

"We will reevaluate everything," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "But you can't pin our loss on just one area. In fact, I thought I did a poor job of coaching. It's the most disappointing loss I've had since I've been at Baylor."

Baylor can move within one game of clinching an SWC championship and a Cotton Bowl berth with a victory.

Boxing Great Returns; Enters Ring Tonight

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Former World Boxing Council champion Ken Norton says he's in better shape than ever for tonight's bout with undefeated heavyweight Randy Cobb, a young Texan with a salty vocabulary and penchant for busting jaws.

Norton, trimmed off 35 pounds for his first bout in 16 months. He weighed in Thursday at 218 pounds and Cobb was at 226 1/2.

Norton, 35, says he is emerging from retirement because he has "a lot to prove" against the feisty 23-year-old in a match billed as "The Battle of the Jawbreakers."

It's been seven years since Norton broke Muhammad Ali's jaw while building a 41-6-1 record that included 33 knockouts.

His power on the wane in the late 1970s, Norton lost the WBC heavyweight crown to current champ Larry Holmes in 1978, then was knocked out by Earnie Shavers in the first round of a March 23, 1979 fight. Cobb cracked Shavers' jaw in two places in his last fight Aug. 2 and has collected 16 knockouts in 17 straight victories.

"I'm here to fight. Ken's here to fight," said the WBC's ninth-ranked heavyweight. "I expect a good fight."

The main event is part of a boxing card assembled for the HemisFair Arena by Muhammad Ali Professional Sports. It also features a 12-round match between San Antonio boxer Mike Ayala, the North American Boxing Federation junior featherweight champion, and Javier Flores. Two former Grambling football players, NABF heavyweight champion Leroy Jones and Lynn Ball, also will stage a 12-round title fight.

Also on the undercard are Olympian Tony Tubbs versus Ron Draper in a heavyweight match, Dandido Tellez of Mexico City against Candy Igelesias of Houston in a flyweight match, and Rocky Burke of Las Cruces, N.M., in a flyweight match against Billy Sanchez of San Antonio.

Felines Defeat Central Bobcats

Snyder's top-ranked Class 4A team sacked Central High School in San Angelo last night, 15-4 and 14-12 to tune up for the Nov. 15 Region I Volleyball Tournament.

The victory gives the local girls a 29-1 season record heading into the tournament a week from Saturday.

"This was something we needed at this time," said Coach Joyce Elrod. "I wasn't sure just how we'd react after losing Tuesday (to Seminole), but the girls did well. We had a 100 percent serving game, last night and our serving was one of the things that beat us Tuesday. It was the first match all year we've served 100 percent."

Central will play Sherman in Cleburne Tuesday for its Class 5A bi-district title. Snyder, which goes directly to regionals, will face one of the following teams in the first round of the tournament: District 1, Lubbock Dunbar; District 3, Graham, or District 4, Cleburne. A "draw" will take place Wednesday morning to determine pairings. The tournament will be held in Lubbock's Coronado High School Gym.

Serving for points for Snyder last evening were Sherry Mayes and Lisa Cobb, 7 each, Sherril Rich 5, Kathy Northcott and Toni Elrod 4 each, and Shana Koonsman 2.
