Undecided On Busing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter says he hasn't decided whether to sign a $9 billion appropriations bill that would prohibit the Justice Department from seeking courtordered busing to desegregate schools.

A top White House aide, however, said vetoing the legislation might be futile, blocking only the needed appropriations. Carter might choose instead to challenge the constitutionality of the anti-busing amendment in court, he said.

Carter, asked at a State Department reception Tuesday night if he plans to sign the bill, replied: "I don't know. I'll let you

Stocks Still Riding High

NEW YORK (AP) - The Dow Jones industrial average crossed the 1,000 level for the first time in almost four years today as the stock market continued its post-election rally.

The widely recognized average of 30 big-name stocks, which climbed 11.69 on Tuesday, rose another 2.31 to 1,000.26 by 11:30 a.m. today

It last closed above 1,000 at 1,004.65 on Dec. 31, 1976.

A lot of people in this country have few worries---or else they have so many that they jump at any diversion that might take their minds off their troubles.

How else would you explain the J. R. obsession? Those who make the books in Las Vegas on sports events set up a betting line on the culprit who shot J. R. Ewing, the character in the TV show, "Dallas." You probably saw, or heard that the odds Monday were 20-1 that J. R. did it himself. And just to attract even more attention, its was 500-1 for Tom Landry, coach of the Dallas Cowboys professional football team, and 1,000 to 1 that Roger Staubach, the retired quarter back did it.

But this "book" on J. R.'s assailant came as no surprise after we read a few days earlier that some viewers on the West Coast were complaining because those on the East Coast would learn who shot J. R. three hours before they would due to the difference in time zones. They couldn't have many real worries on their mind if this bothers them.

Before we forget, Murray Anne Ray, the secretary in the chamber office, wanted us to remind Howard Limmer, the Anthony's manager, that music has been coming from those speakers on the courthouse square, and it's not even Thanksgiving yet.

A lot of people are wondering about the strength of the Western Texas College Westerners basketball team. There's only a couple left from last year's national champion squad, you know, but they are still undefeated.

Perhaps we stumbled upon a clue this week. The Westerners , caught fire as it plunged onto opened their season Nov. 1 with a 108-94 victory over the Mc-Murry College junior varsity. McMurry's varsity team opened its season this week, losing a close decision to Texas Wesleyan. Of the seven McMurry players listed in the varsity box score, four of them played against the Westerners Nov. 1. This doesn't violate any rule, of course, but it does show that WTC actually was competing against some varsity players of a senior college in their game here. And it indicates that at least two of them were starters for McMurry

It will be put into one of the regular voting boxes Saturday so that it can be counted with other ballots and thereby preserve the secrecy of the ballot for the lone absentee voter.

The election is to name a representative to complete the term of Mike Ezzell, who submitted his resignation in October to accept appointment to a post with the State Health Department.

The only candidate listed on the ballot is Larry Shaw, the representative-elect, who is scheduled to begin a regular term in January.

However, voters in the sixcounty 63rd District are being called back to the polls Saturday to fill Ezzell's unexpired term, despite the fact that the legislature is not in session and will not be in session any more before

Real Estate Commission office about this, and they offered little hope for such a service here. The exam site selections are based on the number of licensees in an area and have nothing to do with qualifications. The closest test site to Snyder is Big Spring, where there are 208 licensees. However, Big Spring is one of 25 test sites in the state and it serves a .100 mile radius including Snyder and even San Angelo, which has more than 1,000 licensees. In fact, San Angelo has been trying to get the tests at Angelo State University but without success so far. The commission apparently feels that the 25 test sites are enough, and they pointed out that the tests are given some 700 times per year in these places which are considered adequate.

the culprit is inside

Once in a great while our thin supply of optimism and faith in human nature is reinforced. Despite some evidence to the contrary, the hope that people, regardless of position or immediate self-interest, can look at facts and draw logical conclusions from them is occasionally rewarded.

Three years ago the Federal Communications Commission expressed concern about the dominance of broadcasting by the three major networks. So the commission asked its staff to indertake a study to see why the three major networks are eminant and no fourth network has arisen to challenge them. he commission was also concerned about the power of the etworks over affiliate stations.

Last month the commission's Network Inquiry Special Staff eleased a 600-page report. And the report concluded that the aree-network dominance was because of federal regulation of emmunications by the FCC.

Whatever economic power ABC, CBS and NBC have is in arge measure a result of commission policies that protected hem from potential competitors," said the report.

What's needed to encourage pay TV, cable and further competition, perhaps leading to the formation of a viable fourth network? Not government subsidies or government encouragement, but the relaxation or repeal of FCC rules and

We're not naive about some of the background of this report. t didn't arrive because some FCC staffers got religion and a big dose of courage. Congress has been studying the Communications Act of 1934, which gives the FCC its mandate, for everal years now. Spurred on by outside economists and scholars, some of the Congressional staffers came to similar conclusions several years ago. There's even been talk of just ibolishing the FCC, or cutting back its powers so drastically as to leave it a pretty hollow shell.

Consequently the FCC itself has been doing a great deal of regulatory "reform" on its own, just as the Interstate Commerce Commission has been doing before and after Congress acted to "deregulate" airlines and trucking. By undertaking reforms of its own, the agency looks responsible and keeps Congressmen from entertaining nasty thoughts about abolishing it, which wouldn't be a bad idea in our view.

Nonetheless it is encouraging, and it should be encouraging to all those who have that sinking feeling that their railing against bureaucratic abuse have gone for naught. Twenty years ago the idea of regulatory reform was considered a crazy notion, the domain of extremists. Fifteen years ago it was a glimmer in the eye of a few free market economists who had produced some persuasive studies. Today it is the pet of professional consumer advocates and progressives.

Now, if only they'd extend that insight - that government regulation tends to create and perpetuate monopoly and oligopoly in the industries regulated - into other areas of the economy, we might start to make some progress.

But at least four key staffers watched the mounting vote totals with calm smiles. They were Reagan's chief pollsters.

A week before the election, they knew that Reagan's victory had the makings of a landslide. And 48 hours before sions

Beal and Craig King - kept much of this good news to decided to keep it to ourselves. We simply reported that we thought we were in good shape.

Their final estimate on the Sunday before the election gave Reagan a popular-vote margin of 11 percent; his actual margin stood at 10.8 percent when 99 percent of the votes were counted. Their electoral-vote estimate proved conservative; Reagan won several states - including New York, Florida and Wisconsin - that his forces thought too close to call on Sunday

The pollsters were surprised only at the length of Reagan's coattails in the congressional and gubernatorial races.

Polling has become a staple of the political campaign. But perhaps no previous presidential effort polled as extensively or used the results as successfully in fine-tuning its strategy

The accuracy of Reagan's polling was largely due to a relatively new technique called "tracking."

Political polling · has traditionally employed a technique called "crosssectional interviewing, which a field force does a series of in-depth in-person interviews every few weeks with a different sample. The costlier tracking process involves a large number of daily telephone interviews, with each respondent called on several consecutive days before being dropped from the survey

Reagan's tracking effort a Carson monologue. The interviewed 500 voters in each of 20 key states nightly celebrity will not appear at an beginning Oct. 6. Each voter was telephoned three times, with one-third of the sample replaced each night. Another 1,500 voters from throughout the country were also called every night; again, one-third of the sample was replaced

"Our cross-sectional polling as a "shift in power and after the conventions showed that a large number of voters wanted to vote against Jimmy Carter and would, in fact, vote for Reagan if they felt they could trust him," Wirthlin explains. "So, the first weeks of the campaign were geared to showing that Reagan was not some kind of dangerous personality. Our initial tracking showed that we had succeeded and that people now felt free to do what they really wanted to do - vote against Carter."

> "Our tracking showed that this campaign was not very volatile as to issues," adds Beal. "The economy continued as the main issue throughout the campaign despite Carter's attempts to 1736. make Reagan the issue.

The initial tracking showed Reagan with a 6-point lead that remained steady through most of October. After the Reagan-Carter debate, the Republican's lead began to mount to the final projection 'Texas 79549, of 11 percent.

In the week before the election, the tracking revealed that Carter's slashing attacks had started to work against -Texas and all other states $37.50. him, cutting into the "decent" image that was his greatest asset. It was then that Reagan's pollsters began to sense a landslide.

The polling showed that the hostage issue had little impact on the voter. Explains Wir-thlin: "Had the hostages actually been released, and come home during one short. period, say Oct. 15-20, it would have caused us quite a bit of trouble. But once we got past the 20th, our tracking showed the issue receeding and actually beginning to work against Carter. So, at that point, we could ignore the hostage issue, which we tried

The game was rubber bridge, East-West were ahead and North-South bid a desperate game on the diagrammed

South might have passed North's free bid of two diamonds, or contented himself with a normal two-heart rebid. Instead, he aggressively bid two notrump. North, in the spirit of things, raised to

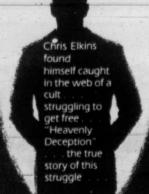

West led his fourth-best club and South ducked it around to his queen. Declarer then cashed the diamond ace At trick three he led his six of clubs toward dummy's ace-10. The fate of the hand depended upon West's play. If he routinely played low, declarer would win with the 10 and play diamonds. After South knocked out the queen of diamonds, the ace of clubs would provide an entry to run dummy's diamond suit. In all, declarer would make five diamond tricks, three clubs and the ace of hearts.

However, West thought deeply about declarer's play. Why would South make such an unusual play at trick three? West would look very foolish if he played his king of clubs and crashed East's jack. But South's two notrump bid indicated a club stopper, obviously Q J x and not just Q x.

Declarer's line of play made sense only if he had started with the singleton ace of diamonds. If that was the case, West could foil declar-

The suit, filed here Tuesday, alleges that the revolutionary government of Iran has converted property belonging to Dresser in violation of existing contracts and without paying compensation.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders has been asked to determine the liability after studying facts in the contract dispute.

In the suit, Dresser alleges the Iranian government has hindered Dresser's business dealings with other companies because of the seizure of assets of domestic corporations investing in Iran

Named as defendants in the suit are the Islamic Republic of Iran, its political subdivisions, agencies and instrumentalities and the National Iranian Oil Co.

Offshore Port Sought

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Post reported today a fourcompany consortium plans to ask the Department of Transportation for a license to build an offshore supertanker unloading facility similar to one proposed by the now-defunct Texas Deepwater Port Authority.

The Texas Offshore Port consortium plans to apply for the license "sometime in December," the Post reported.

The four companies — Phillips Petroleum Co., Continental Pipeline Co., Dow Chemical U.S.A. and Seaway Pipe Line Co. - want to build a single buoy unit near Freeport, about 12 miles offshore in 72 feet of water, the newspaper said.

anniversary of the first far offshore oil discovery in the Gulf of Mexico on Nov. 14, 1947.

The apparent high bids totalled $1,436,448,959 - including a highest of all $169,004,160 by Mesa Petroleum Co. and Texaco Inc. for exploring 5,760 acres off the Texas coast between Brownsville and Corpus Christi.

Mesa and Texaco had to outbid eight other companies or groups of companies for the costliest of the leases.

Superior Oil Co. and Sohio Petroleum Co. outbid four others with $108,215,000 on 5,760 acres. Gulf Oil Corp. and General American Oil Co. outbid seven others with $81,365,000 for the same acreage in the same general area.

Call For More Coal Use

HOUSTON (AP) - Political instability in the Mideast and soaring cost of foreign oil have created a "growing sense of urgency" in the free world to triple use of coal by the year 2000; says a spokesman for the coal industry.

However, uncertainties about future demand for electricity, the role of nuclear power and its environmental impact have restrained its use, Robert H. Quenon, president of Peabody Quenon's remarks came Tuesday during the Third International Coal Utilization Exhibition & Conference here.

Smokers: Here's Your Chance to Quit

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will be the fourth annual Great American Smokeout. It's a goodhumored; upbeat effort to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours - just to prove to themselves that they can. It's sponsored by the American Cancer Society on the theory that anyone who is able to quit for 24 hours can quit forever.

According to the Gallup organization, in 1979 nearly 15 million Americans attempted to give up cigarettes on Smokeout day. Five million succeeded for the full 24 hours; one to three days later, 2.3 million were still off cigarettes, while another 7.8 million said they had cut down considerably.

Natalie Cole, who describes herself as a "moderate" smoker, is the 1980 honorary Smokeout chairperson. She has vowed to set a national example by quitting permanently on November 20. She admits she's tried to quit several times, but failed. Natalie's father, the beloved Nat King Cole, died of lung cancer in 1965. He was a heavy smoker.

Sammy Davis Jr., the national honorary chairman in 1977, tried to go without smoking for 24 hours, but he couldn't make it.

Ed Asner, a lifelong heavy smoker, quit the habit permanently when he became the honorary chairman in 1978. He accepted the chairmanship again in 1979 and is still clean.

So, if you're hooked on cigarettes and have been meaning to quit, why not start tomorrow - for just 24 hours? It won't be easy, but it will be the best present you can give yourself - and those who love you.

DEAR ABBY: I am 23. I began smoking pot at 13. By 17, I had taken LSD and shot heroin. I have been addicted to opiates for two years. I am on the methadone program now (It's a government-approved substitute for heroin, but I have to get a fix every day.)

If just one young person reads this and takes heed, I will feel that I have accomplished something.

The road to drugs is for fools. A kid starts because he thinks he is being smart. Or because he wants to be "in' with the crowd. Or because he's afraid they will think he's chicken. Taking that first joint is the dumbest thing a kid can do. I know. It cost me my future. I had a chance to be a really good ball player, but I lost interest because I would rather get high: I didn't even finish, my education because I would rather get high. Then my head got all messed up and I didn't have a choice anymore,

Now I beat my brains out in a hot factory. Kids, stay straight. Say no to that first joint, and when you reach 23 you will be on top of the world. Not like me. No money. No friends. Suicidal feelings. Needing a fix every-

I'm nobody to be giving advice, considering what I've done with my life, but maybe you kids out there can learn something from a loser.

DEAR FOOLISH: One who has made mistakes, picked himself up, brushed himself off, then tries to prevent others from becoming victims is no loser in my book. Too bad you'll never know how many lives you may have saved by writing one letter.

Snyder junior varsity fell 56-47, while the sophomore bunch dropped a 46-39 decision...

"The key was, they were a whole lot better than we were, last night," Coach George Byerly said. "We didn't execute very well. We're going to have to keep working at it and hopefully get better and better, then maybe we can play with them next time."

San Angelo came out in a 1-3-1 zone that gave the Tigers a tough time.

"We weren't able to solve it at all," panned Byerly. "We've got to be able to play against the zone because more teams are using it now."

Byerly was able to see some good things from the loss, however.

"We had some kids that came in off the bench and hustled real well and did a good job. We didn't have anybody that shot the ball real well, but Joe Garcia came in and got eight rebounds, James Caldwell had nine points and four rebounds, and Curtis Gafford was another one who came in and had six rebounds and three assists."

Caldwell's nine points tied with Kris Seale as leading scorer on the team. Eric Snyder (47)-- Burrus 2014; 1100 111; Hernandez 1022; Kitchens 88024; bagged 19 for the hosts, while 13747. Hercules Miller had 10.

Contents Of Rusty Drums Analyzed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) nian. Both sides applauded - Authorities are awaiting test results on the contents of more than 1,000 chemical drums discovered in a mesquite thicket on the south side of San Antonio last week, state officials say.

Investigators with the Texas Department of Human Resources discovered the drums, many of them disintegrating from rust and corrosion, while testing water Int Paper in a lake located just south of

Military markings were noted on many of the barrels, but such drums often are sold and reused, TDWR official

Vernon Francis said Tuesday. Approximately 30 drums, six of which contained highly alkaline chemicals, were discovered near the illegal dump site in July, according to Tom Milligan, TDWR public affairs officer.

Milligan said another barrel contained trichloroethylene, a flammable degreasing solvent that can cause breathing problems if inhaled.

The large cache was discovered last week when state personnel returned to the lake at the request of adjacent Hobbs Rites landowners, Milligan said.

John Latchford, the department's assistant director of the enforcement, said the drums could have contaminated a major freshwater acquifer known as stretches from the Rio Grande into Northeast Texas and Louisiana.

The contents of the drums also could pose a threat to the waters of Leon Creek and the

Recovered

The police department received a report of a stolen dog and helped recover a stolen vehicle Tuesday

Houston Ballard of 1406 Ave. R reported to police that someone had stolen his four month old St. Bernard valued at $175. That report was received at 9 a.m.

At 12:11 p.m. the Sheriff's Office told police it believed a car parked behind a residence on Ave. N was stolen. A subsequent check determined that it had been taken from Levelland.

Heavy Snow Hurts Cotton

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) -High Plains cotton farmers say they expect to lose about STANFIELD AREA..on 43 $15 a bale on unharvested rd..$39,500.00..could be used cotton chilled by nine to 12 inches of snow early this

> Farmer Gayle Thompson said Monday the area harvest was 50 to 60 percent complete when the winter storm blew in > Most cotton will drop one grade in quality because of the loss, he said, adding some of the best yields of two to three bales an acre remain in the fields. Cotton, which also loses weight as it dries, can bring $300 to $400 a bale, depending on its quality.

Thompson and other farmers now must wait about 10 days - if weather permits for the cotton to dry before returning to the harvest

For Palsy Victim...

Stab At Independence Turns Into Nightmare

palsy victim Jimmy Morphis took his dream of being independent to the courts, where he successfully fought policies that denied him and other handicapped people admission to city housing projects. But his dream became a month-long nightmare that ended after relatives found him with no food in his apartment other than mashed doughnuts and squashed hot dogs that littered the kitchen

Still fighting the pride that made him eager for independence, Morphis repeated over and over in labored and almost unin-

The United Cerebral Palsy Association, which helped him win an apartment in the highrise Lakeland Manor here; now finds itself accused by Morphis' relatives of using the 44-year-old man as a guinea pig to fight Dallas Housing Authority policies.

Morphis himself admits the suit was a mistake.

"I was wrong," he said. The action resulted in new rules governing admission of handicapped people to city housing projects such as Lakeland, which provides no medical or support services. Eager to demonstrate his fierce stab at independence, telligible speech: "I tried. I Morphis crawled from his

But It Would Spark Heck Of A Race...

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Don't avoid your doctor

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I need your help. I have epilepsy. This started with an illness about 10 or 11 years ago. I'm 54 now. At first I used to drink a lot and the doc told me that was the cause of it so I stopped completely about six years ago, I haven't tasted a drop since. Whenever I would have one of these seizures, it worried my family a lot.

I'm under a doctor's care and I see him every six months. I take Dilantin three times a day and phenobarbitol two times a day but I still get some spells. I don't fall down or lose control of my bladder like I used to but I start getting dizzy for a few minutes and then lose my mind. I feel awful. When people see me at work I get worried that I will lose my job. I've been having this problem about every two

I don't want to tell my doctor because I'm afraid he will tell me to stop working and that's not what I want. I've been working for this company for 21 years and I want to stay here at least four more so I can complete my 25 years. What can I do-to avoid these spells? The job I do is an easy one. They took me away from all of the machinery because they were afraid I might get hurt. Are there some new medicines I could use? I'm tired of having these spells and worrying my fami-

DEAR READER - I can understand your concern but I must say you're going about your problem in the wrong

Go see your doctor. He's more likely to adjust your medicine than to tell you that you have to stop working. Today most people who have epileptic seizures can have them controlled with medicines. Sometimes it requires a great deal of experimenting over a period of quite some time to be able to find the best combination of medicines for a particular patient. There other medicines available and it makes a difference what combinations of medicines are used. The different types of epilepsy are dis-cussed in The Health Letter number 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It Too, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, selfaddressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

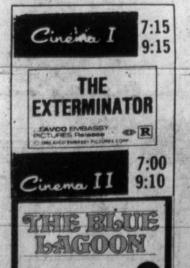

Your letter suggests you're working for an understanding company that is making an effort to provide you a proper employment opportunity That's great. Now you should do your part by seeing your doctor to try to get your medi-cines regulated to give you the best chance of doing well and avoiding seizures.

There are a large number of people who do have epilepsy. Many cases are idiopathic, meaning we don't know the cause. In other instances they're secondary to injuries or even tumors. The large number of automobile accidents in this country, alone results in many new cases of epilepsy every year.

Anyone who has a seizure needs a careful evaluation to determine the cause. Many people have seizures that are not caused by epilepsy. To give you an example, some older people with heart block have poor circulation to the brain which can cause them to develop convulsive attacks. These are treated with a cardiac pacemaker.
