Hundreds attend buffalo unveiling

"Oohs" and "aahs," broken by applause, erupted from the courthouse lawn Saturday morning as more than a thousand people attended the unveiling of Scurry County's new white buffalo.

The long-awaited unveiling ceremony was preceded by a colorful parade that had local citizens and visitors lined up shoulder to shoulder for several blocks along College Avenue and around the square. Indians, who had come to perform a special ceremony at the feet of the buffalo, drew special applause from the viewers, as did members of the 4th Cavalry.

As the unveiling ceremony began, youngsters climbed up on their fathers' shoulders for a glimpse of the Indians, Texas historian Tumbleweed Smith and the sculpture's artist, Dr. Robert Taylor, told of the significance of the white buffalo.

Judy Hays, granddaughter of J. Wright Moorar, the man who shot the rare white buffalo in 1876, pulled the cord that unveiled the bronze sculpture.

Spectators were in store for more entertainment throughout the day, as Saturday's festival wasn't to end until the last strum of a guitar closed a street dance at 11 p.m.

In between, festival-goers were (See FESTIVAL, Page 12A)

UWSA will host candidate forum

United We Stand, America is sponsoring a forum Tuesday night which will feature candidates for state as well as local offices.

Democratic State Rep. David Counts and his opponent, Wilman Hogan, will be among the candidates appearing at the 7 p.m. forum at Towle Park Barn. Also appearing will be Tom Haywood, Republican challenger to unseat Sen. Steve Carriker. The senator will be represented by spokesman Greg Beatty.

"We invite everyone to come get to know the candidates," said Rebecca Boyd, United We Stand, America secretary-treasurer.

Boyd said each candidate will be given an allotted time to speak. Questions to the candidates will also be allowed, although question and answer periods will be brief, in order to keep the program within a reasonable length.

Ten Scurry County candidates have indicated they will participate, said Boyd. They include candidates for county judge, Ricky Fritz and Bobby Goodwin; Precinct 2 Commissioner Roy Idom and his opponent, Wayland Huddleston; and Precinct 4 Commissioner Jerry Gannaway and challenger Charlie Henderson.

Others scheduled to speak are County Treasurer Charlie Bell and his opponent, Janet Merritt; and District Clerk Elois Pruitt and her opponent, Polly Wadleigh Echols.

"Scurry County United We Stand, America was founded by citizens concerned about issues and not individuals," said Boyd. "We do not plan to endorse any candidate."

This will be Scurry County UWSA's eighth candidate forum. The election takes place on Nov. 8. Early voting will be held Oct. 19 through Nov. 4.

TV production comes to Snyder

'Key to the Kingdom' studio finds a home here

California is often associated with television and movies, while Scurry County is better known for production of oil and gas.

Snyder is not likely to replace mecca of the world, but it does now have its own TV production studio, tucked away in a two-car garage.

In an adjacent office is some $200,000 in recording and sound equipment used for production of a weekly religious TV program carried by 1,200 stations nationwide.

"Key to the Kingdom" recently moved its headquarters from Sacramento, Calif., to Scurry County.

White Buffalo unveiled...

More than a thousand spectators were on the courthouse lawn Saturday morning for the unveiling of the new white buffalo bronze statue, crafted by artist Dr. Robert Taylor. White Buffalo Days Festival activities were to continue throughout the day Saturday, ending with a street dance from 7-11 p.m. The annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet was to begin at 6 o'clock. (SDN Staff Photo)

The two-man production team is composed of Mike Tackett and Perry Clifton. Their work is associated with and under the oversight of the 37th St. Church of Christ.

The move to a more central part of the United States was motivated by several factors, Clifton said. "We wanted to get our kids out of California and we needed to be near more churches of Christ in order to raise funds." The two noted that 80 percent of the congregations are in a five-state area with Texas having the most.

While oversight is provided by the Snyder congregation, salaries for the two are provided by the Whitney Ave. Church of Christ in Sacramento.

Tackett said the congregation has about 60 members, and they have committed financial support for one year. The West Coast congregation also paid for the recording and sound equipment. Tackett said their work includes two functions: produce a weekly TV program and raise funds.

It normally takes a full week to produce a 28½-minute program that is transmitted via satellite through the Inspiration Network. Some programming is seen over broadcast stations which take their signal from the satellite and then replay the tape.

The program has the potential to reach 40 million homes each week with a confirmed audience of 250,000. Program response is gauged by a telephone bank manned by volunteers in California.

Tackett said one thing that makes "Key to the Kingdom" unique is that no funds are solicited over the air. "We send Bible correspondence courses, Bibles and answers to specific questions asked by viewers."

At the end of each program, a local trailer is run advising the viewer of local congregations that viewers may contact in the area for more information.

In addition to producing the TV program, the two must also raise funds to pay for airmtime, and for production costs. "We usually spend our weekend speaking at various churches, explaining the program."

A satellite viewer in Scurry County would receive the program at midnight on Sunday which Clifton noted is 10 p.m. in California.

Clifton said primetime is too (See TV, Page 13A)

Columbus Day day of leisure for some here

Hermleigh schools, county employees and local banks and savings and loan institutions all have one thing in common Monday—a holiday.

They are among the groups which will observe Columbus Day.

Also closed will be Scurry County Museum, Scurry County Library and the chamber of commerce. The county courthouse will be closed; therefore, Monday's commissioner's court meeting will be postponed until 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Mail will be put up in boxes at the local post office; however no mail will be delivered and the windows will be closed.

Not everyone will enjoy a day off on Monday. Students will keep hitting the books at Western Texas College and Snyder and Ira public schools. City Hall will be open; so will the Senior Center and county health unit.

Also opening as usual will be Snyder Child Day Care Center and the Head Start program.

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's better to pay as you go than to evade the ones you owe."

There it was in black and white, on the pages of the respected Dallas Morning News. We were surprised to see it in print, but it confirmed what we had long suspected.

While many college sports programs are suffering financial hardships, opinions on the reason vary greatly. Some want to blame it on the increase in the number of women's programs while others blame fickle fans.

The problem, as we see it, can be blamed on some of the players recruited. In a win-at-all-cost program—speed, size and ability are more important than academic skills. Often, players recruited from inner-cities show up on a college campus and become local problems. It just takes a few misuses for the general public to think that one or two bad apples is representative of the whole team.

But what we saw in print came out of the mouth of a Southwest Conference head coach, Tom Rossley of SMU.

Rossley said too many Mustang players are missing valuable practice time because of conflicts with classes.

The problems with collegiate athletics, from our point of view, is that players are no longer "student athletes" and many are hardly representative of the school's student body.

We thought attending class was the very heart of getting a college education.

It's hard to cheer for the "home team" on Saturday afternoon when the roster is really made up of semi-pro players, some who don't care about being able to read or write.

We're reminded of the Chinese scholar who attended his first college football game, hoping to gain an understanding of American customs.

The Chinese scholar watched the game with both interest and puzzlement. At halftime, he turned to his host and asked, "Why don't they hire coolies to do that?"

On air negotiations free two hostages

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Anchorman Tom McGee was telling viewers about a hostage standoff when a telephone started ringing at the television station. It was the gunman, who was holding his sister-in-law and her 14-month-old daughter at gunpoint. He was convinced the police would kill him and he wanted to talk to McGee. "They're trying to shoot me. They hate me, man. I'm serious," Marvin Stidham told McGee as the WOWK-TV cameras rolled, capturing the tense, tearful conversation live. "I tell you what, listen brother," McGee said after talking to Stidham's sister-in-law and learning that no one had been hurt. "We need to all chill out and calm down and end this thing." Police said Stidham took the hostages at gunpoint in his sister-in-law's apartment in suburban Charleston after arguing with her over money. Responding to a telephone call from a neighbor, officers surrounded the building but were unable to persuade Stidham to surrender. About an hour later, Stidham called WOWK-TV, a Charleston-based CBS affiliate. He talked with McGee for about 20 minutes, then agreed to surrender. "We weren't playing to the cameras," McGee said after the ordeal. "I just wanted to put the business of television aside and try to do the best I could to help end the situation." TV viewers could hear both sides of the conversation as McGee, wearing a headset, talked to Stidham. WOWK's news director and producers spoke to police while McGee negotiated on the air. During the breaks, McGee himself talked to police. Throughout the conversation, McGee tried to calm Stidham, a 36-year-old unemployed restaurant worker. Stidham grew tense and cried at times as he pleaded with McGee to tell the police not to kill him "for no reason." "If I come out with my hands up, they ain't going to kill me?" he asked. "No," McGee said. "Do you swear to God?" Stidham asked. Stidham finally walked out of the house and into police custody. He was charged with kidnapping and wanton endangerment. "We developed a sort of rapport," McGee said. "He trusted me, asked for my word. I felt more of a responsibility then than at any time."

Crime Stoppers

A cash reward is being offered by Scurry County Crime Stoppers Inc. for information resulting in an indictment of the person or persons responsible for the burglary of the Ophelia Blackard residence. The residence, at 2209 30th St., was entered illegally between the dates of Aug. 26 and 30. A jukebox was taken during the commission of the burglary. Scurry County Crime Stoppers Inc. will pay up to $1,000 for information leading to the indictment of persons responsible for felony crimes. The caller may remain anonymous. If you have information relating to this or any other crime, please call Lt. Stephen W. Warren at Crime Stoppers, 573-6700.

Office not automatically vacated with conviction

McALLEN (AP) — An appellate court ruled Friday that the office of Hidalgo County sheriff was not automatically vacated when Sheriff Brigido Marmolejo Jr. was convicted of federal criminal charges in July. The ruling overturns state District Judge Fernando Mancias' Sept. 23 order to place Republican and Democratic sheriff nominees on the November general election ballot. The ruling was the result of three appeals of Mancias' decision filed in behalf of County Clerk Billy Leo, county commissioners and Marmolejo. Hidalgo County District Attorney Rene Guerra and Marmolejo's attorney, Alex Moreno, maintain that there is no vacancy until Marmolejo is sentenced for his July 27 convictions on eight counts of money laundering, racketeering and bribery. "He's (Marmolejo) happy that his position was vindicated," Moreno said. "This is a matter that has been political from when it was filed until now." Marmolejo is on a paid leave of absence. Local Republicans and Democrats have argued since August that Marmolejo's conviction left his office vacant and that the public has a right to vote for Marmolejo's successor in the Nov. 8 election.

Graves, Boren and Son merge

Graves Insurance Services has merged with Hugh Boren & Son Insurance Agency, Marilynn Graves has announced. The merger was effective Oct. 1. The new joint effort will retain the name of Hugh Boren & Son Insurance Agency. The telephone number, 573-8647, will remain the same. Graves started her insurance career in 1983. She has operated an independent insurance agency, serving the citizens of Scurry County and the surrounding area, for the past six years. She will be specializing in family auto insurance, high-risk auto insurance, life and health, property insurance, farm property and business insurance. Graves said she extends a personal invitation to all her present and future clients to contact her at the new location of 2501 College Avenue.

Commissioner's comments anger some lawmakers

DALLAS (AP) — Some comments to a consumer columnist for a national magazine has Insurance Commissioner J. Robert Hunter in trouble with some lawmakers who are also insurance agents.

According to columnist Jane Bryant Quinn in the Oct. 3 issue of Newsweek, Hunter said agents serving in the Texas House of Representatives "keep trying to tell me what to do" and feel no conflict of interest in doing so.

Hunter did not identify to Quinn the lawmakers who try to influence him. However, four agents serve on the House Insurance Committee, which handles most legislation that affects the industry.

Two of those agent-lawmakers said they were offended by Hunter's comments.

"I believe Mr. Hunter has totally missed the mark," said Rep. Kim Crimer, R-Kennedale and an Arlington insurance agent.

"He has always taken the slant that anybody in the insurance industry has a jaundiced view toward consumers, and I resent that. I represent consumers on a daily basis," Brimer told The Dallas Morning News.

Rep. Bill Siebert, R-San Antonio and another insurance agent on the committee, said Hunter unfairly singles out the insurance industry.

"It offends me, because there are numerous committees in the House that consider legislation affecting members who serve," he said. Siebert cited as examples farmers on the agriculture committee and lawyers on the judicial affairs committee.

The response prompted Hunter to send a letter to Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center. Hunter told the leaders that, while he was quoted accurately, he had also told Ms. Quinn that "I (now) work closely with these legislators and consider them to be friends."

Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, another agent on the committee, said he accepts Hunter's explanation.

"I think he has respect for us. He is always willing to listen, and he now understands that we as agents work for our customers, not for insurance companies," Counts said.

Advisory vote due at center

Senior citizens will be electing a new representative to the Senior Center's Advisory Board in voting from Oct. 10-12.

Voting will take place from 9-11 a.m. each morning.

42 will be the feature of Monday's Game Day in the center. Games will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Representatives from the Social Security Administration will be in the center Tuesday. Their hours are 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 1-2 p.m. Dot Stokes gives volunteer time each Tuesday morning to counsel with senior citizens who need help with Social Security, Medicare, insurance and various other situations. Her hours are 8:30 a.m. to noon.

The Kitchen Band will go to Snyder Oaks Care Center to entertain residents there at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Frances Featherston will present a program of piano music in the Senior Center at 11 a.m. Wednesday. Thursday at 11:15 a.m. popular and old favorite songs will be featured in the "Olio" interlude. The Sunshine Choir will meet for practice at 10 a.m. Friday. The choir will be presenting a special program for Veterans Day on Nov. 11.

Surplus commodities will be distributed through the Senior Center on Oct. 10. The center would like to have paper bags to be used in packaging the food items. These can be taken to the center at 2603 Ave. M between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Senior citizens are reminded that the center will host its annual Halloween party at 10:30 a.m. on Oct. 11. There will be prizes for the best costumes and games.

Man kills vice president before shooting himself

UPPER SOUTHAMPTON, Pa. (AP) — A man fired from his job eight years ago faked a family emergency to get inside the company's corporate offices, then shot an executive to death and killed himself.

Robert Begley, 54, had a history of threatening workers at the Richmond, Va.-based James River Corp., which makes Dixie cups and Foodwrap. Several years ago, he spent 30 days in a Richmond jail for threatening company executives, police said.

On Friday afternoon, Begley walked in the company's suburban Philadelphia offices and told a receptionist he had to report a family emergency to one of the executives.

Once he reached the second floor, he opened fire on Brenton F. Halsey Jr., 39, a vice president and son of one of the company's founders.

Begley shot Halsey eight times with a 9mm pistol, then shot himself in the head, police said.

More than 100 employees fled the building and a nearby paper distribution center. A police tactical team found the bodies.

It wasn't immediately clear whether Begley, of Glen Allen, Va., knew Halsey.

The company said Begley was fired from the company's accounting office in Virginia for poor work. Police said he had problems finding a job since then.

"This person had a history of mental instability," James River spokesman John Burke said. "We had alerted the Richmond police. It was our belief that he was indeed a danger."

Halsey's father, Brenton S. Halsey, helped found the paper corporation 25 years ago. The company, which reported sales of $6 billion in 1990, has plants all over the country and in Europe.

5 arrested in death of Willacy Co. man

HARLINGEN (AP) — Five Raymondville residents, including a 16-year-old boy, have been arrested in connection with the beating death of a Willacy County man whose body was found in a ditch.

Officials said the five allegedly beat 27-year-old Matias Perez of Raymondville to death, then dumped his body in a ditch northeast of the city, located 20 miles north of Harlingen.

Willacy County Sheriff Larry

Spence said Perez's body was found Thursday afternoon in the ditch by a passerby.

Preliminary autopsy results revealed that Perez had several bruises on his body.

The suspects were arrested late Thursday and early Friday on warrants charging them with murder. The group was being detained at the Willacy County Jail.

Authorities believe the group had been drinking at a Raymondville residence.

Former girlfriend framed, jury says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A police detective whom a prosecutor characterized as a "rogue officer" has been convicted of drug and civil rights charges for planting cocaine in the home of a former girlfriend.

Detective Daniel Falcon, 34, planted the drugs in the home of JoAnn Valadez in the hope of discrediting her and obtaining custody of their 2-year-old daughter, a federal jury decided.

Falcon was convicted Friday on single counts of violating Ms. Valadez's civil rights, cocaine possession with intent to distribute and aiding in the distribution of cocaine.

He could be sentenced to 50 years in prison and fined $8.25 million.

U.S. District Judge Fred Biery said Falcon will be sentenced in about six weeks. Since federal law does not permit probation in such cases, the judge said Falcon could face a prison term ranging from 20 to 50 years.

Woman regains her son

EDINBURG (AP) — Laura Lugo has finally regained custody of the son she says was stolen from her womb two years ago during a Caesarean section.

Now she wonders how and when she will explain the bizarre tale to him.

"I have nothing to hide," she said Friday after a state judge awarded her custody of the boy. "He's going to have a chance to hopefully learn to understand it. I don't know how he's going to react, but we're going to keep on going."

Lugo claims two sisters, Paulyna and Rosa Botello, befriended her and lured her to a clinic in Matamoros, Mexico, for what she believed would be a routine prenatal exam.

Instead, Lugo claims, doctors drugged her, delivered the child by a Caesarean section and gave him to Paulyna Botello, who raised him as her own.

On Friday, state District Judge Robert F. Barnes ordered the 2-year-old boy to be taken from foster care to Lugo's Brownsville home this weekend.

"Finally, finally, it's over," said Lugo.

Barnes based his ruling on two rounds of DNA tests that ruled out Paulyna Botello as the biological mother. The genetic tests indicated a 99 percent chance that Lugo, 27, is the mother.

The boy, named Rafael Olvera Jr. by Paulyna Botello, will be renamed Jorge Daniel Alaniz, after Lugo's maiden name.

The Botellos are charged in Mexico with child abduction; they face no U.S. charges. Paulyna Botello, 33, a Mexican citizen who lives legally in Texas, is in custody in Brownsville awaiting extradition. Rosa Botello is at large.

The Botellos say Lugo agreed to give up the boy because of financial problems, then changed her mind and made up the story about an abduction.

The boy has been in a foster home since Paulyna Botello was arrested June 30 by the FBI. Lugo has seen him in only three brief visits since he was born.

Assistant principal resigns position

FORT WORTH (AP) — The assistant principal at Graham Junior High School has resigned and turned in his teaching credentials after pleading guilty to aggravated sexual assault on a minor.

Roy Lynn Brooks, 47, was arrested and charged Thursday. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to deferred adjudication and ordered to seek psychiatric and psychological counseling.

Brooks will remain on probation and under court supervision for the next 10 years.

"The allegations regarding Mr. Brooks do not concern any students at the Graham public school," said David Knight of Wichita Falls, Brooks' attorney. The conviction could be wiped from the books if he completes the probation successfully.

Brooks also was fined $1,000 and ordered to donate $1,000 to the Young County Family Resource and Child Advocacy Center.

Male nurse accused of rape

INVERNESS, Fla. (AP) — His prey, police said, were women still groggy from surgery.

He would approach them in the hospital recovery room, where he worked the night shift as a nurse. He'd ask if they could hear him. If they could, he'd give them more painkillers or sedatives until they went back under. Then, police said, he would rape them.

"Some have said they were waking up, and they felt this man doing things to them," Police Chief Bill Vitt said Friday. "They were totally helpless to resist."

Bruce Alan Young, 45, was charged with raping four women at Citrus Memorial Hospital in Inverness, about 90 miles north of Tampa. More than 20 other women say they may also have been victims.

Young, a registered nurse at the hospital since 1990, was arrested Monday after a nurse allegedly caught him having sex with a 15-year-old patient. Investigators said he told them he picked the girl because she was "helpless and pretty."

After his arrest, Young confessed to raping the 15-year-old and a 23-year-old woman, police said. On Wednesday, he was charged in two more attacks — in July and last year — after two women, ages 34 and 24, saw his photo in the newspaper and came forward.

Police said all four were assaulted on hospital gurneys after they had abdominal surgery.

Young shielded his face with a piece of paper at a court hearing Thursday as a judge set bail at $80,000.

Young worked for a year as a track coach and driver's education teacher at Countryside High School in Clearwater. Authorities said he lost his job in 1987, and his teaching license the next year, for having sex with a student.

He worked at three other hospitals in the Tampa Bay area, but police said Friday there was no evidence of attacks at those hospitals.

'Fall Fest' set here Thursday

The Western Texas College Student Senate Recreation Committee will sponsor a "Fall Fest" Thursday on campus which will feature a volleyball contest and other outdoor games.

All events will be held at the Student Center beginning at 2:30 p.m. The cafeteria will serve a cook-out evening meal at the patio area Thursday beginning at 5 p.m.

Outbreak linked to Schwan

MARSHALL, Minn. (AP) — Health officials have traced at least 81 cases of salmonella sickness in two states to Schwan's ice cream.

Schwan's Sales Enterprises said it was voluntarily recalling all the ice cream products produced at its plant in Marshall in southwestern Minnesota.

Sixty-seven cases of salmonella have been confirmed in Minnesota since Sept. 19, the Minnesota Department of Health said. Fourteen cases have been reported to the South Dakota Department of Health since Sept. 6.

The company said its other products, which include Red Baron Pizza and Tony's Pizza, are not affected.

Spokesman Dave Jennings said the affected products are sold primarily in pails and half-gallon containers in the 48 contiguous states. The ice cream is rarely sold in grocery stores because the company specializes in home delivery, he said.

He said it was not immediately known where the contaminated ice cream was sold.

The health department advised consumers not to eat any Schwan's ice cream. Jennings said consumers concerned about Schwan's ice cream products can obtain a refund.

Salmonella, a bacteria, is the leading cause of food poisoning in this country. It can cause a fever, vomiting, diarrhea and abdominal cramps.

Schwan's has set up hotline for consumers with questions. The number is (800) 544-6855.

Hermleigh ISD sets up an inclusion program for disabled students

Hermleigh Independent School District has implemented the inclusion program for the 1994-1995 school year. Inclusion is a state-mandated program that enables special education children to better participate in regular education programs.

Any special ed child who can function in the regular classroom environment is given the opportunity to do so with the help of the inclusion teacher, Brenda Logan, who has been hired to serve students who qualify.

Students with disabilities follow the same schedule, use the same facilities and participate fully or partially in academics and other school activities along side non-disabled students.

At the present time, Logan works with students in grades 1-9. She graduated from Texas Tech University with a bachelor of science degree in May of 1992.

She later received an elementary education endorsement from Angelo State University in May of 1994. She is married to Mark Logan, Scurry County entomologist.

The Dead Sea, between Israel and Jordan, is the lowest point in Asia — 1,312 feet below sea level. In 1960, the U.S. birth rate was 23.7 per 1,000. By 1992, that had dropped to 16 per 1,000.

Easterly named leader of Cox Enterprises Inc.

ATLANTA (AP) — David E. Easterly, president of Cox Newspapers Inc., has been named president and chief operating officer of the parent company, Cox Enterprises Inc., the company announced Friday.

Easterly, a member of the board of directors of The Associated Press and the president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association, assumed his duties immediately.

He succeeded James C. Kennedy, chairman and chief executive officer of Cox Enterprises. Kennedy also was president and chief operating officer for the past seven years.

Jay Smith, executive vice president of Cox Newspapers, which includes The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, succeeds Easterly.

The company is planning to purchase Times Mirror Cable systems, Kennedy said.

Financial Focus

Individual retirement accounts have become a common method of saving for retirement since their inception in 1974. As more investors became familiar with IRAs, they began experimenting with the different investments that could be placed in this retirement-planning vehicle.

Today, it is not unusual for investors to have a variety of investments in their IRAs or to have several different IRA accounts, each with a different custodian. Although the Internal Revenue Service certainly allows this, you can save money and simplify record keeping by consolidating your accounts. This requires you to pay only one annual fee and allows you to receive a single statement of your IRA balances.

Consolidating your IRA accounts in one location, however, does not mean you're limited to one investment. Most custodians offer a wide selection of investments and timely documents for your annual tax returns.

Consolidation of your accounts makes it easier to track your investments while you're working, and at retirement, it simplifies the monthly withdrawals you make from your IRA.

If you decide to make an IRA rollover, you have 60 days to roll the funds from one IRA into another after you take delivery. You can make only one rollover per IRA per each 12 months. If you fail to roll your IRA into another IRA within 60 days of taking delivery of the funds and you are not yet age 59-1/2, both taxes and penalties will be assessed on the withdrawal.

When you roll over any of these funds, make certain the transaction is handled properly. By taking extra care, you'll ensure your retirement is properly planned for.

Lobos prevail after Snyder comeback

After being down 21-0, Tigers lose close one 35-31

By TODD STANLEY
SDN Sports Editor

LEVELLAND — If there is one thing Snyder football fans can count on from year-to-year, it is the fact that whenever a David Baugh coached team hits the gridiron, it will play with all its heart.

The "never-say-die" attitude displayed by the Tigers was exemplified Friday night at Lobo Stadium as Snyder fought back from a 21-0 first quarter deficit, only to come up short, 35-31, in a District 5-A heartbreaker.

The Levelland offense was able to capitalize on its opening possession of the night.

Led by quarterback Justin Thoms, the Lobos marched 91 yards on 12 plays and scored when split end Marlin Franklin scampered around the corner on a reverse with 7:16 left in the first quarter.

Lobo kicker Chris Covarrubias booted the extra point to make the score 7-0.

Perhaps the biggest play of Levelland's first drive was on first and ten at the Snyder 11-yard line.

Thoms ran an option play toward the Snyder sideline and was ridden out of bounds by a host of Tiger defenders.

Among those defenders was senior middle linebacker Nathan Zalman, the team's leading tackler.

Unfortunately for Zalman and the Snyder defense, Zalman injured his knee on the play and did not return to the game.

Coach Baugh said that losing his top defensive player that early in the game "was a tremendous blow."

"He (Zalman) is our best defensive player," Baugh said. "He is probably the best linebacker in our district and to lose him that early in the game really hurt our defense."

The severity of Zalman's knee injury was unclear after the game, but that he was to have it checked out Saturday.

After Levelland's first touchdown, the Tigers were able to counter as senior running back Chris Mitchell, along with his offensive line, marched down the field.

Mitchell carried the ball on all six plays, picking up 34 yards down to the Lobo 28-yard line. However, on fourth and three, the Snyder coaching staff elected to go for the first down rather than attempt a field goal.

"We were behind by seven points," Baugh said. "A field goal wouldn't have done anything for us."

Quarterback Matt Parker threw to flanker John Clinkinbeard on a slant pattern that would have been enough for the first down, but the pass was broken up by a Lobo defender.

Levelland took the ball over on downs and proceeded to work its way up to midfield on four plays.

With 2:15 showing on the clock, Thoms ran the option play toward the left sideline, made a cut upfield and took off down the sidelines for a touchdown.

"He (Thoms) is tremendously quick and he has great agility," Baugh said. "Not only does he make real sharp cuts, he makes people miss."

Covarrubias missed the extra point, but the Lobo lead was increased to 13-0.

After a short, five-play Snyder possession, riddled by two consecutive false-start penalties, the Tigers were forced to punt. False-start penalties were a problem all night for the Tigers as they accumulated six.

"Other than the mental mistakes, I was pleased with the offense," Baugh said. "We're not a good enough team to overcome first and twenty."

"It puts our team into a tough situation when we have to get back those yards just to make a first down."

Levelland took possession at their own 36-yard line with 35 seconds left in the first quarter.

On the first play from scrimmage, tailback James Fortner took a handoff up the middle for 64 yards and the Lobos' third touchdown of the quarter.

Fortner finished the night with 22 carries for 124 yards.

A shovel pass to Franklin later, Levelland led 21-0.

"I was real surprised that we had a twenty-one to nothing lead at the end of the first quarter," Lobo head coach Tom Ramsey said.

The Tigers and their fans were surprised also.

Snyder once again sputtered offensively and turned the ball over on downs.

Levelland began to move the ball again, but their drive was stopped short when John Clinkinbeard intercepted a pass by Thoms.

Offensively, the Tigers could not do anything and were unable to capitalize on the turnover.

Then, the game turned around in favor of the Tigers, as Levi Hayes, the Lobo returnman, muffed a Mitchell punt at the Levelland 21-yard line.

Marlowe Riggins recovered for Snyder and six plays later caught a touchdown pass in the corner of the endzone as the Tigers got on the board for the first time.

Parker kicked the extra point, but Snyder still trailed 21-7 with 1:49 left before intermission.

Chris Mitchell helped ignite the Snyder offense in the second half, when on the first play from scrimmage, he took a pitch from Parker around the left end before cutting upfield.

Mitchell outraced three Lobo defenders to the endzone, as the Tigers struck again cutting the lead to 21-14 on Parker's extra point.

After trading possessions, a Lobo miscue in the endzone gave the Tigers two points on a safety, trimming the Levelland lead to 21-16 with 8:15 left in the third quarter.

Snyder converted its next possession for a touchdown as Parker found Riggins on a middle screen play. Tiger tight end Jeff Hobbs got loose in the endzone for the two-point conversion and Snyder took the lead 24-21.

In just over nine minutes, the Tigers had put up 24 straight points, stunning the Levelland homecoming crowd.

As the third quarter ended, Snyder found the Lobos putting together another long drive.

This time Levelland moved the ball 72 yards on 14 plays capped off by an 8-yard run by Thoms and a Covarrubias kick with 9:22 left in the fourth quarter to make the score 28-24 in favor of the Lobos.

Snyder, however, would not die, as they marched 63 yards on 7 plays. The drive included a 40-yard reception by Riggins and a 15-yard touchdown run by Mitchell with 6:29 left in the game.

Parker kicked the extra point to make the score 31-28.

Mitchell finished the night with 22 carries for 163 yards and two touchdowns.

Levelland would not be denied a homecoming victory, though, as they took the ball 80 yards on 12 plays with Thoms getting a key first down on third and 1.

Kevin Blair, the Lobo fullback, ran the ball into the endzone three plays later to ensure the victory with 2:13 left in the game. Covarrubias kicked the extra point and the Lobos had a 35-31 lead.

The play of the night came on the Tigers next play.

Parker rolled right and as he threw the ball, he was hit from behind, causing the ball to float.

Levi Hayes, the Lobo player that muffed the punt earlier in the game, came up with the ball and Levelland took over with 1:55 left.

"That interception was the play of the game," Ramsey said. "It was a really hard fought victory."

"Baugh and the Tigers should be commended for the way they came back in the second half. The game was really a matter of who had the ball last."

Snyder plays at home this week against the Wolforth Freshpith Tigers, who destroyed Lamesa 44-8 Friday. Kickoff is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at Tiger Stadium.

Emmitt ready for Cardinals

IRVING (AP) — Running back Emmitt Smith's hamstring has healed enough for him to start Sunday against the Arizona Cardinals.

The "three-time" NFL rushing champion pulled his right hamstring in the first half of the Cowboys' 34-7 victory over Washington last Sunday and had been receiving treatment all week.

Dallas coach Barry Switzer said Friday that Smith would start against the Cardinals, and that pleased Arizona linebacker Seth Joyner.

"I want him to play, and I want him to play and be at full strength, because when we win the game it's going to be like, 'Oh, you guys won, but Emmitt was at half speed,'" Joyner said. "I don't want to hear any of that. I want him to be hitting on all cylinders."

Smith had said earlier in the week that that's what he wants.

"I'm going to have to run at full speed or I'm not going to give it a try," he said. "I have to have my wheels in good shape for me to play."

The Cowboys also announced Friday that rookie Larry Allen will start at left tackle in place of Mark Tuinei, who has been bothered by a bad back.

Smith's rapid progress means that the Cowboys won't have to start Lincoln Coleman, who gained 74 yards in 22 carries against the Redskins.

Hornets force turnovers as Highland pounds Cards

HERMLEIGH — Coaches have known it for years. You can commit turnovers and win football games.

The Hermleigh Cardinals proved it in a big way Friday night as 10 turnovers, eight of them fumbles, paved the way for a 52-21 District 6 loss to visiting Highland Hornets.

Hermleigh won only one game last year and got off to a fast start in 1994, but Coach David Rogers remains optimistic as the Cards' won-loss record dropped to 4-2. "Hermleigh's been down a long time," Coach Rogers said. "It takes a little bit of patience to build a program. It doesn't happen overnight."

"We just never got our gears running," Rogers added. "We normally play a decent second half. It seems liked we played defense all night long."

"How can you win with eight fumbles and two interceptions? You just can't do it," Rogers lamented.

Highland jumped off to a 14-0 lead in the first quarter behind the running of Cody Muncy, Ricky Sutton and Brandon Bankhead. Muncy carried 20 times for 138 total yards while Sutton picked up 74 yards on five carries. Bankhead collected 61 yards on 12 totes with the pigskin.

Hermleigh struck paydirt in the second period on a 12-yard run by Chris Roemisch. Joe Sanchez booted the extra point.

Hermleigh struck again in the third period on a 75-yard kickoff return by Roemisch. Sanchez tossed to Jimmy Digby for the two-point conversion.

In the final period, the Cards scored again on a 70 yard kickoff return by Sanchez. The point-after failed.

Roemisch led the offensive effort for Hermleigh with 41 yards on 12 trips with the ball. Sanchez picked up 23 yards on seven carries. Digby led receivers with four receptions for 56 yards. Roemisch went to air 13 times, completing five for 76 yards. Sanchez was two for two, netting minus three yards.

For the second week of district play, Hermleigh journeys to Borden County to challenge the Coyotes while Highland will be at Ira.

Baylor basketball gets probation

WACO (AP) — Baylor officials on Friday placed the basketball program on two years' probation and banned it from postseason play for the next two seasons for violating Southwest Conference and NCAA rules.

Baylor President Herbert Reynolds imposed the sanctions for what he called "major" violations of SWC and NCAA bylaws and procedures.

Loraine too quick for Borden County

GAIL — The Loraine Bulldogs exploded for 341 yards total offense to breeze to a 54-8 District 6 six-man victory over the Borden County Coyotes Friday night.

Borden County Coach Bobby Avery couldn't find much positive about the first district loss, which makes the Coyotes' season record 4-2.

"We were doing things right offensively, but we just weren't tackling."

Loraine's speed also had a devastating impact on Borden County. Cory Woodell rushed 20 times for 185 yards and four rushing touchdowns. He also caught one pass for a TD. Jesse Rico completed seven of 10 aerials for 77 yards.

Oscar Baeza scored the Coyote's lone touchdown, a three-yard run with 6:14 left in the third quarter. Juan Galvan booted the extra point.

District play continues next Friday with Borden County hosting the Hermleigh Cardinals. Loraine is also at home, against Westbrook.

Injuries, mistakes continue as Westbrook thumps Ira

WESTBROOK - Opening-quarters jitters resulted in three fumbles, all converted into touchdowns, as Westbrook rolled to a 48-6 victory over the Ira Bulldogs in a District 6 six-man football contest Friday.

The Bulldogs, snakebit by injuries this season, are still winless in six outings.

Coach Darren Janssen said the conference opener was filled with "a bunch of mental mistakes."

The coach added, "We would drive down the field and then get worn out." A thin squad of only eight players means little rest for the Bulldogs. "We had good running from the spread, but kept shooting ourselves in the foot."

Janssen described the outing as an extremely physical game. "We played extremely hard, but Westbrook didn't make the same mistakes. When you get down like we are, it's hard to keep the intensity up."

Janssen was pleased with the fan support, noting that more Bulldog fans were present than for host Westbrook which won its first game of the season.

Despite the margin, Ira had a touchdown in the third and fourth quarters called back. Ira's lone TD came on a 65-yard kickoff return by Todd Collom midway in the second stanza.

Next Friday, district continues as Ira hosts Highland. Westbrook will travel to Loraine.

THE $51 PER BALE

ADVANTAGE FOR COTTON PRODUCERS

More than $51 per bale paid in cash for the 1993 crop.

Your local and regional cotton cooperatives offer a vertically integrated system that takes your cotton from the field to the textile mill. It's a system that adds valuable income to your farming operation. Ginning, warehousing, marketing, textile manufacturing, and cottonseed processing all work to increase the value of your cotton crop every step of the way. For the 1993 cotton crop, combined cash payments from the local and regional cotton cooperatives averaged $51.62 per bale, over and above the value of your lint cotton. Thus, the more cotton you send through the cooperative system, the more you can add to your net profits. Consider the cooperative advantage for your cotton crop. From your local cooperative gin to the warehouses, the oil mill, the marketing association and the denim mill - it's just good business. See your local or regional cotton cooperative today.

Austrian man bequeaths $5.6 million to the U.S. government

BOSTON (AP) — An Austrian man whose family fled persecution of Jews in 1906 never forgot the country that took him in when his homeland forced him out.

When he died, Stanley S. Newberg decided to say thanks. He left $5.6 million to the U.S. government.

"It is my expression of deep gratitude for the privilege of residing and living in this kind of government — notwithstanding many of its inequities," Newberg wrote in his will.

The will tied no restrictions to the gift, which was forwarded to the Bureau of Public Debt in Washington, D.C., to cover general expenses.

Considering the federal budget for 1994 is $1.5 trillion — or $4.1 billion per day — Newberg's gift would cover less than two minutes of government spending.

"You should not assume Mr. Newberg was an old person who had lost his sense of sanity, who gave away his money to the government, no less," said attorney Mark C. O'Connor, who handled the estate.

"It's very patriotic, but it's not very unusual for people to give money to the government to express their appreciation, particularly immigrants," O'Connor said. "Most people do not have this kind of money."

Newberg, who died in 1986 at age 81 without any surviving blood relatives, left most of his $8.4 million estate to the government. The Department of Justice received the $5.6 million earlier this week, U.S. Attorney Donald K. Stern said Friday.

Born on Christmas Day 1904, Newberg came to the United States with his family at the age of 2. They settled in New York, where his father, who spoke no English, peddled fruit on the Lower East Side.

Newberg went on to start General Aluminum Corp. in Woburn, just north of Boston. He was chief executive and owner until his death.

Paula Jones vows to go ahead with sexual harassment lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paula Jones, who offered to drop her $700,000 sexual harassment suit against President Clinton if he admitted he met her in a hotel room, says she will press ahead because Clinton refused to settle.

"I am fully committed to seeing this case through to the end," Jones said at a news conference Friday. "And in the end, my good name and reputation will be restored."

Jones alleges that while she was a state worker attending a public function at an Arkansas hotel in 1991, Clinton sent a state trooper to summon her to his room, where he asked her to engage in a sexual act. She said she declined.

Her settlement offer called for Clinton to read a statement to reporters saying he does not deny the meeting took place and absolving her of any improper or sexual conduct.

"The offer was fair to both of us," Jones said. "It provided him with a chance to end the case without having to admit his own conduct."

Jones and her lawyers faxed the statement to Clinton's attorney last weekend. Robert Bennett, Clinton's attorney, characterized the settlement offer as "an ultimatum." He noted that the lawyers had made the offer public two days after making it to him.

"We are not going to respond to ultimatums," he said Friday. Jones filed the suit May 6 in federal court in Little Rock, naming Clinton and Arkansas State Trooper Danny Ferguson.

Bible Questions & Answers

Homer Anderson

WHO ARE SUBJECTS OF BAPTISM?

People are lost and stand in need of salvation from the guilt of their own sins, not the sins of their ancestors (Isaiah 59:2; Ezekiel 18:20; Romans 5:12). Babies are innocent (Matthew 19:14). "Sin is the transgression of the law" (1 John 3:4). Infant baptism grew out of the false doctrine of inherited guilt. Jesus inherited no sin nor guilt from Mary! There are four prerequisites for baptism. In the New Testament, those who were baptized were characterized by four things: 1) They had been taught the gospel of Jesus Christ (Romans 10:17). 2) They believed that Jesus Christ is the Son of God (John 3:16; Mark 16:15-16). 3) They repented of their sins (Acts 2:38; 17:30). 4) They confessed their faith in Jesus Christ (Rom. 10:10). Infants cannot be taught the gospel, nor can they believe it. They are safe and have no sins of which to repent. They cannot confess Jesus with their mouths. New Testament writers said nothing about infant baptism. The only way one can practice baptizing infants is to depart from the teaching of Christ by adding unauthorized acts (Rev. 22:18-19). Churches of Christ are seeking to follow the New Testament in all matters of faith.

Brown Bag Concert

Jon Palomaki, head of the Western Texas College Music Department, and music students will hold their first Brown Bag Concert Wednesday from 12:15-12:45 p.m. in Room 102 of the Fine Arts Building.

The general public is invited to attend and to bring their "brown bag" lunch to eat during the event, which will be informal.

Among the performances will be a WTC guitar ensemble featuring Palomaki, Randall Procter, Darrel Johnson, Jerry Echols and Paul Hagood.

Other performers will include Carrie Keith in a piano solo; John Rogers on trumpet; and Leroy Martinez and Cliff Allmon performing guitar solos.

POLLY WADLEIGH ECHOLS DISTRICT CLERK

With the tax base eroding, wages frozen or declining and prices constantly on the rise, one becomes frustrated and angry, feeling helpless in life's situations. Changes are having to be made, forcing people to do more with less.

Many times these changes, especially where government is concerned, is only a change in the way of thinking. If the District Clerks Office, or any government office is handled like a well run, competitive business, the thinking would be on how to get more done with less help, working under a little more pressure, reorganizing work procedures, putting in a little more time outside the 8 hour work day or whatever method it may take to cut expenses overall.

With the 1994 District Clerks Office budget of $103,717, of which $7,624 is part time salary and the 1995 budget of $116,757 having $9,148 earmarked for part time help, I feel there is a time for change in this government office.

With campaign ads stressing that, should the community of Scurry County elect me, Polly Echols, as District Clerk, there will be changes. Starting with making the office available 9 hours each working day, keeping expenses down and the standard of service excellent, dealing with each citizen in a caring and sensitive manner, doing whatever it takes, making that office accountable to the taxpayers, our bosses. If I don't do as I say I will, then changes will need to be made again.

Three charged

MARLIN (AP) — The mother and two grandparents of a 13-month old child who died in a house fire last week have been charged with manslaughter, police said. The child's mother, Constance Hopkins; grandmother, Ollie M. Hopkins; and grandfather, Melvin Brooks, were not home when fire broke out at their house about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, said police Lt. Bobby Hall. Five children were alone in the house when the fire occurred, authorities said. Cyerra Benjamin died in the fire; the other four children escaped.

Kuwait border...

U.S. warns Iraq about massing troops

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq claimed its troop deployment near the Kuwait border did not foreshadow another invasion. But it warned Saturday that unless crushing U.N. sanctions are lifted, "the anger of the patient will erupt."

A government statement called the suggestions that Iraq is threatening Kuwait part of a "sick plot" to justify prolonging the sanctions.

"We are moving our troops within our own territory, and it's no one else's business," Iraq's U.N. ambassador, Nizar Hamdoun, told ABC-TV on Friday. "We are not posing a threat to anyone."

The deployment of as many as 60,000 Iraqi troops and hundreds of tanks followed reports of a failed uprising in the Iraqi military.

President Clinton ordered an aircraft carrier to the region and put U.S. troops on alert. In London, the Ministry of Defense announced it was sending an extra frigate, HMS Cornwall, to patrol off Kuwait.

In the Saudi capital, Riyadh, military chiefs from Saudi Arabia and other Arab states in the Persian Gulf gathered to discuss what action they should take in response to the Iraqi moves.

But there was no sign of panic in Kuwait, which Saddam invaded in August 1990 and occupied for seven months until his army was driven out by a U.S.-led coalition in 1991.

"Massing his troops on the border can only mean Saddam is desperate. Whatever he does now can be quickly contained," said Haidar Mulla Jumaa.

New evidence, accounts feed mystery of how cultists died

GRANGES-SUR-SALVAN, Switzerland (AP) — Vials of liquid, syringes, garbage bags and residents' strange accounts are adding new facets to the mystery behind the deaths of 48 doomsday cult members in Switzerland.

The two burned-out chalets where 25 bodies were found Wednesday are a macabre scene of charred clothes, furniture, electrical appliances, comic books, a melted tennis racket and clock radio and empty medical vials.

A fire and explosives expert combing the site for incendiary devices Friday said he stumbled upon numerous unopened vials with obviously fake labels including "adrenaline," "folic acid" and "valium."

"There were several dozen syringes. They were all over the place," Jean-Claude Martin, of the Science and Criminology Institute at the University of Lausanne, said after searching the grounds for a second day.

Authorities issued arrest warrants Friday for two leaders of the cult called, among other names, the Order of the Solar Tradition. Evidence showed that many of the 48 sect members who died in Switzerland may have been murdered. Authorities in Canada, where another five sect members died, said three were murdered.

Swiss officials have ruled out a mass suicide but were also checking supposed farewell letters from the victims. Theories have abounded in the Swiss media that the dead were drugged, perhaps willingly, shot or suffocated with garbage bags tied over their heads, then burned in a plot to cover up evidence and make it look like a mass suicide.

R.C. Goodlett

1914-1994

ROGERS, Ark. — Services are set for 2 p.m. Monday in the Mason Valley Baptist Church for Reuben "R.C." Goodlett, 79, who died Friday at his home in the Decatur-Mason Valley community. Burial will follow in the Coffelt Cemetery.

A former resident of Dunn, he married Viah Meador on May 14, 1939 in Dunn. He moved to the Mason Valley area from Dunn in 1952.

Mr. Goodlett attended Tarleton State College. After moving to Arkansas, he served 16 years on the Decatur school board and was a retired carpenter. He was a Methodist and attended the Mason Valley Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Viah Meador of the home; a son, Whitmore Craig Goodlett of Decatur; five daughters, Dana Ann McDowell of Centerton, Ruby Turnipseed of Rogers, Judy Davis of Decatur, Linda Allen of Gentry and Viah Carlson of Centerton; three brothers, Joseph Goodlett of Conroe, Eunice J. Goodlett of Dunn and Charles L. Goodlett of Colorado City; 13 grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

Jessie F. Bostic

1928-1994

MIDLAND — Funeral services were to be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel for Jessie F. "Frank" Bostic of Midland. Interment was to follow in the Resthaven Memorial Park Cemetery.

Mr. Bostic, 66, died Thursday afternoon at his residence. He was the brother of Cheriann Derbyberry and Wanda Jones, both of Snyder.

Born on June 9, 1928, in Aubrey, Tex., Mr. Bostic had worked for the city of Midland. He met and married Wanda Williams in February, 1952, in Lovington, N.M. Mr. Bostic also drove trucks for Pittman Trucking and Atlas Trucking Companies. He retired from Britt Trucking Co. in 1992. He had won many safety driving awards during the years, including the state driving award of 1978. A member of Valley View Baptist Church, he was an active member of the men's prayer meeting group there.

Survivors include his wife, Wanda Bostic of the home; three sons, David Bostic, Joe Bostic and Freddie Bostic, all of Midland; a brother, Edwin Bostic of Midland; another sister, Joann Neal of Dickenson; six grandchildren; one step-granddaughter; and one great-grandson.

Records show $40,873.45 in wire transfers from Cisneros

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Copies of bank records provided by attorneys for his ex-mistress confirm Henry Cisneros' account that he wired her money after he became secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Linda Medlar's attorney, Bruce Magness, gave copies of $40,873.45 in wire transfers to the San Antonio Express-News, which reported the transactions in Friday's editions.

Magness said Cisneros used a cashier's check to make a final $15,000 payment to Medlar in July 1993.

Last month, Cisneros acknowledged he made around $50,000 in payments to his ex-girlfriend on three occasions after he took over HUD in January 1993 — something he had previously denied.

He said he used proceeds from the sale of assets he relinquished to take the government job.

According to a transcript of a 1993 telephone conversation between the pair also provided by her lawyers, Cisneros opened a special account to funnel the money to Medlar in February 1993, just a month after he took office.

Cisneros' payments to Medlar have become the focus of a Justice Department review of allegations that he misled FBI agents about the money during background interviews as part of his Senate confirmation.

Medlar sued Cisneros for fraud and breach of contract in July, alleging he reneged on a verbal agreement to pay her $4,000 a month until her teen-age daughter graduated from college. She sought $256,000 and unspecified punitive damages.

Cisneros, the former mayor of San Antonio, denied having an agreement with Medlar, a former San Antonio political consultant who now lives in Lubbock. He said he gave her money out of compassion.

Cisneros' San Antonio attorney, Seagal Wheatley, did not return a telephone call Friday to The Associated Press.

In Santa Fe, N.M., on Friday, Cisneros vowed to stay on the job despite the controversy.

Ranch hand pleads guilty

STANFORD, Mont. (AP) — A ranch hand pleaded guilty Friday to killing prosperous cattle breeder Wayne Stevenson, saying he was angry he was denied a raise.

David Llamas Blake, 33, said he argued with Stevenson about not getting more money, then fetched a .22-caliber rifle from a truck, shot him to death and hid the body in a pile of manure.

"At the moment, I was not really thinking what I was doing," Blake said in court. "I was very angry."

Blake, who had worked for Stevenson for about a year, originally pleaded innocent and had been scheduled to go to trial Tuesday.

In return for Blake's plea, prosecutors said they would not seek the death penalty. He faces up to life in prison without parole. No date has been set for sentencing.

Stevenson left his ranch house the night of March 27 to check on calves. He didn't come back. His wife got a telephone call demanding a $1 million ransom, and Stevenson's body was found two days later near Blake's house.

Blake said he demanded the ransom to try to cover up the slaying. He didn't get any money.

PRODUCED LOCALLY — "Key to the Kingdom," a weekly half-hour religious program distributed by satellite, is now produced in Snyder. Mike Tackett (left) and Perry Clifton are shown in the garage which has been turned into a small costly and must compete against popular programming. "It is amazing how many people are up and watching at that time of night."

The ministry gets the plus benefit of allowing broadcasters to use their tape to fill in blank time frames. "Since we ask for no money, we are considered no threat to other ministries, and so they are happy to let us fill unused time slots," Tackett said.

Tackett and Clifton have been in Snyder about three months. Tackett does all of the on-camera teaching and Clifton considers himself the production technician and engineer.

Tackett grew up in central California and attended Libscomb College in Nashville. A Bible major, he moved to Snyder to attend

College slates stargazing party

The public is invited to a stargazing party which will be held on the Western Texas College campus next Saturday, Oct. 15.

The event will be just north of the Student Center from 8-10 p.m. Among those attending will be the Lubbock South Plains Astronomy Club. The public will be shown stars, planets and constellations through various telescopes.

There will also be demonstrations on how to use star maps.

Refreshments will be served in side the Student Center. For more information, contact either Britt Canada, head of the WTC science division, at 573-8511, ext. 237; Marsha Krenek, earth science instructor at Snyder Junior High School at 573-6356; or Dan Pulatice at 573-7841.

Clifton grew up in Rio Linda, Calif., attended the Bay Area School of Preaching and later attended Lubbock Christian University, Oklahoma Christian College and Rose University. Clifton was familiar with Snyder, having visited his brother, Rod Clifton, who lives here.

Clifton said he suggested to his co-worker that Snyder might be a "good central location."

The two produce 52 programs a year, something they have been doing since 1992. Some programs are reaired at the request of stations.

Many of the persons who call in and ask for Bible correspondence courses have lessons graded by volunteers from the 37th Street Church of Christ.

Program content is Bible-based, Tackett said. "We get our best response to practical kinds of lessons with strong Bible content."

Clifton and his wife, Dana, have two sons. Kyle is age 9 and Blake is 5.

Tackett and his wife, Joann, have two daughters, Tabetha is four and Rebekah is 3.

"We violate all of what all the researchers and preacher friends tell us. Instead of soft social issues, we get our strongest response from lessons with old-fashioned, independent study of important Bible topics."

Tackett said he has produced programs dealing with soft social issues and says he has found there is no comparison to the response. "We know what works," Tackett added.

"Success or failure is measured by the phone calls we get after a program is aired," Tackett said.

"We run a lean and mean operation," Tackett added. The two are the only paid staffers who say they operate on 10 percent of the budget of comparable operations. Their set was home-made, financed by some $1,500 in donations from 37th Street church members.

CLARK LUMBER CO.

Clark Lumber Company has been a pillar in our community for many years. In the past 20 years the business has changed hands three times, and has been owned for the past 12 years by O'Neal and Virginia Bloom. Clark Lumber & Supply, as it is now known, does contract building, roofing and remodeling as well as retail sales. To stay afloat in the changing economy the restoration of the all wood lumber sheds with an all metal structure is now a must. Please excuse our mess for the next few months while we rebuild our store. According to Gilbert Fields longtime lumberman in Snyder, the East wing which is now under demolition was first built in the early 1900's. Now nearly 100 years later O'Neal and Virginia Bloom feel the need to make changes to remain for another century. Thank you for shopping at home.

94-year-old prefers jail again

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Wesley "Pop" Honeywood has done a lot of time in his 94 years. Thursday, he started doing some more.

"I'd rather go to jail than a nursing home," Honeywood said after Judge R. Hudson Olliff revoked his bond for violating probation. "If I go to jail, I may be out in a couple of years. If I go to a nursing home, I may be there the rest of my life."

He pleaded guilty last week to armed assault and possession of a firearm by a felon. He had pointed an unloaded gun at a man who warned Honeywood not to eat grapes growing in the man's yard.

At the time of his arrest, he was on probation for attempted sexual battery on a 7-year-old girl.

Honeywood is due for sentencing Oct. 14, after the judge gets a report on Honeywood's health.

Honeywood has a cataract in his right eye, can't hear with his left ear, suffered a heart attack in 1981 and takes medication for his heart, high blood pressure and arthritis. He said his father lived until he was 113.

Olliff could send Honeywood home, sentence him to as much as 60 years in prison as a habitual offender, add up to 12 more years on the sexual battery count, or even send him to a nursing home.

Locals share memories of J. Wright Mooar

J. Wright Mooar staked a claim in history long before he shot the now-famous white buffalo, but that event helped establish the legend of the Vermont native who became a noted buffalo hunter and rancher in Scurry County.

Though no one realized it then, Mooar's adventures as a buffalo hunter earned him a permanent place in history as well as in the hearts of Snyder and Scurry County residents.

Many persons still living here have memories of the famous buffalo hunter. Five shared their stories this week with the Snyder Daily News, including Judy Hays, Mooar's granddaughter; Alonzo "Lonnie" Johnson; Brud Boren; Tollie Faver; and Mae Brush.

The six-foot-two, burly man meant a great deal to them and, even though Mooar died in 1940, they still miss him and cherish their memories of him.

Lonnie Johnson became acquainted with Mooar when he was a teen-ager. He described Mooar as "big in size with an angel of a disposition. After my daddy, he was number one. He was like a second father to me."

Lonnie's uncle, Cecil Blair, worked for Mooar on the Mooar and Shannon Ranch near Union. For three summers, Lonnie lived with his uncle on the ranch.

Though he received no pay, Lonnie said he helped out where needed. He was often placed in charge of the remuda, or the cowhands' horses.

Lonnie never tired of listening to Mooar tell Indian tales and show him the famous white buffalo hide. His favorite part of the day was around 11 or 11:30 a.m. when J. Wright would invite him to go home with him rather than to his uncle's home.

"The grub was not outstanding, but my life was enriched just being around him," he said.

Lonnie enjoyed the one-on-one conversations he had with the famous buffalo hunter. His favorite off to scout the herds. Thousands of shaggy buffalo grazed the luxuriant grass and drank the gentle flowing creek water. As evening neared and Mooar returned to camp, he spotted an more than one occasion, some Indian braves sought to kill him and return the white buffalo skin to their people.

Lonnie said Mooar was interested in everything about him, in high school, he and Mooar drifted apart. Lonnie went on to become a farm and ranch hand and eventually a professional cook. Since he often spent days at a time alone on the range, Lonnie said he never her. She described her grandfather as a "big man with broad, thick shoulders and steel grey eyes; a gentle man who liked to be interviewed." People liked to visit him and listen to his myriad tales of buffalo hunts and skirmishes with Indians.

Judy knew him in the twilight years of his life when aging had slowed him down. But he always

SHARING MEMORIES — Earlier this week, several persons who knew J. Wright Mooar as friend or relative gathered at the Snyder Daily News to share their memories. From left are, Brud Boren, who grew up listening to Mooar's tales; Judy Hays, Mooar's granddaughter; Tolle Faver who helped Mooar on his ranch; and Mae Brush who knew Mooar when she was a young child. (SDN Staff Photo) rite tale was the killing of the white buffalo. According to "From Buffalo to Oil, History of Scurry County, Texas," Mooar killed the buffalo on Oct. 7, 1876.

"...J. Wright Mooar pitched camp on Deep Creek, 10 miles northwest of what became Snyder. ...His first morning there, ...Mooar usual sight, a white buffalo grazing quietly among a large herd. He bagged his rare trophy and saved the hide which he exhibited with pride for many years..."

Mooar often told Lonnie tales of how the killing of the white buffalo, held sacred by the Indians, caused him a lot of trouble. On cluding his education. His favorite greeting was "Hey, buddy. What are we going to do today?"

He also told of their encounter with a bull snake. They "fooled with it" for a while but then Mooar decided to let it go because "it had lived a long time."

After Lonnie graduated from heard about Mooar's death until after it occurred. When he did hear, he said it was "a killing blow."

Judy Hays was 13 when her grandfather died, but she still remembers and admires Mooar. He taught her how to be a rancher, a way of life she said is best suited to had enough energy to play stick horses with Judy, as long as no one saw him do it.

Though her grandfather never sought celebrity status, Judy said she rode with him in Snyder's Centennial parade in 1936. Mooar was also asked to lead the Garza County Centennial parade and she accompanied him there, too.

Judy lived on the Mooar and Shannon ranch until she reached school age. She then lived in the house Mooar built in town, which was located some two blocks from the school. Judy and her family and Mooar lived together for years. When he was gone she said she "missed everything about him."

Besides learning how to be a rancher, Mooar also taught his granddaughter to "Look people in the eye when talking to them and don't lie to them."

Judy said he called one of the horses he rode "Dog."

She liked many things about her grandfather but her favorite is that "he never tried to boss me around."

Mooar wasn't a native of Snyder but rather a Yankee who came to Texas seeking a new way of life. Judy's father was Tommy McDonnell of Providence, R.I., who had been adopted by Mooar. McDonnell came to Texas seeking a cure for health problems. He became a permanent member of the Mooar family through an informal adoption process, generally accepted in those days.

Mooar was also active in the community and was a member of Masonic Lodge #706.

According to Wayne Gard in "The Great Buffalo Hunt," Mooar never smoked or drank liquor, not even with the buffalo hunters who celebrated after they brought their hides to town. Instead, he took care of business.

Brud Boren said he considered himself "real attached" to J. Wright Mooar, who did not drive and had to solicit rides to town and back on Saturdays. That was the day people in the county gathered in town around the square to visit and conduct business.

As a young boy, Brud said he really looked forward to Mooar riding with them as it gave him a chance to listen to his stories.

Brud loved to get Mooar "started" talking about the past. One of his favorite tales concerned Adobe Walls, the site of a famous battle with the Indians.

According to "From Buffalo To Oil," Mooar's account is as follows: "Two Cheyennes approached me and advised that I get my supply of hides out of the North Plains before the full of the moon."

"I took their advice and hurried toward Dodge City, which was at that time our marketing place for hides. While I was away from the hunting grounds, the battle of the Adobe Walls in what is now Hutchinson County was fought between 28 whites and a great band of Comanches...I think of those stirring buffalo hunting days spent upon the great Staked Plains and think of how we might have been scalped instead of being warned to get out of the country at that particular time...."

Mooar also said that he did not "harbor ill feelings for the Plains Indians," and that they did not "personally dislike me" even though Mooar and the other buffalo hunters were "engaged in destroying their food supply."

Brud said he liked visiting the Mooar and Shannon ranch house because he got to see the white buffalo robe. Years ago, Brud said Judy also took him to the place on Deep Creek where the white buffalo was killed. He picked up a wire from the site which he kept for many years.

Brud said his dad and Mooar were great friends and that Mooar often stopped by their insurance office to visit. Mooar spoke to a lot of civic groups, Brud said. He always wrote his speeches by hand and brought them by their office in the basement of the old First State Bank and Trust building to be transcribed. In this way, Brud was able to hear even more of Mooar's tales. Brud said Mooar had "beautiful handwriting."

Mae Brush said she was "just a kid" living west of town in Union when she knew J. Wright Mooar. She recalled that he wore a big hat, knee-high boots, had a mustache, and that he liked to shake hands with children.

Mae said Mooar also knew her husband, Clarence. One of her fondest memories of Mooar occurred after she and Clarence were married. One day they passed by Mooar who was sitting in front of Wilhelm Grocery Store on the square when he stopped them and remarked that he knew Clarence.

The couple was away from Snyder from 1940-1945 when Clarence was in the service so Mae said she did not know that Mooar died in 1940 until they returned.

Tollie Faver, who will turn 100 in March of 1995, met Mooar when he was about 15 years old. He said he often helped out when area ranchers gathered their cattle to be branded, divided and sent to other pastures before being shipped to market.

One of Tollie's main jobs was to "keep the branding iron hot." He said he stayed in the bunkhouse and remembered Mooar as someone "who tended to his business and let you tend to your own."

He also recalled that Mooar kept two big dogs locked up in wire pens — pens Tollie made sure he stayed away from.

Tollie said Mooar also gave him a $5 bill the first time he worked for him on the Mooar and Shannon Ranch. He said Mooar also always wore a black Stetson hat and "never put a crease in it."

Brud said that people who knew Mooar, including himself, never realized what a celebrity he would become after his death. They were living "history in the making" but did not know it. His importance and place in history were not realized until after Mooar died.

Mooar's brand was a backward Z & XT.

LOCAL LEGEND — J. Wright Mooar, who died in 1940, will also be remembered for his exploits as a buffalo hunter. His shooting of a white buffalo on Deep Creek only added to his legendary status in later years but to family and friends he was first and foremost a trusted friend who believed in treating people fairly. Pair wed in Arkansas

EL DORADO, Ark. — Ebenezer Baptist Church in El Dorado, Ark., provided the setting Sept. 10 for the candlelight ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Jami Dawn Green and Jeffrey Scott Steinsiek.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Alton Green of Spearsville, La., and Mrs. Anne Steinsiek of El Dorado, and the late Carl W. Steinsiek.

The Rev. Don Travis performed the double-ring ceremony with Mary Clark, pianist, providing the instrumental nuptial music.

The church was decorated in the bride's chosen colors of rose, pink and mauve with white accents. The foyer featured a large antique gold mirror above a table that held a wicker bird cage. The bird cage was decorated with roses, gladiolus, stargazer lilies, greenery, white doves and two small white glazed mother-of-pearl carousel horses.

A large grapevine wreath with matching floral arrangements accented each glass door entering the altar setting. The ceremony was performed before a large candle branch decorated with massive matching floral arrangement. It was flanked by two double-ring candle trees trimmed in greenery and bridal bows. Large ferns on brass stands placed at key points added further accents.

Mother's pews were marked with cascades of pink roses tied with ribbons and pearls.

Escorted and presented in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of white bridal satin designed by Alfred Angelo. It featured a V-neckline, fitted bodice and basque waistline enhanced with Schiffli lace appliques embossed with crystal sequins and pearl trim. The short puff sleeves featured sheer lace insets, embellished with intricate detail work of Lacy as bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of tea-length, bold floral print with a fitted bodice and off-the-shoulder neckline. They carried a white lace fan with a cascading arrangement of soft mauve, pink and white roses, highlighted with pearls and French tied ribbons.

The groom was attired in a white tux with a soft pink tie and cummerbund.

Richard Steinsiek attended his brother as best man, and Danny Lacy as groomsman. Wade Mitchell of Spearsville, La., served as ring bearer. Candlelighters and ushers were Chris Taylor of Ruston, La., and Matt Stringer of Spearsville, La. They wore grey tuxedos with pink ties and cummerbunds. Terry and Rene Thornhill of El Dorado attended the bride's book.

A reception followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was centered with a large floral arrangement of rose, pink and mauve. The white three-tiered wedding cake, supported by crystal columns, was decorated with the bride's and groom's names and wedding date engraved. Punch was served from crystal appointments. The groom's table featured a sportsman's arrangement with live greenery. The three-tiered octagon-shaped chocolate cake featured a monogrammed "S" that was surrounded by fresh strawberries. Coffee was served from silver appointments.

The bride is the granddaughter of Inez Capps of Post. A special guest was Gene Hays, uncle of the bride from Post.

After their wedding trip to Colorado, the couple are at home in Smackover, Ark.

DOUBLE-RING CEREMONY — Dennis and Johnnie Sellars announce the marriage of their daughter, Melissa Rawls, to Craig Pippin, the son of Jester and Billie Pippin of Snyder. The bride is the daughter of the late Wesley Rawls. The couple are graduates of Snyder High School. They were married in a Sept. 30 double-ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m. in the bride's parents home. Melissa Ward was maid of honor and Mike Nobles was best man. A reception was held following their vows. (Contributed Photo)

Tricks used by molesters

By Ladies
Home Journal

For AP Special Features

Would your child know what to do in the following situations? Ladies' Home Journal magazine shows some of the most common tricks used by child molesters, plus tactics for staying safe. Read the scenarios together with your child, and talk about how you can make the safety strategies a part of your daily life.

A man carrying an armload of packages asks you to help bring a bag to his car. Tell your child: Adults should ask other adults, not kids, for help. Explain that it's not impolite to say no to such requests, since, in general, a trustworthy adult would not ask. Also tell your child to report any such requests to you.

Someone you don't know pulls his car over and asks you for directions to the town library. Tell your child: Be wary, too, of any adult asking for directions. Take two giant steps back from the car and shout the information. If the stranger tries to grab you, be ready to run very fast in the opposite direction from the way the car is going. Tell your child that even if someone knows your name it doesn't mean he knows you. Be sure to put your child's name tags and labels on clothing, backpacks or lunch boxes in a place that is not visible to strangers.

You're playing in the back yard when a neighbor strolls by and asks if you would like to play his new Sega Genesis game. Tell your child: Never go anywhere with anyone unless you check with a parent or a caregiver first, even if you're sure it's OK.

You're home alone and someone phones to say he's doing a survey for your school. Can he ask you a few questions? Tell your child: Never give out any information to anyone who calls. Say, "You'll have to speak to my mom or dad. One second, please." Pretend to call a parent, wait a minute, then say, "My mom is busy right now. Can I take a message?"

Your teen-age baby sitter says he'll give you $5 if you play a secret game with him. Tell your child: Say no, and tell a parent as soon as you can. Be wary of anyone who tries to bribe you with money, gifts, candy, alcohol or drugs. Parents must pay attention to anyone who gives children unexplained toys, gifts or money. Find out where they came from and why they were given.

You lost track of your mom at the shopping center. A nice man finds you and says, "Come with me; I'll help you find your mom." Tell your child: If you're lost, go to a store clerk behind the counter or at the register, or to a uniformed security guard, and tell him or her you're lost. To stay safe, remember to use the buddy system in stores or at the mall. That means never wander by yourself or go to the rest room or children's play areas alone.

A man comes up to you and your friends in the park. He shows you his business card and tells you he represents a modeling agency and that you're one of the prettiest young ladies he's seen in a long time. Can he take your picture for the agency? Tell your child: Molesters often use flattery, compliments and promises of fame to lure children. Never go with anyone under these circumstances. Tell a parent so he or she can check out the situation.

Adult students on the increase

By Better Home
and Gardens

For AP Special Features

When Althea Allison, a newly divorced mother in her late 40s, took stock of her life several years ago, she decided her only option was to return to school and get a degree.

"I was really surprised to learn that older students get the same consideration as 18-year-olds for financial aid," says Allison, a full-time student. "I just assumed the rules would be different for us."

Actually, the rules are the same. As an adult student, you may have more assets than a teen-ager and that often affects your eligibility, but if you need help with financing education, you should be able to get it, reports Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

"Everyone thinks that budget cuts have all but eliminated financial aid. That's just not true," says Jack Joyce, associate director for financial aid services with the College Board. "There still is plenty of aid out there."

The federal government finances nearly 75 percent of all financial aid available to students of higher education. Individual institutions, state governments and private sources supply the rest. Financial aid comes in three basic shapes: direct grants, on-campus jobs and loans. Loans account for about half of all aid, and most interest rates are low. Sources:

— Federal Pell Grants: These are direct grants made to students.

The maximum amount currently available annually is $2,300, and, as with most financial aid programs, you must apply for it each year. Your eligibility for this aid, based on need, is determined by the U.S. Department of Education.

— Federal Work Study: This program provides money to schools to pay the salaries of jobs specifically for students. Your aid package may require you to work a campus job in return for a portion of your financial aid. States and colleges also offer work-study aid.

— The Federal Perkins Loan: Money is loaned to qualified students at a 5-percent interest rate. Students may borrow up to $3,000 per year ($5,000 for graduate school), and will not have to make any payments until nine months after graduation. Top priority goes to students showing exceptional financial need.

— The Federal Stafford Loan Program: Also based on financial need, but much more widely available, Stafford loans allow students to borrow from private banking. As with Perkins loans, repayment does not start until after graduation, and interest rates are lower than nonstudent loans.

How do you know whether you qualify for financial aid? Fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), available through school financial aid offices. Many colleges and universities will also ask you to complete the Financial Aid Form (FAF). The College Board's Joyce recommends that you file the forms as quickly as you can. "The common mistake some students make is to pursue the admissions process, wait for acceptance, and then apply for financial aid," Joyce says. Often that's too late. The most important thing to do, he advises, is to know which forms are required and their deadlines.

Many colleges and universities want your application by February 1 of the year you intend to enroll (neither the FAFSA or FAF may be submitted before January 1). They often will be able to inform you of your financial aid qualifications at the same time they send you admissions acceptance letter.

Belew, Munson vows

LUBBOCK — Kristin Elizabeth Belew of Tahoka and Kelly James Munson of Hagerman, N.M., were wed Saturday, Aug. 13 at 7 p.m. in the First Christian Church in Lubbock. Hoyt Cranfill officiated the double-ring wedding.

Parents of the bride are Denny and Mary Belew of Tahoka. The groom is the son of Alton and Wanda Munson of Hagerman. The bride is the granddaughter of Burl and Virginia Belew of Fluvanna.

The church was decorated with aisle markers of greens and satin bows, candelabrum covered with southern smilax and candles and a large three-tiered arrangement of mixed summer flowers in shades of coral.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore her mother's wedding dress. The slender, candlelight formal gown designed by Constantine was made of silk organza over bridal taffeta. The sheer organza elbow-length sleeves and narrow yoke were covered with Alencon lace re-embroidered with seed pearls and crystal beads. The detachable four-tiered train of organza was lavishly appliqued with Alencon lace and pearls. A matching lace and pearl headpiece designed by the bride's mother held the bouffant veil of silk illusion.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white dendrobium orchid sprays, stephanotis and champagne roses with showers of cascading greens. It was mounted on a Rainbow Bible carried by the bride's mother in her wedding and covered with lace from her grandmother's wedding dress, her mother's, and her own.

Something old was the bride's dress, which belonged to her mother, something new was a cultured pearl necklace and bracelet, a gift from the groom. For something borrowed the bride wore earrings belonging to her friend, Liz Locke, and something blue was a garter, also belonging to her mother. For luck the bride placed a gold coin in her shoe. The coin was given to her by a close friend.

Maid of honor was Laina Sartwell Owen of Sealy. Bridesmaids were Shannalea Grubb of Fort Stockton, Allison Lawless of Bryan, Stephanie Evtitt of Idalou, and Jennifer Wuest of Austin.

The attendants wore floor-length fitted gowns of black shantung with sheer black organza sleeves gathered into French cuffs, and carried arm bouquets of mixed summer flowers in shades of sonias and corals.

Best man was Justin Munson, brother of the groom, of Hagerman. Groomsman were Cody Munson, brother of the groom, of Hagerman, Les Mayes of Roswell, Tom Vanzee of Pella, Iowa and Jason Belew, brother of the bride, of Tahoka.

Ushers were Chance Brooks of Meadow, Jason Wood of Morton, Joby Conley, cousin of the groom, of Fairview, N.M., and Jarred Conley, cousin of the groom, of Fairview, and Jarred Conley also lit candles.

Kandace Belew, cousin of the bride, of Fluvanna registered guests.

The organist played traditional wedding music and marches. Aaron Miller played piano and sang "With This Ring" and "Sunrise, Sunset."

Stephanie Armstrong of Pecos handed out programs.

Willia Jane McManigal, of Happy, was the rehearsal and wedding coordinator.

A reception followed in the Hawaiian Room in the Villa Inn.

The bride's cake was a three-tiered Italian cream with scroll work on the sides, topped with a large gum-paste bow cascading down the tiers. Sonia and ivory roses, stephanotis and orchids accented with greenery were centered on each layer. Serving at the bride's table were Mendy Khodes of Bovina, Christy Johnson of Farwell, and Jana McManigal of Happy.

The groom's cake was a one-layer Kahlua fudge cake smothered with chocolate curls and accented with greenery. Serving at the groom's tables were Jessica Carter of Espanola, N.M., Breann Conley of Espanola, and Jennifer Armstrong of Pecos.

Guests were also served from an elegant buffet of prime-rib mini buns, cheeses, dips, fruits and vegetables. Music was provided by Prairie Fire.

After a honeymoon to Las Vegas, Nevada, the couple will reside in Lubbock.

The bride is a graduate of Tahoka High School and plans to graduate from Texas Tech University in December with a B.S. degree in Agricultural Communications. She is employed by Creative Educational Video in Lubbock.

The groom is a graduate of Hagerman High School and South Plains College. He plans to graduate in December from Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in Animal Science. He is employed by Young-Jones Farms in Lubbock.

The bride was honored with a bridesmaid luncheon at the Lubbock Club given by Virginia Evtitt of Idalou. Honor guests in addition to the bride and bridesmaids were Mary Belew, mother of the bride, Wanda Munson, mother of the groom, Virginia Belew, the bride's grandmother and Faye Munson, the groom's grandmother.

A bridal shower was given July 23 in the home of Sharon Smith of Tahoka. There were 17 co-hostesses.

Honored guests were the bride's mother and grandmother and the groom's mother and grandmother.

She was also honored with a bridal luncheon July 29 at Levity Restaurant in Lubbock. Co-hostesses were Willa Jane McManigal, Jana McManigal and Christy Johnson.

A wedding shower and salad dinner was also held in the United Methodist Church in Hagerman. There were 10 co-hostesses.

Hotel queen sued

NEW YORK (AP) — A non-profit organization that claims it helped Leona Helmsley check out of prison early is suing the hotel queen for allegedly not paying her bill.

The National Center on Institutions and Alternatives said Mrs. Helmsley agreed to pay $200 an hour for its advice and assistance between July 1992 and November 1993.

BSP sets extravaganza

Members of Beta Sigma Phi entertained Debbie Harrington as their special guest at their model meeting Tuesday evening in the Snyder National Bank Community Room.

President Marie Boone began the meeting with the opening ritual followed by a brief report from all officers and committee chairman. Those giving reports were Dena Ellis, Norma Cumbie, Loretta Worthen, Wanda Early, Carolyn House, Jeanne Johnson, Brenda Hedges and Carolyn Limmer.

Ms. Johnson read from the Book of Beta Sigma Phi. The model meeting was concluded with the closing ritual and mishap.

Mrs. Cumbie, co-chairman of the BSP Holiday Extravaganza announced that tickets were available and may be purchased for $10 from members or by calling 573-5970 or 573-2852, or from participating merchants.

The extravaganza will be held on Tuesday at 6:30 p.m., Oct. 25 at the Martha Ann Woma's Club. Tickets will be on sale until noon Monday, Oct. 24, and will not be available at the door.

The evening's activities will include a light buffet supper, Christmas crafts, Christmas wrapping paper and ribbons, a holiday style show and door prizes. Local stores participating in the event are Limmer's, Classic Interiors, Merle Norman, Bar-H-Bar, Doncaster Fashions, Li'l Rascals and Timber and Threads.

Frey's recovery good

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Glenn Frey will have to take it easy.

The Eagles guitarist was in fair condition Thursday after undergoing colon surgery.

"His surgeon said it went as smoothly as it could have gone," said Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Ron Wise.

Frey, 45, has suffered for several years from diverticulitis, a painful inflammation of the colon.

Ask Anne & Nan

By Anne B. Adams and Nancy Nash-Cummings

By Anne B. Adams and Nancy Nash-Cummings

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Do you know of any solution that will remove magic marker or ink stains from plastic/vinyl? It is so frustrating to find a collectible object that is marked with inks that are literally impossible to remove. Example: There are many dolls worth hundreds of dollars, only to be ruined by inks. I, and thousands of collectors, will always be beholden to you if you can advise us what to do. If there is no sure way to correct this problem maybe a chemical company would work on it. — RON EVANS, New Roads, La.

DEAR RON: Over the years, we have received more letters than we can count about this very problem, and while some things work sometimes, not one thing works every time. We are sure you have tried glycerine, mineral oil, Vaseline, cold cream, 7Up, hair spray (it must contain alcohol) and rubbing alcohol.

One doll collector we know has had some success with an acne treatment product called OxyAcne by Revco, but notes that it must be used with caution: If it is used on the mouth or rosy cheeks of vinyl dolls, it can pull the color out.

Do any of our readers have a solution? Or are there any inventors with a background in chemistry among our readers who would like to try solving this problem?

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I am looking for a playing-card holder that is round. You put your cards in it to hold them. They are made of two round disks and are held together in the center: You put your cards all around them. They are nice for all our people. — DELORES TROESTER, McCook, Neb.

DEAR DELORES: You can order your card holder from Senior Ease, 21st and Fairlawn, Topeka, KS 66614-1518 (1-800-543-3273). The holder is $3 (this includes shipping and handling) and comes in red, yellow, black and blue.

Senior Ease also carries a card holder (black only) that is fan shaped, 8 inches x 4 inches and sits on the table. This is bigger and sturdier than the above hand-held version and costs $18.

STUMPED: Can one of our handy-crafters answer this one for Helen Simons of Thibodeaux, La.? She writes: "My husband grows the most beautiful long, green, shiny hot peppers. I have strung them to hang in the kitchen, but in no time they are no longer shiny and shrivel up. What can I do to keep them pretty? I see them at craft shows and they are just gorgeous."

FEEDBACK: Jean Sanford of Chino Valley, Ariz., was looking for a source of sugar-free Belgian chocolates and we were stumped.

Linda Hallquist of Elmhurst, Ill., replied: "My husband was the person who brought the premium, sugar-free Belgian chocolates into the United States last January."

"The chocolates come in milk, dark and chocolate mint, sell under the Louis Sherry label and are becoming more and more available in specialty stores across the country. If they aren't available in your area, please contact Charles Shriver, Flavor Brands, Inc. Elmhurst, IL 60126. He is currently setting up the U.S. distribution."

Linda kindly sent us some samples of the chocolates. They are delicious!

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Do you know of a recipe or a "how to" for making a breakfast drink similar to the instant breakfast drink you can buy in the supermarket? — JANNA BOWMAN, El Paso, Texas

DEAR JANNA: Here's a recipe we found in a cookbook called "Make Your Own Convenience Foods," by Don and Joan German (McMillan, 1978).

"Chocolate" Liquid Breakfast
(1 serving)
Combine in a blender and whip until smooth and frothy:
1/2 cup instant non-fat dry milk
1 cup whole milk
1 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1 teaspoon or more honey (optional)

2 tablespoons powdered carob (available in health-food stores and specialty markets)

A "fruity" variation can be made by substituting a whole banana or 10 medium strawberries for the carob powder.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I have a very old arithmetic book that was published by Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., New York and Chicago 1874. It is called "The Complete Arithmetic, Oral and Written," by Daniel W. Fish. Can you help me find the value of it and who would buy it? — PEARL T. MILLER, Coquille, Ore.

DEAR PEARL: We're sorry to have to tell you that even though your book is old, it really doesn't have any value. A general rule of thumb is that textbooks, dictionaries and Bibles printed after the 18th century (unless they were owned by someone famous whose name has been written on the flyleaf or have some other distinguishing characteristic) are not of interest to book antiquarians and/or collectors. If no market exists for old books, they are not considered "collectible."

Study club has education program

Alpha Study Club met Tuesday at 3 p.m. in the Martha Ann Woman's Club for its regular business session and a program by Hattie Kinder, member of the faculty of the Texas Department Criminal Justice Institute Division.

Ms. Kinder, teacher of special education at the Windham School, told of her duties and stated that all inmates must go to school at least two hours a day, choosing classes of vocation, work on GEDs, reading, writing and math. Classes are held 220 days of the year, and an inmate may be transferred to a unit that teaches his vocational preference.

Ms. Kinder has been associated with the school in the Texas prison system.

Jimmie Cummings was introduced as a new member. Mrs. McCloskey presided over the meeting and was hostess to 13 members and one guest.

The next meeting is set for Nov. 1 at the woman's club.

The U.S. Revenue Cutter Service — a naval task force — was formed in 1790 and would later become the Coast Guard.

Thanks to all of you who made my 90th birthday such a lovely occasion. How wonderful it was to be remembered in so many beautiful ways by friends and family. The cards, flowers, gifts, phone calls...and your presence at my party...all made for such a very special day.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Any memories I may have of my early childhood are sketchy at best, brief flashes in time that wouldn't mean anything to anybody but me, but this morning, as I was fretting over a fight I'd had with my teenage daughter, a memory came to me as fresh as a morning dewdrop. My daddy's mother, Grandma Francis, died when I was quite young. Because we lived in another city and Daddy's folks never traveled anywhere, we didn't get to see much of her. All I remember of her is that she was a big fat woman who'd hug us kids so tight we couldn't breathe, but somehow I knew that Daddy loved her very much.

And so this morning, a mental image came to mind of visiting Grandma in the hospital. I remember the room was crowded because my two uncles and aunt were also there. We must have been the last to arrive, because we seemed to be standing over by the door — I think Daddy was somewhat horror-struck at just how sick she really was and afraid to go any further into the room.

Suddenly she threw up. My aunt grabbed one of those little kidney-shaped bowls hospitals provide for just such emergencies, and the next thing I knew, my daddy's big warm hand came down gently over my eyes.

I stood perfectly still. It never occurred to me to pry away his hand or turn my face. As young as I was, I knew he was protecting me from something horrible. Soon after that, we left. A few days later, Grandma died.

Now, after thirty-something years, as I wandered around worrying about my own daughter, that memory flashed into my mind and I could almost feel Daddy's hand covering my face, shielding me from the ugliness of death. How like Daddy that was, I reflected. If he could have sheltered us all in that suburban house forever, protecting us from anything ugly or sad or frightening, he would have.

And how I fought to get away! When he died suddenly at the age of 45, I think that was the thing I missed the most, in spite of my rebellion: that certainty that I no longer had anybody who would think to cover my eyes when life got too hard to look at anymore.

As a mother, I find that I have the same tendency. When the teachers are mean or the kids are cruel or that certain boy won't notice her — I want to cover my daughter's eyes, I want to protect her from anything that could ever hurt this precious child. I want to be her warrior — guardian, I want to charge off and MAKE them do the right thing. I want to jump in and FIX things.

But that's not my job anymore. Just as I am no longer a little girl sheltered in my daddy's arms — so is she no longer, either. If I did fight and fix, make and do, and hide her eyes until I could hand everything to her all neat and tied with a bow, I would be robbing her of the opportunity to fight her own battles and win her own wars and stand alone and say, "I am woman, hear me roar!"

It's so hard! Because now I know what Daddy knew: that some things in life hurt almost too much to bear, and that sometimes, there isn't a single solitary thing you can do about it.

But maybe, just maybe...those of us who were blessed early on with somebody to shelter and protect us and cover our eyes are the ones who turned out to be the strongest, the ones who most often emerge battle-scarred but victorious.

And if that is the case, then I hope with all my heart that as I reluctantly let go of my daughter, pull my hand away from her eyes, and step back...that the first thing she sees with wide open eyes is her own power and strength...and the first thing she remembers is that it was there all along.

Editorial Comment

Optimism is warranted

The Waco Tribune-Herald

Depending on one's perspective either Bill Clinton has suffered a stunning defeat on health care or, in the process of pushing Congress to face the issue, he's simply begun to achieve his goals.

With a protracted struggle for comprehensive reforms now abandoned for this session, it indeed sounds like an ignominious defeat for Clinton. But with the nation receptive to some sort of legislation to reach his general goals, Clinton has succeeded in shifting the debate many miles.

Hillary Rodham Clinton was right when she said that just carrying the debate through and beyond congressional committees was "a historic and major accomplishment." Taking a longer view, she said, "I think we have enormous reason to be both optimistic and confident about the eventual outcome."

The optimism is warranted because Americans, by and large, agree with the Clintons' notion of health care as a right, not a privilege. They just don't agree on how to get there...

The Clinton plan amounted to a Rube Goldberg contraption aimed at achieving universal health care by employing private enterprise. Without all its parts it couldn't achieve its end: universal health insurance with cost containment.

Seemingly the only way to achieve universal health care without forcing employers to pay for it is to employ a Canada-style single-payer system, which doesn't have broad support. However, states should have the choice to try out single-payer systems as laboratories of health reform.

Without one or the other — single-payer or employer mandates — universal health care may not be possible. But the United States doesn't necessarily need universal health insurance. It needs to make affordable insurance available to every American who wants it.

Right now those people are crowding the emergency rooms of America, driving up everyone's costs, suffering for having postponed care. America must deliver them from that emergency room and into prevention. The Clintons have moved the country a long way in that direction.

Crime pays for bad drivers

The Dallas Morning News on defensive driving: Crime should not pay. But it does for many bad Texas drivers. Texas Insurance Commissioner J. Robert Hunter is right to want to stop it.

Here's how bad driving may have the perverse effect of saving a Texan money by significantly lowering the cost of his automobile insurance:

A driver (we'll call him Joe Leadfoot) is ticketed for speeding. He has three choices: pay the fine, appeal the ticket or take a state-approved defensive driving course.

If he opts for the course, Mr. Leadfoot will not have to pay the fine. And he will have the infraction dropped from his driving record. Which means that his insurer will not know about it. Which means that his automobile insurance rates will not rise.

Furthermore, because Mr. Leadfoot has taken the driving course, his insurer is obligated by Texas law to give him a 10 percent discount on his collision, liability, medical and personal injury coverage.

Fair? Right? Not... Mr. Hunter says eliminating the discount for bad drivers would reduce "overall base rates" by 1.2 percent. It would lower prices for good drivers while "raising prices 10 percent for those people who take defensive driving to dismiss a ticket."

Good idea, Mr. Hunter. Go for it. This distortion of the insurance market, this bizarre reward for bad driving should cease. The Legislature should support Mr. Hunter. Mr. Leadfoot and others like him should know that speeding does not pay.

No-pass, no-play: changes needed

The Austin American-Statesman

Public schools have always been about more than the three Rs. Schools provide an environment in which social and academic benefits constantly overlap.

Oftentimes, it's the fun and personal rewards of extracurricular activities that keep students interested in attending school.

Critics of the state's no-pass, no-play law say that's a reality that is lost in the current policy. As a result, they fear that some students who fail to meet eligibility requirements to participate in such activities may be turning to gangs or dropping out of school.

Data on the effect of the no-pass, no-play law — which requires students to make passing grades to be eligible for sports, band and other extracurricular activities — is inconclusive. Overall, it appears that the law is working. But given the concern from a cross section of educators and others that the policy may be driving students at risk of failing out of school, it is time to consider changes to the decade-old policy...

Congressional inaction

The San Antonio Express-News

The 103rd Congress came in like a lion, but went out like a lamb. As they adjourned, members of this Congress still left much unfinished business. President Clinton will call them back Dec. 1 for a lame-duck session, which may or may not salvage some legislation.

Obstinate, do-nothing Republicans are being blamed by Democrats in these emotional final days for failures to pass big-ticket items: health-care and campaign finance reform, workplace protections for congressional workers and rewriting the Superfund environmental laws...

The Democrats can blame themselves. Clinton's election game Demos control of the White House plus both houses of Congress. They could have written their own ticket...

Republicans promised last week that if they get control of the House, they will bring to the floor 10 tax-cut and other bills in the first 100 days of the 104th Congress — not a bad strategy.

Finally, the freshman class was a big disappointment. They came in as reformers but left full of the puffery typical of veterans. That doesn't bode well for the future.

God keeps some strange company

By Joseph Spear

God took time out again in mid-September to talk with the Rev. Pat Robertson about how America ought to be run.

Fleshly being that I am, I really don't know how the Lord does it. There were a few million starving Rwandans to deal with and a coup attempt in Liberia and the endless war in Bosnia, but somehow He found time to talk politics.

Of course, I cannot state this as absolute fact because, frankly, I do not enjoy the same facile access to the Ultimate Source as Preacher Pat. But he claims he heard from God, and seeing as he is a man of the cloth with motives as pure as an angel's breath, I see no reason we shouldn't accept his word.

Well, maybe we should be a little skeptical. After all, he did claim in 1988 that God told him to "run for president of the United States," and he did tell adoring legions that year: "I assure you that I am going to be the next president of the United States."

And he did claim once that through his influence with the Almighty, he diverted a hurricane that threatened his broadcasting empire in Virginia Beach, Va. Why he didn't see fit to spare Florida from the ravages of Hurricane Andrew in 1992, it's difficult to comprehend, but it's not for mere mortals to understand the mysteries of evangelism.

Anyway, what Preacher Pat was told by God in this recent conversation is that He wants the reverend's organization, the Christian Coalition, to become a "powerful political force."

Just so you have the context, Preacher Pat's exact words — spoken at a recent conference of his organization, held in the very den of iniquity, Washington, D.C. — were these: "We are seeing the Christian Coalition rise to where God intends it to be in this nation, as one of the most powerful political forces that have ever been in the history of America."

This raises another slightly confusing matter. Having declared his organization political to its very marrow, Preacher Pat and his minions spend the next couple of days arguing that because they represent God, they ought to be exempt from criticism, which they refer to as "Christian bashing."

Just one example: During the conference, Democratic Party chairman David Wilhelm said at a news conference that "Pat Robertson's Christian Coalition does not speak for all, or even most, people of faith." A fairly mild and accurate statement, I thought.

But not Ralph Reed, executive director of the Christian Coalition. Wilhelm was trying to "attack this organization," Reed said. "I have a message for David Wilhelm. David, you cannot intimidate us, you will not drive us out of the public square. We are Americans too, and we have every right to be involved in politics."

Doggone it, things keep slipping by me. I missed it when somebody said Preacher Pat and his disciples were not Americans and have no right to be in politics. I have heard it said that their politics are primitive, but that's just politics.

Another one of those darned imponderables: Most potential Republican candidates for president were invited to the conference, but not former congressman Jack Kemp. He is said to be a pariah these days because of his sympathy for the urban poor. Jesus comforted lepers, but they probably weren't homeless lepers of a different color.

A final note: One speaker was G. Gordon Liddy, who thinks President Clinton is trying to change his style. "Now he's going to a Navy barber and he's wearing a blue suit, which is the closest thing to a uniform that turkey ever put on in his life!"

Yes, that was G. Gordon Liddy, wacko-supremo Watergate conspirator. He spoke at a Christian function and had the cheek to refer to another human being as a turkey. He knows short hair and uniforms, having affected this style as an inmate.

We may not comprehend the ambiguities of all this, but Preacher Pat does. He's got a hot line straight to heaven.

Friendly people

Dear Editor:

I just wanted to let you know that my wife and I recently had car trouble in your town.

The people of Snyder were very friendly and helpful, especially Jim Sartor of Snyder Chrysler Inc., also Forrest Wemken of the Mechanic Shop.

Mr. Sartor loaned us a vehicle to tow our travel trailer to a RV park and Mr. Wemken loaned us a car for the four days we were in Snyder awaiting our vehicle to be repaired. We really appreciated the friendly people of Snyder.

Dear Editor:

The American Cancer Society-sponsored Scout-A-Boot was quite successful in that some $4,000 was contributed.

This a hearty thank you to every person who participated in any way.

An event such as this would not be possible without the involvement of many hard working, caring, wonderful people.

A big thank you to the merchant donors for merchandise for the silent auction. This new addition amounted to $676 toward cancer research.

At the fair

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you who participated in the Scurry County Fair this year — the exhibitors, food vendors, superintendents and everyone who entered events or items for the exhibits.

I know everyone spent many hours preparing to make this year's fair an enjoyable experience for all of the visitors. I hope everyone enjoyed all the activities and different events at the fair.

Without everyone's help and input we could not keep the Scurry County Fair going. I hope everyone had a good time. We hope to have an even better year next year with your help. I hope everyone will begin working on their entries for next year very soon. See you at the Fair.

Your Birthday

Sunday, Oct. 9, 1994

A number of opportunities might be presented to you in the year ahead. At the onset, some of them may appear too difficult, however, persistence will prove you've underrated yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Careful planning and common sense provide you with a good head for business today. Now is the time to renegotiate arrangements that haven't been lucrative. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The way you're capable of organizing your time today could give you an excellent balance between work and play. By the end of the day, you should feel fulfilled in both areas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Family interests and responsibilities should be your prime concern. You can effectively do what needs to be done.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you truly admire, but have not seen for a long time, might try to get in touch with you today. If this occurs, make arrangements so he/she doesn't slip past you again.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something might be proposed to you today that could prove to be personally profitable. But it won't come on a silver platter, it'll have to be earned.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you set your mind to it, you can accomplish quite a bit for yourself today. Make every hour meaningful.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There should be no doubts in your mind today regarding the ins and outs of achieving a personal objective. Instinctively you're formulated for success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might have an opportunity today to strengthen the bonds of a friendship that is in trouble. Your friend needs to know about your deep concern.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In an involvement with peers today, your way of doing things might be better than their's. Although your ideas are good ones, you may have to convince them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will be more successful today if you turn recent developments into a game instead of a crisis. Be sure to play to win, however.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An earnest discussion accompanied by a no-nonsense approach can help correct a condition at home today that has been frustrating lately.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something interesting may occur when you enlighten yourself by the advice you give a friend seeking your counsel.

Your Birthday

Monday, Oct. 10, 1994

Several endeavors upon which you've expended considerable effort, but for which you haven't received any rewards, could be lucrative in the year ahead. Continue to strive with patience and expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This should be a very productive day for you because of your ability to keep things in perspective. You'll realize how the seemingly impossible can become possible. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year.

Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will have exceptional leadership and organizational qualities today. Getting others to do your bidding won't be difficult because they'll see that what's good for you is also good for them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Overall conditions look promising for you today. Pay particular attention to involvements that can enhance your material security in unusual and lasting ways.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today someone close to you might have an ingenious idea that puts a new twist on an old problem. Both of you may benefit from its implementation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can advance your interests today by doing for associates what you'd have them do for you. It's an old formula, but it never fails.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you need a little help from an old friend today, state your case clearly and factually. He/she will come through as you hope, without feeling badgered.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your chances for success in your personal goals are above average today. In addition to your determination, Lady Luck might also pull some strings for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may receive recognition in the next few days for something you were never properly given credit. This situation appears to be taking on a life of its own.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stick to proven methods and tactics today where your career objectives are concerned. What worked for you before may work even better for you now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today your intuition might be right on target. What you perceive is likely to occur, with only some slight variations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you know ways to improve conditions at work, this is a good day to bring your ideas to the attention of those who stand to benefit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can reap rewards for yourself today by being helpful to others. You will be able to manage things that they can't effectively control.

"Family Focus"

By James C. Dobson, Ph.D.

QUESTION: I have a friend who was married for nine years before her husband left her for another woman. I think she was a loving and devoted wife, yet she seemed to feel that the break-up of her marriage was her fault. As a result, her self-esteem disintegrated and she has never recovered.

DR. DOBSON: It has always been surprising for me to observe how often the wounded marriage partner—the person who was clearly the victim of the other's irresponsibility—is the one who suffers the greatest pangs of guilt and feelings of inferiority.

How strange that the one who tried to hold things together in the face of obvious rejection often finds herself wondering, "How did I fail him? . . . I just wasn't woman enough to hold my man . . . I am 'nothing' or he wouldn't have left . . . If I only had been more exciting as a sexual partner . . . I drove him to it . . . I wasn't pretty enough . . . I didn't deserve him in the first place."

The blame for marital disintegration is seldom the fault of the husband or the wife alone. "It takes two to tango," as they say, and there is always some measure of shared blame for a divorce. However, when one marriage partner makes up his mind to behave irresponsibly, to become involved extramaritally, or to run away from his family commitments and obligations, he usually seeks to justify his behavior by magnifying the failures of his spouse.

By increasing the guilt of his partner in this way, he reduces his own culpability. For a husband or wife with low self-esteem, these charges and recriminations are accepted as fact when hurled his way. "Yes, it was my fault. I drove you to it." Thus, the victim assumes the full responsibility for his partner's irresponsibility, and self-worth shatters.

I would not recommend that your friend sit around hating the memory of her husband. Bitterness and resentment are emotional cancers that rot us from within. However, if I were counseling her, I would encourage her to examine the facts carefully. Answers to these questions should be sought:

Despite my human frailties, did I value my marriage and try to preserve it?

Did my husband decide to destroy it, and then seek justification for his actions?

Was I given a fair chance to resolve the areas of greatest irritation?

Could I have held him even if I had made all the changes he wanted?

Is it reasonable that I should hate myself for this thing that has happened?

Your friend should know that social rejection breeds feelings of inferiority and self-pity in enormous proportions. And rejection by the one you love, particularly, is the most powerful destroyer of self-esteem in the entire realm of human experience. She might be helped to see herself as the victim of this process, rather than a worthless failure at the game of love.

Illnesses plague music 'dinosaurs'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Life in the fast lane is finally catching up to rock music's dinosaurs, those aging '60s and '70s performers cashing in on nostalgia tours and the devotion of gray-haired, potbellied fans.

These days, it's rock me gently.

Medical problems have recently sidelined such venerable performers as David Crosby of Crosby, Stills and Nash; Glenn Frey of the Eagles; Jerry Garcia of the Grateful Dead; and John Mellencamp.

The culprits: geezer aches and pains, the rigors of the road and, in many cases, the cumulative effect of drug and alcohol abuse.

"In their 20s these guys thought they were immortal," Grateful Dead spokesman Dennis McNally said from a backstage telephone in Philadelphia.

"The facts are an entire generation of rockers are pushing 50 and if you aren't living a healthy lifestyle, you'll pay the price," McNally said.

Some of the illnesses are simple bugs. The Who's 50-year-old Roger Daltrey — who once hoped he'd die before he grew old — was ordered to take a few days off because of respiratory problems.

Other ailments are more serious. Frey, 45, has suffered for years from diverticulitis, a painful inflammation of the colon. He underwent colon surgery Thursday and was listed in fair condition.

The surgery forced postponement of the Eagles' concert tour and led to a slew of jokes like this revised song list: "Welcome to the HMO California, 'Life in the Gas Pains'" and "I Get a Dis-easeful, Queasy Feeling."

Doctors say the illness that sidelined Frey, a fitness buff and smoker, generally has nothing to do with lifestyle.

That's not the case with some of his colleagues, who face the consequences of living too hard for too long.

Garcia, 52, is a prime example. His long, strange trip took an extended rest stop in 1991 when he fell ill with exhaustion. Since then, he has slimmed down, stopped smoking and hired a personal fitness trainer.

"He pushed it as far as anybody did," McNally said. "It was a meltdown. Too many cigarettes, too much junk food and too little exercise."

The same goes for Mellencamp, 42, who was forced to cancel his 1994 tour following a mild heart attack and diagnosis of a clogged artery in his heart.

"The moral of my story is that 80 cigarettes a day and a cholesterol level of 300 is like a loaded gun," Mellencamp said.

Crosby, 53, needs a liver transplant. His has apparently hardened and deteriorated because of decades of drug abuse that included heroin and cocaine addictions.

"David has been very candid through much of his adult life about the difficulties he's had medically as a result of the use of substances over the years," said his publicist, Elliot Mintz. "Rock 'n' roll is not always the easiest experience, to be trekking across the country when you are over 50."

There are, of course, exceptions.

The Rolling Stones are still going strong after four decades. Their Voodoo Lounge tour, with $103.5 million in receipts, was the highest grossing tour ever. Much of that had to do with the $50 ticket prices; there were no senior discounts.

Other aging but mostly healthy rockers on tour this year included Pink Floyd, Eric Clapton and Elton John. Thanks to them and their legion of fans, "1994 will be a banner year for the concert business," said Gary Bongiovanni of the weekly concert trade magazine Pollstar.

Divorcing Parents Should Think First of Their Kids

DEAR ABBY: I am an attorney in Minnesota, and for the past five years have had a substantial family law practice. I've had some interesting cases where parents have been very bitter, and the divorces have been lengthy due to child custody or visitation arguments.

I recently participated in a very difficult hearing, after which Judge Haas of Walker, Minn., provided some of the most profound words of wisdom I've ever heard from the bench in all my years as an attorney. His philosophy could provide insight to all parents, especially those who are involved in difficult dissolutions. I am enclosing a copy of a portion of the transcript.

PAUL J. KILTINEN, ATTORNEY AT LAW, BAXTER, MINN.

DEAR MR. KILTINEN: Many divorcing parents could learn from the wise words of Judge Haas ... and here they are:

"Your children have come into this world because of the two of you. Perhaps you two made lousy choices as to who you decided to be the other parent. If so, that is your problem and your fault.

"No matter what you think of the other party — or what your family thinks of the other party — those children are one half of each of you. Remember that, because every time you tell your child what an idiot his father is, or what a fool his mother is, or how bad the absent parent is, or what terrible things that person has done, you are telling the child that half of him is bad.

"That is an unforgivable thing to do to a child. That is not love; it is possession. If you do that to your children, you will destroy them as surely as if you had cut them into pieces, because that is what you are doing to their emotions.

"I sincerely hope you don't do that to your children. Think more about your children and less of yourselves, and make yours a selfless kind of love, not foolish or selfish, or they will suffer."

the mother of three healthy, active children, ages 8, 6 and 3 1/2.

I am short-tempered and easily angered, but get over it quickly. I sent for your booklet, "The Anger in All of Us, and How to Deal With It," and I learned a great deal from it.

This paragraph describes me perfectly:

"I doubt if there is a mother alive who has not done or said something to her child in anger. One need not lift a hand to hurt a child. Words can cut as sharply as a knife. ('I hate you!' 'You are stupid!' 'I wish you had never been born!')

Abby, I actually screamed those very words at my 8-year-old son. I used some of your suggestions on how to control my temper. At first, I thought they were too simplistic, but I put them to use when I felt I was "losing it." I put my hands over my mouth, took a deep breath and slowly counted to 10. It calmed me down and kept me from hitting my 6-year-old.

Another time, I phoned my best friend and told her I was angry at my kids and called her to help me cool off. She laughed and said, "Keep talking, honey. I may call you when one of my kids makes me crazy!"

Abby, I just had to write to tell you that your anger booklet has been a lifesaver for me. If you print this, please don't use my name. My husband is a pediatrician.

A GRATEFUL READER IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR GRATEFUL: Thank you. The positive feedback I have received from those who have read "The Anger in All of Us, and How to Deal With It" has been gratifying. I'm glad I could help.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us, and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ABBY: Nine months ago, my husband of 23 years died suddenly and unexpectedly. Although most of my friends have been very helpful, I was appalled by the behavior of many of my acquaintances. They actively avoided me (to the point of ducking in supermarket aisles) for about six months. After that, they acted as if nothing had happened.

I know these people are not purposely cruel. They just didn't know what to say, and now they are afraid to "remind" me of my loss. A simple "I'm so sorry," is all I want to hear — and believe me, the loss is with me all the time. Sometimes I get the impression someone does not know my husband has died, so I tell him or her, only to hear, "Oh, yeah, I read about that."

Abby, all I want is to have my loss acknowledged. Do people fear a scene? The best thing I have ever done is join the Widowed Persons Service sponsored by the AARP and local community organizations. I also joined a bereavement group sponsored by Hospice. Only other widowed people know how I feel and take my feelings seriously. The following appeared in a recent W.P.S. newsletter. I hope you think it is worth printing:

AFTER SOMEONE HAS DIED, SAY ...

"What I always liked about () was ()."

"I'll never forget the time he and I ()."

"May I take the kids to the beach today?"

"It's OK. Tell me again about ()."

"I just phoned to say hello."

"Tuesday will be a tough day for you. May we spend it together?"

"I thought you might need a hug, or someone to hold your hand today."

"You don't have to hide your tears."

"I'd love to (trim bushes, etc.). May I do it for you?"

The best thing anybody (who did not know my husband personally) said to me was, "I was so sorry to read about your husband's death. Would you like to talk about it?"

A WIDOW IN NEW LONDON, CONN.

DEAR WIDOW: Please accept my condolences on the loss of your beloved husband. And thank you for a very helpful letter. You are right on target in your assumption that many people do not know what to say to someone who is grieving. I'm sure many will appreciate your wise suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: I'm collecting money for gifts in the workplace a huge pain. I think that practice should be outlawed — especially in places where six or more people are employed.

I work in a large office — there are 52 people here. Many of them I hardly know because we meet only during the breaks — or in the bathroom.

Why should I be expected to chip in for gifts for people who are practically strangers to me? I finally got up the nerve to voice my opinion; then others followed suit. Until I spoke out, everyone had followed like sheep.

I suggested that we hold one party a month for newlyweds, babies, birthdays, etc. No dice. Like lemmings, they continue to give, then complain about it. I think it's high time we put an end to such foolishness. What do you — and your readers — have to say about these never-ending "collections"?

SANE IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR SANE: When a co-worker collects money for gifts, employees feel pressured to contribute. It's my opinion that all "collections" should be voluntary. In fact, a vote should be taken, and the majority should rule.

Dr. Gott by Peter Gott, M.D.

How to exercise while dieting

DEAR DR. GOTT: Many medical experts recommend that a person should raise his or her heart rate for 20 minutes a day, three times a week. Well, I've been doing just that. I work out with a low-impact 40-minute aerobic tape and a 30-minute aerobic tape with 5-pound hand-held weights six to seven days a week. In addition, I walk whenever possible. My weight will not come off. Am I losing inches or do I need to increase my routine?

DEAR READER: Many people mistakenly believe that moderate, regular exercise will burn off fat. It isn't so. Although such exercise is healthful, as I'll describe in a moment, strenuous activity is not the key to losing weight.

A pound of fat contains 3,500 calories. Therefore, in order to lose a pound of adipose tissue, a person must expend 3,500 calories while exercising. This is, believe me, strenuous — on the order of two hours of competitive tennis singles on a warm summer afternoon.

In addition, you have to take into account what the person would eat that day: on average, about 2,000 calories. Consequently, to lose a pound, our prospective athlete would, in reality, have to burn off closer to 5,500 calories, a daunting prospect for most adults.

Reducing dietary calories is a much more efficient way to achieve weight loss. If, using our example, a person were to reduce dietary intake by 500 calories a day, he or she could lose a pound a week (500 X 7 = 3,500), regardless of exercise. Such a goal can be accomplished by reducing dietary fat to a minimum, eliminating alcohol and sweets, and consuming modest portions (no seconds).

With respect to exercise, you're correct that many medical authorities endorse it.

Exercise has several salutary effects that include improved circulation, reduced blood fats, more efficient sugar/carbohydrate metabolism, enhanced blood flow to heart muscle, lower blood pressure, and a heightened sense of well being, to mention a few. Also, because moderately strenuous exercise releases endorphins (chemical stimulants in the brain), such activity often relieves depression, anxiety and stress. Therefore, irrespective of weight considerations, regular exercise benefits the heart, the body and the mind.

In your case, your unwanted extra weight may be a genetic characteristic that you'll have to address, using the dietary modifications I mentioned. If you continue to be hungry (as you may well be, especially after exercise), snack on sugar-free sweets, fruits and raw vegetables. Stay away from candy, sugar, "junk foods," and the like. Continue to exercise — even increasing your work-outs to five or six days a week. To avoid boredom, vary your program: an hour of brisk walking one day a week, skiing or swimming another day, bicycling (try a stationary model while you watch the evening news, if weather doesn't permit outdoor activities), using weight machines or a treadmill at your local fitness center once or twice a week.

In short, you will enjoy better health if you exercise regularly. Coupled with dietary restrictions, this activity should help you to lose weight and, most important, keep it off.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Calorie-Wise Cooking," "Winning the Battle of the Bulge" and "Weight Control Through Calorie Control." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

© 1994 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've suffered from diverticulitis and spastic colon for over a year. I've never suffered such pain and would like your suggestions for control.

DEAR READER: Spastic colon (irritable bowel) often causes abdominal pain because the condition is characterized by intestinal spasms that cause gas pockets, leading to distension and cramps. The situation may be worsened by diverticulitis, infected pockets around the intestine, for which antibiotic therapy is necessary.

To control the symptoms of irritable bowel, I suggest that you use a stool-softening agent, such as Metamucil. To treat the diverticular pain, your doctor will have to prescribe antibiotics at the time the condition flares up.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Diverticular Disease" and "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother has been diagnosed with thrombocytopenia. She's taking an experimental drug through the Mayo Clinic that reduces her high platelet count, but also reduces her red and white count. What can you tell me about this condition? DEAR READER: Thrombocytopenia is a disorder of unknown cause, marked by an overabundance of platelets, the blood cells that are involved with clotting.

The basic problem appears to be an overproduction of platelets by the bone marrow, leading to weakness, hemorrhage, headache, dizziness, malaise, and tingling of the hands and feet.

Unless treated, the disease can cause severe circulatory disturbances and/or intestinal bleeding. The diagnosis is made by a blood test.

Most therapies use drugs that interfere with the bone marrow's ability to manufacture platelets. Unfortunately, these medicines also affect the formation of other blood cells.

As a result, treated patients usually experience anemia (low red blood cell counts) and leukopenia (low white blood cell counts). This is a necessary trade-off to get the platelets under control.

With this in mind, hematologists try to walk a fine line, giving just enough medicine to lower the platelet count without appreciably affecting the other blood cells. With proper monitoring, your mother's disorder should be kept under satisfactory control.

Smith finishes basic training

Navy seaman recruit Robert C. Smith, son of Gerald F. Smith of Snyder, recently completed basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the cycle, recruits are taught general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 occupational fields.

Studies include seamanship, close-order drill, navy history and first aid.

Although the Navy is getting smaller, the state-of-the-art ships, aircraft and high tech systems in today's fleet require bright, talented young men and women to operate them. The Navy has over 55,000 job openings this year, most of which include guaranteed training.

Smith is a 1994 graduate of New Home High School in New Home.
