Parade entry deadline is just two weeks away

The 1994 Celebrate Christmas Parade will be held on Saturday, Dec. 3, at 6 p.m. and will feature more divisions and prizes, Pat Cunningham, coordinator, has announced.

Entry deadline for the lighted parade is Nov. 25, just two weeks away.

This year, there will be separate divisions for floats entered by church groups, schools, businesses, community/clubs and vehicles. Floats will be judged on Friday evening, Dec. 2.

The separate division held for vehicles will be judged prior to the parade on Saturday.

A first-place prize of $200 will be awarded in each division.

A walker's division will also be held with prizes of $50 for first place, $30 for second place and $20 for third place. Walkers will be judged before the parade on Saturday.

A spirit plaque will be awarded to the best band after the parade.

All parade entries including walkers must be lighted to be eligible for a prize.

Cunningham noted parade sponsors will provide the only live Santa Claus. Other parade participants may use cutouts or other Santa replicas, but no live Santa, she said.

Also, no bicycles will be allowed in the parade because of the potential for accidents.

Individuals and groups interested in entering the parade should contact the chamber of commerce before Nov. 25.

'Hoofbeats' at museum

"Hoofbeats on the Pitchfork Ranch: Photography by Bob Moorhouse," opens Sunday at Scurry County Museum on the junior college campus.

The museum will be open Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. The exhibit will remain on display through Dec. 6. Regular museum hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The exhibit was developed by the American Quarter Horse Heritage Center & Museum in Amarillo and illustrates the beauty and function of the American quarter horse and life on one of the nation's most historic ranches.

What began as a hobby for Moorhouse has grown into a visual history that captures the flavor of ranch life. Several of his photos have graced the cover of "Quarter Horse Journal" over the years; however, the initial exhibit in Amarillo marked the first major showing of his work.

The Pitchfork is still owned by the Williams family of St. Louis, Mo., which founded it in 1883. The original West Texas holdings have grown to more than 165,000 acres, making it one of the few ranches which is larger now than when it was established.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Proof of good health is outlasting at least a dozen life-time guarantees."

People gloating about Tuesday's election are no longer calling it a GOP victory, but rather a GOP blowout.

The election sort of reminds of one of those terrorist attacks in some middle-east country. After the deed is done, everybody is wanting to take credit for it.

Got a fax first thing Wednesday morning from the Christian Coalition boasting that 44 of 52 candidates were backed by pro-life or pro-family groups.

Business organizations were also claiming responsibility along with gun control opponents, tax protest groups, conservative coalitions, crime fighters, etc., etc.

No doubt 1994's general election will be remembered as historic. Even though his name was not on any ballot, the one who really took it on the chin was Democratic President Bill Clinton and anyone even remotely associated with him.

Tuesday...

Founder's Day program slated

The Western Texas College Phi Theta Kappa Chapter, in conjunction with the WTC Student Senate, will honor an employee of the college at the annual PTK Founder's Day event.

The presentation, which is traditionally a surprise announcement, will be announced Tuesday in the Student Center beginning at 10:45 a.m.

The date honors the founding of PTK in 1918 at Stephens College in Missouri. Locally, the Phi Theta Kappa chapter joins with members of the Student Senate to recognize service to students by a member of the WTC faculty or staff.

The Founder's Day award has been given since 1983 here. Franklin Pruitt received the first award. He instructed government and history for 14 years before retiring in 1988. He continues to teach part-time for WTC.

In the fall of 1993, drama instructor Michael Endy was given the honor.

County to focus on airport again

Airport rules and regulations are the focus in two of three meetings scheduled this week by Scurry County commissioners.

The commissioners will discuss the proposed rules changes among other agenda items in their 10 a.m. Monday meeting.

In other business Monday, commissioners will canvass votes from Tuesday's general election, consider a contract for services between the county and the Snyder Training Center Board and consider an agreement between the Big Spring State Hospital and Scurry County.

The court will also consider a request for part-time help at the Scurry County Library and advertising for bids for sealcoating rock and asphalt.

Also on the agenda is the approval of line item transfers, budget amendments and the payment of bills.

A public hearing on the airport rules and regulations has been scheduled for Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the County Courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse.

It will be the second public hearing on the proposed changes. Another meeting was held but it failed to qualify as a public hearing since the agenda had not been properly posted. The first public hearing was held on Sept. 27.

The primary question that remains concerning the new rules is whether or not to require liability insurance for free-lance operators who perform work at Winston Field. Some pilots have expressed concern that requiring free-lance workers to have liability insurance would result in more expensive repairs and delays, and would limit the number of mechanics who could do work at the airport.

In a special called meeting for Tuesday morning at 10 a.m., the court will open bid proposals on insurance items.

'Finian's Rainbow' will debut Thursday

Snyder Junior High School drama and choir departments will present "Finian's Rainbow" beginning Thursday.

Tickets are $4 at the door or $3 in advance. For reserved seating, call 573-6356.

The play will be held nightly at 7 on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 17-19, in the junior high auditorium.

"Finian's Rainbow" is one of the big musical success of recent years. Hit tunes from the show include How are Things in Glocca Morra?, Look to the Rainbow, Old Devil Moon, If This Isn't Love and Something Sort of Grandish.

Members of the cast include Reid Johnson as Finian McLoner-gan, Jodi Dennis as Sharon McLoner-gan, Laura Lewis as Susan Mahoney, Nick Means as Woody Mahoney and K.K. McC-lain as Senator Rawkins.

Others include Josh Burney, Lori Marshall, Jason Almquist, Colby Stoker, Kade Kubena, Blake Bell, Janette Allen, Leshia Derrick and Terri Moore.

Still others are Dusty Ashby, Allison Bowden, Kevin Taylor, Josh Halverson, Jessica Brown, April Whittenburg, Jennifer Salmen, Amber Burt, Suzanne Bogard, Matthew Billings, Dusty Ashby, Lina Rivera and Donna Nobles.

Others are Jared McMillan, Nicole Kerry, Johnna Ferris, Holly Goebel, Lisa Moore, Kelley Garner, Jonathan Hensley, Tim Ervin, Wade Ashby, Rebecca West, Renea Hall and Jennifer Mayer.

TAP series to continue

Targeting All Parents is in the process of beginning its second parenting series.

The topic for the morning class, to be held at the chamber of commerce, is "Self Esteem, A Family Affair." Classes will be held at 10 a.m. each Monday for four weeks, beginning Nov. 14.

The evening class, set for 7 on Mondays, will also be held at the chamber office. The topic will be "Dealing With Death, Illness or Divorce in the Family."

Bilingual sessions will be held at the Guadalupe Center each Wednesday at 1 p.m., beginning Nov. 16.

All interested individuals may call the TAP "Warmline" at 573-7702. Classes are limited. Childcare and refreshments will be provided.

In fact, a presidential matchup poll shows Republican Bob Dole beating Clinton 45 to 39 percent, although Dole intends to wait until early next year to decide if he will be a GOP presidential contender. If he runs, he'll likely face Texas Sen. Phil Gramm who is said to have $7 million in his war chest.

In elections, money is important but not a guarantee of success. While candidates who outraised their opponents by at least 2-1 won 95 percent of the time, one candidate for governor of New York spent $8 million to get 112,000 votes. That's $71 each.

All indicators showed Gov. Ann Richards and George W. Bush to be in a dead heat, but the GOP challenger enjoyed a landslide victory.

We can't help but think that Ross Perot's 11th-hour endorsement of Richards may have been a deciding factor. We've long contended that Perot, who got 19 percent of the national vote, is solely responsible for Clinton being in the White House today.

Texans had their eyes wide open this time.

Microsoft head pays $30.8 million for Da Vinci

SEATTLE (AP) — Microsoft Corp. Chairman Bill Gates won the bidding war for a Leonardo da Vinci manuscript, paying a record $30.8 million for 72 pages of notes and diagrams exploring the mysteries of the cosmos.

Christie's America in New York said the purchaser was anonymous, but a spokeswoman for Gates' public relations firm confirmed he was the buyer, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer reported Saturday.

"Leonardo represents the fusion of art and science," said the spokeswoman for Waggener-Edstrom of Portland, Ore., who refused to be quoted by name. "I think that's why he is of such interest to Bill Gates."

The manuscript contains Leonardo's distinctive backward handwriting and meticulous drawings, and includes his explanation for why the sky is blue and his advice on building dams.

Gates plans to tour the work in museums around the world, the spokeswoman told the Post-Intelligencer. Gates was unavailable for comment.

Christopher Burge, chairman of Christie's America, said Friday's sale was the highest price paid for any work of art sold at auction in the past four years, and the highest ever for a manuscript.

In the document, dated 1508 to 1510, Leonardo studies the water and cosmos through words and pictures. His explorations range from astronomy to the atmosphere, from physical geography to geology, from hydraulics to canal building.

On one page, he remarks the light of the moon is reflected sunlight. He wrote a century before Galileo proved that the moon does not shine of its own accord.

He correctly explains the presence of marine shells and fossils on mountains and plains far from the sea. He offers advice on flood control, dams and canals. He explores the principles of siphons and steam power. He presents engineering designs for the snorkel and submarine.

He explains why the sky is blue. "Experience shows us that air must have darkness beyond it and hence it appears blue," he writes.

The manuscript was sold by the Armand Hammer Museum of Art and Cultural Center in Los Angeles. The late oil tycoon Armand Hammer had bought the work at a 1980 auction in London for $5.6 million.

The pre-sale estimate was $10 million to $15 million. But after bidding opened at $5.5 million, the auction turned into a feverish battle between Gates, bidding through a Seattle representative, and a representative of the Cariplo Foundation of Milan, Italy, who was in the auction room.

The two raised the price in increments of $500,000 and $1 million. When the 2½-minute duel ended and the gavel finally went down, the standing-room-only crowd applauded and cheered.

"It's an extraordinary moment in auction history," Burge said.

The losing bidder, Alessandro Penati noted Leonardo had worked on the manuscript in Milan and Florence, and said it "belongs to our cultural heritage. ... Obviously, we wanted to bring it back really badly."

Gates, 39, was listed this year by Forbes magazine as the country's richest man, with assets of $9.2 billion. Microsoft, based in the Seattle suburb of Redmond, is the world's largest maker of personal computer software.

NAACP restricts youth voting in branch elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighteen-year-olds can vote for president of the United States, but they can't select the head of their local NAACP.

In an attempt to keep a supporter of fired Executive Director Benjamin Chavis from rising to power in one branch, the NAACP now prohibits members aged 17-20 from voting in elections of its 2,200 branches unless they buy full adult memberships.

Before the rules change, youth members could vote as long as they were in good standing with the civil rights organization.

The change was announced two days after Chavis ally Earl King signed up thousands of 18- to 21-year-olds with $3 youth memberships through a registration drive. King is running for president of the South Side Chicago NAACP.

"This was designed especially for me," King said. "People here ... are very afraid of my relationship with Dr. Benjamin Chavis, thinking he will come back in power if I win this election."

The maneuver threatens to widen the split between the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the younger generation of members it desperately needs to survive.

It came as the NAACP reached a severance settlement with Chavis — and after it instructed its branches not to invite Chavis as a speaker or a participant in NAACP events.

T.H. Poole, chairman of the NAACP board committee on branches, denied an attempt to shut out young members. He said the change was needed so youth members won't vote repeatedly in branch elections and elections in youth councils or college chapters.

"They're not ineligible to vote in their chapters. They are ineligible to vote in the adult branch. That distinction had to be made," Poole said.

But King said NAACP officials assured him the 18- to 21-year-olds he had recruited would be eligible for the Chicago NAACP election Nov. 19.

"Only when we turned in 3,000 memberships is when the discrepancy came up," he said. "They took the $3 for all 3,000 of my members. They didn't say they would return the money. Why can't they vote?"

2nd 'Brown Bag' concert slated

The second noontime "Brown Bag" concert for the fall term is slated Wednesday at Western Texas College with music to be provided by student guitarists and pianists. The public is invited.

The event will be from 12:15 until 12:45 p.m. in the Fine Arts Room 102. As in the past, individuals are invited to bring their "brown bag" lunch and to eat during the performances.

Potential performers at the concert include: Leroy Martinez, guitar; Paul Hagood, guitar; Carrie Keith, piano; the WTC Guitar Ensemble consisting of Hagood, Jerr, Echols, Darrell Johnson, Randall Proctor and Jon Palomaki; Chris Lunch on guitar and Don Hurt on vocal; "Radical Change," with members Cliff Allmon, Leroy Martinez and Truett Standefer.

Commodities distribution set Wednesday

Commodities will be distributed Wednesday, Nov. 16, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Senior Center at 2603 Ave. M.

The stars indicate you should have more control over your life in the coming year. You'll be able to recognize new opportunities and use them effectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Attend to important matters personally instead of delegating them today. Those you appoint will not be able to meet your expectations as well as you can yourself. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is something stirring behind the scenes which could have long-term, positive effects on your life. Two early indicators might appear today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It behooves you to become more involved in clubs or social organizations. You are currently in a cycle where many valuable contacts can be established.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Important knowledge can be gained today by watching an admired associate handle a difficult issue. Imitate his/her moves, don't just applaud them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take a good look at yourself to see if you're in need of an exercise or health program. If the answer is yes, initiate it now while your chances of success are good.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you might have several opportunities today to strengthen relationships within your circle of friends. Make each one count.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be a strong finisher today, especially if you are motivated to conclude something you've left hanging. Complete the old, so you can tackle the new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You have the ability to blend old concepts with new ones effectively today. This could work to everyone's advantage. Be progressive, yet respectful of what's been done before.

Few Japanese kids like being off on Saturdays

TOKYO (AP) — A bit more leeway in Japan's notoriously strict school system would seem to be a blessing, but few are cheering the plan to give children more days off.

Teachers, students, and parents are objecting to a plan to make public schools cancel classes two Saturdays per month, up from the current one per month.

"It's hard enough to digest the current curriculum in a six-day week — a five-day week is ridiculous," Mitsuo Arai, headmaster of the Senzoku No. 1 High School, complained in Friday's Sankei newspaper.

Japanese children attend school about 240 days a year, compared with an average 180 in the United States.

The Education Ministry decided to reduce the number of days, but not the hours kids have to spend in class. The time lost on Saturdays will have to be made up, possibly cutting into time for activities, sports and free time.

Several mothers interviewed on television shows voiced concerns about the extra burden of watching the kids.

"If the children are in school, I have more freedom in organizing my schedule and doing errands. But if they're off, I have to spend all the time taking care of them," one mother said.

A felony is a serious crime; a misdemeanor is a minor offense against the law. At the federal level, a misdemeanor is a crime that carries a potential penalty of no more than a year in jail; a felony is a crime that carries a potential penalty of more than a year in prison. Often, however, a statute gives a judge options such as imposing a fine or probation in addition to or instead of a jail or prison sentence. A felon is a person who has been convicted of a felony, regardless of whether the individual actually spends time in confinement or is given probation or a fine instead.

Sailor survives four weeks adrift in often rough seas

BOSTON (AP) — His battered sloop was kept afloat by inner tubes. His drinking water was low, his radio transmitter and cellular phone silent. The Coast Guard gave him up for dead.

But Gabriel Feldman survived four weeks on often rough seas. Pounded by storm after storm and tossed overboard four times, Feldman was finally spotted Thursday by a fishing boat off the coast of Bermuda.

A Coast Guard spokesman called his survival "somewhere between amazing and a miracle." Feldman was resting Friday on his boat in St. George's and didn't immediately return telephone messages.

"He's a very tough person," said his 25-year-old brother, Fernando. "He doesn't go to die in the sea."

The brothers, both experienced sailors, had set off Oct. 12 in separate boats for San Juan, Puerto Rico, where they planned to race Gabriel Feldman's 36-foot vintage boat, the Tao.

The two had restored the one-mast wooden vessel from the keel up and raced it in regattas in Portland, Maine, and Newport, R.I.

But two days after leaving, they lost sight of each other in a fierce storm.

Gabriel Feldman, 30, had no life raft and no emergency satellite beacon on his boat. The storms knocked out his transmitter and phone.

The Coast Guard pulled Fernando Feldman off his disabled boat Oct. 20 and began to search for the older brother on Nov. 2, the day the Tao was supposed to have arrived in San Juan.

Twenty-five U.S. and Canadian aircraft covered about a half-million square miles of ocean before the search was suspended Nov. 8.

They were looking in the wrong place.

The Coast Guard assumed Gabriel Feldman either was adrift or following his intended course to Puerto Rico. Instead, he waited for days at the edge of the storm for his brother to appear, then sailed slowly before giving up on seeing Fernando alive.

"He was not disabled," said his girlfriend, Cynthia Williams. "He would sail minimum amounts but keep his eye on the rumb line. ... Finally he was just completely distraught."

Fernando Feldman, meanwhile, was growing desperate at a Cape Cod house where a man had offered him shelter.

"They each thought the other was lost," Williams said.

Gabriel Feldman told his brother he passed through eight intense storms and fell overboard four times. He rationed his water and caught fish to augment his ample supply of canned goods and dried food.

Large inner tubes, lashed to the hull to turn the sloop into a type of life raft, managed to keep the Tao afloat when the manual bilge pump was overtaxed.

Feldman's biggest problem was forcing himself to eat as he grieved for his brother.

To The Christian Community of Snyder

On Monday, November 14th from 12:10 to 12:50 p.m. a noon worship and prayer service will be held at the Reef Chemical meeting room (formerly TU's Ready Room), located at 2301 Avenue R (across from the Chamber of Commerce).

This meeting is open to the public and we hope that you will seriously consider attending and being part of this worship experience. It is our goal for this to be a very informal meeting. There will be a short time of worship and praise, followed by a brief devotion or message. The music and devotion is expected to last approximately twenty minutes. This will leave us a few minutes to share in prayer and lift our community and nation up to the Lord. We will have special music from different gifted musicians and singers in the community. The devotions will be delivered by various ministers and laymen from Scurry County.

The meeting begins each Monday at 12:10 in order to give you time to get there from your work. We will end each meeting at 12:50 so that you might be back at your work by 1:00 p.m. You may certainly feel free to come and go at any time during the hour.

This will be a brown bag affair with coffee and cold drinks available on site. This is an exciting opportunity for the Christian men and women of our community to come together for fellowship and for an opportunity to pray for our community and our nation.

Ex-Houston officer convicted

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Houston police officer has been convicted on charges that he tried to arrange the murder of his ex-wife so he would get custody of their daughter.

A jury convicted William Peoples, 36, on Friday. He could receive a life sentence for solicitation of capital murder when he is sentenced Dec. 9. Peoples will remain free on bond until then.

Prosecutors argued that Peoples sought a hitman to kill his ex-wife, Harris County Sheriff's Deputy Deborah Peoples Jacobs. They said he hated her and didn't like the way she was raising their daughter, now 9.

The couple, who was married for four years before divorcing in 1987, had been involved in a heated custody battle over the girl.

Robert Harrell, a paroled murderer working as a wrecker driver at the time, testified that a police officer who was a friend of Peoples' approached him and asked if he could help find someone to kill his wife and Peoples' ex-wife.

Harrell asked another wrecker driver — who turned out to be a police informant — to help find a hitman. The informant put Harrell in touch with a member of the district attorney's office, who was posing as a hitman.

Harrell testified that Peoples gave him a map, directions to his ex-wife's home and two photographs of her. He said Peoples offered to pay $10,000 for her murder and an extra $2,000 if her new husband was killed.

Testimony showed Peoples' fingerprints and palm print were found on the letter and envelope. An FBI analysis identified the handwriting as Peoples'.

Peoples testified that he had given the map and directions to a private detective so he could go there to gain evidence for the custody battle. He couldn't explain how Harrell got the map.

The police department suspended Peoples with pay following a grand jury indictment in September 1993, but he was not fired until about a year later.

Harrell pleaded guilty Friday to his role in the case, and was sentenced to five years in prison as part of a plea agreement. The other officer Harrell testified had sought to have his wife killed was never charged because of insufficient evidence. That case remains open.

Film thrown out

CINCINNATI (AP) — A videotape of a movie depicting the sexual torture of teen-agers can't be used as evidence in an obscenity case against a bookstore, a judge ruled.

The city says it has no case without the videotape of the 1975 movie "Salò: 120 Days of Sodom." The owner of the Pink Pyramid bookstore and two workers were charged with pandering obscenity for renting out the movie.

Judge William Mallory Jr. of Hamilton County Municipal Court on Thursday threw out the videotape because vice officers on two occasions kept it for days or weeks beyond the two-day rental period. That violated the First Amendment ban on prior restraint because the bookstore couldn't rent the tape to others, Mallory said.

Police also violated the Fourth Amendment ban on unreasonable seizure when they used the videotape to obtain a search warrant and confiscate the evidence, he said.

To flaunt is to make an ostentatious or defiant display; to flout is to show contempt for.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Snyder has been notified by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission that water being supplied by this utility exceeds the maximum contaminant level of trihalomethanes (THM's) as set in the Commission's Drinking Water Standard.

The limit has been set at 100 ug/1 (micrograms per liter or parts per billion). Compliance with the limit is based on a running average of quarterly analyzed samples. The running average as of the fourth quarter of 1994 was 112 ug/1.

Scientific evidence has indicated that trihalomethanes may be a potential human carcinogen. Studies have shown that THM's can cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Trihalomethanes are a group of volatile organic chemicals which are created when chlorine is added to water during the treatment process. The health risk associated with trihalomethanes is a risk which occurs from long term exposure to these compounds. The health risk associated with waterborne illness are acute and therefore would have an immediate affect upon consumers if disinfection levels are inadequate. The utility will be making adjustments to the disinfection process to reduce the THM levels. This adjustment will not increase the risk of waterborne illness.

If you have any questions concerning this matter, you may contact Darrell Callahan at 573-5823 or 573-3782 and we will be happy to discuss this matter in more detail.

Abilene Wylie shocks No. 10 Slaton, 24-22

SNYDER—Despite missing a 34-yard field goal at the end of the first half, Abilene Wylie senior Jason Morrison connected from 37 yards out with four seconds left in the game, as the Bulldogs shocked the tenth-ranked Slaton Tigers in 3A bi-district play.

"When you're a kid you always dream about making the big play at the end of a game," Morrison said. "To be able to come out and do that, it just feels great."

On fourth-and-ten from the Slaton 35-yard line, Wylie quarterback Chris Kincaid found a wide open Todd Barnett at the Tiger 19 setting up Morrison's last second heroics.

Wylie (8-3 overall) will face Sonora in an area-round game tentatively scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday in San Angelo's Bobcat Stadium.

The Bulldogs led 21-14 at halftime, but saw their lead dwindle away when Slaton tailback Oskar Solis scored from the 4-yard line with 2:10 left in the fourth quarter making the score 21-20.

Slaton head coach Steve Culwell elected to go for two, and Solis took an option pitch from quarterback Chris Hammons around the right side and into the endzone, giving the Tigers (9-2) a 22-21 lead.

"We certainly didn't think the game was over and I know they didn't either," Culwell said. "They came back and moved the ball down the field."

"Both teams deserve a lot of credit. This was a great high school football game."

Slaton, who came into the game allowing just 3.6 points per game, found themselves on the short end of a 6-0 lead when Kincaid motored in from 22 yards out just five minutes into the game.

The Tigers were able to come back with a 67 yard, 13 play drive that was capped off by a four yard scoring strike from Hammons to Dusty Smith, tying the game 6-6.

Slaton scored again, when Hammons hit Solis in stride for a 30-yard touchdown completion, on the first play after a Charles Thomas interception.

Slaton scored again when Hammons connected with Roderick Farris for the two-point conversion to make the score 14-6 with 1:41 left in the opening period.

Junior Ryan Hall provided fireworks for the Wylie crowd on the ensuing kickoff, returning the ball 96 yards for a touchdown.

On the next play, Kincaid and fullback B.J. Anders combined for a two-point conversion. Kincaid's pass floated, but Anders was able to come up with a nifty grab, to tie the game at 14-14 with 1:26 left in the first quarter.

Slaton turned the ball back over to the Bulldogs when Kincaid stepped in front of a Hammons' pass on third-and-seven from the Tiger 20. Kincaid returned the ball to Slaton's 31-yard line and eight plays later, tailback Marshall Pinkston scored over the left side from six yard out.

The score gave the Bulldogs a 21-14 advantage with eight minutes to play in the half.

Slaton took over at their own 25-yard line after the kickoff and had a chance to score as they moved the ball all the way down to the Wylie six. However, the Tigers were unable to capitalize and turned the ball over on downs with 2:39 left.

Baylor president says sanctions possible

HOUSTON (AP) — Baylor President Herbert Reynolds told a fund-raising group he believes the NCAA will impose sanctions on the basketball program on top of those already levied by the school.

"Will the NCAA do anything in addition to what we have done? Probably," Reynolds told members of the Baylor/Waco Foundation.

"They can take another scholarship or two away from us, but I feel like they will do something to say, 'We are still in the driver's seat in collegiate athletics,'" said Reynolds, who rarely has commented publicly on the controversy.

Reynolds made the remarks

Reynolds

Nov. 3 during a speech to members of the foundation, a group of Waco business leaders who raise money for the university.

Reynolds used the speech to discuss several aspects of the controversy. He also acknowledged the basketball problems, which include allegations of academic cheating orchestrated by coach Darrel Johnson's assistants, are a threat to the university's reputation.

"One of the things I can tell you very, very clearly is we want the moral and academic reputation of Baylor University to always be the highest," he said.

On Oct. 7, Reynolds announced he was putting the basketball program on two years' probation as a result of alleged wrongdoing uncovered during a Southwest Conference probe.

Reynolds also said the university hopes to receive a letter of official inquiry — a list of charges to which Baylor must respond — from the NCAA by the end of the month.

As for Johnson, whose status is being reviewed by the Baylor administration, Reynolds said: "That's separate and apart from the assistant coaches and the players because there is a contractual relationship we have with the head coach. So we have to treat that differently, and that's what we are doing."

THE OSKAR PLEASE — Slaton tailback Oskar Solis (30) cuts back against Wylie's Marc Deffenbaugh (44) during Friday's 3A bi-district playoff game at Tiger Stadium. Solis gained 200 yards on the ground, but Wylie converted a last second field goal to edge the tenth-ranked Tigers 24-22. (Photo by Todd Stanley)

Mavericks get second victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dallas coach Dick Motta, at 63 the oldest coach in the NBA, is thoroughly enjoying the way his young Mavericks are playing.

The Mavericks got 22 points each from Jim Jackson and Jamal Mashburn and 19 points and nine rebounds from Jason Kidd as they defeated the Philadelphia 76ers 107-100 Friday night, their second win against one loss.

Last season, the Mavericks did not win their second game until Dec. 23. They ended the season with a record of 13-69.

"That was a great win for us," Motta said. "And I was pleased with our composure at the end. This was a real good test for me and the team. I really like this squad because they are executing beyond our expectations."

Jackson suffered a cut above his left eye in the first minute of the second period that required three stitches. He was replaced by Lucious Harris, who hit five straight shots to help Dallas to take a 53-40 halftime advantage. Harris finished with 16 points, making seven of eight shots.

"I hit my first shot," Harris said. "Then everything seemed to fall into place."

The average age of the Dallas team is 24 1/4 years.

"This was our first road game and we made some mistakes, but we have to learn from them," Jackson said. "Things are a lot different from last year and it's a lot more fun. This team is different — everyone is pulling for each other out there."

Dallas, which never trailed, had a 90-80 lead with 6:55 to play. Philadelphia rallied to 96-94 at the 2:26 mark before Lorenzo Williams hit a jump shot and Mashburn sank a turnaround jumper to push the lead to a 100-94 with 1:33 remaining.

Clarence Weatherspoon had 29 points for the 76ers, while Shawn Bradley had 17 points, 12 rebounds and eight blocked shots.

Cowboys, 49ers game only one of many on intriguing NFL slate

By The Associated Press

The Dallas Cowboys would like Sunday's game against the San Francisco 49ers to be a review of the last two NFC championship contests, which they won.

The 49ers have won three straight games between the clubs at San Francisco, but the last was in 1985 when Joe Montana passed for two touchdowns in a 31-16 victory.

San Francisco's Steve Young leads the NFL with a 101.8 rating on 179 completions in 259 attempts for 1,825 yards and an NFC-best 16 touchdowns.

The Cowboys' Troy Aikman is the NFL's No. 2 passer with a 97.8 rating on 151 completions in 231 attempts for 1,825 yards and 12 touchdowns. The Cowboys also have Emmitt Smith, the league's No. 2 rusher, who is only 89 yards short of his fourth straight 1,000-yard season.

Other NFL Sunday matchups have Cleveland at Philadelphia, San Diego at Kansas City, Chicago at Miami, the New York Jets at Green Bay, the Los Angeles Raiders at the Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota at New England, Seattle at Denver, Atlanta at New Orleans, Arizona at the New York Giants, Houston at Cincinnati and Tampa Bay at Detroit.

Indianapolis and Washington are idle.

Buffalo plays at Pittsburgh Monday night.

Browns at Eagles
Cleveland quarterback Vinny Testaverde, who will be 31 Sunday, returns after missing last week's game with a concussion. In Testaverde's absence, Mark Rypien led the Browns (7-2) over the Patriots 13-6. It will be the 44th meeting between the teams since 1950, but the first time the Browns have played at Philadelphia (7-2) since 1979.

Chargers at Chiefs

The Chargers (7-2) beat the Chiefs (6-3) 20-6 Oct. 9 and need to do it again to avoid a third loss in four games and keep Kansas City from moving into a first-place tie with them in the AFC West.

Bears at Dolphins
Chicago is 5-4, but 4-0 behind Steve Walsh, who will start at quarterback Sunday. Walsh will make its first appearance at Joe Robbie Stadium, where the Dolphins (7-2) are 11-1 against NFC opponents.

Jets at Packers
The Jets will make only their second visit ever to Lambeau Field in this game of 5-4 teams fighting to stay live for playoff berths. New York's Boomer Esiason will face a defense tied with Minnesota for second in the NFC with 27 sacks.

Raiders at Rams
Intra-city rivals, each with a 4-5 record, meet in the first Smog Bowl since 1991, when the Raiders won 20-17 to take a 5-2 lead in the series. Raiders quarterback Jeff Hostetler needs 15 yards to

Since leaving San Francisco, Cowboys' defensive end Charles Haley has menaced Steve Young and the 49ers. (AP photo)

49ers wary of Haley's abilities

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — More than two years after trading him away, the San Francisco 49ers still have to contend with Charles Haley as a disruptive force.

Haley, a Pro Bowl defensive end who came to be regarded in San Francisco as a divisive locker room influence, was dealt to the Dallas Cowboys in 1992 in return for two draft picks.

He'll be making his fourth appearance against his former team when the 49ers (7-2) play the Cowboys (8-1) at Candlestick Park. Since being brought together, Haley and the Cowboys are 3-0 against the 49ers, including victories in successive NFC championship games.

"Every time he plays against San Francisco, he wants to play his best game," said 49ers tackle Steve Wallace, whose job will be to keep Haley out of Steve Young's face.

"I know I have my work cut out for me in more ways than one," said Wallace.

The Cowboys enter Sunday's game with the league's top-ranked defense. San Francisco has the top-scoring offense and Young leads the league in passing efficiency.

In the previous matchups, the Cowboys' defense has gained the upper hand with huge assists from Haley. In last year's regular season win and conference title victory, Haley had six tackles, three sacks, two forced fumbles and five quarterback hurries.

"He's the best pass rusher in the game, without a doubt," said Harris Barton, San Francisco's right tackle. "He knows all of our tendencies and calls, too. I used to have trouble blocking him in practice. In games, it's worse. He's their cornerstone."

"If you ask what was the different between us winning and them winning, I'd have to say Haley. He was a big part of our success. He's a great player. It's hard to replace a pass rusher like that."

Healthy after offseason back surgery, Haley is having his best season since winning NFC defensive player of the year honors in 1990. He has consistently collapsed the pocket against quarterbacks, generating 5 1/2 sacks and 33 quarterback pressures.

"There's no secret," Haley said. "I just want to play football. I want to win, nothing else. We all have that attitude here. And no one is going to stand in our way and keep us from winning. San Francisco, Philadelphia ... no one."

Still, San Francisco coach George Seifert, who had his share of run-ins with Haley, said he wouldn't second-guess himself about the trade that by every indication weakened the 49ers and strengthened Dallas.

"You could ask me about a lot of decisions that we've made over the last few years, 'Would I do it again?' Seifert said. "At that moment, though, you have certain information and you make a decision and you can't change it. You keep going. You don't spend all your time second-guessing yourself. I don't."

"He's done a great job for them. I think it was a good move for him. We had to get on with our football team, which we've done and away we go."

Meantime, the 49ers said center Bart Oates sprained his left knee during a team pass rushing drill Thursday. Seifert said Oates was expected to play. If Oates can't go, the 49ers could have Chris Dalman start at center or shift Jesse Sapolu from guard to center and have Dalman move into Sapolu's spot at guard.

The Cowboys (8-1) play the San Francisco 49ers (7-2) at 3 p.m. Sunday at Candlestick Park. The game will be televised on FOX.

reach the 1,000-yard mark in career rushing.

Vikings at Patriots
 The Vikings (7-2), who last week scored a last-second win over New Orleans in the Metrodome, will play outdoors on natural grass. The Patriots (3-6) will be trying to snap a four-game losing streak.

Seahawks at Broncos
 Seattle (3-6), which became the first team to lose to Cincinnati this season, goes into Mile High Stadium, where it has lost six straight games since 1988. Denver's John Elway is the third-rated passer in the AFC, but the Broncos are stumbling along at 3-6.

Falcons at Saints
 This will be the 50th meeting between these Deep South rivals, and 10 of the last 13 have been decided by eight points or less. It figures to be a passing duel between Jeff George of the Falcons (5-4) and Jim Everett of the Saints (3-6).

Cardinals at Giants
 The Giants (3-6), losers of six straight, are seeking an 11th straight home victory over the Cardinals (3-6).

Oilers at Bengals
 Each team is 1-8, and the loser will have the league's worst record.

Buccaneers at Lions
 If the Buccaneers (2-7) can stop the running of Barry Sanders, they might have their first sweep of a rival since 1990. They beat the Lions (4-5) 24-14 Oct. 2.

Critics warn of health crisis if Proposition 187 survives

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Proposition 187 is already scaring illegal immigrants away from clinics and could create a health crisis, critics of the anti-illegal immigration ballot measure say.

"The statute essentially sets up an entire category of Typhoid Marys among us, spreading disease," said Jay-Allen Eisen, Sacramento attorney for the California Association of Hospitals and Health Systems.

The proposition, approved Tuesday by voters, denies public education, social services and all but emergency health care to illegal immigrants.

Although federal and state judges have temporarily barred enforcement of the measure, many clinics serving mostly poor Hispanics reported Friday that their patient loads had dropped 50 percent to 75 percent since Tuesday.

That climate of fear could overload emergency rooms as illegal immigrants wait until they are desperately ill to seek treatment, opponents said. It could also undermine efforts to fight tuberculosis with early treatment.

"I think it could not help but have a negative impact on TB statistics," said Dr. John M. Leedom, professor of medicine and chief of the division of infectious diseases at the University of Southern California School of Medicine.

As for the impact on legal residents, he asked: "Who's your maid? Who's bussing the dishes at the table where you eat? Who's around your children in day care?"

Some clinics held a news conference Friday morning for Spanish-language reporters, urging people to keep their medical appointments, said Margaret B. Martinez, director of the nonprofit Clinica Romero.

A sign reading "No questions asked" was taped to the clinic's front door Friday.

Education board advocates billions more in spending

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education approved legislative recommendations Friday that are up to $3.5 billion more than state budget leaders have indicated can be spent over the next two years.

The 15-member board, which includes four members who were defeated or didn't run for reelection and will be replaced in January, voted to recommend to the Legislature:

— Phasing in 15 additional staff development days for teachers over the next two years at a cost of $889 million.

As a "minimum first step," allowing school districts to substitute up to 15 staff development days for student instructional days. School districts already can individually apply for waivers to substitute training days for teaching days.

— Establish a $100 million "safe schools fund" to pay for an alternative education program for serious offenders, plus programs to address prevention and the needs of less serious offenders.

At a minimum, the board recommended $50.4 million for the program for serious offenders.

— Begin a program to raise teacher salaries to the national average over the next five years at a cost of more than $2 billion for 1996-97. The minimum recommendation is a 5 percent across-the-board pay raise for teachers costing $700 million.

— Fund up to 30 extra days of school for students in kindergarten through eighth grade who are in danger of being retained. This would cost $421 million.

The proposals are on top of a $2.7 billion spending increase that the board previously recommended to continue funding a school finance reform law, pay for textbooks and meet a court order to help schools construct buildings.

State Senate Finance Committee Chairman John Montford, D-Lubbock, has estimated that public schools need a $2.2 billion increase over the next two-year budget period.

The Legislature meets in regular session beginning in January.

Education Board member Will Davis of Austin said the increase in teacher training days and extended-year program for students would particularly "make an enormous contribution to the retention of youngsters and performance of kids in school."

"My experience has been ... you lay out these very fine programs, and then it becomes a couple-of-legislative-sessions effort to get it done," he said.

In other action, the board approved resolutions honoring the four members who will not be returning: Mary Knotts Perkins of Lufkin, Patsy Johnson of Sulphur Springs, Eleanor Conrad of Dallas and William Hudson of Wichita Falls.

Atlantis chases down satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronaut Ellen Ochoa Saturday used Atlantis' robot arm to snatch a 7,500-pound German satellite loaded with millions of atmospheric images gathered during eight days of free flight.

The satellite had trailed Atlantis by upwards of 50 miles since its release last week to measure atmospheric gases without interference from the shuttle.

Thruster firings sent the shuttle over, around and directly under the $35 million satellite. Commander Donald McMonagle took the controls as Atlantis crept up beneath the triangular craft, stopping about 35 feet away.

Ochoa then steered the jointed

50-foot robot arm into place and grabbed the satellite as the two spacecraft orbited 186 miles high just south of New Zealand.

"That was a superb rendezvous," Mission Control told the crew. "Well done."

Shuttles normally approach rendezvous targets from the front, but NASA tried the new method in anticipation of next year's docking with the Russian space station Mir.

By approaching from below, the shuttle can avoid firing steering jets toward its target. The space station has solar panels that can be damaged by shuttle exhaust.

The Mir docking, set for June, is Atlantis' next flight after the current 11-day mission. The only other docking of a U.S. and Russian spacecraft was the Apollo-Soyuz meeting in 1975.

Retrieval of the German satellite was critical to the current mission because only about 1 percent of the data collected was beamed directly to the ground. The rest is stored on digital tapes that scientists will examine after Atlantis returns to Earth on Monday.

Klaus Grossmann, a physicist at the University of Wuppertal near Cologne, Germany, said the satellite's infrared telescopes collected some 15 million spectra, or atmospheric wavelength images.

"It worked just perfect, just absolutely perfect," Grossmann said Saturday.

Palestinian police arrest leader of IJ

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Palestinian police detained dozens of activists of the militant group Islamic Jihad Saturday in connection with a suicide bombing that killed three Israeli soldiers.

Palestinian police said 49 members of the Islamic Jihad group were detained. The group itself said 65 activists were arrested, while Israel radio put the number at 120.

Members of Yasser Arafat's self-rule government said arrests would continue until the ringleaders were found.

Under the Israel-PLO accord, the Palestinians pledged to arrest those from PLO-ruled areas who are suspected of attacking Israelis.

The bombing Friday led Israel to renew pressure on Arafat to crack down on militants from Islamic Jihad and Hamas. Both groups are opposed to the Israel-Palestinian peace accord and have carried out attacks to sow dissension between Israeli and PLO leaders.

Arafat had been reluctant to confront the militants, fearing a civil war that might topple his fragile government. But after a meeting late Friday with his senior intelligence aides, he decided to arrest the militants.

Officers note quiet period

Local law enforcement agencies had a quiet day Friday as they made one arrest and investigated two reports of theft.

A 24-year-old male was arrested at 2:24 p.m. on Highway 84 and charged with driving while license suspended.

An offense report for Class B theft was filed at 12:56 p.m. after Wes Everett notified officers that property had been stolen from his vehicle while it had been parked in the Kingswood Apartments parking lot.

A Class B theft report was filed at 7:37 p.m. after Jerry Grimes, 811 16th St., notified officers that a stereo system had been stolen out of his vehicle.

Officers responded to a call from the 600 block of 18th Street in reference to subjects filling up a dumpster with lumber.

Officers also assisted seven motorists who had locked their keys in their vehicles.

Arizona's Hispanics say effects of Proposition 187 will spread

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona's Hispanic-Americans, feeling hurt and betrayed by passage of California's anti-immigrant Proposition 187, have begun planning responses including an economic boycott of the Golden State.

"We see serious problems emanating," said Ernesto Portillo, president of a Spanish-language radio station in Tucson. "The spirit of 187 is going to be spreading out."

"For us in Arizona and anywhere where there is a large population of Latinos, what this is going to do is really give permission for those hate groups and other groups fueling on the fear against immigrants to try and establish the same kind of atmosphere and laws here," said Guadalupe Castillo, a member of Derechos Humanos, or Human Rights, and a history teacher at Pima Community College.

"It will create a greater intolerance, bring about the divisiveness that is tearing California apart and will create very concrete problems for Latino communities in terms of greater abuses of rights."

Coincidentally or otherwise, formation of a local chapter of the Ku Klux Klan was announced this week in Tucson. Castillo called it "a symptom of the times" and a political atmosphere allowing it "to come forth from the underground."

A month ago, Gov. Fife Symington promised the Arizona-Sonorora Commission there will be no Proposition 187 in Arizona.

But some, like Tucson attorney Jesus Romo-Vejar, fear that Symington's legal challenge to get federal reimbursement for state-related costs stemming from illegal immigration just feeds an already contentious atmosphere concerning undocumented workers.

Proposition 187, which California voters approved by 59 to 41 percent margin, denies education and most health care to illegal immigrants, but federal and state judges already have barred enforcement.

An exit poll conducted for The Associated Press and four television networks showed that a majority of California's Anglos, African-Americans and Asian-Americans supported the measure. Hispanic-American voters opposed it more than 2-1.

Castillo predicted that polarization and militarization of the Mexican border will increase.

"We will all have to mobilize and take a stand and protest," she said, "through marches, through boycott, with all the means available to us through the law."

Portillo said the Hispanic Political Action Committee has begun exploring an economic boycott of California, comparable to one launched against Arizona several years ago when its voters initially failed to approve a Martin Luther King Jr. holiday.

Castillo said other Hispanics in a multi-city coalition who've been working to organize a nationwide protest and called for a boycott previously want it to include such tourist targets as Disneyland.

First woman leader of Sri Lanka sworn in

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — With conch shells blowing and drums beating, Chandrika Kumaratunga was sworn in Saturday as

Sri Lanka's first female president. "We will continue our quest for peace, recognizing that the path is a difficult and tortuous one," Kumaratunga said in a television address after taking the oath of office before hundreds of people in a steady rainstorm.

She won Wednesday's election with 62 percent of the vote on a pledge to end the 11-year ethnic war with Tamil rebels.

The war has killed more than 34,000 people in the Indian Ocean island nation. Tamils make up about 3 million of the country's 17 million people and accuse the majority Sinhalese of discrimination.

She succeeded President Dingiri Banda Wijetunga of the United National Party, who did not compete in the elections.

The new president, 47, comes from a political family. Her father, Solomon Bandaranaike, was prime minister until his assassination by a Buddhist monk in 1959.

LIFTING UP CHRIST (3) From The Grave

The resurrection of Christ is the central event of Christianity (1 Cor. 15:12-20). There are many proofs of the resurrection. The tomb in which Jesus was laid was "a new tomb in which no one had yet been laid" (John 19:41). There could not have been a rapid deterioration of the flesh and confusion over whether any skeletal remains in the tomb were His or someone else's.

The tomb was "hewn out in the rock" (Mark 15:46), which means there was no escape route if He had not actually been dead. The blood and water which came forth from His side afford certain evidence that death had occurred (John 19:34). Pilate ordered the grave secured to prevent the disciples from stealing the body. A seal was put on the stone that closed the grave and a guard was placed (Matt. 27:62-66). Yet God lifted up Christ from the grave on the third day as He had said (Matt. 28:1-9). Many witnesses of the resurrection are listed by Paul in 1 Corinthians 15:3-8.

Long wait for kin of 9 kidnapped Americans

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — An agonizing silence fills the days of relatives and co-workers of nine Americans believed held hostage by leftist guerrillas, some of them for nearly two years.

Unlike the hostage-takers in Lebanon in the 1980s, the Colombian rebels don't make repeated demands of release evidence that their captives are alive. That leaves the captives' loved ones wondering, and always, always waiting.

"We're very strong, and we're coping, but no family can be prepared for this," said Susan Hargrove, whose husband, Tom, was kidnapped Sept. 23.

In this country with the world's highest kidnapping rate, Americans are increasingly becoming targets: Six were abducted this year alone.

The rebels lack the power to overthrow the government, so they've turned to kidnapping to extort money and publicity. But in most cases, they haven't demanded ransom for their American hostages.

Peace talks between the government and the guerrillas broke off in 1992. Some observers believe the guerrillas are stockpiling Americans to force the government into reopening talks on their terms.

When rebels took two Americans from a missionary school in central Colombia in January, they demanded that the government enter peace talks. The guerrillas also protested the presence of U.S. troops, who were on a training mission in western Colombia during which they helped build a school and a clinic.

Although the U.S. soldiers left Colombia in February, the two captives — Timothy Van Dyke of Towanda, Pa., and Steve Welsh of North Platte, Neb. — remain missing.

The captives' families and colleagues can only wait, not knowing if their loved ones are alive.

Susan Hargrove hasn't heard from her husband's captors, believed to be the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, the largest rebel group.

Offering scattershot answers to sharp questions, Vladimir Zhirinovsky proposed a dictatorship for the sake of Russian democracy, an end to foreign meddling in Bosnia — and higher vodka prices.

Surrounded by a dozen Russian security agents, Zhirinovsky arrived at a Manhattan television studio Friday evening for a taping of the cable news magazine show, "Under Scrutiny."

The ultranationalist leader trumpeted familiar themes, describing Russia as a country surrounded by enemies and decaying because of organized crime and weak political leadership.

To rouse his country from its economic slumber and to eliminate crime, he suggested a "dictatorship for the sake of democracy" — with himself at the helm.

Zhirinovsky's strong showing in Russian parliamentary elections in December, winning 23 percent of the popular vote, stunned many Russians and Americans. His party platform calls for restoration of the Russian empire. He has blamed Jews for starting two world wars and demanded the return of Alaska, Finland and Poland to Russia.

Zhirinovsky, who is a candidate for president, has been described as both anti-semitic and Jewish. He denies both.

A gamut is a scale or notes of any complete range or extent; a gauntlet is a flogging ordeal; a gauntlet is a glove.

Hargrove, a 50-year-old native of Rotan was kidnapped as he drove home from the International Center for Tropical Agriculture in Cali, where he worked as an agriculture scientist.

On two occasions, officials told Mrs. Hargrove to pack her bags, that her husband was expected to be released within minutes. The tips proved false.

Mrs. Hargrove's two children have left college in the United States to be with her in Colombia. She spends most of her time near the phone, waiting for any word on the fate of her husband.

New Tribes Mission, an evangelical group based in Sanford, Fla., that works with Indian tribes, has seen five of its workers, including Van Dyke and Welsh, disappear into the hands of Colombian rebels.

The other three — David Mankins of Susanville, Calif., Richard Tenenoff of Tampa, Fla. and Mark Rich, an American raised in Peru — were taken from a New Tribes compound across the Panamanian border in January 1993.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Hunting lodge added to tourist attractions

Hunters and fishermen take note: one of Scurry County's newest tourist attractions is the Wagon Wheel Ranch, located 12 miles north of Snyder, featuring a large, rustic hunting lodge.

The brainchild of Billy Ray Browning and his wife, Pam, the Wagon Wheel Lodge officially opened in time for quail hunting season which began Oct. 29 and runs through Feb. 27, 1995.

Wagon Wheel Ranch is now booking reservations for the 1994-1995 Top Notch Quail Hunt. Browning said, "We specialize in day hunts." Belinda Galey handles the bookings.

Hunters have 10,000 acres at their disposal, a combination of land both owned and leased by the Brownings. Wagon Wheel Ranch also offers something for fishermen — three large tanks fully stocked with bass and catfish.

Though the lodge only opened recently, Browning has been hosting dove and quail hunts for 20 years. It's not unusual, he said, for hunting season to draw some 300 hunters to his place. In fact, this past Labor Day weekend, a Dallas law firm reserved the lodge for its annual hunt, as has become custom for the past three years. Around 87 executive officers and clients participated.

Following one weekend hunt, Browning said it was estimated that some $50,000 had been spent in Snyder and Scurry County.

Browning takes extra care to ensure a good supply of wild quail. Not only does he plant the type of grains which attract quail and dove, he also has wild quail shipped in weekly during the hunting season.

In order to shield them from premature contact with humans, the quail are contained in specially constructed pens located on the Browning homestead near the hunting lodge.

The birds cannot see outside their pens and sound is kept at a minimum, Browning explained.

As many as 10 people can be accommodated in the Wagon Wheel

Lodge, which is a two-story house, featuring four large bedrooms and three bathrooms.

The lodge also features a regulation size pool table and a color television.

A large office which could easily double as a storage area is located under the stairs.

The lodge also has a fully staffed kitchen, capable of serving three home-cooked meals daily.

Weather permitting, chuck wagon meals will also be available if desired, Browning said. The wagon wheel cook is a Baptist preacher from Whiteface.

Chuck wagon excursions will also be provided upon request.

Horses or mules are used to pull the wagon.

Guides and transportation will be provided as needed, Browning said. Camper hookups are available.

Browning said they will provide horseback rides for those interested. With that in mind, he said they want the corrals to retain their original look.

The lodge was part of the B.A. Moore Ranch when the Brownings bought it five years ago. In getting it ready for hunting season, Mrs. Browning said they wanted to preserve its rustic look because that is apparently what appeals to most visitors. "After they pass Abilene they expect to see us riding horses and strapping guns," Mrs. Browning said.

They added furniture but tried to keep the bedrooms and bathrooms as "much as possible like they were originally." Decorations were kept to the minimum because that is not what hunters want, Mrs. Browning said.

Eventually, Mrs. Browning said they will provide names for the bedrooms which will reflect various themes.

They also replumbed the house to increase the water supply.

The Brownings said the previous owners had already done a lot of work on the house, and much of the lodge had already been built onto the original house.

Though the Brownings spent years planning the lodge "in the back of our minds," they said, but did not start working on it until

WAGON WHEEL HUNTING LODGE — Billy Ray and Pam Browning are standing beside the door to their recently opened Wagon Wheel Hunting Lodge. Located on the Wagon Wheel Ranch 12 miles north of Snyder, one of Scurry County's newest tourist attractions is now booking dove and quail hunts. The facility can also be used for reunions, weddings, parties and other activities. Eventually, the Brownings would like to convert the facility to a dude ranch. (SDN Staff Photo)

The best value in bridge

By Phillip Alder

What is the best value in bridge (apart from the cheap entry fees for club games)? Surely the answer is the Daily Bridge Calendar. Every day you are challenged by at least one problem that covers a main facet of the game. To order, in the United States, call 800-749-3292. In Canada, call 800-263-4374. In both cases, ask for Department 560. The cost including postage and packing is US$14.95 or C$16.95.

Here is one of the problems in this year's calendar. How should East try to defeat three no-trump after partner has led the spade nine?

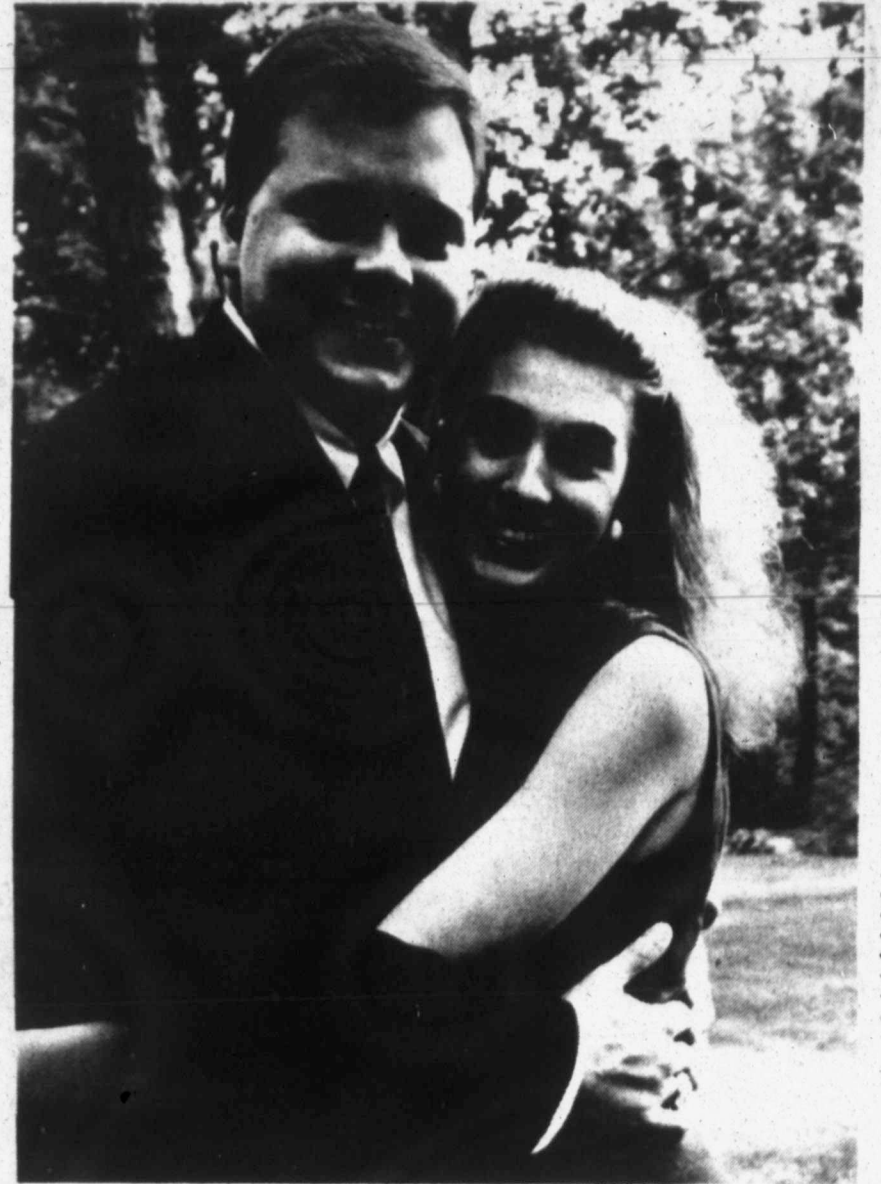

After the dummy comes down, always count the points. Here, South has shown 15-17, in the modern style. There are 10 in the dummy; and you have 11. That leaves only 2-4 points for partner. So there's not much point in plugging away at spades. By the time the suit is established, declarer will have won nine tricks.

That leaves the red suits. As you need less from partner in hearts than in diamonds, you should switch to hearts. And in case partner does have the heart queen, you should switch to the heart 10.

This play gives declarer no chance. The defense nets one spade, three hearts and one club.

This is a classic surrounding play. You have dummy's top heart, the nine, surrounded by your 10 and eight. In addition, you have an even higher, non-touching heart (here, the king). In this situation, you should switch to the card directly above dummy's top card in that suit.

Phillip Alder has just published his new book, Get Smarter at Bridge. It is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 incl. p&p from P.O. Box 169, Roslyn Heights, NY 11577-0169.

Microwave cooking trick

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
 For AP Special Features

For years, French cooks have oven-baked pompano in paper, a technique they call en papillote (poppy-YOTE). This same paper trick works perfectly for microwave cooking. Wrapped in parchment paper, fish steams to perfection in a couple of minutes. (Parchment paper is a sturdy white translucent paper you can find with baking supplies.) Serve the fish in the paper packets, then discard the paper for easy cleanup.

FISH, VEGETABLES EN PAPILOTE

- 1/2 pound fresh or frozen fish fillets
- 1/2-inch thick
- 1/2 cup carrot, bias-sliced
- 1/8-inch thick
- 3 green onions sliced into 1-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 4 teaspoons all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
- 2-3rds cup light cream or milk
- 2 tablespoons coarsely chopped cashews

Thaw fish, if frozen. In a 11/2-quart microwave-safe casserole cook fish, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 2 to 4 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Drain and break into large pieces. Set aside.

In the same casserole combine celery, carrot, green onions and butter or margarine. Cook, covered, on high for 3 to 5 minutes or until crisp-tender. Stir in flour and mustard. Stir in cream or milk. Cook, uncovered, for 2 1/2 to 4 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every 30 seconds.

Fold in fish.

Cut two pieces of parchment paper or brown paper into heart shapes about 13- by 10-inches each. Place half of the fish mixture on one side of each heart. Top with cashews. Fold the other half of the heart over fish mixture. To close packet, begin at the top of the heart and turn edges up two or three times to seal. Work toward the bottom, twisting the tip of the heart several times to secure.

Arrange sealed packets on a 12-inch glass microwave-safe platter. Cook on high for 3 to 4 minutes or until heated through, turning and rearranging packets after 2 minutes. To serve, place packets on plates. With scissors, cut a large X in tops. Fold back each segment. Makes 2 servings.

Carter recipient

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — President Carter is receiving the National Audubon Society's highest award, the Audubon Medal, when the group holds its biennial convention this weekend.

Carter will be recognized in large part for protecting 104 million acres in Alaska, "more open land and more resources than any single action that government had taken," said Audubon President Peter Berle. "That alone would make him worthy of the medal." More than 1,000 people are expected to attend the five-day convention, which begins Friday.

some three or four months ago. Mrs. Browning's interest in tourism was sparked by a stint on the chamber of commerce board.

As word spread of their activities, Browning said people began asking them, about the "Wagon Wheel Ranch" so the name "just stuck." But it is quite appropriate, as Browning has long since prized wagon wheels. So much so, in fact, that wagon wheels are incorporated in property fences as well as windows of the Browning home.

And even though dove and quail hunters are the couple's primary focus this time of year, the lodge has great potential for a wide variety of other activities, the couple said.

As long as the lodge is not booked by hunters it will be available for other functions such as parties of all types, reunions and weddings.

The living room area of the lodge is large and can easily accommodate a party of 50 to 60 people. With the holiday season just around the corner, the Brownings said the lodge could be the perfect locale for Christmas parties. They also speculate that weiner roasts for children could be held there as well.

Regardless of the event or the number of people involved, the Brownings said, "We can show anyone a real good time."

In past years, the couple has become known for benefit barn dances held annually in their barn located nearby their home. Class reunions have also been held there and their home has also been the site for several western style weddings. One such wedding joined two people from Carlsbad, N.M. The space available is ample enough to allow for a band if desired, they said.

In addition to preparing for this season's hunt, the Brownings are also thinking about future plans which may include adding a swimming pool and other improvements such as converting the facility to a dude ranch. They have also moved the original Browning homestead adjacent to the lodge and have plans to restore it to its original state when first built in 1927 by Browning's grandfather.

Handy banana on the scene

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
 For AP Special Features

One of nature's handiest snacks, the banana comes in its own no-mess, easy-to-peel wrapping. Most likely, you're used to seeing the long, yellow, crescent-shaped bananas. This familiar variety is called Cavendish, but there are other kinds now making the supermarket scene.

Cardaba: A large, triangular banana with a yellow, waxy skin. The meat is pale salmon in color when fully ripe. The cardaba has a sweet, yet tart, flavor.

Ladyfinger: Also known as Mysore. This smaller-sized banana has a slightly tangy flavor and moist creamy meat. If the skin is green, the banana's flavor is puckery.

Manzano: This short, chubby banana is also called an Apple or Finger banana. A Manzano is green and astringent when under-ripe. When ripe, the skin is yellow with black spots, and the meat is tart and crunchy with a strawberry-like flavor.

Red: A short, fat, red-skinned banana that turns purplish black when ripe. The meat is sweet and creamy with pink overtones. Supplies of red bananas are limited.

Ripe Pickings — Bananas continue to ripen after picking, so think about how long you plan to keep them. Green or unripe bananas need to ripen for several days before using. For immediate eating, buy yellow banana varieties with a few brown spots and green tips. Use fully ripe bananas, which are soft and yellow, but flecked with more brown, in recipes when mashed bananas are specified. Red bananas ripen more slowly, turning to purplish red. They are soft when ripe.

Store bananas at room temperature until they're ripe. When they reach the desired stage of ripeness, place them in the refrigerator. The peel turns black when the fruit is refrigerated, but the pulp inside stays firm for a few days.

In cooking, count on three medium bananas for about 2 cups of sliced or 1 cup of mashed banana. To keep cut bananas from turning brown in salads or pies, toss them with a mixture of lemon juice and water or treat them with ascorbic acid color keeper.

"Fourth Estate," a collective name for journalists, is attributed to Edmund Burke, who is reported to have called the reporters' gallery in Parliament a "Fourth Estate." The three estates of early English society were the Lords Spiritual (the clergy), the Lords Temporal (the nobility) and the Commons (the bourgeoisie).

Hispanics favor crackdown

HOUSTON (AP) — A poll of Hispanic voters in Texas indicates that most support a crackdown on illegal immigration, even though Hispanic-rights groups have condemned a California measure denying government services to undocumented persons.

A total of 55 percent of the Hispanics polled Tuesday favor barring illegal immigrants from receiving welfare benefits and a citizen identification card for people of all ages.

Additionally, 69 percent favor more federal manpower on the border, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

The Southwest Voter Research Institute surveyed 1,462 Hispanic voters in 37 polling places throughout the state. The poll's sample was designed to cover 90 percent of all Hispanic voters in the state and has a margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points.

Californians backed Proposition 187 on Tuesday, an anti-illegal immigration measure that triggered protests from Hispanic organizations and immigrant-rights groups in Texas and around the country.

The poll shows most Hispanics who voted Tuesday do not support the main thrust of Proposition 187, provisions that bar illegal aliens from attending public schools and receiving nonemergency health care.

But the survey indicates some sympathy for the measure and underscores a growing concern over the number of people who enter the country illegally.

Of those polled, 43 percent opposed denying undocumented people access to nonemergency health care, while 40 percent favored such a provision.

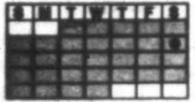

Another 48 percent opposed barring illegal aliens from attending public schools.

Ask The IRS

Following are examples of common questions people ask the Internal Revenue Service. They are presented as a public service of this publication and the IRS.

Q. My husband's 86-year-old mother is widowed and lives with us because she is unable to take care of herself. The only money she receives is a small amount of social security, but it's not enough to pay for all her expenses. Can we claim her as a dependent on our 1994 tax return?

A. Maybe. There are several "tests" that you must pass to determine if you can claim a dependent. Generally, the person must be a member of your household or a relative, must be a U.S. citizen or resident, or a resident of Canada or Mexico, and must not file a joint return.

In addition, the person cannot have had $2,350 or more in gross income, and you must provide more than half of his or her support.

If the only income your mother-in-law received was social security, the benefits are generally not taxable and are not counted as gross income. However, they may be counted when figuring support.

Q. My husband and I both work and we hired a woman to come into our home during the day to care for grandmother. Can we deduct the money we pay her?

A. You may be able to claim a credit on Form 2441, "Child and Dependent Care Expenses," if you file Form 1040 or 1040A and meet all the tests.

Some of the requirements are:
1) You must keep up a home that you live in with a qualifying person;
2) Generally, you must pay for the care so you and your spouse can work or look for work, and;
3) The person you pay cannot be claimed as a dependent on your return.

The other tests you must pass are found in Publication 503, "Child and Dependent Care Expenses."

Remember, if you pay a caregiver to come into your home, you may have to pay employment taxes. More information about your responsibilities can be found in Publication 926, "Employment Taxes for Household Employers."

Q. Where can I get more information?

A. To order any of the free publications and forms mentioned, you can call 1-800-829-3676. Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax," is also a helpful guide for basic tax information.

All-woman, full-service law firm part of growing trend

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Dysart, Bennack, Malone & Specia is the only woman-owned, full-service law firm in the Alamo City, but it's following a growing regional trend.

So far, the firm's high female quotient hasn't hurt with male clients, and might even have helped.

Full-service firms offer the gamut of legal services, from employment law to bankruptcy, real estate, family and criminal law. The firm also boasts a wide range of clients — those the partners brought with them and a few new ones, such as R.L. Wade Construction Co. and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

Dysart, Bennack, Malone & Specia is one of a growing number of female-led law firms regionally, said Jim Wallenstein, a real estate specialist and partner in the Dallas office of Jenkens & Gilchrist.

"In Dallas, several women-owned or women-controlled law firms have formed in the last five years, and I have mixed emotions about this," he told the San Antonio Express-News in Thursday's editions.

"I like to see businesses controlled by women and I think it's good for our society, but it also takes really talented women away from the traditional law firms."

Wallenstein added that in an age when government and corporate contractors are interested in hiring minority vendors, "their gender might get them in the door ... but it's competence that keeps them working."

Senior partner Sara Dysart said the firm's partners average between 10 and 15 years of experience.

The partners would like to exand the firm eventually to as many as 20 lawyers, said Shelley Bennack, managing partner of the firm. She also expects men to join the firm.

"We like men," Ms. Bennack said. "We didn't come together because we didn't do well at firms managed by men."

They came together because they knew one another from professional circles and shared an interest in running their own firms. In more established firms, climbing the corporate ladder takes longer.

Ms. Dysart and partner Cynthia Malone formerly worked at what is now Martin, Drought & Torres in San Antonio. Bennack worked at Matthews & Branscomb, and the fourth partner, Arden Specia, worked for Tinsman & Houser.

Ms. Malone also served three years as chief of the civil section for Bexar County District Attorney Steve Hilbig, and Ms. Specia worked for the 14th Court of Appeals in Houston.

They all agree that characteristics often associated with women, such as sensitivity and good listening skills, have proved advantageous in their careers. For example, as women trained more thoroughly to juggle work and family, they say they may be more flexible in their legal practice.

One client is Skinner Simpson, the founder and president of the Builders Fund Inc., a 4-year-old private investment construction lending company that focuses primarily on projects of up to $1.5 million. He began doing business with Ms. Dysart years ago when she was a sole practitioner.

Simpson has maintained the relationship since she joined the other three lawyers because of "responsiveness."

"We don't look at them as a gender firm. We look at them as giving us good service," he said.

Courts will decide which of 2 widows should get benefits

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Although the courts aren't ready to call William N. Leecan a polygamist, authorities do agree he had two wives at the same time.

Now, twenty-three years after his death, it will be up to the courts to decide which wife is entitled to the postal worker's death benefits.

Leecan married one woman in Texas in 1956 and the second, the mother of his two children, in Pennsylvania in 1967.

On Tuesday, a three-judge panel of the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a trial court ruling that Clifford Irene Huff of Houston is the rightful wife.

In a 14-page opinion, U.S. Circuit Judge William D. Hutchinson wrote that Pennsylvania law is unclear on whether Huff should be considered Leecan's spouse.

Although Leecan never divorced his first wife, evidence showed that he believed he was free to marry when he obtained a Pennsylvania marriage license with Ethel R. Leecan in 1967, Hutchinson wrote. His first wife had initiated divorce proceedings in 1962.

The appeals court returned the case to District Court.

In reconsidering the case, Hutchinson wrote, the court must balance two contradictory assumptions in Pennsylvania family law — that first marriages are valid until proven otherwise, but that people usually marry a second spouse "innocently" and do not intend to commit polygamy.

Hutchinson noted that the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has instructed courts applying the state's domestic relations law to perform a balancing test in determining whether the evidence supports the validity of the first or second marriage.

"We think the court should consider the conduct of both parties and their respective contributions to the stability of the family each chose to support or deny in light of the values our society attributes to traditional families and evolving conditions of family life in this nation," Hutchinson wrote.

Noting that Ms. Huff didn't try to contact Leecan until 1989, he said the district court also should determine when she first learned of Leecan's death "and the reasons for her lack of curiosity for 28 years about the man she now claims as her husband."

Hutchinson said the district court should have considered each woman's contribution "to the family which Mr. Leecan wanted to benefit with funds." Leecan had named his second wife as his spouse on his death benefit form.

Leecan and Ms. Huff, then 17, married in 1956 in Victoria County, Texas, and moved to Philadelphia, but separated five years later without having any children.

Ms. Huff initiated divorce proceedings in Texas in 1962. They were dismissed two years later for inaction.

Ms. Huff then moved in with Thomas Bennett of Houston and had three children with him, although the two never married.

In 1967, Leecan married his second wife after obtaining a Pennsylvania marriage license. The couple had two children. He died in a car accident four years later.

After awarding spousal benefits to Ethel Leecan in 1972, the federal government reversed itself after Ms. Huff made a claim in 1989, awarding back benefits to the first wife and ordering the second wife to repay money that had been awarded to her.

But after the government changed its position again, federal officials encouraged the two to ask a federal judge to decide the issue.

Reagan doing fine

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Five days after announcing the stunning news that he has Alzheimer's disease, President Reagan was back enjoying some of his favorite activities — chopping wood and riding horses.

"He's doing fine," Nancy Reagan said during a two-hour appearance Thursday at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library, where she signed 600 copies of her autobiography. "The outpouring has been very gratifying."

MOLE DAY — Snyder High School Chemistry II students celebrated "Mole Day" on Oct. 23. In honor of the occasion, students decorated pumpkins, cars and even themselves. In chemistry, moles are used to count atoms and molecules.

Ex-sheriff's sergeant charged

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Harris County sheriff's sergeant has been charged with aggravated robbery and attempted capital murder in the armed robbery of a savings and loan office.

Michael Durwood Griffith, 44, who worked for the sheriff's department for more than 10 years, had earlier been charged in the robbery of a wedding chapel.

The attempted capital murder charge filed Thursday involves an incident during the robbery of the Guardian Savings office in southwest Houston in which the armed man struck Karen James, 29, a bank teller in the forehead and the gun discharged. Her head was grazed by the bullet, officers said.

Ms. James picked Griffith out of a videotaped lineup as the man she said she saw walk into the office and demand money.

It was the latest in a string of recent charges filed against Griffith, who was fired from the sheriff's department in January. He had once been described by a sergeant as one of the department's best employees.

Griffith has been held in the Harris County Jail without bail after he was arrested Nov. 4 after a female clerk picked him out of a photographic lineup as the man who she said robbed her at the Bridal and Alteration Shop Oct. 28.

The woman told police Griffith forced her into a back room and attempted to rape her. He has been charged with aggravated robbery and aggravated sexual assault in that case.

Turkey and dressing will be featured on the menu when the Senior Center serves its annual Thanksgiving dinner on Nov. 22. Senior citizens who plan to attend are asked to register in the office so plans for food preparation can be made. The center will be closed Nov. 24 and 25 for the Thanksgiving holiday.

The center needs help in making the quilts which are sold in the May Day auction each year. Quilting is a year around activity in the center and one or two quilts are always in the frames ready for quilting. Quilters do not have to be senior citizens but can be any age. David Crosby needs new liver

LOS ANGELES (AP) — David Crosby needs blood.

The 53-year-old singer has a deteriorating liver and is awaiting a transplant. But the county is short of his blood type, O positive, and his representatives have put out a local call for donors so that there will be enough on hand for the surgery.

Simi Singer, a spokeswoman for UCLA Medical Center, said donors cannot specify the blood for Crosby's use because his surgery hasn't been scheduled and blood can only be kept for about 42 days.

Oh, those Congressional perks

The Houston Post

While you are struggling to make ends meet, pity your poor congresspersons.

What you pay them in salary and perks has gone up only $7,544 since August 1992, Money magazine reports. It's hard to see how they can possibly get along on such static recompense.

Money estimates the cost of running Congress this year at $2.8 billion.

The congressional salary, now $133,600, is up from $129,500 in 1992. Out of deference to the voters, the lawmakers have decided for the second year in a row to forgo an automatic 2.1 percent cost-of-living adjustment. They're even talking seriously about skipping a 2.6 percent COLA for 1995, Money says.

But there's no inclination (except in the taxpayers' minds) to cut the annual value of perks, which the magazine estimates now at $42,146 a year per member and boosts our annual support for each lawmaker to $175,746.

The estimate includes $27,121 for the lawmaker's pension plan, $6,680 in matching contributions to his or her tax-deferred savings plan, $3,648 for health insurance (75 percent of the premium) and some less-costly perks.

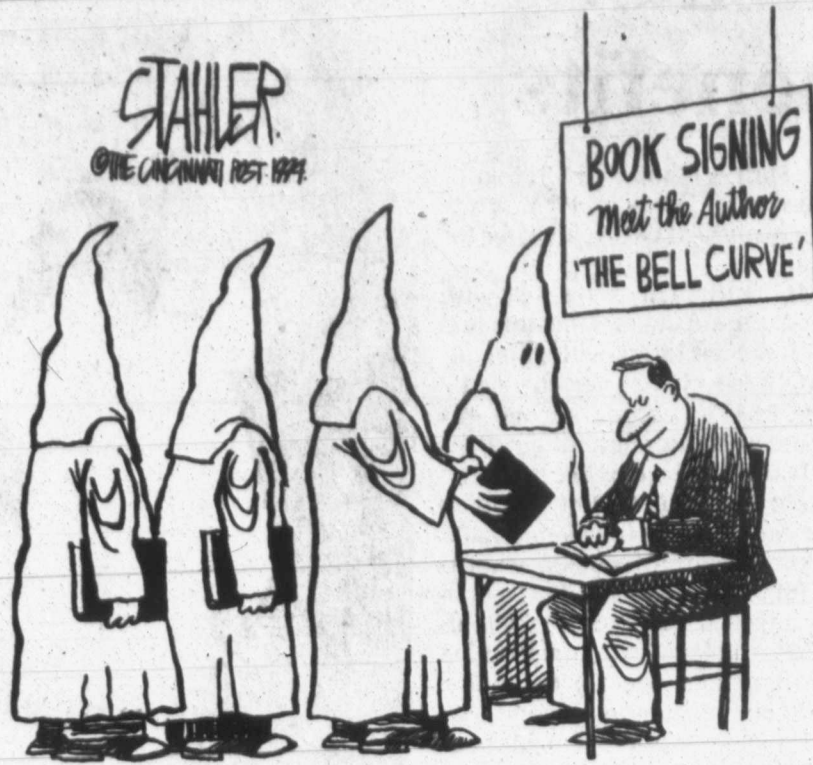

Congresspersons are being furnished — mostly at your expense — a Cadillac pension system few Americans can even dream of.

This retirement system not only pays monthly benefits far exceeding most private-sector pension plans, but includes cost-of-living adjustments.

Of course, congresspersons also get thousands of dollars a year free postage to tell you how valuable they are.

Maybe someday inflation would erode their pensions enough to bring them in line with their constituents'.

Their perks are way out of hand.

Wary of casino gambling

The Dallas Morning News

Dallas Mayor Steve Bartlett and a half-dozen other mayors have issued a well-timed message: If casino gambling interests expect to make inroads in Texas, they had better not try to do it at the expense of this state's largest cities.

Legislation floated by the casino industry would shortchange the cities if Texans decide to take a hankering to slot machines and roulette wheels.

A measly 1.6 percent of the gambling receipts at casinos would go to the cities under the state bill submitted in Austin. That amount wouldn't even pay for the additional police security and road improvements Dallas and other cities would need to handle casino traffic.

While Mr. Bartlett and other mayors aren't ready to take an official stand on casino gambling, they are wise to tell lawmakers they don't like what they see so far.

In Louisiana, state officials put together a casino gambling plan for New Orleans with little input from the local government. Nearly all of the gambling revenue taxes from the new casino will be sent to the state, leaving New Orleans with nothing more than table scraps.

The mayors from Dallas, Houston, Fort Worth, Austin, San Antonio, El Paso and Corpus Christi have said that had better not happen in Texas. ...

More on Hill vs. Thomas

The Houston Chronicle

Anita Hill vs. Clarence Thomas. ... Clarence Thomas vs. Anita Hill. ...

On and on goes the national swearing match that most people wish would just go away. But it won't. Special interests of every sort refuse to let it go. The wound is never allowed to scar over.

The debate over who was truthful about sexual harassment allegations during Justice Thomas' 1991 Senate confirmation hearings has been raised again with publication of a new book.

The ideologues of all stripes and genders seem to find some spiritual catalyst in the case and the polarizing debate rages on.

The trouble is, it's a most uncomfortable debate. A twin-pronged uncomfortable debate.

First, it entails many of the most sensitive and unsettling issues with which our society continually grapples — ethnicity, gender, ethic, ideology, etc.

And, second, in the end it boils down to the stark fact that somebody lied under oath.

Who the prevaricator was may never be known. But we as a society continue to point fingers and endlessly choose up sides.

And in this, the golden age of cynicism, it's another disturbing nail in the coffin of public trust. A real American tragedy — and that's no lie.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

One of the things I do to flesh out the characters in my novels is subscribe to various psychological publications, such as the "Harvard Mental Health Letter" and the "Menninger Letter," which is published by the famed Menninger Clinic. So I get to read all sorts of interesting little facts about the human condition that have nothing to do with being crazy. (Often these studies make it to the evening news about a month later, and the news magazines a couple of weeks after that.) In this month's "Menninger Letter" was a fascinating piece that I thought would be perfect for those of you who have small children and are wondering what Santa should consider bringing them for Christmas.

It seems they asked a bunch of young parents what kinds of toys they preferred to buy for their children, based on sex. Most of all the parents said they preferred to get "girl" toys for their daughters and "boy" toys for their sons. So, in true shrink fashion, they decided to do a little experiment.

They set up a playroom and arranged 15 toys in a straight line in random order. The "boy" toys were: a truck, a ball, a train, a Fisher-Price gas station with cars, and a tool set. The "girl" toys were: a baby doll, a soft doll, a kitchen set, a doll house with furniture, and a telephone. Then they put out five "gender-neutral" toys — in other words, toys that any kid would like, regardless of sex. These were: a puzzle, a book, a stuffed animal, Play-Doh, and blocks.

Twenty sets of parents, along with 10 girls and 10 boys aged 2-5 years old, participated in the study. Working with one parent at a time, each parent and child were turned loose in the playroom and observed for 15 minutes.

After the play session, parents rated how desirable each toy was, and categorized it as to which type of toy they considered it to be, (boy, girl, or neutral).

The results came as no surprise to me, but it might be a shocker to some of you grandmas and granddads out there, and even to many of you parents of small children.

It seems NOBODY wanted to play with the "girl" toys.

In fact, girls spent even less time with "girl" toys than with "boy" toys.

The girls seemed to prefer the "neutral" toys, followed by "boy" toys, whereas the boys like "neutral" and "boy" toys equally.

The reason I wasn't surprised is that I remember so vividly what it was like when my kids were little, back in the early eighties. I used to bend over backwards to make available all three types of toys to both my children, but I had a real problem convincing the grand-folks that my daughter, for example, simply hated dolls. She had a habit of stripping them naked, ripping off their heads, and tossing them into a box in her closet. Barbie, especially, was fair game.

However, she adored stuffed toys — as did my little boy. I told them this over and over, but it never did any good. I guess they thought their feminist daughter/daughter-in-law was depriving her daughter of a proper childhood. I remember especially that godawful Cabbage Patch riot, where people practically committed murder to get their hands on one for their little ones. My mother-in-law, bless her, turned double-back-flips in order to get one for my little girl, and then sewed a bunch of clothes for it. She never knew this, but Jessica never played with that doll once. She put all the clothes on her teddy bears.

However, I remember when Cabbage Patch came out with a "Little Buddy" doll, or some such name, for boys, Dustin was too old for it at the time, but I thought it was such a good idea because there is absolutely nothing wrong with boy children cuddling a soft toy and practicing fatherhood early.

So I would suggest that you try something entirely different this Christmas. I'll bet your granddaughter would love a tool kit, for example, or your little grandson a soft, cuddly teddy bear. Don't just immediately head down that "pink" aisle at the discount store in search of the latest Barbie for the little girl in your life, (unless, of course, you know for sure that the child enjoys playing with it).

Times are changing. Most little girl's mommies work outside the home now, and they see nothing particularly enjoyable about pushing around a toy vacuum cleaner. Yet they may play with a doctor kit for hours. Sports, too, are now appealing to many little girls who look forward to, say, being in Little Dribblers or girl's softball.

Give it some thought. You just might have a ball, playing with all these new ideas.

Licks. I've had a few.

No, no. I'm not talking about lolly pops or puppy dogs. I'm talking belts and paddles.

My parents raised three kids and there wasn't a one of us who didn't get spanked now and then. The worst part of course, wasn't the actual whippin'. That's what everybody called it then. Gettin' a whippin'.

"You want a whippin'?" my father would say. "Well I'll give you a whippin'. I'll give you somethin' to really cry about."

But no, the blows weren't the really tough part. The tough part was having to go and get the belt off the nail in the kitchen closet and bring it to Dad. That was pure hell.

Nothing really changed at school.

I got swatted on the first day in first grade right after the first bell rang. I was standing by my chair, excitedly talking with some of the other children, when "whap," I got struck across the bottom with a yardstick by a teacher whose name I can't recall.

The next most memorable lick — at home they were whippin's, at school they were licks — was in the sixth grade, and it was over chewing gum.

My teacher, Mrs. Pruitt, had told me about a hundred times that year not to chew gum in class. On the hundred and oneth time, she marched me to the principal's office. With absolutely no mercy whatsoever, she told him I needed licks for chewing gum, and then she went back to class.

The principal spoke those terrible words: "Go get Coach." Having to go and find the varsity football coach so he can give you licks was almost as bad as having to go to the kitchen closet and get the belt to give your father so he could whip you.

Fear building inside me, I had to go out to the field house and look for the coach, knowing that if I found the coach, he was going to give me licks.

Suddenly, he appeared around the corner.

"What's up?" he said.

"I gotta' get licks," I mumbled, my head hanging down.

"What for?"

"Chewin' gum."

It was a terrible, terrible sin to chew gum in school in those days.

"Well...let's go get it over with."

We marched to the principal's office, where the coach reached into a drawer and pulled out what all us school kids feared: Coach's paddle. It was long, and it would have been smooth from all the be-hinds it had smacked if it hadn't been for the holes drilled in it.

Coach looked at me and shook his head as if this were going to hurt him more than it hurt me. But I knew better.

"Bend over and grab your ankles," he said.

"Go ahead, do it."

I did it.

Swisssssh, crack! Swisssssh, crack! Swisssssh, crack!

"Now, don't be chewin' no more gum in school. Got that?" the coach said.

"Yefffff, yefffff, yefffff sir," I blurped, tears streaming down my eyes. "I wo...wo...wo...do-do...do-do, do-do it again."

I slipped into the boy's room on the way back to class, washed my face and regained my composure. When I finally walked into the classroom, I had a big smile on my face.

"Did it hurt?" friends whispered. "Did it hurt bad?"

"Nah," I boasted.

Those were the last licks I got in school, although they weren't the last I was scheduled for.

In the seventh grade at Pearce Junior High, my math teacher, a Mr. Horvath, went completely nuts one day when I walked in the room.

"Look at that! Look at that!" he screamed, pointing at my math book.

I didn't have a clue as to what he was talking about. "It's a math book," I said.

"But LOOK AT IT!"

"Well," I said. "I've got some papers stuck in there."

"You've ruined the book! You've ruined the book!" he screamed.

Mr. Horvath absolutely hated it when he found papers — notes, assignments, class schedules and such — stuffed between the pages of books.

"You've ruined that book! You take that book right now and show it to the principal," he said. "Right now! Right Now!"

And I dropped my chin to my chest and I said yes sir.

The principal, "Licks Lacey" was his nickname.

"At home, you belong to your parents," he'd say. "But at school, your butt's mine."

Literally, "Licks Lacey" used a plastic strap with the name of the school imprinted in it. Which in turn would leave the name of the school imprinted on your backside.

About half way to the principal's office, I realized that I was going about this all wrong. At home, I had to go to the kitchen closet and get the belt so my parents could whip me. As I got a little older and into elementary school, I had to find the coach so he could give me licks.

Now, in junior high, I was seeking out out the principal, so he could give me licks.

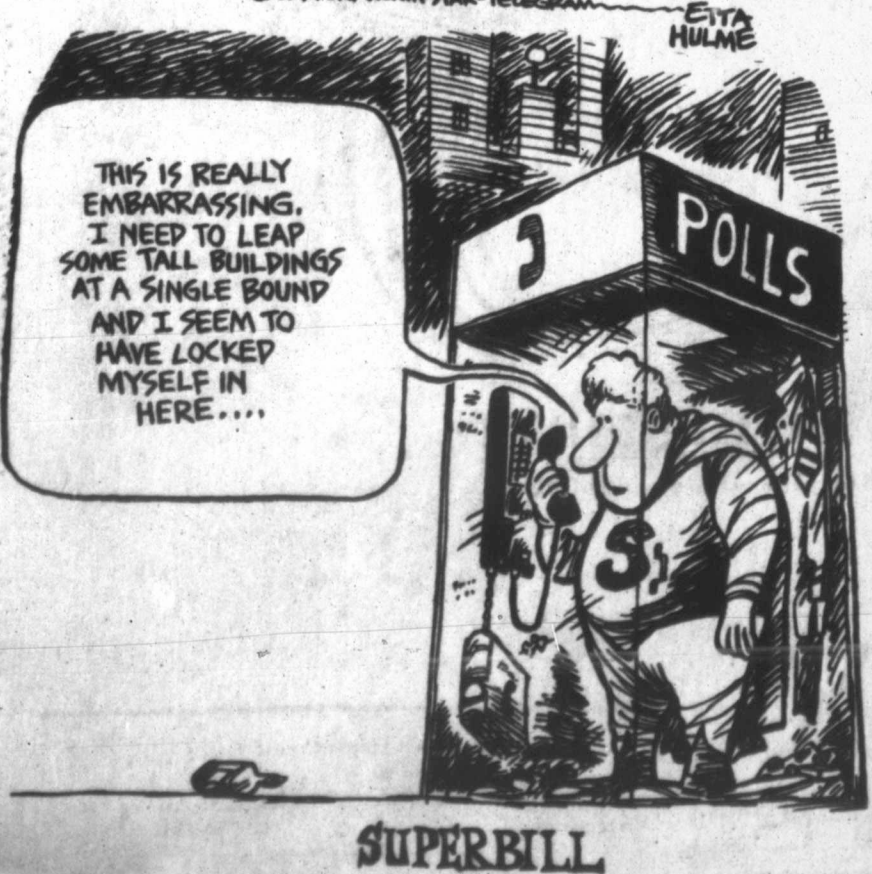

And I reasoned, why should I have to go out of my way to help somebody beat on my bottom?

I ducked into the restroom and I cleaned out the math book. Then I removed the cover — you know, those paper sack looking things the school supplied you for each book — and I turned it inside out, making it look fresh and new. And then I went back to class.

"We'll!" said Mr. Horvath, eyeing the new-looking book, "I guess that taught you a lesson, didn't it?"

"Yes sir," I said, my head bent low and my shoulders hanging dejectedly. "It did."

Now some could say it taught me to lie and some could say it taught me not to respect authority. But I saw it differently. I saw it as not giving in to the system. Oh, and there was the added relief of not having "Pearce Junior High" emblazoned across my...

SUPERBILL

"Family Focus"

By James C. Dobson, Ph.D.

QUESTION: Can you be more specific regarding the differences in sexual desire and preferences between males and females? I'm getting married next July. I would like to know how my future husband's sexual needs will differ from my own. Could you summarize the major distinctions that will occur between us?

DR. DOBSON: You are wise to ask this question because the failure to understand male and female preferences often produces a continual source of marital frustration and guilt.

First, men are primarily aroused by visual stimulation. They are turned on by feminine nudity or peek-a-boo glimpses of semi-nudity. Women, on the other hand, are much less visually oriented than men. Sure, they are interested in attractive masculine bodies, but the physiological mechanism of sex is not triggered, typically, by what they see. Women are stimulated primarily by the sense of touch.

Thus, we encounter the first source of disagreement in the bedroom; he wants her to appear unclothed in a lighted room, and she wants him to caress her in the dark.

Second, and much more importantly, men are not very discriminating in regard to the person living with an interesting body. A man can walk down the street and be stimulated by a scantily clad female who shimmies past him, even though he knows nothing about her personality, values or mental capabilities. He is attracted by her body itself. Likewise, he can become almost as excited over a photograph or an unknown nude model as he can a face-to-face encounter with someone he loves.

In essence, the sheer biological power of sexual desire in a male is largely focused on the physical body of an attractive female. Hence, there is some validity to the complaint by women that they have been used as "sex objects" by men.

This explains why female prostitutes outnumber males by a wide margin and why few women try to "rape" men. It explains why a roomful of toothless, old men can get a large charge from watching a burlesque dancer "take it all off." It reflects the fact that masculine self-esteem is more motivated by a desire to "conquer" a woman than by becoming the object of her romantic love.

These are not very flattering characteristics of male sexuality, but they are well documented in the professional literature.

Women, on the other hand, are much more discriminating in their sexual interests. They less commonly become excited by observing a good-looking charmer, or by the photograph of a hairy model. Rather, their desire is usually focused on a particular individual whom they respect or admire.

A woman is stimulated by the romantic aura that surrounds her man, and by his character and personality. A woman yields to the man who appeals to her emotionally as well as physically.

Obviously, there are exceptions to these characteristic desires, but the fact remains: sex for men is a more physical phenomenon; sex for a woman is a deeply emotional experience.

Russian lawmakers OK tougher AIDS testing

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreigners visiting Russia would be forced to take an AIDS test under a bill approved Friday by parliament's lower house.

The bill, which also would mandate testing for Russians in many occupations, still requires approval from the upper house and President Boris Yeltsin.

It says foreigners who refuse to be tested or are found to have the AIDS virus would be deported. Proponents say the measure is needed to stem the spread of AIDS, which had killed 105 people in Russia by the first half of this year. More than 740 Russians had tested positive for the AIDS virus by that time.

The draft law has provoked strong criticism from Russia's medical community and outrage from foreigners, who say it would violate their rights, hurt tourism and be virtually impossible to enforce. Many foreigners are reluctant to use Russia's notoriously unsanitary medical facilities.

Many Russians blame the West for the rise in prostitution, pornography and other social ills since the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union. Some even accuse the CIA of creating the AIDS virus.

Doctors say the measure would be a heavy burden on the health-care system. There also are fears it would create a black market in fake medical certificates and would violate privacy rights.

Colorado school district resorts to advertisements

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — There are ads on school team uniforms and ads in high school hallways, and even the yellow buses of School District 11 have turned into roving billboards for 7-Up, Burger King and other companies.

"If we were not so short of money, we wouldn't have to do stuff like this," said Tracy Cooper, a spokeswoman for El Paso County's District 11. "We'll consider anything."

Amendment 1, passed two years ago, caps local governments' growth, so the 32,000-student district, the state's fourth largest, had to look for new sources of funds, Cooper said.

Ads have raised about $54,000 since the first one went up in September 1993.

Anti-fungal drug treats ringworm

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is the cause of ringworm? Is it contagious?

DEAR READER: Ringworm is a contagious fungus infection of the skin, spread by direct contact. It usually appears as an enlarging, itchy ring of inflammation with a red and scaly interior.

Treatment with anti-fungus drugs, such as Nizoral, is almost always effective.

DEAR DR. GOTT: During a recent employment physical examination, I was found to be slightly anemic. My doctor was alarmed and put me through several tests, including two CT scans at nearly $1,000 each. I gave blood three months prior, but it didn't occur to me that I should tell him this. Is there a connection, or do I really have a problem?

DEAR READER: I can't be certain. Although blood donation rarely causes significant anemia (because the bone marrow promptly replaces the cells that were donated), if you were slightly anemic to start with, I suppose giving a unit of blood could conceivably push your blood count into the abnormal range. Customarily, however, the Red Cross personnel check a donor's blood for anemia and certain infections before removing a transfusion.

It's more likely that your doctor was on the right track. He chose to investigate the anemia further. In most healthy persons, the most common cause of mild anemia is iron deficiency due to blood loss (from heavy menstruation or internal bleeding), or iron-deficient diets. Nonetheless, other causes of anemia, such as cancer or vitamin deficiencies, have to be considered.

To allay your anxiety and answer the question you raise, ask your doctor for a complete and intelligible analysis of the tests you had, the cause of your anemia, and the nature of any proposed therapy.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood — Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I read an article that indicated recent studies show that as little as two cups of coffee daily may significantly interfere with calcium absorption. Does caffeine have such an effect?

DEAR READER: This is untrue. Caffeine in large quantities — on the order of six or eight cups a day — may slightly reduce calcium absorption, but one or two cups have no demonstrable effect on the metabolism of this mineral.

Given the recent emphasis on cost-containment, many patients are confused about what constitutes reasonable preventive health strategies. In other words, since the traditional "executive physical" is now passe (because it is not cost-effective), what tests should healthy people undergo? This question was answered last summer in an article in the New England Journal of Medicine.

In addition to a complete medical history and physical examination (the cornerstone of health maintenance), experts agree that the following tests should be obtained.

- Blood pressure measurement. This should be taken at every medical visit and repeated at least every two years.

- Breast examination of females. This should be performed annually in all women over 40.

- Mammography. Yearly breast X-rays should be obtained on all women over 50. Mammograms should also be performed every year or two in women 35-50 who have a strong family history (such as a sister, mother or aunt) of breast cancer.

- Pap tests. This screening for cancer of the cervix is mandatory for sexually active women every one to three years. If they have had consistently normal Pap tests, women over the age of 65 need not continue to have cervical screening, except at the discretion of their gynecologists.

- Immunizations. Various panels of experts encourage all persons over 65 to have annual flu shots and at least one pneumonia vaccination after that age. Tetanus immunization should be administered every 10 years.

- Counseling. All patients should be encouraged to moderate alcohol usage, stop smoking and use seat belts.

- Cholesterol. This blood fat should be measured every five years, starting in the early 20s.

Controversial screening procedures (useful only in selected instances) include:

- Fasting blood sugar. This test for diabetes should be performed annually when there is a family history of diabetes.

- HIV. The AIDS test should be carried out periodically in people who engage in high-risk sexual behavior or who have received transfusions between 1978 and 1985.

New duties for Wilson

Marine Pfc. Tommy L. Wilson, son of Jimmy and Donna Wilson of Snyder, recently reported for duty with Marine Wing Support Squadron 172, 1st Marine Aircraft Wing, Okinawa, Japan.

As of Nov. 2, the U.S. Navy has 385 ships; 188 of them are underway and 106 of them are deployed. The Navy has 8 exercises ongoing and port visits to 10 countries.

Photographer killed in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — A veteran news photographer has been killed and his body burned, the latest in a string of high-profile slayings that have focused new attention on crime in the Russian capital.

It was unclear whether the death of Yuri Korolyov, a 69-year-old photographer for the business monthly Deloviy Lyudi, was connected to his work, police spokesman Gennady Melnik said today.

Korolyov's charred body was found earlier this week along a highway 10 miles west of Moscow and his burned car was discovered a mile away.

Korolyov contributed to Life and TIME magazines, and to United Press International since the 1960s. He also worked for the monthly Soviet Union. He is the 13th reporter killed this year in the Commonwealth of Independent States, the ITAR-Tass news agency said.

Violent crime in Russia has risen sharply in recent years.

Last month, a reporter was killed at work when he opened a bomb-rigged briefcase.

- Hidden blood in the stool. This simple and inexpensive test is recommended annually for patients over 50, especially in the presence of inflammatory bowel disease (such as ulcerative colitis) or a strong family history of colon cancer.

- Sigmoidoscopy. Direct examination of the lower colon is appropriate every five years in people over 50, more often if there is a history of bowel disease or a family history of colon cancer.

- Rectal examination in males. This is mandated for men over 60 to detect prostate cancer. In addition, the PSA blood test (for prostate cancer) should be performed if the rectal exam suggests a prostate growth.

Naturally, some patients (and their physicians) will choose to have more extensive testing, depending on family history, symptoms and other issues. The bare-bones approach I've summarized pertains only to guidelines for the average person in good health.

The current recommendation for routine physical examinations of adults is: one thorough exam per decade for people in their 20s, 30s, and 40s; twice in their 50s and annually after age 60.

As concerns about the high cost of medical care escalate, healthy individuals are more likely to be counseled about an appropriate lifestyle than to be routinely tested. For example, rather than automatically obtaining expensive blood tests, the doctor of the future will be more apt to sit a patient down and encourage him or her to make the lifestyle modifications mentioned above.

Doctor-assisted suicide now legalized after Oregon vote

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — As soon as Oregon voters passed a law allowing doctor-assisted suicide, AIDS patient Tim Shuck started planning to take advantage of it.

On Thursday, official tallies showed the ballot proposal had passed 52 percent to 48 percent. Shuck, who learned in April that the HIV virus is invading his brain, had talked to his doctor about suicide a day earlier.

"It allows me to have some control over my life," said Shuck, 45. "My decision was based on what my needs are going to be. Once my brain is gone, I see no purpose for me to be around."

When the measure on Tuesday's ballot takes effect Dec. 8, Oregon will become the only place in the nation that lets doctors hasten death for the terminally ill.

A patient with six months or less to live will be able to ask a doctor to prescribe a lethal dose of drugs. At least two doctors must first agree that the patient's condition is terminal, and the patient must ask three times, the last time in writing. Doctors must wait 15 days before filling the final request for a lethal prescription.

Doctors who follow the law's guidelines cannot be prosecuted or sanctioned by professional organizations and licensing boards. Other health professionals, such as pharmacists, do not receive the same protection.

The law pushes Oregon to the forefront of the movement to give the dying the freedom to choose when and how to end their lives. But it also raises difficult questions for doctors who have been trained to heal, not kill.

"Nobody wants Oregon to become a drop-in center for death," said Dr. Susan Tolle, director of the Center for Ethics in Health Care at Oregon Health Sciences University.

The seeds of the national debate over euthanasia were sown on June 4, 1990, when Janet Adkins of Portland, a victim of Alzheimer's disease, killed herself in Michigan with the help of Dr. Jack Kevorkian. Since then, Kevorkian has been present at 19 more deaths.

Kevorkian and his supporters are challenging a Michigan ban on assisted suicide. They argue that the Constitution guarantees "the right not to suffer," and hope that the U.S. Supreme Court will eventually agree with them. But the Oregon law says nothing about suffering, and does not require patients to be in unbearable pain before requesting a lethal prescription.

Doctors in Oregon are split over the new law. The American Medical Association opposes it.

Mother charged for not protecting her two daughters

SAN MARCOS (AP) — Gregory Cook decided to take his two daughters to breakfast, starting up the car after one of the girls apparently blew into a breath-analyzing device that had been installed to keep him from driving drunk.

About a half-hour after they set out Sept. 25, the car skidded into a wastewater treatment pond, drowning Cook and the girls.

On Thursday, a grand jury indicted the youngsters' mother, Shirley Draper, for not stopping the girls from riding with their intoxicated father.

Ms. Draper, 34, could get up to life in prison if convicted.

Prosecutors said Ms. Draper knew that Cook, her ex-husband, had been drinking and wasn't capable of driving safely when he left her behind.

Ms. Draper "told us she was aware one of her children would have to blow into the apparatus to get the car running and keep it running," Sheriff Paul Hastings said.

The device had been installed on the car as part of the probation the 36-year-old Cook received in July after three drunken driving convictions.

Cook's blood-alcohol level was more than twice the legal limit after the accident near Wimberly, outside Austin. The bodies of Cook, 8-year-old Marissa and 10-year-old Shauna were found three days later.

Ms. Draper was charged with injury to a child and endangering a child. She was not immediately arrested; prosecutors said she would be given the chance to surrender.

Ms. Draper's husband, Harry Draper, said, "Shirley's innocent of any wrongdoing."

To forego means to go before; to forgo means to abstain from.

Body exhumed; husband charged in wife's death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carla Cohn choked on her own vomit and died with more than 2 pounds of bar soap in her stomach and bruises covering her body.

Prosecutors suspected her husband had killed her by force-feeding her the soap, but they couldn't prove it.

Nine years later, after exhuming the body, investigators concluded it wasn't the soap that killed her after all. She was strangled.

And this time, prosecutors are betting they can prove Bruce Cohn did it.

Cohn, 39, pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges including murder, torture and child abuse. He could get up to life in prison without parole.

Investigators took another look at Ms. Cohn's death after the couple's son claimed his father punished him by forcing soap and dog feces down his throat.

After the original autopsy, which found the equivalent of nearly 11 bars of soap in Ms. Cohn's stomach, pathologist Dr. Dewitt Hunter concluded her death was a "suspect accident" caused by asphyxiation on her own vomit.

The re-examination, by pathologist Dr. Robert Detraglia, discovered a fracture of the hyoid, a small bone in the Adam's apple. The cause of death was changed to strangulation.

Hunter, who has retired and moved out of state, told Detraglia he "did not routinely dissect the hyoid bone and did not in this particular case."

The 29-year-old woman's bruised body was found in the couple's house in 1985. According to court papers, Cohn claimed that his wife was given to "self-abuse" and that her injuries were self-inflicted.

Cohn was arrested, then freed. "The office did not feel at the time that they could prove the charges," Riverside County Deputy District Attorney Eileen Hunt said Wednesday.
