DCOS approves ad agency

Selection of an Austin advertising agency to handle the first phase of a creative plan leading to a professionally-prepared community facts books was approved Monday night by directors of the Development Corporation of Snyder.

The board unanimously approved staff's recommendation to contract with The Perkins Group to develop the concept, creative materials and systems which could then be used in a variety of economic development projects.

Doug Hutchinson, DCOS executive director, said three advertising agencies made presentations and that The Perkins Group "by far demonstrated the most effort and creativity."

Hutchinson showed board members samples with the theme: "The Window of Opportunity is Always Open."

The concept and design phase will not exceed $5,500. DCOS will become owners of the materials which could be used in a fact book, brochure, posters and media advertising. If the agency continues with additional phases of the planned project, the cost is estimated at $39,000.

The brief meeting was followed by a lengthy executive session dealing with land acquisition and staff evaluations.

No action was taken following the closed session.

On Oct. 20, directors had authorized Hutchinson to negotiate for real estate that could be used as a site for industrial development. Development of an industrial park would be accomplished over a period of several years.

The DCOS' regular meeting is set for 7 p.m. Thursday in the board room at American State Bank. Other than routine payment of bills, the board will conduct another executive session on land acquisition and then conduct a work session on a program operating guide for the DCOS. The board also changed its December meeting from Dec. 15 to Dec. 8.

FOUNDER'S DAY AWARD— Jim Judah was named recipient of the annual Founder's Day Award this morning at Western Texas College. (SDN Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

Founder's Day...

Judah receives award

Jim Judah, assistant professor of agriculture and golf/landscape technology, was named this morning as recipient of the annual Founder's Day Award at Western Texas College.

Judah has served on the faculty at WTC for 10 years. In addition to his duties as assistant professor, he coaches the collegiate meats and livestock evaluation teams and is active in 4-H, Future Farmers of America and in his church.

He received a bachelor of science degree in animal science from Lubbock Christian College and a master's degree in agriculture education at Texas Tech. Judah taught high school agriculture for four years and was assistant professor of agriculture at Lubbock Christian College for three years prior to coming to Western Texas in 1984.

In 1992, he coached WTC's meats evaluation team to a national championship. Other accomplishments include coaching the national champion livestock evaluation team in 1981, receiving an honorary Lone Star Award for FFA in 1986, serving as national president of the Junior College Meats Association from 1988-89

Block scheduling, tennis court repair mulled by trustees

With the objective of offering Snyder High School students the opportunity to take more subjects during their high school career, Snyder school board of trustees is exploring the possibility of adopting block scheduling beginning next fall.

Administrators said block scheduling could increase the number of credits at graduation — from the present 21 to 24 — by increasing the length of a daily class period from 45 to 90 minutes, and by holding classes on alternate days. This would allow a student to take eight subjects each semester as opposed to six.

SHS Principal Larry Scott told the board that while the traditional student schedule might consist of English, math, history, science, PE and an elective — block scheduling could consist of English, math, history and science on what could be called "A" schedule and PE, foreign language and two electives on a "B" schedule. Schedule "A" classes would be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday while schedule "B" classes would be held on Tuesday and Thursday. The schedule would then reverse itself the following week.

Scott and Director of Curriculum Wendell Sollis presented information on the proposed change to the trustees Monday night following numerous trips to schools which have already implemented the block schedule.

"What we found is very encouraging," said Sollis. "All the students we talked to said they would not like to go back to the traditional six-period day."

Scott said there are a number of advantages to block scheduling in addition to the added number of electives.

"The longer classroom time allows for a diversity of activities including field trips, audio-visuals, guest speakers and class discussions," said Scott. "This will also present a great challenge to our teachers too, as they will have to be prepared for the longer class period."

Supt. Gayle Lomax said parents have expressed to him their desire to have their children exposed to more than six subjects in a semester, and block scheduling would be the answer.

Scott said there are also some disadvantages to block scheduling, including the importance of time management due to the increased class period length and adjustment to the new schedules by parents and students.

"We know there will be problems with students and faculty members remembering schedules and assignments for the alternating days in the beginning," added Scott.

Trustees are expected to vote on the schedule change in their January board meeting.

WTC gets clean audit report

Western Texas College trustees on Monday accepted the annual outside audit and approved the 1995-96 calendar but rejected a bid for a lighting system in the Fine Arts Theatre.

In other business, the board approved a change in retirement plans for part-time employees and accepted a bid for the 1995-96 college catalog.

Under discussion items, administrators outlined deactivation of the diesel mechanics program and informed the trustees of an agreement with Johnson Controls, Inc. concerning the energy contract.

Richard Agee, representing Springer & Associates, heaped praise on the college and its financial department, saying the records "were in excellent shape." He said his company has audited numerous educational institutions and "this, by far, was the cleanest of all colleges and universities we've audited."

Assisting Agee was Todd Hrbacek.

Trustees approved the audit but rejected a bid to rework the lighting system in the Fine Arts Theatre. Administrators said only one bid came in, and they recommended asking for new bids.

The board approved the 1995-96 calendar. The calendar is similar to ones in recent years, with the fall 1995 semester running Aug. 23 through Dec. 8 and the spring 1996 semester running Jan. 10 through May 1. Graduation will be April 26. Administrators said spring break has been scheduled to coincide with the local public school system.

Board members approved a recommendation to change the college's retirement plan for part-time employees. The recommendation is based in part on perceived benefits of financial and administrative cost savings. Currently, part-time employees have an option of participating in either Social Security or another plan. Administrators said they are concerned that the college's exemption from Social Security for full-time employees may be in jeopardy because Social Security is made available for part-time employees.

Trustees were informed of an agreement between the college and Johnson Controls, Inc. as to their energy contract. Johnson Controls has agreed to retrofit 607

Airport rules hearing is slated this evening

Scurry County commissioners, trying to get new airport rules and regulations airborne in an effort to promote economic development, hope tonight's public hearing will give them the go-ahead to take off.

The hearing is set for 7 o'clock in the county courtroom.

A key issue in the proposed rules has been whether to require free-lance operators who work at Winston Field to carry liability insurance. Some pilots have voiced concern that forcing free-lance operators to carry insurance will drive costs up and cause delays in repairs. The central question that has been posed however, is whether the county could be held liable for work performed by an uninsured free-lance operator. Commissioners reviewed the proposed rules Monday and heard from local pilot and farmer David Shifflett. Shifflett questioned many of the proposed rules as not being applicable to the county airport.

Daryl Calley also addressed the commissioners Monday and told the court that the insurance problem was his big concern also. "I am just ready to get the matter settled," said Calley.

Commissioners also met this morning to open bids for insurance plans for employees of Scurry County.

County Judge Bob Doolittle said the plans will be placed on a spreadsheet for comparison and placed on the agenda at a later meeting. Some nine bids were received by the commissioners.

Snyder individual named unindicted co-conspirator

LUBBOCK — An indictment unsealed Monday in U.S. District Court has named a Snyder man as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Charged in the indictment unsealed Monday was Gregory Todd Blair, operator of Big Leroy's Auto Parts in Houston. The indictment includes one count of conspiracy and seven counts of receiving stolen property transported across state lines.

The indictment said the Houston man was part of a multi-million automobile parts scheme. Named as co-conspirators were Charles McClurg, owner of McClurg's Auto Parts in Snyder, and Lupe Munguia, owner of Lupe's Body Shop in Odessa.

Federal prosecutor Denise Williams in Lubbock said McClurg and Munguia were identified in the indictments as co-conspirators, but she did not expect either of them to face criminal charges.

The investigation dates to 1992 when federal authorities seized records and six gear boxes from the Snyder establishment.

The six gear boxes were suspected to be auto parts stolen from a Ford Motor Company assembly plant in Ohio. Several persons have already been tried and convicted in Ohio, Williams said.

The indictment says McClurg sold some $244,000 in parts to Blair between March and October of 1991. Value of the parts was estimated at $3 million.

The indictment said the Odessa man was in contact with parties in Ohio who were stealing the parts from the assembly plant.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "About the only satisfactory substitute for brains is silence."

It wasn't confined to the Lone Star state. The recent elections had their strange twists everywhere.

In Texas, Treasurer Martha Whitehead ran for re-election with the promise not only to abolish her job, but to do away with the entire agency. Her ads said: "Fewer bureaucrats, less waste, starting with me."

Other kamikaze candidates included a hopeful for tax assessor in Montana who said: "Elect me. I'll resign." A candidate for county commissioner said he is fed up with being an elected official, but it was too late to get off the ballot. He campaigned by saying: "If people are foolish enough to vote for me when I don't want to serve...I will resign."

It was more personal in Alaska. The Republican, who is bald, attacked his Democratic opponent for having "good hair" like President Clinton.

Gun control was an issue everywhere. The Democratic candidate for governor of Maine, a former Army veteran, campaigned by telling about his competence with machine guns and bazookas, adding he had "more experience with firearms than any other candidate." Bet the guy could be pretty persuasive.

A Republican candidate for congress in Hawaii gets the award for running the cleanest campaign. He offered no personal attacks and made no promises. In fact, the guy announced and then disappeared.

He is believed to be alive and well, taking in the sun somewhere on a cruise ship. Ole Claytie could have used that campaign strategy four years ago.

Three members of the Snyder Rotary Club took school supplies deep into Mexico this fall. Dr. John Best, Brandy Hickman and Police Chief Lannie Lee gave a report to the club.

They discovered one interesting election tradition there. If an elected official has failed to make good on campaign promises by the end of his term, the official doesn't get to run for re-election. Instead, he goes to jail.

Would-be successors vie for Simon's spot

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Paul Simon won't seek re-election in 1996, saying he wants to leave politics before he loses enthusiasm for the job and doesn't welcome the fund raising needed for another campaign.

"I have an obligation to the people of Illinois, to the Senate and to myself to leave the Senate while I am still eager to serve, not after I tire of serving," the 65-year-old Democrat said at a news conference Monday.

Known for his bow ties and New Deal liberalism, Simon would be ending four decades in Illinois politics when his second Senate term expires.

"I enjoy politics. I enjoy cam-paing. I enjoy policymaking. I do not enjoy fund raising," Simon said. He said he would need $6 million to $10 million for a 1996 race and would have to spend a third of his time raising it.

Simon said the Republican sweep in last week's elections was not a factor in his decision, adding that he believes the Senate needs "people who believe we have problems the government can help."

Simon, who ran for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1988, said he has no definite plans. He said he might go into teaching or head a foundation.

Adoptive parents get Baby Richard until court rules

CHICAGO (AP) — A judge ruled Monday that 3 1/2-year-old Baby Richard will remain with his adoptive parents until there is a ruling in his custody case.

The couple with whom the boy has lived since he was days old this month lost a court battle over the legality of their adoption. The Illinois Supreme Court ruled last week that the biological father, Otakar Kirchner, had been improperly denied his parental rights.

Circuit Court Judge Stephen R. Yates set trial for Dec. 5.

Meanwhile, lawyers on both sides are working to set up a visitation schedule for Kirchner, who has never seen the boy.

Low fat diets OK for kids

DALLAS (AP) — Sensible low-fat diets can reduce children's cholesterol levels without risk of stunting their growth, a new study concludes.

Federal health experts recommend that all youngsters over age 2 watch the amount of fat they eat, especially those with high cholesterol levels in their blood.

However, many pediatricians are concerned that withholding calorie-rich fat may slow growth and keep youngsters from becoming as tall as they normally would.

To help settle the question, the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute launched the Dietary Intervention Study in Children at six hospitals across the country. It is the first major study to examine whether cholesterol-lowering diets are safe and effective for young people.

The results, released Monday at a meeting of the American Heart Association, suggest these diets do indeed work without sacrificing growth.

"There has been concern that a low-cholesterol diet in children will make them healthy but stunted. Now we have evidence that's not true," said Dr. David McCall of the University of Texas in San Antonio.

The study involved boys and girls ages 7 to 10. All had relatively high levels of LDL, the so-called bad cholesterol that is closely linked with heart disease.

Doctors randomly assigned 334 volunteers to follow a low-fat diet. Their families were put through an intense program that involved group and individual counseling sessions. They were taught how to shop for certain foods and cook low-fat meals.

For comparison, children from 329 families were given general diet information packets but no special instructions.

During the three-year study period, youngsters in the diet group lowered their fat consumption from 34 percent of their total daily calories to 28 percent. Those in the comparison group only dropped their fat consumption to 32 percent.

All the children's LDL levels averaged 131 when the study started. During the follow up, LDL levels fell in both groups, as normally happens when youngsters reach puberty. However, the decrease was three points greater in the dieting children.

Levels of HDL, the good cholesterol that protects against heart trouble, were not significantly different in the two groups.

Furthermore, the doctors saw no difference in the children's growth. Both groups shot up an average of eight inches during the three years.

Dear Abby

Retired Couple's Budget Means More Bang From Holiday Buck

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband will be retired at Christmastime this year. We will then be on a fixed, limited budget, and our Christmas funds will be much smaller than in the past.

We have eight grown sons and daughters, and 15 grandchildren. The grandchildren are now getting married, so there will be wedding gifts to buy.

Our children protested the suggestion of putting everyone's name in a hat, then everybody buying a gift only for the person whose name he or she draws.

Some of our children ask for cash instead of gifts. We have even been asked, "How much will you and Dad be giving us for Christmas this year?" And, "May I have it now so I can buy what I want?"

A couple of our grandchildren have already come over to get their money and gifts, and we probably won't see them again until it's their birthdays.

We had some big medical bills this year, and my husband's retirement benefits nowhere compare to his former salary. I said, "Let's forget the Christmas gifts this year — Dad and I want to invite the entire family out for a nice Christmas dinner." That idea was voted down. Do you have any suggestions, Abby? We are already ...

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: Yes. I think you and your husband should treat yourselves to a nice trip somewhere; then telephone your children and wish them a Merry Christmas. And don't come home until you're good and ready.

DEAR ABBY: As an electrical engineer, I must take exception to your answer to "A Young Widow" concerning the tragic death of her husband who was killed when he touched a "live" electrical wire while standing in a swimming pool.

The electrical installation had absolutely nothing to do with it. The accident would have occurred in these circumstances even if the installation had been done by the very best of electricians.

Your answer should have been: "Never touch anything that carries electricity — be it a wire, connector, appliance or other equipment — while any part of your body is in water. It does not have to be a swimming pool or bathtub; standing on wet, or even damp, ground is enough because the current will always flow to the ground — even if it has to do so through your body."

G.P. SCHUCK-KOLBEN, WEST COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR G.P. SCHUCK-KOLBEN: Thank you for pointing out what I should have figured out — but failed to do so.

DEAR ABBY: In your response to "Humiliated," you said, "It is inappropriate for fathers to tell their daughters dirty jokes."

Abby, isn't it just as inappropriate for fathers to tell their sons dirty jokes?

What's the difference? KRIS GRAVEN, FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.

DEAR KRIS: Very little, actually. But assuming there are degrees of impropriety, it would seem more inappropriate for fathers to tell their daughters dirty jokes.

DEAR ABBY: Do you have room for one more "udder" story?

A bee flew into a cow's ear. The next day, it showed up in the milk can.

A simple case of "in one ear and out the udder." MILLIE CLECKLER, HOUMA, LA.

The book of the card

By Phillip Alder

Would you like to try duplicate but don't fancy the trauma of completing the convention card? Have you tried duplicate bridge but been put off by trying to decipher everyone's convention card, including your own? Do you wonder about some of those conventions mentioned on the card? If so, a book has been published that will make your life much more pleasant. "Everyone's Guide to the New Convention Card" by Marty Bergen ($12.95, Natco Press, 181 Longhill Road, Bldg. I-6, Little Falls, NJ 07424) describes how to complete the card and includes brief descriptions of the most common methods you will encounter when playing in North America. The book ends with some useful information about playing in a duplicate, like the requirement to make the opening lead face-down and the alert and skip-bid procedures. There is also a glossary.

Today's deal features two unusual conventions! It starts with Stayman and moves into Blackwood.

South won the opening club-queen lead in the dummy, cashed the heart ace and took the heart finesse. However, West won with the queen and flashed back his last heart. Now declarer couldn't win more than 11 tricks.

The trump finesse was a mirage. South should have cashed two rounds of trumps with the ace and king before embarking on a crossruff. He wins three spades, two top hearts, two diamonds, two clubs and three ruffs, West overruffing once.

Ellis gives BSP paper art program

Dena-Ellis, member of Xi Alpha Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, presented a program on Scherenschnette at the sorority meeting held Nov. 1 in the community room at Snyder National Bank.

Ellis gave a brief history on the folk art, explaining that through the centuries, the art of paper-cutting has been found in many cultures. The earliest cuttings were found in the Orient even before the first century. As trade increased into European countries, the folk art emerged there as well. The German settlers brought this art to Colonial Pennsylvania during the 17-18th centuries. She said that because it was a craft which could use and preserve the scarce supply of paper in a beautiful way, the art of Scherenschnette became and remains a notable Pennsylvania Dutch folk art.

In addition, she said that Scherenschnette is the cutting of paper into decorations including silhouettes; gift cards and gift embellishments; Christmas decorations; pantry, shelf and mantle paper and doilies and placemats. Scherenschnette means scissors cutting in German.

As she displayed samples of her work, she explained how each one was cut. Following, members tried their hand at the folk art.

The business meeting was conducted by Marie Boone, president. Treasurer Norma Cumbie reported on the recent Holiday Extravaganza.

Social chairman Jackie Buckland announced that the November social would be a couple's Thanksgiving dinner Nov. 19 in the home of Carolyn and Howard Limmer.

Debbie Harrington was welcomed as a new member. Patricia Warren read from the Book of Beta Sigma Phi, and the meeting adjourned with the closing ritual and mizpah.

Quills of a new-born porcupine are soft enough to touch, but they turn into a prickly coat within about four hours.

Ice Cube sued

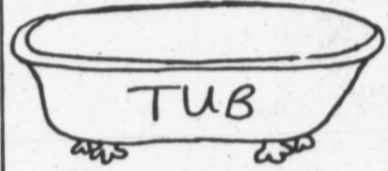

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rap star Ice Cube is being sued by six men who claim they wrote a hit song with him and are still owed part of the profits.

Their lawsuit, filed Tuesday, claims they helped Ice Cube, whose real name is O'Shea Jackson, write "Wicked," a hit song on his 1992 album "Predator."

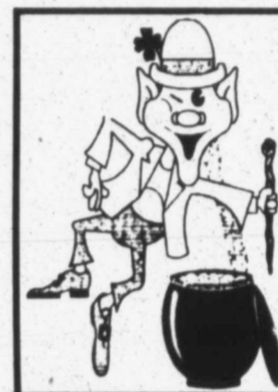

Lee Young, a lawyer representing Ice Cube, did not return a phone call seeking comment.

The six claim they had an oral agreement with Ice Cube to produce and supply the instrumental part of the song.

Dr. Gott by Peter Gott, M.D.

What causes trouble concentrating?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I find I have trouble concentrating on one task at a time. I begin a new project before finishing the old one. I constantly fidget. Is it possible that I suffer from adult attention deficit disorder?

DEAR READER: Without question. Attention deficit disorder has received a great deal of recent publicity because, according to experts, it affects many children and adults, in whom it causes distractibility, poor learning, frustration, an inability to persevere, and other symptoms.

Unfortunately, there is no test to diagnose ADD; the condition is suspected in children who have difficulty adjusting to school and in adults who exhibit impulsiveness and have trouble concentrating.

Because the full spectrum of ADD has been discovered only within the last few years, traditional medical practitioners are not always versed in its recognition. In addition, the symptoms of ADD often mimic those of depression, anxiety and high-stress states.

I believe that your best resource would be a neurologist; such a specialist can, if circumstances warrant, refer you for ADD psychometrics, a type of true/false questionnaire that may indicate the probability of your having the disorder. If you have ADD, you may be helped by the prescription drug Ritalin.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a male in my mid 50s. I've developed an intermittent rectal discharge that varies from barely being felt to enough to spot my underwear. The discharge usually is accompanied by an itch. Please write a few words on the cause and potential seriousness of this condition.

DEAR READER: Fecal incontinence is a troublesome and embarrassing problem that you should address with your family physician. Although you may be leaking pus from your rectum (indicating an infection), you are more likely to be expelling tiny quantities of liquid stool that irritate the sensitive skin around the anus.

Such an event can result from poor sphincter control, hemorrhoids, an unwillingness to move your bowels when appropriate, or the simple distractions we all experience from time to time when we focus on other priorities. For example, older people often experience gas that is expelled (with fecal leakage) at unwanted times.

The doctor will certainly examine you and may choose to perform flexible sigmoidoscopy, an office procedure to examine the lower colon and rectum.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Constipation and Diarrhea." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Many drug rehab prisons will be converted to ease crowding

AUSTIN (AP) — Several of the new substance abuse rehabilitation prisons are being converted into more secure lockups to house higher-risk criminals that are backed up in county jails.

The cost to convert the facilities, many of which are under construction, could go as high as $6 million, the Austin American-Statesman reported Monday.

Prison officials say the move won't derail the drug and alcohol treatment initiative that had been touted as a major step in stopping the cycle of crime.

And, they said, it will save the state millions of dollars in reimbursement payments to counties that are housing state felons in local jails.

"We always thought all of the substance abuse beds wouldn't be filled right from the start," said Andy Collins, executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

"We're simply increasing the security design so we can hold other types of inmates there" in the short term, he said.

"I don't think anybody would want us to have (prison) beds sitting there empty," he said.

The Legislature in 1991 authorized the construction of 12,000 beds for intensive substance abuse treatment.

Of the 12,000 beds, sites for 10,600 have been selected, officials said. Of those, 9,000 were to be housed in separate lockups and 1,600 were to be phased in as separate programs in existing prisons. Sites for another 1,400 beds haven't been chosen, officials said.

Of the 9,000 beds, 6,000 beds located in eight prisons are to be "enhanced" to hold other convicts.

Those changes include installation of 12-foot-tall perimeter fencing topped with razor wire, additional security lighting, electronic door locks and the enclosure of guard desks in chain link fencing to withstand a riot.

Lawmakers never fully funded the treatment programs planned for 12,000 beds because not all were expected to be opened immediately, the American-Statesman reported.

In September, a state study projected that only 7,200 intensive therapy beds would be needed by 1996.

Even before the report, prison agency records show that "enhancement" of the drug treatment prisons had been under study since May. After months of negotiations with contractors to change the design, officials said, the first conversion was ordered in late September.

Powell due honor

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Retired Gen. Colin Powell will be collecting two honors next month during a visit to Jamaica, the birthplace of his parents.

The Jamaican government announced plans Monday to award Powell the Order of Jamaica, its equivalent of knighthood.

Study: few addicts on welfare get required treatment, recover

WASHINGTON (AP) — For low-income drug addicts and alcoholics, the surest way to get crossed off the federal disability rolls is to die or go to jail. Only 1 percent ever recover or get a job, according to a government study.

The report, by the inspector general at the Department of Health and Human Services, is a devastating portrait of the government's failure to make sure substance abusers are in treatment as a condition of collecting a monthly disability check.

More than 80,000 drug addicts and alcoholics receive benefits under Supplemental Security Income, a welfare program run by the Social Security Administration for the elderly and disabled that pays a maximum of $446 a month.

Fewer than 10 percent of substance abusers are in treatment, and Social Security does not even know the treatment status of most of the rest, the HHS report said.

Earlier studies by the General Accounting Office and the Republican staff of the Senate Special Committee on Aging found that addicts were squandering their checks on drugs and alcohol, sometimes to the point of overdose and death, because of inadequate supervision.

The latest look at the problem finds that death is the most common reason addicts and alcoholics are dropped from the SSI rolls and that many substance abusers collect benefits for years. Investigators identified 510 who have been receiving SSI since the program was first launched in 1974.

For their study, the investigators tracked 20,101 recipients who were on the rolls in June 1990. Nearly four years later, as of February 1994, 76 percent — a total of 15,271 — were still on SSI. On average, they had been collecting benefits for 7.4 years.

Of the remaining 4,830 who were not receiving SSI, half had died.

An additional 399 were dropped because they refused treatment, 370 were in jail or another public institution and 197, just 1 percent of the overall total, had recovered their health or found a job. The rest had obtained other benefits or been removed for other reasons, investigators said.

Astro-graph By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Nov. 16, 1994

Don't just talk about your ideas in the year ahead, put them to work for you. The results could be more than worth the initial effort to get the ball rolling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might face an unusual amount of opposition. If this is the case, there is probably a good reason for it. Examine and correct your behavior. Scorpio, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your attitude could make assignments unnecessarily complicated. Lighten up and try to see the positive aspects in your tasks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone with whom you share a mutual dislike may be in your circle of friends today. Avoid this person. Nothing will be resolved and old wounds might be reopened.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today, try not to tease someone who is important to your future. You may come off as rude and abrasive, and he/she might not laugh it off.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you talk to a person you don't respect about a matter concerning you, keep an open mind. He/She might surprise you today and teach you something valuable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your jealousy of friends is self-defeating. It could be particularly destructive today because you may want to say something you'll regret.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you want to have your way today, leave plenty of room for others to do the same. If you don't show a little empathy, your usual supporters may decide to throw tacks in your tracks.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Resist lazy inclinations today. Do not try to delegate your responsibilities; those you ask may say no. Don't try to sweep everything under a rug, either; you're not fooling anybody.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Let the majority rule today. If your ideas differ from your friends', be flexible and try to follow their lead.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your support system might not be as solid as you think today. It could be surprisingly easy to alienate your friends, so don't rock the boat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Chart a course for today or you may find yourself running around in circles. A wasted day is more than likely if you don't plan ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be wary of your financial judgment today. The shots you may be tempted to call could be disastrous.
