

O.J.'s defense may not fight evidence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nothing seems to agitate O.J. Simpson more than the threat of his murder trial dragging on.

Several times during the two months of jury selection, when somebody suggested that testimony could last well into spring, Simpson shook his head, rolled his eyes or buried his face in his hands.

Simpson's anxiety over lingering in jail could play a role in a defense motion to scale back its challenge to DNA evidence, the crux of the prosecution's case, a legal analyst said.

"Maybe he thinks it's a losing battle," said Stan Goldman, a professor at Loyola Law School. "Simpson's probably screaming, screaming about the money, screaming about spending six weeks doing this, saying, 'Let's just get to trial.'"

Goldman figures a full DNA challenge would cost Simpson an extra $500,000.

The defense had been gearing up for an aggressive assault on DNA. It hired the nation's top lawyers in the field and filed a voluminous motion that attacks genetic evidence as unreliable.

After a closed meeting Monday with lawyers, Superior Court Judge Lance Ito told the jurors to come back Jan. 4.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Dec. 14, 1994

In the year ahead, you will establish relationships with idealistic and compassionate persons. The collective goodwill of your social circle may be raised to new heights.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your intuition can provide insights into financial dealings today that escaped your logic. However, use both. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Solutions to difficult problems might come more easily to you than to your associates today. Be confident in your answers even if they aren't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can work wonders today doing charity work. Before reaching out to strangers, though, take a good look at your family to see who needs a little extra help.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Getting out and circulating today will make you feel better, but leaving your easy chair may prove no easy task.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might be in store for some pleasant surprises today, especially materially. Without having to be a Scrooge you may end up with a bundle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Thinking imaginatively or philosophically will be tremendously rewarding today. Use your mental faculties to the fullest.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends will repay your past kindness by helping you through a difficult situation. It's a matter of give and take.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you'll feel more comfortable with sensitive friends than you will with aggressive types. You are too vulnerable at this time to be with self-serving people.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Deviating from your ideals today as you work toward a goal will not expedite matters, it will invite failure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will seem very charismatic today. The attention you receive will be unusually keen, regardless of where you make an appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today your creative touch will be quite evident in even your most mundane endeavors. Others will easily discern your efforts from imitators.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) One of your best assets today is your ability to interpret the true intentions of others even when they say one thing and mean another.

Smith indicted on murder charges in deaths of sons

UNION, S.C. (AP) — Susan Smith is already serving a sentence of her own creation, tormented by the memory of her sons' deaths, so the fact that she now faces capital murder charges isn't her biggest concern, her lawyer said.

"The prospect of an early death is not what is causing Susan such pain right now. It is life that hurts her," attorney David Bruck said after a grand jury indicted the 23-year-old mother on murder charges Monday.

Mrs. Smith is accused of rolling her car down a boat ramp into a lake on Oct. 25, drowning her two small boys as they lay strapped in their car seats.

The case drew nationwide attention after she claimed that 3-year-old Michael and 14-month-old Alex were kidnapped in a carjacking. She made several tearful appeals on national television for their safe return before confessing nine days later that she had drowned them.

Mrs. Smith, who was separated from the boys' father, said in her confession that she contemplated suicide before pushing the car into the lake. She said she was depressed after another man told her he was not ready for a family.

Bruck would not comment on Mrs. Smith's confession or details of the case. He said she spends her days looking at photographs of the boys, praying for them and crying. At night, her sleep is filled with nightmares.

"I think it's fair to say that the full horror of what has happened is bearing down on her now," Bruck said.

A decision on whether to seek the death penalty has been put off until after the holidays out of courtesy to Mrs. Smith's family, prosecutor Tommy Pope said.

Fashion, opera merges on stage

LONDON (AP) — Italian fashion is joining with a Mozart opera on the London stage.

Giorgio Armani will make his first venture into opera by designing costumes for an updated version of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte," to be directed by Jonathan Miller, the Royal Opera House said recently.

"Jonathan Miller has devised an original and elegant way to present 'Cosi fan tutte' for us in London and then in Rome, which cried out for coolly elegant Italian costumes," said Nicholas Payne of the Royal Opera.

The production's international mix will include two American singers, mezzo-soprano Susan Graham and tenor Bruce Ford.

Opening night is Jan. 18. After eight performances, the production is to move to Rome.

If you were going to commission a portrait, would you strike a deal like Oliver Cromwell's? He said to the artist, "Mr. Lely, I desire you would use all your skill to paint my picture truly like me, and not flatter me at all; but remark all these roughnesses, pimples, warts and everything as you see me, otherwise I will never pay a farthing for it."

In bridge, you build pictures in your mind's eye of the layout of the missing cards. The more accurate the picture, the more likely you are to find the best play. In today's deal, though, West missed a chance to paint an inaccurate picture in declarer's mind.

North's two-heart cue-bid showed the black suits. South's double promised values. Spades were agreed; then there was a lot of cue-bidding. After South's redouble, showing a first-round heart control, North did too much bidding. If South had the K-Q of spades and the club king, she would bid seven.

Declarer won the first trick with the heart ace and led a spade to dummy's jack. The spade ace brought down the king. Back to hand with a trump, declarer played a club to dummy's jack. When that held and the king appeared under the ace, declarer claimed her grand slam.

West was left to rue a missed opportunity. As South surely held the spade queen, suppose West had played the spade king at trick two. Wouldn't declarer, picturing this as a singleton, win with dummy's ace and finesse her

Bell's palsy calls for testing

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter has developed Bell's palsy for the second time. Should she be taking medicine to prevent further damage?

DEAR READER: Although the cause of Bell's palsy (paralyzed muscles on one side of the face) is usually obscure, cannot be diagnosed, and is untreatable, in some cases the disorder is caused by a viral infection, a tumor or Lyme disease (a type of bacterial infection).

In my opinion, your daughter needs testing, such as a CT scan and appropriate blood tests, to identify a treatable cause for the recurring palsy. I suggest that your family physician refer her to a neurologist for the necessary examinations.

It's important for your daughter to get to the bottom of this issue before permanent paralysis ensues. For example, cortisone may remedy a virus infection, surgery may be necessary for a tumor, or antibiotics will cure Lyme disease.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a hiatal hernia and have been prescribed five medications for reflux. My family doctor has given me hydrocodone in the past for this and now says he won't prescribe a sixth medicine for control of the severe pain. How, then, am I supposed to take care of the intense discomfort I suffer?

DEAR READER: I'm puzzled why your pain is so resistant to medication. Hiatal hernia may be associated with reflux — the painful backwash of gastric acid into the lower esophagus — which almost always can be controlled by drugs, such as Prilosec, that reduce the production of acid.

In my opinion, you should forego the fruitless odyssey of searching for an analgesic. Instead, you should focus on the diagnosis of your pain.

First, you need a gastroenterologist. Such a specialist will perform endoscopy, a test to examine your esophagus and stomach to determine if more than a hiatal hernia is present.

For example, you could have an ulcer that resists therapy or the continuing irritation of the reflux may have produced a condition known as Barrett's esophagus, pre-malignant changes in the cells lining this organ.

Second, as you may know, cardiac pain — notably heart-muscle spasm called "angina" — often mimics the pain of reflux, and — for obvious reasons — is treated differently, with nitroglycerine, for instance.

Therefore, you should have a stress test, too. Your family physician can coordinate this, in conjunction with a referral to a gastroenterologist. Let me know what the doctors conclude.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Hiatal Hernia" and "Understanding Heart Disease." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. FDA OKs some adult drugs for children without tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pharmaceutical companies may soon sell drugs for pediatric use without doing special research to prove the medicine will be as safe and effective in children as in adults.

The Food and Drug Administration is trying to end a stalemate that has drug companies refusing to do pediatric research and pediatricians using their drugs anyway without any guidance on dosage or side effects.

"We have a duty to our children," said FDA Commissioner David Kessler, who was unveiling new pediatric drug labeling regulations today. "We can get the information we need to treat our children safely and effectively if we think creatively and are willing to commit resources to the challenge."

The FDA has required intensive pediatric trials before drugs are labeled for child use, research that is so expensive and difficult that few companies do it.

About 80 percent of prescription drugs sold in this country never get formal approval for children's use, yet pediatricians prescribe some of those drugs for children every day with no guidance on proper use.

The new regulations say certain adult drugs can skip the pediatric trials. Those eligible are for diseases that afflict children just as they do adults, and must provide basic safety data such as blood-chemical research that predicts children's bodies will treat the drug as adults' do.

The FDA is ordering manufacturers to re-examine their prescription drugs and within two years submit applications to change the labeling on any that may fall under the new regulation. Not every drug will pass the test for pediatric use and some companies may still be ordered to do clinical trials, said FDA's Bob Temple.

But the regulation doesn't require enough proof to ensure children will never suffer side effects surprisingly different that those adults get, said Dr. Sidney Wolfe of the consumer group Public Citizen.

"It's a tough thing and I understand what they're trying to do," Wolfe said. "But this is a risky proposition."

He noted that certain drugs have very different reactions in children. Aspirin can give some children Reye's syndrome, and the antihistamines that cause drowsiness in adults can make children hyperactive.

"A child is not just a fraction of an adult ... who gets a smaller dose," Wolfe said. "The risk might be more serious in a child. If you don't collect the information, you won't know that."

The theme of "A New World Christmas," was to bring ideals from Christmas past to the children of Christmas future. Circuit judge clears way for tobacco class action lawsuit

MIAMI (AP) — Thousands of flight attendants who say their health was damaged by second-hand smoke inside planes can band together in a class-action lawsuit against tobacco companies, a judge ruled.

A $5 billion lawsuit filed by 30 flight attendants can be expanded to include up to 60,000 attendants who say the smoke injured their health, Dade County Circuit Judge Robert Kaye ruled Monday.

Kaye's decision is the first in the nation to allow a class-action against tobacco companies on behalf of non-smokers.

"Some of the flight attendants developed lung cancer as a result of their exposure to secondhand smoke, many others have sinus, bronchial and all kinds of respiratory diseases," said their lawyer, Stanley Rosenblatt.

The defendants include American Brands, the American Tobacco Co., Brooke Group Ltd., Liggett Group, Loews Corp., Lorillard Inc., Philip Morris and RJR Nabisco.

The class-action status "is a tremendous step in terms of protecting those in the airline industry, and it is a significant step in protecting the rights and needs of non-smokers," Sherri Watson, a lobbyist for the American Lung Association, told The New York Times.

Tobacco companies "think the decision is wrong and it will be overturned on appeal," said Charles P. Wall, associate general counsel for Philip Morris. He said the industry is considering appealing to the Florida Supreme Court.
