Water plant proposal sent back for revision

Engineers from the firm of Freese and Nichols presented the Snyder City Council three proposals Monday night to upgrade the city's water treatment plant but they were sent back to Fort Worth

'Broadway Revue' auditions tonight

Auditions for the Ritz spring musical, "A Broadway Revue," are scheduled tonight and Thursday in the Snyder High School choir room.

Auditions will be held from 7 until 9 both evenings.

Fifteen or 16 vocalists, both male and female, are needed. No advance preparation is necessary, but those auditioning will be asked to do some ensemble and solo exercises and/or numbers.

The "Revue" is scheduled for performances at Martha Ann Woman's Club on Feb. 24-26 and March 2-3 and 5.

Melanie Smith, SHS choir director, will direct the production. For additional information concerning auditions, call her at 573-5283 after 4 p.m.

with instructions for even additional revisions.

The three plans presented carried price tags ranging from $2.25 million to $4.55 million.

Freese and Nichols engineer Leonard Ripley told the council the plant needs upgrading for basically three reasons: to remove Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission sanctions against the present plant; to improve the plant's reliability; and to develop a long term plan for future expansion of the city's water needs.

Ripley said the present plant is designed to treat four million gallons per day but had, in fact, exceeded that capacity many times in the past year.

Ripley said the city's capacity should be 5.4 million gallons per day based on present customer usage but the TNRC says the city should be able to treat six million gallons.

Of the three options presented last night, the city council seemed to favor the plan that would treat six million gallons of water daily at a plant improvement cost of $2.25 million. But they also liked some of the features in the plant designed to treat nine million gallons at a construction cost of $3.25 million.

This prompted Mayor Paul Zeck to instruct the engineers to come up with a design that incorporated the advantages of each system and to break down the costs of the individual improvements.

"Give it to us cafeteria style," said the mayor. "We like parts of plan one and three but we would like to see the steps that take us between the first alternative and the third alternative."

The engineers said option one basically modifies the existing plant to treat six million gallons per day (MGD) and only solves short-term plant problems but would make future modification/expansion easier. The cost would be $2.25 million with a construction time of 19 months.

The third alternative presented, which the Freese and Nichols engineers said was their recommendation, would carry a price tag of $3.25 and would treat nine MGD. Advantages listed included overall improved performance, lower operating and maintenance costs and the maximum return on the city's investment.

It would require 23 months to complete and one of the major disadvantages would be that if the city's water usage declined, the plant would see limited usage.

A revised plan is expected to be ready by the February council meeting at which time the city will also consider financing for the proposed improvements.

Council member Jerry Webb asked Ripley if the quality of water would be improved with any of the three proposed options.

Ripley said if any changes could be noted by the consumers, they would be subtle.

"It's not going to be a deal where a consumer turns on the faucet one day and notices a big change in the taste of the water," said Ripley.

He added that the TNRC sanctions are not against the quality of water that is being produced but the treatment plant.

"It is a facility built in 1952 with 1952 technology," said the engineer.

The council gave its approval to construct crosswalks in the 5300 and 5400 blocks of Trinity Boulevard between Cogdell Memorial Hospital and the medical offices on the west side of that street.

The action came in response to a request by Cogdell Hospital staff due to the increased amount of foot traffic in the area. The hospital said it will reimburse the city for any expenses incurred in constructing the walk areas. The estimated cost is between $700 and $900.

On a split vote, the council also voted to pay TU Electric $1,054.20 yearly to install metal poles, lights and lines along a portion of the Deep Creek walking path.

Carolyn House, director of customer services, told the council the lighting would be installed along the walking path between 30th Street and College Avenue and also in the parking area where Neff's Nursery was located.

Councilman Kenny Gambrell stated he would like to see how much the walking path is used this summer before spending any money on it.

Noting that donations and labor from the Price Daniel Unit have been responsible for improvements along Deep Creek, councilman Ron Shaw stated, "the community has a lot invested in the project, I would hate to see the project vandalized because of no lighting in the area."

Councilman Dayton Robertson then said he would also like see how often the path is used this

Lighting, livestock bids accepted

Meeting less than an hour Monday night, Western Texas College trustees formally approved bids for lighting and livestock and heard reports on topics ranging from Carl Perkins funds to elevator repair.

Formal approval of a $14,515 bid from Universe Stage Lighting of New York was granted for stage lighting equipment in the Fine Arts Theatre. The board had approved the bid by a telephone poll in December. Monday's vote made that official.

The board also approved the purchase of 25 Corriente steers at $460 a head, delivered. The steers will serve as roping stock in the WTC NIRA Rodeo this spring and then will be used for practice before being sold in about two years. The total bid was $11,500, from Harrell Cattle Co.

Trustees accepted, with regret, the resignation of Jerry Baird, who will retire Jan. 31 as director of the Senior Center. Baird was a member of the original faculty at WTC and has served more than 25 years.

To fill the position, Norma Laywell will serve as interim director for the remainder of the school year and part-time secretary Carla Thompson will become a full-time secretary.

In other business, the board approved a proposal from May and Hrbacek to conduct the annual audit for the years 1995-97 at a cost of $9,950 per year, and approved the financial report and previous minutes.

In a report to the board, Dean of Instruction Bettie McQueen noted that while WTC is currently receiving more Carl Perkins funds than ever, some $103,000, that amount will be severely cut next school year.

Perkins funds are determined by the number of Pell Grant recipients taking classes at the community college. However, the college has received notice from the federal government that state prison inmates will no longer be eligible for Pell Grants or Carl Perkins funds as of Sept. 1.

McQueen said about 110 student inmates receive Carl Perkins funds per semester, with funds amounting to $25,000 to $30,000. She pointed out that because student inmates will be taking fewer courses, due to a lack of funds, the college's enrollment will be down and therefore state funding to the college will also suffer.

Other qualifying students will continue to remain eligible for Pell Grants and Carl Perkins funds. McQueen called Carl Perkins funds a "good recruiting tool" which also helps those who are economically disadvantaged. During the fall semester, the funds provided gasoline, tutoring, supplies and childcare for students who otherwise could not afford them.

Mike Thornton, dean of continuing education, reported on the first quarter of adult vocational education. He noted that the department had 33 courses involving 744 students. Tuition and fees were $101,716.80. Total contact hours were 50,935, resulting in some $138,543 in state funding.

Gay Hickman, vice president for business and finance, reported on concrete cart paths at the golf (See COLLEGE, Page 8)

WORKSHOP PLANNED — Snyder High School will host a financial aid workshop for students and their parents Thursday at 7 p.m. in the student center. Providing information will be Dennis Carlton from WTC and a financial aid

The SDN Column

The feller on Deep Creek says, "People do strange things — like spending a lot of time making money and a lot of money killing time."

It's always hard in January, writing the correct year on those checks.

For some this January, the transition may be even more difficult as some may resist giving up their 1994 calendars.

It was a wrenching announcement. Snap-on Tools will no longer make those X-rated calendars that sometimes adorned the back rooms of auto repair shops.

After 12 years of chee-secake, the tool maker has toned down the girly calendar, but it still expects to distribute 1.2 million of the milder version this year.

In an effort to be politically correct, we are awaiting word on whether Sports Illustrated will continue its annual swimsuit edition.

So far, we're doing pretty good writing the proper year — thanks to our gummy calendars from insurance man Ernie Sears. Just like me and Ernie — they are plain vanilla, not even a drawing of a White Buffalo.

The boys at the coffee shop, including Ernie, were talking about changing to the fast lane in 1995.

Harold Denson said about the closest that anybody in that bunch would get to living in the fast lane was a three-minute car wash or a 10-minute oil change.

You may have already received your Infernal Revenue Service instruction booklet. Makes great night-time reading, but can anyone understand it?

The General Accounting Office has criticized the IRS, saying notices to taxpayers sometimes read as though they were written by the same people who write computer manuals.

Specifically, the agency has cited "clarity concerns" with 31 of the 47 most commonly-used IRS notices that were reviewed.

However, one line is always easy to understand — "pay this amount."

And they'll cash your check — regardless of when it's dated.

Accused killer thought he was an angel

HOUSTON (AP) — An Austin man accused of enslaving two teen-agers and killing one of them told neighbors he wanted "to encourage people to believe in Jesus."

For the last few years, Jose Fonseca Najera dressed as the archangel St. Michael during Christmastime and preached his message from a cloud-shaped stage between two 10-foot-high pink pillars in front of his home.

Najera, 40, would stand under a spotlight in front of his home dressed in a white gown and 12-foot-high angel wings, while holding a sword and "scroll of life."

Najera told neighbors he believed he had been visited by angels and Jesus during his recovery after suffering second- and third-degree burns over 75 percent of his body.

"I don't know what kind of angel would do this to children," said Andy Saenz, a Travis County Sheriff's Department spokesman.

Najera remained jailed late Monday in the death of 16-year-old Maria Escalante in lieu of $100,000 bond. His lawyer, Joseph Turner, didn't immediately return a telephone call from The Associated Press.

Authorities last week said Najera had insisted that Miss Escalante committed suicide.

On Saturday, they said he admitted having paid to have her and a 15-year-old boy smuggled from Mexico to Texas and to sexually and physically abusing the girl. He's charged with murder and sexual assault.

Investigators said they are in the "very early beginnings" of the investigation and said they know of at least two other teen-age girls who worked for Najera.

"I think what we will find is over a period of several years there were teen-agers who were farmed out for work or worked for a period of time doing odds and ends," Saenz said. "We would never have found out anything about the operation except for the death of this little girl."

The boy told investigators the girl was forced to have sex with Najera "at least two times." During one incident last month the two teens were forced to perform sex acts together while Najera took photographs, investigators said.

Investigators said the two also were forced to do chores for Najera and endured bizarre torture.

On Jan. 3, investigators said, the teens were doused with water and told to stay outside in the cold. According to court records, they were being punished for trying to take bread from the Najera kitchen after being deprived of food for about a week.

The boy survived the night by using plastic bags for warmth, then was awakened the next day at 5 a.m. by Najera and told the girl had died. Investigators said Najera told the boy he "had better tell" authorities she had committed suicide.

Investigators, however, said they found Escalante's body "bruised from head to toe" and they didn't believe Najera's account.

Then, the story unraveled when the boy's accounts wavered and he eventually admitted to having been tortured and abused.

Dense fog in Arkansas leads to deadly nine car accident

MENIFEE, Ark. (AP) — State police say four of the five people killed in a massive pileup in fog on Interstate 40 were from Arkansas, while the fifth was a truck driver from Tennessee.

The highway is a major cross-country route that runs from Barstow, Calif., to Wilmington, N.C.

Nine vehicles — eight tractor-trailer rigs and a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. van — carrying a total of 10 people were involved in the smashup about 2 a.m. Monday, about eight miles west of Conway.

The five drivers who survived, only one of whom suffered a minor injury, were all from out of state, police said.

One of the trucks carried two men — Delbert Costa, 54, of Hackett, and Gregg Lawrence, 39, of Fort Smith — and both were killed. State police said they didn't know which of the two was at the wheel of the truck.

Troopers identified the others killed as trucker William Lewin, 48, of Searcy; trucker Donald Otto Salch, 31, of Woodboro, Texas; and telephone company employee Jeff Satterfield, 34, of Little Rock.

Trucker John Robertson, 45, of Christiana, Tenn., was treated at a Morrilton hospital and released. Four other truckers — Murrell Steakley, 52, of Rock Island, Tenn.; Jonathan Miles, 26, and Gary Bartley, 37, both of Winfield, La.; and Reginald Williams, 38, of Greenville, Miss. — were unhurt though their rigs were all involved in the accident, state police said.

Warnings delivered by citizens band radio stopped traffic behind the wreckage and kept more vehicles from plowing into the burning wreckage.

"All I could see were big balls of flames," said State Trooper

Scott Luter, the first officer at the site.

"We were coming down the road and all of a sudden we ran into a wall of fog. I hit the left lane and hit the brakes," said truck driver Walt Burns of Dublin, Va., whose truck stopped in the median.

"When we got out, all we could hear was screaming and hollering," said John Oakes of Pearisburg, Va., a passenger in Burns' truck. "They were screaming bloody murder."

Burns said he radioed to other truckers about the accident and made a futile attempt to extinguish the flames with a fire extinguisher.

"It was like taking a jackknife to a machine-gun fight. There was just nothing we could do," Burns said.

A 13-mile stretch of I-40 between Plumerville, and Conway was closed most of Monday. All the vehicles involved in the accident were westbound, but police closed the eastbound lanes so emergency equipment could reach the site.

State police spokesman Wayne Jordan said authorities were at first unaware of the telephone company van's involvement in the crash.

Knowledge of Woman's Herpes Is Spread by Violation of Trust

by Abigail Van Buren
© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I felt compelled to write after reading the letter from "Alone in Colorado," the young woman who was fearful of confiding in anyone that she had genital herpes.

I kept that embarrassing secret for 10 years, until I met a man I thought was wonderful. I trusted him, and confided that I had genital herpes — after which he assured me that he thought no less of me because of it.

We had a beautiful, intimate relationship for a year and a half, which ended abruptly on a sour note when I learned that he had spread my well-kept secret all over the office where we both worked.

I would advise anyone who has genital herpes to be very careful in whom he or she confides.

HURTING IN OMAHA

DEAR HURTING: Had your beautiful relationship been platonic, I would agree with you, but to have intimate relations with him without disclosing the fact that you had genital herpes would have been unfair and dishonest.

You did the right thing in confiding in him, but because the aftermath of a failed romance often includes heartache, embarrassment, depression and the inability to concentrate, your mistake may have been in having a romance at the place you both work.

Benjamin Franklin said (in Poor Richard's Almanack), "Fish and visitors stink in three days." Abby, am I out in left field on this matter? How does one deal with self-invited guests?

MINNESOTA MIKE

DEAR MIKE: It's easy: When people hint, suggest or are bold enough to ask if they may come to visit you for a week — take a lesson from Nancy Reagan and "just say no!"

DEAR ABBY: I went to a bridal shower for my niece last week, and after all the gifts were opened, envelopes were passed out. The hostess asked the guests to address the envelopes to themselves in order to "save the bride the trouble of addressing them!" There were only a few who refused to do it. I was one of them.

My niece said I should "get with it" — that this is the etiquette of the '90s.

Is she right? Or is my thinking outdated?

CONCERNED AUNT

DEAR CONCERNED AUNT: Your thinking is not outdated. Etiquette in the '90s hasn't changed in this regard. It is still the responsibility of the bride to send thank-you notes. And that includes addressing the envelopes.

DEAR ABBY: As a mother of twins, I was often asked, "Are they twins?"

The strangest question, however, was, "Are they both yours?"

BRENDA HAUNTE, PRESCOTT VALLEY, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: Each year about this time, my wife and I leave for Arizona — our "winter escape." We thoroughly enjoy meeting our winter friends, and our schedules are always busy.

Our problem: Some people seem to think that we're going to a warmer climate so they will have a place to visit every winter. In subtle ways, our friends suggest they need a winter break and would we mind if they came down to visit us. What can we say?

And when they're there, they love to use us as a hotel and restaurant and for transportation and entertainment. In addition to interfering with our own schedules, it becomes costly.

First Lady says she had been 'dumb and naive' on reform

NEW YORK (AP) — First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton blamed herself Monday for the failure of health-care reform last year and said she had been politically "naive and dumb." The New York Times reported.

Speaking to a group of women writers invited to lunch at the White House, Mrs. Clinton also said she is surprised by how she sometimes is perceived, the Times reported.

And she asked the writers, including Ann Landers, for some advice: how to make her public image better match her own self-image as sympathetic and complicated.

"Sometimes I read stories and hear things about me and I go 'ugh.' I wouldn't like her either," the Times quoted Mrs. Clinton as saying. "It's so unlike what I think I am or what my friends think I am."

"I can only guess that people are getting perceptions about me from things I am saying or doing in ways that don't correspond with things I am trying to get across," Mrs. Clinton told the women, who usually write about personal advice, style, gossip and the first lady's social functions. "I didn't get this whole image creation thing. I see what it can do but I'm not sure I get it. I have let other people define me."

Also at the luncheon were writers from the New York Post, the Washington Post and USA Today.

Last year, Mrs. Clinton had suggested in interviews that part of the reason for the failure of health-care reform in Congress was that a male-dominated political system had found it difficult to accept her position of authority on the issue.

The declarer enjoys a considerable advantage during the card play. To try to balance the books (as my librarian phrases it), a defender makes the opening lead. Sometimes this is critical — as in today's deal.

Note that if the declarer were on opening lead in four spades, he could draw trumps immediately, aided by the 2-2 split. Then he could cash his two top hearts and ruff a heart in the dummy, bringing down West's queen. South graciously concedes only three tricks.

However, West made the opening lead tell. He selected the diamond two, which East won with the queen. Since West had supported diamonds, East wasn't tempted to try to cash the diamond ace. Even if West had made an eccentric raise on three low diamonds, he would have led his highest diamond, not the two.

East switched to the ace and 10 of clubs. After winning with the king, West saw what was needed to defeat the contract. He led another club. And East didn't let her partner down. She ruffed with the spade queen.

South overruffed with the spade king, but now West had to win a trump trick.

The uppercut had been decisively delivered.

Voltaire said that marriage is the only adventure open to the cowardly. I miss East and West are not married. But apparently, after the deal was over, West said, "Well defended, partner. I wish my wife played bridge as well as you do. She would have ruffed with the spade two."

No, I wasn't West. How could you think such a thing?

Prison reformer

AUBURN, N.Y. (AP) — After Thomas M. Osborne (1859-1926) was appointed head of a New York state commission on prison reform in 1913, he secretly spent a week in Auburn penitentiary disguised as an inmate.

Osborne later served as warden of the Sing Sing, N.Y., prison and of the Portsmouth, N.H., Naval Prison. A Harvard graduate, he was the author of "Within Prison Walls" and "Society & Prisons."

WTC outlasts Odessa 3-pointers, defense sparks comeback

By TODD STANLEY
SDN Sports Editor

As advertised, Monday night's game between Western Texas and Odessa turned into a run-and-gun, barn-burning affair.

After trailing by as many as 11 points to the Lady Wranglers in the second half, WTC overcame poor free throw shooting in the first half to snatch a 69-60 victory over conference foe Odessa.

Sparked by exceptional three point shooting and pressure defense, the Lady Westerners (8-11) were able to capture their third straight comeback win.

"The best thing to come out of this win is the fact that it was in conference," WTC head coach Brenda Welch-Nichols said. "Odessa is a very good team and I believe they will be ready to play us when we go down to their gym."

The first half of action saw a seesaw battle between the two teams, but Odessa's Sharon Campbell helped the Lady Wranglers get out to a six point advantage, 22-16, with a transition layup at 4:40 left.

Sophomore Carri Moss hit a 3-pointer to cut the lead back to three with 3:40 to go in the half. The two squads traded baskets in the remaining minutes as they went into intermission with WTC trailing 29-26.

Although the opportunities were there in the first half for the Lady Westerners, their free throw shooting held them back. Western Texas shot just 4-14 (29 percent) in the first half.

The second half started much like the first, as Odessa was able to control the defensive glass, outlet to the open player on the transition and convert easy layups.

As the game wore on, however, that trend began to change. Nichols inserted a full court press into the game with 12:10 left to play. The strategy worked to perfection, as the Lady Westerners forced Odessa to turn the ball over time after time.

Also contributing to the comeback was the three point shooting of Moss, Tammy Wilson and Jackie Wright.

Moss, who hit three of her five 3-pointers in the Lady Westerners second half run, including two in the last eight minutes, helped spark the WTC offense.

"It seems like I've been in a slump forever," Moss said. "I just haven't been able to hit from the outside in the last couple of games."

"I didn't think about it tonight and everything just seemed to go in. It is great to win."

Nichols thought that her team's timely three point shooting and aggressive defense allowed the Lady Westerners to claw back.

"In order to play our up tempo defense, we must have every player go out and give 110 percent, and that's what we did," Nichols said. "I think our key buckets tonight were three."

"We got our second half run started on our three point shooting and that really helped."

Wright's 3-pointer with 5:45 left in the game cut the Odessa lead to three points and Wilson's 3-pointer with 3:45 remaining put the Lady Westerners up for good.

Ironically, it was Western Texas' free throw shooting down the stretch that sealed the game. The Lady Westerners made 14 of 19 (74 percent) in the second half.

Wright continued her good fortunes from the field, as she scored 17 points to go along with 17 rebounds. Moss had 15 points, all on 3-pointers, and Tammy Wilson finished with 11 points and four steals.

The Lady Westerners travel to Hobbs, N.M. Thursday to take on New Mexico Junior College at 7:30 p.m. MST.

JV girls fall to Levelland

Similar to their varsity counterparts, the Snyder junior varsity girls had difficulty with the Levelland Loboettes Friday night, as they dropped the first district game of the season 48-15.

An early first quarter lapse by the Lady Tigers saw Levelland put up an 18-3 lead, a lead from which Snyder was never able to recover.

Despite a defensive stand that allowed the Loboettes zero points in the second quarter, Snyder trailed at halftime 18-5.

The Lady Tigers attempted a second half comeback, but were outscored in the fourth quarter 21-3.

Snyder, now 11-10, is scheduled to take on the Estacado Lady Mats tonight at 6:30 in Lubbock.

Lady Tigers fall at buzzer

Most coaches would agree that they would much rather lose a game by 10, than lose at the buzzer.

Unfortunately for Snyder freshmen girls head coach Vanessa Gutierrez and her Lady Tigers, they got the latter Monday night against Big Spring.

As time expired, the Lady Steers' Amy Bennett, who finished with six points, canned a jumper to lift Big Spring to a 48-47 win over Snyder.

Snyder (4-11) took a 47-46 lead with 11.8 seconds left, but was unable to keep Big Spring from taking the last shot.

Amanda Huff led the Lady Tigers scoring with 13 points, while Jamie Burleson contributed 12. Melanie Kidd knocked down seven points for Snyder.

SJHS gets wins over Big Spring

Brady Cobb had eight points and Marcus McLain scored seven, as the Snyder boy's 8th grade "A" team defeated Big Spring 31-16 Monday.

After jumping out to a 17-9 first half lead, the Tigers improved to 5-4 on the season with a win over the Steers.

The 8th grade "B" team was too much for Big Spring, as the Tigers rolled to a 36-29 victory.

Snyder was led by Ricardo Hernandez, who posted 11 points, and Johnny Pena, who scored nine.

In 7th grade action, Snyder's "A" team got 11 points from Paul Camp and nine from Sonny Cumbie as it demolished Big Spring 54-19 to improve to 6-3 on the season.

Derek Crayton had eight points for the Tigers.

The Tiger "B" team got five points from both Greg McAnaw and Joe Villa, but it wasn't enough to get by Big Spring, as the Steers scored a 24-17 victory.

All four Snyder Junior High boy's teams are scheduled to host Sweetwater Monday.

Former Cowboy, Norton, Jr., says 49ers will be ready

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Michael Irvin has put the Dallas Cowboys back in the prediction business, guaranteeing another win over San Francisco in the NFC title game. The 49ers say their answer will come on game day.

"He might be trying to take one of those pages out of Jimmy Johnson's book," San Francisco linebacker Ken Norton Jr. said. "They pulled something like that last year. Apparently it worked. So hey, why not try it again?"

Norton, who joined San Francisco as a free agent, was a member of the Dallas team that backed Johnson's brash guarantee by beating the 49ers 38-21 en route to a second straight Super Bowl victory.

Barry Switzer is now coaching the Cowboys in place of Johnson, who quit in a falling out with club owner Jerry Jones. But Irvin didn't hesitate to turn to the psychological ploy, saying the Cowboys would beat San Francisco, period, when the teams meet Sunday at Candlestick in a third straight title matchup.

"They can talk. We can talk until we're black and blue in the face," Norton said. "If there's talking going on on the field, that's one thing. But as far as talking during the week, that's all good for writing things like that, but we know the game is played on the field."

Last year, the 49ers did not react with such aplomb. They seemed taken aback by Johnson's remarks, and San Francisco players, looking for a way to respond, uncharacteristically lost their cool in a pregame trash-talking match with some of the Cowboys.

This time, the 49ers say, they won't let the Cowboys' talk get them riled.

"It doesn't matter. Nothing matters until Sunday when we play," San Francisco's Steve Young said.

"I could just laugh at it," 49ers fullback William Floyd said. "I mean, we played those guys once this season, and everybody knows what happened. (A 21-14 San Francisco victory Nov. 13). I think when you talk and try to overdo it, it's a sign of insecurity. We're not going to do all the talking. They'll do the talking and we'll do the walking."

Floyd, a rookie who has played with confidence and flair to become a team leader, said he thought the Cowboys' bravado would ultimately work to the 49ers' advantage.

"I thank them for all that they're saying because all they're doing is fueling this team that much more," he said.

Norton said he's not surprised by Irvin's statements or those of safety James Washington, who has vowed the Cowboys will punish Young somehow if the 49ers' scrambling quarterback starts making like a halfback.

"Dallas has always done some talking," said Norton, who also is known for his on-field trash talking. "I think Jimmy Johnson in the past has always been able to maybe curtail a little bit too much talking. The fact that they're talking so much now is just the difference in the way Barry is letting them be a little more loose."

"Everybody approaches games differently," Norton adds. "Some people approach them louder. Some guys go within themselves. You talk about Michael Irvin and James Washington, those are two guys who are more vocal. That's the way they get themselves ready. It doesn't make them better or worse. It's just their way of approaching big games."

Schmidt joins Hall of Fame

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two members of the 1980 champion Philadelphia Phillies have gone into the Hall of Fame in successive years. The latest, Mike Schmidt, will actively campaign for a third.

Pete Rose, whom Schmidt credits with making the difference between the great Phillies teams of the late 1970s and the World Series winner in 1980, deserves to be in Cooperstown, Schmidt said Monday upon his election to the Hall.

Schmidt, who received more votes (444) than any other candidate in the history of balloting, said he first sensed the possibility of his enshrinement when Rose joined the Phillies in 1979 after an illustrious career with the Cincinnati Reds.

"He's served his time," said Schmidt, a three-time National League MVP who is seventh on the career list with 548 homers. "He's been in exile, if you will, long enough. It's time for Pete."

Schmidt, who received more votes (444) than any other candidate in the history of balloting, said he first sensed the possibility of his enshrinement when Rose joined the Phillies in 1979 after an illustrious career with the Cincinnati Reds.

Rams fire head coach Knox

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Knox had a knack for turning football teams around.

He began his career as an NFL head coach by making a quick and dramatic improvement in the Los Angeles Rams in 1973. He quite possibly has ended his career by failing to repeat that success with them a second time.

Knox, who returned to the Rams in 1992 and had a 4-12 record in 1994 and a 15-33 overall mark, was fired Monday from what he believes it will be his last NFL head coaching job.

"This is probably the end of my coaching career, I would think. I've been very fortunate," said Knox, who turned losing teams into winners at Buffalo and Seattle after leaving the Rams the first time.

Peace making plans in Bosnia continue to run into setbacks

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs said today they would soon open roads linking Sarajevo with other government-held territory, but other efforts to secure peace in Bosnia ran into setbacks.

Opening the roads is vital to feeding the 280,000 residents of the capital, which has been under a 33-month siege by the rebel Serbs.

The announcement followed a week of haggling over a demilitarized zone south of Sarajevo. It came in a statement signed by Jovan Zametica, adviser to Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic.

The Serbs have demanded that government forces withdraw from the demilitarized zone around Mount Igman, as well as two locations east of the DMZ.

Government and U.N. officials made it clear that was not part of the four-month truce pact signed on Dec. 31 by the warring sides and later by the Bosnian Croats.

The Serbs said by week's end they would open roads linking the capital with government-held areas to the south, with Visoko about 12 miles to the north, and with areas in central Bosnia.

Biographer notes Reagan's decline

NEW YORK (AP) — As he slides deeper into the mists of Alzheimer's disease, former President Reagan no longer recognizes old friends and once referred to a set of books as trees, his biographer says.

"About six months ago, he stopped recognizing me. Now I no longer recognize him," Edmund Morris wrote in the Jan. 16 issue of The New Yorker magazine.

Describing a recent visit with Reagan, Morris wrote: "For all the willingness with which he showed me his framed photographs, his jelly bean jar, and his view of the Hollywood Hills, I did not feel his presence beside me, only his absence."

At one point, Morris commented on a display of lead soldiers on a shelf and Reagan said, "He — We — we had to make space, uh — move those 'rees." Mystified, Morris finally realized that Reagan was referring to a red-bound set of his own presidential papers, relegated to the shelf beneath the soldiers.

Reagan, 84, announced in November that he had been diagnosed in the early stages of Alzheimer's, a degenerative neurological disease characterized by memory loss and disorientation.

Morris, a historian, won a Pulitzer Prize in 1980 for "The Rise of Theodore Roosevelt" and became Reagan's biographer in 1985. His book on Reagan is due to be published next year.

summer before putting city money into the project.

Shaw then made a motion to accept TU Electric's proposal with Gambrell voting against it and Robertson abstaining. Following some confusion on the vote, the mayor called for another show of hands. Gambrell again voted against the proposal while voting for it were Shaw, Robertson, Verne Tappens, Jerry Webb and I.E. Martin.

The council took no action — pending obtaining additional information — for a waterline to the new landfill and delayed appointing a member to the Planning and Zoning Commission to take the place of Hugh Gray, who has moved.

All council members were present.

Prisoner: inmate charged in Dahmer's murder had threatened him earlier

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Four months before Jeffrey Dahmer was beaten to death, another inmate warned a guard that the serial killer's life had been threatened by the prisoner now charged in his murder.

His story was checked out and staffers were told to monitor Dahmer more closely, even though the inmate had given authorities bad information before and he'd admitted that he could have been exaggerating, Corrections Secretary Michael Sullivan told The Associated Press Monday.

The report on the warning was among about 200 pages of prison documents on Dahmer that the state released Monday in response to an open records request from The Milwaukee Journal and other media.

The July 18 report outlines a conversation between the inmate and a guard at the Columbia Correctional Institution in Portage.

Their conversation followed a July 3 attack in which an inmate tried to slash Dahmer's throat with a knife made from a toothbrush and razor blades. The weapon fell apart and Dahmer wasn't seriously wounded. "That ol' boy Dahmer is gonna get it again," the inmate was quoted as telling the guard. "Only this time, there's going to be more than one!"

The inmate named others he said were in on the plot, but investigators say they have ruled out the possibility that more than one person was involved in Dahmer's slaying.

Researchers seek freedom to conduct ER experiments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The concept was simple: A University of Texas researcher wanted to see if chilling head-trauma patients really helped reduce brain swelling and injury.

The chilling process — hypothermia — is fairly common in some emergency rooms. But when the scientist proposed studying whether it actually worked, the government put on the brakes, insisting doctors track down unconscious patients' families for consent to the experiment.

"Hypothermia is an old procedure that's used many times," George Zitnay, president of the National Head Injury Foundation, angrily told government regulators. "Only when it became research did it require this type of scrutiny."

Trauma victims often owe their lives to treatments given while they were unconscious. A doctor may have time to discuss options with family, but ultimately makes an individual decision about a patient's best chance, assuming it's a therapy already approved for use.

When it comes to experimental treatments, however, patients must first understand the risks and give consent — unless they fall under a special provision allowing an emergency waiver.

Government regulations differ on when to allow that waiver, a conflict that Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., pointed out last spring with a study that found confused hospitals are making maverick decisions on what emergency experiments to allow.

The Food and Drug Administration and National Institutes of Health convened some 150 researchers and regulators Monday and today to consider the problem.

"We want this research to go forward ... ethically," said FDA Deputy Commissioner Mary Pendergast. "There are no simple answers."

While most of the scientists argued for more research freedom, the NIH's Dr. Gary Ellis said even dying patients must be protected against unsafe experiments.

"I caution you not to make facile assumptions that head-injured patients ... ought to be enrolled in research," he said, noting that The Upjohn Co. this month ended a major drug study for such patients because of signals the drug might be dangerous.

The FDA says consent to an experimental treatment may be waived when the therapy can save someone who physically can't consent and has no better option. But the NIH says experiments must pose no more risk than the patient would encounter in daily life.

The conflicting policies came into play in the hypothermia study at the University of Texas. Dr. Guy Clifton wanted to see if chilling brain-injured patients to 89.6 degrees Fahrenheit — 9 degrees cooler than the average body temperature — would help them survive and recover faster than with standard brain-injury treatments.

Putting the treatment into a study made it an experiment that had to be approved by a review board at Clifton's hospital. In June, the board concluded that because the chilling must occur within four or six hours of the injury, there wasn't time for doctors to track down relatives for informed consent. Plus, it reasoned, patients would get hypothermia on top of the standard of care.

But the NIH's Office of Protection from Research Risks overruled that decision, saying hypothermia's risk of heart arrhythmias, blood infections and seizures made the treatment too risky to do without informed consent.

So Clifton enrolled patients whose families could give consent. But some of these consents were obtained by telephone. In October, the OPRR said telephone consent wasn't good enough — although a fax would do. It didn't explain why.

Clifton joined other researchers Monday in asking the government to refine its definition of experiments that are too risky for a patient already threatened with death or disability.

Such research is vital, said Dr. Jeffrey Runge of Carolinas Medical Center. It taught, for example, that the calcium once given to restart patients' hearts killed their brain cells, leading doctors to find better therapies.

"We as a society are ethically obligated to conduct this research," said Dr. Ernest Prentice of the University of Nebraska.

O.J. jury prepares for trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They were given a map leading to a secret rendezvous point and told to bring a toothbrush.

Phone calls will be monitored, family visits supervised, newspapers censored and TV shows pre-screened. Home will be a hotel or college dorm.

As Superior Court Judge Lance Ito bluntly described what the next few months will be like for the O.J. Simpson jurors: "It won't be a picnic."

Ito informed the jury Monday that it would be sequestered, and that the trial could last until April or even later. The jury begins life undercover on Wednesday.

The 12 jurors and 12 alternates got a taste of their future even before they heard the order. They were stuck for nearly three hours in a cramped room, doing nothing, while Ito huddled with attorneys in a private meeting.

After the meeting, the jurors sat stoically in the courtroom as the judge laid out their instructions. One man raised his hand, but Ito didn't acknowledge him.

"I realize this is going to be very difficult for all of us," Ito said. "It's something we've tried to avoid."

The jurors will be locked away even before opening statements to shield them from a hearing that begins Wednesday on whether prosecutors can introduce evidence that Simpson abused his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson.

Simpson is charged with murdering Ms. Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman on June 12.

Ito said he would question jurors again on their exposure to media reports after they are sequestered.

What's the word on chelation?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm writing to ask how many patients you have personally chelated. I talked to a friend yesterday who has had chelation six times and his arthritis is improving. Now, unless you can quote scientific proof that it doesn't work, what am I to believe?

DEAR READER: I haven't "chelated" anyone and don't plan to do so until valid scientific studies show that this treatment is beneficial. You see, that's the problem. In order for any therapy to be accepted as useful, it must be proved to be worthwhile. The proof rests with the proponents of chelation therapy, not with the medical community (to prove it DOESN'T work).

This treatment involves a series of injections of various compounds that trap certain minerals in the body. It has been shown to be effective in curing heavy metal poisoning — such as lead and arsenic — but no studies have proved its worth in reversing arteriosclerosis, arthritis, or the consequences of aging.

If I were you, I'd believe the reputable scientific community, the folks who cured smallpox, developed organ transplants and invented antibiotics. Chelation therapy may someday find a place among other medical treatments but, to date, no one has proved that it helps anything but heavy metal poisoning.

I might mention that lead poisoning causes arthritis, among other symptoms, and could be diagnosed with a blood test. Perhaps your friend was unknowingly experiencing lead toxicity, hence the improvement from chelation. I'm willing to go that far. But as a treatment for other conditions? Save your money.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 8-year-old niece has had trouble moving her bowels for the past three years. Sometimes she goes a week and a half before a movement and then often has bleeding and a stressful episode. Over-the-counter medications are effective only for short periods. Does diet play a role?

DEAR READER: Diet may certainly play a role in your niece's constipation but, I am certain, it is not the only factor. She should be examined by a pediatrician to make sure that she doesn't have a problem with her colon.

A child may lack sufficient nerves in the bowel to stimulate contractions. As a result, the colon stretches, preventing the youngster from evacuating effectively. This can be diagnosed by special X-ray tests.

In my view, your niece needs medical attention, in preference to dietary manipulation, such as the addition of extra fiber and bran.

To give you more information on the topic, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Constipation and Diarrhea." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Public watchdog groups eye timing of latest fund-raisers

AUSTIN (AP) — Public watchdog groups say a fund-raiser held by a number of lawmakers one day before the start of the 1995 legislative session was immoral and hypocritical.

The Texas Conservative Coalition on Monday held a luncheon with special interest lobbyists with plates selling for up to $10,000.

Public Citizen of Texas and Common Cause said the conservative coalition raced to beat possible House action to ban caucus fund-raisers held right before a session.

They also said the event was hypocritical because such a ban is being pushed by state Rep. Warren Chisum, chairman of the conservative coalition.

"Instead of living by the principles they claim to support, and being morally responsible, the conservative caucus opted to make fast bucks," said Tom "Smitty" Smith, executive director of Public Citizen of Texas.

Suzy Woodford, executive director of Common Cause, said raising "unlimited sums of money from unnamed sources the day before the session begins" violates the spirit of the law.

Chisum, D-Pampa, defended the fund-raiser.

"I've endorsed the proposal for the change, but what we're doing is operating under the laws as they currently exist," he said.

The conservative coalition counts 74 lawmakers as members. By its own definition, the caucus is pro-business and pro-family.

Caucuses are usually groups of lawmakers who spend money on staff and research to monitor bills and gather information for their legislative agenda.

Under current law, lawmakers are forbidden from raising political funds for themselves during a 140-day session and 30 days before and after.

Last year, Chisum's subcommittee recommended that caucuses abide by the same restrictions.

Since the recommendation, other legislative caucuses say they stopped having fund-raisers within 30 days of a session.

The House is expected to consider the caucus recommendation.

More than 100 people, including more than 20 legislators, attended the conservative coalition fund-raiser at the Omni Hotel in downtown Austin. At each table, one or two lawmakers sat with a group of lobbyists.

Luncheon tickets were $500, with additional donations solicited that ranged up to $10,000.

In an invitation to the event, Chisum wrote, "In the next legislative session, we expect new House rules to prohibit legislative caucuses from raising funds during the session. It is critical we raise operating capital now to carry the Coalition through May 1995."
