There can be little doubt that Gov Bob Taylor is the most versatile and entertaining lecturer on the Ameri- To Confederate Veterans About Their can platform today. His reputation holds wherever he goes, north, south, east or west-we hear no complaint of disappointment by the thousands who go to hear him. With a gift or power possessed by few, he plays upon the emotions, sentiments and passions of his audience with the case with which a master runs a musical scale, transporting his hearers from mirth to solemnity, from laughter to tears, from complaisance to indignation as though they were en rapport with an enchanter-for enchanter he is, not in the vulgar sense but, in that he possesses the power,pathos, eloquence and sympathy to reach the human heart and attune it in sympathy with his own.

Brain-Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous tood fad has authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for boues. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet, however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Green's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at Baker's drug

ANOTHER GRAND REPORT.

From His Majesty's Dockyard. Portsmouth, England. Upwards of 16,000 Men Are Constantly Employed. Some time ago the Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette published a most thrilling and remarkable experience of the wife of Mr. Frederick Payne, himself connected with the Portsmouth dockyard for many years. The report produced a great sensation. not only in Portsmouth, but throughout the country, being considered of sufficient importance for reproduction and editorial comment by the leading metropolitan and provincial press of England, as showing the marvelous power which St. Jacobs Oil possesses as a cure for Rheumatism, its application having effected a perfect cure in the case of Mrs. Payne, after having been a helpless cripple and given up by several physicians.

We have now further evidence of its Intrinsic value as a Pain Conqueror. Our renders will do well to follow the intelligent and highly interesting detalis as given in Mrs. Rabbets own

"To the Proprietors St. Jacobs Oil-"Gentlemen: My husband, who is a shipwright in His Majesty's dockyard. met with an accident to his ankle and leg, spraining both so badly that his leg turned black from his knee to his toes. The doctor said it would be months before he could put his foot to the ground, and it was doubtful whether he would ever get proper use of his leg again.

"A few days after the accident I had a book left at the door telling about St. Jacob's Oil, so I procured a bottle from our chemist, Mr. Arthur Creswell, 279 Commercial Road. I began to use St. Jacob's Oil, and you may guess my surprise when in about another week from that date my husband could not only stand, but could even walk about and in three weeks from the time I first used the Oil my' husband was back at work, and everybody talking sbout his wonderful recovery. This is not all. Seeing what St. Jacob's off could do gave me faith in your Vogeler's Curative Compound, also favorably mentioned in the book left at my house. I determined to try the compound on my little girl, who was suffering from a dreadful skin disease. the treatment of which has cost me large sums of money in going from one doctor to another with her, all to no purpose.

She has taken two bottles of Vogeler's Curative Compound, and one need, in our finite way, to imitate. has always had.

for the immense benefit we have deof yours. I think it a duty to recommend these medicines now I have proved their value.

(Signed.) "Elizabeth S. Rabbets, "93 Grafton Street Mile End. "Landport, Portsmouth, England."

A liberal free sample of Vogeler's Com-pound will be sent by addressing St Jacob's Oil, Ltd., Baltimore. The above honest, straightforward statement of Mrs. Rabbets evidence is stronger and far more convincing than f paid advertisements whi though in themselves attractive, yet lack that convincing proof which Mrs. Rabbets' description of her own experience supplies. St. Jacob's Oil has a larger sale throughout the world than that of all other remedies for outward application combined and this can only be accounted for from the fact of its superiority over all others.

DISCOURSE THIS WEEK ON RECOL-LECTION AND FORGETFULNESS.

Text Hebrews VIII., 13: "Their Sins and Their Iniquities Will I Remember No. More"-Good Advice for Christians of All Denominations

(Copyright, 1902, Louis Klopsch, N. Y.) Washington, March 9.-From the letter to the Hebrews Dr. Talmage takes a text and illustrates how all offenders may be emancipated; text Hebrews vill. 12. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

The national flower of the Egyptians is the heliotrope, of the Assyrians is the water lily, of the Hindoos is the murigold, of the Chinese is the chrysanthemum. We have no national flow er, but there is hardly any flower more suggestive to many of us than the forget-me-not. We all like to be remembered, and one of our misfortunes is that there are so many things we cannot remember.

With the art of recollection, which I cannot too highly eulogize, is one quite as important, and yet I never heard it applauded. I mean the art of forgetting. There is a splendid faculty in that direction that we all need to cultivate. We might through that process be ten times happler and more useful than we now are. We have been told that forgetfulness is a weakness and ought to be avoided by an possible means. So far from a weakness, my text ascribes it to God. It is the very top of omnipotence that God is able to obliterate a part of his own memory. If we repent of sin the record of the misbehavior is not only crossed off the books, but Ged actually lets it pass out of memory

Their sins and their iniquities will remember no more." To remember so more is to forget, and you cannot make anything else out of it. God's power of forgetting is so great that i two men appeal to him and the on: man, after a life all right, gets the sine his heart pardoned and the other man, after a life of abomination, pardoned. God remembers no more against one than against the The entire past of both the moralist, with his imperfections, and the profligate, with his debaucheries, is as much obliterated in the one case in the other. Forgotten forever and forever. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

This sublime attribute of forgetfulness on the part of God you and I would now hardly take her for the You will do well to cast out of your same child. Her skin has such a nice recollection all wrongs done you. Durhealthy color after the sallow look she ling the course of one's life he is sure to be misrepresented, to be lied about, "I shall never cease to be thankful to be injured. Tear up the falsehoods and the slanders and the hypercriticisms. Imitate the Lord in my text and forget, actually forget, sublimely forget. There is no happiness for you in any other plan or procedure. You see all around you in the church and out the church dispositions acerb. malign, cynical, pessimistic. Do you know how these men and women got that disposition? It was by the embalmment of things pantherine and viperous. Their soul is a cage of vultures. Everything in them is sour or embittered. The milk of human kindness has been curdled. They do not believe in anybody or anything. Where there is one sweet pippin in their orchard there are fifty crabapples. They have never been able to forget. They do not want to forget. They never will forget. Their wretchedness is supreme, for no one can be happy if he carries perpetually in mind the mean things that have been done him. On the other hand, you can find here and there a man or woman (for there are not many of them) whose disposition is genial and summery. Why? Have they always been treated well? Oh, no. Hard things have been said against them. They have been charged with officiousness, and their generosities have been set down to a desire for display, and they have many a time been the subject of tittle tattle, and they have had enough small assaults like gnats and enough | death breaks in the same coolness reservice on a route which traverses the great attacks like lions to have made most populous negro quarter of the them perpetually miserable if they would have consented to be miserable. But they have had enough divine philosophy to cast off the annoyances, and they have kept themselves in the sunlight of God's favor and have realized that these oppositions and hindrances are a part of a mighty discipline by which they are to be prepared for usefulness and heaven.

Another practical thought: Vinen our faults are repented of let them go out buy for her a doll, and he promised. of mind. If God forgets them we have He could after the sale of the cattle a right to forget them. Having once purchase household necessities and cerrepented of our infelicities and misde- tainly would not forget the doll he had meanors, there is no need of our re- promised. In the village to which he penting of them again. While it is went he sold the cattle and obtained right that Christians repent of new the groceries for his household and the sins and of recent sins, what is the use | doll for his little darling. He started of botnering yourself and insulting home along the disma; road at night-God by asking him to forgive sins fall. As he went along on horseback that long ago were forgiven? God a thunderstorm broke, and in the most has forgotten them. Why do you not forget them? No; you drag the load on with you, and 365 times a year, if you pray every day, you ask God to to do some bad work along that road, recall occurrences which he has not and it was known that this herdsman only forgiven, but forgotten.

Quit this folly. I do not ask you less to realize the turpitude of sin, but I ask you to have a higher faith in the promise of God and the full deliva receipt for part payment or so much received on account, but receipt in full God having for Christ's sake decreed "your sins and your iniquities will I remember no more." As far as possible let the disagreeables of life drop.

SERMON, them. The chief stock on hand of the fields, and, to, it was his own child ome people is to recount in prayer and the lost one of the prairie home meetings and pulpits what hig scoun- and the cabin quaked with the shout drels they once were. They not only over the lost one found! How suggeswill not forget their forgiven deficits, tive of the fact that once we were lost but they seem to be determined that the church and the world shall not forget them. If you want to declare that you have been the chief of sinners and extol the grace that could save such a wreich as you were, do so, but do not go into particulars. If you have any scars got in honorable warfare, show them, but if you have sears got in ignoble warfare do not display them. I know you will quote the Bible reterence to the horrible pit from which you were digged. Yes, be thankful for that rescue, but do not make displays of the mud of that horrible pit or splash it over other people. Sometimes I have felt in Christian meetings discomfitted and unfit for Christian service because I had done none of those things which seemed to be, in the estimation of many, necessary for Christian usefulness, for I never swore a word or ever got drunk or went to compromising places or was guilty of assault and battery or ever uttered a slanderous word or ever did any one a purpose and found that he had not hurt, although I knew my heart was sinful enough, and I said to myself, There is no use of my trying to do any good, for I never went through pulled down the blankets from his those deprayed experiences." And though an ordinary moral life, ending in a Christian life, may not be as dramatic a story to tell about, let us be grateful to God rather than worry about it if we have never plunged into and rightly seek the divine forgive- outward abominations. It may be appropriate in a meeting of reformed drunkards or reformed debauchces to quote for those not reformed how desperate and nasty you once were, but do not drive a scavenger's cart into assemblages of people the most of whom have always been decent and respectable. But I have been sometimes in great evangelical meetings where people went into particulars about the sins that they once committed, so much so that I felt like putting my hand on my pocketbook or calling for the police lest these reformed men might fall from grace and go at their old business of theft or drunkenness or cut-throatery. If your sins have been forgiven and your life purified, forget the waywardness of the past and allow others

to forget it. But what I most want in the light of this text to impress is that we have a sin-forgetting God. Suppose that on the last day-called the last day because the sun will never again rise upon our earth, the earth itself being flung into flery demolition-supposing that on that last day a group of infernal spirits should somehow get near enough the gate of heaven and challenge our entrance and say: "How canst thou, the just Lord, let those souls into the realm of supernal gladness? Why, they said a great many things they never ought to have said. and they did a great many things they ought nover to have done. Sinners are they-sinners all." And suppose God should deign to anhe not pay the price? Not one drop of blood was retained in his arteries; not one nerve of his that was not wrung in the torture. He took in his own body and soul all the suffering that those sinners deserve. They pleadeu that sacrifice; they took the full pardon that I promised to all who. through my Son, earnestly applied for it, and it passed out of my mind that they were offenders. I forgot all thout it. Yes, I forgot all about it. 'Their sins and their iniquities do I remember no more." A sin-forgetting God! That is clear beyond and far above a sin-pardoning God. How often we hear it said, "I can forgive, but I can not forget." That is equal to saying. "I verbally admit it is all right, but I will keep the old grudge good." There is something in the demeanor that seems to say: "I would not do you Indeed I wish you well, but harm. that unfortunate affair can never pass out of my mind." There may no hard words pass between them, but until mains. But God lets our pardoned offenses go into oblivion. He never throws them up to us again. He feels as kindly toward us as though we had been spotless and positively angelic all Many years ago a family consisting of the husband and wife and little girl of two years lived far out in a capin on a western prairie. The husband took a few cattle to market. Before he started his little child asked him to lonely part of the road and in the heaviest part of the storm he heard a child's cry. Robbers had been known had money with him, the price of the cattle sold. The herdsman first thought it was a stratagem to have him halt and be despoiled of his treasures, but the child's cry became more keen and erance of his mercy. He does not give | rending, and so he dismounted and felt around in the darkness and all in vain until he thought of a hollow that he truchlo's country house to make a fire remembered near the road where the child might be, and for that he started ble let the disagreeable, and, sure enough, found a little one fagged out and drenched of the storm and the Kinneys, and cures by draining out of the Blood the poisonous Urio Acid, Lithates, etc., which cause the disagre. Not only forget your pardoned transfired was lost. Then the father unrolled from the beautiful or and the promised and the child was lost. Then the father unrolled from the veilure of the storm and almost dead. He wrapped it up as and almost dead. He wrapped it up as and resu and, sure enough, found a little one in the open fields or among the mountain crags, God's wandering children. and he found us, dying in the tempest, and wrapped us in the mantle of his love and fetched us home, gladness and congratulation bidding us welcome. The fact is that the world does not know God or they would all flock to

There are certain names so magnetic that their pronunciation thrills all who hear them. Such is the name of the Italian soldier and liberator, Garibaldi. Marching with his troops, he met a shepherd who was in great distress because he had lost a lamb. Garibaldi said to his troops. "Let us help this poor shepherd find his lamb." And so. with lanterns and torches, they explored the mountains, but did not find the lamb, and after an unsuccessful search late at night they went to their encampment. The next morning Garibaldi was found asleep far on into the day, and they wakened him for some given up the search when the soldiers did, but had kept on still further into the night and had found it, and he couch, and there lay the lamb, which Garibaldi ordered immediately taken to its owner. So the commander of nation by the laying on of the hands all the hosts of heaven turned aside from his glorious and victorious march through the centuries of heaven and said, "I will go and recover that lost world and that race of whom Adam was the progenitor and let all who will And through the night they came, but I do not see that the angelic escort came any farther than the clouds, but their most illustrious leader came all the way down and by the time his errand to done our little world, our wandering and lost world, our world fleecy with the light, will be found in the bosom of the Great Shepherd, and then all heaven will take up the cantata and sing, "The lost sheep found!"

So I set open the wide gate of my text, inviting you all to come into the mercy and pardon of God-yea, still where once was kept the knowledge of slides, which caught the rescuing parties. your iniquities. The place has been torn down and the records destroyed, and you will find the ruins more dilapidated and broken and prostrate than the ruins of Melrose or Kenilworth, for from these last ruins you can pick up some fragment of a sculptured stone or you can see the curve of some broken arch, but after your repentance and your forgiveness you cannot find in all the memory of God a fragment of your pardoned sins so large as a needle's point. "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.

Six different kinds of sounds were heard on that night which was interjected into the daylight of Christ's assassination. The neighing of the warhorses-for some of the soldiers were in the saddle-was one sound, the bang of the hammers was a second sound, the jeer of malignants was a third sound the weeping of friends and followers was a fourth sound, the swer. He might say: "Yes, but did not splash of blood on the rocks was a my only Son die for their ransom? Did fifth sound, and the groan of the expiring Lord was a sixth sound. And Over a place in Russia where wolves were pursuing a load of travelers and to save them a servant sprang from the sled into the mouths of the wild beasts and was devoured and thereby the other lives were saved are inscribed the words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." Many a surgeon in our own time has in tracheotomy with his own lips drawn from the windpipe of a diphtheritic patient that which cured the patient and slew the surgeon, and all have honored the self-sacrifice. But all other scenes of sacrifice pale before this most illustrious martyr of all time and all eternity. After that agonizing spectacle in behalf of our fallen race nothing about the sin forgetting God is too stupendous for my faith, and I accept the promise, and will you not all accept it? "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more. MUSIC OF SHAKESPEARE'S TIME.

"Catch" Was Most Popular Form of

Song in the Bard's Day. Of the lighter kinds of secular music the catch was the most popular and we find many allusions to it in Shakespeare's plays.

In the catch proper there was some trick or catch in the words, as in that famous one of Calcott's, where the first voice sings, "Ah, How Sophia," and the next "catches" this with the phrase "A house a-fire," which in the rapid pronunciation of that time would sound much like "Ah, How Sophia." The round, however, is often confounded with the catch; musically they do not differ, both the round and the catch being varieties of the "canon

in the unison" illustrated by the upper parts of the "Cuckoo Song." When I was a boy, says Sidney Lanter in Lippincott's, we used to sing a very familiar round which began "Scotland's burning, Scotland's burn ing; fire, fire, fire, fire, cast on water cast on water," etc. It is interesting to find among the rounds and catches of Shakespeare's time some early forms of the nursers rhymes which appear in our "Mother Goose." For example, in act IV, scene I., of "Taming of the Shrew," where Grumio has been sent ahead to Pe before he and his bride arrive, pres ently Petruchio's other servant, Curtis, comes in and, the fire being built calls out to Grumio, "There's fire ready; and therefore, good Grumio. the news?"

"Why," said Grumio, "Jack boy! h boy! and as much news as thou wilt." This Jack boy, ho boy, is unintelligi ble until you know that these are the first words of a popular catch in Shakespeare's time which ran as fol-

"Jack boy, ho boy-news! The cat is in the well. Let us ring now for her knell, Ding, ding, dong, bell!"

The snow and debris piled in the bottom of the canyon twenty-five feet deep.

M ONT people think catarrh is a disease confined to the head and nose. Nothing is farther from the truth. It may be that the nose and throat is the oftenest affected by catarrh, but if this is so it is so only because these parts are more exposed to the vicissitudes of the cimate than the other parts of the body.

Every organ, every duct, every cavity of the human body is liable to catarrh. A multitude of ailments depend on catarrh. This is true winter and summer. Catarrh causes many cases of chronic lisease, where the victim has not the slightest suspicion that catarrh has anything to do with it.

Wisconsin Agricultural Convention. (From the Farmers' Review.)

During the last week a number of agricultural conventions were held at the state capitol, Madison, Wis. In some cases the sessions were joint ones, general topics being discussed.

The agricultural mass meeting, as it was called, under the supervision of the state board of agriculture, was very poorly attended, in the main, though the last session was improved in this respect by the presence of a large number of Short Course students and live stock breeders. At some of the sessions the number in attendance did not exceed twenty-five. This is to be regretted, as the program was a very good one and would have been very profitable to the farmers of the As Professor Henry said, "There should be a thousand farmers here." One reason for the slim attendance perhaps was the fact that this is really the first agricultural convention for years. The old Agricultural Society used to hold these annual gatherings, and they were well attended. The discontinuance of such meetings has doubtless resulted in getting the farmers into the habit of non-attendance.

Among the particularly Taluable papers was one by A. F. Postel, on the beet sugar industry in Wisconsin. As Mr. Postel is an expert connected with the only beet sugar factory in Wisconsin, he brought out some points valuable to growers. We will have more to say on this paper next week.

Another subject that should not have been missed by Wisconsin farmers was the one on the treatment of oats for smut, a subject of immense interest to Wisconsin farmers where the loss from oat smut runs up into the millions. Prof. R. A. Moore told of the best methods of treatment, which are with solutions of formaldehyde.

The Association of Agricultural Students for Experimental Work also held several sessions, at which reports were made on the work being carried on. Rape and soja beans received the bulk and he had to invent a name, Fitz. of the attention. Alfalfa had been tried by some, but little progress was to her through thick and thin up to made with it except at the Agricultural college farm. Cow peas had also not been successfully grown except at the station named. Several, however, had grown soja beans with perfect success. and great interest was shown in this forage plant, which is a great food for hogs. Rape had also been experimented with successfully.

During one of the joint sessions Professor Henry spoke of his observations while in Holland and Denmark. The very interesting address will appear in full in the Farmers' Review.

Wisconsin Hortleultural Convention The annual meeting of the Wiscon sin State Horticultural Society was held at Madison February 3 to 6. The meeting was well attended and much enthusiasm was manifest. The fruit show was good, though not large. Some of the apples that are primarily Wisconsin apples were in prime shape. and the whole exhibit was a credit to the society, especially as this year has been a short apple crop year in Wis-

Many of the papers read were excellent, and the program was well carried out. Among the speakers from Paper twine stockings at three cents out of the state was Professor Webster of Ohio. He read a paper on spraying, which he considers necessary for good results in fruit growing. Being asked as to the best spray pumps on the market, he said that there were no poor ones, as the manufacturers had found out that it was impossible to sell anything that was not effective when in use. He, however, believes that there is as yet no ideal spraying pump made, and that it may be some time before such a pump appears.

C. E. Bassett, secretary of the Michigan State Horticultural Society, crested a good deal of enthusiasm by his address on co-operation in fruit selling. He related the history of the association of which he is a member, and said that it had been a powerful factor in improving the conditions under which their fruit is sold.

Prof. J. C. Blair of the University of Illinois was present with models and charts of the university cond storage house located at Neoga, Ill. His modsis showed the manner of insulation and construction. In the case of the cold storage house at Neoga the insulation is so perfect that the temperature is kept uniform all the time, trrespessive of what the temperature out-side may be. Immense possibilit's are thus opened up in the storage of fruit

Pear growing was discussed, the subject being opened by a paper from M.

J. Moyle. He said that pear growing in Wiscone has been looked on as a venture, but that he had made a success of it. This last season especially when the apple crop failed the pear crop was the redeeming feature of the fruit department of the farm. He advised others to take up the work, and believed that great possibilities lay in the development of new seedling pears. Space prevents detailed reference to the many other good papers, but we will take up some of them for consideration in the future.

Methots of Cream Separation

Report.) At the recent meeting of the liles dairymen, Oscar Erf of the lillnois Agricultural College, apoke on the different methods of cream separation. We present in condensed form some of his remarks:

Since the introduction of the cream separator the question naturally comes to many dairymen whether it pays to buy a centrifugal separator when they can get one of the cheap gravity separators for less money. The so-called dilution method of separating cream from milk is an old process that long since fell into disuse. But now and then it is brought to the front again by men who want to sell dilution cans. These cans differ some in detail, but have all the same principle. The milk lution cans are used.

The girl who has followed the fashion of a white wardrobe is bemoaning the condition of her white felt hat, her chinchilla furs, and her light gowns. But it really is not so difficult a matter to keep these various articles of her wardrobe presentable if she will give ten mintes a day to the task. Clean chinchilla with a piece of magnesia, rubbing it in well, and then shaking out thoroughly. Light felt hats can be cleaned perfectly by rubbing in Fuller's earth with a dry nall brush. NTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm-A Few Hints as to the Cure of Live Stock and Poultry.

Feeding Herefords. Mr. Thomas Clark of Illinois writes to the Kansas State Board of Agriculture concerning his methods of feeding Hereford cattle. He says:

First, in handling my stock bulls I give special attention to their rations and exercise. I feed them from four to six quarts of ground corn, oats and bran, equal parts, mixed with a little cut hay, twice per day, morning and night, then giving them as much long hay as they can eat. I always turn them out after their breakfast, and if the weather is not too stormy they will remain outside in lots all day, where hay is accessible to them at any time. I find this treatment the most judicious, as the bulls are always strong and vigorous, and are sure get-

My cows I generally breed so as to calve in the months of November, December, and in the early part of spring; but for economizing in the raising of cattle I should favor the breeding of cows so as to have them drop their calves just before going out on grass, and allow the calves to run with their mothers and partake of the M. Johnson. milk, as nature provided. By so doing I think we can raise stronger-constitutioned cattie and better feeders. My dry in-calf cows I can winter out in tion during storms, upon a little hay with plenty of good oat straw or cornstalks. My cows so wintered are now in good breeding condition and will drop their calves in March and April, that if I wait and don't try to kiss her | just before going out on grass. These are kept at a very little expense compared with cows suckling calves during the winter months. Cows giving milk or suckling calves in winter I beets added, for each animal. The feed is mixed up once a day in bulk. and remains about twelve hours, so as to absorb the juice of the beets. I feed this morning and night; also give a little long hay before going out in the morning and after their feed at night. When in the yard I feed cornstalks or oat straw. Cows just before calving are put in box stalls and fed liberally with ground corn, oats, bran and two pounds of oil-cake mixed with cut hay per day. The oll-cake will put them in better condition for calving. After the calves are dropped I allow them to remain with their dams about a week; afterward suckle twice a day. The ration for young calves is equal parts of shelled corn, oats and bran, with a few cut beets.

To Keep Pouttry Healthy.

From Farmers' Review: Flocks should be kept well housed at night. and the house that shelters them fodder do not cause the same trouble should be free from leaks and drafts, is that the stalks when cut have all especially in the roosting places. The droppings should be carefully cleaned stalks that stand in the field are from sanded dropping boards three or four times a week. Use liquid lice killer on roosts once in two weeks and distnfect once or twice a month by burning flowers of sulphur on a handful of shavings. Air the houses well during bright, crisp weather. Always supply a patch of rye for winter pasture, to be used when the ground is free from snow.

Several years breeding has never brought any disease of a contagious or infectious character into my flocks. Care, variety and regularity of feeding are essential. This has been a study with me for the health of the flock. Where a cold has occurred it has been treated to a few applications of kerosene and sweet oil (equal parts). This medicine is applied to the nostrils by means of a small oil can. Some of the medicine is put into the throat. If the cold seems stubborn, a pretty thorough smoking over the fumes of burning sulphur has completed the cure. 1 do not believe in using much medicine in feed or drink. My observation has been that disease is largely due to overfeeding with one kind of feed, lack of variety in feed, filth and general neglect.-Jesse E. Morgan, Cook County, lilinois.

Incubators or Hens From Farmers' Review: Ever since Noah built the ark the question of whether hens can hatch eggs or not has been settled. A long while ago, of course, but not much longer than the Egyptians hatched eggs in ovens. Over 2,000 years ago the Egyptians hatched eggs by artificial means, and yet there are people in this enlightened age that doubt if it can be done. And the queer part of it is, they even doubt it when they see it with their own eyes. It costs less to run a good incubator than it does to feed hens to incubate the same number of eggs, and a good incubator will hatch just as many or more eggs than an average flock of hens. There are good and bad incubators, just as much as there are hens that stick to business and hens that quit the nest, the variation is just as great. There are incubators that are made carefully of good material and on the right principle, and there are others that are made with a view of profit on manufacture. There are several good incubators and several others that would be a poor investment even though they were a gift. In selecting an incubator the decision should be made in favor of the work the machine evidently does instead of the argument or fine spun theory behind it; otherwise don't overlook the material and don't overlook who the machine does good work for, whether ti is for experienced operators and experts, or whether for the everyday poultry raisers and those inexperienced in operating incubators. After you have selected the incubator, you are master of the situation, no waiting for the hens to get broody, no standing up-to-date girls are either making basguard among them to see if they go suard among them to see if they go kets or talking about it-sack to the right nest, no hatching out both, of course. Some excus-

DAIRY AND POULTRY, ing season, setting and killing time trying to raise a few chicks. While to make a perfect success or to succeed at all with setting hens, we have al-most got to camp right with them; the incubator is ready any time, can be run where it is the most convenient to the operator, the chief and only expense in operating it is the kerosene used, and this does not amount to more than the feed to run hens enough to incubate an equal number of eggs.

> On the average there is no more labor attached to running an incubator than there is in running a couple of contrary sitting hens. Running the incubator becomes a company and a pleasure, while looking after the hens becomes drudgery too often. A good incubator comes so near running itself that what is left to run is interesting and a real rest from other work. At the end of three weeks there is a large bunch of chicks all the same age. They know no mother, hence, the hens are not losing them or killing them off in the cold, or wet grass and weeds, or drowning them in the storms. If a good brooder is used the chances are good for raising a large per cent of them. They soon learn to know the brooder and will collect themselves in case of storms. Averaging the season through, a good incubator will hatch a higher per cent of all eggs. While it is a fact that hens sometimes hatch every egg. it is also a fact that occasionally an incubator will do likewise, yet in the one case a few eggs, in the other, lots of them; hence, the more chances .- M.

The Corn Stalk Disease.

From Farmers' Review: I have seen

a great deal published on the cornstalk disease. Perhaps I can add something of value. I have seen no remedy given except that of the assistant state veterinarian, L. C. Tiffany. He thinks a poisonous fungus develops on the stalk or blades, invisible but surely there. He said the only sure way of avoiding the disease is to cease turning in the stock. Now as I have practiced veterinary surgery for the last forty-four feed as follows: I mix ap about one years and in that time have opened peck of cut hay with two quarts of and examined both horses and cattle bran, and the same proportion of in large numbers that have died from . this same trouble, I think I know whereof I speak. The cause of the trouble is that the animal is expected to eat enough of those weather-beater stalks to supply them with nourishment. An animal has therefore to eat almost all day and all night to do it The system of an animal does not furnish moisture enough to digest the fodder that has been eaten. The consequence is that gases are formed in the bowels and these cause death. I have examined several cattle and horses that died this fall in this part of the state. They had died while or dry pasture and an examination showed that the cause of death was indigestion, just the same as in the case of animals fed on dry stalks. I have pastured stalks on my farm all my life and never lost an animal. The only remedy I know is to feed grain to the stock while pasturing the corn stalks. The reason that stalks cut as bleached until no juice is left in them to help digestion. There is no poison nor contagiousness about animals tha die from this complaint.-S. R. Mc-Anulty, Adams County, Illinois.

> Inspection of Export Dairy Products The inspectors of export dairy products will use great care in stamping the butter that is to go abroad. They are expressly directed not to inspect or certify to any butter which belongs to the commercial grades, known as indled, factory, process or renovated, or any skimmed or partly skimmed cheese. They are also to exclude lots of butter and cheese, no matter how good in quality, which are in peop packages, or such as are unsuited to the requirements and perils of the export trade. They are instructed to decline to mark or certify to any products which upon their packages or otherwise bear commercial or other marks, labels, or brands which misrepresent the true nature, character, or grade of such products. The government indorsement will be withheld in any case where it is proposed to export "dairy" or "imitation creamery butter marked as "creamery," al-though entirely satisfactory in quality and otherwise suitable for export.

Balain; Early Lambs. From Farmersj' Review: My experience and observation convinces me that the small farmer that is well located near a city and fixed with proper buildings; warm, with south exposure for cold weather, and who will go at it in a business-like way, can make plenty of money in raising early market lambs. A man should not keep more than he can care for and feed aright. He should choose some good mutton breed. The Southdowns have proved to be the best in most places and are the best sellers. However, great things in this line are claimed for some of the other breeds. Private trade is a great thing in early lamb marketing. Wherever possible the lamb raiser should engage his lamb crop to some fancy hotel. Then raise for your customer good fat Southdown lambs that will delight his patrons, and he will be your good buyer next year.—Chas. J. Stuckey, Champaign County, Ohio.

WRECKED BY WIND.

Deal of Damage, 2

Dallas, Tex., March 12,-Accompanied by a high wind, a murky, funnelshaped cloud swept across the middle portion of this county from the southvest to northeast Tuesday afternoon, leaving in its path nine bruised or maimed human beings and the debris of buildings which represents a loss of from $35,000 to $40,000.

The cyclone squarely struck the little town of De Soto, fourteen miles southwest from here, cleaved a way through the populous neighborhood lying a short distance south of Chestnut Hill on the Hutchins road, and after doing some damage in the vicinity of Orphans' Home, trace was lost of it.

Nine persons were maimed or bruised.

Evidences that the cyclone was the most serious this county has known are numerous. Substantial houses were lifted up and dashed to pieces as easily as if they had been but shantles. Barns, outhouses and fences were demolished, and heavy objects carried en in twain, and for two or three hours vastated districts was cut off.

That it was so speedily restored is due to the efforts of the great force of men which the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone company hastily sent out. Equally prompt was the work of the followed by a heavy rain, and they were drenched to the skin, they did not stop until all the debris had been searched and the last injured person cared for.

H. Featherston, who was in a store on the outskirts of Chestnut Hill, used his phone, which was the only one in the vicinity remaining in good order, to summon physicians as soon as he saw the damage that had been done.

He then joined the relief party. Much the same thing was done at

Reports received say that both the Hutchins road and DeSoto communities were struck at the same tmie, and this serves to confirm the impression the same black cloud.

Next to the wreck itself, the promptness in the settlement of claims has attracted most attention. In addition to the four claim agents who were here immediately after the wreck and have since remained, the general claim agent has arrived. One of these stated that their work had been practically concluded.

King, a farmer living three miles south of town, was killed by ligtning during a thunder storm here Tuesday afternoon. Deceased was about 30 years old. A few minutes later the residence of Mr. Bentle was struck by a strong wind and demolished. Mrs. Bentle had an arm broken and sustained other serious injuries.

ROUND BALE CASE.

Portions of Dallas County Sustain a Great Supreme Court Remands it for Decision

Austin, Tex., March 11.-The supreme court, in an opinion by Associate Justice Brown, reversed and remanded to the court of civil appeals, Third district, the case of the railroad commission of Texas vs. Weld & Noville et al., from Travis. This is the case wherein Weld & Neville sued the railroad commission to compel it to adopt, for the transportation of round bale cotton compressed to a density of, forty pounds or greater to the cubic foot rates 10 per cent less than apply on bales of less density, or those in the present cotton tariff.

The district court held in favor of Weld & Neville, declaring the rates unjust and unreasonable, but did not provide for the enforcement of the indgment. For this latter reason the Third court of appeals dismissed the appeal taken in the case, holding that there was no final judgment.

The supreme court granted a writ of error and held that the judgment of the district court was final, and remanded it to the appellate court to be great distances in the air. Although the cyclone was sonable has been rendered; that the trial court was confined to those provisions in entering judgment and relicf., and that therefore the only question at issue was the reasonableness of the rates.

"The jurisdiction of the court is limited to the determination of that issue." On that point the court further says: "There can be no difference of opinion as to the legal proposition that a judgment which terminates the action in which it is rendered and completely disposes of the case as to all parties, so far as the court has power to do so, is a final judgment."

Promising Young Pianist.

Louis Elbel, the young planist of South Bend, Ind., who has just scored a new triumph at Leipsic before a critical audience of 4,000 people, left a few years ago to study music under the German masters. His preparatory work was done in Chicago and Boston, wind lulled about daybreak and the fire and he then gave promise of everything he has since accomplished. His first concert at Leipsic last summer at once won him the highest praise from the most critical judges of pianoforte art in Germany. His recent success has made him the envy of the young native artists in Leipsic. He was the star of the Philharmonic recitals and completely captured the large audiences with the greatest triumph ever scored by an American. Mr. Eibel will make Germany his future home.
