Passes in House...

Balanced budget clears first hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The balanced budget amendment crossed its first big threshold, passing the House and moving to the Senate, where a tough battle was expected over an idea that would revolutionize the way Congress does business.

"This is a historic moment for our country," an elated House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., said after the 300-132 bipartisan vote Thursday. "We kept our promise," made in the Republican "Contract With America," to begin to restore fiscal integrity to Congress.

Passage represented a major victory for the GOP, which came up with 12 more votes than the two-thirds majority needed to approve a constitutional amendment. Seventy-two Democrats — more than a third of those voting — joined the Republicans.

With the amendment behind them, House Republicans now can move on to other key aspects of their "Contract," including ending unfunded federal mandates and passing new anti-crime measures and welfare reform.

Despite the strong House approval, the amendment faced a tough battle in the Senate, which was expected to take up the measure within two weeks. It needs two-thirds approval by the Senate and then would have to be ratified by three-fourths of the states to become the 28th amendment to the Constitution.

"I believe we are going to do the same thing in the Senate," said Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a leading proponent of the amendment, but he added, "It's by no means certain."

The measure calls for a balanced budget beginning in 2002, or two years after ratification by the states, whichever comes later. The Republican-controlled Senate passed a balanced budget amendment in 1982, but it was rejected in the Democratic House. Since then the federal debt has more than doubled to $4.7 trillion.

White House press secretary

Mike McCurry used today's announcement that the economy grew at a robust annual rate of 4.5 percent in the fourth quarter of 1994 to underscore President Clinton's concerns about the amendment.

"The president ... wants a balanced budget, but the president also wants the details on how the House would propose to meet the new constitutional requirements they outline in an amendment to the Constitution," McCurry said.

CRMWD revenues up for '94

Thanks to a 2.58 percent gain in water sales — 394 million gallons more than in 1993 — the Colorado River Municipal Water District finished 1994 with net revenues of $8,081,898, up 4.45 percent.

Sales in excess of 17 billion gallons contributed to an increase of $158,924 or 1.93 percent, which offset a 5.54 percent hike in the total energy cost of $4,560,093, mostly due to the additional volume of water.

Income for the year was $17,462,423, up 3.04 percent. Of this, 96 percent came from water sales of $16,779,084.

CRMWD officials called recreational services "a star" with an income of $321,889, up 34.68 percent over estimates, largely because of Lake O.H. Ivie's popularity.

Operating expenses were $6,625,985, or 4.42 percent under budget.

Most of net revenues go to debt service, and in this, the district received $5,431,553 from Midland, San Angelo and WCTMWD (Abilene), associated with the district in the Lake Ivie and pipeline projects.

At the end of the year, the district's three reservoirs contained 720,670 acre feet, half of capacity. The difficulty was that 526,220 acre feet was in Lake Ivie, not yet being utilized. Lake E.V. Spence had 172,820 acre feet, 35.17 percent, Lake J.B. Thomas 21,500 acre feet, or just 10.57 percent.

Illustrative of the quality control problem was the diversion by the district of 13,550 acre feet of low-quality low stream flow into its Mitchell County evaporative reservoir.

tion against the defense.

Among the witnesses at issue Thursday was one who could be crucial to Simpson's fate: Mary Anne Gerchas, who says she saw four men running from the murder scene about the time Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were killed.

Darden said Gerchas has written $10,000 in bad checks, defrauded a hotel chain of $23,000 in room expenses and may be using an assumed name.

Her attorney, Harvey Levin, said she was distraught over the attacks on her character.

Counts to head natural resources panel in House

AUSTIN — Rep. David Counts (D-Knox City) will again chair the Natural Resources Committee in the Texas House of Representatives.

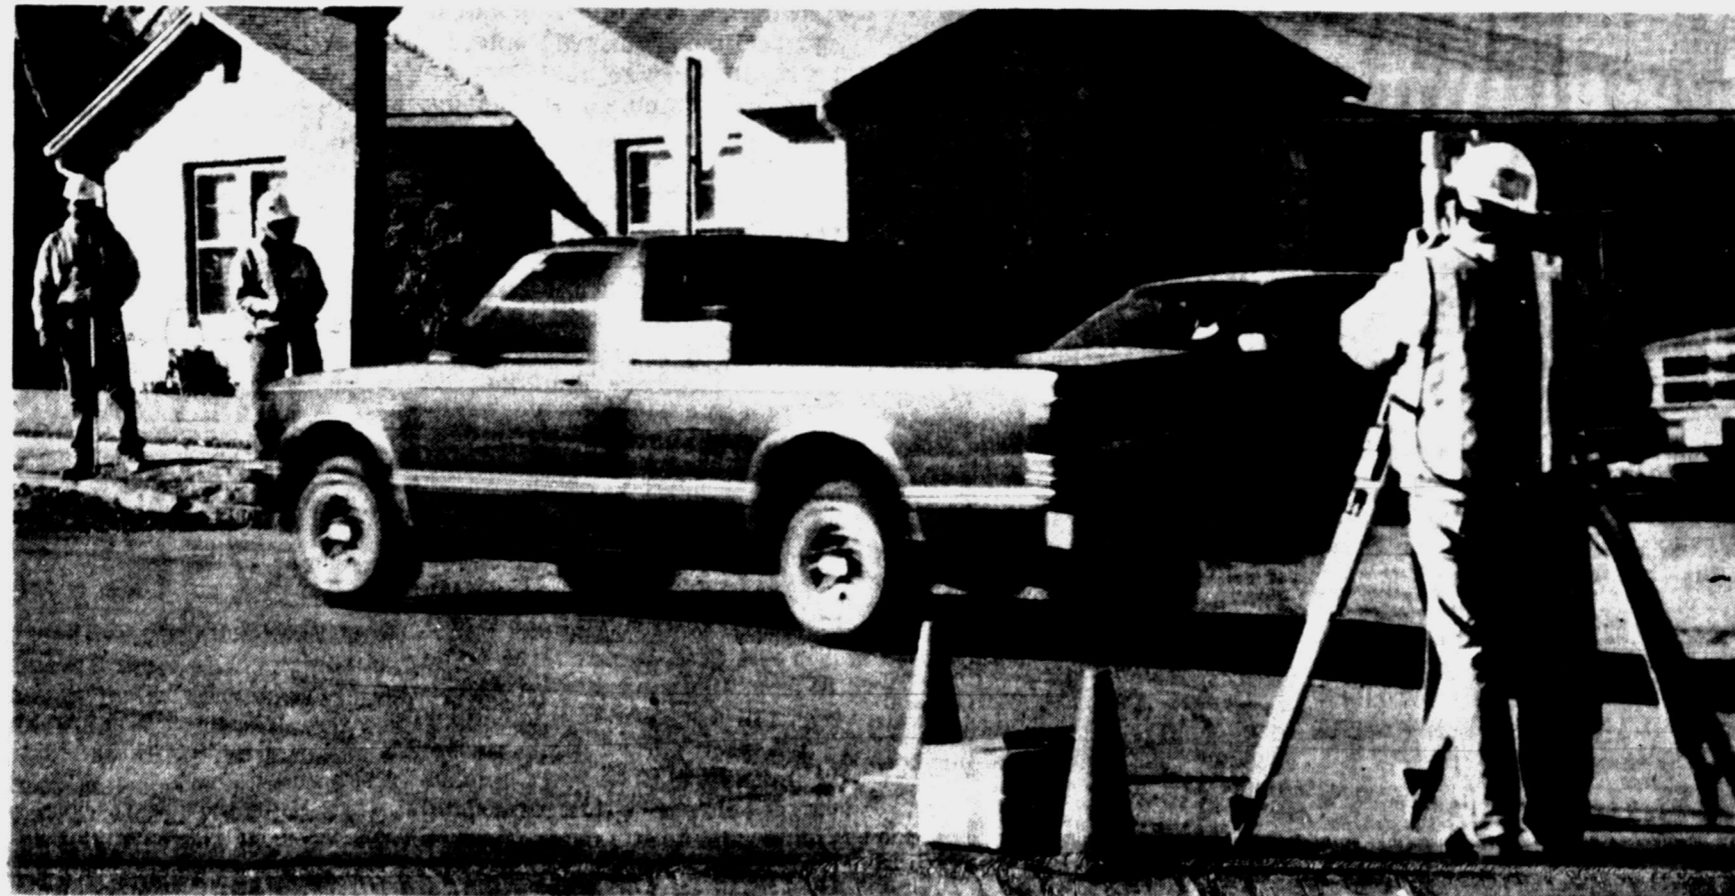

Counts, state representative from District 70 which includes Scurry County, was among 36 chairmen named Thursday by House Speaker Pete Laney of Hale Center.

"I am truly honored that Speaker Laney reappointed me," said Counts. "Due to court mandates, the issue of the Edwards Aquifer dominated much of the committee's time during the last session. I want to refocus our efforts during the 74th session to bring rural water issues to the forefront and protect our state water rights."

The primary responsibility of the Natural Resources Committee is the regulation and protection of land and water in the state. The committee also oversees the usage of water for irrigation and many other agricultural purposes.

Other key appointments include Robert Junell of San Angelo as head of the appropriations committee; Allen Hightower of Huntsville, corrections; Allen Place of Gatesville, criminal jurisprudence; Irma Rangel of Kingsville, higher education; Paul Sadler of Henderson, public education; Bob Hunter of Abilene, federal and international relations; and Tom Craddock of Midland, ways and means.

Counts will also serve on the insurance committee.

Skirmishing in court escalates

Judge orders Simpson trial recessed until Monday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Skirmishes over evidence in the O.J. Simpson trial degenerated into sarcasm and name-calling as fuming prosecutors accused defense lawyers of lying and demanded that jurors be told about it.

Continuing a bitter tirade that began in the middle of the defense's opening statement, prosecutors urged the judge Thursday to punish defense attorneys for "trial by ambush."

The source of the prosecution's ire was the last-minute submission of statements from defense witnesses — including a woman who says she saw four men speeding away from the area of the murders about the time they took place.

"Morally, it's a violation of the jurors' right to the truth," complained Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark. "They've been lied to, they've been deceived, they've gotten half-truths from counsel, they have deliberately shown them items taken out of context."

State law requires both sides to share information in a timely manner. Prosecutors asked Superior Court Judge Lance Ito to delay the trial for 30 days and allow prosecutors to make another opening statement. Ito responded by recessing the trial until Monday, forcing yet another postponement of the conclusion of the defense's opening statement.

Jurors spent hours in a courthouse waiting room, unaware of the chaos in the courtroom.

The battle, which began with a key prosecutor, William Hodgman, still in the hospital after suffering chest pains Wednesday night, quickly erupted into full-fledged war.

Deputy District Attorney Chris Darden repeatedly sneered at the phrase "Dream Team," a label that has been applied to Simpson's high-powered attorneys. He accused the defense of unethical conduct and denigrated the new witnesses as a gang of "heroin addicts, thieves, felons ... and the only person I have ever known to be a court-certified pathological liar."

Defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. called the attack on defense witnesses "outrageous."

"Whenever they stand up to talk, judge, it has to be character assassination," Cochran said. "Anybody that they don't call (to testify) becomes some very bad person."

Fights over evidence have plagued the Simpson case from the start. Mostly, the defense has complained that prosecutors failed to produce witness lists and evidence on time. The judge punished prosecutors by forbidding them to use the material until the defense had time to investigate. He recently issued a similar sanc-

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: It's also tougher in New Mexico.

While Texas has new, stiffer laws for driving while intoxicated, so does the Land of Enchantment.

The Lovington Daily Leader reported that a 70-year-old man with 14 drunken driving convictions was sentenced to serve two years in prison for felony DWI, failure to stop at a stop sign, no insurance and no registration.

Under the tougher law in New Mexico, the DA only had to persuade jurors that the defendant had three prior felony convictions.

While on the subject of fighting crime, the Col-

The unit was originally designed for 1,100 beds, with 200 of those designated for female offenders. However, in order to stay within budget, Colorado City's and two other sites had the women's section eliminated.

The planned facility will be made up of nine buildings located on 29 acres adjacent to the existing Wallace unit. Aug. 11 is the targeted completion date.

Key Simpson defense witness has been sued numerous times

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jeweler who claimed to see four men speeding away from the area where Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were killed has been sued at least 34 times on allegations that include fraud, court records show.

Mary Anne Gerchas was among 14 surprise witnesses that defense lawyer Johnnie Cochran Jr. disclosed Wednesday during his opening statement in the O.J. Simpson trial.

Cochran criticized the district attorney's office for turning a deaf ear to Gerchas' claims, which could help exonerate Simpson.

Without naming names, Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden said Thursday that the last-minute defense witnesses included "heroin addicts, thieves, felons ... (and) a court-certified pathological liar."

He described Gerchas as unreliable.

"We have only known of this witness 24 hours," Darden told Superior Court Judge Lance Ito, "and already we know she has nine lawsuits pending in the D.A.'s office. In our bad check section, there are $10,000 approximately in bad checks that relate to this person."

Gerchas declined to comment when reached at her store, Mary-Anne Fine Jewelry, located on the city's west side near the University of California, Los Angeles campus.

"Everybody's told me not to say anything," she said. She referred questions to her lawyer, Gary Livingston, who also declined to comment.

According to court records, Gerchas has been sued at least nine times in Los Angeles County Superior Court and at least 25 times in municipal courts.

She has been accused of defrauding or failing to pay suppliers, customers, landlords and even her elderly aunt, Genevieve Dennis, who filed suit in 1991 seeking to recover $10,000 she loaned her niece.

Dennis' attorney, William Pardee, said Gerchas wrote two checks for $1,500 each, but both bounced.

In December, the Marriott hotel chain accused Gerchas of failing to pay a $24,000 bill for a four-month stay while her home was remediated to repair earthquake damage.

Gingrich says...

Republicans don't want to abolish public television

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Newt Gingrich says Republicans who now control Congress must watch what they say, and say it carefully. And he speaks from experience.

The Georgia Republican said he erred by saying he wanted to eliminate federal funding for public television because his statement "maximized the fear level" and "broke down the dialogue."

In a speech at a dinner in his honor Thursday night, Gingrich said he should have made it clear that he didn't want to end public television, which some conservatives believe is biased toward liberals.

brushed away tears after being greeted by a standing ovation and wild applause.

About 2,000 people paid between $1,000 and $1,500 to attend the National Republican Congressional Committee's "New Majority" dinner, its first in honor of Gingrich and the Republican majorities in Congress.

The dinner raised at least $2 million for the committee, which uses the money to help elect Republicans to Congress.

C-Span, the cable channel that covers Congress, dropped plans for live coverage of the dinner after sponsors nixed the network's plan to use two cameras — one on the speaker and one on the audience.

A spokesman said space limitations led to the NRCC's one-camera decision, not concerns about political contributors being identified on television.

The only contributor identified was National Wholesale Distributors, when NRCC Chairman Rep. Bill Paxon, R-N.Y., mentioned it in his welcoming remarks.

Gingrich plans to spend four days in New Hampshire later this spring, to vacation and attend fund-raising events in the state, which holds the nation's first presidential primary in 1996.

"We're going to have Sesame Street," which he said makes $1 billion a year. "We're going to have Barney."

But "I said it backwards because it broke down the dialogue."

Gingrich, the first Republican speaker of the House of Representatives in 40 years, said Republicans are committed to keeping good television.

But at a time when they have pledged to review every federal program, he said the GOP wants to continue public television "in such a manner that the taxpayer doesn't have to subsidize a billion dollar-a-year program."

Gingrich caused an uproar late last year by saying he wants to eliminate funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which receives and distributes federal funds to public stations and groups.

CPB gets all of its money from Congress. It received $285.6 million this year, representing about 14 percent of the public broadcasting industry's $1.8 billion budget.

Gingrich said he didn't realize his mistake until he had a conversation Thursday with a public television station manager from a Democratic district. He did not identify the individual or the district.

"When I thought I was being frugal to get a balanced budget, he thought I was being hostile to his existence," said Gingrich, who

Luft to speak at East Side's Fifth Sunday

Dr. Gary Luft, director of Christian Counseling Services in Snyder, will be the guest speaker Sunday at East Side Church of Christ's Fifth Sunday lecture series. The theme will be "Building Better Marriages."

The day's events are scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. with a lesson entitled, "The Keys to Healthy Marital Relationships," followed by "The Freedom of Forgiveness" at 10:25 a.m.

A pot luck dinner will be held in East Side's multipurpose building at 12 noon.

A lesson entitled, "If What You're Doing Isn't Working, Try Something Else," will wrap up the day's events.

All lessons are Bible-based and honed by the practical experience of working with families. Dr. Luft has done research and taught about the family and worked with troubled families for the past 10 years in Texas, Missouri, and Ohio.

Golfers mourn mascot's death

'Americas' reminisce for 75th

NEW YORK (AP) — There she is. There she is. There she is

It was a walk down memory runway Thursday as nine Miss Americas from the 1930s through 1990s swapped stories and tearful reminiscences to celebrate the pageant's 75th anniversary.

They called each other "sisters," testified to the power of the crown and obediently took commands from a horde of photographers and camera crews as they cut an anniversary cake.

Reigning Miss America Heather Whitestone cried. Jean Bartel (1943) couldn't stop talking. Phyllis George (1971) called her reign "the ultimate risk."

All agreed on one thing: "Miss America opens doors like nothing else in life," as George said.

Pageant organizers took advantage of the gathering to unveil a series of changes in this year's event, including a cyberspace venture to put contestants in touch with users of the America Online computer service.

Other initiatives include the formation of a Miss America Foundation for women, and a partnership with President Clinton's Corporation for National Service to encourage Americans to do community service.

None of the changes, however, was as significant as last year's decision to jettison the spiked heels traditionally worn in the bathing suit competition. Officials didn't say whether the heels would return this year.

The Miss America pageant began in 1921 as a bathing suit contest on the Boardwalk in Atlantic City. It was conceived by civic leaders eager to get people to stay at the Jersey shore past Labor Day.

Sixty-eight winners, 14 U.S. presidents and three wars later, the pageant is still stung by criticism that it patronizes women by parading them in front of a national television audience in swimwear.

Some of the former Miss Americas referred to the issue. Bartel said she didn't want to enter the pageant when she was a second-year student at UCLA because it was too "cheesecake."

But others said the contest transcends objectification.

Jacqueline Mayer (1963) said competing gives women confidence and builds self-esteem. She credited the poise and determination she developed as a contestant with helping her through a 1970 stroke that left her partially paralyzed.

Whitestone, deaf since age 11/2, fought back tears as she talked about a young girl her dance teacher recently met. The girl said she idolized and was inspired by Whitestone.

AMARILLO (AP) — Members of a Panhandle country club are outraged over the shooting death of the dog they had raised from a pup to be the club mascot.

"Kujo" turned up about 10 years ago at the Clarendon Country Club, about 60 miles southeast of Amarillo, and began to follow the golfers around.

She observed golf course etiquette, refrained from chasing balls or blocking tee shots and stayed out of the pool. So club members fed her, and she made her own bed from a sack thrown under a bench.

Kujo became the club's mascot and her picture showed up on club caps, T-shirts, towels and even its flag.

"She really had a personality," said member Ellis Knight. "When she showed her teeth, it really looked like she was grinning at you. Everybody around here just fell in love with her."

Member Carol Hinton said she and other members speculated that Kujo was a German shepherd-coyote mix. If so, the coyote in her is probably what got her killed, she said.

Club members found 14 shell casings near U.S. 70, where somebody in a passing car is believed to have shot Kujo. No club members witnessed the shooting, but several reported hearing gunshots around noon Jan. 16.

When they realized the dog was missing on Jan. 17, club members began a search and found her body in some brush in the southeast corner of the course.

"Whoever did it just absolutely blew her up," Ms. Hinton said. "Even if the person thought she was a coyote, that's no excuse."

Club members speculated Kujo may have been chasing rabbits near the highway.

"She was always hunting something on that golf course," member Vernon Watkins said.

How to monitor anti-convulsant drug

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a seizure two years ago and am on Dilantin for control. Do you have any information on this medication?

DEAR READER: Most seizures are caused by random bursts of abnormal electrical charges in the brain, leading to uncontrolled movements and loss of consciousness.

Dilantin (phenytoin) is one of several anti-convulsant drugs that inhibit the spread of abnormal electrical activity in the nervous system. This medicine is a widely used, effective and relatively safe product.

However, patients who are prescribed Dilantin must have periodic blood tests to monitor the level of the drug in the body. Excess Dilantin leads to poor coordination, slurred speech, confusion, dizziness, insomnia, muscle twitching, and nervousness, as well as nausea, vomiting, liver damage, bone marrow toxicity, and other complications.

You should ask your doctor to answer your specific questions about Dilantin — or request further information from your pharmacist.

To give you more information on your seizures, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Epilepsy: The Falling Sickness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm experiencing double vision (side by side). Is there an exercise to control my eye muscles? What progression will this condition likely make?

DEAR READER: Double vision (whether horizontal or vertical) indicates that the muscles controlling eye movements are unbalanced. This can result from injury, infection, stroke, tumors, congenital paralysis, or neurological disorders, such as multiple sclerosis.

You should be examined by an ophthalmologist, who will examine your eyes to see which muscles are malfunctioning, test you further with X-rays and blood analyses, and prescribe special lenses to compensate for the disorder. There is no drug therapy.

Without knowing the cause of your diplopia (double vision), I cannot predict whether it will progress. But I doubt that exercises will solve the problem. The specialists can advise you.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What makes me take quick, involuntary gasps when I'm totally at ease? I'm a healthy, active 64-year-old, but the habit is becoming more regular as time passes.

Latest Smithsonian exhibit continues to spark debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution may cancel or shrink a large exhibit on the atomic bombing of Japan that would have included part of the plane that dropped the first bomb, a member of the museum's board of regents says.

The exhibit had been the subject of heated debate over how it would deal with the justification for the bombing and its aftermath.

"I got the impression that it was going to be canceled," Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., said in an interview after meeting earlier this week with Smithsonian Secretary I. Michael Heyman.

The planned 10,000-square-foot exhibit centered on the actual fuselage of the Enola Gay, the B-29 bomber that dropped the first of two atomic bombs on Japan in 1945, was scheduled to open in May at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum.

Cochran said on Thursday that Heyman told him the Board of Regents, which includes Vice President Al Gore and Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist among its members, also may be asked at its regular quarterly meeting next Monday to approve a "showing of the fuselage itself in some noncontroversial way."

Linda St. Thomas, a spokeswoman for the Smithsonian, confirmed that Heyman had been talking with various regents this week and that he plans to hold a news conference immediately after their meeting Monday.

Molasses leak stalls traffic

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Pancakes, anyone? A truck carrying huge tubs of molasses hit a rough spot on an expressway and spilled thousands of gallons of goo, clogging rush-hour traffic for hours.

The truck driver, unaware that a plastic tub had ruptured, carried the leaking mess a half-mile down the four-lane highway, said police spokeswoman Regina Coones. No injuries were reported.

Drivers were, well, stuck in traffic. Eastbound lanes were closed for four hours.

"Where were the biscuits?" Coones asked. "They're never around when you need one."

"It's at that meeting it will be decided what will happen with the Enola Gay exhibit," she said. "I don't know whether he has a single recommendation."

After a yearlong debate on the issue, the American Legion last week demanded that the Smithsonian cancel the exhibit, complaining that it portrayed the United States as the aggressor in the war.

About 210,000 Japanese were killed by the bombs, which brought about a swift surrender and made an invasion unnecessary.

The Legion's national commander, William Detweiler, objected to the Smithsonian's decision to lower the exhibit's estimate of the number of Americans who would have perished in an invasion of Japan. The text says 63,000, not the 229,000 originally estimated.

"The exhibit still says, in essence, that we were the aggressors and the Japanese were the victims," Detweiler said.

And 81 members of Congress this week called for firing the Air and Space Museum's director, Martin Harwit, for refusing to make changes in the exhibit wanted by the veterans.

One of four new Republican regents named since the GOP took control of Congress earlier this month, Cochran said he had reviewed the latest proposed scripts of written and audio-visual material that would be part of the exhibit.

"I concluded that it was not the kind of exhibit that would fit the image I had of the Smithsonian's Air and Space Museum, and I told him I thought it ought to be canceled," Cochran said of his conversation Tuesday with Heyman.

Among the issues to be decided Monday, he said, are whether the exhibit should include taped statements from the Enola Gay's pilot and crew several years afterward, recalling their feelings and recollections about the bombing.

"I'm trying to keep an open mind," he said. "It's appropriate for us to remember a very historical mission, and this plane is the symbol of that. But we shouldn't try to indict anyone with this exhibit. That's what I want to prevent from being done."

"Obviously there was a large number of people killed and hurt in that event, but there were large numbers of people killed and hurt throughout the entire war, and you have to have that context. It was the costliest and bloodiest war in the history of mankind, and it was ended with the use of this bomb," Cochran said.

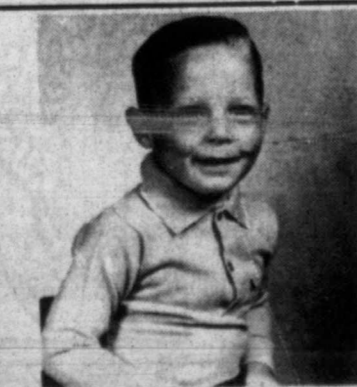

Among those who have sided with the American Legion in the dispute are offspring of Japanese immigrants who served in the U.S. Army.

Gene therapy studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Animal tests indicate that arteries opened after being clogged can be kept open by coating them with a gene now used to slow cancer growth.

Dr. Jeffrey Leiden reports in today's Journal Science that the new treatment prevents the blockages instead of attacking them once they're formed — making it potentially a safer, simpler choice than other proposed therapies.

Researchers at the University of Chicago, experimenting with pigs and rats, showed that coating blood vessels with the gene could cut in half the reblockage of arteries that commonly occurs after balloon angioplasty.

"It doesn't kill cells, so you don't run the risk of weakening or altering the vessel wall," Leiden explained. "And the gene's there one or two weeks and then ... its work is done. It's a real hit-and-run approach."

"That sounds very exciting," said Dr. David Harrison, an artery expert at Emory University. "If you got something like this to work, it would be a huge breakthrough."

Scientists have long wrestled with restenosis, the relogging of arteries in 40 percent of heart patients who undergo balloon angioplasty.

In angioplasty, a balloon inflated inside an artery pushes aside a clog to allow better blood flow. But the process injures the vessel wall, and the body responds by growing new cells. Some 100,000 Americans a year grow too many cells; relogging the artery in four to six months.

Drugs so far haven't helped. A special device called a stent can hold about a third of arteries open, but patients risk blood clots or uncontrolled bleeding.

So researchers have turned to gene therapy.

Lots of points, few tricks

Everyone who plays bridge for money is a bad card holder, or so it seems. Why do you think that is?

South had been losing one rubber after another when today's deal occurred. He held 25 points, yet he finished with another minus score.

South's auction, an artificial two-club opening followed by a jump to three no-trump, showed a balanced 25-27 points. South won the first trick with the spade queen, led the diamond king and continued with the diamond jack. However, West knew enough to hold up his ace. At this point, the contract was beyond redemption. Do you see how South might have tricked better?

With six top tricks and two more tricks guaranteed in diamonds, South had two main chances to generate the ninth trick. Either the diamond ace could be singleton or doubleton, or something could be done in clubs. How could two tricks come from the clubs? If the suit was 3-3, or if either opponent held the K-Q doubleton, or if West held Q-x or K-x. If you do the arithmetic, you find that the chances in clubs are almost double those in diamonds.

The correct play is to duck a club at trick two. You win the major-suit return and cash the club ace. You plan to continue with another club, but when West drops the king, you lead a diamond to dummy's nine, which must be ducked, and play a club toward hand.

If South had played correctly, he would have made his contract. Have you noticed how often the grumblers — bad card holders included — have misplayed, not been unlucky?

Some lawmakers want to stop the reintroduction of wolves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Western Republican lawmakers are hoping to garner enough support in Congress to thwart an Interior Department program aimed at reviving the gray wolf population in the northern Rocky Mountains.

Nevertheless, Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt on Thursday strongly defended the recent reintroduction by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service of 29 wolves from Canada into Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming and parts of central Idaho. About 60 wolves have migrated on their own from Canada into Montana.

The department hopes the number of wolves, whose species was decimated in the West by a campaign of organized extermination earlier this century, will grow to about 300 in the three states by 2002.

Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, chairman of the House Resources Committee, said he expects further hearings on the wolf controversy, and appropriations committees also are likely to examine the costs involved in the program.

Sens. Conrad Burns, R-Mont., and Craig Thomas, R-Wyo., who oppose the wolf reintroduction, said they also planned hearings on the program in the Senate, including a review of its cost.

The Interior Department has spent $5.2 million on the program so far, with further spending expected to total $6.7 million through 2002.

"This critter evokes intense emotion. It has for a thousand years," Babbitt said at the hearing. But he argued that Yellowstone "needs the wolf" to restore the area's natural balance and reduce growing populations of elk and deer.

"There is room in the West for wolves," he said, adding that he believes the closely managed reintroduction of the predator into the Yellowstone ecosystem will be better in the long run than if wolves were allowed simply to migrate from Canada on their own.

If elk and deer need to be culled in Yellowstone, Rep. Helen Chenoweth, R-Idaho, said, a better way would be to open the park to hunters.

Almost all national parks are protected from hunting and Babbitt said he would strongly oppose hunting at Yellowstone, the best-known and crown jewel of the national park system.

District race continues with Estacado tonight

In a world where perfection is frequently unattainable, the Snyder Tigers will attempt to hit their stride tonight against the Lubbock Estacado Matadors.

The Matadors (16-8, 3-1) are coming off a 77-59 pasting of Lamesa on Tuesday and currently sit in second place behind District 5-4A leader Levelland, which they lost to 57-50 a week ago.

"They (Estacado) have tremendous talent," Snyder head coach Bud Birks said. "They can all handle the ball well, but the biggest thing they do is hit the offensive boards and that makes them extremely tough to defend."

How the Tigers rebound, both offensively and defensively, should decide the game, one way or another, according to Birks.

"Not only will we have to hit the boards hard, but we must do the little things, like hustling for loose balls, in order to win."

Snyder (11-13, 0-4) has struggled in District 5-4A play, losing four straight games, after beginning the season above .500.

"We can and will play better than we have," Birks said. "We are going to get out of this slump."

The Lady Tigers (9-17, 3-3) need to win tonight in order to keep pace with district forerunners Levelland and Frenship, after dropping their last game to the No. 1-ranked Loboettes.

Snyder head coach Steve Qualls apparently felt that his squad needed more offensive punch, so he enlisted the talents of junior varsity stars Tiffany Garza and Jina Miller, both of whom may see action tonight.

Snyder JV girls split games, JV boys continue to struggle

The Snyder junior varsity Lady Tigers look to get back on track tonight as they face off against Lubbock Estacado here at 5.

The Lady Tigers have split their last two games as they head into tonight's contest. After an impressive victory over Lamesa last week, Snyder fell flat to a strong Levelland team Tuesday.

Against Lamesa the Lady Tigers hit 24 of 37 from the free-throw line and Tiffany Garza scored 30 points en route to a 68-47 victory.

Snyder led at halftime 30-24, then proceeded to put the Lady Tors away in the second outscoring them 38-22.

Garza's 30 points were a season high, sparked by a 10 of 14 night from the foul line.

Darla Blackwell added eight points and Jina Miller and Sharon Gulseth each scored seven.

In the Levelland game, Snyder (14-12, 3-3) was simply overmatched, as the Loboettes scored 30 first-half points and controlled the second half on way to a 53-22 win.

The Lady Tigers were led by Darla Blackwell, who had eight points.

"Against Lamesa, we came out fired up, we were very aggressive," Snyder head coach Billy Hicks said. "It was clearly one of the best efforts of the year."

"In the Levelland game, they just pushed us around and forced us out of what we wanted to accomplish."

Not only did the Levelland game signify a loss on the scoreboard for the Lady Tigers, but the loss of two integral players, Jina

Miller and Tiffany Garza, to the varsity ranks.

"They (Jina and Tiffany) will be missed," Hicks said. "But, I've got plenty of people on this team that can play."

With the loss of two starters, Hicks pulled Brooke McGuire up from the freshmen squad to help fill in.

"She has looked good in practice," he said. "She will definitely get some playing time."

The junior varsity boys, meanwhile, continue their slide in the district standings.

The Tigers are coming off back-to-back losses to both Lamesa and Levelland, as they head into tonight's matchup against Estacado at 5.

Snyder lost to the Golden Tors 64-51 last week, before falling 65-34 to Levelland Tuesday.

Against Lamesa, the Tigers jumped out to an 11-3 first quarter lead and took a 38-23 advantage into intermission, but a strong comeback by the Tors left Snyder starting at a 41-22 run to end the game.

Matthew Fambro led the Tigers with 15 points and Ramsey Castillo poured in 13. Justin Bailey contributed six for Snyder.

In the Levelland game, Snyder led at the end of the first quarter 17-16, but never led again as the Loboettes outscored the Tigers 18-4 in the second to claim a 34-21 halftime advantage.

Snyder received a team-high 10 points from Donnie Durst and Fambro scored seven. Bailey had six points in the loss.

Frank Phillips dumps WTC Lady Westerners remain confident despite recent slide

BORGER — The painful sting of losing continues to keep the Western Texas Lady Westerners down, but don't count them out.

WTC lost its fourth straight game Thursday, falling to the Lady Plainsmen of Frank Phillips College 89-73.

"They (Frank Phillips) had more opportunities to convert shots during the course of the game," Western Texas head coach Brenda Welch-Nichols said. "We just got out shot."

The Lady Westerners had difficulty rebounding in the first half, as they trailed 39-37 at intermission. Western Texas, however, pounded the offensive boards in the second half, according to Nichols.

"I told the girls at halftime that I wanted them to hit the boards and that helped us stay competitive early in the second half," Nichols said. "However, we just couldn't connect on our shots and that caused us to really begin to force things."

Western Texas (9-15, 2-4) got into foul trouble early and, according to Nichols, that contributed to them getting out of their game plan.

"We finally ran the offense on a consistent basis," she said. "We got some good looks at the basket, but the shots just weren't falling. It seemed like we just couldn't get into any sort of rhythm because of our foul situation."

Frank Phillips (13-9, 3-2) got the Lady Westerners into foul trouble in the second half, as three Western Texas players fouled out.

The Lady Westerners managed to stay in the game with good outside shooting, despite a lack of consistency on the inside. WTC knocked down nine 3-pointers, including three from Tammy Wilson and two apiece from Ericka Thompson and Carri Moss.

"We kept putting the outside shots in at crucial times," Nichols said. "The threes were key, but too many turnovers hurt us."

Jackie Wright led the Western Texas scoring with 20 points. She also ripped down 16 rebounds in the contest.

With the losses piling up the team and the coach have been a little down, but Nichols says that when teams begin to count WTC out, that is when they will run into problems.

"We have got to keep fighting," she said. "We've got to keep our heads up because we still have one more trip around the conference."

The players echo the coaches assessment of the remainder of the season.

"We did a lot of things right tonight, but we couldn't hit the easy shots," Carrell said. "We are finally starting to work the offense and a big part of that is the fact that we are becoming more of a team."

"We really did play as a team tonight" Wilson said.

Underdog or not, S.D. out to win

MIAMI (AP) — The San Diego Chargers discount predictions of a Super Bowl blowout. They expect that San Francisco will be able to stay close.

The Chargers are saying they plan to win. Oddsmakers, on the other hand, say the 49ers will fleece, flatten, trounce, trample, thrash, bash, blitz, berate, deflate, confuse, abuse and defuse the Chargers.

San Francisco is favored by 19 points — the largest point spread in Super Bowl history. That means a final score of 26-7. Or 39-20. Or 50-31.

The Chargers may be the only people in America who think they can win.

"According to the national news, we're not supposed to be here," San Diego linebacker Junior Seau said. "ABC's ratings will probably go down and tickets will depreciate because of us."

"All it does is show you're not respected, and you're not to the level where you should be respected yet. To get that, you have to do something rare. That's to win the Super Bowl."

It should be noted that the previous largest Super Bowl point spread was 18 points, and in that game, the underdogs won. Quarterback Joe Namath and the New York Jets pulled off an upset he guaranteed, beating Baltimore 16-7 in 1969 at Miami.

None of the no-chance Chargers has guaranteed a victory. None is about to concede defeat, either.

"I've never seen a game decided by the media yet," coach Bobby Ross said. "That's why we're playing the game. That's why people are buying the tickets. I think we have a legitimate chance."

That's as boastful as either team has been during a week free of fights, threats, insults, injuries, accidents or curfew violations. The biggest ripple was created by 49ers All-Pro receiver Jerry Rice, who said he might retire if his team wins Sunday.

With the lack of news, media questions keep coming back to one subject — the unprecedented point spread.

"To me, it wouldn't be an upset if we come out and win the game," Chargers running back Natrone Means said. "We're capable of winning."

But don't bet on it. All signs point in favor of the 49ers.

They led the NFL in scoring and eliminated two-time defending league champion Dallas to reach the Super Bowl for the fifth time since 1982. The Chargers, picked by some to finish last in the AFC West, struggled after a 6-0 start and needed desperate rallies in both playoff games to earn their first Super Bowl berth.

At this point, it's fair to wonder whether an AFC team could beat Tampa Bay in the Super Bowl; Recent NFC victories have been by such margins as 45, 36, 35, 32 and 22 points.

And none of those teams was favored by 19.

Mediator told to get baseball back on field

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton on Thursday gave baseball owners and players until Feb. 6 to show progress in their stalled strike talks or face a possible recommended settlement by the federal mediator.

"America has been living without baseball for far too long," Clinton said in a statement issued by the White House. "Now, as the strike drags on, it threatens the start of the 1995 season. It could well damage the economies of tens of thousands of workers whose jobs depend on baseball."

"And it trying the patience and depressing the spirits of millions of baseball fans — including me."

It is time for this strike to end," Clinton said he had spoken Wednesday and Thursday with Labor Secretary Robert Reich and with mediator W.J. Usery, whom the administrator appointed last Oct. 14 as special mediator.

"This morning, I asked Bill Usery to bring the owners and the players back to the table and to step up the pace and intensity of his mediation efforts," Clinton said. "I have asked him to report back to me by Feb. 6 with the progress they have made. If the parties have not reached an agreement by then — or are not on track toward a speedy settlement — I have asked Mr. Usery, if he believes it appropriate, to put forth his own recommendations for a proposed settlement between the parties."

Owners broke off negotiations Dec. 22 and implemented their salary cap proposal the following day. Acting commissioner Bud Selig says he wants talks to resume, and union head Donald Fehr says his side will be there whenever owners are ready to talk. But no talks are scheduled.

The strike, baseball's eighth work stoppage since 1972, canceled the final 669 games and 52 days of the 1994 season. And it wiped out the World Series for the first time since 1904.

With spring training scheduled to start Feb. 16, all teams except the Baltimore Orioles have begun hiring replacement players.

Brains causing differences in sexes

WASHINGTON (AP) — It isn't just their nature that makes men ready to fight while women display their emotions in a softer way, researchers say. The difference is in their brains.

Until now, said Ruben C. Gur, a neuropsychologist, the thinking was that the different ways the sexes respond to emotions was learned behavior. But his tests suggest that they may have a physical basis.

"The reason for the differences is a question studied extensively," said Gur, director of the brain behavior laboratory at the University of Pennsylvania. "So far, there is very little evidence linking directly brain function to those differences."

He and his colleagues determined that the brains of men and women are identical except in the region that deals with emotional processing.

Sophisticated scanning techniques showed the part controlling action-oriented responses was more active in men. The part of the brain thought to control more symbolic emotional responses was more active in women, the University of Pennsylvania scientists write in the journal Science.

The sexes differ in cognitive abilities, which include memory and judgment.

For instance, men tend to do better in tests in which they look at an object and try to imagine how it will look when rotated. Women do better at such abstract, mental dexterity tests as looking at different shapes, colors and sizes and sorting them according to a principle they have to guess at.

The differences also show in verbal memory, Gur said. "If you rattle off 15 items to get at the supermarket, women are more likely to remember the most. That's some of the wifely frustration when the husband comes back and has forgotten some of them. It may be endemic to his sex."

"There is a brain system known as the limbic system that we know is very heavily involved in the emotional process," he said. "If we stimulate an animal by electrical impulse in some regions of the limbic system, that animal will burst out in rage."

When people have brain lesions in those areas, he said, they may become unpredictable and "lash out without reason at people or become so placid they seem to have lost enjoyment in life."

The researchers tested 37 men and 24 women for brain activity in a machine similar to a CT scan. Radioactive glucose was administered as the subjects lay quietly in a dimly lit room. The scientists were able to measure activity as they followed consumption of sugar by the brain; the more sugar used, the brighter the image.

Men had higher activity in the limbic system, a part of the brain that remains from the era in evolution when reptiles flourished. Reptiles have the same components, but no one would expect them to contemplate a situation before lashing out.

Women showed more activity in one of the newer and more-refined parts of this system, the cingulate gyrus.

"The speculation is that the reason men are more inclined to express aggression instrumentally is because this is a part of the brain that is more active in men," he said. "Conversely, the part of the brain more active in women deals with more refined, symbolic means of emotional expression."

Gur said more aspects of behavior may relate to these systems.

"There is evidence men and women differ in their ability to detect emotions on the face," he said. "Women have no problem detecting sadness in the faces of other women where men have substantial difficulties detecting sadness in the face of women."

Milsap to sing

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Ronnie Milsap is settling down.

The six-time Grammy winner plans to open his own theater here in August, becoming the second major country singer to perform permanently in Myrtle Beach.

Milsap will perform at the 2,000-seat theater about 30 weeks a year.

Cash, cocaine seized

PASADENA (AP) — Authorities seized at least $5 million in cash and about 220 pounds of cocaine worth an estimated $10 million when they raided a house in this Houston suburb, police say.

The cash was stuffed in boxes inside the house when officers raided it on Thursday. Four adults were arrested.

Houston Assistant Police Chief Art Contreras said the raid, held in conjunction with the seizure of more than 17 pounds of cocaine worth about $800,000 at a southeast Houston apartment, put a dent into what authorities are calling a new and very organized drug ring.

Contreras said each package of cocaine was marked with a joker playing card that signifies the cartel through which the distribution center was operating.

"This is a new one (cartel) in Houston," he said. "We haven't seen this one before. It's new to us."

"This is the most significant amount of money that we have ever seized," Contreras said.

The house was a distribution center for narcotics and money in an area, Contreras said. The Internal Revenue Service took custody of money.

Houston narcotics Lt. Carl Driskell said different locations operated by the ring had been under police surveillance for more than a month. The Pasadena house had only recently come under police surveillance.

Officers received a call at 1:30 p.m. from the 1700 block of Avenue R in reference to someone in a pickup putting trash in a dumpster.

A woman notified the police department at 5:23 p.m. of small children playing in the street in the area of 16th Street and Avenue E.

A sheriff's deputy investigated a report of a prowler at 12:48 a.m. today at a home on County Road 4126 where the caller had found the door open on a camper.

Also, officers investigated two minor wrecks Thursday.

Involved in a two-vehicle accident that occurred at 3:10 p.m. at the intersection of 30th Street and Avenue E were a 1977 Oldsmobile driven by Dorothy Dean of 903 30th St. and a 1985 Ford driven by Ruben Gonzales of 708 28th St.

A minor accident was investigated in the parking lot of Lawrence IGA at 8:30 p.m. Involved were a 1990 Ford owned by Damien Clayton which was parked and unoccupied and a 1993 Chevrolet pickup which was parked and occupied by Andres Campos.

Woman convicted of scalding son

HOUSTON (AP) — A 19-year-old woman whose 2-year-old son died after she held him in scalding water for at least 10 days to get help has been sentenced to 75 years in jail for intentionally injuring her child.

Anita Yvonne Williams was convicted and punished Thursday for behavior Assistant District Attorney Sandra Cawley called "inexcusable and inexplicable."

"There were numerous opportunities to get medical care for that child and she refused to do it," Ms. Cawley said. "The jury knew that child was suffering."

Defense lawyer Felix Cantu told the jury Ms. Williams herself was a victim, claiming her mother sold her for crack starting when she was 13.

The jury needed less than half an hour for the conviction and another 2 1/2 hours to come up with the sentence, which won't allow her to be eligible for parole for 30 years. The defense had asked for probation.

For AIDS...

FDA panel recommends testing vaccine

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — They doubt it will work, but a panel of scientists told the government to allow widespread testing of the nation's first therapeutic AIDS vaccine anyway, in the hope they'll be proved wrong.

The vaccine, developed by Dr. Jonas Salk, inventor of the first polio vaccine, is supposed to help people with HIV, the AIDS virus, stay healthy longer by stimulating their immune systems.

An advisory committee to the Food and Drug Administration said Thursday it doesn't believe the vaccine will do a lot of good — but because there is no other AIDS hope it wants it to be tested anyway.

"I am not at all excited about the data I've seen," said the committee's chairman, Dr. Stanley Lemon of the University of North Carolina. "But I would be thrilled to be proven wrong."

The panel told the FDA there were some indications that the vaccine, called Immunogen, might inhibit the HIV virus from increasing in patients' blood but no evidence that it did any more for patients in the long run than a placebo.

However, that small indication was enough for the panel to recommend that Immunogen become the first therapeutic vaccine to advance to Phase 3 clinical trials, in as many as 5,000 people.

The committee warned that patients should not expect a miracle from the vaccine, whose effects it said had been exaggerated by its maker, Immune Response Corp. of Carlsbad, Calif.

The FDA is not bound by advisory committee recommendations but usually follows them. The FDA is working with the company to be sure enough vaccine will be available for the large trials,

Daughter will stand trial on charges of poisoning father

FORT WORTH (AP) — A chance conversation between friends during a reading from Shakespeare's "Hamlet" led to the solution of what had been termed by a prosecutor a "perfect crime," authorities say.

Dorothy Marie Robards, 18, was certified Thursday to stand trial as an adult in the Feb. 18, 1993, death of her father, Steven Robards of Fort Worth.

The certification was necessary because Ms. Robards was only 16 at the time of her father's death.

Robards became ill after eating dinner and medical examiners initially ruled he died of natural causes. Authorities now say he was poisoned with barium acetate, which causes symptoms resembling a heart attack.

"He thought he was getting a virus or food poisoning," said Sandra Lee Huggins, a friend of Ms. Robards who was present at the time he was stricken. She also said Robards complained of being "clammy" and having pain and stiffness in his limbs.

The case against Ms. Robards began developing, police say, 11 months later when she and another high school senior were reading a scene from "Hamlet" in which a king who poisoned his brother agonizes over how he might repent.

The friend said Ms. Robards suddenly asked her, "Is it possible for a person not to have a conscience?"

The friend, who was not named, said she told Ms. Robards it was possible "a person that could look someone in the eyes in cold blood and murder them."

Ms. Robards started crying and told the friend that she had killed someone. The friend went to police.

Ms. Robards told the friend that she put barium acetate in some Mexican-style beans and stood by as the poison began working.

In addition to telling the friend about the incident, police say Ms. Robards gave them a statement in which she admitted it.

The sworn statements by Ms. Robards and her friend became public Thursday during the certification hearing at the juvenile detention center.

Defense lawyer Bill Magnussen said Ms. Robards will plead innocent to the charge.

"I just wanted to be with my mom so bad that I would do anything to be with her," Ms. Robards said in her statement to police.

Ms. Robards, whose parents had divorced in 1980, was arrested in October at the University of Texas at Austin, where she was a student.

Prosecutor Kenneth Mullen has described Robards' death as "cold-blooded murder" and "the perfect crime."

Ms. Robards got the barium acetate from a chemistry class at Eastern Hills High School several days before her father's death, according to her statement. She told her friend she chose it because "the teacher stressed how poisonous the stuff was," the friend told police.

She told officers the amount of chemical she put into the food was an "average spoon size amount."

Authorities said the poison she used was estimated to be 28 times greater than the amount it would have taken to kill her father.

Two milligrams of the poison, a metal commonly used in rat poisoning, would have been enough to kill Robards, according to an employee of the Tarrant County Medical Examiner's Office. Examiners found 56 grams of barium acetate in his body when it was exhumed for an additional autopsy during the investigation.

Grand jury indicts waste hauler

ODESSA (AP) — A state agency says a Midland man is believed to be the first medical waste hauler in Texas indicted in connection with business activities.

John L. Iman, was indicted by a Midland County grand jury on eight counts of securing a document by deception and four counts of tampering with government records, according to Robin Sams, assistant district attorney for Midland County.

As of Thursday, the 59-year-old former director of Collective Resources Inc. had not been served with the indictment, although it was issued Wednesday.

The indictments were the result of a 10-month investigation by the Special Investigations Unit of the White House stands by Brown in flap over personal finances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is standing by Commerce Secretary Ron Brown in the face of almost daily salvos by Republican lawmakers questioning his private financial transactions.

President Clinton has "a great deal of confidence in Secretary Brown. ... He's a very valued member of the Cabinet," White House press secretary Mike McCurry told reporters Thursday.

McCurry made the remarks a day after the Justice Department said its criminal division will review a letter from 14 Republican senators about Brown to see if any federal crimes are alleged.

The GOP senators, led by Lauch Faircloth of North Carolina and Larry Pressler of South Dakota, wrote Attorney General Janet Reno seeking an inquiry into whether Brown misled Congress or failed to report information to avoid paying taxes.

The Republican chairman of a House committee added to the furor Thursday, challenging Brown's statements about his financial transactions and accusing him of being uncooperative in answering questions.

"I am dismayed that since February 1994, you have failed to answer my questions despite re-

Clouds soak up solar energy new research confirms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Climate researchers are struggling to explain studies that show clouds absorbing much more energy from the sun than previously thought — a finding that casts doubt on some basic ideas of how the atmosphere works.

The research could force a re-evaluation of the complex computer models used to predict climate change, including the threat of global warming.

"Unfortunately, the papers give a clear indication that this is happening but not what causes it," said Jeffrey Kiehl of the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo.

"We'd like to understand the physics of this," added Robert Cess of the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Cess and Veerabhadran Ramanathan of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in San Diego reported the unexpected energy absorption by clouds in separate papers in today's edition of the journal Science. Kiehl is a co-author of both studies.

Clouds are "absorbing a lot more energy than we ever thought," Cess said in an interview.

"We had, for a long time, known that clouds are shielding the ocean surface and land surface from solar radiation by reflecting back to space," Ramanathan added. Now, he said, "we are finding that it's a double whammy here. They are shielding not only by reflecting but also by trapping a lot more solar radiation in the atmosphere."

"We had thought that clouds were like a mirror," he said. "Now it seems like they are a dirty mirror."

Francisco Valero of Scripps made a comparable report to the American Meteorological Society last week and much the same findings are included in papers being prepared by Thomas Ackerman of Pennsylvania State University and Patrick Minnis at the Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va.

The research raises questions about the way complex computer models mimic the atmosphere. Those models are a mainstay in the concern about greenhouse warming — the theory that gases released into the air could cause the planet to overheat.

Does that mean the computers are overestimating or underestimating the greenhouse threat? The scientists aren't sure.

peated requests," Rep. William F. Clinger, R-Pa., chairman of the House Committee on Government Reform and Oversight, told Brown in a letter.

Clinger also released copies of three checks written to Brown in 1993, totaling $135,000, from a limited partnership related to a

Erasing old images and nagging doubts

The Snyder (Tex.) Daily News, Fri., Jan. 27, 1995 9

WASHINGTON (AP) — He was Cher's scorned ex, a '60s has-been, a political lightweight. But this week the insider crowd was laughing with Sonny Bono, not at him, and his image may never be the same.

The idea of Bono in Congress has always been strange, and he didn't make it seem any more natural after he won a House seat in November.

"The last thing in the world I thought I would be is a U.S. congressman, given all the bobcat vests and Eskimo boots I used to wear," he said.

Still, when the 104th Congress convened, there he was — such an anomaly that Time magazine began a weekly feature called "Sonny Bono: The First Hundred Days."

His was a pretty humdrum existence until a black-tie Washington dinner on Wednesday night. Bono was the clear standout, convulsing a hard-boiled audience of politicians and journalists with a rambling commentary that captured their workaday world in all of its surrealism.

Only C-Span televised the late-night dinner remarks, and there was a run on the cable network Thursday to view the tape. Bono was showered with congratulations from colleagues on the House floor and in the adjoining Speaker's Lobby.

"I have never laughed so hard," said freshman Rep. Joe Scarborough, R-Fla.

Other reviews were more circumspect. "Interesting commentary on the times we live in," said White House press secretary Mike McCurry. "A sort of performance art," said Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass.

In the year ahead, dedicate considerable thought and effort to professional advancement. A rise in position and increased income are indicated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your most impressive successes at this time can come from situations contributing to your material well being. Look for ways to strengthen financial footholds. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you have two powerful factors going for you: hopefulness and practicality. The harmonious combination of these makes dreams become realities.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) To achieve your ambitious intentions today, do what needs doing without bringing others into the picture. Keep a low profile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something you presently desire might appear to be wishful thinking, but if you maintain your present initiative, the probabilities for success are strong.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You would do well today to involve yourself with ambitious and materially motivated people. Let them be your role models for the moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Stand firm on a recent decision if you believe the position you've taken is the proper one. Let events, facts and time validate it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your compensation will be fair today if you render your services well. Try not to focus on what you're going to get, but instead do the very best you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Measures can be taken today to solidify an important relationship. The ball is in your court, so make all the necessary moves to accomplish this.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can successfully complete an assignment you've been postponing if you try today. It is actually not as difficult as you anticipate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A social activity today will go pleasantly if there aren't too many people involved. Make your plans without a committee.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you're likely to be bargain conscious and quite adept at stretching your dollars, especially when shopping for your family or household needs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to spend time putting your serious affairs in order. You'll feel better and braver after you've organized your responsibilities.

perhaps reborn.

"I'm overwhelmed at the impact it had," Bono said Thursday. "It's definitely the buzz."

Bono, a California Republican, said his one fear had been that "the other side would take it the wrong way." But a prime target of his speech was another Republican, Bob Dornan, who had gotten himself gagged earlier Wednesday for saying something particularly harsh about President Clinton on the House floor.

Bono made numerous cracks about Dornan's lack of focus during a purported conversation the two were having, and his instant "forget it, I'm outta here" reaction when the House parliamentarian ruled he'd been out of line.

'Marvelous insubordination' clinched case against Ames

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under fire because Aldrich Ames had eluded his surveillance teams, FBI supervisor Les Wiser ignored his boss's order and sent agents on a risky midnight raid of the garage outside the Ames home.

They found seven tiny yellow scraps of paper — a torn-up Post-It note — that convinced them they had found Russia's agent inside the CIA.

"It was a marvelous piece of insubordination," said Robert "Bear" Bryant, assistant FBI director for national security.

Not long before, Bryant had ended the FBI's secret collection of Ames' trash for fear neighbors might spot the agents and warn Ames of the snooping. Bryant admitted Thursday that he would have denied permission for the Sept. 15, 1993, trash pickup — if Wiser had asked.

The note reassembled from the trash container outside Ames' $500,000 Northern Virginia home contained a draft message from Ames to the Russians. In traditional spy language, he offered to meet in Bogota, Colombia, and told them how to signal their approval or set a different time or place.

"We knew he was the guy when we found that note," Wiser said.

Bryant, his deputy John Lewis and Wiser gave reporters an inside look Thursday at their 21/2-year hunt for the man who turned out

"I said, 'Bob, why did you DO that?'" Bono said. "Bob says, 'I'll be on C-Span every hour. Who cares?'"

"So I love this game," Bono continued seamlessly. "I am so pleased that we are all so dedicated to mankind — unlike show business where, there you have egomaniacs and you have power-mongers and you have elitists."

On the morning after, Dornan was nothing if not congenial. He clasped Bono's shoulders, invited him to breakfast and pledged to focus on him like a laser beam in future conversations.

"Bob, you got a minute?" Dornan asked himself, pretending to be Bono.

"Sonny, I got 30," he answered himself and waved to an imaginary secretary. "Cancel everything on my schedule."

"You're a good sport," Bono said.

Among the confidences Bono imparted on Wednesday night: —He really wanted to be a senator because "it appeared like they could tell anyone to go to hell and they would say, 'Yessir. Thank you and God bless you.'"

Newt's spokesman attacks complaint

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ethics complaint that contends House Speaker Newt Gingrich's book deal violates House rules is "sour grapes" by a defeated rival, the Georgia Republican's spokesman says.

Press secretary Tony Blankley labeled as "frivolous" the complaint filed Thursday by former Democratic Rep. Ben Jones, who was defeated by Gingrich in last November's election.

The complaint alleged that the book deal, with publishing house HarperCollins, violates standards of conduct dealing with potential conflicts of interest, limits on outside compensation and a requirement that House members be full-time legislators.

HarperCollins is owned by media magnate Rupert Murdoch, who is seeking congressional support for his position in an ownership dispute before the Federal Communications Commission. Murdoch and his lobbyist met with Gingrich on Nov. 28 and all three have acknowledged the dispute came up in the conversation.

The book deal was being negotiated at the time. However, Gingrich said he was unaware that Murdoch owned HarperCollins and Murdoch said he didn't know about the book negotiations.

Blankley said Jones was "feasting on a banquet of sour grapes."

Believing Good News Was Bad Choice for Cancer Patient

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for furthering the education of your readers regarding the necessity of breast self-examinations.

I am 37 years old, with no history of breast cancer. Upon feeling a lump in my breast a year and a half ago, I went to my OB/GYN doctor. She felt the lump and said, "Don't worry. It's nothing."

I trusted her judgment and ignored the lump for eight months, until I started to feel a dull pain in that area. I went to my family doctor who said, "It's probably nothing, but I'm ordering a mammogram just to be safe."

The mammogram showed a definite growth, which unfortunately turned out to be cancer.

Since then, I have undergone chemotherapy and have just started radiation therapy. I have learned that many other women have not been given mammograms, or otherwise had their lumps examined via needle aspiration.

Abby, please let your readers know that sometimes they have to take their health needs into their own hands, and ask — no, demand — mammograms when a lump is discovered. A misdiagnosis can easily mean the difference between life and death.

Now, I regret relying on my first doctor's diagnosis. Sometimes when a doctor says, "Don't worry — it's nothing," we are so relieved, we forget that doctors are human and make mistakes. Mine did — and time will tell if her misdiagnosis has meant the difference between life and death for me.

LEARNED THE HARD WAY

DEAR LEARNED: Thank you for sharing your experience in order to help other women. Your case clearly illustrates the importance of a second opinion. Patients should never hesitate to confirm a diagnosis, especially one where high risks are involved. Please write again. Meanwhile, you are in my prayers.

DEAR SIMMERING: The reason she wasn't invited to John's wedding is immaterial. However, for you to have put John on the spot by telling him how "hurt" your daughter was to have been excluded from his wedding was tactless.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, "Sarah," is a part of a circle of friends — male and female — who have remained close friends all through school and even after college.

"John," a very handsome member of the group, became engaged to a woman who had not been a part of the original group.

Sarah was shocked and hurt when she learned, months later, that she had not been invited to John's wedding.

I ran into John shortly after that, and he gave me a big hug. When I told him how hurt Sarah was because she hadn't been invited to his wedding, John said, "It was my wife's big day, and I deferred to her decision."

Then I said, "That's odd; I would have thought it was your big day, too."

Abby, I believe John's wife wanted to exclude a person she perceived as a potential rival — and she succeeded.

I told Sarah I thought John's bride was petty and mean-spirited, but John will probably soon figure it out on his own.

Abby, why do you think my daughter wasn't invited to John's wedding?

SIMMERING IN SEATTLE

DEAR SIMMERING: The reason she wasn't invited to John's wedding is immaterial. However, for you to have put John on the spot by telling him how "hurt" your daughter was to have been excluded from his wedding was tactless.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

POWERLESS ON THE BATTLEFIELD!!

A TRADITIONAL CUSTOM, IN EARLY BIBLICAL TIMES, WHICH WAS A CRUEL BUT EFFECTIVE METHOD BY WHICH WARRIORS WERE MADE POWERLESS... WAS THE CUTTING OFF OF BOTH A MAN'S THUMBS AND LARGE TOES! ACTUALLY THIS WAS LOOKED UPON AS HUMANE TREATMENT RATHER THAN AN OUT-AND-OUT KILLING. THE SUBJECT'S LIFE WAS SPARED BUT, HAVING LOST HIS THUMBS, HE COULD NOT HANDLE WEAPONS, AND LOSING HIS LARGE TOES MEANT HE COULD NOT WALK LET ALONE RUN ON THE BATTLEFIELD, PROPERLY. A MENTION IS MADE OF THIS IN JUDGES 1:4-7. ADONIBEZEK, A CRUEL AND SUSPICIOUS KING OF BEZEK, WAS GIVEN SUCH PUNISHMENT BY THE WARRIORS OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH. ODDLY, THIS KING SAW THE "POETIC JUSTICE" IN THIS ACT BECAUSE HED GIVEN THE SAME TREATMENT TO SEVENTY OTHER KINGS WHOM HE HAD CONQUERED. THIS HE REGARDED AS A DIVINE REQUITAL, VISITED ON HIM BY GOD, FOR THE SIMILAR CRUELITIES PERPETRATED BY HIM.
