Sen. Lugar becomes third GOP candidate to enter race

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, launching a bid for the GOP presidential nomination, said today he is counting on his ability to project himself as a trustworthy leader able to handle the "serious business" of a dangerous world.

"The American advantage has diminished during the current administration. Our risks are too great, and our opportunities too many, not to have a president with the experience, character and the resolve to lead this great country at this important time," he told a news conference.

He disclosed his decision on CNN's "Larry King Live" Thursday night.

Lugar noted the primaries are still a year away and said he is confident he can compete with higher-profile, better organized and more financially secure contenders.

"I'm talking about trust and what kind of person they want to serve as president. I'm somebody who tells the truth, points out what our problems are, ... and is prepared to offer recommendations about how we solve them," he said. "And this is serious business."

He accused President Clinton of conducting foreign policy in "episodic chapters" while the world faces a series of potential crises.

Lugar said his formal announcement of candidacy, a ritual candidates use to launch their official campaigning, will be April 29 in Indianapolis. He said he will run using the more casual name "Dick Lugar."

Lugar says although the three best organized Republican candidates — Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas and former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander — are shooting for campaign treasuries of up to $25 million, he is not intimidated and will do it for less.

"I think the American people are going to object that there's an entry fee of $20 or $25 million," he said. "I don't know how much is going to be required, but I do know we're going to have a good campaign. We're going to raise the money. We'll be very competitive."

Asked about the explosive issue of abortion, he said he is pro-life but welcomes people on all sides of the issue. The Republican Party should be inclusive, he said, adding "There's no litmus tests as far as I'm concerned."

Lugar criticized Clinton for making a major speech Wednesday in which he portrayed Republicans as promoting a new isolationism.

Of the GOP presidential aspirants so far, only Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania supports abortion rights.

Lugar, former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and one of Congress' leaders on international affairs, is positioning himself as the foreign policy candidate in a campaign that so far is focusing overwhelmingly on domestic issues.

Lugar noted the primaries are still a year away and said he is confident he can compete with higher-profile, better organized and more financially secure contenders.

Try counseling for panic disorder

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are there any new findings regarding panic disorder? It travels in my family and all of us have been on various medications and therapies.

DEAR READER: Panic disorder is a disabling and poorly understood condition, marked by uncontrollable periods of incapacitating anxiety that bear little or no relation to external circumstances. The affliction usually responds to psychological counseling, in conjunction with the judicious use of anti-anxiety prescription drugs, such as Xanax and Ativan. There are no new clues regarding the cause of panic disorder.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a friend who constantly uses nasal sprays, yet he seems to have numerous bouts with colds. Is there a cause and effect in this practice? What are the drawbacks to constant use of this type of inhaler?

DEAR READER: Nasal inhalers (such as Neo-Synephrine) that are purchased without a prescription and used as decongestants are marvelous for the acute relief of nasal stuffiness caused by colds or allergies.

However, they have one serious drawback: rebound. When used regularly for more than a few days, they may actually aggravate nasal congestion. Therefore, most physicians recommend nasal sprays for brief periods only.

Your friend may be over-using these products (thereby causing congestion), or he may be relying on them inappropriately. For example, if he has allergic rhinitis (from pollen or dust), he might find that oral anti-histamines (such as Actifed) are more suitable. Also, if he has chronic sinus infection, antibiotics would be more appropriate.

I don't believe that his inhalers are making him more susceptible to colds, but they could certainly be worsening his symptoms.

There are prescription nasal sprays (such as Vancenase AQ) that contain cortisone and do not cause rebound. These, too, are extremely useful for nasal stuffiness, especially the congestion that accompanies allergic reactions. Your friend's doctor may wish to prescribe these products.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 38-year-old husband has puffy, droopy eyelids. This seems to have developed over the last several years. What do you recommend?

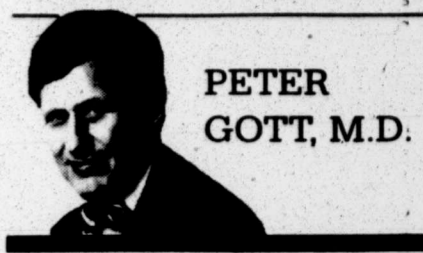

DEAR READER: Puffy eyelids (which may droop because they are heavy) can be caused by a variety of conditions, ranging from fluid retention (due to heart or kidney disease) to obesity and stress. Your husband should have a thorough examination, blood tests and X-rays by his family physician.

Once a diagnosis is established, the doctor can prescribe appropriate therapy. Remember also that heredity may play a role in how your husband appears: if his father or mother has puffy eyelids, he may develop them, too, as he ages.

Author sued for plagiarism

NEW YORK (AP) — An 88-year-old author accused novelist Alexander Theroux of lifting passages of his work for Theroux's acclaimed 1994 book "The Primary Colors." The New York Times reported Friday.

Guy Murchie, a former Chicago Tribune correspondent, told the newspaper he was "a little disgruntled" that Theroux never sought and was not granted permission to use material from his 1954 book on navigation, "Song of the Sky."

Murchie said he was pursuing a lawsuit against Theroux.

An examination of both books showed that six passages in "The Primary Colors" appear to have been taken from "Song of the Sky" with no attribution, the Times reported. In some cases, punctuation or a few words were changed. In others, the newspaper said, the text is identical.

A technical editor in Connecticut, Cynthia Martin Kiss, discovered the similarities when she happened to read both books back to back. She wrote Murchie and The New York Times Book Review — which praised "The Primary Colors."

Theroux's editor at Henry Holt & Co. publishers, Allen H. Peacock, said Theroux had unintentionally neglected to credit Murchie.

Reached in California, Theroux told the Times the copied passages resulted from "stupidity and bad note taking."

Peacock said Holt would not recall the 12,500 copies of "The Primary Colors" that are already out, but in future editions would either credit Murchie or drop the offending passages.

Food stamp bill would cap federal spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans want to cut food stamp costs by $16.5 billion over five years by freezing income deductions, capping overall spending and possibly curbing the annual adjustment for inflation.

The proposal would also disqualify many legal immigrants, according to an outline obtained by The Associated Press.

The House Agriculture Committee plans to vote on its proposal Tuesday as part of a larger House effort to overhaul all federal welfare programs and encourage recipients to work.

The degree to which individual benefits may be reduced will depend on how the Congressional Budget Office counts other efforts within the measure to cut costs from 1996 to the year 2000.

The food stamp program is expected to cost $27 billion this year and next and $32.5 billion in 2000. About 27 million people receive the coupons to help them buy groceries.

The House measure aims to simplify the work for state agencies that run welfare programs while giving states more freedom to determine benefits and eligibility. But the measure also restores provisions, lifted in 1993, that hold states more accountable for errors that now cost $1.8 billion a year.

An annual cap on authorized spending, repealed in 1990, would be restored. But the cap would not be set until the CBO review.

If the changes were enacted and costs looked as though they would exceed the cap, benefits would have to be reduced or steps taken to run the program more economically. In economic emergencies, the Agriculture Department could still seek additional money from Congress.

The decreased food stamp spending would be offset in part by a $500 million increase for programs that deliver food to soup kitchens and other charitable outlets, for a net savings of $16 billion. Four commodity distribution programs would be merged into one.

To curb costs, the standard deduction, shelter deduction and homeless shelter deductions would be frozen at this year's levels. The deductions count against income to determine the level of food stamp benefits.

Energy assistance payments, which account for between 3 percent and 26 percent of cash welfare benefits in some states, would be calculated as income when determining food stamp eligibility.

The personal vehicle allowance would be frozen at $4,550 instead of rising to $4,600 in October and again with inflation. The value above that amount counts toward personal assets, such as bank accounts, when determining eligibility. To receive food stamps, people cannot have assets worth more than $2,000, or $3,000 if they are elderly. An exemption for vehicles used to carry water or fuel would be repealed.

Benefits would still be fixed at 103 percent of the Agriculture Department's "thrifty meal plan," an estimate of what it costs to feed people economically.

But yearly increases in the plan, indexed to inflation, could be curtailed if needed to meet the savings goal.

Your Birthday

Saturday, March 4, 1995

In the year ahead, you might enter into partnerships with friends on three different endeavors. Success is indicated as long as each individual has something definite to contribute.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Through expensive activities or involvements with friends today, you might spend more money than you intended. Avoid high living and high rollers. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astrograph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2.50 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you fail to achieve what you set out to do today, you might try blaming someone other than yourself. This would only create complications.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Without thinking, you sometimes make blunt assertions that others find offensive. Keep this inclination under control today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will annoy your friends today if you make last minute changes to plans that everyone has already approved. Be a conformer, not a dissenter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you and your mate disagree on a major issue, don't try to resolve it in public. This would only make it worse and it could cause your friends to take sides.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Mental tasks or assignments that require solid focus and concentration might not be your cup of tea today. Your muscles will work faster than your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to be enterprising today, but don't be reckless. You might have difficulty distinguishing between the two approaches at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to succeed today, you need to be consistent. Resist the urge to either quit or make last minute changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Use extreme caution today using unfamiliar tools or materials. In fact, you should call in an expert, if possible, instead of attempting the job yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you usually treat your prized possessions with respect, you might be careless today and thereby incur a loss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There might be excessive demands placed upon you today, preventing you from operating as independently as you'd like. Temper tantrums won't help matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might not be adept at drawing out information from others today, while they could learn all of your secrets as you talk without thinking.

Consumer groups petition for airliner ventilation rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer groups want the government to require commercial airlines to let more fresh air into the cabin, contending the economics of saving fuel are subjecting passengers to stale, hazardous air.

The Aviation Consumer Action Project and Public Citizen filed a petition with the Federal Aviation Administration on Thursday, the same day the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta issued a warning about outbreaks of tuberculosis among airline passengers and crew members.

"We hear from passengers who have air quality problems all the time," said Geraldine Frankoski of Aviation Consumer Action Project.

Airline cabin air quality has been a concern for some time, she said, noting that studies have found organic compounds, bacteria and elevated levels of carbon dioxide in airplane air.

While Congress is looking for ways to reduce government regulation, "this is a good test case, as it's very much a health and safety issue."

"If ACAP knew anything about this issue they'd have stopped for a second and read the CDC report, which concludes the cabin environment had nothing to do with the transmission of disease," said

Chris Chiamas of the Air Transport Association, an airline industry group.

He said the problem was prolonged exposure to someone with the disease, which can occur in any enclosed environment.

The ACAP petition contends that when airline fuel prices rose in the 1970s many carriers reduced the amount of fresh air being drawn into their planes in an effort to save fuel used to circulate and warm the air.

ace. His opponents bid all the way to seven no-trump and he was on lead. He doubled and led that ace for one down, plus 200. Yet he received no match-points! At every other table, the contract, reached via an ace-asking sequence, was six no-trump. The natural lead against that contract resulted in three down. So every other pair was plus 300.

Unlucky? Certainly. But bridge is like that at times. In today's deal, looking at the North-South cards, you would be happy with a four-heart contract. Yet, during a British Trials, most pairs went higher. One even reached six hearts by the route given, with five clubs and five diamonds being cue-bids.

At first glance, the slam stands no chance — but watch.

West cashed the spade ace and continued with the spade jack to declarer's king.

South was Patrick Jourdain, the editor of the International Bridge Press Association Bulletin. He wondered why West had led the ace of the first suit bid by dummy. The only answer was that he thought he had a second trick somewhere, presumably in trumps. So Jourdain cashed his heart ace and continued with a heart to dummy's nine when the 10 appeared from East. When that worked, Jourdain cashed dummy's heart king, ruffed a spade back to hand, drew West's final trump and claimed 12 tricks: three spades, five hearts, three diamonds and one club.

Question About Caring Less Couldn't Be More Confusing

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1995 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Which is correct: "I couldn't care less" or "I could care less?"

I have always said "I couldn't care less," meaning, "I could not care any less about it than I do now."

However, I have heard many people say "I could care less," which means, "I could care a lot less about it than I do now."

Thanks for clearing this up.
CARING IN ARIZONA

DEAR CARING: Oddly enough, "I could care less" and "I couldn't care less," while literally opposite in meaning, have come to suggest the same lack of interest. Most copy editors and grammarians, however, prefer "I couldn't care less."

If there is any question, there is nothing wrong with the time-honored expression, "I don't give a hoot."

DEAR ABBY: I am a 43-year-old male, an only child — the only one in my family able to carry on the family name.

My mother has been bugging me to get married since I was in my early 20s.

I have repeatedly asked her not to bring this subject up again, but she does anyway.

Her latest reason to nag me about my bachelor status is that her friends keep asking, "What is wrong with your son?" suggesting that maybe I don't like women.

Any ideas?

BUGGED IN L.A.

DEAR BUGGED: Yes. Tell your mother to tell her friends that you like women so much you haven't decided which one you want to spend the rest of your life with.

DEAR ABBY: May I respond to "Not Kidding in Knoxville, Tenn.," who was offended when a friend, on hearing that both his parents had died within two weeks of each other, said, "You're kidding!"

One afternoon in 1980, my father had a heart attack here in Phoenix. I went directly to the hospital. Later, I telephoned my brother, Ron, in New York to give him the news. He said he would catch the next flight to Phoenix.

Early the next morning, Dad died, so I called my brother at his office.

Me: It's over. Dad died at 6:40 a.m.

Ron: You're kidding!

Me: No, Ron. I'm not kidding.

Ron: I didn't mean it that way.

Abby, I knew that. I knew Ron was trying to get to Phoenix and was stunned by the suddenness of Dad's death, and was at a loss for words. It was probably a little wicked of me — but I had had a very long night. Years later, it is still an indelible memory for both of us.

A couple of years ago, my companion finally died of AIDS, peacefully, in our home. When Ron called, I told him.

Later, he told me that he had specifically avoided saying, "You're kidding!"

Catholics cheer plans for papal visit

NEW YORK (AP) — From a Nebraska family of 12 to a New Jersey souvenir maker who almost lost his shirt when the pope canceled last year's U.S. visit, American Catholics cheered the news Thursday that John Paul II will be coming in October.

The unlucky businessman, miraculously, again wants a piece of the action. "After last year," said Robbi Villani, "we sure in hell know what we're doing."

Last year the pope had planned to visit the dioceses of New York, Brooklyn, Newark, N.J., and Baltimore, but postponed the trip while he recovered from hip-replacement surgery.

On Thursday, the Vatican announced he will make the trip this fall, arriving Oct. 4 at Newark and flying home from Baltimore on Oct. 8.

The family of Pat and Debbie Wahlmeier of Juniata, Neb., was to have come to New York last year to meet the pope — an honor that went with being selected the Knights of Columbus' International Family of the Year.

Debbie said she hoped the family, which includes 10 children, three of them adopted, could come East in October.

"But it's a real blessing just to have him come to the U.S.," she said. "We've been concerned about his health. We've prayed for him." Last year's trip was canceled at a time when the 74-year-old pontiff was looking particularly frail and tired.

It remained unclear exactly what the pope would be doing in addition to an Oct. 5 visit to the United Nations to celebrate its 50th anniversary.

Makes tapes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four months after her husband disclosed he had Alzheimer's disease, Nancy Reagan has videotaped a series of emotional public service announcements.

Mrs. Reagan taped the TV and radio spots Friday on behalf of the Alzheimer's Association and the National Institute of Aging.

"When she was diagnosed with breast cancer years ago her public disclosure led many individuals to undergo testing," said Cathy Busch, a spokeswoman for the Reagans. "Mrs. Reagan felt it was important to reach out again, this time to the many victims and families who have been touched by Alzheimer's — and to reassure them that they are not alone."

Four million Americans have Alzheimer's disease.

Our minister says cleanliness might be next to godliness, but he prays they never build a laundry next to our church.

THE NAME OF THE GAME WAS--HOSPITALITY!

IN THE ANCIENT BIBLE WORLD HOSPITALITY WAS REGARDED AS ONE OF MAN'S BEST VIRTUES. EVEN THEIR MANY LAWS REFLECT THIS CONCERN FOR THEIR FELLOW MAN. THE LAW RESPECTING THE STRANGERS IN THEIR MIDST (LEV. 19:33,34) MAKES THIS CLEAR, AND THE LAW CONCERNING THE POOR (LEV. 25:14) GIVES THE PATTERN OF CONDUCT THEY WERE TO FOLLOW. MANY PASSAGES FROM THE NEW TESTAMENT ARE IN LINE WITH THE TRADITION OF THE OLD TESTAMENT IN THAT WE ARE URGED TO "FOLLOW AFTER HOSPITALITY" (ROM.12:13) AND TO ALWAYS REMEMBER ABRAHAM'S EXAMPLE (HEB. 13:2) AND "USE HOSPITALITY ONE TO ANOTHER WITHOUT GRUDGING" (1 PETER 4:9) SOMETIMES THE DEGREE OF HOSPITALITY WAS OVERPOWERING AS IN THE CASE OF ELIEZER WHO WAS COMMISSIONED BY ABRAHAM TO FIND A BRIDE FOR HIS SON ISAAC. ELIEZER FOUND A BRIDE, REBEKAH, AND WAS ANXIOUS TO RETURN HOME--BUT, NO WAY! THE EXTENT OF THE GENEROSITY OF REBEKAH'S FAMILY KEPT HIM VISITING WEEK AFTER WEEK UNTIL THE POOR FELLOW WORRIED THAT HE WOULD NEVER SEE ABRAHAM AGAIN.
