New commander speaks out on priorities

By Capt. George 1. Hobbs

In his first staff meeting at Reese, Col. Schuyler Bissell, wing commander, outlined his philosophy of command, expectations and Reese AFB goals.

The colonel explained to the staff that his priorities and values were much the same as Col. Walter H. Baxter III's. "We will protect the trees," he said, "take care of our new facilities, and insure that our training program produces professionally oriented officers with pilot skills. No Stranger to ATC

No stranger to Air Training Command, Colonel Bissell has been in this command for 13 of his 22 service years ... 10 of which have been involved in pilot training. He has slightly more than 1,000 flying hours in both the Cessna T-37 "Tweety Bird" and Northrop T-38 "Talon" aircraft.

The new commander reiterated, "In peacetime we have the most important mission...we shape and mold the future Air Force. I see my task, my challenge is to provide a work situation and environment which will enable each individual to produce to his maximum potential in support of our mission.

"I am a great believer in military customs, traditions and ceremonies,' Colonel Bissell related. "We in the military today, in a peacetime, all-volunteer service have a real responsibility to keep our heritage alive and meaningful."

Later, in an interview with this reporter, he said that he would be looking for opportunities to give more meaning to these traditions. "This doesn't mean that I am going to establish a policy of formal retreats each month or a parade at every graduation. Too much formality or parades for every graduating class would be self-defeating. Such a policy could alienate as many people as it would attract. We will be looking for more occasions which we feel will be appreciated and enjoyed by the troops." 'Identify With Mission'

Reese NCOs receive selection for promotion

Thirteen Reese technical sergeants have been selected for promotion to master sergeant for promotion cycle 75A7.

In 64th Air Base Group (ABGp), Stanley J. Adams, Earl Black, Samuel Mele Jr. and Darwin L. Moerie will assume the grade of master sergeant. New E-7s in the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron (FMS) will be Donald D. Clabaugh, Kenneth I. Simpson and James A. Torkildson.

James G. Parr, assigned to 64th Flying Training Wing (FTW), will be one he new master sergeants. Also, 64th Supply Squadron's John E. Doring, warren L. Knox Jr. and Milton D. Marin will assume that grade during the cvcle (security policeman), the clerk in Finance, the personnel technician, medical technician, crew chief and instructor pilot.

"The way each individual does his particular job sets an example, influences an attitude and helps form the standard of performance that our officer trainees and young airmen learn to expect from the Air Force and adopt for themselves. Our future leaders must have high, professional standards. Everyone assigned or associated with this wing is directly involved and responsible."

Colonel Bissell attaches a great deal of importance to people. "Out of all the resources fundamental to this wing, people are the most important dimension. My approach to mission accomplishment is to take care of my people, confident that in return they will take care of me. When I say 'me,' I mean the mission.

Care Fundamentals

He spelled out some fundamentals in how supervisors and commanders should take care of their people: "Give an individual a meaningful job, with opportunity to grow and develop his potential. Every individual deserves a good supervisor, one who is interested and concerned 24 hours a day and willing to be involved. One of life's greatest rewards is to be a member of a truly outstanding team

"What makes a group of individuals a team is a sense of purpose that's bigger than themselves ... a mission. That's what I've been talking about. It's what we all need to do more talking about.

Colonel Bissell said that he plans to get out from behind his desk and meet the people doing their jobs. "We really don't know what's going on unless we get a feel for the attitudes and morale of the people, he said.

Continuing Battle: Efficiency

matter of time-management efficiency...how to handle all the various administrative tasks and still have the time you would like to be with the people on the site. That's the real challenge.

The colonel's approach to management is "management by cycle." He explained that in any area there is a cycle of events which spells out priorities. "Time and supervisory attention must be managed so that as these key events recur, they are anticipated, recognized and handled so that problems do not develop," said Colonel Bissell.

"Reese has got to be the finest UPT (undergraduate pilot training) wing in ATC," he said. "Its records of achievement plus its facilities are unsurpassed. During the ATC Commanders Conference held here in May, several of the commanders expressed their envy. Reese is the type of base that others wish to emulate. In my opinion it is the best.'

'Our challenge is to keep it that way."

"You bet your lap belt buckle — We all have these rights!"

By Milo G. Johonnett Safety Manager

Earlier this year the Department of Defense issued a directive to make the use of vehicle occupant restraint devices mandatory on all DoD installations. The DoD requirement was implemented Afwide on July 15 with the revision of Air Force Regulation 127-5.

This regulation defines seatbelts as including "lap belts and shoulder harness, the combination of these two or other unitized restraints. When they are installed, both lap belts and shoulder harnesses will be worn."

This mandatory provision applies to both military personnel and civilian employees operating or riding in any motor vehicle, when the restraint devices are available, on base. Use is also mandatory during off-base travel in any vehicle being used on government business.

Before anyone begins protest their "rights," priorities must be aligned. Who has a right to lower insurance rates? Who has a right to see less blood spilled on the highways? Who has a right to greater assurance that "the other guys" will be more likely to be able to avoid accidents because they stay behind the wheel of their vehicles if they strike deep dips or begin violent maneuvers? Who has the right to have more medical manhours available to treat illnesses instead of injuries? Who has the right to see the economic impact of vehicle accidents reduced?

You bet you lap belt buckle—we all have these rights! So, let's protect them by buckling up every time we enter a vehicle on or off base.

Driving is exception to rule

Mather Wing Tips Mather AFB, Calif.

There's always the exception to the rule. In almost every sport you can name, of the first rules you learn is never let opponent know what you're going to do next. Whether it was boxing, baseball, football or chess, the cry was always "Don't telegraph your punch. Keep him guessing."

Then along came a sport that caught on like wildfire. Some 120 million people in the United States alone took up the sport with a determination never before seen. But there was one rule of the game that frustrated all the participants frustrated may be mild since many people never mastered that one basic rule — "Let the other guy know what you're going to do next."

This rule just goes against everything you've been taught since you were at your dad's knee. Your instincts say "Keep him guessing" while the rule book says ""all him." It's a wonder that people still to play the game.

What's the game? It goes by many names: Freeway Roulette; Parking Space Chicken; Run the Stop Light; Tail Gate Charlie or just plain "driving."

It's quite a game, first you wrap yourself up in a couple tons of metal, glass and plastic; rev up those 400 horses under the hood and with the permission of the state, put it in gear and you're now in the game.

How you play the game determines how long you get to play. Don't telegraph your moves — slam on your brakes at the last minute so the other guy wonders if you're running that stop sign; make that left turn from the right lane without signalling that really confuses the other drivers. Keep them guessing about your next move and you will make points, especially with "John Law" and your insurance company. Probably the worst that can happen is that you'll be thrown out of the game for good. After all, dead men can't drive.

So if you want to continue to play the game, play by the rules. Let the other guy know what you're going to do next. Who knows, the life you save just may be your own. (ATCPS) tEditor's Note: The Roundup will continue to publish Commander's CARE Line inquiries as long as they are of base-wide interest. All inquiries will be review by Col. Schuyler Bissell, wing commander. All personnel are encouraged to first use their chain of command or the office of primary responsibility to air their comments, if possible. If these methods do not work, call the CARE Line by dialing C-A-R-E. Personnel are urged to give their name, rank and unit when calling.) Sir:

I would like to see something done about the showers on the third floor of Barracks 320. There are eight showers - four h stall-and are 45 people on the third floor and as long as I have been there have only been five showers working. In the south latrine there is only one of the four working. It has been like this for over a year. It gets very difficult to take a shower when you have to stand in line. I would like to see something done in a hurry as far as maintenance on them because it gets pretty hectic for everybody concerned. Thank you.

Airman Choate:

Materials to replace the missing parts of the third inoperative shower have not been available in Base Supply and were placed on order July 24. Work was initiated on this shower the early part of June, but apparently the recent fire in Bldg. 561 disrupted the flow of paperwork (all documents in the shop were destroyed in the fire) and we forgot about the capped off shower. Thank you for bringing it to our attention again. In future inquiries concerning the status of this work please refer to Work Order 33275. Neither the remaining Civil Engineering records nor your first sergeant's records have any indication that anyone reported any discrepancies in the shower rooms of your dormitory since March 11. While checking on your CARE Line inquiry CE maintenance personnel discovered two stopped-up shower drains which also had not been reported to the first sergeant or to CE Service Call. These drains were fixed the day they were discovered. In discussing your CARE Line inquiry with your first sergeant and squadron commander, CE found that the problem you describe was apparently that one of the drains stops up periodically. In the past, these problems were promptly eliminated by CE upon notification by your orderly room. CE depends on you and other occupants to notify them promptly when problems develop so that we can fix them and eliminate discomfort for all occupants. blinds and drapes closed and still this isn't enough to keep the room cool. Thank you:

A1C Raymond De LaRosa Airman De LaRosa:

First, let me thank you for the consideration that you have shown the rest of the dormitory occupants by keeping your windows closed. Opening the bedroom windows reduces the capability of the equipment to properly cool all areas. Civil Engineering received notification of your problem at 12:37 p.m. on July 23. The problem was corrected by 9 a.m. on July 25 by cleaning the soil-clogged air filter in the fan coil unit in your room. You may ask: "Why did it take two days to get around to doing a 15-minute job?" Headquarters Air Force, in an attempt to minimize degradation of support capability, has instructed in AFR 85-1 that every emergency receive immediate attention and that urgent non-emergency work be corrected within five calendar days. Since the problem you reported was not an emergency, correction was affected at the earliest possible opportunity.

Amn. Choate J-69 Engine Shop Sir:

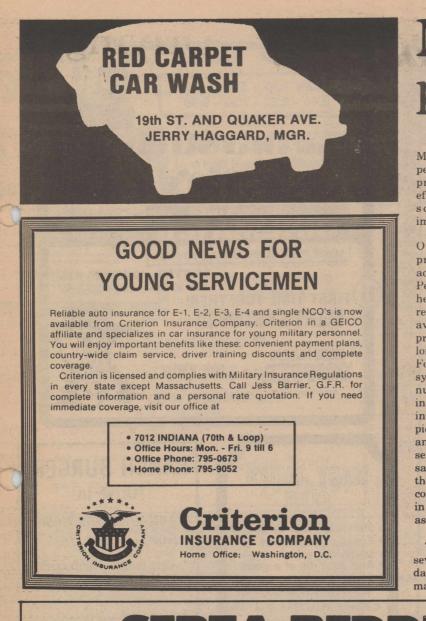

I live in Barracks 320, Room 222. I would like to know about getting our air conditioner fixed. We have called CE twice and no action has been taken. We are getting air out of the air conditioner but it isn't enough to cool the room off and it is quite hot. We would like to know if we can have some action taken on this. We also have another guy who has complained about the same condition and he has called three times but still no action. We keep our windows, venetian

New OER system in fall promises 'more visibility'

Randolph AFB, Tex. (AFNS) More visibility for its solid performers is what Air Force predicts for the new officer effectiveness report (OER) system, scheduled for November implementation.

It is no secret that the current OER system has become progressively more inflated, according to Air Force Military Personnel Center (AFMPC) officials here, with most officers now receiving a top mark. In order to avoid getting into a situation where promotion selection boards can no longer make valid decisions, the Air Force will implement the new system with controls over the number of top ratings. This will insure that management has the information they need to continue to pick the right people for the right job and to insure that the best people are selected for promotion, officials said. Through the control system, the Air Force can insure that commanders will play a bigger role in the future selections and assignments of their people.

The program has been through several tests to best determine what date Air Force managers need to make selection decisions, what is acceptable to officers, and how to feasibly control ratings.

The most recent operational shakedown was in March 1974.

Involved in the test were the 12th Flying Training Wing and the Air Force Military Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Tex.; the staff of the deputy chief of staff for personnel, Pentagon and, as an independent participant, the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo.

More than 1,500 officers were rated and the results indicated some changes in the control system and overall evaluation part of the form were necessary.

Revised control procedures will allow the reviewer a great deal more latitude in the review process. The maximum percentage of officers who may be rated in the top two blocks has been increased. In addition, a reviewer may rate all his officers in the top three blocks of the scale if he believes them to be deserving.

Medical officers and chaplains were also removed from the control system as members of these groups compete under separate promotion systems. The end result is that Air Force has a better handle on the potential below-the-zone candidate and top primary-zone candidates, officials stated.

The overall evaluation section of the form was redesigned, reworded, and percentages previously associated with the different rating blocks are eliminated. The section has also been redefined to pertain only to evaluation of potential.

These test results, along with the procedures for implementation of the new system, were presented to the major commands at a recent workshop at AFMPC.

Major command representatives received detailed implementation procedures, discussed individual or command questions, and exchanged information and ideas.

BOP policy change will favor airmen

(AFNS)—A change in assignment policy designed in part to provide airmen with better odds of obtaining their base of preference will become effective this fall.

Under the new policy, assignments will be keyed to skill level and associated rank. Skill levels now listed in manning documents will be filled by either

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. one of the two different ranks expanding the job possibilities for these individuals while giving the Air Force more flexibility in allocating its people in a reduced force environment.

For instance, the 5,300 slots open to chief master sergeants and 10,500 slots now reserved for senior master sergeants will be combined so that 15,800 slots will be open to persons possessing the 9-skill level. The same will be true for E-6s and E-7s who will compete for 7-level positions; E-4s and E-5s will compete for 5-level jobs, and other airmen grades will match against 3level positions.

For the Air Force, the added flexibility of the new policy will relieve some of the assignment problems arising from a smaller force. With two ranks available for each skill level, a larger pool of people will be available for each assignment action.

Those carrying the first sergeant Air Force speciality code will be subject to an even broader application of this new policy as all three ranks involved - master, senior master and chief master sergeants will be pooled and assigned to vacancies as they occur.

Education program lists opportunities

The Reese Education Office has compiled much valuable information about educational opportunities available to Reese personnel if they want to take advantage of them. Many of the programs can't be beat, but judge for yourself.

UNC Opportunities

The University of Northern Colorado Center for Special and Advanced Programs offers unique opportunities to Reese people and other area residents for graduate study in management or guidance and counseling.

Grade point averages and graduate record exams are not prerequisites for entrance. Twenty quarter hours can be transferred into a 48-hour quarter hour masters degree. A seminar is held each month for both programs. The unique shceduling if from 6 to 10 p.m. Thursdays, 2 to 10 p.m. Friday and 9 to 5 p.m. Saturdays skip a week and repeat the same schedule to complete a four quarter hour seminar.

The secret of this schedule is advanced registration, assignment sheet and books for advanced preparation. The schedule has proved very good for Reese instructor pilots and other local people are eligible and encouraged to apply.

The Veterans Administration pays for all but books for military students. Two seminars per quarter constitute fulltime enrollment for veterans.

A UNC mass meeting is scheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in room 1 of Bldg. 820. UNC Counselors are available by appointment from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 16 in the same room. Call the Education Office, Ext. 2634 or 2469 for more information or an appointment.

SPC Voc-Tech Courses

South Plains College will offer 18 vocational-technical courses and 28 lower division academic courses on base this fall.

Education officials urge all interested in taking advantage of these courses to "pick up your schedule at the Education Office now before they are all gone!"

Both day and evening classes will be featured.

Auto mechanics, botany, typing speed reading and real estate are a few of the newer SPC courses. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Leonard Kelley will teach the famous Bethel Bible Studies "Survey of the Old Testament," the last time to be taught by SPC and Chaplain Kelley.

SPC is a two-year Serviceman's Opportunity College (SOC). This means students can get nine semester hours, sign an SOC contract and finish the rest of his or her associate degree after leaving Reese.

SPC evaluates Community College of the Air Force credit and College Level Examination Program (CLEP) general exams as well as U.S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) end-of-course exams.

Bill Trafton of the Education Office says "You'll never find a better junior college with such an outstanding faculty, both from the qualifications standpoint and understanding the needs of the military student."

Tech On-Base Courses

Texas Tech University will be offering on base master courses in public administration (MPA) this fall.

A course schedule to permit completion of an MPA on Reese has been requested of Tech by the Education Office here. The first three of these courses are:

• Political Science 5343 (public personnel administration) from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays.

 Business Administration 5371 (management decision-making) from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Wednesdays

• Business Administration 5381 problems (current in management); time to be arranged.

Advanced preregistration in the Education Office is essential for those interested in these courses. Please come by or call Ext. 2634 or 2469 and ask for Bill Trafton...do it now!

This is an excellent flexible degree plan that can be participated in by our University of Northern Colorado students as well as Tech degree students.

LCC On-Base Courses

Lubbock Christian College (LCC), accredited as a four-year college in December, 1972, will offer five courses on base this fall:

• U.S. History 231 (to 1877) 6-9 p.m. Mondays

• Political Science 233 (state and national government) and Psychology 332 (social psychology); both 6-9 p.m. Tuesdays

• Bible 121 (Acts) and Sociology 334 (minority affairs); both 6-9 p.m. Thursdays

LCC is considering becoming a four year Serviceman's Opportunity College, with a contract for degree for military personnel. The college has shown excellent spirit this summer by coming to Reese's rescue with a chemistry course, and Reese people have always received very favorable evaluations from the school.

The College evaluates Community College of the Air Force (CCAF) transcripts, College Level Examination Program (CLEP) general and subject exams as well as U.S. Armes Forces Institute (USAFI) end-of-course exams.

Wayland Self-Paced Courses

Wayland Baptist College in neighboring Plainview will again offer self-paced courses this year. They are:

• Education 303 (educational psychology)

• Education 373 (evaluation and measurement)

• Education 333 (audio-visual media)

Wayland was the first official four-year Serviceman's Opportunity College in this area. The college has developed a special degree this summer - a bachelor of science vocational instruction degree - mainly for our technical school instructors at Sheppard AFB, Tex. Dr. V. Clapp is the designated SOC counselor from Wayland and he will be in the Education Office in the very near future for conferences and evaluations.

Special Education

A new comprehensive special education program, known as "Plan A," will be conducted this fall by the cooperating school districts of Frenship, New Home, Wilson and Shallowater.

Plan A will have one resource room at the Reese Elementary School, a room which will provide instruction for pupils whose mental capacity is such that they cannot be adequately educated in regular classes or who have language or other learning disabilities.

These children will have the services of a speech therapist, a special education counselor and an educational diagnostician.

This timely announcement by the Frenship District is welcomed in view of recent Civilian Health and Medical Program for the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) changes dealing with special education needs. Lubbock Public Schools have already implemented Plan A.

Ms. Loyce Elliott, phone 866-4400, is Plan A director for the Frenship District, while Dr. Cecil Green, phone 747-2641, heads up the Lubbock District program.

SMSgt. Jim Wood, 64th Air Base Group Personnel Division, is a Oklahoma native who arrived on Reese in November 1973 with a high school level education. He enrolled in June 1974 and since then has earned a total of 38 semester hours comprised of 22 from CCAF, 12 from credit-byexamination and four from South Plains College in nearby Levelland. He plans to get his bachelor's degree in business. Sergeant Wood credits the Reese Education Officer with "pushing" him into getting involved with the Reese education program, which he said was "the best I've seen in 22 years!"

Sgt. Robert Shrewsbury, 64th Supply Squadron, is a native of Canton, Ohio. He arrived at Reese Feb. 12, 1972, with a seventh grade education. After earning his high school General Education Development (GED) certificate, he enrolled in South Plains in June, 1972, and has since amassed 23 hours from that school and seven semester hours from the CCAF, for a total of one year's credit. A letter was recently received from Col. (USAF ret.) C. C. McFarland of Honolulu, with a rather unusual request. Colonel McFarland was commander of the Pilot Training Group at Reese from 1950-1952. He donated his officer's sabre, scabbard and Sam Brown belt to Reese and indicates that he would like to recover these items. Anyone knowing the whereabouts of any of these personalized items is encouraged to contact the Information Office in Bldg. T-1, Ext. 2410.

The Reese Family Services monthly coffee will be held at 10 a.m., Monday in the Family Services Center in Bldg. 6100, outside the main entrance to Reese. A special welcome will be extended at the coffee to Mrs. Schuyler Bissell, Family Services advisor.

The Officers' Open Mess is reviewing applications for qualified waitresses. Experience is necessary. Starting salary is $2 per hour plus tips. Interested applicants should submit applications through Betty Frump in the Civilian Personnel Office located in Bldg. T-1.

There will be a teen dance from 8 to 11 p.m., tonight in the Maxey Community Center at 30th and Oxford in Lubbock. "Spellbound" will provide the music and admission has been set at $1 per person.

The Reese Information Office "Flyboys" have done it again. They challenged the team from the 64th Supply Squadron and got eaten alive. When the supplymen, led by the hurling and slugging of Bill Grigsby, were through stomping on the journalists and wearing out the basepaths, the score was 41-3. And to top that off, the game was called in the fifth inning due to rain. . .it just wasn't our day! The Information Division is still accepting challenges for future massacres, er, contests.

Youth Center announces activities

The Youth Activities Branch of the Reese Special Services Division is sponsoring a trip to Arena Park Raceway tonight.

The trip is one of many activities planned by the Division in preparation of the opening of the new Reese Youth Center planned for sometime in October. Tomorrow evening will feature a sock hop in the present Youth Center, located in Bldg. 629 near the Reese picnic area. The dance will be held from 7 until 10 p.m. Those attending are encouraged to bring their favorite records.

The Division also announces an organizational meeting of Reese young men who are planning to participate in the 1974 Reese Youth Football League season. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Aug. 19. in the Mathus Recreation Center.

Adults are also invited to attend this meeting. Positions are open to adults as organization officers, coaches, referees, scorekeepers and many other jobs.

Questions about these or any other activities should be directed to the Youth Center at Ext. 2820.

Women plan all star game
