Base Open House marks 25th Anniversary

A packed schedule begins at 12:30 p.m., Sunday for the Reese Open House featuring the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds.

The event also marks the 25th anniversary of Reese as a pilot training center on the South Plains of Texas. In observance, several antique aircraft will be on static display on the flight line in addition to the traditional static display of fighters and bombers.

The special section on pages 31 through 34 gives complete details on the schedule of events, the Thunderbirds and their history, a diagram of their stunts and pictures of their aircraft. The section also indicates the designated parking and viewing areas.

Plans for this year's open house began nearly one year ago with the scheduling of the Thunderbirds. The energy crisis at that time forced the team to switch from their McDonnell F-4 Phantoms to the Northrop T-38 Talon. Their schedule was also drastically reduced at that time. Reese was one of very few bases in Air Training Command to be granted a show in 1974.

Several Trainers

Reese has used several aircraft throughout its 25-year training history. The Confederate Air Force wing at Hobbs, N.M., is providing restored versions of the planes that once shook the skies over Lubbock. They will feature the North American SNJ (Navy version of the T-6 Texan) and the North American TB-25.

Two special briefing teams are scheduled for presentations in association with the Open House. An SR-71 team is on base today (Oct. 4) to deliver a briefing for all interested personnel at 4 p.m. in Simler Theater. Capt. Willie J. East and Maj. Donald M. Majers from Tactical Air Command (TAC) headquarters at Langley AFB, Va., will deliver a briefing on the TAC mission at 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday in Simler Theater. Student pilots have been scheduled to attend these briefings but officials invite any and all interested Reese employees and their dependents to attend these informative briefings.

Other Highlights

Other highlights of the Open House Sunday include performances by the Lubbock Christian College and South Plains College bands. A special performance by the South Plains Area Radio Kontrol Society (SPARKS) will be presented at 3:45 p.m., Sunday. Members of the club will fly their radio controlled scale models of the Thunderbirds in precision aerial stunts.

Also during the Open House, which falls on the first day of National Fire Prevention Week, the Reese Fire Department will sponsor an exhibit featuring two historic fire engines. A 1923 American L France Type 75 and 1940 Ford fire engine will be on static display to give all attending a chance to examine how fires were fought in bygone years.

Open to the public throughout the day will be the 35th and 54th Flying Training Squadron buildings, as will the flight simulator building and the 64th Student Squadron along with hangar 92. Also open will be the base Operations building and the base Fire Station.

There will be something for everyone to see and do at the Reese Open House from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m., Sunday. Bring the family, bring your camera and get set for a great time.

New chief of staff discusses duties, plans

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—During an interview conducted recently in the Pentagon, Gen. David C. Jones discussed demands of his new job as Air Force chief of staff, and some plans and programs he will emphasize during his tenure.

Stressing the compatibility of human relations and discipline in the Air Force, he said, "To me they are inseparable. I want everyone to understand that if we come out with something in the disciplinary area, it doesn't mean any lessening of interest in human relations. By the same token, if we promote initiative in the human relations program that doesn't mean we're lessening discipline. They go hand in hand, and I want everyone to understand this need for balance."

General Jones also spoke of the "higher-quality individual" enlisting today despite the zero draft environment. He attributed this to a turnaround in the economy; increased military benefits; the Air Force doing a better job of handling people; and the general swingback in the country toward a greater respect for the military as a career.

Life More Meaningful

He emphasized the need to not only continue working in support of recruitment and retention programs for an all-volunteer force, but also in making life more meaningful for Air Force people.

As General Jones explained it, "The answer to drug and alcohol abuse and associated problems is not only through direct programs attacking these ills, but also by getting rid of the hangups, the frustrations that make people cop out in the first place, driving them to a need for drugs."

He continued, "If an individual has a challenging job where there is recognition...where he sees he is performing some important function and he gets satisfaction from it, he can get high on life without the use of drugs or alcohol. Giving people challenges and satisfaction in life will help our recruitment, our retention, our discipline, our morale and our esprit de corps."

The general is also concerned with other responsibilities as chief of staff in addition to the business of running the Air Force. These include being a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, explaining to the public what the Air Force is doing with their dollars, and working with Congress and within the Executive Department.

'A Matter of Priorities'

"In the first months of this job, I've come to realize that it is a matter of priorities. There are many things I would like to do, particularly getting out in the field and working internal problems. I'm going to do it, but I can't do it as quickly or put as much effort into it as I would like because of these other jobs," he said.

In addressing the issue of promotion visibility and the TOPLINE and TOPCAP "up or out" policy, he reemphasized the need for a good, reasonable promotion system for both officer and enlisted ranks.

"We have a viable promotion program and we intend to basically keep it, although there may be modifications from time to time. We realize we lose some good people in the 'up or out' program who do not get promoted, but overall I think this approach is in the best interest of the Air Force and our country. The Air Force tends to be a younger service in the sense of management and leadership and we want to keep it young in the more senior grades. This helps meet the goal," he stated.

General Jones also discussed congressional concern over military spending, including the rising cost of manpower and maintaining current force levels in Europe.

"We are spending well over 50 per cent of the defense budget on people items, not only salaries, but medical and other benefits—and retired pay requirements are going up," he explained.

Undergoing Scrutiny

As a result, the general continued, costs in the people area are undergoing great scrutiny for efficiency of operations and for need. "Congress is saying now that you have relative comparability with the outside, these fringe benefits need close examination," he said.

"We're not talking about lesser pay for people," he added, "and the military in particular support fringe benefits, but there is a concern over the cost of defense, especially in the personnel area."

He also stated he felt there is increasing recognition of the need for our forces in Europe and that the only reductions should be mutual and balanced rather than unilateral.

According to the general, "The Air Force in five years cut overhead in Europe by 50 per cent and put the savings in increased combat effectiveness. These actions helped convince Congress that the Air Force was serious in its efforts to provide the greatest defense capability for the dollar."

Explain Why

However, despite a greater understanding by Congress of the capability and need, there will be a continuing requirement for us to be able to explain why we are there."

In summary, General Jones pledged his efforts as chief of staff to maintaining the Air Force's number one position. "I want to continue with the modernization program and do what I can to make the Air Force more efficient and effective," he said.

He went on to explain, "I want to work in the area of discipline and human relations and all the people areas as well as to improve the credibility of the Air Force in the eyes of the public and Congress."

"I want to keep the upward swing that was started in the years past by my predecessors. I'm very pleased and proud to be chief of staff of the Air Force but also feel a good measure of humility," he concluded.

Commander's CARE Line

(Editor's Note: The Roundup will continue to publish Commander's CARE Line inquiries as long as they are of base-wide interest. All inquiries will be reviewed by Col. Schuyler Bissell, wing commander. All personnel are encouraged to first use their chain of command or the office of primary responsibility to air their comments, if possible. If these methods do not work, call the CARE Line by dialing C-A-R-E. Personnel are urged to give their name, rank and unit when calling.)

Sir:

I believe the Security Police should be placed at the intersection of 4th Street and War Highway, first to prevent people from making a left and going around the median and, second, to help people coming off 4th make a right-hand turn onto War Highway to come into the main gate.

Sgt. Mike Hagerty
Procurement

Sergeant Hagerty:

I agree that placing a Security Policeman at the intersection of 4th Street and War Highway to control traffic would be beneficial, especially during peak traffic periods. Unfortunately, I am unable to do so because the intersection is not located on federal property and therefore does not come under the jurisdiction of the United States Government. Assigning Security Police to perform a law enforcement function at the intersection would be a direct violation of the Posse Comitatus Act, which restricts use of federal troops to enforce state laws. In an effort to alleviate the problem, I have requested civilian authorities to increase their coverage of this area during rush hours. I have also asked commanders and division chiefs to reemphasize the necessity of using the golf course gate (open each work day from 7:15 to 8:15 a.m. and 4:15 to 5:15 p.m.) when going to or from work via 19th Street. I'm convinced that if everyone followed this practice, congestion at the intersection, as well as at the main gate area, would be eliminated. It's just a matter of everyone cooperating for the benefit of all.

Sir:

Today I was taking an order and the line was disconnected and I feel the operator had something to do with it...I really don't know. And there are times when you are talking in the barracks and you can hear a click in the phones. I feel that the operators have something to do with it. They will disconnect you at times and I want to know what can be done about it.

Airman Moore
Demand Processing

Airman Moore:

Personally, I think our operators do a great job of serving our base personnel. However, I will attempt to explain the system to you. Telephone calls can be broken down into two basic types: those that are dialed direct and those which require operator assistance. If you dial a number direct, the operator has no way of disconnecting you. If a call is placed from a phone off base to one on base through our switchboard, there is a possibility that the operator could accidentally disconnect you. Normally, when you finish a call, the operator is warned by a light appearing on the switchboard. When the light appears, the operator flips a switch to listen in on the line and ask if the line is clear. Unless someone answers, the line is then disconnected. Occasionally, the operators become too busy to listen in each line before disconnecting it, and it is also possible for the operator to accidentally pull the wrong plug. As for the clicks you have heard, all government-furnished telephones are subject to communications management monitoring. However, many of the clicks are probably operators checking to see if the line is still being used. When you have problems of this nature, please feel free to contact the chief operator at Ext. 2777.

Two Reese NCOs receive sentences

To Reese sergeants were court martialled last week.

One sergeant was found guilty on charges of larceny and housebreaking. The court martial sentenced him to be discharged from the Air Force with a Bad Conduct Discharge.

The other sergeant was tried and found guilty of the offense of indecent assault and was sentenced to be reduced to the grade of airman, to be restricted to the limits of Reese for two months and to forfeit $175 per month for six months.

CFC drive donations favor payroll deduction

By 2nd Lt. Dennis Dale

The Lubbock Area 1975 Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) is well underway now. Reese personnel have been responding with both cash and payroll deduction donations. As of Tuesday, combined donations totaled $42,141.60.

What is the Combined Federal Campaign? The CFC is a convenience to federal government employees, combining the many deserving requests of local and national social service agencies. This allows government employees to respond to only one campaign with one pledge. Additionally, it is a service to the many United Way, national health and international agencies among which collected funds are distributed.

Maj. Peter W. Brakeley, a vice-chairman for the CFC, is pleased with the campaign's progress, citing the fact that monies given or pledged to date amount to 70 per cent of the projected goal.

"Only three other divisions in the United Way campaign are closer to reaching their goals," Major Brakeley commented, "...and they have been operating for one month, while we've been operating only two weeks," he added.

Of the 41 per cent of base personnel participating in CFC so far, 77 per cent of that group have used the payroll deduction method. Major Brakeley asserts that the payroll deduction method of contributing is probably the simplest, most efficient and least painful way to give. (You can't miss what you haven't seen, right?)

Anyone who has not yet contributed to the drive should contact his unit CFC key worker before the campaign ends Oct. 31.

Senate clears pay raise, hike estimated at 5.52

WASHINGTON (AFNS) - A pay raise for military members and civil service white collar workers went into effect Tuesday.

The Senate by a vote of 64 to 35 on Sept. 19 overturned the President's postponement of the raise to Jan 1, 1975.

The exact amount of the pay raise is not known. However, a raise of 5.52 per cent has been recommended. An Executive order is now needed for implementation. It is expected that the raise will be reflected in all October paychecks.

A new method of allocating future pay increases in the basic allowance for quarters (BAQ), the basic allowance for subsistence (BAS), and basic pay has been signed recently. Under this law, for example, if federal civilian employees were to receive a 5.52 per cent salary increase, military members would receive a 5.52 per cent salary increase in basic pay, BAQ and BAS.

'Too hot to handle' AAFES to 'lift' holiday shoplifters

DALLAS (AFNS)—The Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has issued a warning to would-be shoplifters who plan to do their "Christmas shopping" at exchanges.

Maj. Gen. C.W. Hospelhorn, AAFES commander, said that "exchanges are bolstering in-store security 100 per cent or more in an effort to catch or discourage rip-off artists who see the holiday season crowds as a chance to steal from the store that belongs to the soldier and airman."

This year, AAFES hopes to reverse that trend and has spent months indoctrinating sales personnel in shoplifting-prevention techniques. In-depth, special training has been given to all store employees.

The general said exchanges now employ several preventive methods that range from visual surveillance through the use of mirrors to closed circuit television. In addition, plainclothes agents move unobtrusively through the exchange and military police also are posted during peak rush-hour periods to augment AAFES security teams.

Last year, hundreds of military people faced court-martial or unit commander punishment. In some cases they were subjected to trial in a civil court. Dependents who faced criminal prosecution received sentences that in certain cases included a fine of $500 and one year in jail.

The general pointed out that the juvenile shoplifter who steals "for kicks" is a major problem and must be made to know the folly of that practice. He said loss of exchange privileges often has been imposed on an entire family because of such abuse. There have also been instances of families being uprooted from their community and transferred because of these criminal acts.

Another problem involves the innocent person who looks the other way when shoplifting is taking place. The AAFES commander pointed out that funds lost through shoplifting and other stealing rob the military's morale and recreation funds of vital dollars. "The entire military community is deprived each time a dishonest person steals from his or her exchange," he added.

Advice issues for entering, parking during Open House

One of the big problems at any base open house is the matter of traffic flow and visitor parking. Project officers are working closely with Reese's Security Police force to insure that no traffic jams occur.

Two additional gates will open at 12:30 p.m. Sunday. Cars coming from 19th Street on War Highway will be directed through the golf course gate. Those from 4th Street will be sent to the gate near the USAF

Hospital. Once on base, drivers will be directed to parking areas.

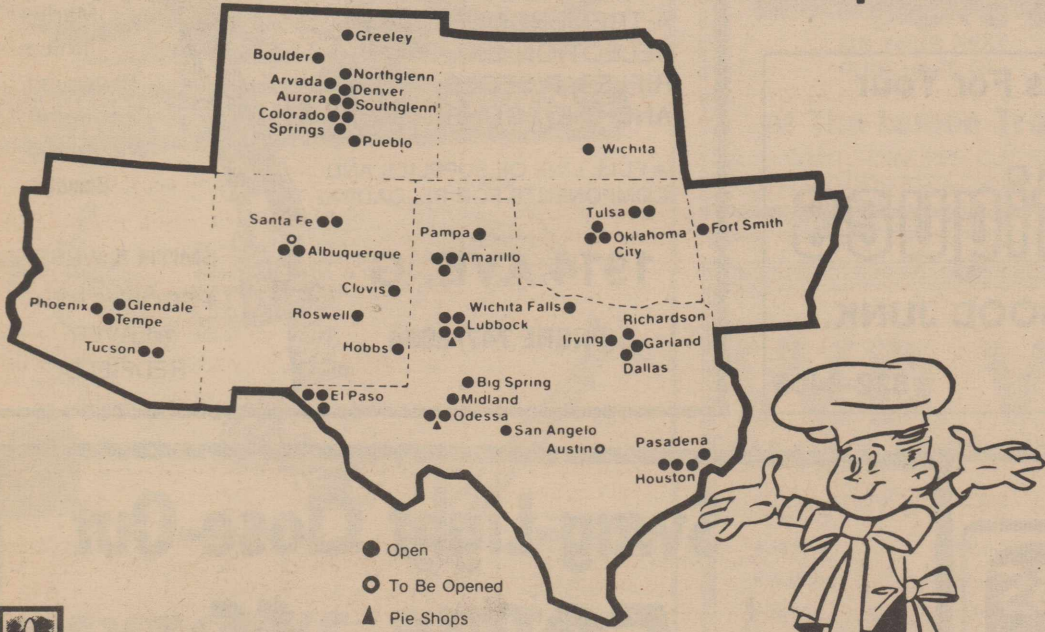

People living in Reese Village can help eliminate any parking problem by walking or riding their bicycles and entering through the main gate. These modes of transportation may prove to be the quickest for Villagers.

Parents of children attending the Open House are cautioned to look after their children. The base Operations building, Bldg. 79 on the Flight Line, has been set up as a lost persons gathering place. Parents discovering their children missing during the activities should go there first to try to find them.

Anyone finding children wandering around lost should escort them to base Operations. Announcements will also be made over the public address system about children brought in the facility.

Commissary officer views shelf stocking situation

By Capt. Barbara F. Hoffman
Commissary Officer

"Out of this," "not in stock," "Sorry, the company did not deliver this week."

How many times have you, the commissary patron, heard this? The employees of the Reese commissary do not make these statements just to be rude or contrary. Bare shelves at your commissary are due to a number of reasons.

Lack of Space

Lack of adequate warehouse space is one of the reasons. The commissary carries more than 4,000 items, and we do not have the shelf display or warehouse space of civilian supermarkets. Consequently, our consumption rate keeps our in-stock level at a low inventory — even for fast-moving items.

Damaged and returned shipments may put us behind in inventories of some items. This makes reordering necessary, putting us behind in delivery time and resulting in "no-shelf" items.

There are times when a supplying company cannot meet delivery dates due to the increased demand and low production of the ordered items. Allocations are even being placed on ordering potential, as several companies just do not have the stock.

Seasonal Goods

Seasonal canned goods, such as cherries, peaches and canned fruits, are some of the items which seem to disappear from your commissary shelves. At times of high supply and productivity, our lack of warehouse space limits our buying large quantities — we need the warehouse space for basic food items. Also, with the recent crop failures in some areas, allocations have been levied against future orders.

Time of the month and day also have some bearing on empty shelves. Our stockers are constantly repricing and restocking each morning, but by the end of the day, due to peak buying, we are out of some items.

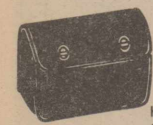

We at your commissary are constantly striving to provide you with the best quality, prices and service possible and thought you would like to know.

THIS ISN'T THE TIME TO BUY A BIG CAR. THIS ISN'T THE TIME TO BUY A SMALL CAR. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY A CAR THAT'S BOTH.

Lots of people have raced to trade their big cars in for small ones due to the energy crisis. Others, speculating that the crisis is over, are considering big ones. But those who have really analyzed the situation, are making a more logical investment. They're buying Volvos.

A Volvo 144 has a relatively small appetite for fuel. It can get about 70% better mileage than most popular, big domestic cars.*

Yet its capacity is enormous. In front, there's ample room for two ample six-footers; in back, room for three more adults.

And its deep trunk holds more than a Gremlin's and a Mustang II's, combined.

In addition, every Volvo comes with an expansive list of standard equipment. There's tinted glass, a rear window defroster, infinitely-adjustable bucket seats, fuel injection, 4-wheel power disc brakes and whitewall radial tires.

But with all these features loaded on, a Volvo is extremely agile. It doesn't go overboard on overhang. And it turns a tighter circle than a Volkswagen Beetle.

So why choose between the disadvantages of a big car and the disadvantages of a small one?

Insist on neither.
Buy a Volvo.

Open House sets stage for historical overview

By Sgt. Jeff King

It's been 25 years of work, changes, improvement, progress.

Seven training aircraft and thousands of graduating pilots later, Reese now celebrates its silver anniversary with many good years left.

The installation opened in June, 1941, as Lubbock Army Airfield. Citizens of Lubbock, then a small town, donated more than 2,000 acres of land to the government for the new training facility. The base was completed by the end of that year and training of aviation cadets began in early 1942.

Wartime Production

The field operated during World

War II, continually turning out highly qualified bomber, fighter and transport pilots to be sent into action. By the end of the war, the total of pilots trained exceeded 7,000. The end of the war brought the end of Lubbock Army Airfield.

The training center was used for several years as a housing facility for veterans and their families. It was also used by the National Guard for training missions.

Realizing the mild South Plains weather to be a definite plus, the 3500th Pilot Training Group moved to Lubbock from Barksdale AFB, La., in August, 1949.

The citizens of this area wanted the base to bear the name of a South Plains man who had died in action. It was decided that the base should be named for 1st Lt. Augustus F. Reese, a native of nearby Shallowater, Tex. Lieutenant Reese was killed in action at Cagliari, Sardinia, while on Lockheed P-38 Lightning mission. He was shot down trying to destroy a railroad supply train.

The ceremony naming the base after the fallen pilot was held Nov. 5, 1949.

Aircraft Inventory

Many planes have been used in the training programs since that time, including the North American T-6 Texan, the AT-7 and the North American T-28 Trojan. But perhaps the best-known craft was the North American TB-25 Billy Mitchell. The Mitchell was used exclusively from 1955 to 1957. The TB-25 flew its last flight in January, 1959. That same plane is now mounted on a cement pedestal at the main entrance to Reese.

The first jet trainer, the Lockheed T-33 was introduced at Reese Sept. 4, 1958. Reese's next major advancement was to be named one of seven Undergraduate Pilot Training (UPT) bases in Air Training Command in 1961. This ended the previous system when preflight, primary and basic flight instruction were conducted at three different bases.

The second jet trainer was introduced into the Reese system in March, 1961. The Cessna T-37 Tweety Bird entered the program, making Reese an all jet training base. The UPT system went supersonic in 1963 when the Northrop T-38 Talon replaced the T-33.

T-41 Program

The Cessna T-41 Mescalero, a military version of the Cessna 172, entered the scene for seven years in 1965 as a preflight trainer. The program was phased out locally last year and centralized at Hondo, Tex.

The wing was renamed the 64th Flying Training Wing in September, 1972. The 64th designation comes from the 64th Transport Group which was active in World War II. At the same time, the 3500th and 3501st Pilot Training Squadrons became the 54th and 35th Flying Training Squadrons, respectively.

There have been many changes at Reese in its 25 years under the direction of its history of 19 commanders. Despite the ever changing program of improvement for progress, the mission remains the same: "To train top quality military pilots with the greatest efficiency and the minimum possible cost."

Barnes cites need for military professionalism

LACKLAND AFB, Tex. (ATCPS)—"The need for true professionalism in the military has never been greater," according to Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force Thomas N. Barnes.

Sergeant Barnes was the keynote speaker at the graduation banquet of the Air Training Command NCO Academy's Class 75-6 Sept. 25. The 75-member graduating class heard the Air Force's top enlisted man urge them to "take a long, hard look" at where they stood, "be determined to not let further erosion of the military professional take place," Sergeant Barnes stated.

"Be deliberate in your actions, be strong in your convictions and positive in your support of what you believe to be right and just. Diligently apply the learning you have gained over these past weeks and, above all, be proud to be a professional," Chief Barnes concluded.

The 'blue-suiters' "chief chief" spent the day touring various Lackland activities, including the School of Applied Aerospace Sciences' Department of Security Police Training, the Combat Studies Branch, the Lackland Training Annex and the Military Working Dog Studies Branch.

Base council concerns itself with local volunteer programs

By 1st Lt. Edward B. Hayden

The Defense Community Services Council (DCSC) is the organization on base which is concerned with any and all volunteer work being done by Air Force personnel and their dependents.

The Council is comprised of one representative from each squadron or organization on base and reports to the base commander. Requests for volunteer support of specific short-term projects or participation in continuing organizations come to the Council. The Council then serves as a focal point, pinpointing details of how much time is needed when and where.

Well-Known Need

DCSC does not attempt to solicit help through vast emotional pleas, since the needs of people less fortunate than ourselves is generally well-known. Instead, the Council feels that if more people are just made aware of how little time and effort is required to provide a worthwhile service, they will be more willing to participate.

For instance, it takes about one hour and 15 minutes once a week to support Meals on Wheels in their efforts to provide one nutritious hot meal to a family which is unable to provide for itself. A motherless or fatherless child can receive much-needed adult support through Big Brothers of Big Sisters in a couple to three hours per week. Groups of Scouts go out of existence because there is no one willing to give the one and one-half to two hours a week it takes to run a Scout meeting.

Active Squadron

Members of the 35th Flying Training Squadron are involved, for example, in a variety of these community service activities. DCSC in no way claims credit for their work but would like to mention them for some well-deserved recognition and to show that there is indeed time to help.

Capt. Bill Stealey and 1st Lt. Earl Smith spend three to four hours per week working with the March of Dimes, while Capt. Jerry Wacker spends six hours of his week as a youth program director of a local Lutheran Church.

The Big Brother program only takes four hours of 1st Lt. Tim House's time per week, whereas only half that time is needed for 1st Lt. Gary Wood to spend with the local drug abuse program.

Giving of their Time

Capt. Les Hodson finds three hours in his week to lead the Young Adult Bible Study at Westmont Christian Church, while 1st Lt. Denny Granquist takes two hours a week to be an assistant Scout leader in Shallowater.

These individuals and many more on base know the personal satisfaction that comes from finding and giving a little spare spare time to fill a need.

The 35th FTS DCSC representative is Lieutenant House of "E" Flight, who is currently TDY to Safety. He has additional information on how individuals or families can turn a small amount of time into a much-needed service.

Maximum temperatures outlined for cold season

With the winter season approaching quickly, the temptation to turn up thermostats grows seemingly in proportion to the drop of the mercury.

To avoid confusion, maximum temperature settings have recently been released:

Thermostats will be lowered at night and on weekends to the Fahrenheit temperature in the right column. Only the Reese USAF Hospital and areas granted a waiver do not have to readjust their thermostats at night and on weekends.

All facilities which has as their maximum heating temperature 65-68 must post Air Training Command Visual Aid 91-1 under their thermostat. This visual aid is available from the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron Engineering and Construction Branch.

Additionally, a sign must be posted under the thermostat reading:

The correct setting is degrees F for cooling and degrees F for heating. The thermostat will not be adjusted by anyone except the Building Conservationist.

All windows and doors should be closed during the cold season to prevent wasting of heating fuel. If there is any problem with doors not closing, contact the CE Service Call Branch, Ext. 2647.

Hot water heaters have been turned off in administrative facilities. Other facilities have had the heaters reduced to 110 degrees or "low." Do not raise the settings on these hot water heaters. Dining facilities' hot water heaters will continue to be set at 180 degrees. Also check for hot water leaks.

If weather stripping or caulking is poor or absent, the situation can be corrected by filling out a real property maintenance request, Air Force Form 1135.

Energy conservation is everyone's problem and the only way to conserve it is TOGETHER.

flick flack

A hilarious spoof on frontier days kicks off this week's schedule of movies at Simler Theater tonight, followed by a variety of entertaining features in the coming week.

The base theater features shows at 8 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday, with a 2 p.m. Saturday matinee. The ticket sales office opens 30 minutes before each showtime.

Tonight and Tomorrow Night

Mel Brooks' "Blazing Saddles" is a madcap assault on all the old sagebrush cliches. The sometimes gross, always funny show centers loosely around a crooked attorney general's attempt to run the citizens of Rock Ridge out of their town so he can make a fortune on the new railroad. To do so, he hires a black sheriff, who sends the bigoted citizens packing. Literally outrageous at times, this R-rated satire will keep the audience rolling with its quick skits, blackouts and one-liners. Patrons under 17 require accompanying parent or adult guardian. Cleavon Little and Gene Wilder costar.

Saturday Matinee

A lonely young boy finds an unkempt dog which becomes "Digby, the Biggest Dog in the World" after being accidentally fed a magic growth formula. He grows to the size of an elephant and terrorizes the countryside with his antics. Thugs discover him and rip him off as a circus attraction. The boy, his widowed mother and her shy zoologist boyfriend attempt to recover and reduce the dog in this entertaining G-rated shaggy dog tale.

Sunday

George Segal stars as "The Terminal Man," the story of a man who goes into fits of uncontrollable violence as a result of an accident. He has a computer installed in his brain to regulate the attacks. A faulty connection and his own desire cause him to revert, slashing his girl friend on a waterbed, murdering a priest and menacing his female doctor. The strange tale is rated PG, parental guidance suggested, and costars Joan Hackett.

Tuesday and Wednesday

A sensitive convicted murderer escapes from a Mississippi prison farm with two buddies in "Thieves Like Us." The trio terrorizes the state with a series of bank robberies. The film includes touches of humor and lots of action, while radio broadcasts of the thirties capture the mood of the era. Keith Carradine and Shelly Duvall costar in the R-rated flick.

Thursday

Clint Eastwood and Jeff Bridges costar as "Thunderbolt and Lightfoot," the story of a colorful band of bank robbers masterminded by a cool safe cracker. Thunderbolt also dodges attempts on his life by a former cohort in crime. Young Lightfoot saves the leader's life and eventually joins the gang in the action feature, rated R. The movie will repeat Friday and Saturday.

at NCO Open Mess

The NCO Open Mess will feature its Friday Special Buffet tonight, followed by dancing music provided by "Tiny Lynn."

The buffet features all-you-can-eat for $3.95. Included in the special menu are boiled shrimp, steamship round of beef au jus, potato, onion rings, a salad bar, cheese fry, rolls, coffee or tea and a glass of wine.

"The Nivicos" will provide dancing music tomorrow night. "Discotheque" action is featured at the Mess every Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday night.

Monday nights will feature a pinochle tournament, beginning at 7 p.m. At the end of the tourney, grand and consolation prizes will be awarded the winners. Persons wishing to register for pinochle play are invited to call MSgt. Brooks A. Benford, NCO Open Mess secretary, or the night manager on duty at Ext. 2156.

The Mess dining room is open from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and from 5 until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturdays. It is closed Sundays and holidays.

at Mathis

Today—Evening entertainment at the Center will be highlighted at 7:30 p.m. by free beer and old-time movies.

ATC receives safety award for accident prevention effort

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS)—Air Training Command has been selected as having the best overall accident prevention program for 1973 and is the recipient of the Secretary of the Air Force Safety Award.

The award was accepted on behalf of ATC personnel by Lt. Gen. George H. McKee, ATC commander, at a major command commander's conference conducted in September at the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.

The citation accompanying the award read in part "...The well defined and effective accident prevention program of ATC fostered achievements that reflected a high degree of safety involvement commandwide.

"The impressive major flight-accident rate was the second lowest in the command history and contributed significantly to effect a record-low overall U.S. Air Force rate for 1973.

"Creditable accomplishments in explosives safety and measurable improvement in ground accident experience were further testimony of the command's professional approach to accident prevention..."

The citation was signed by Secretary of the Air Force John L. McLucas.

Enrollments pass 10,000 in two years for CCAF

Community College of the Air Force... Career Education Certificate... registration... advanced standing... new words to Air Force members two years ago, have attracted the attention of more than 10,000 enlisted personnel.

Less than a year ago (September 1973), the CCAF boasted the first 1,000 registrations. In March 1974 the figure reached 5,000, and now CCAF officials have announced that more than 10,000 enlisted personnel have registered in one of the 84 study programs offered by CCAF.

Work Center Management, under the area of Administration and Management, continues to be the most popular program. Second in registration popularity is the Radio Communications Technology study program under the Electro-Mechanical major.

CCAF officials stated that registrations are climbing to an average of 50 each working day.

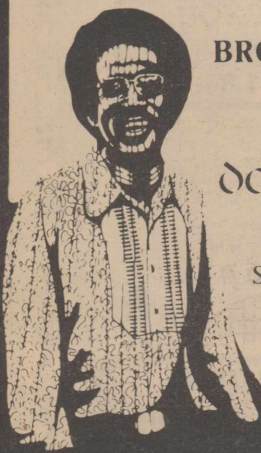

More than 80 airmen have completed one of the various study programs with the CCAF and a total of 67 have already been awarded Career Education Certificates.

CCAF officials anticipate approximately 60 airmen will complete their respective programs and be awarded CECs in the fall class (October).

See the Reese Education Office for more details. It is located in Bldg. 62. The telephone extension is 2469.

Maneuverability tops list of F-15's strengths

The twin-tailed, twin-engined F-15 Eagle now undergoing flight evaluation is designed to assure air superiority for the Air Force against any enemy aircraft in the foreseeable future. The high-priority fighter is programmed to join the Tactical Air Command inventory by the end of 1974.

Air-to-air combat experience has shown that maneuverability is the key to attaining air superiority. With its outstanding ability to change airspeed, altitude and direction, the F-15 is specifically designed for high maneuverability.

In aerial combat, the F-15 pilot will be able to keep his eyes on the target through a visual head-up display (HUD). Incorporating a central digital computer and other advanced avionics equipment, this system projects flight status and tracking information on the aircraft's windscreen in line with the pilot's view so that he need not look down.

The Eagle's advanced radar enables the pilot to pinpoint targets when they are beyond visual range. He can change from one weapon system to another, using visual guidance for the required weapon being displayed on his windscreen.

For its air superiority mission, the F-15 is armed with short-range Sidewinder missiles, advanced Sparrow missiles for medium-range, air-to-air engagements and an internal rapid-firing 20mm Gatling gun.

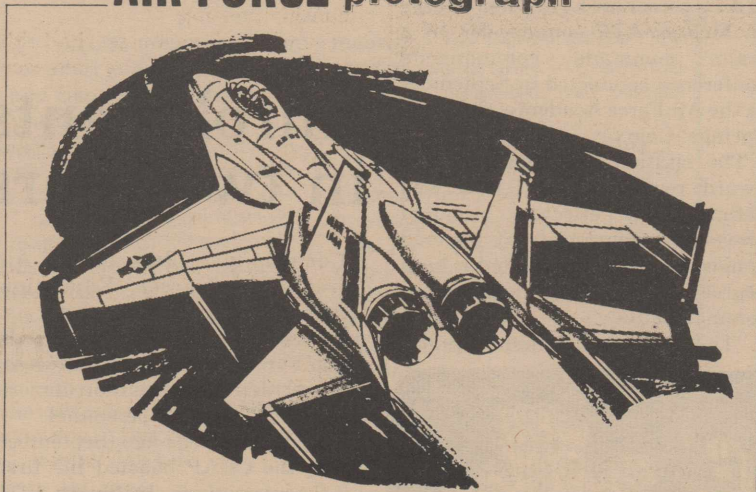

The range of the fighter — greater than that of the F-4 Phantom — is part of its superiority. With external-fuel tanks, the Eagle can fly coast-to-coast without refueling.

Built by the McDonnell Douglas Corp., the F-15 features smokeless engines. This will eliminate the telltale stream of smoke which might be seen by enemy pilots during air-to-air combat. (An AFNS Feature)

Demonstration tops council agenda

By Capt. George Hobbs

Members of the Reese Drug Abuse Committee were educated about marijuana recently.

The staff judge advocate and a representative from the Air Force Office of Special Investigations gave the presentation at the latest monthly meeting.

Committee members had the opportunity to see the processed "pot" and smell the smoke of a synthetic marijuana pellet. Several samples of home-made and commercially produced "pot" pipes were also shown. There is no doubt that those attending are now much more aware of where, when and how marijuana is used.

Maj. Joseph T. Whitaker, wing Social Actions officer, briefed the committee on the findings of the Campbell Report and other studies. The reports deal with cerebral atrophy (wasting away of brain cells) in cannabis smokers. Look for a story on these studies in a forthcoming issue of THE ROUNDUP.

Postal officials offer tips for Christmas mailing

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Air Force postal officials offer the following tips to speed delivery of Christmas mail overseas.

Wrap all parcels carefully and address them correctly, using zip codes or five digit overseas military post office numbers. Don't forget the return address.

Be sure to include the mailing address and the return address on the inside of the package, so if the address on the outside is unreadable the package can be opening to obtain the correct address of the addressee and the sender.

If you send your package at regular parcel post rates, it may not weigh more than 70 pounds or be more than 100 inches in combined length and girth. Consult your local post office for variations.

Packages sent by space available mail (SAM) are probably the biggest bargain going, since they are flown overseas and go by surface between their CONUS origin and the coast. SAM is normally much faster than surface transportation, yet costs the sender no more in postage.

SAM parcels going from the United States to overseas locations may not weigh more than 15 pounds or be more than 60 inches in combined length and girth.

Parcel airtail (PAL) packages may weigh up to 30 pounds, be no more than 60 inches in combined length and girth, and may be sent for the surface rate plus one dollar. The big advantage of PAL is that it is flown all the way from the sender to the addressee, making it the most popular mailing category for speed and economy to the sender.

The fastest way to send Christmas presents is by air parcel post, but it is also the most expensive. Air parcel post may weigh up to 70 pounds and be 100 inches in length and girth combined.

Shipment of any explosive device, highly combustible material or item of contraband is expressly forbidden. If you have any doubt as to what constitutes contraband, postal people can advise you.

Weekend flying schedules bring lighthearted lament

By 1st Lt. Edward B. Hayden

"Gloom, despair and agony on me!" This seems to be the cry around the squadron this week as we begin flying weekends in our assault upon the time line.

And speaking of time, Capt. "Fast Eddie" Meyers of Check Section would like to enlighten us on his philosophy concerning that subject. He feels that: "The only quality control is time," and with that in mind, we can certainly look forward to a lot of quality control.

First Lt. Dennis Granquist and his wife, Sonne, have entered Undergraduate Pilot Training with their recent newborn. Congratulations to them on the birth of a new son, Aaron Dennis.

"B" Flight's Capt. Steve Joseph has returned to the squadron having completed Squadron Officer School as a distinguished graduate. Good work, Steve. Welcome back to weekend flying, students and runway supervisory unit duties.

Capt. Ken Wise has recently departed "A" Flight to assume assistant flight commander duties with "B" Flight. Ken has amassed a remarkable 2,000 hours in the Cessna T-37 Tweety Bird, with a considerable portion having been accomplished between Reese and Randolph Air Force Bases, Tex.

"E" Flight reports it will soon lose one of its bachelors and one of its captains. First Lt. Bill Zahn recently became engaged while Capt. Don LaMontagne will move down to Check Section.

This week's "Head Up and Locked Award" goes to 2nd Lt. Robert Bauer of Class 75-06. During a solo mission last week, Lieutenant Bauer created a new taxi route to Runway 17L when his baby jet missed taxiway one and ended up in the mud. Nice try, Bob, but no shortcuts allowed.

Watch for botulism when canning foods

By Dr. (Capt.) Gilbert M. Stay
Base Veterinarian

Home canning provides safe, inexpensive, quality products—but only if the fruits and vegetables, including tomato products, have been carefully selected and properly processed.

Low acid vegetables such as corn, peas and green beans are common botulism sources. Home canners and consumers should follow these guidelines to guard against botulism:

—DON'T TAKE SHORTCUTS OR EXPERIMENT IN HOME CANNING. Use only tested, approved methods. A safe guide is the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) publication, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," Home and Garden Bulletin No. 8.

—USE ONLY JARS, CANS AND LIDS MADE ESPECIALLY FOR HOME CANNING. Never use ordinary jars such as mayonnaise or coffee jars.

—DO NOT REUSE SEALING LIDS. The rubber ring deteriorates easily and prevents a tight seal. Get new rings for one-piece lids and new metal lids with sealing compound for two-piece lids.

—DO NOT USE OVERRIPE FOOD. Products change in chemical composition with age and lose acidity. Make sure the food is of good quality, with no bruises or soft spots.

—DO NOT OVERPACK FOODS. Trying to get too much food into one jar may result in underprocessing and spoilage.

—FOLLOW EXACTLY THE TIME AND TEMPERATURE SPECIFICATIONS LISTED IN INSTRUCTIONS. Adjust processing time according to altitude.

—TEST THE SEAL ACCORDING TO INSTRUCTIONS.

—DO NOT USE CANNED FOODS SHOWING SIGNS OF SPOILAGE. Watch for bulging lids, leaks, off-odors, off-colors or mold. If in doubt, DON'T TASTE! Destroy out of reach of children and pets.

—FOR ADDED SAFETY, BOIL HOME CANNED VEGETABLES FOR AT LEAST TEN MINUTES BEFORE SERVING.

For additional information on home canning and food safety, consult your County Extension Service, State Experiment Station or USDA publications in local public libraries.

Sponsor program slipping

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS) — A large number of young airmen have said that no sponsor was assigned for their first permanent change of station move after completing basic military training (BMT) or technical training. An even larger number reported that they were not met when they arrived at their first duty station, a recent survey found.

To correct the situation, the Air Force Military Personnel Center has placed increased emphasis on the program. Guidance for correction has been sent to consolidated base personnel offices (CBPOs). "A concerted effort must be made to insure that CBPO and unit personnel fully understand their sponsorship responsibilities," a letter to CBPOs read.

"The military sponsor program, as directed in AFR 35-35, is an important tool for initially establishing positive attitudes for newcomers. It is especially important to first-term airmen who report to their first duty assignment after BMT and/or technical training," the letter concluded.

Reese Red Cross follows humanitarian tradition

By Marty Morgan

The red cross is a symbol recognized around the world as standing for compassion and humanitarian action.

In 1862, Henri Dunant, a young Swiss businessman, recounted in A Memory of Solferino the horrors he witnessed in 1859, following a battle in Northern Italy. That book along with Dunant's other efforts led to the formation of an organization of mercy that chose as its emblem and name a red cross on a field of white—the American Red Cross.

"Great Idea"

Dunant's great idea was that there should be a neutral organization devoted to the care of the wounded and the sick of armies at war. Years of Dunant's effort resulted in the formation of the International Conference in Geneva, in 1865, from which evolved the so-called Geneva (or Red Cross) Conventions. These humanitarian treaties, for the protection of victims of war, have been signed by 134 governments.

Clara Barton is credited with forming the Red Cross Society in the United States in 1881. One of the organization's first acts was in behalf of the victims of the devastating Michigan forest fires in 1881. When floods or hurricanes struck, no longer were people left to fend for themselves. In times of disaster, Americans had an effective force ready to go to the aid of victims.

Today's Comparison

All of this is just the beginning and a small part of what the Red Cross is today. The American Red Cross is the instrument chosen by the Congress to help carry out the obligations assumed by the United States under certain international treaties known as the Geneva or Red Cross Conventions.

Specifically, its congressional charter imposes on the Red Cross the duties to act as the medium of voluntary relief and communications between the American people and their armed forces, and to carry on a system of national and international relief to prevent and mitigate suffering caused by disasters. All the activities of the American Red Cross and its chapters support these duties.

Today, as then, the cornerstone of Red Cross success is voluntary help. There are more than 100 different kinds of things the Red Cross does to help people. Some of these include teaching boat safety courses, swimming and lifesaving lessons, classes in baby and child care, counseling and helping servicemen and their families and providing first aid courses. These are all free services and there are many, many other neighborly acts too numerous to cover.

Local Significance

Although Lubbock seems miles away from starvation, war, and natural disasters, the Red Cross is here and has volunteers serving in many fields. On base the USAF Hospital has a variety of areas for volunteers to help. In the General Therapy Clinic, volunteers sign-in patients, take blood pressures, prepare charts, chaperone for doctors and assist in many other ways.

A volunteer may choose to work in the Pediatric Clinic to assist the nurses and doctor with the children. The hospital Laboratory has openings for someone to help with secretarial duties, such as logging lab reports and filing lab sheets. A volunteer may also learn to do simple lab procedures. Another area that has volunteer help is the X-Ray Department, where volunteers serve as receptionists and help patients prepare for their x-rays to be taken. They also act as chaperones and assist in developing x-rays.

Varied Positions

A volunteer who likes paperwork may choose to work in the out patient record room. There she helps pull medical records for appointments and file lab and x-ray reports. The Pharmacy uses volunteer help in pre-packing medications, labeling bottles, and assisting in cleaning and stocking.

The Medical-Surgical or Family Clinic is the newest area for volunteer service. In general, volunteers prepare the patient and assist the doctor with the examination. On occasion, volunteers may witness some minor surgery.

In the Dental Clinic, volunteers perform a duty referred to as "four-handed dentistry," or chair-side assistance. The Surgical Clinic has volunteers serving as receptionists and chaperones. Volunteers in the Eye Clinic fill out the specific history sheet for each patient and help with the screening exam.

Future Plans

In the future, we hope to fill vacancies in any of the clinics as well as have volunteers helping in the vet clinic acting as receptionists, in the base library, and in the base nursery reading stories to the children. Volunteers may also work in the Red Cross office doing receptionist duties and social service.

Nationally and locally the American Red Cross is governed by volunteers. Most of its duties are performed by volunteers and voluntary contributions finance the organization. It is an organization of service, not welfare or insurance policy.

Presidential Comment

Responding to an invitation from Red Cross Chairman, Frank Stanton, Pres. Gerald Ford accepted an invitation to serve as Honorary Chairman of the National Red Cross. In accepting the position, Pres. Ford said, "In the time ahead, I look forward to the opportunity of working with you, the Board of Governors and the Red Cross volunteer leadership across the nation as we continue to meet the emergency and humanitarian needs of all our people."

If you wish to become a part of an organization that has meaning as well as personal rewards, join the Red Cross. There are always openings for volunteer help. Orientations are held periodically throughout the year. For any information regarding the Red Cross, contact Melina Thompson at 797-4972, Dot Kasik at 885-2690 or the field director, Mr. Roger Colunga, at Ext. 2215. The next monthly Red Cross meeting will be held in the hospital dining room at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 10. We welcome anyone who is interested in joining our volunteer program.

ENTERTAINMENT . . . THEN AND NOW — Reese Special Services officials have always endeavored to provide the best entertainment for base personnel. Current plans indicate that popular recording stars Jr. Walker and the All Stars will be at Reese from 8 p.m. until midnight, Oct. 11 at the Mathis Recreation Center. Tickets for the event are on sale now at Mathis for $1. Another great act, although no relation, was T-Bone Walker and his orchestra, pictured above, who entertained Reese airmen in 1950. Fire station schedules week-long observances

The Reese 25th Anniversary Open House will be held on an important date. Sunday kicks off National Fire Prevention Week across the Nation, with the Reese Fire Department planning several activities all week.

A static display of two old fire engines—a 1923 American La France Type 75 and 1940 Ford fire engine will be available for viewing on the day of the Open House.

Monday will feature a parade of fire-fighters and their equipment through base housing. The parade will get under way at 4 p.m.

Tuesday will see students at the Reese Elementary School made aware of the dangers of fire with a special film and fire drill beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Wednesday will follow with another fire drill, this time to make the "bigger kids" aware of fire prevention. This drill will be at the 64th Student Squadron facility, Bldg. 820. Still another drill will be held Thursday at Hangar 70. At the hangar, the aircraft inside will be towed out, just as if a real fire had broken out.

The last day of the special observation, Oct. 11, will feature the Fire Department's rescue vehicle on display in front of the Base Exchange from 9:30 to 10 a.m. and 1:30 to 3 p.m. Fire fighting specialists will be on hand to explain the truck's various functions.

The week will draw to a close at the fire station after the rescue vehicle display.

Free Dental Care For Eligible Vets

Vietnam Era Veterans needing dental care presumed to be service connected are eligible to receive dental treatment at the Veterans Administration's expense under certain conditions.

The general eligibility covers sufficient dental treatment (at VA expense) for dental problems, provided:

- application is made to the VA within one year after discharge, and
- discharge or retirement was under a condition other than dishonorable.

Dental conditions that obviously existed before the veteran entered military service will not be covered, VA officials point out.

Veterans who have special eligibility for continuing VA dental treatment, and for whom the one year application limit does not apply, include:

- those receiving VA compensation for dental conditions.

• those whose dental conditions resulted from combat wounds or service injuries.

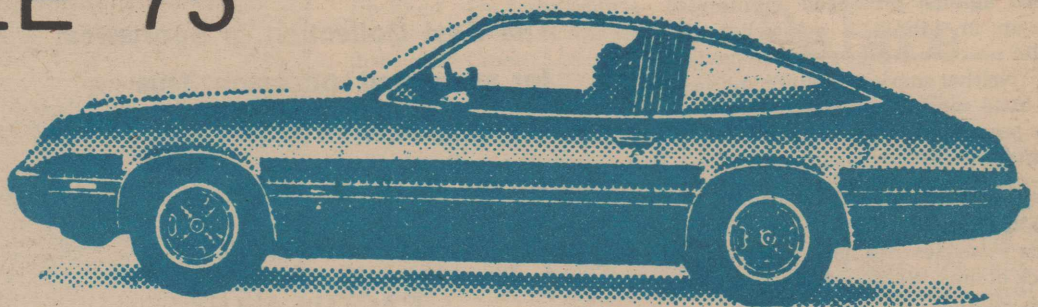

• those who were prisoners of war.

VA says that in addition, any veteran discharged or retired under conditions other than honorable may receive treatment reasonably necessary to obviate the need for hospital admission, provided he cannot afford to pay for the care elsewhere.

October AFN film tells of conservation efforts

WASHINGTON (AFNS) - AFN: for October, mandatory for showing at Commander's Call, spotlights Air Force conservation.

The Air Force is entrusted with the protection and development of more than nine million acres of land. These areas are the home of many kinds of wildlife, some of which are so seriously reduced in numbers that they are listed as endangered species. At Barksdale AFB, La., local foresters are fighting a winning battle to preserve the once-threatened bayou and save the wildlife which make it their home.

Of special interest is an effort to catch and mark alligators for growth study. Their population has expanded since the protective program began. Deer management and timber harvesting are other key parts of the land management program at Barksdale AFB, which has as its goal the development of a natural forest much like the primeval forest that once occupied that part of the country.

Other topics featured in "Air Force Now" include a visit to a Royal Thai Air Base (RTAFB) and a look at the Air Force Band musical clinic in Riverside, Calif.

Working at Kokekathiem RTAFB,

Thailand, a U.S. Air Force advisor reports on his teaching duties and the friendships developed with his students. The segment spotlights the interaction between the American advisor and his wife with their Thai neighbors and the mutual benefits of such relationships.

In California, professional musicians chat with children and young adults attending the Air Force-sponsored clinic. The Air Force Band arranged for the appearance of professional musicians from Los Angeles to meet local music students as a part of a Riverside project to show Air Force concern for the community.

AAFES urges all motorists to continue fuel-saving effort

Although gasoline is a little more available at the pumps these days, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) continues to urge military motorists to use conservative driving habits and have regular car checks performed.

Making those recommendations was Col. Robert M. Sullivan, director of Services at AAFES headquarters, who explained that despite relatively favorable trends in the fuel situation, the need to use gasoline more efficiently and economically remains and is likely to be with Americans for the foreseeable future.

According to Colonel Sullivan, AAFES continues to stress that motorists drive at moderate speeds to squeeze every bit of mileage out of each gallon of gas. "Even though today's rules of the road generally allow speeds of up to 55 miles per hour, the fact remains that maximum mileage can be obtained in the 35 to 40 miles-per-hour range," he pointed out.

Fast starts, constant braking and accelerating, and racing between traffic lights are sure ways to face a high fuel bill, he reminded. He also advised against prolonged engine warm-up or idling, a somewhat popular practice in pre-energy crisis days. "Neither step is necessary and does little more than pollute and waste precious fuel," he said.

"Driving procedure is only part of

Now is the time to buy the best — Firestone Tires, before the '75 price increases. We have a large stock of tires. We will be happy to pick your car up, & put on a new set of tires. Bill Pemberton's Tire & Appliance, 38th & Ave. Q.

the solution for better gas mileage," Colonel Sullivan continued. "Motorists should regularly check their owner's manual to ensure their vehicle has proper and periodic tune-up work performed. Such steps as PCV valve check, oil and oil filter change, air filter change, a check of battery water level and an air pressure check of the tires are essential to good gas mileage, he said.

One of the most overlooked fuel conservation measures is a check of the trunk to make sure heavy items not needed during a trip are removed. "Some people like to use their car trunks as a storage area," the colonel said, "and that practice means they pay for that storage at the pumps."

Colonel Sullivan mentioned this check list before any use of the car:

- * Is the trip necessary?
- * Can carpooling be used?
- * Has the car been properly serviced as required by the owner's manual?

Those points and adherence to conservative driving habits will pay off in dollars saved, better gas mileage and fuel availability for all in the months to come. (An AAFES Feature)

Squadron shuffles as flick night nears

By 1st Lt. Phil Baker

Hi, sports fans! We're in the process of another squadron shuffle.

Maj. Dick Lord, formerly "E" Flight commander, is moving to the other end of the hall as Section II assistant. Capt. Paul Rowcliffe, "Hawg 2," is replacing Major Lord as the new commander of "E" Flight.

Maj. Ken Yeckley is departing "A" Flight to become the new Section I assistant, while Capt. Dave Barton is becoming the new "Alpha 01." First Lt. Bob "W.D." Peterman will be departing Check Section and heading for sunny Randolph AFB, Tex., to become a Pilot Instructor Training instructor.

Charlie and Goat Flights finally finished Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 75-02 and would like to welcome Class 75-06 to the "white rocket" and the 54th Flying Training Squadron.

Squadron Party

Capt. Gene Bardahl and his "Foxes" are presenting Friday Night at the Movies Oct. 11 at the Officers' Open Mess. "Low Rent" production has a new premier showing of their second flick. From the Hollywood critics I have heard that this new production will definitely be a hit.

This is a costume party and everyone is to come as their favorite character. There will be prizes for the best dressed and one stale jelly bean for all in attendance. And (get this!) cold fish punch... I don't know what kind of fish—probably tuna. Any questions, ask the Foxes.

Warning

Capt. Jim Crumley, "Dawg Lead," has lost his Dawg sign. Anybody knowing the whereabouts, let Jim know. No corrective action will be taken.

Best of luck is extended to Maj. Al Vermette. The 54th FTS will miss this outstanding pilot and officer.—P.B.

Palace Chase expands

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (AFNS) - Palace Chase, the program to voluntarily release airmen and rated officers from active duty to fill vacancies with the Reserve forces, has been expanded to include more airman Air Force specialty codes.

Under Palace Chase, members trade their remaining active-duty commitment for service twice as long with an Air National Guard of Air Force Reserve unit.

Specialties not included in the Palace Chase program follow: 272X0; 316X1L; 326XXX; 329X0 A & B; 391X0 A & B; 421X3; 464X0; 542X1; 327X0; 791X0A; 791X1; 811X0; A902X0; 425X0; and 923X0.

LETTER — Capt. Oliver S. Young, a class commander in the 64th Student Squadron, was the subject of a letter of appreciation from the 64th Air Base Group commander to the deputy commander for Operations Wednesday. The letter, endorsed by Col. Schuyler Bissell, praised the captain for his professionalism in processing and orienting student pilots. He also helps the young pilots with their new assignments after they have been awarded their wings. Lt. Col. Richard A. Ingram wrote in his letter, "The most significant factor is Captain Young's professionalism in the leadership of our young officers which has greatly assisted my people in providing service. He is certainly one of the finest, most dedicated and motivated young officers assigned to Reese Air Force Base." (U.S. Air Force Photo)

Special Open House Section

I would like to welcome each and every visitor to our

Open House. We at Reese are very proud of our facilities and glad for the opportunity to show them off. You should be equally proud, for as "stockholders" in America's defenses, Reese Air Force Base is as much yours as ours. As you enjoy the Open House activities, give some thought to our mission. For 25 consecutive years our mission has remained the same. "To train professional military pilots in support of our national defense and freedom."

congratulates Reese
on Anniversary

It is with a great deal of satisfaction that I congratulate the men and women of Reese Air Force Base on the 25th Anniversary of the base's reactivation. The history of Reese's accomplishments is reflected in the deeds of the people who have served and trained there. I am sure that all of the personnel of Air Training Command join me in extending best wishes to the officers, airmen and civilian employees of the base and in expressing how proud we are of Reese and its outstanding reputation.

By 2nd Lt. Dennis Dale

On the highlights of the Reese Open House, Sunday will be the static display of a number of military aircraft including both new and vintage models.

The display, which will be set up on the Flight Line, will offer something of interest for almost every aviation enthusiast.

F-4 Phantom

The McDonnell F-4 Phantom was initially developed in the mid 1950s. New versions and modifications of the all-weather fighter have been provided to the USAF since that time. The F-4 Phantom in various forms has been used by several major commands for close support, attack, air superiority and interdiction duties. It is indeed a versatile aircraft. An RF-4, the reconnaissance version of the F-4, will also be part of the flight line display.

SNJ (U. S. Navy Version of T-6) Primary Trainer

Manufactured by North American Aircraft from 1941-44, the SNJ Primary Trainer and the T-6 Army version of the aircraft saw extensive usage during the demanding World War II years. Its 600 horsepower engine generated a top speed of 208 miles per hour, slow by modern standards but quite fast for the young pilots of the early 1940s. The T-6 was the first trainer to be used at Reese, beginning in early 1942.

Lockheed T-33 Shooting Star

The T-33, incorporating laminar flow wing sections, dive flaps, and a pressurized and heated cockpit, was a two-man high performance aircraft designed for training of light personnel. The first jet trainer at Reese, the T-33 was introduced Sept. 4, 1958.

A-7D Corsair II

An offshoot of the Navy's basic A-7 design, the Air Force's A-7D is a single seat tactical fighter of outstanding target kill capacity. Accuracy is heightened by a continuous-solution navigation and weapon-delivery system, including all weather radar bomb delivery. Built by Vought Systems Division of LTV Aerospace Corporation, the plane's single non afterburning turbofan engine is capable of delivering 14,250 pounds of thrust. Deliveries of the aircraft to the Air Force began in December, 1968.

B-25 Billy Mitchell Bomber

The B-25 Billy Mitchell Bomber saw action on every major front during World War II, but gained its greatest fame as the aircraft flown from the decks of the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Hornet by Lt. Col. Jimmy Doolittle and his Tokyo Raiders in attacks on the Japanese mainland in April, 1942. From 1940 to 1942, more than 4,095 of these aircraft were delivered by North American to the U.S. Army Air Force. The trainer version of the aircraft, the TB-25, was the only trainer aircraft used at Reese from January, 1955, to September, 1957. The flight line display will also include a civilian configuration of the B-25.

F-106 Delta Dart

Developed in the mid-1950s from the F-102, the F-106 delta Dart constitutes the largest single force of manned interceptors in service with the USAF. Constant modification and attention to modern trends has enabled the Aerospace Defense Command to deploy this all weather fighter throughout the 60s and into the 70s. Contractor for the aircraft was Convair Division of General Dynamics.

F-111

The most impressive design characteristic of General Dynamics Corporation F-111 is its variable wing sweep configuration. Fully spread, the wing span of the tactical fighter measures 63 feet, while fully swept the wing span is only 31 feet, 11.4 inches. Other characteristics include low-level supersonic dash, a maximum speed of Mach 2.2 at high altitude, good take off and landing performance on rough airfields and excellent maneuverability throughout the speed range.

KC-135 Stratotanker

The Boeing Company built 732 of these aircraft for the Air Force with the first of the planes being airborne in 1956. The KC-135 Stratotanker is used as a standard flight refueling tanker for Strategic Air Command bombers, with high-speed and high-altitude capabilities. Variants of the aircraft can be used as long-range passenger or cargo transports and can be adapted to refuel such specialized aircraft as the Lockheed SR-71.

T-37

The Cessna T-37 Tweety Bird entered the Undergraduate Pilot Training program at Reese March 13, 1961. This aircraft is unique, for it was the Air Force's first jet trainer specifically designed as such from the start. Jet flying at Reese starts during the seventh week of training in the T-37. This small twin engine jet trainer has a top speed of 350 miles per hour and a ceiling of 35,000 feet.

T-38

Northrop's T-38 talon jet trainer has consistently maintained the best safety record of any supersonic aircraft in the Air Force's inventory. This lightweight, twin-jet advanced trainer is capable of speeds greater than 800 miles per hour and has a ceiling of 60,000 feet. The first T-38 flew in 1959. The aircraft was in continuous production from 1956 to 1972. It was the first supersonic trainer introduced at Reese in 1963.

Team's new aircraft economical, versatile

Seven Northrop T-38 Talon demonstration jets make up the Thunderbird fleet, while deployment support is provided by a Lockheed C-130 Hercules aircraft.

A highly reliable aircraft, the T-38 is the seventh type of jet flown by the team since it began flying with the F-84G in 1953.

Designed specifically for training, the Talon was the U.S. Air Force's first supersonic jet trainer. It claimed at one time 12 world records some of which established it as one of the world's best performing aircraft.

Powered by two General Electric J-85-5 turbojet engines producing 2,900 pounds of thrust each (with afterburner) the aircraft can attain a maximum level flight airspeed of Mach 1.23 or 830 miles per hour. It is 12 feet 11 inches high and 46 feet 4 inches long and has a wing span of 25 feet 3 inches.

The Hercules carries the team's support people, equipment and clothing to and from the show sites. Capable of lifting more than 20 tons, it can climb to approximately 30,000 feet, cruise at 360 miles per hour and travel 4,000 miles without landing to refuel.

Four turboprop engines provide enough power to enable the aircraft to pull a 40-car freight train. The C-130 can also leap off a landing strip on only 300 feet and land in 500 feet.

The Hercules and additional T-38s and other specialized equipment provide spectators with an insight into the capabilities and operations of the Tactical Air Command, of which the Thunderbirds are but one squadron.

The Talons used by the Thunderbirds are not new aircraft. They are proven 1969 models which have been slightly altered to perform their new demanding task.

A vaporized oil system has been installed in the Talons to produce the dramatic tracer "smoke" the audience will see Sunday. The smoke is actually oil which is atomized by the aircraft's hot tailpipes in flight. It provides a visual reference for the pilots themselves, as well as providing a means by which spectators can easily follow the intricate aerial maneuvers.

Watching the Talons perform should be unusually meaningful to many attending today. More than 25,000 pilots have flown the aircraft, including thousands who have "driven" it right here at Reese. Additionally Reese T-38 maintenance workers should enjoy the demonstration of the maximum performance flying by the planes they work to keep in top shape daily at Reese.

The aerial maneuvers seen today are, for the most part, confidence or air combat maneuvers taught to and flown by every Talon and fighter pilot during training. However the difference is the Thunderbird touch in executing these maneuvers in very close formation and in exploiting the Talon's maximum performance.

These aerial maneuvers demonstrate the capabilities of the Talon and the ultimate in precision formation flying — a display of professionalism from Air Force pilot and his high-performance aircraft.

Modern squadron shows professionalism, air power

The United States Air Force Thunderbirds, assigned to the Tactical Air Command, have the vital mission of demonstrating the professionalism, versatility and flexibility of American land-based airpower.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Roger Parrish of Carbondale, Ill., a veteran combat pilot, the Thunderbirds have been credited with creating a greater understanding of and appreciation for Air Force tactical air operations throughout the world.

Recognized by their distinctive red, white and blue aircraft, the Thunderbirds are noted for their precision aerial maneuvers, which are designed to demonstrate professional airmanship.

Currently, the Thunderbirds fly the Northrop T-38 Talon, a supersonic trainer, which at one time held 12 world records, establishing it as one of the world's best performing aircraft.

In addition to commanding the USAF Air Demonstration Squadron, official name of the team, Colonel Parrish is the leader of the five-ship demonstration team. Following his lead are Captains Gil Mook, left wing, Charlestown, R.I.; Doug Roach, right wing, of Romulus, Mich.; Tim Roels, slot, Rrystal Lake, Ill. and Kirk Brimmer, solo, of Marshalltown, Iowa. Capt. Ray White of Dallas, Tex., is the team logistics officer, and Capt. Steve Mish of Fishersville, Va., is narrator. Captains White and Mish fly the spare number six and seven aircraft.

The Thunderbird team is comprised of 75 men and women working together in over 25 different career fields. In addition to the pilots, Colonel Parrish commands three support officers and 65 enlisted people in the fields of operations, information, administration, personnel, photography, supply, training and personal equipment as well as people in over a dozen maintenance specialties.

Although famous for their flight displays, the Thunderbirds are a highly diversified, flexible Air Force squadron. Each man and woman represents the best the U.S. Air Force has to offer in operational and support aspects as well as people-to-people contacts. Each must do his job to the highest standard as well as present the U.S. Air Force to the American public, and the United States to the people of the free world...truly "America's Ambassadors in Blue."

Thunderbirds' tradition steeped in Indian legend

Hundreds of years ago when thunder cracked in the skies over North America, Indians would raise their heads in search for the Thunderbird.

Whether on still summer evenings or during violent storms, arms would spread to speak of the width of his wings; voices could be heard speaking of his greatness. From the long houses of the Northwest to the teepees of Middle America and pueblos of the Southwest, stories were told and retold of this god.

For each time lightning twisted into the ground, the red man believed the Thunderbird was flashing his eyes or shooting flaming arrows from his powerful talons. The booming thunder was attributed to the flapping of his wings.

The Thunderbird was credited with many powers. He could decide wars, grant long life and represented an overwhelming force for good overcoming evil—his bolts of light overcoming darkness.

Depicted in many ways, the Thunderbird was portrayed on the walls of caves or on animal hides. To some he was an eagle or a hawk. One Southwest tribe painted the Thunderbird in red, white and blue.

A jet fighter cracks the sky much like our legendary Thunderbird; so thought a newly formed aerial demonstration team at Luke Air Force Base, Ariz., in 1953, and what is more American than an Indian legend? Thus the United States Air Force "Thunderbirds" were born. The roar and fire from their jets, much like the thunder and lightning in the legend, represent peace and goodwill.

The years have been good to the T-Birds

1953—The Thunderbirds became a reality at Luke AFB, Ariz.; performing before almost two million people by the end of the first year.

1954—The team leaped off on the first overseas goodwill deployment. Flying the Republic F-84G Thunderjet, the team visited 10 Latin American countries, where more than three million watched the Thunderbirds perform.

1955—The Thunderbirds changed aircraft from the F-84G to the Republic F-84F Thunderstreaks. The latter had more speed and greater maneuverability.

1956—The "Ambassadors in Blue" flew their last show in the Thunderstreaks, at Bolling AFB, Washington, D.C., where 400,000 people witnessed the demonstration. The Thunderbirds ended a proud era, having appeared before nine million people in 222 shows.

1957—The Thunderbirds went supersonic in North American F-100 Super Sabres and moved from Luke AFB to Nellis AFB, Nev., where they were named the USAF Air Demonstration Squadron. The presidents of Argentina and Brazil broke the sound barrier while flying with the Thunderbirds.

1958—The Thunderbirds received their first Outstanding Unit Award, the highest non-combatant unit decoration. Three more were earned in later years.

1959—This was another record making year for the Thunderbirds. An all-time record attendance for one year (10 million people) was set. The largest single audience ever to watch a Thunderbird air show turned out a Chicago. Estimates placed the crowd at two million. The Thunderbirds received aviation's highest honor—The MacKay Trophy following their return from their first deployment to the Far East.

1960—The Thunderbirds became the first aerial demonstration team to perform above the Arctic Circle.

1962—The nation's "Ambassadors in Blue" performed in a special show at Eglin AFB, Fla., attended by the late President John F. Kennedy.

1963—The Thunderbirds toured Europe for the first time where the total attendance for the first 10 years of Thunderbird demonstrations reached 50 million.

1965—This year proved to be the busiest in Thunderbird history. Altogether, 23 different countries were visited in a 121 show schedule. Almost seven million watched the Super Sabres. Another milestone was set when the Thunderbirds performed at Waukegan, Ill. It was their 1,000th performance.

1966—Thunderbirds confirm their popularity at small show sites. They drew 17,000 spectators from the Coffeyville, Kansas, area, although it was a city with a population of only 17,000.

1967—The USAF Air Demonstration Squadron performed their 1,000th demonstration in the Super Sabre.

1968—Approximately 1,792,000 people turned out to see the Thunderbirds during a four-day show at Toronto, Canada. The team concluded the season at Nellis AFB, ending the Super Sabre era.

1969—The Thunderbirds transitioned to the McDonnell Douglas F-4E Phantom II. The year goes down in history as the most successful for nationwide television exposure as the Thunderbirds were viewed by an audience estimated at 30 million viewers.

1970—The team performed 106 air shows, travelling 96,784 miles, and completed a highly successful deployment to Venezuela where 1,400,000 spectators came to Caracas and Maracay show sites. In addition, the team added a new maneuver to the show—the missing man formation, a salute to the Vietnam prisoners of war and missing in action.

1971—The Thunderbirds European tour smashed all previous attendance records on the continent.

1972—The mass media responded most favorably to Thunderbirds. The team logged over 75 radio and television interviews while the printed media used hundreds of articles and pictures promoting and covering the Thunderbird performances.

1973—Thunderbirds perform 78 air shows in 31 states and 19 in 10 Latin American countries. Over six million spectators attended the shows in South America. The team set an all-time yearly record when 12,020,800 spectators attended air shows in 1973, ending an era in the F-4E Phantom II. This year was also significant where the Thunderbirds performed for the 1,000,000th spectator.

1974—The Thunderbirds converted from the F-4E Phantom II to the Northrop T-38 Talon supersonic jet trainer.

YOU WILL EARN A FORTUNE!

If you average earning $525.00 a month from the age of 25 to 65 it will amount to more than a quarter of a MILLION dollars. And you probably will earn more than that.

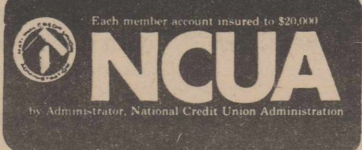

How much of that fortune will you still have when you reach the usual retirement age?

If you really worked at it, could you save 50¢ a day? That is the price of a pack of cigarettes. $15.00 a month for 50 years would amount to $7,200.00 — but if it were deposited at only 5% per annum interest, the interest would be in excess of $22,000.00 and you would be worth almost $30,000.00.

Why not start of increase your allotment now and put a little something in savings each payday? Even if it is just a small amount, if you do it each month it will add up to a nice nest egg.

Remember — there is no safer place to put your savings than . . .

Congratulations Reese!
 It's also our anniversary

Yes, it's our 25th Anniversary . . . and for a quarter of a century we have had only one premise for selling men's clothes—integrity. You can't see or touch integrity, but it has been our most important asset.

We guard it very carefully and that's not easy. Integrity covers a lot of territory—from conscientious sales people to the buying of proper merchandise.

When we buy merchandise, we don't buy it because we've been told it will sell. That's our decision.

We know there is a distinct difference between a brief fad and a fashion trend and our selections reflect innovation without obsolescence.

We realize your clothes must reflect your own personality and attitude, which has made us close to many of our customers.

We want to express our appreciation for all of the patronage we've received from our friends at Reese.

DoD explains new CHAMPUS rules

WASHINGTON (AFNS) - The Department of Defense has issued additional guidelines governing operation of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS).

The interim limitation of cost-sharing to 120 days of care on an inpatient basis and 40 outpatient visits per fiscal year for the treatment of nervous, mental or emotional illnesses or conditions is canceled.

All claims for psychotherapy, except for care in special residential treatment facilities for children and adolescents, will be processed under CHAMPUS rules for up to 120 days of inpatient care and 60 outpatient visits. All claims for care in excess of these amounts will be evaluated with respect to determination of coverage and extent of care. The process is the same as that used under the high-option provisions of the government-wide service benefit plan (Blue Cross-Blue Shield) of the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program.

Professionally Evaluated

With respect to claims for care in specialized treatment facilities for children and adolescents, care beyond 120 days will be professionally evaluated as to the need for the care, the appropriateness of the treatment program, the length of stay, and other professional matters, as well as the reasonableness of the charges.

These changes will be retroactive to July 1, 1974. It is expected that the program will be implemented before Oct. 28, 1974, at which point the 120 days review (from July 1, 1974) will become necessary.

The role of CHAMPUS is to share with eligible individuals the costs of authorized medical services and supplies obtained from civilian sources. CHAMPUS coverage is presently divided into two programs.

Basic Program

The first is the basic medical program to which these changes apply. This program provides for comprehensive coverage of traditional medical services and supplies for all beneficiaries. Eligible for this program are dependents of active-duty members, retired members and their dependents, and the survivors of deceased active-duty and deceased retired members.

The second program, for the handicapped, provides financial assistance for essentially nonmedical services required by the moderately and severely mentally retarded and the seriously physically handicapped to adjust to their handicapping conditions. It is limited to spouses and children of active-duty members.

Flight commanders needed

LACKLAND AFB, Tex. (AFNS) - If you're a captain looking for an interesting career diversion, the Air Force Officer Training School (OTS) at Lackland AFB wants to consider you for assignment as a flight commander (FC).

FCs are the primary components in the officer training process at OTS. Each commands a flight of some 15 officer trainees from the first through the 60th and final day of training. Though an FC is an instructor and counselor, he is primarily an evaluator. He plays the important role in the OTS program of determining a trainee's commissioning potential.

Officers interested in this rewarding and challenging job should talk with their consolidated base personnel office people. The duty is open to men and women, rated or nonrated, from any career field.

The assignment is a three-year controlled tour.

CASTING DIRECTOR — Lonnie Audrey could be called that as he places the casting plug right in the floating inner tube to win the casting contest during Mathis Recreation Center National Hunting and Fishing Day activities Saturday. He won a casting rod provided by Sports Center and assorted lures from Oakley Lures, both Lubbock firms, for his efforts. His father, Milt, followed suit in the senior division contest, winning that contest and with it a reel donated by the Lubbock Bass Club. You might say were "cast" in the same mold. Bowlers' scores improve as new season rolls on

By Sonny Serutan

Scores continue to improve as the new season rolls on; the high game has become the rule rather than the exception.

In the Reesette League Sept. 23 Marie Buck found the range, posting a 206 game and 493 series. Rusty Grady, Philadelphia's gift to Texas, had a 192 game and 478 series. Rose Anderson also had a 478 series.

The Classic League also had some shooting that day. Scores are not available but Rod Wilson and Howard Creek led the way.

The next day the Intramural Bowling League bowled. Rod Wilson again led the way with a 213 game and 573 series. Dick Hubany had a 224-572 and Dave Doukas had a 216-560. Other high game honors went to Chuck Zullo (223), Tom Seebo (219) and Mel Wright (214).

No scores from the Personnel Division League, I'll run that secretary down next time I see him.

Supersonic League

The Supersonic League's super ladies bowled the afternoon of Sept. 24. Connie Hiatt took high honors with a 143 and Cindy Isaacks took series with a 398.

Sept. 26 the Ball and Chain League racked up some good scores. Rusty Grady, the gift that Texas is going to return, really bombed them with a 211 game, 554 series. Charles Buck led in the high game category for the men, posting a 223 game. Rod Wilson (this guy bags so much sand he should be working in Flood Control) had a 557 series.

The Cotton Pickers bowled Sept. 27. Gladys Mele took time off from supervisory position at the Base Exchange (newly-promoted) to roll a 515 series. Congratulations on the promotion and the series, Limey. Judy Turner had a 512 and Betty Payne rolled a 501 series.

For the men, Bill Register had a 585 set, Ed Rodriguez had a 523 and Rod Wilson had a 512.

A Sprinkling

High games were sprinkled over the entire league. Sally Zullo had a 221, Betty Payne a 203 and Gladys Mele a 201. For the men, Bill Register had a 204 and 202.

The American Junior Bowling Congress got underway with some good bowling. In the Junior-Senior League, Randy Turner had a 201-540. For the young ladies, Val Torkildson had a 185 set.

Sonny's Place is still doing pretty well, but live entertainment is still a problem. We were going to have a victory celebration for the travelling team...unfortunately they won one and lost seven. We understand that the only good thing that happened to the rovers was the games finally ended.

Sonny Says - "Bowlers are people that bowl, but all people who bowl are not bowlers."

Reese Chiefs scalp first two opponents

Led by quarterback Nick Schmidt, The Reese Chiefs have won their first two games of the season, rolling over both local Youth Football League teams by large margins.

The Chiefs blitzed the team sponsored by Worsham Steel by a 22-0 score two weeks ago and then returned last Sunday to demolish the team sponsored by Briercroft Savings and Loan, 28-6.

Continuing their momentum, the Chiefs, comprised of 10, 11 and 12-year-old military dependents, will take on the team sponsored by the Lubbock Lions Club at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. The game will be in conjunction with the Reese 25th Anniversary Open House

Everyone is invited to attend the game at the physical training field behind the Officers' Open Mess to cheer Reese's Youth Football League on to victory. No admission is charged to any of the Chiefs' games.

The Reese Chiefs are tied with the team sponsored by Furr's Cafeterias for the league lead with equal two-win, no-loss seasons.

Worsham Steel, Briercroft Savings and Loan, MHDAC and Luskey's Western Wear are next with equal 1-1 seasons so far. Bringing up the rear of the standings are McClain Oil and Lubbock Lions Club, with 0-2 seasons.
