Former Lamplighter Inn gets a new name and a new vision

The Maker's Mansion in Floydada, formerly the Lamplighter Inn, is now in the process of housing the newly formed Christian Women's Job Corps, also known as CWJC.

Christian Women's Job Corps is a ministry of WMU (Woman's Missionary Union) and seeks to provide a Christian context in which women in need are equipped for life and employment, and a missions context in which women help women.

CWJC already has over 150 sites in the United States. Because of the success rate of CWJC training programs are on-going for women interested in opening a site in their own community.

Brenda Parker and Michelle Ruddell, of Floydada, have recently finished the training and are now recruiting volunteers to help in the pro-

'CWJC give women a sense of hope and self respect," said Parker. "It helps women become self-sufficient. The program is for women in dependent situations--not just welfare.

Each CWJC site is organized to meet the needs of women and prepare them for employment in their community. Job readiness skills are taught along with life skills. At some sites, computer literacy is also taught. Some CWJC classes meet daily for several weeks; others consist of a woman meeting weekly with her mentor.

The program is flexible so it can adapt to any community.

Each woman involved in a CWJC program is involved in Bible study. She is also matched with a trained Christian woman who will be her mentor, helping her from dependency to self-sufficiency.

A train coordinator leads each site. The program at each site must include eight key elements of CWJC: a mentor for each client, a covenant with every client and mentor, Bible study, 3755.

Police seize alcohol in raid

The Lockney Police Department served a search warrant, Sunday, February 11, at a home located on the corner of S.W. 2nd and Poplar Street, in Lockney.

According to Lockney Police Sgt. Chuck Martin, "We had information the resident was selling alcoholic beverages illegally. We were looking for alcoholic beverages in the house.'

Police seized approximately 8 cases of beer, 1 1/2 boxes of plastic carry out bags, and $514.00 in assorted U.S. currency. "We believe the money was proceeds from the sale of alcohol," said Martin.

The resident was not at home, and no arrests were made. The case will be filed with the County Attorney's office on Thursday.

The search warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace Kirk Wyrick.

An Apple A Day

Respectfully Submitted by State Senator Tom Haywood, District 30

An apple a day keeps the doctor away. An apple for the teacher. Any correlation between the two?

The way things have been going with Texas teachers' health insurance, they may do well to take those apples to heart. They may be the only thing saving them if the Texas Legislature can't draft a plan for teacher health insurance

Currently, public school workers don't get state-paid health insurance like state employees do. And though state law requires districts to offer coverage comparable to what state employees get, it does not provide a penalty for not doing so. Eighty-five percent of school districts pay into their employee's insurance but the amount that each school district contributes

The problem has become so serious, in fact, that Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, last month appointed the Select House Committee on Teacher Health Insurance made up of 15 members from across the state. At the helm is Rep. Paul Sadler, a veteran voice for teachers and long-time chair of the House Public Education

The committee met this week to offer bill drafters a chance to present their various ideas on how to remedy this crucial situation. Some six house bills, two house joint resolutions, six senate bills and one senate joint resolution have been filed as possible solutions to the dilemma.

The underlying themes of the legislation would either beef up and expand TRS-Care, the current program at Teacher Retirement System, to include active employees and dependents as well as retirees; end TRS-Care and set up a new health insurance program with the state paying part of the premium cost for active school employees, with no changes to the retirees benefits; create a new group health insurance requiring all ISDs to participate with employee optout; create a state-funded health insurance allotment; or create a statewide group health insurance program for all school employees with the state paying the total premium for employee-only coverage.

Out of that, three prevalent options have emerged: a fully state-funded plan, a plan in which the state and school districts share costs and a staterun insurance plan that pools employees from all districts that choose to

Now he is free from even that threat, thanks to Bill Clinton who gave him a Presidential pardon after considering the "merits" of the case. Now we know, if we did not know before, what it takes for Bill Clinton to consider a position, any position, "meritorious." Currently there is a Congressional investigation into certain aspects of the case. Aside from the obvious questions, there are a couple we would like to know the answers to. If Marc Rich has indeed renounced his American citizenship in favor of citizenship in other countries, (and therefore presumably becoming subject to the laws of his newly adopted country), what right does an American President have to grant him a pardon? True, the Constitution does give the President absolute right to grant pardons to whomever he pleases and for whatever reason suits him. But does that right extend to citizens of another country? And if he (Rich) is still a citizen of America (and therefor subject to the laws of America,) does he not owe income taxes on all the millions he has made while abroad?

It may turn out that Mr. Clinton was too smart by half. In the meantime, while observing the Clinton's departure from the White House, Americans might be forgiven for suspecting that

The Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) will remove a number of trees next week to keep the branches from extending into highpower transmission lines and ultimately interrupting service for Floydada customers.

Southwestern Public Service (SPS) has hired Asplund to trim and remove the trees from the right of way at U.S. 70 north of Floydada and U.S. 60 south of town to the canyon. SPS and TxDOT are working together to keep the trees trimmed to prevent service interruptions from overgrown branches. Trees directly under the power lines will be removed. The other trees will be trimmed.

"If we had a choice, we would trim all the trees instead of removing to buy 1 1/2 inch water line at the inthem," said Ann Finley, TxDOT district vegetation specialist. Muse News

The Floyd County Historical Museum had approximately 3400 visitors sign the register in the year 2000. This number has increased due to visitors coming to see the Coronado artifacts from Blanco Canyon and family history researchers using the materials in the Mary Lou Bollman History and Genealogy Center. Recent visitors have registered from Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado, Arkansas, New Mexico, Ohio and Washington.

Names being added to the Life Member Plaque are: Q. D. and Joyce Williams; Kelton and Sally Shaw, Keith and Gayle Jackson; Janet Milam; Phil and Susan Dunavant; First National Bank of Floydada, Warren and Barbara Mathis; Wilson Barton, Dr. W. Michael Mathes; Henry and Olive Hinton; Donette Marble; and Louise Bollman Burton.

Brochure's are available at the Museum for the South Plains Heritage Trail, a self-guided tour of historic sites. It covers twenty-two counties in the South Plains area. Floyd County sites included are: Blanco Canyon; Floyd County Historical Museum; and Clarity Tunnel.

The Museum is also a member of the Llano Estacado Tourism Society. This Society has a very nice website at www.llanoestacado.com. It features maps, attractions, hotels, calendar of events and phone book.

Plans for activities celebrating the Museum's 30th anniversary are being made. Open house will be held on Friday, May 25, 2001, the day preceding the Floyd County Pioneer Reunion on Saturday, May 26.

DON'T WALK AND NOT also. DRINK-I went to Mexico in 1970 to Before I started carrying a canteen preach two Bible conferences in Puebla, southeast of Mexico City, and in the mountains of central Chiapas.

Little did I know that a few months later the Lord would burden my heart to go back as a full time missionary. After nine months of deputation presenting my calling and preaching in about 120 churches from Detroit to Texas, we went to Mexico.

I was willing to go where ever the Lord would open doors to start new churches. Almost all my contacts through our printing and correspondence ministries were located high in the mountains of Chiapas or Oaxaca among the Indian tribes.

It was in these states that I began my extensive mountain climbing ministry. Each mountain range was hot and humid at the bottom, but cold in the higher elevations among the pines.

I first tried to be the macho man and climb without a sleeping bag or drinking water. But it didn't take me long to realized I must carry water, or drink from the contaminated streams and come down with diarrhea. The nights get very cold in the mountains, so I needs physical water for the body and of purified water with me, I had a horrible experience in Chiapas trying to walk through the mountains to reach a Tzeltal Indian church before dark.

We, an Indian guide, my interpreter, and two other Indian believers, started walking by 6 a.m. We would climb a mountain range and then drop down into a valley where the bananas grow, then back over another mountain and back down into another valley. This went on for over fourteen hours.

I had drank a soft drink around 9:30 a.m. and that was it. We ate a couple of tortillas with scrambled eggs in them for lunch, but we had no water. This compounded my thirst for water by mid-afternoon. My legs began to get very weak and unsteady and I almost fell over some steep bluffs.

About dark, we came upon an orange grove. I was willing to pay any price and I ate peelings and all. We made it to the church where I drank several cups of coffee.

I survived this trip, but I had learned a valuable lesson.

MORAL OF THE STORY: Man decided a sleeping bag was a must Christ, the Water of Life, for the soul."

Coach Hise's comments: "Our young men have shown so much character during district, and they did again tonight. Floydada deserves a lot of credit, because they played a great ball game. But our guys responded to the challenge, and found a way to win. This was an outstanding effort by the whole team, and I am very proud of each one of them. This team plays with a lot of emotion, and intensity, and they believe in themselves and each other. We had our backs to the wall several times tonight, but the guys wouldn't be denied. Through hard work and dedication and belief, these young men accomplished something that few people would have imagined. I thought everyone played a big role in this victory. Brandon was a warrior from the beginning of the game, and Wade played huge in the second half. Emmanuel, Frankie and Cody played great defense on Morales. Jeremy was able to get some minutes, and played well defensively and on the boards. Todd stepped up during the crunch time and made some huge plays for us. Kirk played a rethis win.'

The win moves the Longhorns record to 18-11 on the season. The Longhorns began the district race at 1-2 but responded by winning the last nine district games, to finish at 10-2. Brandon Alvis led the teams with 33 points, and Wade Miller chipped in 16 (14 in the second half). Todd Cotham scored 8 points, and Frankie Gonzales had 6. Emmanuel Ramirez had 3 points, Kirk Wilson had 2 and Jeremy Butler had 1 point. Mo Collins sat out the game nursing his sprained ankle, but could be ready on Friday night.

Lockney will play Hale Center on Friday night (February 16th) to determine the seeding for the playoffs. The game will be at 9:00 p.m. at the Rip Griffin Center (on the campus of Lubbock Christian University). The winner will face the winner of Haskell and Archer City on February 23rd or 24th. The loser will face Spearman in the bi-district playoff game on Monday or Tuesday (February 19th or 20th) at a site to be determined.

Cotton contigent return from D.C.

By Shawn Wade

A week-long trip across the Cotton Belt has ended in Washington, DC for a group of cotton producers from the Southern High Plains.

The trip, organized by the Lamesa Cotton Growers, Plains Cotton Growers and Western Peanut Growers, focused on making contacts and discussing options for dealing with the current economic problems being experienced by production agriculture.

The trip also provided new insight into the activities of two organizations, the National Cotton Council and Cotton Incorporated, and what they are doing on behalf of the U.S. cotton

Highlights of the Washington, DC, portion of the trip included a briefing by House and Senate Agriculture Committee (HAC) staff and sit-down meetings with House Ag Committee Chairman Larry Combest and Ranking Minority Member Charlie Stenholm, House Appropriations Committee member Henry Bonilla who chairs the Subcommittee for Agricultural Appropriations, as well as Texas Senators Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison.

Combest and company all made a point of emphasizing that the effort to increase budget authority for agriculture programs would probably be the biggest factor determining what type of farm program reform can eventually be accomplished

Combest noted that he and the other members of the HAC are eager to hear the ideas that will be presented by commodity organization representatives next week when hearings on farm policy convene.

Tour participants were also given the heads-up that the Senate Ag Committee would like to begin marking up a new Farm Bill as early as October 2001, well in advance of most other projections for action on the Senate

Earlier in the week the growers visited the Memphis, TN, headquarters of the National Cotton Council and got a report on the status and focus of the many NCC programs that are now

The group also stopped over in Carey, NC, to tour the new Cotton Incorporated research facility there and to hear about the activities CI carries out in the areas of cotton research and market price rebound slightly by planting time this year, said a Texas A&M University economist.

Producers may see rebound in prices

"I wish I could tell you we will see 80- or 90-cent cotton ahead, but a combination of factors will likely keep the 2001 market rather lackluster. But that doesn't mean there won't be any profit in this year's market," said Carl Anderson Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist based in College Station. "Based on the latest USDA crop report, there will probably be enough cotton in 2001 to hold December futures between 62 and 72 cents per pound until the end of the

"Even so, I am bearish on short-run prices and rather bullish on long-term prices. You could see prices recover to near 69 cents per pound by May when you normally begin planting."

Anderson made these projections while addressing more than 120 South Plains cotton producers at the recent Llano Estacado West Cotton Conference here. The conference is one of several January and February regional production meetings held by South Plains county Extension agents each

Imports and exports, consumption, uncertainty about China's cotton marketing position and higher U.S. planting intentions will play a role in setting 2001 cotton prices, Anderson

'China, for example, just recently and rather unexpectedly, 'found' another 2 million bales of cotton. That effectively boosts their 2001 expected production to 20 million bales," Anderson noted. "At the same time, USDA expects 2001 world cotton consumption to rise by 340,000 bales, while world stocks decline by about 3.77 million bales. If this higher consumption, lower stocks scenario pans out, we could see prices move up-

If the U.S. economy slows and European and Asian economies remain stable, world cotton demand should remain stable this year, the economist said. But even though USDA's latest numbers imply that world production is not keeping up with global cotton consumption, global carryover stocks need to decline even further to sustain a rally in cotton prices. Anderson added.

index between 65 and 75 cents per pound for the next 12 months. And that gives you (producers) some pricing and profit opportunities." The A index is the lowest average world price in five of the world's 12 major cotton producing nations.

Anderson said producers should strongly consider pricing the bulk of their crop between April and June of this year. He also recommended they watch the market closely, and employ pool pricing to increase their market

'Try to have your crop priced by July, at the latest. Buying puts as price insurance, and selling out-of-the- tion, strengthen our income safety net, money calls is a good way to lock in a control federal budget costs, reduce floor price while leaving the ceiling world commodity stocks, and help open if a shifting market pushes prices protect our natural resources."

keting club or gin pool can add price leverage to your marketing strategy. There is strength in numbers.

"Forward contracts are another operode the security of locking in a price with forward contracts.'

He also said producers must reduce cotton production costs, diversify through crop rotation, use prescription ginning to meet end-user (cotton buyer) demands, and develop flexible, integrated marketing plans in order to ride out price slides in the market.

"For a lot of you, that means changing the way you do business," Anderson said. "At the same time, you should be thinking about policy - because Washington may soon initiate some changes in our farm bill.

"You can influence that process as a group. You can help bolster our economy and long-term ag profitability by supporting changes that enhance international market competi-
