Study plots future of FISD

By Darwin Robinson
The FISD Board met Tuesday, June 17, in Special Session to hear an analysis report from Paul Trautman of Texas Association of School Administrators (TASA) concerning the conditions of all FISD facilities and campuses. Upon the recommendation of FISD Superintendent Jerry Vaughn, the school board had approved the $9,000 study in their February 6, 2003 meeting. Vaughn said, "This is only a preliminary report and is not the final report."

According to Trautman, who has been doing these studies in Texas for the past ten years, said, "The study involves five tasks. They are the population forecast, the condition of each existing facility, the calculation of each campus' capacity, the long term and best use of each existing facility and the recommendations and conclusions to the district."

"When I go into a community, it is evident they have existing buildings and they want to know how they can use them. Instead they should be asking, 'What works best for the education of our children and how will these existing buildings help us accomplish this?'"

Trautman added, "The baby boomers born in 1948 peaked in 1958 and hit the bottom of the charts in 1977. There was another peak of births from 1990 through 1992, but most of these kids have already graduated. From 1990 to 2000, class sizes fell during these years and it is forecast to continue to decline in the future. Part of this decline is due to relocation.

"There has been a 1 1/2 percent decline in class enrollment over the last ten years. Floyd County's class enrollment has declined 8 1/2 percent from 1990 to 2000. Floydada ISD declined 5.6 percent during this time period. We forecast FISD will continue to decline about 1.2 percent each year and it will probably level out at the end of this ten year cycle. We predict you will lose about 120 students in enrollment over the next ten years."

"In 1994, the state set specific requirements concerning the ratio between the number of students in classrooms and the size of the

City of Lockney facing fines over old wastewater plant

A deteriorating wastewater plant, in Lockney, has brought threats of "substantial" fines by the Texas Commission of Environmental Quality. The fines, which could exceed $30,000, have prompted the City Council to pursue a grant to help the city rebuild the wastewater plant.

Lockney Mayor Roger Stapp gathered Lockney citizens together at the Senior Citizen's Building, June 18, to listen to, Lance Owens, an inspector from TCEQ.

Also on hand at the meeting were Cynthia Vallejo with the Office of Rural Community, and Ellena Qintewall, with SPAG. Vallejo was on hand to talk to the community about applying for a grant with the Office of Rural Community to rebuild the plant.

A recent report by the TCEQ stated, "The age of the plant is an area of great concern. The plant is in a serious state of deterioration. The imhoff tank is cracking and leaking in places. The walkways are rusting away to the point that inspection of the plant is also a safety concern."

The imhoff tank is the first place in the waste disposal area that sewage goes. It is a settling tank which traps the heavy sludge before the remaining material is dispersed out into two large open pits.

If the imhoff tank is working properly the sludge will never be exposed to open air. Because of the large cracks in the tank, it is no longer containing the heavy sludge as it should.

Owens said the city should receive a "violation notice" and fine for failure to maintain the plant. However, because the process of constructing a plant (from application of grant to completion) takes at least 3 years, the TCEQ gave the City its last warning.

"The City of Lockney will be given a year to begin the process of planning for extensive updating of the existing plant or construction of new plant," said Owens.

"This wastewater plant has been around since the 1950's," said Owens. "Since 1999 the inspections have shown areas of concern. The tank has been patched and painted but the cracking problem continues. There is also discharging from pond #2. There is no warning system on the lift station in case of failure and parts are needed to replace the imhoff tank."

"The city is looking at steep fines if they don't take action."

Vallejo told the mayor and Lockney citizens that the city's urgent need would be considered in getting a STEP Grant (Small Towns Environment Program).

"The STEP grants are given on a 60%-40% basis," said Vallejo. "They are a self help program. The city must provide 40% of the funds (which can be donated through volunteer labor) and STEP would provide 60%."

"You need to look for people who have skills you will need--such as backhoe operators, plumbers, electricians, clerical skills, babysitting for workers, scheduling of workers, feeding workers, etc."

The first step, according to Vallejo, was for an engineer to draw up the plans and let the city know what type of workers will be needed. Then the hunt should begin for volunteers.

An early and rough estimate for the cost of the project was set at $300,000. "Your 40% would be $120,000," said Vallejo. "There are plenty of ways to prove $120,000 worth of local work."

According to the engineer, Michale O'Shea, who attended the meeting, the city would have to build a 300 foot by 600 foot pond ("one football field by 2 football fields). The engineer would "design", "inspect", and "monitor" the project.

SPAG representative, Ellena Qintewall, stepped up to the microphone and told the crowd that SPAG would start the ball rolling by donating their services to write the grant application. "We will write the project and push the paper to the state," said Qintewall. "SPAG will be the first to start your savings--as your administrator."

As the meeting closed citizens were already gathering to plan their next steps toward beginning the project, and lining up qualified volunteers.

Sunset Avenue paving debated

By Darwin Robinson

The Floydada City Council met Tuesday, June 17, in regular session and heard reports concerning the paving of Sunset Avenue, zoning changes, beautification of the medians entering the city and future demolition of old structures in the city.

More discussion surrounded the paving, or closing of, Sunset Avenue, but no action was taken by the council.

City Manager Brown said, "We are continuing to try to resolve what we are going to do about Sunset Avenue. Currently there is a petition out (to close Sunset Avenue) that has to be signed by all property owners touching this street before we can go any further."

"If all property owners sign this petition then it will be presented (to the council). We will then come up with the code and facts for a hammerhead (a private entrance to garages facing Sunset Avenue) or whatever we need to do to make it work.

"This (street decision) has not moved as quickly as we wanted it to or as others wanted it to, but at least it is moving," Brown explained.

Councilmember Clar Schacht said, "If they close that street and we put in a cul-de-sac (dead end barrier), then the property owners, who need to get to their garages, will be responsible for the expenses to build an entrance to their garages. The people signing that (the petition to close the street) need to know that. There may be cost involved, such as, curbs, gutters and paving just to get to their garage."

"It is real easy to sign a petition if you are not spending your money, but when you have (your) money involved (that is something else)," Schacht continued.

Councilmember Jon Nielson asked, "What happens where the road is, if you put up a cul-de-sac between the alleys, then can they

Old Country Market still in need of more craft vendors

Depending on the participation of craft booths, the Ol' Country Market, will be held in Floydada, July 12.

"We need more craft booths to sign up before we will hold the Ol' Country Market," said organizer Julie Duke. "The deadline to sign up is June 30. Contact the Chamber of Commerce in Floydada if you want to participate."

The Chamber has also planned the City Wide Garage Sale for July 12. "We will still have the City Wide Garage Sale even if the Ol' Country Market is not held," said Chamber Manager Irene Hernandez.

Anyone wishing to have their garage sale address included on the garage sale map must contact the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber is also currently conducting a fund raiser of selling Krispy Kreme doughnuts. "We will also hand out the doughnuts on the square, July 12, even if we don't have the Ol' Country Market," said Hernandez.

Documentary on Larry vs. Lockney to air on PBS

Larry v. Lockney, a documentary about Larry Tannahill's lawsuit against Lockney ISD's drug testing policy, will make its broadcast premiere on Tuesday, July 1 at 10:00 p.m. on PBS (see local listings).

In February 2000, LISD instituted a mandatory drug-testing policy for 6th through 12th grade students.

Larry Tannahill refused to sign the policy for his son, Brady, to be tested, and in March 2000 he filed suit with the help of the ACLU.

March 2001, U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings ruled school drug testing unconstitutional.

Because their insurance company refused to continue to cover expenses, LISD was forced to make a decision not to appeal.

A similar fight, by the Tecumseh school district in Oklahoma was, however, taken to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court ruled in favor of drug testing by school districts in June 2002.

With this favorable ruling, LISD again voted to implement drug testing on students involved in extra-curricular activities.

In the middle of the battle over the drug testing, Mark Birnbaum, of Dallas, and his co-producer and co-director, Jim Schermbeck, of Slaton, arrived in Lockney to film a documentary about the battle.

From August 2000 to May 2001, Schermbeck and Birnbaum traveled to Lockney frequently, attending almost all football and basketball games, homecoming events, and local festivals.

"We became fixtures in the town," said Schermbeck. "Mark and I often say that the key to good documentary filmmaking is to keep showing up, and that is what we did."

In all, the two amassed over 100 hours of tape. "We have a pretty good Lockney High School sports highlight reel in there somewhere," joked Schermbeck.

When Schermbeck and Birnbaum first came to Lockney, the town had just been through its first wave of national publicity over the testing controversy and residents were angry about the slants and mistakes the media was making.

"We were about as welcome as boll weevils," said Birnbaum. "One of the things we're most proud of (about this film) is getting good reviews from both sides in town," said Schermbeck. "Lockney school board member John Quebe, who's featured in the film, was quoted as saying that he never asked us where we stood on the issue while we were interviewing him and after seeing the show, he still couldn't tell where we stood."

Schermbeck says he wants to make more films about the area. "There's no shortage of good stories waiting to be told in this part of the country," said Schermbeck. "What there is a shortage of, is coordination of local resources from Texas Tech, private companies and individuals to facilitate the telling of these stories."

"We have great equipment, great expertise, great historical collections and a PBS station that's a gateway to the network for content from West Texas, but no one person or university department or group that is charged with matching the filmmakers to the stories to the potential funders. All we lack is the right vehicle to put all the pieces together."

"That's what I'm working on now."

Birnbaum is currently working on two historical documentaries about Dallas County history. He also recently returned from Eastern Europe where he was shooting a holocaust project, about two brothers who have been on a quest to find the places where their grandparents lived as they moved through Nazi Europe, eventually to die at Auschwitz.

Schermbeck says that he and Birnbaum miss their frequent trips to Lockney. "Our appreciation for the town grew as we visited it more," said Schermbeck. "I still have a Lockney cotton boll and 2000 Homecoming ribbon displayed on my desk.

"While we understand that it might be unpleasant to revisit the story, at least this time the town has an opportunity to share all it went through with the rest of the country--not only with the airing of the film itself, but also through the professional web site and study guide put together to go with the show."

The website (www.pbs.org/pov) also features thoughts from several people featured in the film.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Mr. Towery

Only today did I discover the Hesperian-Beacon website and read some of your "Reflections" that have appeared in previous issues.

I am a native of Lockney and a graduate of LHS in 1958 and Texas Tech in 1962. But, like many of my contemporaries and thousands of graduates since, I have not lived in Lockney since completing high school. But I return to my roots at least once a year, even though I have lived and worked in Washington and 5 "other" foreign countries most of my life.

I can see why you are a Pulitzer Prize winner and I can see how amazingly lucky Floyd County is to have you as owner and Editor of the Hesperian-Beacon.

So far I have read four of your essays: "The Diamond Ring, or Perception in Politics, is the Name of the Game", "Where are the Weapons of Mass Destruction", "Iraq, Syria, Iran and Whatever" and "Response to Letter From Mr. Johnny Warren".

I am particularly impressed with the accuracy of your comments on the Middle East situation. And even more impressed with the cogency of your comments about Jewish and Israeli influence in America.

I have spent most of the past 15 years living and working in the Middle East as a Development Economist, mostly under funding from the US Agency for International Development. I have come to understand the situation from both the American and Arab perspective.

I couldn't agree with you more that Jewish and Israeli lobbyists, along with radicals like Jerry Falwell are the tail that wags American foreign policy, and under George Bush, virtually all policies.

But, not only are Republicans dominated by such neo-conservatives, Democrats are in the same boat. I recently read a very well researched book by the much-maligned former Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, Jim Hightower, (If the gods had meant us to vote they would have given us candidates). He accurately points out that the professional politicians in both parties are funded by the same special interests, many of them dominated by Jews whose first allegiance is to Israel.

I can also recommend another enlightening book, Jews in American Politics, an unabashed celebration of the Jews and Jewish organizations that have come to dominate the three branches of government as well as the mass media, in order to guarantee continued American support for the unjust, illegal and immoral Israeli occupation of Palestinian lands and water.

Evidently, we in the United States are not the only people who have occasional trouble with mail. Sometimes even the powerful U.S. Military establishment is afflicted, despite all the money it pours into the operation.

We got word the other day that a grandson was back in this country, after a stint with the Marines in Iraq. The grandson is not a complete stranger to folks in Floyd County. Many years ago he (Roland 3) and Adam Gonzales, and Michael Brown, as teenagers, worked long and hard cleaning out accumulated junk here at the Hesperian. They uncovered stuff we didn't know we had, and threw away stuff we didn't need. The net winner was the landfill east of town.

The word of his return from Iraq came via a telephone call from a Marine base in California, where he had returned before going on to his base in Georgia. Then, a few days later, we received a letter mailed in Kuwait on May 5, 2003, which, coincidentally, was exactly 61 years since we had gone into Japanese prison camp following the fall of Corregidor. In his letter, there was a lengthy complaint about mail service. Nobody's mail was getting through. Could grandpa do something about it?

Well, not really. By the time anything was done, by the time Senators and/or Congressmen could be contacted, the war would be over and people who were complaining would be back in the U.S., going about their jobs. Screwed-up mail service would be remembered, along with the heat, the dust, and the bushwhackers, as just another unpleasant aspect of life in Iraq. And that's about the way it happened.

The war may or may not be over. Military folks are still getting killed there, and will get killed as long as the country is occupied, or the Iraqis look upon themselves as being occupied. Many of those Reservists who were activated for this particular call to duty (or at least those who came through unscathed) are now back at their old jobs. Those "regulars" who were left on the scene are now transformed from warriors into policemen in a foreign country, a most difficult, unrewarding, unpleasant mission.

And while they are doing their duty in Iraq, the political wheels are turning here in America...and in the Middle East. A sizeable segment of America's political leadership, both Republican and Democrat, continue its hot pursuit of support from various domestic lobbies of foreign support groups. The Republican leadership, led by George W. Bush and ably assisted by Karl Rove, and Mitch McConnell, is determined to take money and votes of the American Jewish community away from Democrats, and Democrats, led by Senators Tom Dashle and Ted Kennedy, and Rep. Frost, are determined that it won't happen. Meanwhile, Mr. Sharon sits in his catbird's seat in Tel Aviv, knowing that no matter which way the wind blows, it will be favorable.

In the meantime a massive search continues for Saddam Hussein. Earlier bombs on his hideouts, or upon where he was supposed to be, evidently didn't do the trick. Now there's a question as to whether the latest salvo, against a small convoy near the Syrian border, might have done the trick. Personally, we hope he is still alive and issuing orders. If so, he will ultimately be caught, or killed. If not, if he is indeed dead, we can take no comfort in the fact that significant resistance to our forces still exists among his hard core followers. If the followers can hang together when their leader is long gone, we have problems.

And still more in the meantime, our Supreme Court, on a 4-5 split decision, says this week it is fine and constitutional for the University of Michigan Law school to give special consideration to minority students in hopes that 25 years hence, other factors will negate the current need to "diversify" future American leaders. It is a sad day for those who think our fundamental law, the Constitution, is supposed to guide all our laws. But Jesse Jackson is most pleased, the American Left is most pleased, The American corporate structure is most pleased. The American media (we don't know whether to include them in the American Left, or the American corporate structure) is most pleased. And no doubt the New York Times, former home of Editor Howell Raines and his protégé reporter Jason Blair, is most pleased.

Decision on future paving of Sunset Avenue is tabled by Floydada City Council get the trash trucks in and out of there?"

Schacht responded, "That is just not an option and I think they need to know that."

Mayor Bob Gilliland stated, "There would be no action on this at this time until we can get some more figures and information."

According to previous estimates quoted by Councilman Eric Cornelius, the paving and curbing of the six blocks of Sunset Avenue will cost around $30,000 per block, or a total of $180,000.

City resident Stan Payne, who lives next to Sunset Avenue and is on the Mayor's committee for the Sunset Avenue Project, told the Hesperian-Beacon later, "I asked the council back in February, if they needed signatures on a petition. They told me 'no'. Now the City is sending out a petition."

"What we want is the street to be paved. But if not, then we do want the street closed. I did not appreciate Clar Schacht's closing statement, "That is not an option," and I think he should not be on the (Sunset Avenue Project) committee," Payne concluded.

In another similar item on the agenda concerning the paving of South Main Street from Ollie Street to the alley south of Mae Avenue on the south side of the city, City Manager Brown said, "This street has been lost and should have never been done the way it was done. It was a half-street paving job and the east side was never curbed or guttered. Now the paving has deteriorated and has broken off. It is now maybe a one lane paved street. The property owners paid for this paving and curbing years ago."

"We have estimates around $30,000 to do the completed job of engineering, paving, guttering and curbing. It borders county property and we do have the money in the budget for this. We have been looking at this for a long time," said Brown.

Schacht asked, "Are you planning on curbing and guttering the east side also?"

Nielson asked, "Like on Sunset Avenue where we are talking about those people who are going to have to pay for curbing and guttering, you are saying, years ago that those people who lived on the east side of that street paid for it already?"

Brown responded, "No, they did not pay for the guttering and curbing on the east side. We can back up and put it into next year's budget."

Nielson made the motion to table the item, in order to go look at the street. It was seconded by Councilmember Ruben Barrientos and unanimously passed.

The council also voted unanimously to change the zoning of 100, 200 and 300 blocks of W. Houston from "residential" to "commercial."

According to City Manager Gary Brown homeowners need not be concerned about paying more taxes due to the new zone change.

Ms. Faulkenberry (of the Appraisal District Office) said that homes in those three blocks would continue to be valued as residential and would be taxed accordingly," said Brown. "If a business were located along these same three blocks, it would be valued as commercial and would be taxed accordingly."

The City council did approve a multi-year Public Lease Agreement between the City of Floydada and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for the purpose of raising and hunting dove, small game and waterfowl on the City farm.

City Manager Brown and Councilmember Schacht together gave a brief report concerning Mackenzie Municipal Water Authority. Following the attendance of a meeting that afternoon by Schacht and Roger Stapp of Lockney, Schacht said, "It was reported there will be a 25 percent reduction in funds coming into MMWA from the cities involved starting with the July payments."

Concerning the bookkeeping at MMWA, Brown said, "It is a wreck. They (the auditors) have found about 21, or 22, or 23, so far, line item entries that are missing out of the computer."

"They said there are 27 files that were deleted," said Schacht.

Brown added, "Roger (Stapp) has put in countless hours in chasing numbers on what we can do to get their attention. And I believe he has succeeded. Besinger (the auditor) is already working on the budget for next year. Our payments next year will adjust."

"Once Mackenzie MWA gets a new budget and we show an effort, the USDA area office of Lubbock is encouraging us to write a letter to Washington asking that our (long term) debt be forgiven. They believe it will be. I think, that debt is on the treatment plant and distribution lines."

"The bonds that built the dam will be paid off in another five to seven years," added Brown.

Both Brown and Schacht declared there would be hardly any water, much less good water, in Mackenzie Lake in another year, unless it rains heavily in the near vicinity of the lake.

Brown gave a brief report about West Texas Municipal Power Authority of Lubbock. "I have lost all trust in WTMPA of Lubbock," said Brown. "There are things we don't understand, but the debt they say we (the coop cities) owe is from $400,000 to $5 million. Someone must show us and justify it," Brown concluded.

Kay Howard of A&J Howco Services of Lubbock presented to the council the contracts with the Texas Community Development Program for the 2003 sewer grant. The $236,069 grant was unanimously approved by the council.

Concerning the grant presentation, Howard said, "Jack Alaniz did an excellent job in presenting Floydada's need for sewer repairs. He made it very vivid."

Several Floydada residents spoke to the council during Public Hearing about giving them extensions of 60 days to renovate or possibly move some of the old structures on the list for immediate demolition by the City.

Those Owners of Record receiving 60 day extensions were: AME Episcopal Church, 504 E. Ross; Juan and Beatriz DelaFuente, 506 W. Jackson; Modesta Adela Garcia, 715 W.

Ross; Leon R. Bell, 118 W. Kentucky and 120 W. Kentucky; Eunice J. Bell, 128 W. Kentucky; and Kenneth and Dorothy Coleman, 424 E. Grover. The structure at 429 W. Missouri, Donald R. Warren, Owner of Record, was taken off the demolition list completely.

The addresses of structures remaining on the list for immediate demolition and the Owners of Record are: Troy Garza, 504 E. Ross; Vincent Garcia, 119 1/2 W. Mississippi; Juan and Consuelo Sanchez, 108 S. 2nd; Eva Guzman, 311 W. Crockett; Victor M. Guerrero, 508 W. Jackson; and Annie Campbell, 503 E. Lee.

Hall addresses council

By Judy Macha

Bobby Hall, president of the Lockney Economic Development Corporation, presented the quarterly report to the city council Thursday morning, June 12, at their regular monthly meeting.

He explained the plan for the upcoming Lockney Leadership Program. The program, called Leadership Lockney, is scheduled to begin in September. It is based on the curriculum used in the Texas Rural Leadership Program, and will feature speakers and tours on topics relative to increasing the leadership knowledge and abilities of participants. It is hoped fifteen to twenty participants will sign up for the initial program. Such programs have been shown to increase community involvement, volunteerism, and other skills by participants. According to Hall, "The only way for a community to grow, is to have a broad base involvement by individuals in it."

Brenda Johnson gave the LEDC financial report. Revenue for LEDC, from sales tax, was $5,581.16 for the period of January - March 2003. The LEDC has collected $11,116.67 for a 6 month period from October 2002 - March 2003.

Expenses for the three month period were $2,827.26--which includes $1,616.16 for the Leadership Training Program. Rent expense was $600; promotion expense was $325; telephone expense was $121.35; publications and materials $31.95; office supplies, $60; and depreciation, $72.80.

The LEDC has a total checking/savings amount of $13,380.54 in the bank.

Phillip Glasson was unanimously elected as the LEDC vice president and secretary, replacing Russell Harris, who resigned from the Board. Brenda Johnson and Nell Glasscock replaced Harris as Lockney's representative on the South Plains Economic Development Task Force.

Councilman Junior Brotherton reported that most of the street lights, which have been an ongoing problem, have now been repaired.

Council reviewed the city's financial statement, which showed a bank balance (money market and checking) of $141,510.64. Certificates of deposit and investment account amounts was $364,381.33.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Bruce Taylor. The bride wore a Renaissance gown made of silk that featured a 15th century design, spaghetti strapped with pouffed chiffon sleeves. The gown was made by Amy Rich of Crowley, Texas, cousin of the groom. The fingertip veil was decorated with a ring of white daisies accented with a pouf made by Stacy Reeves of Floydada. The bride chose white, blue, peach, and yellow daisies, with flowing ribbons for her bouquet.

The bridesmaids and the groomsmen each wore Renaissance costumes of matching material, created by Amy Rich. Each bridesmaid's hair was adorned with a ring of daisies and each carried a matching bouquet of daisies, all made by Stacy Reeves.

A wedding reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. The bride's cake was topped with white daisies. The groom's cake was decorated with a monkey and a duck sitting on a garden bench. BREAKFAST AT MAMIE'S

Breakfast at Mamie's is another big hit

By Sandra Lass
"East is East and West is West" and those who chose to celebrate the 42nd annual "Breakfast at Mamie's" were headed in the right direction. Despite a brief morning rain shower, over 70 women joined Mamie and her hostesses all decked out in "Buttons and Bows," the theme and decor of the breakfast which took place on June 10, 2003. As usual Mamie Wood's beautiful backyard was hand-groomed by Mamie herself. Although the decorations became slightly damp, the brief rain failed to dampen anyone's spirits, particularly when entertained by Judy James, Lady Balladeer of Texas, singer guitarist and educator who is the host of an award winning radio show that honors the American west. This is third "Breakfast at Mamie's" that Judy has attended and we were all delighted that Mamie was able to persuade her to come again. Among other songs, Judy sang "Buttons and Bows", words and music by Jay Livingston and Ray Evans, even though it was copyrighted by Famous Movies a long time ago in 1948. (Carolyn Marble obtained a copy of the song from the internet, in sheet music form, no less.) Many who attended the breakfast remembered the movie, The Paleface, starring Bob Hope and Jane Russell. The movie popularized the song "Buttons and Bows".

After everyone had filled their plates with the delicious food prepared by the hostesses and found their tables, each of which had colored sacks decorated with buttons and bows and filled with lovely spring flowers, Virginia Taylor, Mistress of Ceremonies, welcomed everyone and introduced and thanked Judy James for providing such wonderful music. Then she asked Shirley Weldon to give the blessing. As we were finishing our meal, Mamie thanked everyone for coming and thanked and asked the hostesses to stand for recognition. Char Baker introduced guest speaker, Stacy Brown, of Lubbock, who collects buttons and uses them, along with ribbons and things, to decorate wooden crosses. She brought several of her crosses and shared with the group stories that illustrated the theme or occasion for the design of each cross. She said that she also makes "button balls" (styrofoam or wooden balls with buttons glued on them) for Thanksgiving decorations.

Each year "Breakfast at Mamie's" becomes bigger and better, and this year was no exception. Virginia explained that the large jars that were placed around the trees contained her mother's buttons and that her mother had started out collecting marbles, but discovered that people seemed to group buttons and marbles together. When Virginia's mother went to garage sales to find marbles, she usually had to buy the buttons as well.

Eventually, she ended up with more buttons than marbles. Virginia said that all the other decorations, favors, invitations and name tags were made by the hostesses. There was even a special sign made that said "Button Boulevard" posted at the corner of State Highway 207 and County Road 72 with an arrow pointing toward Mamie's house. The hostesses included Mamie Wood, Betty Deavenport, Char Baker, Ann Hartman, Dot Cummings, Terri Collie, Wanda Lane, Barbara Cawley, Virginia Taylor, Carolyn Marble, Glenn Earle Cummings, Carlene Johnson, Nancy Marble, Donnie Bowman, Mildred Smitherman, Pat Wood, Joy Smitherman, Kathy Mulder, Janis Julian, Paula Pyle and Sandra Lass. The helpers included Jack Lass, Ed Hartman, Mick Annunziato, Tessa Meriwether and Carlynn Taylor.

school campus. It has since been revised," said Trautman. "The state recommends, but does not require, one acre of land for every 100 students. This works well for larger schools, but not for smaller schools like yours."

The scores for the FISD school campuses, that are from 37 to 80 years old, were explained by Trautman. A grade of 90 to 100 percent equals 'excellent quality'. 70 to 80 percent equals 'some minor improvements are needed'. 60 to 69 percent equals 'substandard and need rehab'. 46 to 59 percent equals 'major renovations needed' and 0-45 percent equals 'no hope'.

It was noted that A.B. Duncan Elementary is 37 years old. Floydada High School is 46 years old. R.C. Andrews Elementary is 77 years old (built in 1926) and Floydada Junior High is 82 years old (built in 1921). The Della Plains school building's age was not available.

Trautman said, "Only the Duncan Elementary building has a design that allows flexibility. Even the High School has shallow bay depth with little flexibility. The Andrews Elementary building could be used for other services. The Della Plains building needs to be taken out of service."

The scores of the FISD buildings were: A.B. Duncan Elementary - 71.3 percent, Floydada High School - 67.8 percent, R. C. Andrews Elementary - 43 percent and Floydada Junior High School - 41.8 percent.

The chart for Educational Adequacy of R.C. Andrews Elementary showed to be 38.8 percent, while A. B. Duncan Elementary showed 65.7 percent. The Floydada Junior High School showed an Educational Adequacy of 39.9 percent and Floydada High School showed 61.4 percent. Della Plains showed a 38.9 percent Educational Adequacy.

According to Trautman, there might be several "surprises" when doing renovations on older school buildings. For example, "When $50,000 is spent for renovations, then the entire building must be made handicap accessible." Electrical wiring codes must be complied with, along with building codes.

"With a 15 percent improvement, the entire building must have water sprinklers and fire doors," Trautman said. "Light fixtures have a 20 year life expectancy, while ceilings only have a 10 year life expectancy. I recommend you add 35 percent to your budget when you begin renovations."

Trautman added, "I recommend 25 students per room in a departmental school and 12-14 students per room in smaller schools."

"Duncan is your best long term facility with 400 to 500 student possibility. The High School facility is structurally inflexible to change any use. It is too small as configured for reasonable expansion. Maybe it can serve as a middle school," said Trautman.

"The Junior High building has very little long term use. It is a safety liability and has no value to spend money on. Its size is okay, but it is the least serviceable."

"Andrews is two additions better than the Junior High building, but it does not have the potential for refurbishing. The facility is marginally too small for instructional use. It has some 'take out, low occupancy' use. It is in the same category as the Junior High."

"Della Plains needs extensive refurbishing. It will take three to five years to get out of them," added Trautman.

Trautman's final recommendation was "Establish a long range goal and a policy regarding using temporary buildings. Develop an educational program for each size of facility needed. Develop a Facilities Master Plan for 10 year and 20 year needs."

Trautman recommended relocating Junior High (classes), plus add additions to Duncan. He recommended replacing Andrews and Junior High on long range plans. He said he would reevaluate Andrews for an alternative use with low occupancy.

On the short range, Trautman recommended, "For the Junior High, maintenance only and remove the stadium for parking. Evaluate an alternate educational program for the future."

"Evaluate the High School and Duncan for expansion and improve all sites for vehicles with accessibility and parking. Refurbishing Duncan and the Junior High should be done. I recommend all facilities, after 25 years, should be refurbished."

"Provide adequate housing for all special needs programs and in a self-contained environment. Provide a phased plan for all schools to be handicap accessible. Make all buildings technologically ready with wireless computers and make classrooms smaller for smaller computer classes with maybe only five computers," said Trautman.

Trautman concluded, "Be sensitive to an institutional program with 300 students as a minimum size for a school. Solve the site issue at the High School. Duncan can handle 300 to 500 students. A new site and a new facility is a major part of your solution. The High School facility has about 15 to 25 years left, if you add a new wing or additions. There is not much flexibility."

Floyd County ground water levels declined in 2002

Floyd County ground water levels declined an average of 0.48 of a foot during 2002. This is based on measurements taken from 99 privately owned wells in the observation network maintained by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1.

Ground water levels in Floyd County declined an average 1.24 feet annually during the ten-year period from 1993 to 2003. An average annual decline of 0.98 of a foot was recorded for the five year period from 1998 to 2003.

Ground water levels in the Ogallala aquifer within the 6.8 million acre water district service area declined an average of 1.06 feet from 2002 to 2003. This decline increased by 0.28 of a foot as compared to the previous year.

"All counties within the water district's 15 county service area saw an average decline in depth-to-water levels. This decline is probably due to a number of reasons, but primarily, a lack of precipitation at opportune times resulted in the requirement of additional ground water pumpage last year," said Don McReynolds, High Plains Water District geologist/technical di-sion director.

A network of 1,214 privately-owned observation water wells is used to determine the annual change in the quantity of water in the Ogallala aquifer within the High Plains Water District. The depth-to-water measurements are taken in January and February of each year to allow water levels to stabilize from pumping during the previous growing season.

Nine counties showed average annual water level declines of less than one foot, while six counties showed an average annual water level decline of more than one foot.

Maps showing the location of observation wells were published in the April issue of the district's newsletter, The Cross Section, as well as tables listing the water levels in these wells at one-, five-, and 10-year intervals.

Copies of The Cross Section for April 2003, are available by contacting the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, TX 79411 or by calling (806) 762-0181. The water district's web site is www.hpwd.com and its email address is erica@hpwd.com.

Cotton Market Weekly

A service provided by Plains Cotton Cooperative Association

An erratic cotton market emerged this week as traders began preparing for the July futures contract's first notice day on June 24. While some traders rolled their positions from the July contract to December's, more traders simply exited their positions in the market.

Despite the wide daily swings in prices at the New York Cotton Exchange, one analyst described the liquidation process as orderly. Early, steep losses in the futures market following the release of a disappointing export report Thursday were offset by "massive" trade buying that helped recoup much of the price decline before the close of trading. At least one market observer saw the trade buying as a bullish signal.

Traders and analysts had expected a lower weekly export figure following a significant decline in the Step 2 Certificate value. However, the drop in export sales may have been slightly more than anticipated.

USDA reported export sales of U.S. cotton for the week ended June 12 totaled a net 71,600 bales, a 52 percent decline from the previous week and 46 percent less than the previous four-week average. Turkey was the featured buyer.

Export shipments for the week totaled 211,100 bales, according to USDA, off 30 percent from the previous week and 21 percent from the prior four week average. Primary destinations were Turkey, Mexico and China. Despite the disappointing shipment figure, many traders continue to expect exports to reach USDA's 11.4 million bale target by the end of the current marketing season.

Traders also continue to keep close watch on certificated stocks that have declined somewhat recently. One analyst believes the decline is significant because that cotton may have been sold or committed during recent weeks when export sales were larger than normal for this time of year. In other words, that cotton no longer is a market factor on the supply side of the equation.

Meanwhile, traders remain nervous about crop conditions around the world. Less than ideal growing conditions in Central Asia and China have been noted, and the monsoon in India appears to be late, leaving many fields too dry as that country enters its prime planting period. Although some scattered showers have been reported in most of India's cotton growing regions, much more is needed before planting can begin in earnest.

Losses of as many as one million cotton acres in West Texas have had little market impact thus far. Some market observers view the recent adverse weather as "not uncommon" for the region, citing the potential for replanting.

Determining the extent of losses from hail, high winds and excessive rainfall has been delayed due, in part, to new crop insurance rules that require adjusters to wait eight days before evaluating affected fields. Consequently, farmers are forced to delay replanting decisions, thus delaying any major market reaction.
