Women: We have come a long way, baby!

By Sgt. Jolene K. Bounds

International Women's Year (IWY) 1975, was begun by the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women and approved by the General Assembly in December, 1972.

On Jan. 30, 1974, the President proclaimed 1975 as IWY for the United States. The goal of IWY is summed up in three words: equality, development and eace.

IWY can only be a success if all people realize the seriousness of the problems and contribute to the year-long program. President Gerald Ford stated this year that "... Internation Women's Year is not just for women. It is for all people dedicated to seeing that the highest potential of each human being is fully achieved."

In the past few years, changes at Reese have occured in jobs for women. Women are not only in clerical type jobs, but now hold jobs which in the past were only thought of as "men's jobs."

Through the public media, written

"International Women's Year 1975 gives the international community a unique opportunity to promote genuine equality between women and men, not only in law but in everyday life; to ensure the full involvement of women in the development effort. and in the sharing of its benefits; and to greatly increase the contribution of women to the achievement of the fundamental aims and objectives of the United Nations - namely the maintenance of peace and the improvement of the conditions of life for all."

material and seminars, many people have raised their consciousness levels to where their thoughts of men and women being placed in jobs are based on individual abilities, and not on old stereotyped "men's work and women's work."

While it is encouraging to see more fields opening to broaden the scope of employment of women, some problems remain. As of May, 1975, one-third of all Federal workers were women, but only 4.5 per cent of the top level employees were women. One of the goals of IWY is to do away with inequities such as this.

If, during IWY and later years, we all pledge ourselves to treatment of people based on ability or merit - not sex - we will move and continue to move toward the goal of all people being better used to their full potential.

Articles and photographs throughout this week's issue highlight Reese's women workers.

Illegal driving gets NCO fine, rank reduction

A Reese staff sergeant was tried and convicted by Special Court Martial for driving on base while under a driving suspension.

That offense violated Article 92 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. The sergeant was sentenced to reduction to the grade of airman, 10 days confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of $50.

FROM THE TRAIL BOSS...

"... women ... do the same jobs in almost every career field, experience the same job problems and solve them just as well."

This year has been named International Women's Year and President Ford showed his appreciation for the jobs women do by proclaiming July "Women in Government Month." I wish to applaude the resourcefullness, initiative and spirit of Reese's women and would like you to share with me the accounts of some of our women in Government in this issue of THE ROUNDUP.

It's not possible to recognize in this one issue all of the women employed here in military or civilian capacities because they perform so many different jobs — all of which are vital to the mission. Those mentioned in this issue represent a cross-section of all on base.

Our military women work side-by-side with the men. They do the same jobs in almost every career field, Names will not be published, but callers should give their name so that the action agency can clarify the problem if it becomes necessary. All inquiries are reviewed by Wing Commander Col. With all the different clubs on base, I would like to know why there is not a gun club. Last year I called the NCOIC of small arms and asked why the range was not open to military personnel and their dependents. The answer was one everyone gives: "... not enough funds for operation and no people to run it." First of all, I believe we have enough people in Security Police to put a person out there eight hours a day or two people on four-hour shifts at least five days a week. Secondly, if there is a shortage of Security Police, hire someone and pay their wages out of the earnings paid by the shooters. I feel that several military personnel and their dependents would enjoy using the range. The only range I know os in use is the Rustic Range this side of Slaton, which from the base is a 40-mile round trip. I feel this matter should be looked into and possibly a survey run to find out where we stand.

If enough military people are interested in organizing and effectively administering a base gun club, they should contact the Special Services Division at Ext. 2412 for information. The Reese Small Arms Range has been closed for repairs since May, with an estimated reopening date of December. When the rante reopens it may be used by military personnel and their dependents during nonduty hours if a normally-assigned range instructor or an NRA-certified range official or instructor is present. The Security Police Division is not manned enough nor are its people qualified to operate the range. The manning of the Small Arms Section consists of two instructors. They will be able to occasionally conduct gun safety courses and sighting-in clinics when the range is reopened. Thank you for your

Women support Wing's mission

By Sgt. Jolene K. Bounds

In the past most jobs women performed for the Air Force were as secretaries and clerks.

During World War II there was an exception when women piloted aircraft from factories to overseas areas. After the war most women were again returned the "traditional" roles.

For years, both men and women have been taught that the woman's way to support the mission was in the "typing pool." That was "her" place, Decisionmaking and physically demanding jobs were rare for women, but not for men. The women have generally been excluded from "men only" position.

Times have changed. People realize that women and men are and have been capable of doing any type of job, based on individual mental and physical abilities.

The rarity of seeing women in decision making and physically demanding jobs is turning to more of a common sight.

Looking around Reese we see women in such jobs as Security Police, photographers, crew chiefs and vehicle drivers. The Budget officer, chief Procurement, chief of Consolidatea Duplication Center, clerk in charge of the contract Post Office, assistant administrator of resource management for Hospital and communications-electronic chief of Maintenance are all women.

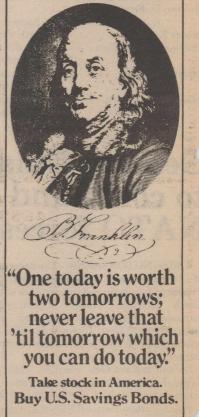

Most women hired for jobs in the Air Force are hired to do a job based on their abilities and not on their sex. Yet stereotypes of women are still in the minds of many people.

One stereotype is that a woman is just a pair of pretty legs to look at around the duty sections and to make the coffee. Another stereotype is if a woman's job requires for her to wear slacks, fatigues or coveralls, she is "mannish."

A third stereotype is when a woman makes a mistake in her job, such cliches like "just like a woman" or "knew a woman couldn't do a "man's job" are heard. All of these cliches reflect the inability of some people to accept others for what they are and can do as opposed to what they look like.

Our main concern is accomplishment of the mission. Women prove on a daily basis that they are able to support the mission in other than past stereotyped roles.

To be effective we must employ all people on the basis of their ability. Women at Reese are expanding and diversifying their roles more than ever before. They visibly support the mission and do a good job of it.

gun during this period. Make sure a left turn is protected before you take it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) Show some discretion in your driving this week. If a driver looks harried trying to enter a freeway or busy street, let him on.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Your ambitions may run high at this time. But don't let your dreams overtake reality while you're behind the wheel. Be especially careful about changing lanes.

interest. If you want more information, call the range at Ext. 2848.

I think your morale problem is not only with the military; it is also with civilians. I am a civilian and work in Supply. I don't like your deal that you give civilians a $35 fine for speeding. Another continuous harassment is coming around and giving parking tickets and you don't have enough parking as it is. So you can take the whole thing and try to straighten it out, if you would. Thank you.

Although civilians other than Reese employees are being issued U.S. Magistrate tickets for traffic violations, it should be obvious that the citations are intended for your and others' protection and safety, not harassment. The parking spaces here far exceed the number of vehicles. I am aware of the shortage of parking spaces in the vicinity of Supply due to the construction there. A large parking lot is planned near the new Supply building. I suspect that your current parking space is just not as conveniently located as you would like but the walk can't be that far.

Management Group gets first response

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on the survey findings of the Air Force Management Improvement Group (AFMIG). AFNS articles will be sent out each week covering specific areas of this survey and the AFMIG findings

WASHINGTON (AFNS) - The Air Force Management Improvement Group (AFMIG) has received the initial data from its quality of Air Force life survey. There were approximately 11,000 responses to the survey. Over 7,000 voluntary comment sheets were also submitted. AFMIG officials say every response will be read and considered. They feel the large number of written comments that were volunteered are an indication of the Air Force-wide interest in the survey project.

AFMIG is headed by Maj. Gen. Kenneth Tallman, soon to take over as Air Force Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel.

From the beginning of AFMIG, General Tallman promised to make the results of this survey available, upon completion, through internal information channels. This is a change from most surveys in which persons surveyed never see the results of their efforts.

The 11,000 persons returning the survey were from all ranks, age groups, and major commands. They included rated, nonrated, men and women. They were selected at random and will remain anonymous

General Tallman said the primary purpose of the survey was to gather candid and thoughtful feedback from a broad cross section of the Air Force and establish a baseline for measuring future perceptions of Air Force members.

The survey contained 150 questions. Topics surveyed were communications, working conditions, pay, assignments, housing, medical care, recreation, and job satisfaction. Other questions covered leadership/supervision, equity, personal growth, and personal standing. These were topics of high interest in the survey. Most responses showed moderate to high satisfaction and interest in these areas.

A new and innovative concept called the quality of Air Force life index was included in the survey. Certain questions gave those surveyed the opportunity to rate the importance of specific areas on a sliding scale from high to low. This is a new concept used to measure how important certain areas are in people's lives. Other questions then measure how satisfied they are with their current stituation in these areas.

An example of the response from the quality of Air Force life survey is the question of job satisfaction. Seventy-five per cent of those surveyed placed high importance on their job. When asked the degree of satisfaction with their current work situation, the answers were varied. Responses were fairly evenly spread over a seven-point scale from highly satisfied to highly dissatisfied. It is now up to AFMIG members to further break down these responses

AFMIG officials say additional computer runs, broken down by age, major command, race, sex, and

Squadron picks IP of Month

'Outstanding job' lands Bernstein top unit honor

First Lt. Steven C. Bernstein was named 35th Flying Training Squadron (FTS) Instructor Pilot of the Month for June.

Lieutenant Bernstein, of "C" Flight, was praised for his "continual outstanding performance as both an instructor pilot and an officer.' according to Lt. Col. Robert G. Bradshaw, 35th FTS commander. Colonel Bradshaw also ranked him as one of the finest instructors within Air Training Command.

"Through countless hours of briefings and discussions," the colonel added, "he ensures his students are completely prepared for the mission. Because of these qualities, students having difficulties are frequently assigned to him in order to attain the desired proficiency levels.

Among his current duties, Lieutenant Bernstein serves as associate Stan/Eval officer, phase briefing officer and "buddy IP." He also serves as a senior Runway Supervisory Unit controller. In this job, he is responsible for the orderly motion and safe control of all Cessna T-37 Tweety Birds in the Reese pattern.

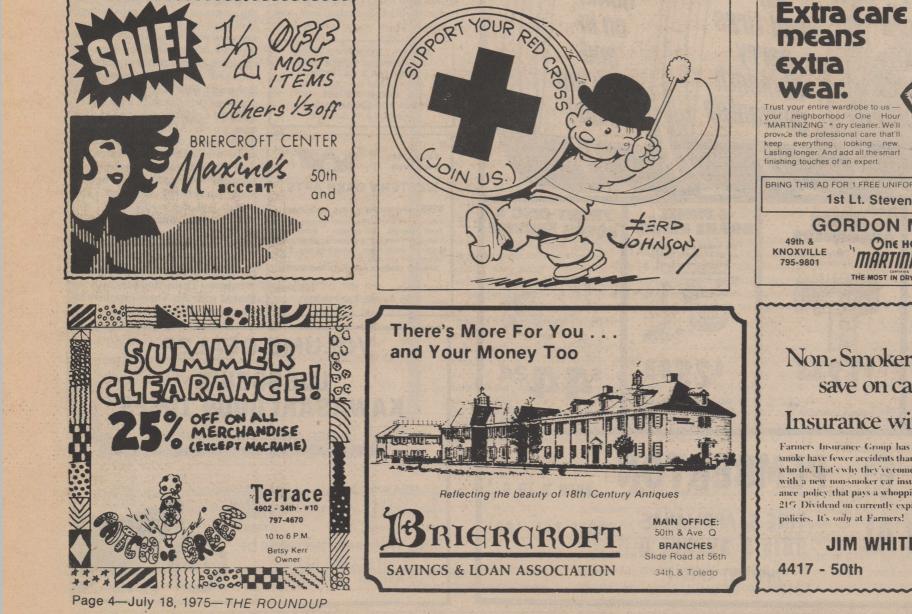

Colonel Bradshaw added, "Lieutenant Bernstein has continually demonstrated exceptional flying ability. His performance on standardization/evaluation rides is indicative of his day-to-day performance.

"Lieutenant Bernstein's outstanding personal skills, experience and complete dedication to the mission make him a highly valued asset to his flight and squadron." The colonel Concluded, "His continued outstanding performance in all endeavors makes him worthy of this recognition as Instructor Pilot of the Month.'

Women contribute to air operation effort at 35th FTS

In the rushed and hurried activity which makes up a working day for instructor and student pilots of the 35th Flying Training Squadron, there are two rather unique people.

Sgt. Carla J. Bohlin and AIC Demarice L. Howze, air operations specialists and part of a team, daily coordinate the flying schedule and dispatch of about 100 Cessna T-37 Tweety Bird sorties daily. They keep in constant contact with Maintenance people, insuring aircraft are ready to fly when they are needed. They also must revise the flying schedule as needed when spare aircraft are called for.

Sergeant Bohlin has worked in the air operations field for almost three years, more than 14 months of that time at Reese. She is married to 1st Lt. Howard Bohlin, a T-37

How many wmen would like to spend more than $7 million each year and still live within their income?

As Procurement officer, Capt. Bonnette Sholley is handling the expense of this kind of money during the current fiscal year.

Arriving at Reese in November, 1972, as the first woman base

Procurement officer in Air Training Command (ATC), she developed a program that earned her the title of ATC Outstanding Procurement Officer.

She is career-oriented and plans to leave Reese for a slot in the Air Force Institute of Technology for a masters' degree in Procurement management.

Assigned to the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron Propulsion Branch, J-69 Jet Engine Repair Section, Bonnie L. Simpson tears down, does minor repair on and rebuilds Cessna T-37 Tweety Bird engines.

With eight years' maintenance experience, she works on engines taken out of the aircraft for scheduled, unscheduled and spectrometric oil and analysis program repair. She transferred to Reese from Tinker AFB, Okla., almost a year ago. She likes to expand her knowledge of jet engines by keeping up with technical orders and directives in her spare time.

flick flack

Comedy, suspense, and espionage highlight this week's entertainment at Simler Theater.

The base theater has shows at 8 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday. The special Saturday matinee begins at 2 p.m. The box office opens 30 minutes before each showtime.

Tonight

"The Prisoner of Second Avenue" stars Jack Lemmon and Anne Bancroft as a couple trying to cope with the relentless vexations of urban living. When he is fired from his job because of an economy cutback, he feels that a 48-year-old man has little in the way of prospects. Bancroft returns to her old job only to be fired when the company folds and she reacts the same as Jack did; he meanwhile regains his self-confidence and begins to take things in stride. Parental guidance is suggested for this feature.

Saturday Matinee and Evening

Walt Disney's "The Castaway Cowboy" stars James Garner and Vera Miles. Garner is a Texas cowpuncher shanghaied to Hawaii, where he manages to jump ship and winds up on the island of Kauai. There he gets tangled up with widow Vera Miles and her son. In order to help the widow out of her financial situation, Garner convinces her that the wild cattle on the island can be more lucrative than growing potatoes. So he trains the island natives to become cowhands. This film is rated G, all ages admitted.

Sunday and Tuesday

"The Man With The Golden Gun" stars Roger Moore as James Bond, pitted against midget henchmen as well as a school of karate experts. Christopher Lee is The Man With the Golden Gun who goes mano-a-mano with Bond to decide the world's best superman in a combat to the death. In between are a pair of lovelies, Maud Adams and Britt Ekland and an array of sinister Oriental types. This film is rated PG, parental guidance suggested.

Wednesday

"Rancho Deluxe" stars Jeff Bridges and Sam Waterston as a pair of hip cattle rustlers in this contemporary Western comedy. Bridges is an itinerant cowboy and Waterston a highly-articulate Indian, modern-day cattle rustlers on a very small scale — they steal one at a time. They map out a major cattle haul with the help of some stupid ranch hands but their plans go afoul when a deceptively senile cattle detective (Slim Pickens) and his deceptively virginal niece (Charlene Dallas) eventually bring the pair to juctice. This feature is rated R, persons under 17 must be accompanied by a parent or adult guardian.

Thursday

"The Great Waldo Pepper" stars Robert Redford as a daredevil pilot of the 1920s. Rival barnstormer (Bo Svenson) and Redford decide to link up and join a flying circus touring the midwest. Following suspension and a tragic accident, Redford is barred from flying and he winds up joining Svenson as a Hollywood stunt pilot working under an assumed name. In a staged dogfight with the legendary German flying ace (Bo Brundin) Redford decides to face reality and with a choice of jail down below and the eternal freedom of the clouds, he challenges Brundin for supremacy of the skies.

News Briefs

In the July 11 article about Reese's Human Relation's Counci. meeting, it was reported that the exchange beauty shop was hiring operators trained in the styling of blacks' hair. Now, there are three fully-trained beauticians on duty. The training they have received includes the fashioning of blacks' hair.

Reese Special Services officials have announced that the "Tops in Blue" show will be at Simler Theater for one show at 8 p.m., Aug. 1. More information about the show will be published next week.

The Air Force will issue civilian identification cards. The card will serve as identification to enter Federal installations. It will be used for identification during permanent change of station and temporary duty (TDY) travel. It will not replace separate identification for entry into secure areas. It will not authorize access to the Base Exchange. Employees stationed overseas must supplement the card with an additional Air Force Form 1173 to use certain facilities while on TDY.

People interested in taking an English course as a second language should contact the Education Office at Ext. 2634 or 2469. If enough people enroll, the course will be offered in the fall semester.

The "Hail and Farewell' coffee for the Officers' Wives' Club will be held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the Officers' Open Mess. The wives of members of Class 76-05 will serve as hostesses for the coffee.

Pocket-size calculators, compact tape recorders and portable typewriters are just a few of the many back-to-school items available through "American Showcase" at the base exchange. The catalog, published by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, is an allpurpose shopping guide for all occasions and is available for reference at the Customer Service Counter in the Base Exchange.

Some interesting items used in nearly all homes in the days of the American Revolution are now on display at the Mahon Library in Lubbock. The backdrop for the display is a woven coverlet that was made in 1793. Also on display are a pin prick lantern, pewter candle holders and plate and a handwritten arithmetic book. The display is open to the public without charge at the Mahon Library at 1306 Ninth Street in Lubbock. Regular operating hours 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Senior Girl Scout Troop 370, from Coronado High School in Lubbock, has taken on many money-raising projects in an attempt to finance a 4,000 mile camping trip. The girls, including some Esese dependents, will graduate from high school in June, 1977, and are hard at it now to raise money. Their method is called Packaged Party Planners. The girls are prepared to plan and carry out parties of all types for children of all ages. The girls will provide their own materials, cake, punch, costumes, favors and they will clear up afterwards for a small fee for the total package. Interested people should call Sharon Moore at 799-1720, Elizabeth White at 799-6417 or Cindy Childers at 792-4541 after 4 p.m.

Women's coordinator staffs hundreds of workers at Reese

Chris Reagan, Federal Women's Program coordinator, has employed hundreds of applicants for jobs at Reese in the 11 years she has been staffing specialist.

During this time, she has considered and rated literally thousands of employees for promotion. In her work, she always adheres to the principles of the Federal Merit System principles to assure each applicant and each employee are given equal chances for a job or a promotion.

She works with professional business women's associations, local governmental agencies, and very closely with the U.S. Civil Service Commission staff in Dallas. She has been the Federal Women's

Reese man gains honor at SOS

An officer attached to the Flying Training Wing's Standardization/Evaluation Division here at Reese was selected as a distinguished graduate of Air University's Squadron Officer School (SOS) at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Capt. Hal N. Anderson Jr. was in competition with 772 students in Class 75-B and graduated in the top seven per cent of his class. In addition, he had to be recommended by a review committee and approved by the SOS commandant.

SOS is the first of the Air Force's professional schools. The mission of the 11-week course is to prepare selected captains and lieutenants for those command and staff tasks required of junior officers of the Air Force.

The evaluation system consists of five phases: academics (45 per cent), writing (15 per cent), speaking (15 per cent), group problem solving (20 per cent), and individual solving (5 per cent). The student must pass each phase.

35th FTS Crosswinds Trouble-shooters deserve credit

By 1st Lt. Wayne Hodges

There are two men in the squadron we always take our troubles to, but many members and students know little more than their names.

We are referring to Sgt. Edward J. Kisbaugh and Billy Wright of the Life Support Section. You know .... the guys who hang the little signs on your parachutes, saying your arming lanyards are improperly stored. But the men of the "P.E. Shop," "Chute Shop" or the more correct title of Life Support Section have many more responsibilities.

Sergeant Kisbaugh and Billy Wright are responsible for the inspection and maintenance of helmets, masks, and parachutes of 35th Flying Training Squadron. supporting our mission. They also equip and fit each new class with flying equipment. In addition, when personal equipment like to know! problems arise at the aircraft, Sergeant Kisbaugh or Wright make trouble calls on the flightline.

Both these men have been at their trade for quite some time. Sergeant Kisbaugh has about three years in the Air Force. All his time has been spent here at Reese, except for basic training. He has been working in the 35th FTS for the last two years and one year before that in the 54th.

Wright has worked at Reese since 1956. He has worked in the 35th since the Squadron began. Wright has been in the Navy Reserves for more than 20 years, serving as an ordinance specialist.

The Life Support Section is technically under the command of the deputy commander for Operations, but we in the 35th feel we are indeed lucky to have two such flying personnel assigned to the conscientious and capable men

We are proud of their efforts and their work and thought you would

There is something to be said for

Comm officer seeks goal

The Communications-Electronics chief of Maintenance for the 2053rd Communications Squadron is striving toward her goal. She wants to be Air Force chief of staff.

With a degree in mathematics and several years of teaching in Virginia in her past, 2nd Lt. Katherine Rowe joined the Air Force because of her fondness for the military lifestyle. Her father instilled this in her, as he was career military. She says she wanted to do interesting and worthwhile jobs which would challenge her ability.

Lieutenant Rowe arrived at Reese about a year ago.

timing, or maybe the lack of it, as far as some of the IP's in "C" Flight are concerned. A few of them evidently considered the stork to be an endangered species that needed a workout. The wives of three IPs have given birth to new family additions in the last couple of weeks.

First Lt. Bob Winkler and wife Meredith have a new baby girl. First Lt. Warren Jepson and wife Maria also have a new baby girl. And, last but not least, Capt. Mike Rossi and wife Marsha have a new baby boy. Congratulations to you all! (It's rumored that "C" Flight's "boy pilot," 1st Lt. Ron "I Fly Jets" Cone and wife Jo have one in the hanger, but it will probably be some time before the evidence is shown!)

There are two murals beginning to appear on the walls of the Squadron Briefing Room. They are patches of the 64th Flying Training Wing and the 35th FTS. When finished, they are really going to be outstanding! They're the work of 2nd Lt. Rick Faulk of Class 76-06 in "A" Flight.

Many around the squadron breathed a little easier this week, for there were no ROTC cadets to fly. But its only a reprieve, as about 100 more are scheduled to come in between August 18 and 20. Of course, judging the number of crew chiefs clamoring to strap them in, everyone enjoyed having the cadets here. The extra flying time and the occasional female voice over the intercom made for a rather novel week.

We close this week with only one printable item from the "Rumor

Rusty Grady, back from leave and rolling as good as ever, led the Reesette League the night of July 7 with a 513 series. Ginny McCarter had a 196 game, 507 series and Ursula Cooper had a 172 game.

No scores in from MASH or the American Junior Bowling Congress, maybe next week.

The Ball & Chainers had some pretty fair shooting. Sam Mele had a 200-584, Rod Wilson 188-515 and Paul Lewis had a 519 series.

The women had Rusty Grady leading with a 201-538, Gladys Mele 179-499 and Mary Ann Wocking had a 194 game. Jo Ann Clark bowled an all-spare game for 173.

The time has come to select my All-Star teams. Those named may be placed in any order. For the men: Howard Creek, George Stepneck, Sam Mele, Mel Wright and Rod Wilson.

For the women: Judy Turner, Betty Payne, Rusty Grady, Gladys Mele and Jo Ann Clark. Best news of the year - the big split that Bob Lloyd made.

'Sonny Award' "Sonny Award" went to The Sherry Walker. Sherry received the award for an outstanding accomplishment that may prove hard to equal. Most people won't even try it. Our little ol' trophymaker, Mando, is already making the award for next week.

S.S. Valor, our pitiful entertainment director, went back in the hills after an act (He was so far back in the hills the people didn't get the "Grand Ole Opry" until Tuesday night). Anyway, we turned the act down. There is something about a group that calls itself "The Crescent on the Door Four" that does not appeal to me.

Don't forget Scotch Doubles Saturday; the fun starts at 8 p.m. Sonny Says: "Practice what you do well; this will give you confidence and help you correct what you do not Mill." This one concerns Check Section's 1st Lt. "Ace" Lafferty. It seems that students returning from unsuccessful trips down the hall have modified the nickname somewhat...it's name: "Hard-Ace." Think about it.
