Coach Makes Shifts In Line-Up For Game With Canyon Friday

Whirlwinds To See Pampa-Lubbock Game Saturday; Many Fans Plan to Attend.

Making a dash into the northland, the Floydada Whirlwind eleven with a new line-up and all the regulars in good condition will tussle it out for supremacy with the Canyon High Eagles Friday afternoon at Canyon. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock and a big group of boosters are planning to attend from Floydada. F. H. S. beat Canyon 25-6 here last year and the Eagles will be out for revenge.

Canyon is a class B team but the tilt will not be an official conference game, the next league battle being set for November 6 here with Matador.

Expect Hard Game
Coaches Barksdale and Teague expect Canyon to produce one of the best fights of the season. The Eagles defeated Silvertown 7-6 earlier in the season and are reported to be especially powerful in the passing business. Coach Barksdale, with even a different line-up than he sent against Silvertown last week, promises "some new plays" that heretofore have not been used by the Green and White.

Sims, who played last week at end and has been a regular tackle all season, may start at guard. Line-Captain deCordova, who is good at center or tackle, will be at right end likely in the new arrangement. The possible starting line-up for the Whirlwinds, who have yet to lose to a class B team, will be as follows: Goughly, left end; McLaughling, left tackle; Jackson or Sims, left guard; Dorrell, center; L. Murray, right guard; Johnston, right tackle; deCordova, right end; F. Murray, quarter; Heald, left half; Houghton, right half; Welch, full-back.

Regulars Are Back
Bridges, who has been showing up much better of late, is sure to see waction during a big part of the game although he may not start. L. Murray, who has been out during a quarters because of a leg injury, will be back in his old form. White, who has been out because of an infected hand, will likely give the fans some thrills along with Welch who is developing into one of the best guards on the team.

The squad and coaches will leave Friday morning in a large truck and following the game Friday afternoon will go to Amarillo and spend the night, going to Pampa Saturday to attend the Pampa-Lubbock game which will be one of the Class A grid classics of the season in West Texas.

Loans Collateralized Basis 8-Cent Cotton

Seed loans made by the Department of Agriculture to Floyd County farmers through the Central Drouth Relief Committee here this spring, are being "collateralized" this week on a basis of eight cent cotton adding a distinctly optimistic atmosphere to the otherwise gloomy outlook for pre-payment or satisfactory adjustment of loans made under the relief plan of the Seed Loan Department.

The new price basis for cotton as collateral was announced last week by Secretary Hyde, of the Agricultural Department, other requirements of the plan being left practically as before. Formerly the "collateral price" of cotton had been placed at six cents. The increase adds one-fourth to the value of cotton for the purpose of satisfying loans and gives the raiser an opportunity to add this much more cotton to the payment of other obligations and the sustenance of himself and his family.

LOW TEMPERATURE OF 41 DEGREES THIS MORNING

The lowest temperature of the month was registered this morning between 6:30 and 7:30 when the thermometer stood at 41 degrees at the West Texas Gas Company's office, and a light nip of frost was reported by several farmers and garden raisers. However, the frost did not kill vegetation, it is indicated.

The current cool spell began Tuesday morning when the temperature reading was 52 degrees a fall from 83 degrees at 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon. Maximum temperature for the week was registered on Saturday when 85 degrees was reached, and the previous low was Sunday morning when the thermometer went down to 51 degrees. Average maximum temperature last week, Monday to Monday, was 77 degrees, average minimum 55 degrees and the mean average was 66 degrees.

AMERICAN RED CROSS IS THEME AT ROTARY MEETING

The American Red Cross, its origin and organization set-up, together with its activities in recent years, particularly in Floyd County, was the theme at the Floydada Rotary Club meeting Wednesday, District Attorney A. J. Folley giving the historical background of the organization and S. W. Ross a resume of the Floyd County chapter history and its activities during 1930 and 1931 here particularly. More than $5,000 was expended in this county in the past twelve months by the Red Cross, his talk brought out.

Preparations for the annual Red Cross roll call are being made, members of the club were told, the drive for members beginning on Monday, November 9, and continuing through Thanksgiving. Lon M. Davis is chairman of the Red Cross in this county. Announcement of a roll call chairman will be made soon, he anticipates.

Lockney Rotary Club will visit the Floydada Club on Armistice Day and give the program, on invitation of the local club, it was announced.

Little Breezes Play Lubbock Junior Team On Grid Today, 3:30

Coach Dick Stovall's champion Little Breezes from Andrews Ward will clash on the grid at High School Field this Thursday afternoon with the Lubbock Junior High School's Junior Westerners. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock and the admission will be 5 and 10 cents.

A real battle is promised local fans in the game which will be the only home contest for the week-end. "Mule" Davis, coach of the Lubbock aggregation of young gridiron satellites, brings a team that held the heavy Plainview Junior High School Pups to a 0-0 tie, the same score registered by the Little Breezes on the same team. Early in the season the Breezes registered a 2-0 victory over the Pups.

The Breezes are undefeated and their goal line has not been crossed this season. They will play a return engagement at Lubbock Thursday of next week.

The Junior Westerners have a complete schedule and have games matched with Slaton and other towns for the remainder of the season until Thanksgiving.

Florists' Damage Suit Started This Morning

Criminal Docket To Be Resumed In District Court Monday Of Next Week

Selection of a jury for the trial of the damage suit of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. A. Hollums against Texas Utilities Company, was begun this morning in District Court for Floyd County. Approximately $9,000 in damages is sought by plaintiffs as a result of a fire last year when heavy damage was done to the building and stock of the local florists. Plaintiffs allege negligence on the part of the company, permitting its service wiring to sag against the building, caused the fire.

The suit, tried in the last term of court, resulted in a mis-trial, when the jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

Next week the court will resume its criminal docket when the Joe Hawkins case is set for Monday morning at 10 o'clock. A venire of 101 men has been summoned from which to select a jury. The case is from Crosby County, where Hawkins, it is charged, shot and killed his father-in-law, S. M. Walker. Hawkins' home is near Falls. Two trials of the case have been held before. In the first Hawkins was given a fifty-year sentence in Crosby County and in the second the jury was unable to agree on a verdict in the earlier part of this year.

On Monday, November 9, the Floydada paving suits are set and Judge A. J. Fires of the Childress District will sit here as special judge. Judge Kenneth Bain going to Clarendon where court for that district will be in session.

Cases disposed of during the past week include three cases from the criminal docket and five from the civil docket. Thursday last Memris Wood, in his trial on a charge of theft of automobile, was found guilty and given three years suspended sentence by the jury.

Monday J. H. Chandler, Plainview, charged with the possession of liquor for sale, was assessed one year penal servitude by a jury. He is expected to appeal the case. The charges grew out of a "snake-down" of a car at the Locust Grove Dance Pavilion in west Floyd County this year by Floyd County officers. The pavilion has since been closed by order of the court, declared to be a nuisance.

Lee Ayres Tuesday was assessed a $50 fine by a jury on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated.

Civil cases disposed of included four foreclosures for the South Plains Lumber Company of this city. Foreclosure of a vendor's lien against land in Knox County was given them as against Jewel McKee, and foreclosure of notes were granted them as against E. G. Alderson and G. A. Tardy respectively. Their suit for foreclosure of a materialman's lien against Bertie E. and George Duncan was also decided in their favor by the court.

A temporary injunction granted by the court on August 22 to Titia Kimble and others against the South Plains Lumber Company was made permanent Saturday, on petition of the plaintiffs. The injunction restrains the defendants from the sale of a homestead of the plaintiffs to satisfy a claim for debt. The homestead is in the southeast part of the county.

Wallace Harris Wednesday afternoon was granted bond by the court on an appeal taken to the Criminal Court of Appeals on a jury verdict rendered in this term in which Harris was given one year on a charge of possessing liquor for the purpose of sale. Harris' home formerly was at South Plains.

Farm Lands Radically Cut, New Figures Show

School Board Continues Trimming On Budget For School Year.

On the heels of the announcement that the City of Floydada, through its equalization board, had cut city values upward of $700,000 for the current tax-paying period, came yesterday the news that the values for Floydada Independent School District could show an even more radical reduction, a rough computation made by J. T. J. Dawson, putting the reduction at $1,481,571, or a net deduction from the district's tax bill of more than $14,000.

Finishes Work Wednesday

Running through the list, members of the board of equalization said the deductions from farm land values for tax purposes would average at least forty per cent and in the first zone, including the city proper and small blocks of acreage immediately adjacent to the city the reductions in values is estimated at twenty-five per cent.

The board finished its work late Wednesday afternoon, its members tired from three days and one night of strenuous work, during which time they conferred with scores of taxpayers and held one session with members of the school board itself. The equalization board is composed of Dr. V. Andrews, R. C. Scott and O. W. Kirk. The latter acted as board spokesman and chairman of a gathering of farm land taxpayers who met with them on Monday afternoon and presented arguments in favor of a heavy cut in the taxable valuations on farm lands in particular. D. D. Shipley and W. M. Massie were the principal spokesmen in this delegation. W. A. Cates also speaking in favor of the cut. They declared the board could collect a greater amount of taxes from a low valuation than from a heavy one, because the authorities would have the cooperation of the taxpayers, whereas heavy resistance to taxation on higher valuations would be met. W. M. Massie argued for an extreme low valuation of from $10 to $15 per acre on farm lands. His definition of the market value of land for which the land can be sold with a reasonable effort within a reasonable time and he declared this basis should be taken by the board for their valuations. The board did not take issue with their petitioners except to point out the desirability of.

Baptist Workers Meet At Matador Tuesday

Matador Baptist Church will be host to the regular workers meeting of the Floyd County Baptist Association on Tuesday of next week, November 3, when representatives of the twenty-nine churches in the association are expected to gather for the day. The program begins at 10 o'clock when a song service will be followed with a devotional. Rev. K. F. Keller of Matador in charge. This will be followed by a thirty-minute discussion by Rev. A. L. Jordan of Falls on "The Aggressive Christian Life." Rev. P. D. O'Brien, of this city, will preach the sermon for the meeting just prior to the noon hour, his subject being "The Challenge of the Church." A duet "In the Garden" by Mrs. W. R. Cammack and Miss Minnie Nixon of Matador, will precede the sermon. The afternoon program begins at 1:30. It is as follows: 1:30-2:00—Board and Auxiliary meetings. 2:00-2:30—"Accepting our Challenge"—Rev. C. E. Dick, Crosbytown. 2:30-2:45—"What the Challenge means to Me"—H. L. Burnam, Whiteflat. 2:45-3:00 Round table discussion.

Organize Male Chorus; Members Number 20

An organization of men numbering twenty into a male chorus was perfected Thursday night of last week at a meeting held in the basement of the First Baptist Church, everything being decided upon except the name for the organization. J. H. Myers was elected president of the organization, with E. S. Rander as vice-president and E. E. Hinson as secretary. The name of the chorus will be chosen at a meeting tonight at the church. Last Thursday night's meeting was the second meeting of those interested. It was an enthusiastic gathering.

No public programs are planned for the immediate future. However, it is probable, organizers said, that public programs will be attempted later in this year or possibly in next.

Lawton Thomas Bags 4-Pointer; Treats Friends

Lawton Thomas, local sportsman, returned home Tuesday from western New Mexico with a big four-point buck and holds first honors for the season for having brought home the bacon—only it was deer meat.

Thomas, with his two brother-in-law, T. G. and M. F. Fields and a friend from Groom left Saturday on a trip that took them to the Gila River, 125 miles southwest of Magdalena. The party of hunters brought down four bucks and two does, Thomas getting one of each.

A number of friends of Lawton are enjoying venison steak this week and they are all high in their praise of its tenderness and all-around good qualities. Deer meat is a rare delicacy in this section and Thomas has the distinction of having brought in the very first of the season.

Cardinal Family Re-United At Home Here Last Week

Mr. and Mrs. R. Cardinal, whose home is ten miles southeast of Floydada in Pleasant Hill community, enjoyed an unusual event in the family history last week when they had as guests for a few days all their living children in a family reunion, at which none were missing, the first time all the family had been together for many years.

Saturday was a big day, when forty-eight persons, including sons and daughters, grandchildren and great grandchildren were gathered at the parental home for dinner and a general get-together. On Monday, a daughter, Mrs. Jno. W. Maxwell, of this city, entertained for all the members of the family, twenty-eight being present for the dinner. Mrs. T. J. Cardinal entertained on Wednesday for all the family and a few friends and Mrs. Z. N. Cardinal entertained on Thursday for the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Cardinal will have been married for fifty-nine years on December 15. He is a native of Montreal, Canada, where he was born on November 25, 1845. Mrs. Cardinal, who was Miss Louise Brosseau before her marriage, was born on February 15, 1857. She is a native of Bourbonnais, Illinois. They were married on December 15, 1873, at St. Joseph Church in Cloud County, Kansas, by Rev. Louis Mollier. They lived in that community for many years and Rev. Mollier christened all the children of the family and married the four eldest, all in the same church. Fourteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Cardinal. Of these eleven are living and attended the family reunion here. They are Sister Mary Raphael, of St. Joseph Hospital, Belvidere, Illinois; Peter Cardinal of Hereford, Texas; Mrs. Emmie L'Eucyer, of Clyde, Kansas; Mrs. Ida Cameau of Hoxie, Kansas; Mrs. Nelda Boudreau of Purcell, Oklahoma; Louis, Zenophile, Theodule, Armand and Alphonse Cardinal of Floydada, and Mrs. Jno. W. Maxwell, of Floydada. The three deceased children are Alphonse Dandurand, Arthur and David. There are sixty grandchildren and eighty-three great grandchildren in the family.

Our equalization board cut off every cent they possibly could with safety, in making up their valuation sheets for the incoming year," R. Fred Brown of the board said last week. "Allowing every reduction possible instead of making raises except to get valuations as near equal as they could.

"We are doing everything we can to reduce the tax burden of the people of the city and we are going to have to count on the citizenship now to do all they can to help take care of the bills by paying their taxes," Mr. Brown said. Relief that the reduction of about $100,000 in the tax bill this year would be a real relief to taxpayers, Mr. Brown expressed the hope that the council and city officials would find the citizens ready to lend their co-operation in every way possible to meet the city's obligations during the next twelve months.

MRS. W. A. SHIPLEY'S SISTER BURIED IN TENN.

Mrs. Albert Wilson, 70, sister of Mrs. W. A. Shipley of this city, died at the home of her daughter in Chattanooga, Tennessee, last Monday night.

Mrs. Wilson suffered a stroke of paralysis a few days before her death. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the home and burial made at the old home place close to Chattanooga. Two sons, one daughter and the sister, Mrs. Shipley survive.

ATTENDS CONFERENCE

Miss Martha Faulkner, county home demonstration agent, will return today from Lubbock where she attended the first of the week a district meeting of A. & M. Extension Service workers. National and state agriculture experts were in attendance at the session held at the Lubbock Hotel.

Miss Faulkner and Miss Johnnie Reed of Kent County arranged a clever stunt for the breakfast program Monday. She gave a summary of poultry work in this county and discussed a "Rural Drama Program" Tuesday.

Home Preservation Of Beef, Pork Discussed

Home Demonstration Women To Can Products; Stag-Ed For Farmers.

Methods for butchering, curing, and canning of beef and pork for home use on the farm under specifications set forth by the U. S. of Agriculture will be explained at Floyd County's first Meat Demonstration to be given Saturday, November 7, in the Glad Snodgrass Building, 208 South Main Street. The free event, sponsored by The Hesperian, is to be held for the benefit of the farmers and their wives and will be open to the general public, a cordial invitation being extended to everyone to attend.

To Begin at 9:30

Knox Parr, county agent of Garza County, representing the Extension Service of A. & M. College of Texas and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will have charge of the demonstration which is scheduled to begin at 9:30 o'clock and not later than 10 o'clock Saturday morning, November 7.

Members of the Home Demonstration Clubs of the county under the direction of Miss Martha Faulkner, county home demonstration agent, will can the beef and pork according to regulation specifications. They will begin canning half the beef and half the pork early in the morning. At 10 o'clock Mr. Parr will cut the other halves, explaining how to make the cuts, naming of the different parts, and pointing out the portions best suitable for canning, curing or table use. The women will then can the other portions.

Killing of the animals will be done Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock at the slaughter pens east of Floydada and everyone desiring to see the process used and the methods of dressing the meat for cooling before cutting the next day is invited to attend.

Brings Useful Information

The main feature of the demonstration is to bring to the people information that may prove useful and profitable in preparing their winter meats. This is a free service furnished through the courtesy and cooperation of the Extension Service, Mr. Parr and Miss Faulkner and the Home Demonstration Club women. The event has been planned with the hope of assisting farmers and their wives in economizing in their home programs and in addition help them to prepare and preserve a better product.

Mr. Parr will illustrate literally how to save everything but the "squal" and the club women will prepare all kinds of "by-products" at this educational meeting.

Meat Show Later

It is planned later in the year by the Chamber of Commerce and Miss Faulkner to stage a Meat Show in Floyd County which will be similar to a fair except that the products shown will be meats and "by-products" produced on the farm. It will be open to everyone to enter and of course will be staged free with suitable prizes as awards.

The demonstration next week on methods of preparing and caring for the meat in addition to the economy, the educational features, and the general interest will serve as a means of giving Floyd County folks suggestions for preparing even better products for the Meat Show.

Since "hog killing time" is so near and due to the increased interest not only in pork preserving but also in beef and meat canning in general the Meat Demonstration is expected to be of wide-spread interest. Farmers from adjoining counties are invited and a special delegation from Crosby County has already signified they are planning to be here Saturday of next week.

Negotiations for this special program that have been under way for weeks with Sterling C. Evans, director of the Extension Service of A. & M. College, were completed last week and final details arranged with Miss Faulkner while she was attending the district conference of officials this week at Lubbock.

"Tools" and equipment available on the farm will be used throughout the demonstration so that the methods explained can be applied right at home.

Use of the brick building for the demonstration will be furnished through the courtesy of Glad Snodgrass, local gent's furnisher. Electric current for any lights necessary for the day will be furnished through the courtesy of Texas Utilities Company, it was announced by S. M. Cole, local manager.

Commissioner Geo. Fawver will furnish the beef which will be used in the demonstration. The individuals having the privilege of furnishing (Continued on back page)

Cimarron

By Edna Ferber

Copyright by Edna Ferber,
WNU Service.

It was 1889. Yancey Cravat with his wife, Sabra, and son Cim, go to the Cimarron country in Oklahoma to establish a newspaper, the Oklahoma Wigwag, in the pioneer town of Osage.

Years pass, Yancey goes away to join the Routh Riders in the war with Spain, and Mrs. Cravat continues to publish the newspaper. Her second child, Donna, grows into womanhood. Yancey returns from the war broken in health, but still a popular idol of the town and country. The newspaper prospers and the town "settles down" to a steady growth.

Cimarron, the Cravat's first born, becomes interested in Ruby Big Elk, Sabra's Indian house servant.

Sabra becomes alarmed at Cimarron's absence one night and after a search finds him at an Indian ceremonial, having actually taken part in it. She brings him home.

The "oil boom" convulses Oklahoma. Donna, ultra-sophisticated, comes home, determined, she tells her astonished mother, to marry "the richest man in the state."

Yancey returns, aroused by the news that oil has been struck on the Indian reservation, and determined to defend their rights, in the newspaper, though he antagonizes public sentiment.

Cimarron's open friendliness with the Indians stirs Donna to indignation.

Now go on with the story—

CHAPTER XX

But Cim did not come home on Saturday. On Saturday, at noon, when Sabra and Yancey drove from the office in their little utility car to the house on Kihkah street for their noonday dinner they saw a great limousine drawn up at the curb. A chauffeur, vaguely familiar, lounged in the front. The car was thick with the red dust of the country road.

A vague pang of premonition stabbed at Sabra's vitals. She clutched Yancey's arm. "Whose car is that?"

Yancey glanced at it indifferently. "Somebody drove Cim home, I suppose. Got enough dinner for company?"

Donna had gone to Oklahoma City to spend the week-end. It must be Cim.

"Cim!" Sabra called, as she entered the front door. "Cim!" But there was no answer. She went straight to the sitting room. Empty. But in the stiff little parlor, so seldom used, sat two massive, silent figures. With the Indian sense of ceremony and formality old Big Elk and his squaw had known the proper room to use for an occasion such as this.

"Why—Big Elk!"

"How!" replied Big Elk, and held up his palm in the gesture of greeting.

"Yancey!" cried Sabra suddenly, in a terrible voice. The two pairs of black Indian eyes stared at her. Sabra saw that their dress was elaborate; the formal dress reserved for great occasions. Side by side the two massive figures sat like things of bronze.

Those dull black unsmiling eyes, that weaving fan, moved Sabra to nameless terror. "Yancey!" she cried again, through stiff lips. "Yancey!"

At the note of terror in her voice he was down the stairs and in the room with his quick light step. But at sight of old Big Elk and his wife his look of concern changed to one of relief. He smiled his utterly charming smile.

"How!"

"How!" croaked Big Elk.

Mrs. Big Elk nodded her greeting. She was a woman younger, perhaps, by thirty years than her aged husband; his third wife. She spoke English; had even attended an Indian mission school in her girlhood. But through carelessness or indifference she used the broken, slovenly English of the unlettered Indian.

Now the two relapsed into impassive silence.

"What do they want? Ask them what they want."

Yancey spoke a few words in Osage. Big Elk replied with a monosyllable.

"What did he say? What is it?"

"I asked them to eat dinner with us. He says he cannot."

"I should hope not. Tell her to speak English. She speaks English."

Big Elk turned his great head, slowly, as though it moved on a mechanical pivot. He stared at his fat, round-faced wife. He uttered a brief command in his own tongue. The squaw smiled a little strange, embarrassed smile, like a school-girl—it was less a smile than a contortion of the face, so rare in her as to be more frightening than a scowl.

"Big Elk and me come take you back to Wazhazhe."

"What for?" cried Sabra, sharply.

"Four o'clock big dinner, big dance. Your son want you come tell you. Want you know he marry Ruby this morning."

She was silent again, smiling her foolish fixed smile.

"God Almighty!" said Yancey Cravat. He looked at Sabra, came over to her quickly, but she waved him away.

"Don't. I'm not going to—it's all right." It was as though she shrank from his touch. She stood there, staring at the two barbaric figures, staring so stonily back at her with their dead black Indian eyes. It was at times like that that the Marcy in her stood her in good stead. She came of iron stock, fit to stand the fire. Only beneath her fine dark eyes you now suddenly saw a smudge of purplish brown, as though a dirty thumb had rubbed there; and a sagging of all the muscles of her face, so that she looked watted, lined, old.

"Don't look like that, honey. Come. Sit down."

Again the groping wave of her hand. "I'm all right, I tell you. Come. We must go there."

Yancey came forward. He shook hands formally with Big Elk, with the Indian woman Sabra, seeing him, suddenly realized that he was not displeased. She knew that no formal politeness would have prevented him from voicing his anger at this monstrous announcement had shattered him as it had her, so that her very vitals seemed to be withering within her.

"Sugar, shake hands with them, won't you?"

"No. No." She wet her dry lips a little with her tongue, like one in a fever. She turned, woodenly, and walked to the door, ignoring the Indians. Across the hall, slowly, like an old woman, down the porch steps, toward the shabby little car next to the big rich one. As she went she heard Yancey's voice (was there an exultant note in it?) at the telephone.

"Jesse! Take this. Get it in. Ready! . . . Ex-Chief Big Elk, of the Osage nation, and Mrs. Big Elk, living at Wazhazhe, announce the marriage of their daughter Ruby Big Elk to Cimarron Cravat, son of—don't interrupt me—I'm in a hurry—son of Mr. and Mrs. Yancey Cravat, of this city. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents and was followed by an elaborate dinner made up of many Indian and American dishes, partaken of by the parents of the bride and the groom, many relatives and numerous friends of the young . . ."

Sabra climbed heavily into the car and sat staring at the broad back of the car ahead of her. Chief Big Elk and his wife came out presently, unreal, bizarre in the brilliant noonday Oklahoma sunshine, ushered by Yancey. He was being charming. They heaved their ponderous bulk into the big car. Yancey got in beside Sabra. She spoke to him once only.

"I think you are glad."

"This is Oklahoma. In a way it's what I wanted to be when I came here twenty years ago. Cim's like your father, Lewis Venable. Weak stuff, but good stock. Ruby's pure Indian blood and a magnificent animal. It's hard on you now, my darling. But their children and their grandchildren are going to be such stuff as Americans are made of. You'll see."

"I hope I shall die before that day."

The shabby little middle-class car followed the one whirling ahead of them over the red clay Oklahoma roads. Eating the dust of the big car just ahead.

She went through it and stood it, miraculously, until one grotesquerie proved too much for her strained nerves and broke them. But she went into the Indian house, and saw Cim sitting beside the Indian woman, and as she looked at his beautiful weak face she thought, I wish that I had never found him that day when he was lost on the prairie long ago. He came toward her, his head lowered with that familiar look, his fine eyes hidden by the lids.

"Look at me!" Sabra commanded, in the voice of Felice Venable. The boy raised his eyes. She looked at him, her face stony. Ruby Big Elk came toward her with the leisurely, insolent, scuffling step. The two women gazed at each other; rather, their looks clashed, like swords held high. They did not shake hands.

There were races, there were prizes, there was dancing. In the old Indian days the bucks had raced on foot for a prize that was a pony tethered at a distance and won by the fleetest to reach him, mount, and ride him back to the starting point. Today the prize was a magnificent motor car that stood glittering in the open field half a mile distant. Sabra thought, I am dying, I am dying. And Donna, this squaw is her sister-in-law. Miss Digaun's on the Husdon.

Ruby's handsome head right had bought the young couple the house just across the road from Big Elk's—a one-story red brick bungalow, substantial, ugly. They showed Sabra and Yancey through it. It was furnished complete. Mongrel Spanish furniture in the living room—red plush, fringe, brass nail heads as big as twenty-dollar gold pieces.

An upright piano. An oak dining room set. A fine bathroom with heavy rich bath towels neatly hung on the racks. A shining stained oak bedroom set with a rose-colored tafeta spread. Sabra felt a wave of nausea. Cim's face was smiling, radiant. Yancey was joking and laughing with the Indians. In the kitchen sat a white girl in a gingham dress and a kitchen apron. The girl's hair was so light a yellow as to appear almost white. Her unintelligent eyes were palest blue. Her skin was so fair as to be quite colorless. In the midst of the roomful of dark Indian faces the white face of the new Cravat hired girl seemed to swim in a hazy blob before Sabra's eyes. But she held on. She felt Ruby's scornful dark eyes on her. Sabra had a feeling as though she had been disemboweled and now was a hollow thing, an empty shell that moved and walked and talked.

Dinner. White servants and negro servants to wait on them. A long table seating a score or more, and many such tables. Bowls and plate piled with food all down the length of it. Piles of crisp pork, roasted in the Indian fashion over hot embers sunk in a pit in the yard, and skewered with a sharp pointed stick. Bowls of dried corn. Great fat, black ripe olives. Tinned lobster. Chicken. Piles of dead ripe strawberries. Vast plateaus of angel-food cake covered with snow fields of icing.

Sabra went through the motions of eating. Sometimes she put a morsel into her mouth and actually swallowed it. There was a great clatter of knives and forks and dishes. Everything was eaten out of one plate. Platters and bowls were replenished. Sabra found herself seated beside Mrs. Big Elk. On her other side was Yancey. He was eating and laughing and talking. Mrs. Big Elk was being almost comically polite. She pressed this tidbit, that dainty, on her stony guest.

Down the center of the table, at intervals, were hung bowls piled with a sort of pastry stuffed with forcemeat. It was like a great ravioli, and piles of it vanished beneath the onslaught of appreciative guests.

"For God's sake, pretend to eat something, Sabra," Yancey murmured, under his breath. "It's done now. They consider it an insult. Try to eat something."

She stirred the pastry and chopped meat that had been put on her plate.

"Good," said Mrs. Big Elk, beside her, and pointed at the mass with one dusky maculate finger.

Sabra lifted her fork to her lips and swallowed a bit of it. It was delicious—spicy, rich, appetizing. "Yes," she said, and thought, I am being wonderful. This is killing me. "Yes, it is very good. This meat—this stuffing—it is chopped or ground through a grinder?"

The huge Indian woman beside her turned her expressionless gaze on Sabra. Ponderously she shook her head from side to side in negation.

"Naw," she answered, politely. "Chawed."

The clatter of a fork dropped to the plate, a clash among the cups and saucers. Sabra Cravat had fainted.

Osage, Okla., was a city. Where, scarcely two decades ago, prairie and sky had met the eye with here a buffalo wallow, there an Indian encampment, you now saw a twenty-story hotel; the Savoy-Bixby. The Italian head waiter bent from the waist and murmured in your ear his secret about the veal saute with mushrooms or the spaghetti Caruso du jour. Sabra Cravat, congresswoman from Oklahoma, lunching in the Louis XIV room with the members of the Women's State Republican committee, would say, looking up at him with those intelligent dark eyes, "I'll leave it to you, Nick. Only quickly. We haven't much time." Niccolo Mazzarini would say yes, he understood. No one had much time in Osage, Okla.

Twenty-five years earlier anybody who was anybody in Oklahoma had dilated on his or her eastern connections. Iowa, if necessary, was East.

They had been a little ashamed of the Run. Bragged about the splendor of the homes from which they had come.

Now it was considered the height of chic to be able to say that your parents had come through in a covered wagon. Grandparents were still rather rare in Oklahoma. As for the Run of '89—it was Osage's Mayflower. At the huge dinner given in Sabra Cravat's honor when she was elected congresswoman, and from which they tried to exclude Sol Levy over Sabra's vigorous (and triumphant) protest, the chairman of the committee on arrangements explained it all to Sol, patronizingly.

"You see, we're inviting only people who came to Oklahoma in the Run."

"Well, sure," said the former peddler, genially. "That's all right. I walked."

The Levy Mercantile company's building now occupied an entire square block and was fifteen stories high. In the huge plate-glass windows on Pawhuska avenue postured ladies waxen and coquettish, as on Fifth avenue.

The daughter of Mrs. Pat Leary (nee Crook Nose) always caused quite a flutter when she came in, for accustomed though Osage was to money and the spending of it, the Leary's lavishness was something spectacular. Hand-made silk underwear, the sheerest of cobweb French stockings, model hats, dresses—well, in the matter of gowns it was no good trying to influence Maude Leary or her mother. They frankly wanted beads, spangles, and paillettes on a foundation of crude color. The saleswomen were polite and equestrian, but they cocked an eyebrow at one another. Squaw stuff. Now that little Cravat girl—Felice Cravat,

"I NEVER READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS"

YOU know this person. He thinks he is telling the truth. But quiz him and he will recite the make of his motor-car, his hat, his shirt, his suit, his shoes, his tooth-paste, his towels, ad infinitum . . . with the accent on the "ad." In other words, they are all advertised products.

Why, he could no more escape the presence and the power of the printed word than he could evade eating or sleeping. The advertisements are a definite part of contemporary American life. Their messages are vital to daily existence. They have a definite association with the pocketbook, than which there is nothing more intimate and personal.

The important thing is not merely to "read the advertisements," but to read ALL of them. The one advertisement you "didn't see" may contain information you would have given a great deal to possess. Certainly, it is as important to you to know that Smiths are having a sale of sheets or shirts, as to read that Congress will hold a special session!

"FRIEND, GUIDE AND COUNSELOR"—THE
ADVERTISEMENTS IN THIS PAPER.

Cimarron Cravat's daughter—was different. She insisted on plain, smart tailored things. Young though she was, she was Oklahoma state woman tennis champion. She always said she looked a freak in fluffy things—like a boy dressed up in girl's clothes. She had long, lean, muscular arms and a surprising breadth of shoulder, was slim flanked and practically stomachless. She had a curious trick of holding her head down and looking up at you under her lashes and when she did that you forgot her boyishness, for her lashes were like fern fronds, and her eyes, in her dark face, an astounding ocean gray. She was a good sport, too. She didn't seem to mind the fact that her mother, when she accompanied her, wore the blanket and was hatless, just like any poor Kaw, instead of being one of the richest of the Osages. She was rather handsome for a squaw, in a big, insolent, slow-moving way. Felice Cravat, every one agreed, was a chip of the old block, and by that they did not mean her father. They were thinking of Yancey Cravat—old Cimarron, her grandfather, who was now something of a legend in

had a second child—a boy—and they had called him Yancey, after the old bewildered, a dozen ty, dian, Spanish, Southwest. With the face, the dolichocephalic nose, people said he looked like the king of Spain—without that dreadful Hapsburg jaw. Others said he was the image of his grandmother, Sabra Cravat. Still others contended that he was his Indian mother over again—insolent and all. A third would come along and say, "You're crazy. He's old Yancey, born again. I guess you don't remember him. There, look, that's what I mean! The way he closes his eyes as if he were sleepy, and then when he does look at you straight you feel as if you'd been struck by lightning. They say he's so smart that the Osages believe he's one of their old gods come back to earth."

Mystery Of Hidden Quart' Winners To Be Announced Next Week

Announcement of winners in the $10,000 cash prize contest sponsored by Continental Oil Company, for the best answers explaining "The Mystery of the Hidden Quart," will be made in an advertisement in next week's issue of The Hesperian.

The success of this advertising campaign, in which motorists were invited to compete for $10,000 in prizes for the best answers to the question, "What becomes of the hidden quart of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, and how does it benefit motorists?" has so far surpassed expectations that the winners cannot be announced as early as was anticipated.

A preliminary examination of all of the thousands of entries in the contest has been completed, and the judges are now making their final inspection of the entries, with the view to announcing the winners next week. The judges are: Dr. W. B. Bizzell, president of the University of Oklahoma; John A. Hunter, professor of mechanical engineering, University of Colorado, and Frank L. Martin, associate dean, school of journalism, University of Missouri.

Defeated since the regular season, the Silvertown Whirlwinds another victory to their string, 19-6 trouncing to the Silvertown at High School Field Friday afternoon.

on, "south paw" punter and kicking, with Chitty, drift tackle, held the Green and team sufficiently to ward off a more top-heavy score. The Chitty, who broke up play for the Whirlwinds and re-fours of the tackles during game, was the outstanding of the game.

The Whirlwinds tightened and in the exchange of punts and a brilliant return by Floyd Murray in bringing back a kick, the ball finally rested on Silvertown's 18-yard line.

Score On Break
A hard pass from center was fumbled and Sims recovered for Floydada on the Owl's 9-yard line. Welch hit right tackle for no gain. Murray picked up four yards at left tackle. Bridges failed to gain at the right side of the line. On the fourth down, F. Murray stepped back and shot a pretty pass to Heald who raced across the goal line for the first Whirlwind touchdown in the first few minutes of play.

A brilliant 30-yard run by Welch placed the ball on the 20-yard line about the middle of the first frame and Heald on the next play raced 20 yards for a touchdown but the play was called back. Headlineman Luttrall ruling Floydada was off-side and penalized them five yards.

In scoring their next counter, which came in the second quarter, the Whirlwinds marched from Silvertown's 40-yard line. Welch ripped off 20 yards on a fake through the center of the line and Heald added 10 more. Welch picked up four yards at right tackle and then crashed through for a touchdown. He failed to kick goal in try for extra point.

With Welch, Heald, and Murray totting the oval on a series of spin plays and cross bucks the Green and White advanced to the Silvertown 10-yard line just as the third quarter ended. A fumble at the opening of the fourth frame cost the Whirlwinds 13 yards and temporarily checked the scoring threat. Punt were exchanged and Floydada took the ball on Silvertown's 30-yard line. Welch made 5 yards at right end. Heald made a first down and left the ball on the 9-yard line. Heald made 6 yards on an off-tackle play and McLaughlin plunged through the line on the third touchdown for Floydada. A pass to Goughly was knocked down in try for extra point.

Score In Third
Silvertown scored in the third quarter. A 25-yard penalty and a fumble gave the Owls the ball on Floydada's 25-yard line. Patton made 20 yards around right end. O. Cowart added 2 yards at the center of the line. Patton made a yard through the line and then Burson dashed around left end for a touchdown. An attempted pass from Cowart was blocked.

In the last half Silvertown advanced the ball only 5 yards from scrimmage. In the last few seconds of play Coach Barksdale sent practically all of his first string to the showers and flooded the field with a string of substitutes. Little Murray, Johnston, Young, Jackson and deCordova were the only regulars left on the line-up. Little Murray took the ball on the first play and failed to gain. With Glover, Cawthon, Moreland and Murray in a big huddle over a fumble, the Silvertown line crushed the final play of the game with the ball on the 50-yard line.

Punting by Little Murray, his return of punts, the work of Welch and Heald, the defense of Young and the nice work by Bridges especially on blocking were outstanding. Dorrell showed much improvement at center, getting off only two bad passes.

In addition to the Maroon and White line star, F. Chitty, C. Cowart, O. Cowart and M. Burson were stars for Silvertown. Monroe at center did the best work seen on the local gridiron this year. He spirals the ball and shoots it to his backs like a bullet.

Prohibitionists Face Real Problem Today, Declares Rev. Webb

Anti-Saloon League Superintendent
Makes Address On Dangers
From Booze Trade.

"We are up against a real fight, my friends, for the wet propagandists for the past ten years have been trying to make bootlegging a respectable business, they have been trying to make the seller a kind of dead-level-best to make drinking respectable," declared Dr. Atticus Webb, of Dallas, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas, in an address during a trial drama staged Friday night at the First Methodist Church.

Local talent was used in staging the "trial" of "Who Killed Earl Wright" and Rev. Webb acted as defense attorney and rose to dramatic heights in his appeal to the jury to bring out his points of attack on the bootlegging traffic.

Play Is Clever
The drama was cleverly handled and the parts well presented. The S. R. O sign was hung outside but had to be brought in again for the crowd filled all seats, took up the "standing room only" and all the extra chairs that could be brought in and placed in the aisles.

Climaxing his appeal in defense of a young man who was being tried for having killed his best friend in a drunken brawl, Dr. Webb stressed the main theme of the playlet "that the bootlegger and his patrons were equally responsible for the young man's death."

The "jury" returned a verdict of guilty recommending a penalty of five years in the penitentiary for five years for manslaughter against the "accused" young man and the bootlegger was sentenced by the "judge" for five years as being an accomplice.

Joe Breed played the part of the young man "on trial," Rev. P. D. O'Brien was cast as the "bootlegger," Lon M. Davis was the "prosecuting attorney," and Mrs. Claude Wingo was the "star witness for the state." Rev. O'Brien and Mrs. Wingo were exceptionally good in handling their parts.

Members of the "jury" were as follows: E. C. Nelson, Ned King, S. W. Ross, G. N. Shirey, Rev. N. E. Tyler, I. W. Hicks, N. W. Williams, Byron Clark, F. C. Harmon, Tad Probasco, Tom W. Deen, and Noel Troutman.

Bob Smith served as "marshal," J. M. Wright as "sheriff," Mrs. Ella Johnson as the "defendant's mother," Mrs. Pierce King as "wife of the murdered man," and Price Scott as "court reporter."

Exposes Liquor Dangers
"This drama was staged to show the horror of this bootlegging business," Rev. Webb explained. "It is a part of an educational campaign being put on all over Texas. We are reaching the masses and especially the youth with our message. These plays, we have found, are the most effective temperance programs ever put on."

"One of the most outstanding Hesperian in the county $1 per year.

in drinking and drunkenness since prohibition is that out of 300 Keeley institutions maintained for the treatment of drunkards only 13 exist today and one half of them without patients. The greatest decrease ever seen came with the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"The purpose of the wet propagandists with their wet press and their 300 special writers is to destroy our prohibition laws and bring back wine and liquor. They claim that they want to put a tax on light wines and beer and use the money to help support the government and reduce taxes," he charged.

"The only taxes it would lower would be on the big corporations by reducing their income taxes. There were 1,332 corporations last year that had an income of over a million dollars! Who should support the government? Why those who pile up big sums of money under its protection and politics.

"Liquor would lower the taxes on the big incomes. There are 87 out of 100 who do not have to pay an income tax but the "big boys" want to put the tax on the liquor, cut their own income taxes, and let the poor devils who drink the liquor pay the tax.

"It is a move to shift the income tax off the shoulders from those who are fattening on this type of government to those who have an appetite for drink.

"We used to fight the saloon keeper who has grown insignificant but now we are fighting the combined plutocrats of America."

7 States Repeal Laws
He pointed out that seven states had wiped out their prohibition laws and called attention to the fact that only a vote of 36 states would be needed to change the national laws.

"What is more important is that only a majority of one in each house of the legislature and a governor willing to sign the bill is needed to do away with prohibition. Only a majority of one in each house of Congress and a president to sign and the law enforcing the 18th Amendment could be wiped out," the speaker declared.

He mentioned the "efforts of the wets to line up the leaders of the American Legion, the American Bar Association, and the American Federation of Labor" to march on Congress next year and ask for a repeal of the prohibition law.

"The rank and file in these organizations do not endorse such actions as have been taken by their leaders. Members of the Legion have filed protests and started a move censoring any plan to bring back light wines and beer."

"If prohibition fails those who holler the loudest will be the ones who opened their pocketbooks the least."

A collection for carrying on the Anti-Saloon League work was directed by Rev. Webb. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Claude Wingo, pastor of the First Christian Church. The invocation for the evening was said by E. C. Comfort, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Federal Grades Set Dressed-Turkey Styles

What the well-dressed Thanksgiving or Christmas turkey will wear this year as it comes from the market ready for final preparation in the kitchen is indicated in the schedule of Tentative United States Standards and Grades for Dressed Turkeys, a style sheet which the Bureau of Agricultural Economics has issued to guide the work of the Federal turkey graders this fall. These turkey graders are the men who are authorized to affix grade tags to the birds. The four grades are: U. S. Special, U. S. Prime, U. S. Choice, and U. S. Commercial. The birds are also classified as young or old turkeys.

A young hen turkey that grades U. S. Prime must satisfy rather strict quality requirements. The specifications for such a bird are: "Young, soft-meated female bird, with well-fleshed breast, and with entire carcass well covered with fat. Must be well bled, well dressed, with breast practically free of pin feathers, and only few scattered pin feathers over remainder of carcass. Crop must be empty. Only very slight flesh or skin bruises, abrasions, or discolorations permitted, with breast practically free of such defects. Slightly dented breast bones (not to exceed one-half inch) permitted, but no crooked breasts that would interfere with the slicing of the meat or other deformities allowed. Broken wings above the wing tips or broken legs not permitted. A disjunct leg or wing permitted if only slightly bruised. Birds with crops properly removed and sewn up may be included in this grade. Must be dry picked or semi-scalded and dry packed."

Where a dozen birds are packed in a box, the weights of the lightest and heaviest birds should not vary by more than 3 pounds.

HUCKABAY INFANT BURIED
A two-day old infant of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Huckabay, of Shallowater, was buried in Floydada Cemetery Friday afternoon.

Mr. Huckabay was accompanied here for the funeral and burial rites by his father, J. A. Huckabay of Lubbock, Mr. Crossnose and Mr. I. C. Elliott.

"Service"

WHEN YOU LIGHT THE BURNER of your gas appliance and the flame springs to life instantly, you see results—comfort—convenience—not causes.

Seldom, if ever, do you see the Service agencies that make this ideal fuel supply possible. Pipe line gas wells and manpower, Service!—the combination of efforts that brings natural gas to your burner and which plays a major part in the cost of your fuel supply.

It is Service that provides heat at the burner automatically, when and as you want it, without ashes, smoke, or soot, or the need for extra labor or storage. Back of the flame of your burner stands the Service of your gas company with its skilled employees and its facilities for delivering the gas. Service must be maintained! Service is what you are paying for!

The fact that your gas company must maintain the year round, at great expense, capacity equal to the coldest day of the year—even though this peak capacity is not required except on a few cold days in winter—is merely one of the items of this responsibility called SERVICE!

Your Gas Company takes pride in the fact that it pioneered the distribution in this section, of the only available fuel that can be utilized by the consumer without special handling or the use of costly mechanical accessories. Realizing our responsibility, we take the utmost precaution to assure you permanent fuel satisfaction by providing a dependable flow of gas—regardless of the weather.

Reduced Freight Rates on Cotton and Cotton Seed To Meet Truck Competition, Means Heavy Saving

New Cotton Rate From Floydada To Port 72c

Effective Immediately Throughout Territory, R. R. Commission Wires.

Reduction of freight rates on cotton from Floydada to Gulf ports 19 cents to 72 cents per hundred will effect a saving of $1.15 per bale for Floyd County farmers, according to local railway officials. The announcement of the granting of the new rate was received by wire from the Texas Railway Commission Thursday of last week.

Effective immediately throughout the territory, the reductions averaging more than 25 per cent, will represent a definite saving on the present crop now being moved. The rates in effect from Floydada to Houston, Galveston, and Texas City as granted by the Railroad Commission in response to applications made by railroads in this section, will be 72 cents per hundred pounds on regulars and 59 cents per hundred on round bales.

Following the new rates on cotton has come announcement of a 25 per cent cut on the freight rate for cottonseed. This change will mean a rate of $1.35 per ton from Floydada to Lockney as compared to $1.80 under the former prices, it was pointed out by V. Williams, local Santa Fe agent, who quoted the figures as an example in explaining how much the reduction would affect the local shipping costs.

The rate on cottonseed is set on the mileage basis and went into effect October 22. The rate on cotton is determined on the zone basis similar to postal rates, the center of the circle being designated as a Gulf port.

On the basis thus used, the 72-cent cotton rate will apply at Floydada on the Santa Fe and Q. A. & P. and at Dougherty on the Q. A. & P. line Lockney comes in the 75-cent zone with Aiken, Hale Center, and Plainview. Tulia on the Santa Fe has an 81-cent rate and Kress 78 cents. Other West Texas towns that are included in the 72-cent zone are Post, Tahoka, Lamesa, Brownfield, Levelland, Littlefield, Anton, Slaton, Abernathy, Ralls, Crosbyton, and Lubbock. These towns are listed to give an approximate idea of the extent of the zone.

The compress price here is 13 cents per hundred which if paid by the railroad makes the shipping rate 59 cents, or added makes 72 cents.

Robt. Medlen, local agent for the Q. A. & P. said his office received the wire shortly after noon last Thursday.

The cotton freight rate reductions announced on the Santa Fe will save West Texas more than $500,000 on the present crop, T. B. Gallaher, general freight and passenger agent at Amarillo was quoted as stating to The Hesperian. He also stated the new rates were designed to meet truck competition, according to the Amarillo paper.

Congressman Marvin Jones made the following written comment on the new schedule in a communication to The Hesperian:

"I am very much pleased with the recent freight rate reduction on cotton from Texas points to the Gulf ports.

"For several years I have been making a fight to secure a lowering of these freight rates in order to place these commodities on the same basis with industry.

"For many years industry has had freight rate reductions ranging from 25 to 40 per cent commodities moving into export in order to assist the manufacturers in the disposal of their surplus products.

"Steel and steel products moving into export are allowed a 35 per cent average reduction. Cement is given a 40 per cent reduction. Practically all manufactured products enjoy similar reductions. Even farm implements are favored with a 35 per cent reduction below domestic rates.

"About two years ago I made the following statement on the floor of the House of Representatives:

"For many years iron and steel products, cement, farm implements and manufactured commodities have been given export freight reductions ranging from 25 per cent to 40 per cent below domestic freight rates. The United States Steel Company gets the benefit of these reductions, notwithstanding it has not missed a dividend in thirty years. During this period the major farm commodities, wheat and cotton, have not had reduced freight rates; in other words, they have been discriminated against.

"What peculiar charm is there about iron and steel? One of two courses should be adopted. Either those export rate reductions should be allowed on wheat and cotton, or they should be taken away from industry so that the whole rate structure might be lowered."

"I am glad that this principle of fairness is at last beginning to be recognized."

Red Cross Gives Aid In 38 States During Past Year

IN a year of unusual weather conditions all over the world, the United States was especially hard hit, and in the twelve months ending June 30, 1931, the American Red Cross had given disaster relief in thirty-eight of the forty-eight states.

With the exception of a mine explosion, an epidemic of typhoid fever, a mine cave-in and a railroad accident, these disasters were all due to the elements. They were forest fires, tornadoes, floods, storms, cloudbursts and drought.

The drought, which spread over twenty-three states in the summer and fall of 1930, and has again wrought untold havoc in northwestern states in 1931, accounted for

Red Cross relief in twenty-three states. The other disasters were, without exception, carried on simultaneously with the drought relief, and placed a heavy burden, not alone upon the funds of the national Red Cross, but upon its trained personnel of disaster relief workers.

At the peak of the drought relief, more than two million persons were being fed, clothed or given other help, and in all of the work more than 2,750,000 men, women and children were cared for by the Red Cross.

Funds for the drought relief were obtained, in part, through public contributions, because of the magnitude of the numbers affected. The public gave more than $10,000,000 and the American Red Cross appropriated $5,000,000 from its treasury. The cost of the other disaster relief operations was borne from the Red Cross treasury, and local funds contributed in the stricken communities.

This disaster work of the Red Cross is supported, in part, from the annual roll call for members which occurs each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day. Each person who joins as a member of the Red Cross is contributing toward this effective and important emergency relief, should calamities occur anywhere affecting lives of their fellow citizens.

In the Kitchen

Menu Variety Suggested

Brides and also homemakers of long standing who have been struggling with the endless problem of planning meals for two will find some answers to their repeated query, "What shall we have for supper?" in the following suggestions by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

When buying with the meals for several days in mind, the cooking should follow up the economy scheme and plan to save fuel and time. For instance, if potatoes are to be served two days in succession, enough should be cooked the first day, to be re-cooked the following day in some different form. The old standby, hash, is not frowned upon, but ways of serving left overs that are as attractive as the original dish are preferable.

Eggs Have Many Uses
Eggs, for instance, need not always appear in the usual breakfast forms, but may be served at any meal. Their adaptability for small families makes them almost invaluable. Baked with cheese or tomatoes, curried, or served as Eggs Benedict they are as appetizing as they are nutritious. Eggs are a good source of efficient protein, and also supply some of the minerals and vitamins so necessary for building the body and keeping it healthy. The bureau points out that success in cooking eggs depends on cooking them slowly at moderate, even heat.

Families of two are well acquainted with ground beef and stewing meat but there are other cuts of beef which can be used to equal advantage. A pot roast can be served hot to begin with, then sliced cold, and finally made into croquettes which also utilize left over mashed potatoes. A beef heart is another wise and economical choice and kidney and liver offer possibilities for variety for two persons or ten.

The breast and shoulder of lamb are small and are less expensive than the leg. When stuffed with a savory dressing, either will form the basis for an excellent company meal. Both these roasts slice well when cold and every bit of meat left over can be utilized cold, creamed, or in curries.

Fresh and cured pork, sausages, and scrapple are desired for the small family. The shoulders belong in the low cost group and they are as adaptable to meal planning for two as the lamb shoulders. The bureau suggests pork chop suet to those like Oriental food as a novel way of utilizing left over pork. Roast spareribs is another dish seldom served but offering a decidedly different flavor.

As for cured pork, its uses are legion. Families of two can serve a small shoulder hot in a variety of ways and need not dread having to eat it cold for days and days. It can be creamed, cooked with noodles, combined with potatoes, and made into different kinds of salads—all dishes as appetizing as they are low in cost.

Smoked shoulder butts, known by various names in different sections of the country, are available in all markets. They are small, boneless, and when baked make a choice piece for the whole family.

Cheese Inexpensive
Cheese is one of the most valuable and inexpensive foods for the small family. A comparatively small quantity can change the entire character of left overs into a pleasing dish for lunch or dinner. Some easy-to-prepare combinations can be made by taking cheese with fish, vegetables, or spaghetti. Since cheese becomes rubbery in texture and is digested with less comfort when exposed to high temperatures, the bureau's method of using moderate oven heat and always having the top layer of bread crumbs is a wise one to follow.

Many kinds of fresh, canned, and salt fish are available in quantities small enough for two persons. Though all fish contain important minerals and ample protein, sea food has iodine to recommend it to the diet.

1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
1 cup cooked noodles.

longer. Serve hot.

Baked Eggs and Cheese
Break the desired number of eggs in a shallow, greased baking dish, add a few tablespoons of top milk and salt enough to season, and sprinkle with a mixture of grated cheese and fine dry bread crumbs. Set this dish in a pan containing hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until the eggs are set and the crumbs are brown. Just before serving add a few dashes of paprika.

Roast Stuffed Spareribs
(Serves 5 persons)
2 sections of spareribs
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup diced salt pork
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Select well-fleshed rib sections that match. Have the breastbone cracked so that it will be easy to carve between the ribs. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Prepare the stuffing as follows: Fry the salt pork until crisp and remove the pieces, onion, and parsley in the fat for a few minutes and remove them. Put the apples into the skillet, sprinkle with the sugar, cover and cook until tender, then remove the lid and continue to cook until the juice evaporates and the pieces of apple are candied. Mix with the apples the bread crumbs, crisp salt pork, cooked vegetables, salt, and pepper. Lay one section of the ribs out flat, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and spread with the hot stuffing. Cover with the other section and sew the two together. Sprinkle the outside with salt and pepper and rub with flour. Lay the stuffed ribs on a rack in an open roasting pan and sear in a hot oven (480 degrees F.) for 20 minutes, or until the meat is lightly browned. Reduce the oven temperature rapidly to very moderate heat (300 to 325 degrees) and continue to cook for about an hour longer, or until the meat is tender. Remove the strings before serving the stuffed spareribs on a hot platter.

Stuffed Beef Heart
(Serves 5 persons)
1 beef heart
2 tablespoons bacon fat or drippings
1 small onion, chopped
½ green pepper, chopped
3 cups bread crumbs
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped celery

Wash the heart and remove the gristle and veins. Make a slit in the side and fill with stuffing made as follows: Melt the fat, cook the onion and green pepper for a few minutes, add the bread crumbs, salt and celery and stir until well mixed. Sprinkle the heart inside and out with salt and pepper, fill with the hot stuffing, and sew up the slit. Sear the heart in hot fat, place in a baking dish, add ½ cup of hot water, cover, and cook until tender in a very moderate oven (300 degrees F.) This will require about 2 hours. Remove the heart and add flour to the drippings and enough water to make a thin gravy. Serve surrounded by the gravy.

Curried Lamb
(Serves 2 persons)
1 cup chopped cooked lean lamb.
½ cup chopped celery and tops.
1/3 medium-sized onion, chopped.
¼ cup brown gravy or broth.
1 tablespoon butter or other fat
Dash of curry.
Dash of tabasco.
Salt.

Cook the celery and onion in the butter. Add the meat, gravy, and seasonings. Stir until well mixed and hot. If too dry, add one-half cup of boiling water. Serve the curried lamb with a border of flaky boiled rice, garnished with parsley.

Codfish, Spaghetti, and Tomatoes
(Serves 2 persons)
½ pound salt codfish, diced
1 cup spaghetti, broken in small pieces
1 pint canned tomatoes
1 bay leaf
½ onion, sliced
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon olive oil or other fat
Chopped olives
Salt if needed.

Soak the codfish in cold water to cover for 2 hours or longer, until sufficient salt has been removed, and drain. Cook the spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender and drain. Simmer the tomatoes and codfish with the bay leaves for about 15 minutes and remove the bay leaves. Cook the onion and parsley in the olive oil for a few minutes, combine all the ingredients, and cook for a few minutes

Acreage Cut Part Of Hold

Austin, Texas, October 27.—October 27, 1931, the new state of Texas cotton production plan of Texas bankers to the holding of a portion of the crop was emphasized in a momentary by J. E. McDonald, a commissioner of Agriculture.

McDonald pointed out that the Texas bankers assist farmers in gaining a living from the sale of their most important product would go down unless farmers cooperate to down 1932 production as it provides.

"I have no doubt," McDonald said, "that farmers will of law. It is to their best advantage to do so. This comment is to point out the additional duty for adherence to that."

"The plan approved by the bankers to help farmers contemplates a 10 per cent next year. If producers have to operate, under the laws, to hold the reasonably within reason. In our efforts to help through his difficulty should not lose sight that our present crop brought about largely a continued over-production, where the south was called itself of the largest cotton industry's history.

"We have now worked surplus. To add to it, it will be disastrous, and would render less all efforts toward financing the crop. There isn't enough money available to finance an ever-mounting surplus. That fact should be borne in mind by every farmer in the south when times comes for planting next year's cotton lands in compliance with the new 30 per cent allowable cotton law."

Lace Martin May Come Home Soon; Dissatisfaction Made By Influz of U. S. Laborers

Lace Martin, Floydada boy who has been in Russia for the past year employed under contract by the Soviet government as a skilled mechanic in handling combines and tractors on one of the big farms, notified his brother, M. H. Martin, here this week that he might be sailing homeward soon. Labor troubles caused by Americans willing to work for Russian roubles, almost worthless, was given as an explanation for Lace's consideration of coming back to the United States. In the letter was a clipping of a story written in English which appeared in the Moscow News at Moscow giving an interview with Lace before the labor difficulties arose. The letter read as follows: Moscow, Russia, October 11.

Dear M. H. Well by the time you get this letter I may be in New York. I am having a time here of it here. They want me to cut of $75 a month and take it out in roubles. These roubles are not worth a thing. If you had a wagon that I would not stand any cut at all in my American dollars. The reason is that there has been about a thousand men in here from the States with their tools to work for roubles only. It is a big mess. Some of them haven't got the money. Some get back on and seeing the conditions just sit around and cry. Some of them tell me their story about having their family over here and can't get the money to get out on. I guess in all there are over 10,000 Americans over here. Some on different work. There are only three left on contract with Zernotrest (Soviet government) and they want us to cut our dollars to stay. They can get these men without dollars and let them starve. Until this last bunch came in they were going to send us back to the farms. But I don't know now. Don't worry about me. I have a little money to get by on; also they will have to take care of me. But I will know in a few days which way I will start. Writing later. Answer.

out frequently can sometimes be gotten only with the greatest trouble. Often we have to make them ourselves. "There ought to be some way of keeping the parts in circulation so that what one farm has too much of can be sent to another farm needing it and having too much of something else. For instance once we need bearings. We searched our entire farm, but none were on hand. We went to the next farm, found plenty there—more than they had use for. This is a matter that needs some attention." "On every side I got real co-operation from the time I started until I left for Moscow. And soon I'm going back again—to the same farm I hope—to join the old crowd and get things going for next year. Yes, I like the country—though if you asked me why, it'd be pretty hard for me to say. I've always had good jobs in the States, was always my own boss because I knew my work. But I just like it here, it's different, that's all!"

Mrs. M. B. Holmes. Miss Joy Grigsby of Sterley visited with her grandmother Mrs. M. B. Holmes Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Smith Mickey of Lubbock visited with her sister Mrs. Elmer Mickey Sunday. The party given at the home of Mrs. M. B. Holmes Friday night was well attended and everyone reported a nice time. It was announced Sunday night that there would be no school this week. The children are helping gather the crop. Herman C. Cates of Meade, Kansas, and Miss Elizabeth Davis of Holdenville, Oklahoma were married at Holdenville last Monday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Cates visited with his father J. C. Cates and his uncle Sam Cates Friday. They will make their home at Inola, Oklahoma where Mr. Cates will engage in farming and cattle raising. Gamble took the exhibit on to Dallas to the state fair, after the home fair was over, Mr. Gaither said.

Novelty of Life Wears Off In Nicaragua; Duncan Pines For Return to Beloved U. S.

By Floydada Boy Writes Third Feature Story On Land Of Sandino.

This week is presented a third feature article on the people and customs of Nicaragua, the land of Sandino and Marines, written in a most interesting fashion by C. V. Duncan, son of Mrs. A. B. Duncan of this city. Mr. Duncan is in the office employ of the Bragmans Bluff Lumber Company at Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua.

He gives in this article a most excellent cross-section picture of "Mr. Average American Citizen" and his ideas of other people. This exclusive feature to The Hesperian was prepared by "Ted" in response to another request from this newspaper for more information about the homeland of Sandino of which we have read so much and know so little. It is well written and here's hoping you, too, will find it immensely interesting—Ed. note.

BY C. V. "TED" DUNCAN

Puerto Cabezas, Nic. October 14th, de 1931. My friend, you are certainly a brute for punishment to want some more stuff about this country. Well, here it is, on the same basis as I wrote the others.

I am just wondering if any of these hombres read The Floyd County Hesperian. If they do I may expect to be shot as a spy, or maybe they will tarry me on their payroll as a publicity agent. The latter preferred.

The novelty of this land of niggers and chiggers and Spanish gold diggers has worn off, and it remains hot and hotter. Conditions with us generally speaking are no different from those of four months ago. The U. S. Marines still office the Guardia Nacional, and the military forces of this particular section of the country has been increased somewhat, I understand. The place remains under martial law. The Guardia Nacional has absolute power. They can arrest, try, convict and execute all in the same order, and I think they would consider it all in a day's work in doing such. There is a U. S. Aircraft Squadron at Managua (The Capitol) and planes come over nearly every day on patrol duty.

Meets Brilliant Native

I have made the acquaintance of the right personable Doctor Cervantez. This man is a lawyer by profession, but these people call him "Doctor." He is a native Nicaraguan and was educated in Europe. He speaks excellent English, also German and of course Spanish. This doctor and the Chief Clerk of the Farms Office, an American from New York, and myself went hunting a few days ago, and brought back a deer. It was a very enjoyable hunt. Plenty of mosquitoes, snakes and alligators. We spent the night on the Line (railroad line) at a Mandadors (Overseers) house. I find this "Doctor" to be highly intelligent and learned. He has been places, has read much and talks freely. In speaking of the connection between Nicaragua and the United States, he is not well pleased. He dislikes the fact that the United States has had Marines in his country for the past twenty-two years.

He speaks much of "El Mito de Monroe" ("The Myth of Monroe") and he tells me in all seriousness that it is difficult for him to know whether he is a Nicaraguan citizen or a subject of the United States. He says he would welcome, even under the present conditions, the withdrawal of all military forces of the United States from his native land.

In speaking of the Americans he says we are strongly Puritan and evangelical of our protestantism and wishful of forcing all to conform to certain codes as to drinks, and other personal matters; that we look back on our marvelous development from a handful of settlers to a nation of a 120,000,000 people, and that we are very conscious of our power. Our ideals, our ways of life, and standards seem so utterly right and natural to us that we feel not only that they should be universal, but that if those of another nation do not conform to them it must be due to some inherent defect in its people. Such is our quite unconscious background for judging others.

This Doc is a very proud person, and the most polite I have ever met, I think. He continues that the ordinary citizen of the United States is likely to lump together all Latin Americans from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn, and to think of them as half-breeds, shiftless, inefficient, incapable of self government always on the verge of revolution, apt to go Nationally Bankrupt at any time; uncultured, superstitious; an inferior race whose nations owing to the Monroe Doctrine are somewhat vaguely our wards to be protected from European aggression, but never to interfere with anything we wish ourselves, (such as the Panama Canal); subject to our police power whenever their internal disturbances may threaten a banker's loan or a concessionaire's investment; to be treated more or less like children, good humoredly as a rule, but sternly when we deem it needful.

He points out that Latin America has produced some great men. That a Spaniard sits in high office in the world court, and that the average American citizen has never heard of so great a man as Ruben Dario, the Nicaraguan Poet. He mentions the outstanding characters of Mexico and other southern countries with pride. He refers to Columbus, and makes mention of the fact that he was a Spaniard.

He is truly an interesting fellow. He tells me that some few years ago when Christopher (Columbus) came to this country, he was sailing off the coast of what is now Honduras, where he encountered a terrific storm, and was exceedingly fortunate that his boat did not "take the count;" that Columbus named the place "Honduras" owing to the tight place he was in during the storm off its coast; that finally he reached the Northern Coast of Nicaragua and the wind subsided. He named the first port "Cabo Gracias" to express his thanks.

It is surprising that this Spaniard knows more about the history of the United States than the ordinary American citizen. But this man is the exception. If all the people of Central America were as intelligent as he, the U. S. Marines would not be here. However, I think there is some logic in all he had to say. I can appreciate, to some extent, his point of view.

I noticed a paper which was published in Bluefields, Nicaragua. An item about Al Capone, one about the fiscal affairs of Chicago, and 400 murders a year in New York was the sum and substance of all news from the United States. I believe it is only the exceptional or sensational news from this country or any Latin American country that ever reaches the American public. Certainly it is news of a default in government bonds, or a revolution. And the people of each country are forced to make a national character of each other based on such items.

Doctor Cervantez tells me that it will take more than a good will tour made by our President-elect, made on a battleship, ever to obliterate the feeling of disdain and distrust as it exists today between North and Latin American.

The rainy season is about over. It only rains two or three times a day now. It generally rains about the time to go to the mess hall. The records show that 11.87 inches of rain fell during September as compared with 26.63 inches in August.

The men employed in this office are of various nationalities—German Danish, Nicaraguan, Panamanian, Chilean, British, Mexican, and American. The clerks and bookkeepers may be heard checking figures in a Spanish or German.

It is a standing order of the Guardia Nacional that no American is permitted off the company property after seven p. m. I was not informed of this order and a few days ago the secretary to the manager, a young fellow from Mississippi and myself were coming out of Bilway a little after dark. A Guardia and Lt. Stevenson of the U. S. Marines stopped us, and proceeded to explain to us during the last bandit raid on this place, the company exhausted its stock of caskets, and that for that reason he wanted us to observe the order of the Guardia Nacional and stay out of Bilway after dark. I assured him and I think convinced him that it wouldn't happen again.

The Gunboat, the U. S. S. Sacramento which has been standing by in the harbor, has "taken the air," and has gone to relieve the storm sufferers of Belize Honduras. It left here about a month ago with food and medical supplies. Somehow I felt better when that boat lay at anchor in the harbor. It gives us a feeling of confidence to see the American flag on a man of war standing by for our protection.

Nearly every Sunday a few more of the Americans go back to the States. This company has discontinued lumber operations entirely; has laid off men and slashed salaries something terrible. All the employees who are not working under contract have taken two 20 percent cuts in salary. Over two thousand men have been taken off the payroll in the past three months. The bigger portion of those thrown out of employment were native laborers, and I am just wondering what those "spicks" will do when they start getting hungry.

This company has recently purchased property in Jamaica, also in Mexico, and I understand that much of the railroad equipment of this division is to be transferred to those new divisions in the immediate future. It is rumored that all employees working under contract, and whose time has not expired when their services here are no longer required, will be transferred to one of those countries. I hope it is my luck to be transferred to Jamaica. I would like to see as much of these countries as possible while I have the opportunity.

Nicaragua, I think, produces the world's largest mesquites. They are the most persistent "skeeters" I have ever seen, and they are not proud. They get just as much kick, it seems, out of biting an American as a Spaniard. Some of these "skeeters" are very large—about the size of a dominecker rooster, I think.

The accounting department rigged up a ball team, and last Sunday we played the natives from Bilway. I pitched and twirled a pretty wicked ball I thought, but we were badly defeated. I guess my support was not so good. The natives get much pleasure out of a ball game, and are delighted when they beat us. They tell us that the Americans are supposed to be the world's best ball players, but they are better, they guess.

There are no schools in Puerto Cabezas. There is a Catholic school in Bluefields, a public school in Managua, I understand. The government once maintained a public school here, I have heard, but I guess they had a short cotton crop, for they run out of money and discontinued it. Any number of these people cannot read or write and a school would be a great asset to this community.

It is not uncommon to see men and women walking on the streets barefooted. The people don't seem to care for anything. They are terribly lazy and indolent, and would do nothing at all if their poverty would allow them to get by with such. A few of the better class of Spaniards work, but none of them have an excess of energy I notice.

It is not considered dangerous here now. However, I believe that in case of a bandit raid most of the natives would turn bandits also. These people are treacherous, and know just one thing for sure, and that is that they don't like the "gringo." I contracted with this company to work a year for them. I will have fulfilled my contract and be back in the United States by May, 1932. Rest assured that I intend to stay in those States United from now on, and if ever I leave them again I will have a return trip ticket. It really isn't so bad here as one would imagine, but the United States is certainly one grand place in which to live.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS
By James W. Brooks

THE high tide of friendship between England and the Colonies was reached in 1763. In this quiet simple court house, in Hanover, Virginia, located a few miles east of Ashland, the latter on U.S. Route 1, was expressed the first definite opposition to the King. Patrick Henry made his first great speech in this case known as the "Parsons Cause."

IN St. John's Church at Richmond, Virginia Patrick Henry made his impassioned plea for "Liberty or Death!" Washington heard that speech. It is not on record that he made comment, but it created a deep impression as did Henry's speech in the Parsons Cause, at Hanover, for these addresses involved fundamental principles that presaged trouble in the future.

"Darling, did you see my belt around the house?"
"No, no, dear, did you put it around the house?"

A mother took her child to a photographer. The child was restless and fidgety. The mother could not keep her quiet. It became disgusting. All three were worn out. Finally the photographer asked the mother if she would leave the room as he thought he could keep the child quiet; for he had a way of his own with children. The mother left, the room was quiet. In a few minutes the pictures were successfully taken, and the child came out smiling.

"On the way home the mother said:
"And what did the lovely photographer say to mother's darling child to make her so quiet?"
"He thed," replied the little girl solemnly; "He thed; 'you little brat, if you don't that your mouth and behave yourself, I'll knock your block off. So I sit thill'."

"Whose funeral?" he asked.
"Chon Schmidt's" exclaimed the man.
"You don't mean the say John Smith's dead?"
"Well," said Goldstein, "vot you think they doing mit him, practicing?"

"Did you give the penny to the monkey, dear?"
"Yes, mamma."
"And what did the monkey do with it darling?"
"He gave it to his father who played the organ."

Little daughter—"Why is father singing so much tonight?"
Mother—"He is trying to sing the baby to sleep, dearie."
L. D.—"Well, if I was baby I'd

J. R.—"Professor, I can't go to class today."
Mrs. Smith—"Why?"
J. R.—"I don't feel well."
Mrs. Smith—"Where don't you feel well?"
J. R.—"In class."

J. R. and Blanche were eating at the cafeteria, and she noticed he took a quarter out of one pocket and put it in the other.
"What's the idea?" Blanche asked.
"I'm tipping the waiter," he replied.

Father—My dear, if you want good husband marry Mr. East. He really loves you.
Louise—"How do you know that, dad?"
Father Conner—"Because I've been borrowing money off him for six months, and still he keeps coming."

"Have you some of that gasoline that stops knocking?"

Football News

Whirlwinds Defeat Owls 19-6
Last Friday on the football field south of high school, the Whirlwinds have neither been tied nor beaten on the new field and it looks as though they are going to hold this record for quite a while.

The Whirlwinds played real football last Friday; they showed the pep that the sideline likes to see as they were never loafing but always on their toes.

For the first time this year Coach Barksdale used all of his first team and all of his utility men. In the last quarter the entire second team was put into the game and they did excellent work while they were in the game.

The Whirlwinds have been going through a hard workout this week preparing for the tilt with Canyon October 30. The game is to be played at Canyon and many football fans are expected to be seen there from Floydada.

Pep Meeting

Thursday afternoon a pep meeting was called and the girls met in Mrs. Teague's room. Several girls were taken in as new members. Folia Randerson, Chrystine Swepston, Mozelle Fields, Audrey McClain, Esther Collins, Bonita Newsome, Joyce Grigsby and Bennie Lester. After they were voted on we elected a new pep leader, Blanche Hilton was elected to help Genell and Alice Mae.

Club Meeting

The F Club and football boys met Friday to decide on what kind of party they were going to have for their girl friends. They decided on a weenie roast down in the canyon. After all the details of the party were planned the meeting was adjourned.

The Junior Class Report

The Junior class met October 22, 1931, in Mr. Barksdale's room. The purpose of the class meeting was to decide upon whether or not the Junior class would get pins. A large majority of the class wished to get pins, therefore it was decided that the Juniors would have class pins this year.

The pins are very beautifully decorated. The pin and guard are made of gold. On the pin the word Floydada is written in gold metal and is set out from the black onyx setting. The pins are very moderately priced, and it is believed that nearly every Junior will be wearing one before long.

A motto was also selected by the class, "Seize the opportunity."

A social committee consisting of Virgil Crawford, Waldo Houghton, Clara Bell Golightly, Wanda Teeple and Mary Louise Thurmon was appointed by the president, Malcolm Bridges. The purpose of this committee is to plan the socials for the junior class this year.

Senior Class Meeting

The senior class met Wednesday in the upper study-hall activities period. The president told the class that Friday would be the last day on which to get the measurements for their rings. He urged the class members to attend to theirs as soon as possible. The magazine contest had closed and our president stated that the Red Feather side had won. The two sides together cleared $11.25. The Green Feather side was asked to meet and make definite plans about giving the Red's a party. The committee appointed to investigate the price of publishing a year book had no definite statement to make but a letter was read to the class that had been received from Cavanaugh Printing Company which stated some of their prices. The class has not yet decided which project they shall have.

NEW BUDGET LAW

Somewhat has been said in the past few weeks in this newspaper and others in Texas about the new budget law passed by the Forty-Second Legislature, and it is encouraging to note that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and other organizations have taken upon themselves the study of the possibilities of this new law, looking toward vitalizing the interest of the average taxpayer in the analysis and reduction of his local governmental expenses.

(1) To prepare a budget at the beginning of each fiscal year on proposed expenditures for the coming year;

(2) To hold public hearings on this budget before the same is adopted;

(3) To use the budget as adopted as the basis of spending taxpayers' money and of operating the governments of which they are the respective heads.

This law, properly carried out, will be blessing to the public officials, because the taxpayers should after its adoption into practice, better understand the problems of the public officials.

On the other hand, the law is a constructive step for the benefit of the taxpayers. It will give the taxpayer the opportunity, in a legal and business-like way, to have something to say about the money before it is spent rather than after it is spent. It means the tax problem can be attacked at its source—in other words, before the expenditures are made. It means that public financial affairs are to be planned ahead on a definite basis.

The budget plan is not necessarily political. In fact, it should be made non-political. It is not a matter of the personality of things, as pointed out by Houston Harte, president of West Texas Chamber of Commerce, but of the cost of things.

The plan will be a great thing for the state as a whole and for communities, school districts, cities and towns, if it is not permitted to run off at a tangent.

OVERLOOKED A 'SHALL'

"The legislature shall, at its first session after the publication of each United States decennial census, apportion the state into senatorial and representative districts."

This is a mandatory provision of the state constitution which has been observed in the past ten or twenty years by the Texas legislature by not doing anything at all. A re-apportionment on the 1920 census was made about 1928, as we recall it, after much bitter fighting. The re-apportionment which the constitution directed to be made by the legislature now adjourned was not done and probably will not be for awhile. In a way, this doesn't hurt a great deal, but it does cheat some people out of their proper proportion of representation in the legislature and in congress and is one of the reasons why people have no more respect for laws put into effect. They see people in official capacity directed by the law and constitution to do certain things, who do not do them at all, but run off at a tangent after pet measures and ideas of their own. Why should the citizen obey a law he doesn't like when the lawmaker himself doesn't take the trouble to follow the mandate of the constitution which doesn't suit his fancy? Somebody once said, "What is the constitution between friends." Doubtless he was a member of the Texas state legislature.

BUTTER FAT PRICES

The encouraging uprise in the price of butterfat came about, we are told, through the fact that the low prices prevalent for so many months caused a huge surplus of butter to be used up, and also got a lot of oleo addicts back on butter once more. When butterfat went so high a year or two ago, a lot of folks couldn't eat it at the price and switched to substitutes of one kind and another, principally oleo. Result butter demand went down and the man who had cream to sell had a bad market for it.

Now, with the market turned back in the other direction, it should not be allowed to get so high it will cut off a lot of customers again. There can be too much of a good thing, even in prices for farm products. It is a much more comfortable feeling to see cream at the country stations under thirty cents than above as they had started, apparently a week or two ago. This may not sound good to some people, but every pound of butterfat sold in Floyd County must be bought by somebody somewhere at some price. If the price gets too high for the customers' pocketbooks they'll do without and eat substitutes. There is not any surplus of butter to amount to anything now and it will be fine to keep things on about an even keel for awhile.

WHEAT STILL DRAGS

While there has been a marked improvement in the wheat situation in the past thirty days and the market has stood up well under an increased price, with indications that surpluses expected to hit the market from Russia with the first upturn did not develop in such large quantities, at the same time the trade thinks there is plenty of wheat as yet and even a ten or twenty per cent reduction in wheat acreage is not going to make the prices skyrocket temporarily.

If the arrows of trade winds point correctly, there may be anticipated some continued improvement in wheat markets with occasional setbacks to make it interesting, but there is no reason to believe that the wheat raiser is going to get a big enough price to get rich during the next twelve months, barring a world upheaval of some kind.

TURKEY SURPLUS GONE

While there is no reason to believe that turkey raisers may anticipate any such market as prevailed three or four years ago for turkeys, there are certain pleasing signs of the times to indicate that a nice market is in store for turkey raisers, one that will show a profit, at least on the better grades of turkeys. Among these signs is the importation of turkeys and the fact that the cold storage supply is small and the best trade is already in the market for fresh stocks at high prices. A strong pre-holiday and early holiday demand can be depended upon, market reports indicate.

Turkeys of this area are going to be small until after the turkeys have had a few cool to cold nights to make them fatten up and quit putting out pin feathers. For this reason growers of turkeys will find it profitable to watch their turkeys and not get them on the market underweight. Considerable dock is likely to be made on anything that is not Number One. The good old days when "turkeys were turkeys" are over, and growers are urged to prepare their birds for the market immediately. The market in the cities demands fleshed birds and the better the bird the more it sells for per pound.

Right now range turkeys are almost sure not to show any flesh and it might pay to catch a few of them, weigh them, examine their breasts and legs for flesh and see how near they come to filling demands of the trade. The gangly, lean birds will need feed to fill out the frame.

Experience with turkey producing, cream selling and things of that kind are bringing farmers to the realization that to give the customer what he wants at a good price is more profitable than taking stuff to market in helter-skelter fashion. The customer knows what he wants and he is not going to pay anybody a profit for something he doesn't like so well. That applies in selling turkeys as much as it does in selling groceries or dry goods.

FLOYD COUNTY 14 YEARS AGO

News items taken from files of the Floyd County Hesperian published in Floydada fourteen years ago.

ISSUE OF NOVEMBER 1, 1917

B. P. Woody, prominent business man of Floydada and leading member in the firm of Woody Drug Company, of this city was married Tuesday, October 23rd, in Graham, Texas. His bride was formerly Miss Lelia Craig.

First dirt was broken Tuesday for the new Duncan office building on the corner of Wall and California streets, contract for which was let Monday to Sam Dane of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crabtree held a family reunion at their home three miles north of Floydada Sunday, October 21.

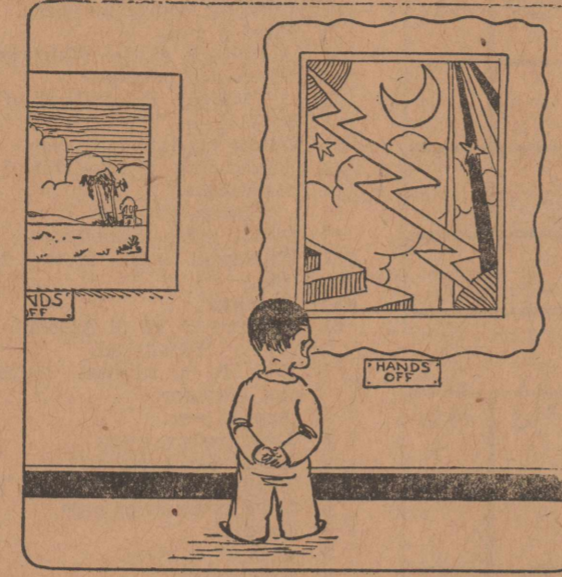

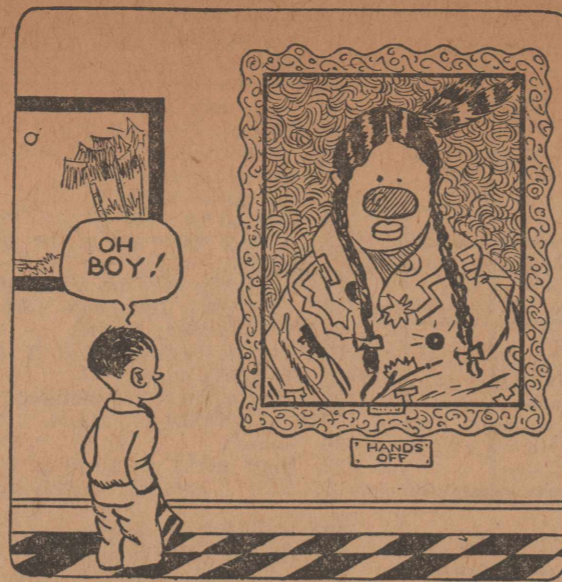

A telegram from W. L. Boerner to local officials of the Red Cross Tuesday afternoon late stated that the bale of cotton raised at Lakeview and donated to the Red Cross by patriotic citizens of that community and this, had sold on the Dallas Cotton Exchange that day for $500. The bale had been shipped to the Floyd County booth at the State Fair grounds where it was on exhibition during the last days of the fair.

On Wednesday night of last week Floyd County had bought approximately $26,000 worth Liberty Bonds of the second issue of 1917. On Saturday night at eight o'clock the county's apportionment—$83,000—had been oversubscribed by $350.

E. P. Thompson, county superintendent, this week received a warrant for the purchase of the $1,800 worth of bonds voted this summer for school building purposes by Allmon District No. 23. This is the second bond issue floated by that district, their first issue having already been spent for a school house which will be enlarged by the present issue.

Farm wages on October 1 were lowest since 1916, and only about 13 per cent higher than pre-war wages for October 1.

The boys down under the hill registered at 13-0 walloping over the champions for the past two years and that's something. I'm just mentioning this so us guys can keep our eyes open and not let Old Man Over-Confidence catch us napping.

Those Texas Longhorns and the S. M. U. Mustangs will tangle up Saturday in a game that will decide the champion of the Southwest Conference very likely. The Ponies should win by at least two touchdowns. And more than likely they will capture the flag this year. Even if it does make me blue under the gills to think about such.

PLACE OF ATHLETICS

Memphis Democrat: Classroom teachers, as well as school executives and athletic coaches, will be given an opportunity to define the place and part that athletics should have in our public high schools at the annual convention of the Texas State Teachers' Association to be held at Amarillo beginning on Thanksgiving Day. Resolutions dealing with high school athletics were recently approved by the State Executive Committee at a meeting held in Fort Worth and will be offered for adoption at the Amarillo convention.

Resolutions commend the work of the University Interscholastic League and approve athletic contests "as having wholesome educational values when properly conducted by school authorities." Certain practices are condemned "as being contrary to the purposes for which our public free schools are maintained, and others as violative of high ethical ideals and correct moral standards."

Among practices condemned are the dismissal of schools for athletic games, charging of excessive fees by football officials, proselyting and subsidizing of high school players, and wilful failure of school work by athletes in order to prolong athletic participations.

The resolutions recommend that local school boards limit the time to be devoted to athletics and where practicable that games be played on Saturday and holidays. The Interscholastic League is urged to adopt the "eight semester rule," which would bar contestants after four years of high school attendance, and the "one year transfer rule," which would bar athletes for one year after changing from one school to another.

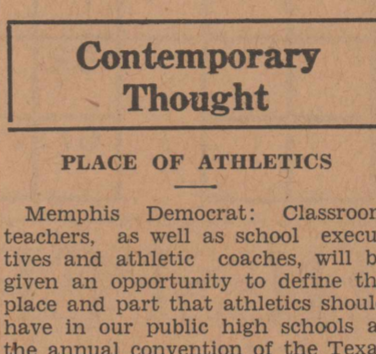

THE UTILITIES QUESTION

Canyon News: The News devoted considerable space last week to the discussion of utilities rates and many subscribers expressed appreciation of the information given. While other newspapers in this section have been jumping on the utilities and the rates charged the News has consistently refrained from any such action. We feel no more competent to judge what are fair and unfair utilities rates than we are what an automobile manufacturer or a barber, or a grocer or a dry goodsman should charge for their wares.

The News has felt all the while that under present conditions people are unjustly criticizing rates, without knowing what would be a just and adequate rate. There are plenty of ways to ascertain what rates are just and which are unjust without buying the experience in a long drawn out and expensive lawsuit. For instance, we can see if there is any one who will build us a gas line from the gas fields and charge us a less rate for gas than we are now paying. If such a line can be secured, then our present rates are too high. If independent telephone companies, of which there are several over the state, are giving good service at a lower rate than we are giving, then our phone rates are too high. If our light and power rates are out of line with the rates of other towns, many of which own their own plants, then we can talk to the power people. We know that our water rates are higher than some towns, and not so high as in other towns. Every city commission has been confronted with the problem of water rates, and each one has decided that it was better to keep the water rate high than to add to the tax rate and collect a whiskey, quick fire, jackers and gambols. And nobody should be alarmed about it.

OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

Los Angeles Times: This period through which the world is struggling is more than an economic crisis. It involves more than a study of strategic plans to ambuscade the dollars which fled. Humanity itself is on trial. The civilization which we have evolved is undergoing the supreme test. If there is such a thing as brotherhood among men, now is the time to show it.

Drunk with wealth, we have strayed a long way from the fundamental and eternal truth. We have been living in a house stuck upon golden stilts. And it has crashed. In our agony and suffering we have discovered that Jesus Christ meant what he said. The Golden Rule was not a pleasant homily intended for reward-of-merit cards with silk fringe on the edges and diamond dust shining on the snow scenes. It was a simple statement of the eternal law, the same law that keeps the stars in the skies and the world turning on its axis.

We speak of breaking the law and commandments. You can break them; but they break you. "Love one another" was more than an admonition to light the path of virtue. It was the statement of an eternal principle upon which all law, all philosophy, all business ethics, all civilization rests. Like all the doctrines left by the Christ this was the sublimity of common sense—the finality of practicality—the only sure foundation upon which civilization can rest.

During these money-glutted years we have tried each to go our own way alone. Years of greed and money lust have ended with this terrible lesson: That wealth evaporates and leaves men stark and with naked hearts. It is for us to see that this terrible rebuke has not been in vain. For us to see that we rebuild the fallen structure on the rock of brotherhood.

This winter will be a period that calls for all men to have fortitude, strength and sympathy. It is for once, clear to the dullest mind that we can only help ourselves by helping others.

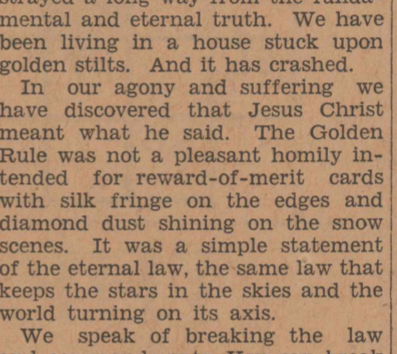

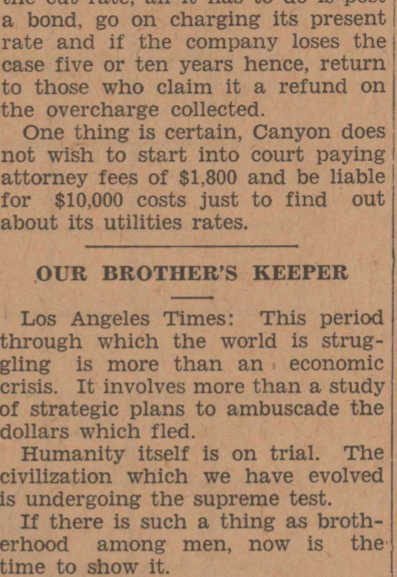

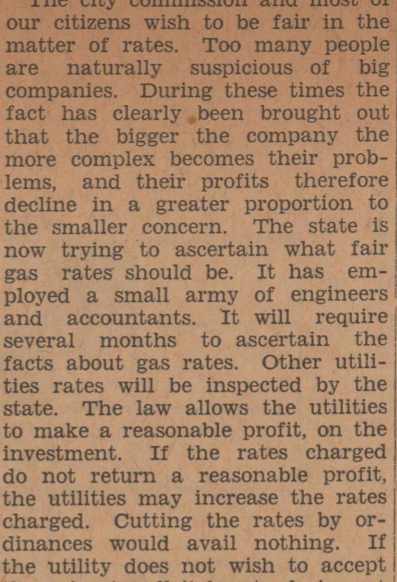

Out of this period of re-adjustment we can regain our souls. It can be a better world because of this period of hunger and sorrow; a stronger America and a sounder civilization if it brings to us a realization we are given the privilege of being our brother's keeper.

The remedy for our financial crisis lies not in laws, federal commissions, in panacea or financial errors. The sound and practical answer was told two thousand years ago in a sermon spoken on a mountain in Palestine.

RASKOB TIGHTENS HIS GRIP
Lubbock Avalanche: John J. Raskob, virtual dictator of the Democratic party in the northeast, has taken another, firmer grip upon the political organization. Mr. Raskob, who battered his way from a book-keeper's desk to a position as one of the nation's most successful financiers, has just made another $100,000 "gift" to Democracy, and as things stand now has a $295,250 "mortgage" on the party, not including the latest $100,000 donation.

NOBODY ALARMED
Ferguson Forum: An Austin report says "135 people killed in Texas during the first 30 days of the cotton moving season by cotton trucks on state highways." This is as many or more than killed in all Texas, by all the railroads, bootleg

CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Dick O'Brien, Pastor
We are facing the November program with optimistic spirits in our church. October has been a banner month for attendance in the prayer-meeting, and all departments of the church have been well supported. The average attendance in the prayer meeting for October has been a little above 50. We are striving for an average of 75 for November.

We had fine attendance in all services last Sunday. There were 356 present in Sunday school and 183 in the B. T. S. Both preaching services were well attended. It was our pleasure to have a number of the Methodist folks with us in both services. We regret that brother Young is sick and hope he will soon be able to be in his pulpit again. But when, for any reason, any of the churches do not have their regular services we extend a welcome to the members to worship with us. We expect to have the regular schedule at the Baptist church next Sunday morning and the annual "old fashioned services" in the evening. We are asking brother G. I. Brittain to preach the sermon. We have not heard from him yet, but hope he can be with us.

METHODIST CHURCH

S. H. Young, Pastor
Our Sunday School Superintendent is always in the church building on Sunday mornings several minutes before the opening hour to see that everything is in readiness for the school to do its most profitable work and to greet the first arrivals. May we show him our appreciation by being on time next Sunday?

New heating stoves have been placed in the auditorium to insure comfortable temperature during winter months at less expense of operation. The pastor is glad to be able to be in his place next Sunday after an absence caused by illness. He is grateful for the many fine courtesies shown him while confined to his room.

A little less than $200.00 has been paid on the conference collections. When all have reported we hope to have at least $500.00 for these causes, which will be 50 per cent of our quota. Let us one and all pull for this goal.

Come to Sunday school and stay for church.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE LESSON

International Sunday School lesson for Sunday, November 1, 1931. World's Temperance Lesson.
Text: Galatians 5:13-26 and Romans 13:1-14.
Golden text:—Be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the spirit, Ephesians 5:18.
Of the text here printed is Gal. 5:13-26.

13 For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.

14 For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

15 But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another.

16 This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

17 For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

18 But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

19 Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these: Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies,

21 Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

22 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23 Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

24 And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts.

25 If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

26 Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

Time.—The Epistle to the Galatians was written in A. D. 57.

Place.—It was written from Corinth, where Paul spent three months when on his third missionary journey.

Introduction
The churches of Galatia, which was one of the central provinces of Asia Minor, afforded Paul a splendid occasion to discuss the question of temperance. These churches, probably founded by the apostle on his first missionary journey, started out well; but ere long Judaizing teachers came in among them teaching that they could not be real Christians without observing the ceremonial law as given by Moses; and had preached this doctrine not without a considerable degree of success. Many of these new converts were much disturbed over the question of their new found liberty.

In this lesson Paul urges them to guard against an extravagant use of the freedom they had found in the gospel he preached unto them. Personal liberty always has its bounds. So long as there are individuals who are not guided by the perfect law of love, just so long will it be necessary to have laws which say, "Thou shalt not." Under such conditions prohibitions as well as freedom must be emphasized.

The Lesson Comment
The book of Galatians was written by Paul to the church of Galatia near the close of the year 57, from Corinth, where Paul spent three months during his third missionary journey. News had reached the evangelist that Judaizing teachers had come to Galatia and were talking against Paul and turning the people astray.

To counteract this evil, Paul wrote a fiery, tumultuous letter to them, the fifth chapter of which we study today. But we do hope you will be interested enough to read the entire book, keeping the above facts in mind, and also the fact that this is World's Temperance Sunday, and that we are expected to make a temperance application to the lesson.

No matter how fiery Paul grew in language, we must remember that underneath was a great sacrificial love, and that no one save Jesus loved people more than Paul, and no one taught more definitely that Christians should love—not self, but the good of others.

We find this doctrine of unselfish consideration of others in the very first verse of our lesson, where Paul warns Christians against using their liberty in a way that may harm others. The trouble is, people so often confuse the words "liberty" and "license." Some one reminds us that those who cry out against the prohibition law, claiming this law robs them of liberty, really mean that it robs them of license. The prohibition law does not rob us of any more liberty than any other law, and is as strictly kept as any other law. People drive cars down my street, and yours, every day and every night, breaking every speed law that ever was made. Men carry concealed weapons and shoot down their fellowmen and themselves, in spite of all law against it.

We lay up our treasure and thieves break through and steal in spite of the law against theft. Yet, no one is crying out for repeal of these laws; no one wants the narcotic law repealed except the dope user or the dope seller. Each of these laws was made for the good and the protection of our fellowmen, and down in our hearts, we know this to be true. Then may we not forget that we love our drink, that we love the money brought in by its sale and cry aloud—not for repeal or amendment, but for enforcement. And let us not forget that the law was not made for those who walk by the Spirit (verse 18), they kept all these laws before they were made, but the law was made for those who walk after the flesh to fulfill the desires of the flesh.

Read on and see what Paul says, and find just where he is placed.

Enter The Turkey Season....

While turkeys are extremely scarce in the Plains country this year, there is a normal, or perhaps better than normal, crop generally throughout Texas. There is an abundance of feed in all sections. Due, however, to the tardiness of cold weather, turkeys are no better finished than usual for the Thanksgiving season.

We urge farmers to hold all light turkeys, as well as all turkeys of proper weight but poor flesh, off the market until the latter part of the Christmas season so as to hold up quality as well as price to the greatest possible extent.

Turkeys will be bought on a weight grade of 14 lbs. and up for No. 1 Young Toms, and 9 lbs. and up for No. 1 Hen Turkeys. Old Toms and Old Hens should be marketed for Thanksgiving, giving room and feed for young turkeys to finish.

We not only would appreciate an opportunity to buy your turkeys, poultry, other produce, and cream, but would be more than glad to extend any service and co-operation that we can give for the betterment and upbuilding of the industry in this territory.

 ney, Mrs. A. J. Folley, city, Mrs. W. S. Poole, Antelope, and Mrs. Geo. Stiles, Campbell, was appointed by the president to select candidates for election at the meeting here in April at which time officers for the ensuing year will be named.

 getting all valuations on a level, one with the other, and also the fact that their valuations would necessarily have to be on a basis of January 1 values as near as this could be determined. O. W. Kirk, of the board, said that he did not believe that forced sale prices should be taken as a basis from which to work. The equalizers finally set their values on a basis lower than was declared by W. A. Gates as a satisfactory one for school taxing purposes.

Appraisal Made
 To determine values as between different tracts of land, members of the equalization board used figures prepared by C. C. Goen and W. T. Stiles this summer, who made an inspection of every tract of land in the district and presented plats and figures at the instance of the school board. They cut the district into four zones and one sub-zone for the purpose of valuation and took into consideration rough lands on each tract. Their work appeared to be exhaustively done and forms the basis for what appears to be the most nearly exactly equitable rendition sheets yet devised by the school board.

Basis for the school taxation in the different zones was finally determined as follows: Zone 1, $33.23 for tillable land; Zone 2, $30; Zone 3, $28.34; Zone 4, $26.67; sub-zone of Zone 4, $23.34; lake land and round land $10 per acre. In addition to their work of equalization on farm lands and new valuations in that portion of the district, the board also traveled every street in the city and made their equalizations of property in every block on their judgement of the value of the respective properties by actual inspection. It was stated. This work was done when they first sat in session two weeks ago.

Division of the tax load as between "city" and "country" property, last year's basis of renditions showed that the former carried approximately seven-tenths of the load and the latter three-tenths, or 33.

500,000 as against $1,500,000 in round numbers. Farm land valuations, getting the biggest proportion of the cut this year will have a total of approximately $900,000 while "city" valuations will carry the remaining $2,600,000.

The school board, which for more than a year has been studying its budget for possible chances of reducing the bill for operation of the school, is still continuing the search for ways and means of cutting their bills. About $10,000 had been eliminated from the budget before the beginning of the school year. Further efforts at reduction are being made, it was stated by J. C. Wester, chairman of the board, who pointed out, however, that the board does have some fixed expense items set by vote of the people of the district, which must be met squarely. The board also has the problem of meeting its contracts with the district's teachers and means of financing the school until tax payments begin to come in freely is being given intensive study by the board. Floydada Independent School District was the first in this area to announce a reduced scale of salaries for its teaching forces.

"During the past several months we have scaled down the expenses of the school fast and have reached the point where we can operate the school successfully on the basis of the new valuations put into effect, if the people of the district will come to the aid of their schools, meet us half-way, and pay their tax bills," Mr. Wester said.

Members of the board feel "hurt" over the attitude taken by many taxpayers, which, in effect, put board members in the position of attempting to "rob" the people regardless of the conditions. As a matter of fact board members have been closer in touch with actual business conditions than a large per cent of their critics and began trimming their sails, in the face of criticism, a year or more ago.

Faith Is Necessary Element In Business Now, Says Snodgrass

Glad Snodgrass, local business man, in an address last week before the Floydada Rotary Club on the subject of "The Community's Greatest Need from a business standpoint" gave a concise treatise on present conditions and their cure. Faith, quality and salesmanship were the main points stressed in his address, which was as follows: "Faith," Webster defines as belief, trust in the honesty and truth of another—the ascent of the mind. Since the beginning when Adam and Eve were placed in the garden, the entire back ground of the future of all things and the stability of the world is and had to be based on faith.

The secret of happiness is not in doing what we like but in liking what we do. Faith, the relation of an individual to his community by which he owes obedience and loyalty and in return receives protection. We must have faith in our community, in the politicians, schools, children in fact the universe to carry on. In other words we must back our community by the same faith laid down by the laws of our Master.

To have faith we must insist on Quality. (not quantity). Quality must be injected even by force into everything whether a community, state or government. We need to reduce the politicians big idea as well as the co-operations and bell them down to common sense and from the smallest to the largest.

Life in this age of the world is in terms of achievements—not in terms of privilege—and not in terms of being merely a place to prepare for the next world.

We are placed here to accomplish something, to do our part in the worlds work in the small corner in which we are placed. As to the present situation, there is no question—we all need to be penalized and a lot of us placed back to the ten pard line. Made work to succeed or kick goal. We still have the same material to go with and the game may have just started. We have the men with quality to lead and must select these men.

We are in the midst of plenty—yet broke. There is plenty of money—in fact there is more than there ever was, but where is it? It's in hiding. Its hid. What we need are leaders in our community with quality and back bone also in our United States, leaders that we have faith in; that will take up the work as our pioneers and get back down to earth. So faith in our community, quality in everything and then salesmanship.

Salesmanship is the qualification everyone needs for rounding out a satisfactory life. First we have the faith—then we see quality. When we go in to sell whether it be community or what not, it is our selves we sell first.

No salesman can sell anything he doesn't believe in. We must believe in our community—in our leaders—in our schools—our children and form the habit of living a day at a time, doing the very best we can in that day and not trying to do a whole years work in twenty four hours, for the Bible says, "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Some on has said, "Give me today, This little strip of light, Twixt night and night, Let me keep bright—today, And let no shadow of tomorrow Nor gloom of yesterday—Obscure today; For if tomorrow should be sad, Or never come at all, I've had at least Today."

Mrs. J. B. Bishop and children spent the past week-end visiting in Dimmitt.

Lois Sitton President Public Speaking Club

Miss Lois Sitton of this city was elected president of the Public Speaking Club of Wayland College at Plainview Texas, recently, when the club elected officers for the coming year. The honor of being president of this organization has, in the past, been bestowed on some male member of the student body. However the ability that Miss Sitton showed last year as a public speaker could not go unawarded.

Before going to Wayland College, Lois was active here in the many form of speech making. She always had a prominent part in all the activities of the class in high school. Besides holding the highest office in this club, Lois was elected Editor-in-chief of the Traveler. The book is the annual edition put out by the students of the institution. Holding these two offices of high standing is only a part of the splendid record being made by Miss Sitton at the Baptist college. Her grades in all classes are in the A's. She is a member of the Sigma Iota Chi, nationally known sorority for young women. Last year the organization furnished a lounging room on the second floor for the young women of the college.

The Public Speaking Club entered the state meet at Temple last year for the first time. There were no honors won by its members, but several teachers from some of the universities of Texas were complimentary in their remarks concerning the students efforts. Lois was on the girls debating team.

FLOYDADA DRUG JOINS IN NATION WIDE REXALL SALE

Floydada Drug is cooperating in staging what is acclaimed as the "most widely advertised nation-wide sale, using the largest radio hook-up ever attempted nationally and using advertisements in thousands of newspapers in telling the public of the November Rexall One-Cent Sale. The sale runs the first week in November, beginning Wednesday of next week.

In a personal letter to Lorraine Nelson, manager of the Floydada Drug, Louis K. Liggett, leading national figure in the drug field, had the following to say in regard to the sale:

"I think the biggest merchandising idea has ever been romulgated in America is the fall one cent sale," continued Mr. Liggett, and he gives this bit of history: "I brought this sale to you in the fall of 1914, after war had been declared between the European countries. Everything was at a standstill. Stock markets were closed. The one-cent sale put your business over then and it will do the same thing this fall."

Fewer Turkeys, Later Developing Than 1930

Dealers are expecting the turkey market in this area to open about the first of next week and speculation on the probable opening prices for the fowls is general over the territory. Although the crop is going to be much smaller this year in this county than last the turkey season is going to bring in quite a bit of ready cash if the market is as good as hoped for.

Dealers here yesterday would not venture a guess on the probable opening market. They are hopeful of a good market, however, in view of the fact that surpluses in storage have been reduced, according to reports, and the fact that there is already some demand for good Number One fowls.

Turkey raisers and dealers give their estimates of this year's crop of turkeys in this county at figures ranging from 25 per cent to 40 per cent less than last year's crop. Of this crop, too, it is believed that a considerable lower per cent will be ready for the Thanksgiving market than last year on account of continued warm weather way up in to October. Only the last few nights has the temperature been low enough for the birds to put on flesh. The same is said to be true, generally, over the southwest, and this fact may have something to do with better price offerings a little later. However, this is strictly a matter of conjecture and guess.

The birds are reported to be fine specimens this year with large frames that will take plenty of flesh quickly with cool weather. Turkey raisers have been particular to breed good stock during the past twelve months and the per cent of turkeys marketed that will run number one grade is sure to be high. With low feed prices it is expected none of the birds will go to market as number twos on account of lack of flesh.
