Schools Of County Making Ready For School Meet March 28-29

Showers to Good Rains Recorded Over West Texas Area Last Week

Snow Flurry Tuesday As Temperature Falls

Floyd County Reports Indicate Half to Five Inches Of Moisture.

Advance conditioning of row crop land in Floyd County and a large area of the plains and panhandle country was materially helped by showers to good rains that fell over the section beginning Friday of last week, and which have fallen intermittently since. Reports from over Floyd County give rainfall figures at from one-half inch to five inches.

Heaviest Northeast Although as much as an inch of rain fell in the major portion of the county, reports from some sections indicate the fall was less than that much. In the northeast part of the county was the heaviest fall. In the section of the county under the hill, around Edgin Switch exceedingly heavy rains are reported, some estimates putting the rain at the Panhandle Sand & Gravel Company's pit at five inches.

At South Plains the estimate was on and a half inches to two inches, at Dougherty a half inch, at Lakeview three-quarters, at Harmony a half inch, at Fairview three-quarters, at Muncy two inches or more, at Lockney more than an inch, at Sand Hill probably more than an inch, at Starkey more than an inch, and at Mt. Blanco better than a half inch. All the figures given are looked upon at this office as being conservative.

A large percentage of the land over the county that is to be planted to row crops this year has been prepared already for the planting and the rains in general may be said to have been of the greatest possible benefit to row crop land. Wheat, under the influence of warm days during February, had started growth and the rains are expected to speed this up. In some quarters fear is expressed that the crop may suffer if late freezes occur with warm weather during the remainder of March.

Snow Flurry Tuesday

During the week of the rain period, Tuesday was recorded as the coldest with the temperature falling slightly below the freezing point Tuesday night. A heavy flurry of snow fell for a few minutes Tuesday morning in Floydada and again in the afternoon of the same day, with three or four hours of spitting snow, which melted, however, as it fell.

18th Dist. Legionnaires Headed For Childress

Legionnaires of the Eighteenth Congressional District in great numbers will descend on Childress Saturday and Sunday of this week, when the convention of the district organization will be held. Reports reaching Floydada indicate that practically every post in the district will be represented.

Present indications are that twenty to twenty-five Floydada Legionnaires will attend the meeting, Post Commander Jno. W. Maxwell said yesterday. Of these a number will go Sunday morning on a special train sponsored by Ray Blakemore Post at Plainview. This train leaves South Plains at 7:15 Sunday morning and the round trip fare is $2.85. Returning the train reaches South Plains at 9 p. m. Any who desire, whether Legionnaires or not, may travel on the special Bob Medlen has charge of the ticket sale in Floydada for the special.

A number of those planning to attend Sunday's sessions in Childress will go by auto, Mr. Maxwell said, while some will probably go on Saturday instead.

Stamps Quartette At Auditorium Tonight

The Stamps Quartette, popular roving vocal musicians, who have repeatedly pleased Floyd County audiences with their music, appear tonight at the High School Auditorium in a program that is sponsored by the Floydada Volunteer Fire Department.

"Hear a delightful program and help the fire boys to get a little money in their treasury at the same time" is the word put out by the boys, whose work in preventing the spread of serious fires in the past few months in particular have won them commendation.

Admission charges will be 25 cents and 35 cents.

Caliche Deposit May Prove Of Much Value

Day Farm on Denver Has Deposit That Interests Builders of West Texas.

A deposit of caliche on the farm of M. M. Day southwest of Lockney six or seven miles is beginning to take on increased interest to engineers and builders who are believed to see in it very considerable possibilities as road and street construction material.

Several holes have been dug through the deposit to determine its depth and extent, and the cursory investigations made indicate that it is of very great volume.

Mr. Day has been talking to construction firms about the possibilities of the material on his farm and has had encouraging reports from sources which make him feel very optimistic over the possibilities.

As engineer work more with caliche as base material for street and road construction, it grows in popularity, it is declared. As an instance of this fact, numerous contracts, let in Amarillo during the past few weeks have specified caliche as the base material, with penetrative topping as a cover. In fact, the reports as given by newspapers indicate that caliche type paving is being used more than all other types in that city on contracts let this year to date. The caliche type of paving, besides being long-lived, has the additional advantage of lower costs, it is claimed.

Eliminations In All Divisions Being Made

Next Week End to See Gathering For Scholastic Contests.

Floyd County schools, big and little, have in progress this week tests and try-outs for places on the teams in the various phases of school work in which they will have entries at the county school meet March 28 and 29.

In the three Floydada schools eliminations begun last week followed a season of preparation, and this mid-week the contests among aspirants for places has come to a culmination. At East Ward Wednesday was the day on which the elimination try-outs were held. At Andrews Ward the week has seen try-outs in both athletic and literary events, although some of the school representatives are yet to be chosen in contests today and tomorrow. At high school a large percentage of the representatives have been chosen in all divisions.

Eliminations at the Andrews Ward School were held Wednesday in most of the events for the county meet, and the representative students selected.

In the athletic events, the following boys have won out in the try-outs and will compete in the county meet:

100 yard dash—Clifford Golightly, N. B. Mooney and Elmer Williams.

50 yard dash—Wilson Connelly, Clifford Golightly and Elmer Williams.

440 yard relay—Team composed of Ben Eudy, Clifford Golightly, Elmer Williams and N. E. Mooney. High Jump—Clifford Golightly, Ben Eudy and Wilson Connelly. Broad Jump—Ben Eudy, Wilson Connelly and Newell Parker.

Chinning the bar—Ben Eudy, John Eudy and A. J. Roberts. In the story telling contest, Mary Katherine Daniel won first place, Norma Ginn, second place and Elizabeth Hardgrove, third place. Winner of the first place will represent the school in the county meet.

In the music memory contest, under the direction of Mrs. O. T. Williams, six students were selected and the team of four chosen from this group. They are Virginia Stovall, Ruth Key Green, Doris Clonts, Emma Louise Smith, Christine Wingo and Addie Barker.

Eliminations in the declamation contests are being held at the Andrews Ward School today, and the winners will be announced next week. Mrs. Robert Sone has charge of the declamation contests.

Eliminations

Wednesday was contest day in East Ward School of Floydada, the scholastics of that school, along with all the others in the county, having spent much thought and study the past few weeks in preparation for the annual honor of representation.

'Cent A Pound' Sunday Bargain Flying Offer

Wraske & Wilkinson are making Sunday a bargain day for those who would see the beauties of Floydada and the surrounding country from the air. "A cent a pound" is the way the offer reads, which means that if you weigh 100 pounds you can take an air flight during the afternoon cheaper than you could if you weighed 500 pounds. It is another incentive toward the youthful silhouette or the less rotund bay window. Get a weight check any scale you find down-town and save a hot argument, if you weigh less than you look like you weigh.

The flying field is located in the southwest suburbs of the city on the Ralls Highway.

Marketing Feedstuff on Hoof Puts Profits in Farmers' Pockets, Aids Soil Fertility.

(By J. C. Gilliam, Chairman C. of C. Live Stock Committee)

The reasons for encouraging the raising of more livestock on Floyd County farms are many. Too numerous in fact, to be mentioned in the short space of this article. I will attempt to discuss only a few of them.

The raising of live stock encourages a diversification in crops. The farmer is forced to plant many different kinds of forage, pasture and grain crops, which practice gets him away from the one crop system.

The rotating of crops brought about by the necessity of providing feed for livestock reacts favorably on soil fertility. Grazing pasture crops and stalk fields scatters manure, thereby further enriching the soil.

Marketing feedstuffs in the form of livestock is the most economical way to market your surplus. The steer, pig, sheep, etc., represents a manufacturing plant, where the raw product is concentrated and converted into a finished product. It costs a great deal less to market a finished steer than it does the feed that goes into the making of the steer, and also keeps the profits of the middle-man in the farmers' pockets.

Another advantage stock farming has over the one crop system is that it provides for year-round income. Instead of one money crop per year, there will always be something to turn into ready cash.

The Chinese are at present starving by millions, in a country that is mainly agricultural. Is this because the Chinese do not employ efficient methods of production? On the contrary, the Chinese are highly efficient producers.

Renick W. Dunlap, U. S. Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, "because they have no livestock. They lack that great reserve of food represented by the vast herds and flocks of America. In a land dependent entirely upon its plant crops for food, for one crop failure is likely to mean famine. Our livestock industries represent a great reserve of foodstuffs. Something which we may draw upon in time of need, and build up in time of surplus. A large corn crop is carried along a year or so in the form of hogs and cattle."

Any section that does not incorporate the raising of live stock as an essential part of their general farming program, will be subject to famine conditions. In these sections, according to government statistics, the farmers have the hardest time to get along.

Early Day Settler Of County Died Monday

Mrs. J. J. Day Succumbs at Age of 69, Following Illness of More Than a Year.

Mrs. J. J. Day, pioneer resident of Floyd County, died Monday evening of this week at the age of 69, following an illness of more than a year, and the remains were laid to rest Tuesday afternoon in Floydada Cemetery following funeral services held from the Wall Street Church of Christ. Elder Alvah Johnson preached the funeral and a brief tribute was paid her, also, by Elder C. W. Smith of Sand Hill, a friend of the family for forty years.

The end came for Mrs. Day following a paralytic stroke last mid-week, from which she never rallied. All of the children of the family were here for the funeral except Mrs. Weaver Howard, of Pueblo, Colorado, who had sickness in her own family. The children are W. M. Day of Ralls, Mrs. C. S. Jones of Hereford, Mrs. O. E. Murry of Floydada, Mrs. Weaver Howard, Pueblo, Colorado, Joe M. Day of Floydada and Chester Day of Houston. The latter reached home last week-end.

A native of Missouri, Mrs. Day moved with her parents to Texas in an early day, and was married to J. J. Day in Mason County in 1886. The following year they moved to Floyd County, settling where Starkey community now is and making her home until a few years ago when they moved to Floydada. Starkey was at one time a post office, named for Mrs. Day's mother, who was postmistress. Only a very few families were residents of this section when the young couple reached the county to make their home and rear their family.

C. Surginer, W. B. Clark, H. R. Stanley, J. B. Jenkins, Ed Kelley and R. E. Fry, friends of the family of long standing, were pallbearers at the funeral and interment, made in Floydada Cemetery.

Out-of-Town Relatives

Out-of-town relatives who were here during Mrs. Day's illness were a sister, Mrs. Emma Davis and son, of Cherokee, Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jones of Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Day and family of Ralls, and M. M. Day, of Lockney, brother of the surviving husband.

Besides the surviving husband and children, the deceased has three sisters and one brother surviving. The sisters are Mrs. Bell Keith of Blair, Oklahoma, Mrs. Emma Davis of Cherokee, Oklahoma, Mrs. Mollie Beals, of Portland, Oregon; the brother is C. A. Starkey of Colorado.

Flower girls at the funeral were Latana Hale, Bernice Bishop, Blanche Hilton, Lila Mae Finley, Artie Mitchell, Ina Rae Cummings, Oleta Jackson, Willie Mae Cummings, Nell Sanders.

Palace To Show "Gold Diggers Of Broadway"

The route to the "tired" business man's bank-roll is an open road to the "frail" who prospects for "yellow dust" on glittering "Main Street," according to the logic portrayed in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," a one hundred per cent technical, talking, singing and dancing picture appearing at the Palace Theatre in this city on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of next week.

The picturization of "Gold Diggers of Broadway" portrays everything from glass beads to ermine wraps that is reaped in the ruthless harvest by the girl who lives by her wits and wiles along "The Great White Way." It pictures in vivid hues the swirl and gaiety, songs and dances, hates and loves of mad youth and foolish old age at reckless play.

Nick Lucas, famous Brunswick recording artists, is included in the cast. Other well-known screen and stage stars featured in "Gold Diggers of Broadway" are Winnie Lightner, Conway Tearle, Nancy Welford, Ann Pennington and Lilian Tashman. A chorus of one hundred dazzling beauties is also included in this beautiful all-color production.

RELATIVE OF MRS. JENKINS DIES IN PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Mrs. J. B. Jenkins spent last week-end in Lubbock with an aunt, Mrs. E. F. Cleveland, following the death at Phoenix, Arizona, of a daughter of Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Will Ramsell, aged 34, on Friday. Funeral for the daughter was held at Phoenix Monday.

Mrs. Cleveland was in ill health and unable to attend the funeral.

State Demonstration Agent To Be Present

Sand Hill Club Will Entertain County-Wide Meeting At Early Date.

Present indications are that when the Floyd County Federation of Women's Clubs meet at Sand Hill, nine miles west of Floydada, on Wednesday, April 16, a most interesting program will be carried out. Although the program for the all-day meeting is not complete, Mrs. W. H. Bethel, president, promises that many phases of women's club work will be discussed.

Miss Murray Expected

Miss Mildred Horton, State Home Demonstration Agent, will be the principal speaker of the day. Miss Horton will speak on "The Child in the Home." This will be Miss Horton's first visit to the county and it is considered a rare privilege to be able to hear her. Miss Myrtle Murray, District Home Demonstration Agent, will also be present for the meeting and will speak to the gathering on "Child Nutrition." Members of the Floyd County Demonstration Clubs enjoy Miss Murray's visits, and feel confident that she will bring a number of worthwhile thoughts to the County Federation meeting.

Mrs. W. E. Miller, of the Sand Hill Home Demonstration Club, will extend the address of welcome, and Mrs. Will Snell, Blanco, will respond, according to the program worked out. Announcement is made that the Sand Hill Kitchen Band will be present and will render several numbers at both morning and afternoon sessions.

A number of Floydada and Floyd County women are included on the day's program, making a county-wide affair. The value of a Dear High School, and Mrs. will discuss the subject or Little Theatre, the work of the clubs will be Lola Barton, of the R.

Will Hold Observance. "The right use of leisure." "When we're through changing, we're through." "The benefits to be derived from Federation and how to arouse interest." These subjects will be assigned and perhaps others added, it was stated.

As this is Federation election year, it is urged that each club have at least one of its members nominated. Dues should be paid to Miss Anna Sims, so that candidates will be eligible, it was stated. The dues for the year are two dollars per year per club, which federates every member of that club. The election will be held directly following the opening of the meeting, it was stated, in order for the newly elected officers to choose committees and complete other work necessary at the Federation meeting.

Mrs. Bethel urges "if you have never attended a County Federation meeting, be sure and come this time; if you have been there before, come back. The County Federation club is a fine thing and we are proud of the spirit that exists in Floyd County" she said.

City Directory Work Gets Good Response

Completion of the street directory section of the City Directory of Floydada, planned to be issued this spring and early summer by Claude Wingo, assisted by members of the Christian Church, is announced. Preparing and checking names and houses is a part of the preliminary work of shaping up the directory, and it is the completion of this portion of the job that has been accomplished.

"We have met with gratifying success in the brief time we have been able to give to soliciting advertising," Rev. Wingo said this week.

BILL LLOYD AND MISS IONA SEGO WED IN LUBBOCK TODAY

Bill Lloyd, son Mrs. R. J. Lloyd, until just recently residents of Floydada, but now of Idalou, and Miss Iona Sego, of Campbell Community, a sister of Mrs. Dave Hinkle, are to be married this afternoon in Lubbock.

Following their marriage the young couple will make their home on a farm near Idalou.

Modernized Dutch Colonial Homes Popular In Eastern Cities

Early Architecture Is Also Adapted To West

No Striving For Effect At Expense Of Space Or Material In The Norwalk.

The Dutch Colonial house has long since been listed as a standard type of American architecture. It is distinctive in appearance, and best of all, there has been no striving for effect at the expense of space or material.

Has Historic Background

Back in the days of New Amsterdam when the thrifty Dutch burghers were taxed according to their possessions and particularly according to the size of their homes, those burghers who had two story houses paid larger tax than their brothers whose homes were but one story. Since the rooms in the attic did not add to the taxes the more astute of the settlers built their homes with two full stories, but nice or eaves were at the first floor ceiling lines, technically making them one story houses. This, claim some, is the origin of the Dutch Colonial.

The roofs of the early Dutch Colonial houses were pierced by small dormers which let in sunlight and air. Today the modern versions have broad dormers which cover most of the side of the structure.

The Norwalk which is pictured in adjacent columns, is a modern Dutch Colonial house. It has the picturesque lines of its type, and well arranged floor plans. With six rooms, bath and breakfast nook, this is a home that any family can build with the thought that they are getting full value for their money.

The dimensions of the Norwalk are 28 feet by 24 feet. It will set comfortably on an average size lot. The siding is broad clapboards while the shingles are composition.

Although not a cheap house, it is one that can be built by the family with average income. The house can be paid for over a period of ten or twelve years if the family will divert to this purpose their rent money which should be in the neighborhood of sixty dollars monthly.

Pleasing Interior

The family who prefer a residence with a central hall will find the Norwalk meeting their needs. Here the living room is on one side of the entrance hall and the dining room on the other.

The vestibule is not crowded and is provided with an inner door which keeps out wintry blasts of cold air. The entrances from the hall to both living and dining rooms are reached through a swinging laster arches. The kitchen breakfast nook are imbedded in the dining room reached through a swinging room is large and in character, the massive ceiling giving the striking appearance. The face against the side wall of tiles which add to the feeling of the room.

Windows on three sides give cross ventilation and let in an abundance of daylight.

The interior decorating of the walls and trim has been in keeping with the general atmosphere of the room. Tinted plastic paint was applied to the walls and old textures worked by slapping the side of the paint brush against the stiff plastic.

At the rear of the room the staircase to the upper floor is found. The trim is in keeping with the general scheme of the room. The flight of steps reaches a broad landing from which a second flight ascends to the upper floor.

Well Arranged
On the opposite side of the house are the dining and kitchen section. The dining room is roughly eleven by thirteen feet. The walls are tinted with a flat coat of light colored paint. The table in the center of the room is lighted by a candleabra while wall brackets are found at each side of the plaster arch leading to the hall.

The dining room is bright and cheerful, casement windows on two sides permitting the entrance of natural light and air.

The breakfast nook fits in an alcove off the kitchen. It is lighted by a double-hung window, while artificial illumination is provided by a ceiling light.

The kitchen is ten feet by eleven feet in size. Across the back wall is the sink beneath a window with a built-in cupboard on either side. Under one of the cupboards is a space for the electrical refrigerator with which the home is equipped. The plans provide an icing door if natural ice is used for refrigerating purposes.

The work table is handy to the sink while the stove is only a few steps away. A wall bracket over it provides proper lighting at night for work at the kitchen range.

A rear hall leads the way from the kitchen to the living room. Steps from the rear hall also lead down to an outside service entrance while from this lower landing another flight provides access to the basement.

Three Chambers

Three chambers, a bath and sewing room are located on the second floor. The chambers are provided with cross ventilation, as in each case double hung windows are found in two halls.

The interior trim in each of these rooms is birch. The walls are plaster, covered with gayly decorated wall paper.

The sewing room is really an alcove off the hall. It has no door, a plaster arch separating it from the central hall. In the ceiling of the hall is a disappearing stairs which may be used when ascending to the attic.

The bathroom contains a linen closet and ample artificial illumination. The bath tub is built-in a recess in the wall, and contains a shower with needle spray.

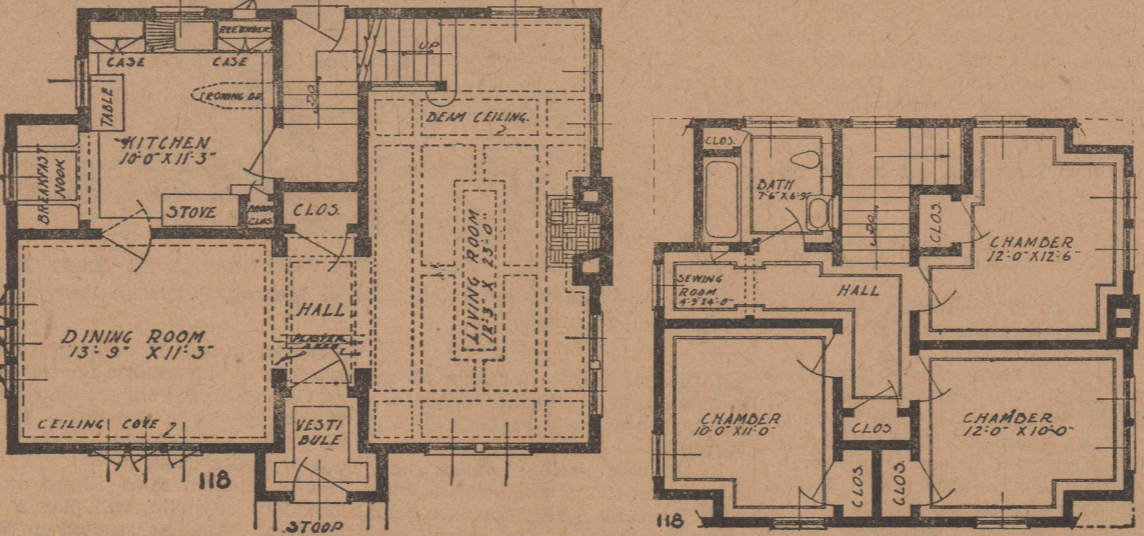

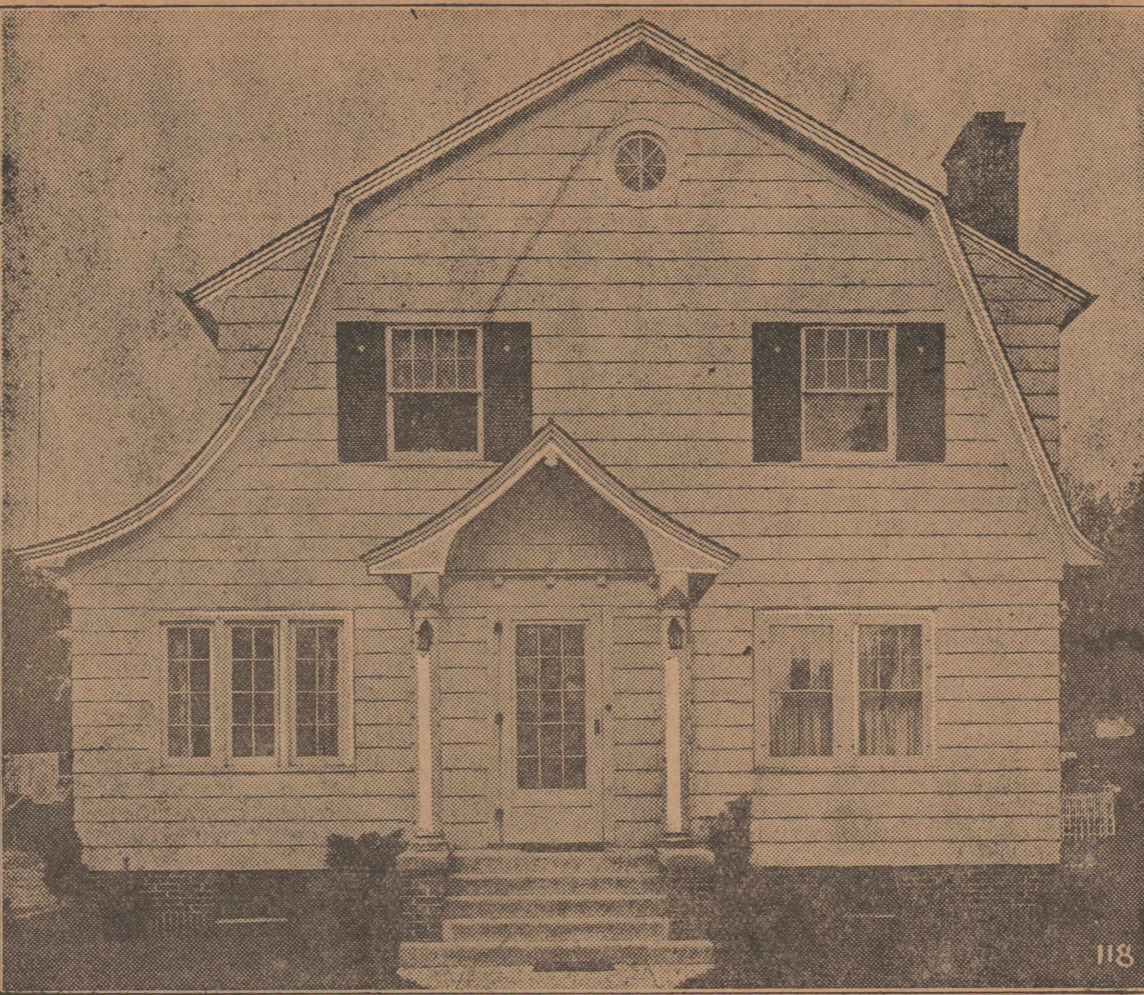

The foundation wall and footings are concrete of poured cement. Often brick or concrete blocks are used for footing but many builders consider concrete to be preferable. Steel basement windows are so located in the walls that ample natural lighting is afforded the basement during the day. At night conveniently arranged ceiling lights provide illumination.

The entire surface of the basement floor is concrete. The floor has been divided off into rooms, each devoted to a particular purpose.

On the other side of a partition is found the laundry and drying room. Built-in tubs and drain make this a handy place to do this work. The drying room is large enough to receive the largest of family washings.

Mrs. Bertha McMaster, state secretary of Ladies' Work of the Christian Churches in Texas, was here over the week-end visiting the home of Rev. and Mrs. Claude Wingo.

This Colonial Type Home Has Dimensions Of Only 28x24 Feet

Pictured above is a very attractive and distinctively different type of the early Colonial Dutch home. This home has proved very popular in Eastern cities, and is rapidly gaining in favor in the West. Although the home pictured this week, like others presented on this page, have the outside appearance of a large expensive home, they are really inexpensive and adaptable to the income of the average wage earner. This week's home is 28x24 feet in dimensions. Built on the popular building-loan plan, it may be easily paid for like monthly rent.

Insulating Materials To Promote Comfort

One of the marked differences between the homes constructed twenty or thirty years ago and those built during the past year or so has been the use of perfected insulation material. Years ago tarred paper was the principle insulating substance, this paper being placed under the clapboarding "to keep out the wind."

Those who have lived in the older houses know that when the winds were blowing fiercely during winter weather, the walls seemed to leak heat like a sieve. On the windward side of the house the rooms were cold and disagreeable. Part of this was due to the window which being often warped, and shrunken, allowed the infiltration of air. But lack of proper insulating materials played its part in keeping the interiors cold.

Little or no insulation was used under the roofs or in the ceilings and heat losses from this source were terrific.

The big job of insulation is to cut fuel bills. As soon as heat losses are stopped the interior of the house is more easily heated. Less fuel is needed to be burned.

Engineers who have made a study of insulating values report that an insulated house will show a fuel saving each year of 23 per cent to 30 per cent of the fuel that would be required if it were not insulated, and when applied to a shingled roof built with open boards the insulation will save 62 1/2 per cent of the waste heat.

Translated into dollars and cents this means that a small home that burns ten tons of coal a winter when uninsulated will save at least two and one half tons of coal after the residence was properly and scientifically insulated. When coal prices are ranging from $8.00 to $10.00 a ton such a saving is worth while effecting.

Promotes Home Comfort
Insulating not only cuts down the fuel bills but it also makes the home a more comfortable place in which to live.

The sound walls that result with insulation keep drafts down to a minimum. The rooms of the house remain warm and comfortable enabling the family to enjoy their home life to the utmost.

Lack of drafts means less tendency to catch colds, and health also is promoted through the use of insulation.

Many owners of well insulated homes say that the material adds much to summer comfort. Such homes are cool in hot sultry weather.

It is well known that some building materials are normally good conductors of heat and therefore an insulation material is necessary to ward off this tendency to permit the passage of heat. That it can be done satisfactorily is the report of home builders in the warmer sections of the country, such as Florida, who find that insulated houses are cool during summer.

Roughly speaking insulating materials are divided into two types; rigid or inflexible materials, and flexible types. In the first class are the numerous makes of wall board the composition of which may contain cellular wood, fiber, gypsum, asbestos and the like; the other class is the blanket or the quilt type. Composed of layers of cellular material loosely packed between heavy paper and of the loose bulk insulator which is poured or blown between the studding.

Each of these classes of insulators have their own peculiar merits and rival each other in minor points. The main fact to be considered here is the fact that the principle behind each of these products is that of cellular construction.

Awnings Growing More Popular Year By Year

We have noticed more awnings in use this year than ever before and in new and attractive colors too. Color schemes on the outside of the house are carried right into the awnings with very pleasing results.

With the new fabrics that all awning manufacturers are showing it is possible to bring the colors of the roof and trim in the predominant stripes of the awning and also have the same back-ground colors that compose the body of the house in the lesser stripes.

Such color combinations are now plentiful for every style and color of house. When colors are selected in the manner described a very pleasing effect is always obtained.

The new stripes diffuse a very pleasing and restful light into the room or porch shaded by the awning.

Much attention has been given this year to the selection of awnings by the home owner with the result that the awnings have proven a decided asset to the appearance of the home and a great comfort to those who live in it.

USE SIDE WALL BRACKETS FOR BATHROOM LIGHTING

The problem of lighting the bathroom is easily solved if one remembers that the face of the person looking into the mirror over the lavatory is the important thing to be lighted. Here the light must be shadowless, as otherwise the face cannot be plainly seen. By placing wall bracket lights on each side of the mirror a clear shadowless light is thrown on the face. The lights should be approximately level with the head and the bulbs should be frosted to diffuse the glare. The shades also should be dense and milk-white to aid in softening shadows.

The ceiling light should be located in the center of the room. It may be placed close to the ceiling as its main function is to provide general lighting when the mirror is not in use. Fifty watt bulbs may be placed in the side wall fixtures and a sixty or seventy-five watt lamp in the ceiling light. This arrangement should give ample lighting for all occasions.

LAWN IMPORTANT PROJECT IN BEAUTIFYING GROUNDS

Beautiful lawns are a definite part of every building project and no home building plan is complete until the lawns have been properly started. Many homes are surrounded by lawns which are just plots of grass, growing indifferently well. Others are beautiful in their luxurious growth.

Care must be taken to grow a lawn properly. It cannot be left to chance but the grass must be carefully tended. The home owner who is desirous of having a vigorous lawn at regular intervals with plant food. This action insures healthful growing.

These plant foods have been prepared by scientists who have studied lawns and soils. By experience they have discovered what is lacking in the soil and have provided it through the medium of this plant food.

CHURCHES

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Dick O'Brien, Pastor
Last Sunday was a high day in all our services. The Sunday school and Training services were well attended and the house comfortably filled for both preaching hours.

We regret very much to lose our general superintendent who has served so faithfully and effectively for the past two years. We refer to Bro Stephens who is moving with his family to Dimmitt. Mrs. Stephens has served as the efficient Superintendent of the Primary Department and will be sorely missed. In Clark was selected to take Stephens' place, and sold him to the whole congregation in a earnest message of acceptance day morning. The church voted him unanimous support. We expect to have all regular services on schedule next Sunday. Sunday school 9:45; preaching 11:00; singing Service 6:30; Preaching 8:00.

We are expecting that at least fifty will go to the Associational B. Y. P. U. meeting at Crosbyton Sunday afternoon. Our unions have major part on the program. "Come with us we will do these things."

Hustling Little Old Wantad In Hesperian Sells Radio For Him

A hustling little old, inexpensive Want Ad sold a radio for F. A. Campbell the latter part of last week. A reporter hustling for testimonials, worse than a patent medicine solicitor, ran into V. P. Switzer, who admitted readily that a want ad run by Mr. Campbell interested Mr. Switzer in an Atwater-Kent battery type of radio the former had for sale. Result: Mr. Campbell minus the radio he didn't want, Mr. Switzer with the radio he did want. Mr. Campbell didn't spend a lot of money for the want ad, so if he had lost out on his bet that The Hesperian could make the sale for him, he wouldn't have been a very big loser. (Some times these want ads can't find a deal for you, but it's seldom.) We have every reason to think these want ads in The Hesperian are the hustlin'est salesmen you can put to work for you. They are welcome in more than two thousand homes right in the territory every week in the year. That's lots of people to talk to as inexpensively as you can talk through this newspaper.

'THE GREATEST SHEPHERD'

Francis E. Warren, United States Senator from Wyoming was 85 years old on Thursday. He has been a member of that body for thirty-six years and has established a record for continuous service, formerly held by the late Senator Allison of Iowa. The occasion was happily observed.

In the felicitations of the day, untroubled by the faintest echo of "old, unhappy, far-off times and battles long ago," the memory of a debate might smilingly have been recalled.

The Payne-Aldrich tariff law was before the Senate, and schedule K, which had to do with wool, was being raked with forensics. Serene and mellow in the controversy was Dolliver of Iowa, long a Republican faithful, but unable to approve a bill that so ruthlessly violated the party pledge of downward revision. Gracefully yielding to an interruption of Senator Warren, who spoke feelingly for his own Wyoming which Dolliver had once visited as his guest, Mr. Dolliver, when he resumed, described vividly the far ranges, "blowing white with the fleece of endless flocks—the ranch of my good friend, the Senator from Wyoming, who, I am convinced, is the greatest shepherd since Abraham."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WOMAN HAS BIG JOB TAILOR FOR ELEPHANTS

Mrs. Phyllis Nelson, of Newburyport, Mass., has made good in a really big way. She is seamstress and tailor for elephants, also for horses, monkeys, dogs and other circus animals.

An interviewer for The American Magazine found her on the Ringling circus lot at Sarasota, Florida, standing on a barrel, taking the waist measure of Mabel, a clown elephant.

"Yes, I have plenty of customers," she said. "I design and superintend the sewing of costumes for about seventy-five elephants, as many camels, eighty-six horses, monkeys, zebras, dogs, ponies and giraffes. As a rule the elephants behave like good children when they are fitted for costumes, as do most of the other animals except the monkeys. Monkeys are extremely vain creatures. They love to peer at themselves in mirrors, and they always scrutinize their costumes carefully. First they examine one sleeve and then the other; next they glance down the row of buttons and look grimly at every piece of elastic. If they do not like their costumes, they let out a howl." Mrs. Nelson is also wardrobe mistress for the whole circus.

New Tricks Save Time In Kitchen, Says Expert

New tricks in the use of rolling pins, double broilers and even kitchen knives have resulted in saving time in the kitchen according to Nell B. Nichols in Woman's Home Companion.

A stockinet cover for the rolling pin, Miss Nichols says, make flaky pastry and a pastry cloth, dampened at the corners, protects the table top from being soiled. Instead of soiling utensils in chopping nuts, housewives now place them in paper bags and the rolling pin is passed over them a few times. Double broilers are lined with oiled paper before melting chocolate.

Special knives have effected further saving in time. The old saw-tooth bread knife, for example, has Wrapping veal roasts in fat saves time in basting and produces a better flavored dish, says Miss Nichols, and the purchase of a new number one size of canned vegetables cuts the amount of kitchen left-overs to a minimum.

The Family Budget

This outline divides the family budget expenditures and savings into twelve general heads. With the great variation of home and living conditions, no attempt has been made to establish either amounts or percentages for these various divisions. Each of these twelve divisions, however, is a necessary part of the well-balanced expenditure of the family income. A careful check-up of living expenses with this outline should enable any family to develop a family budget to fit their needs.

Keeping a budget will repay all the time and attention given to it. You will find it not only interesting but profitable. When kept over a period of months it provides an excellent basis for future planning.

1. FOOD—Food should consist of a balanced diet suited to the needs of the various members of the family and to the seasons of year. It will include: Meat and fish, dairy products, groceries, vegetables, bread, fruit, business man's lunches, etc.
2. SHELTER—A home should be roomy, light, airy, sanitary, comfortable and attractive; with running water, toilet and bath, lighting and heating, and refrigeration. The home should be at least 15 feet from neighboring houses. The yard should have walks, a grass plot, shrubs and flowers; and a garage for the family car. The home whether owned or rented bears such expenses as: Home Building payments, Rent, Taxes, etc.
3. OPERATING—Under this heading should come such expenditures as: Fuel, ice, laundry, telephone, water, cleaning. It should also include service equipment and supplies, decorating, paper hanging, plumbing, repair and sundry other expenditures for maintenance and upkeep.
4. CLOTHING—Wearing apparel for all members of the family should be suitable in style and comfort for the four seasons of the year. Clothes and shoes should be systematically purchased for work, dress and sport.
5. FURNISHINGS—The home furnishings should be acquired for a four-fold purpose—comfort, service, health and attractiveness. Under this heading come all house furnishings items such as rugs, carpets, furniture, curtains, drapes, beds, stoves, cooking utensils, etc.

6. SAVINGS AND INVESTMENT—Every family should save. Saving represents security against the needs of the future. Under this head are such items as bank savings and accounts, securities, real estate, building and loan, etc.
7. RECREATION—Such as lodge and club dues, moving pictures, theatre, sports and sporting equipment, amusements, vacations, travel, music, radio, musical instruments, children's toys, etc.
8. EDUCATION AND ADVANCEMENT—Including schooling for children; newspapers, magazines and books, lectures, special vocational training such as business college, night school, correspondence courses, musical training, etc.
9. HEALTH—Including such items as must be expended for such services as medical attendance, dental services, hospital care, drug sundries, etc.

Two years ago last Friday the Lone Star Construction Company laid the first steel for the Q. A. & P. railroad in what is now the town of Dougherty. At the close of that days work the rails had been laid to about where the section house and railroad water tank now stands. The town had not been dedicated at that time, but the Engineers were at work staking off lots preparatory to the dedication and the sales.

From the bald prairie to a prosperous little town in two years, with two short crops and without a boom speaks well for our trades territory. Dougherty has been making a slow but steady growth thru its existence.

Say folks, we have a chance to get a telephone exchange here if we will all pull together. It will take the cooperation of every one, both in town and the country to put this over, but it is a cause well worth working for. Mr. White, of Lubbock was in town last week in interest of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and expressed his belief that with the cooperation of the farmers and ranchers in this territory we could build up an ex-

The copies will be graded and the best papers selected. Delegates from the winning papers will enter the Interscholastic League meeting which will be held at Austin, May 2 and 3.

The state has been divided into four sections and the papers in each section are divided into three classes, according to location and to the size of the paper. The two best papers from each class will be selected.

Freshman Style Show

The Freshman class put on one of the best style shows that has ever been put on by any organization of its kind at the Floydada auditorium, on Friday, March 14. Every one who attended the show was very well pleased with the program. The freshmen charged a small fee to see the show and the proceeds were six dollars and sixty-five cents. The following program was enjoyed by every one present.

Wanda Teeple represented the maid. Afternoon wear, Louise Connor, Morning frock, Hazel Borum. Ensemble, Virginia Welch. An old-fashioned girl, Exie Pierce. Athlete girl, Eva Givynn Mooney. Cam-fire girl, Lois Covington. Pep squad girl, Mary Louise Thurmon. Boy scout, Elwood Patty. A modern-dressed man, Waldo Houghton. Housewife, Mary Handy. Lady of the Chorus, Charlotte Reese. Grid-boy, Floyd Murray. Freshman, Adele McRoberts. Sophomore, Allen Gresham. Junior, Forrest Fry. Senior, Mary Irene Harris. After every part was performed, the Freshmen cast sang "Freshmen Spirits Never Die." The Freshmen were fortunate in having two ex-students of Floydada Hi present. They expressed their appreciation of the program. R. V. Husky told an interesting ghost story which held everyone's attention until the very last. Miss Jessie Merle Scoggin played a piano solo which everyone enjoyed very much. The program was a real program and everyone enjoyed it but remember, when better programs are performed, the freshmen will perform them.

"The Valiant"

The senior follies play, "The Valiant," by winning the High School Follies, was awarded a trip to the one-act play contest at Plainview. This was held Friday. Our play won second place, Tullia winning first. This is a remarkable showing and we are proud of the cast. It is the first time Floydada High School has ever won a place in the contest. The cast was made up of Dave Luttrall, Eulalia Burrus, Warren Poole, Starks Green, Joe Smith and Bill Baker.

"Engaged by Wednesday"

The play, "Engaged by Wednesday," which was presented by the Hi Y and Girl Reserves, Thursday night, was quite a hit. There was a large audience and everyone seemed to enjoy both the play and the between-acts very much.

Through the Halls With the Make-up Man.

Here it is time to write again and that guy that is supposed to remind me to this column hasn't come around to remind me as yet. I guess that I'll have to write without being reminded about it.

A number of the F. F. A. boys went to the Fat Stock show last week and didn't take me along, but I wasn't supposed to go along because if I had somebody else would have had to stay here, which was just what they didn't want to do, and I don't blame them. Mart-a-True, one of them that got to go said that everything was just plenty fat down there. I forgot to ask him if the wimmen was to, but I am going to do that very thing pretty soon, cause if I ever go places I want to go where there is some good wimmen.

And again I am reminded to tell you folks that the F. F. A. club went to Lubbock next Monday, March 24, to the contests over there. There are four teams going and from all prospects we hope to bring some honors home with us when we come back, at least if we don't get a screen door slumped in our face while we are over there like Frank Roberts did last year.

There comes coach to remind me to tell you that his track boys went to Plainview last Friday and won second place in a contest up there. Coach says that Lockney will sure have to step on it if they aim to pass the Floydada track team on the 29 of March. Mr. Scoggin and the other coaches of literary events also expect that Lockney will have to do some speakin' extemporein' and debatin' if they expect to win the county meet which they don't aim to do in our opinion.

Which reminds me that Miss Biebel and the characters in the senior class play went to Plainview last Friday and won second place in the district contest up there. Someone said that they would have won first place if Tullia had not had the better play and won first. Or maybe they said they have won first if they hadn't lost it to the other guy.

And here comes the little junior girls who got after me for not putting their names in the paper before. Honest, Gwendolyn and Winona, I didn't know that you liked to be up before the public eye, but from now on I am going to put everything in the paper that I can find out about anyone cause every time that I forget to put something in someone comes along and tells me that they are sore and tell me that I'll want them to do something for me some time, and that they want to do. Now to tell the truth I don't know as I'll ever want to do anything unless you give me a little encouragement so I'll know that someone is reading my column except myself.

Oh well why worry about a newspaper when the bell is ringing to inform me that it is time to go to detention. Good bye until next week.

The Disadvantages of Committing Suicide

After several attempts at committing suicide, our hope has at last found a solution in a history book. In this history book he found that every man who—but wait, and you will hear it all.

Avondale et cetera Pierce boarded the train for Mexico. Arriving down about one o'clock, he jumped off the train and ran all the way down, only stopping to procure a couple of bombs at an armory. He had heard that afternoon that the president was going to be in it. Planting himself in the middle of some men who were shouting at the president (he did not understand Mexican, and they were in reality shouting curses at the president) he threw the two bombs at the president's car. In the excitement he was carried away by the bandits (for such they were) to their mountain lair. They made him their ruler and commander and made him feel so much at home that he said, "Well, I am in a nice place and nothing to do so I will quit trying to commit suicide and settle down and have a good time."

That very night he stumbled off a cliff in the dark and broke his neck.

The end.

Debate Tryouts

The debate question, "Resolve that the Sterling plan for highway construction should be adopted" was discussed fully at the school auditorium, Monday night. The affirmative speakers were: Juanita Shirts, Williamina Salisbury, Alsie Carlton and Dale Self. The negative upholders were: Lois Sitton, Gene Smalley and Robert Welborn. The winners were selected by a group of judges from Ralls, but they have not been divulged at this time.

The debaters will meet Ralls in a series of debates this week.

Movement For Sterling For Governor Is Seen

Texans Needs Governor of More Than Casual Business Ability, Supporters Claim.

BY GORDON K. SHEARER

United Press Staff Correspondent Austin, Texas, March 17. (UP). Ross Sterling of Houston is again being discussed as a possible candidate for governor of Texas.

The Sterling movement started with a bang more than a year ago. He was present at many banquets where his fitness for governor was broached. Beyond appreciative smiles he took little notice of the matter.

Suppose Sterling should run. What are his chances? Strange as it may seem, his friends believe that his chief handicap is wealth. There are more poor people than rich people, and they vote that way too. That this division has become less marked in recent years is apparent. Sterling enthusiasts declare that the belief that a rich man cannot be a good candidate is exploded by the vote Lynch Davidson received in perhaps the hottest campaign for governor that ever was waged in the state.

For Sterling the biggest argument is his record at the head of the state highway department. That it is operated more nearly like a successful private enterprise than perhaps any other department of the state can scarcely be disputed. It is the biggest department of the state, handles most funds, and comes in closer contact with the people every day than any other department, except perhaps the department of education.

In the early days of the Sterling commission there was much unrest. Some of it could be directly traceable to Sterling personally. Accustomed to rigid business methods, he found it difficult to adjust himself to the difference that exists in handling the public's business with the public and handling his own affairs. Probably the highest compliment that could be paid the Houstonian is that he didn't get peeved and throw up the job. He faced the situation as he found it. Today he is most genial in dealing with the contesting delegations with whom the highway commission deals.

Investigations launched against the business operations of the commission in handling contracts rebounded in praise for the commission and apology for the charges.

Now the chief complaint against the body is the exercise of its power over routing highways. Towns complain that highways are being built around them. As a highway proposition the more direct the routes and the less communities through which to pass the better. But from the town standpoint, it is both an affront and a loss of possible tourist business to have a highway miss it by a mile or two. Here lies the chief obstacle Sterling will have to overcome if he runs for governor. Towns feeling aggrieved in this matter from centers of opposition that can be used very effectively against him. Where a politician might give way in these disputes and thus turn those very towns to his support. Sterling will not stoop to such methods. His long advocacy of a state-wide road bond issue may also prove an obstacle should he decide to undergo the hardships of a campaign.

The chief urge for his candidacy is the feeling frequently expressed that Texas needs a governor of more than casual business ability. These advocates point out that while other functions of the state have been in chaotic condition, the highway department has been directed with a future to insure it having at all times ample funds.

Cecil Gibbs Becomes C. E. Stone Manager

With the transfer this week of J. Wilson Mahan from Floydada to Vernon, Cecil Gibbs, assistant manager for the past year, succeeds to the management of the Floydada store. For the past few weeks Gibbs has been at Tipton and Vernon doing relief work. Mahan goes to Vernon as the new manager there, having left Monday.

Mr. Gibbs, who becomes manager here, has bought an interest in the business. He has resided in Floydada for several years and is well-known in Floydada and Floyd County. "I'm mighty glad to succeed as manager of the store here among my friends, where I have my home, and I hope I can keep the store here the same pleasant place to shop it has been under Mr. Mahan's management," Mr. Gibbs said.

Mr. Mahan came to Floydada store, following its opening early last year, from the Mineral Wells store.

Will Simpson, of Plainview, was a business visitor in Floydada the first of the week.

Carl Smith and family have moved from Kress to Sand Hill, where they will make their home this year.

CHAPTER VIII

SYNOPSIS

Dissatisfied with the quiet life in his home surroundings, Athol Meldrum, young Scotsman who tells the story, leaves his mother and brother, Garry, to seek his fortune. At San Francisco, practically penniless, he takes a laborer's job, and meets a fellow adventurer whom he dubs, and who is hereafter known as, the Prodigal.

The Prodigal is anxious to join the rush of gold seekers into Alaska, and Meldrum agrees to go with him after he (the Prodigal) comes back from a visit to his wealthy father in the East. Athol, in great need, is befriended by Jim Hubbard ("Salvation Jim"). When the Prodigal returns, the three men join the stampede into the Frozen North, the Prodigal and Hubbard financing the outfit.

Among the motley crowd on the boat is a young girl obviously out of place. She is traveling with her grandfather and a hard-looking couple named Winklestein, who figure as her uncle and aunt. Athol has an opportunity to befriend her, and she tells him a sad story of her life. She is journeying into Alaska to take care of her grandfather, who is obsessed with the idea of getting rich in Klondike. Her name, she tells him, is Berna.

Landing in Skagway, Athol's party at once takes the trail. In a snowslide on the Chilcot trail, which Berna and her companions take, hundreds of lives are lost. Fearful for Berna's safety, Athol hastens to the scene. He finds the old man dead and learns that Berna is prostrated. Madam Winklestein refuses to let him see the girl, but he leaves a letter for her. At Bennett Berna comes to Athol confesses her love, and begs him to marry her, to save her from the harsh fate she foresees. He is unwilling to take such a decisive step, and tells her they must wait.

Some days afterward Berna tells Athol Madam Winklestein plans to sell her to "Black Jack" Locasto, millionaire miner of evil reputation. While realizing how greatly he loves the girl, Meldrum, in a mixture of emotions, flinches from the idea of immediate marriage, and they agree to wait a year, though Berna is fearful. Reaching the gold fields, Athol and his party find the claims all taken and the camp crowded with idle men.

Athol's party decides to stay and await developments. Unable to locate Berna, Athol seeks information from Locasto. "Black Jack" disclaims knowledge of her whereabouts, and later, evidently aware of the rivalry between them, lures Meldrum to a lonely spot and beats him into unconsciousness. Through a lucky chance Athol finds Berna. She tells him she has so far evaded Locasto and will die before she yields to him. They set a date for their marriage, the first of June—Meldrum hoping to have made a stake by then—and part.

"You'd better quit," said the Prodigal. It was the evening of my mishap, and he had arrived unexpectedly from town. "It just fits in with my plans. I'm getting Jim to come in, too. I've realized on that stuff I bought, made over three thousand clear profit, and with it I've made a dicker for a property on the beach above Bonanza, Gold hill they call it. I've a notion it's all right. Anyway, we'll tunnel in and see. You and Jim will have quarter share each for your work, while I'll have an extra quarter for the capital I've put in. Is it a go?"

Next day found us all three surveying our claim. The first thing to do was to build a cabin. Right away we began to level off the ground. The work was pleasant, and conducted in such friendship that the time passed most happily. Indeed, my only worry was about Berna. I schooled myself into the belief that she was all right, but, thank God, every moment was bringing her nearer to me.

We had hauled the logs for the cabin, and the foundation was laid. Every day saw our future home nearer completion.

One evening I spied the saturnine Ribwood climbing down the hill to our tent. He hailed me:

"Say, we want a night watchman up at the claim to go on four hours a night at a dollar an hour. You see, there's been a lot of sluice-box robberies lately, and we're scared for our clean-up. There's four hours every night the place is deserted and Hoofman proposed we should get you to keep watch."

"Yes," I said; "I'll run up every evening if the others don't object." They did not; so the next night, and for about a dozen after that, I spent the darkest hours watching on the claim where previously I had worked.

It was the dimmest and most uncertain hour of the four, and I was sitting at my post of guard. As the night was chilly I had brought along an old gray blanket, similar in color to the mound of the pay dirt. There had been quite a cavity dug in the dump during the day, and into this I crawled and wrapped myself in my blanket. From my position I could see the strong of boxes containing the riffles. By my side lay a loaded shotgun.

"If the swine comes," Ribwood had said, "let him have a clean-up of lead instead of gold."

Lying there, I got to thinking of the robberies. They were remarkable. All had been done by an expert. Each time the robber had cleaned up from two to three thousand dollars, and all within the past month. There was some mysterious masterstroke in our midst, they said, who operated swiftly and strenuously, and left absolutely no clew of his identity.

I was quite for a while, watching dreamily the dark shadows of the dusk.

"Hist! What was that? Surely the bushes were moving over there by the hillside. I strained my eyes. I was right; they were.

I watched and waited. A man was parting the bushes. Cautiously, crawling like a snake, he worked his way to the sluice-boxes. None but a keen watcher could have seen him. Again and again he paused, peered around, listened intently. Very carefully, with my eyes fixed on him, I lifted the gun to my shoulder. I had him covered.

I waited. Somehow I was loath to shoot. My nerves were a-quiver. Proof, more proof, I said. I saw him working busily, lying flat alongside the boxes. How crafty, how skillful he was! He was disconnecting the boxes. He would let the water run to the ground; then, there in the exposed riffles, would be his harvest. Would I shoot now?

Then, in the midnight hush, my gun blazed forth. With one scream the man tumbled down, carrying along with him the disconnected box. The water rushed over the ground in a deluge. I must capture him. There he lay in that pouring stream. Now I had him.

In that torrent of joy water I grappled with my man. Over and over we rolled. He tried to gouge me. He was small, but oh, how strong! He held down his face. Fiercely I wrenched it up to the light. Heavens it was the Worm.

I gave a cry of surprise, and my clutch on him must have weakened, for at that moment he gave a violent wrench, a cat-like twist, and tore himself free. Men were running in from all directions.

"Catch him!" I cried. "Yonder he goes."

But the little man was shooting forward like a deer. Right and left ran his pursuers, mistaking each other for the robber in the semi-gloom, yelling frantically, mad with the excitement of a man-hunt. And in the midst of it all I lay in a pool of mud and water, with a sprained wrist and a bite on my leg.

"Why didn't you hold him?" shouted Ribwood.

"I couldn't," I answered. "I saved your cleanup, and he got some of the lead. Besides, I know who he is. Pat Doogan."

"You don't say. Well, I'm darned. We'll get him. I'll go into town first thing in the morning and get out a warrant for him."

He went, but the next evening back he returned, looking very surly and disgruntled.

"Well, what about the warrant?" said Hoofman.

"Didn't get it," snapped Ribwood. "Look here, Hoofman, I met Locasto. Black Jack says Pat was caught away, dead to all the world, in the backroom of the Omega saloon all night. There's two loafers and the barkeeper to back him up. What can we do in the face of that? Say, young feller, I guess you mistook your man."

"I guess I did not," I protested stoutly.

They both looked at me for a moment and shrugged their shoulders.

Time went on and the cabin was quietly nearing completion. The roof of poles was in place. It only remained to cover it with moss and thawed-out earth to make it our future home.

More and more my dream hours were jealously consecrated to Berna. How ineffably sweet were they. How full of delicious imaginings! How pregnant of high hope! O, I was born to love, I think, and I never loved but one. This story of my life is the story of Berna. It is a thing of words and words and words, yet every word is Berna, Berna. Feel the heartache behind it all. Read between the lines, Berna, Berna.

The Prodigal was always "snooping" around and gleaming information from most mysterious sources. One evening he came to us.

"Boys, get ready, quick. There's a rumor of a stampede for a new creek, Ophir creek they call it, a long way. I will never forget it. For three days, with the exception of two brief sleep-spells, I had been in a fierce helter-skelter of excitement, and I had eaten no very satisfying food. As I stood in that sullen crowd I swayed with weariness, and my legs were doubling under me. I staggered forward and straightened up suddenly. I was near the wicket. Only two were ahead of me. A clerk was recording their claims. One had thirty-four above, the other fifty-two below. The clerk looked flustered, fatigued.

It was about nine in the morning when we got to the gold office. There was quite a number ahead of me, and I knew I was in for a long wait. I will never forget it. For three days, with the exception of two brief sleep-spells, I had been in a fierce helter-skelter of excitement, and I had eaten no very satisfying food. As I stood in that sullen crowd I swayed with weariness, and my legs were doubling under me. I staggered forward and straightened up suddenly. I was near the wicket. Only two were ahead of me. A clerk was recording their claims. One had thirty-four above, the other fifty-two below. The clerk looked flustered, fatigued.

It was my turn. "I want to record eight below on Ophir," I said. "What name?" he asked. "I gave it. He turned up, his back.

"Eight below, you say. Why, that's already recorded." "Can't be," I retorted. "I just got down from there yesterday after planting my stakes."

"Can't help it. It's recorded by some one else, recorded early yesterday."

"Look here," I exclaimed; "what kind of a game are you putting up on me? I tell you I was the first on the ground, I alone staked the claim."

"That's strange," he said. "There must be some mistake. Anyway, you'll have to move on and let the others get up to the wicket. You're blocking the way. All I can do is to look into the matter for you. I've got no time now. Come back tomorrow. Next, please."

The next man pushed me aside, and there I stood, gaping and gasping. A man in the waiting line looked at me pityingly.

"It's no use, young fellow; you'd better make up your mind to lose that claim. They'll film-flam you out of it somehow. They've sent some one out now to stake over you. If you kick, they'll say you didn't stake proper. Them government officials is the crookedest bunch that ever made fuel for hell-fire."

I was stunned with disappointment. "What you want," he continued, "is to get a pull with some of the officials. Get a stand-in, young fellow."

"Well," I said, "I'm not going to be cheated out of my claim. If I've got to move heaven and earth—" "You'll do nothing of the kind. If you get sassy there's the police to put the lid on you. You can talk till you're purple round the gills. It won't cut no figure. They've got us all cinched. We've just got to take our medicine. It's no use going round bellyaching. You'd better go away and sit down."

And I did.

I had to see Berna at once. Already I had paid a visit to the Paragon restaurant, that new and glittering place of resort run by the Winklesteins, but she was not on duty. In the evening I returned. I took a seat in one of the curtained boxes.

The place was brilliantly lit up, many-mirrored and flashily, ornate in gilt and white. In the box before me a white-haired lawyer was entertaining a lady of easy virtue; in the box behind, a larrikin quartette from the Pavilion theatre was holding high revelry. There was no mistaking the character of the place. In the heart of the city's tenderloin it was a haunt of human riff-raff, a palace of gilt and guile.

And it was in this place Berna worked. She waited on these wantons; she served those swine. She heard their loose talk, their careless oaths. She knew everything. Oh, it was pitiful; it sickened me to the soul. I sat down and buried my face in my hands.

"Order, please." I knew that sweet voice. It thrilled me, and I looked up suddenly. There was Berna standing before me.

She gave a quick start, then recovered herself. A look of delight came into her eyes, eager, vivid delight.

"Oh, I am so glad to see you again."

"Berna," I said, "what are you doing with that paint on your face?"

"Oh I'm sorry." She was rubbing distressfully at a dab of rouge on her cheek. "I knew you would be cross, but I had to; they made me. It's just a little pink—all the women do it. It makes me look happier, and it doesn't hurt me any."

"Berna," boomed the rough, contumacious voice of Madam, "attend to the customers."

"All right," I said; "get me anything. I just wanted to see you." She hurried away. Presently she came hurrying round, bringing me some food.

"When can I see you, girl?" I asked.

"Tonight. See me home. I'm off at midnight."

"All right. I'll be waiting."

I wandered up and down the now familiar street, but the keen edge of my impression had been blunted. I no longer took the same interest in its sights. More populous it was, noisier, livelier than ever. Success was in the air. Men were drunk with it; carried off their feet, delicious. Money! It had lost its value. Every one you met was "lousy" with it; threw it away with both hands, and fast as they emptied one pocket it filled up the others.

At midnight, at the door of the Paragon. I was waiting in a fever of impatience when Berna came out. She showed a vast joy at seeing me.

"Tell me what you've been doing, dear—everything. Have you made a stake? So many have. I have prayed you would, too. Then we'll go away somewhere and forget all this. Won't we, honey?"

She nestled up to me. She seemed to have lost much of her shyness. I don't know why, but I preferred my timid, shrinking Berna.

"It will take a whole lot to make me forget this," I said grimly. "Yes, I know. Isn't it frightful? Somehow I don't seem to mind so much now. I'm getting used to it, I suppose. It's wonderful how we get accustomed to things, isn't it?"

"Yes," I answered bitterly. "You know, I've had several offers of marriage, too, really, really good one from wealthy claim-owners."

"Yes," still more bitterly. "Yes, young man; so you want to make a strike and take me away. Oh, how I plan and plan for us two. I don't care, my dearest, if you haven't got a cent in the world, I'm yours, always yours."

"That's all right, Berna," I said. "I'm going to make good. I've just lost a fifty-thousand dollar claim, but there's more coming up. By the first of June next I'll come to you with a bank account of six figures. You'll see, my little girl. I'm going to make this thing stick."

"You foolish boy," she said; "it doesn't matter if you come to me a beggar in rags. Come to me anyway. Come, and do not fail."

She was extraordinarily affectionate, full of unexpected little ways of endearment, and clung to me when we parted, making me promise to return very soon. Every look, every word, every act of her expressed a bright, fine radiant love. I was satisfied, yet unsatisfied, and once again I entreated her.

"Berna, are you sure, quite sure, you're all right in that place among all that folly and drunkenness and vice? Let me take you away, dear."

"Oh, no," she said very tenderly. "I'm all right. I would tell you at once, my boy, if I had any fear. Good-by, darling."

"Good-by, beloved." I went away treading on sunshine, trembling with joy, thrilled with love for her, blessing her anew.

Yet still the rouge stuck in my crop as if it were the symbol of some insidious decadence.

How

CARDUI

Helped Her

Mrs. W. A. Cox, a well-known professional nurse, of Burnside, Ky., writes:

"I was in very bad health, and only weighed 110 pounds. I read in the papers about Cardui, and thought I would give it a try-out. After I had taken one bottle, I could see that I was improving. After I had taken it a month or two, I began to gain, and I weigh at present 168, and have weighed that for some time. I am now 55 years old, and can do as much work as the average middle-aged woman can."

"I would advise any woman, who is weakly and in a run-down condition, to try Cardui, but not to expect one bottle to make her well. I take two or three bottles a year, now, and I feel fine."

Sunday School Lesson

FAITH STANDS A TEST

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 23. Faith Tested and Triumph. Matt. 15:21-31.

The story of the Canaanitish woman, or "the Syrophenician" as St. Mark calls her, which is the basis of this lesson, has been for many people one of the most puzzling and difficult passages of scripture.

On a basis of any harsh literal interpretation it would almost seem to suggest that Jesus encouraged and practiced race prejudice, which otherwise seems contrary to all the letter and spirit of his teaching, and that he shared something of the attitude of the Jewish Pharisee toward gentiles.

Are we then to interpret an incident such as this in any harsh and literal way, or should we read it in connection with the whole story of Jesus and in relation to the fullness of his teaching? First of all let us notice the story. This non-Jewish woman had a daughter who was "grievously vexed with a demon."

Her Need Was Genuine. Just what that implied we do not know. It may have been some ordinary sickness, for the age was one of superstition in which disease was thought of as a form of malign and demonic influence, or it may have been that the girl had some form of insanity or nervous trouble. At any rate the affliction evidently was real, and the mother came not only crying, but wailing, as the record suggests, "Have mercy on me, O Lord thou son of David."

The record is that Jesus paid no attention to her. "He answered her not a word." And his seeming indifference was so marked that his disciples were troubled about it.

Note, however, the disposition of the disciples. They appealed to him to send her away because she was crying after them and annoying them. It did not seem to trouble them that Jesus was apparently not willing to help her. They would have been quite content and easy of mind if her troubling of them had ceased. Her deep need did not touch their hearts.

Was not Jesus purposely testing the spirit of the disciples and planning a rebuke to their strange indifference to human need? When he said to these disciples, "I was not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel," he may have been expressing what was merely a further part of this testing.

But when, to the woman herself as she came, worshipping and crying, "Lord, help me," he replied, "It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs," it seemed not only that Jesus was unwilling to help her but that he was subjecting her to needless insult.

The woman's answer, "Truth, Lord, yet the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from the master's table," would seem to help us to understand the real spirit and meaning of the incident. In various places in the New Testament we have evidence that Jesus possessed and expressed a sense of humor.

Would Jesus have healed this woman's daughter if he had had any real prejudice in his heart against her? Or have used words in intentional harshness that belied his loving purpose? It seems inconceivable. Surely it must have been a tremendous climax to the story after the way in which Jesus had led up to it to have these disciples in their narrowness and prejudice and lack of faith stand by while Jesus commanded the woman for her great faith.

Mrs. Coleman Recovering
Mrs. H. P. Coleman, who has been in the Plainview Sanitarium for several weeks, where she underwent operation for appendicitis and other ailments, was brought to her home last Sunday. She is getting along fine and well on the road to recovery.

Dr. Henry To San Francisco
Dr. S. M. Henry left last Friday for San Francisco, Calif., where he will take treatment in a sanitarium. FLOW UNDER THE BOLLWORMS

Of the various means that have been tried in combating the cotton bollworm plowing 6 inches below the surface of the ground. It has been found that breaking up the cells in which the insects are spending the winter results in the destruction of practically every pupa. Aside from destroying the bollworm, fall and winter plowing is a good cultural practice. The bollworm, which is known by various names and which attacks corn, tomatoes, tobacco, and other crops as well as cotton, should not be confused with the pink bollworm of cotton. More information on the bollworm as a cotton pest can be found in Farmers' Bulletin 1595-F, The Bollworm or Corn Ear Worm as a Cotton Pest. This publication can be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

TAKING LONG CHANCES

The Texas Legislature, in its fifth called session, is taking long chances with the welfare of the people of the state in the desperation its members doubtless feel over their predicament in being unable to accomplish anything. The governor is to blame, of course, but the legislature is getting plenty of cussing. Just the same. Cussing the legislature is one of the most easily acquired habits. A lot of people who cuss the legislature, do so because it makes conversation, and there never is any flare-back. Nobody ever takes the side of their representatives in Austin.

But at that the legislature is in a dilemma. It has been ordered to provide funds before passing appropriations the governor vetoed last year, after he and his automatic tax board had cut the ad valorem tax rate.

Doubtless representatives of West Texas interests will be very careful of any revenue measures passed, to see that they do not do irreparable damage to the present mighty good prospect for largely increased industrial expansion.

LOW WATER RATES NOW

Residents of Floydada are reminded that much lower water rates are in effect this year than during the spring and summer of last year and that they have a lot more water for use on their trees, flowers and gardens this season for the same money they had to be out last year.

The new rate became effective at the end of last year's heavy season of water usage and began to make itself felt in lower water bills at once. There are no jokers in the reduction made by the council. It was a real reduction, straight through the schedule of rates.

More pretty lawns, flower gardens and garden truck in the city ought to be one of the immediate results.

SOME ANCIENT HISTORY

The Lynn County News last week carried a story about the entry of a Tahoka man, John Thomas, in the race for representative from their present district and parenthetically remarked that it was possibly the first time a Tahoka citizen ever had offered for the place.

It just happens that the man on whose land was located the town of Tahoka, Thomas M. Bartley by name, now secretary of the Grand Lodge, Royal Arch Masons, at Waco, was a candidate, and a successful one, from Tahoka years ago for representative. At that time airplanes were just coming into use in a small way and Mr. Bartley introduced a bill in the legislature governing sanitary measures to be adopted by them. This measure was heartily received by the legislature and may now be the law of the land, for all we know.

MORE RAIN IN PROSPECT

The Weather Bureau Sunday forecast rain for this area as a probability this week-end, and if it so develops, if West Texas weather does not decide to take the bits in its own teeth and dish out something else, additional moisture for the wheat, row crops and ranges of this area, may be anticipated.

Good showers to good rains reported over Floyd County and neighboring counties during the past week, add materially to the prospect for the coming season, so far as production is concerned. Floyd County people have learned, too, that if they can get a feed crop going good they can be more or less independent of a great many of the hazards of the markets, now so seriously hindering business.

BOYCOTTING OUR WHEAT?

This is a big world but it's little, after all. We, in the wheat belt, are thinking in terms of better markets for our crop. Some of us confidently expect the Farm Board to get the market in such shape as to make the crop profitable this season, or soon at least. On the other hand, other nations, consumers of wheat but not producers, are said to have reacted to America's effort to get better prices by legislation, in much the same manner that we reacted a few years ago in the rubber crisis, when we thought rubbers barons of England were robbing us with the products from their rubber farms. In London, signs are displayed on bakeries, "We do not bake American wheat here." While America has some of its best talent trying to work out a situation that is bad at home, the warring countries are looking on this respect as a governing effort to take benefit of their children. Of course, we had never thought of ourselves as taking bread from the mouths of widows and orphans but if you were to travel in England a few days you'd get a surprising ear-full of it.

The only moral is that every problem has many angles and the angles you or I see are just the ones turned our way.

THE PRICE IS HIGH

A little thing that happened recently reminds us of the high price we pay for things that we try to get for nothing.

A little boy, a big boy, or possibly a grown man somewhere hereabouts took a four or five-pound brass tube from a rain gauge. The Hesperian uses and realized from it a few cents for junk. Work has been a little slow and somebody might have needed some potatoes badly enough to do that, or a little lad may have wanted a gadget he saw in the window, or some bright hued candy. Anyhow, the little fellow or grown man has worried enough already about it to make the price too high, unless it was hungry kids that needed feeding. They say that the cry of hungered children steals one's nerves and sears the conscience. We'd like mighty well to have the rain gauge barrel back but we'd hate mightily to know who took it.

A guilty conscience is the worst company a man ever had.

THE FAMILY BUDGET

It has been said that never before have people spent so much money or saved so much. The seeming extravagance is only seeming. The intelligent use of the budget has emancipated many people from financial burdens. They do not ask their income where it went, they tell it where to go. By first setting aside enough for the necessities—food, clothing, shelter, operating, etc., and a definite sum for the security of savings and insurance, they enjoy their recreations, indulge their whims and contribute to their charities without a shadow of worry.

Big business today operates on a budget system. The United States Government has found that its departments function better and at the same time more efficiently under a budget plan. The same methods that are being used by large corporations and our government can also be applied to the expenditure of the family income. Thousands of families who have adopted this system would not be willing to go back to the old haphazard way. But there are still too many folks trying to stretch their incomes, and it can't be done. Unfortunately we can't spend the same money twice or three times—if we could, there would be no need for a budget. We can't "have our cake and eat it too."

A family budget is an estimate of the family income and expenditure for a given ensuing period, a week, a month or a year, with proposals for maintaining a proper balance between the various types of expenditure. It simply puts the reverse English on expenditures. Instead of spending first and wondering where the family income went, you list what you are going to spend and how you are going to spend it in advance and then abide by your plan.

The ideal family budget is one that is worked out by the particular family that is to use it. We all differ somewhat in our ideas of needs and luxuries. A standardized budget does not allow for personal tastes.

We urge every reader to draw up a family budget—make the family income go around. Let the whole family help in making up the budget, and keep track of all expenditures in every division. Make it a sort of family game, and you will find it the most successful and prosperous "game" you ever played.

The ant worked without work—the grasshopper played the comforts of life in a miserly way, and the other came to grief because he did not save and plan for the winter that was sure to come. They should both have been on the ant, learn of his ways, and be wise. Many have done so, and even wiser than the ant, they have also taken a lesson from the grasshopper (who after all did have a wonderful time—while it lasted). There is a sense of play in most of us which should find a normal outlet, and not be suppressed by money worries. The budget takes into consideration our need for recreation, and anyone who faithfully adheres to the budget that is best suited to his needs will have the greatest freedom to really enjoy life.

In order to formulate your family budget, turn to another page of this paper where you will find many helpful ideas on family budgeting. Do not fail to observe the names of the business and professional men appended to the bottom of this page. It is through their loyalty to your town and their town, that so good a program has been made possible to appear this week in The Hesperian.

This And That

It's a grand and glorious feeling to have a nice shower like we had last Friday night over a territory bigger than the whole of France, such as West Texas is, and undoubtedly the brighter outlook is set up on our countenances in this section. A West Texan could no more help smiling when it comes a good rain than he can help "gripping" when it rains over two days in a row. A West Texan wants his rain; but he must have his sunshine. And this is not just kidding.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

HELP YOURSELF TO HAPPINESS
By Lawrence Hawthorne

The world is full of joy and cheer,
Of beauty and of song;
There's happiness for everyone,
And those who trudge along
With gladness glowing in their hearts
Are mighty sure to find
That life is friendly to us all,
And fortune's hand is kind.

There may be clouds of grief or pain
That sometimes dim the view,
But after just a little while
The sun comes smiling through;
So, help yourself to happiness
Wherever it may be,
For God has filled the world with joys,
And all of them are free!

others who use the paper in a unique and practical way. Quite often in the past twenty years, Mr. Price claims, he has planted half a dozen "wet issues" of The Hesperian in his orchard and they carried his trees through some of the driest spells on record. We sure do write realistic like. Even trees believe it, Mr. Price says, whether it's so or not. We are saving a few extras for him this week.

We don't mind saying that the rain is going to make wheat hurp itself, and being in the prophesying business, we'll say for the benefit of our customers who want to keep Wall Street in the dark about our crops, that a whole lot of the crop is bound to get frostbitten by the freeze that is coming sometime in the earlier part or middle of April. Send this to your friends on Wall Street if you think they don't know more there about crop conditions in Floyd County or any other county they're interested in, for that matter, than you do.

But sure enough, things do look fairly rosy now, don't they? This early rain ought to get the weeds started early enough so that a man can kill out a good crop of them when he gets ready to plant; and since the rainy weather has demonstrated that it can rain in the spring of 1930 there will be little, if any, excuse for the moisture not being sufficient for all needs. We have to remind ourselves, though, that a middling fair rain in March does not "assure a bumper crop" in Floyd County this fall.

On the other hand, we've heard of a crop being raised in this county on two sprinkles and a clap of thunder. It's just that good a country.

This writer made another one of his notorious errors a week or two ago. He credited Mr. and Mrs. Mark Martin, of this city, with a new son, or maybe it was a daughter. Anyhow, we attempted delivery of the mite of humanity to the home and now we have an

'Round The Square
With Old Battleaxe (Himself)

Dog gone this weather! It's so dog gone pretty on the plains in the Spring that a fellow don't want to do nothing but eat, sleep and go places. It's sure wonderful out here on these plains, and if you think I'm fooling, you had just better see how it is at other places.

Anyway, this weather has sure played havoc with this here column. I just don't feel in any mood to write this week, at all. So right now, folks, I'm going to pass on to you a clipping that is one of the finest things I've read lately. Some of you will give it the "merry ha-ha," cause it is old and sob stuff, but it's recommended for opening up the old heart. Give this a chance to stay with you a minute.

Although I didn't write this, I'm going to take the liberties of dedicating this little piece to every father of a boy between the ages of six and ten years old. "Soft music and light's low, Please George."

"I am saying this to you as you lie asleep, one little paw crumpled under your cheek and the blond curls sticking wet on your damp forehead. I have stolen into your room alone. Just a few minutes ago, as I sat reading my paper in the library, a hot, stifling wave of remorse swept over me. I could not resist it. Guiltily I came to your bedside.

"These are the things I was thinking, son: I had been cross to you. I scolded you as you were dressing for school because you gave your face merely a dab with the towel. I took you to task for not cleaning your shoes. I called out angrily when I found you had thrown some of your things on the floor.

"At breakfast I found fault, too. You had spilled things. You had gulped down your food. You put your elbows on the table. You spread butter too thick on your bread. And as you started off to play, and I made for my train you turned and waved a little hand and called, 'Good-bye, Daddy!' and I frowned and said in reply, 'Hold your shoulders back.'

"Then it began all over again in the late afternoon. As I came up the hill road, I spied you down on your knees, playing marbles. There were holes in your stockings. I humiliated you before your boy friends by making you march ahead of me back to the house. Stockings were expensive—and if you had to buy them you would be more careful; imagine that, son, from a father! It was such a stupid, silly logic!

"Do you remember, later, when I Palace for three days beginning tonight, sure knows her stuff. Certainly, she will amaze you. The other day Jack Deakins, who told her manager he "didn't want to book no marvelous feature," like to a fell over when she told him all kinds of things about himself and his relatives, without batting an eye, or going off into a trance, or anything—just up and told him. You will miss it, if you miss it, and this is one of those write-ups that folks know, of course, "is paid for." Which reminds us that if the newspaper people got paid for the things they get credit for being paid for, or were subsidized, "bought off" half as many times as they get credit for being, there'd be no excuse for a poor, hard working newspaper man being any such thing. That's a fact, believe it or not.

was reading in the library, how you came in softly, timidly, with a sort of hurt, hunting look in your eyes? When I glanced up over my paper, impatient at the interruption, you hesitated at the door. 'What is it you want?' I snapped.

"You said nothing, but ran across in one tempestuous lunge, threw your arms around my neck and kissed me, again and again, and your small arms tightened with an affection that God has set blooming in your heart and which even neglect would not wither. And then you were gone, pattering up the stairs.

"Well, son, it was shortly afterwards that my paper slipped from my hands and a terrible sickening fear came over me. Suddenly I saw myself as I really was, in all my horrible selfishness, and I felt sick at heart.

"What has habit been doing to me? The habit of complaining, of finding fault, or reprimanding—all of these were my rewards to you for being a boy. It was not that I did not love you; it was because I expected too much of youth. It was measuring you by the yard stick of my own years.

"And here was so much that was good, and fine and true in your character. You did not deserve my treatment of you so. The little heart of you was as big as the dawn itself over the wide hills. All this was shown by your spontaneous impulse to rush in and kiss me good night. Nothing else matters tonight, son. I have come to your bedside in the darkness and I have knelt there choking with emotion, and so ashamed! It is a feeble atonement. I know you would not understand these things if I told them to you during your waking hours, yet I must say what I am saying. I must burn sacrificial fires alone, here, in your bedroom. And make free confession. And I have prayed God to strengthen me in my new resolve. Tomorrow, I will be a real daddy! I will chum with you and suffer when you suffer and laugh when you laugh. I will bite my tongue when impatient words come. I will keep saying as if it were a ritual: 'He is nothing but a boy—a little boy.'

"I am afraid I have visualized you as a man. Yet I see you now, son, crumpled and weary in your cot, I see you are still a baby. Yesterday you were in your mother's arms, your head on her shoulder. I have asked too much, too much! 'Dear boy! Dear little son! A penitent kneels at your infant shrine, here in the moonlight. I kiss the little fingers and the damp forehead!'

Jots in Jest

A professor at Northwestern University says there should be easy chairs in lecture rooms. Students aren't particular—they'll sleep in most any kind.

But maybe the good professor merely wants to do a good turn for students suffering from insomnia.

Harry Lauder, Scotch comedian, who slipped in his bathtub and broke a rib, will soon be telling us it was the one he could least afford to spare.

Well, he certainly will be able to sing with greater feeling, "Stop Your Ticking, Jock."

Emil Jannings, movie star, was painfully injured when trampled by admirers in Vienna. It's a shame to think what might have happened to him had he been as warmly received in Los Angeles.

WORK AND PLAY AT SAND HILL
March 12, 1930.

Dear Editor:
Backward, oh, backward, turn time in your flight, and make me a child again just for tonight.

That is just what happened at Sand Hill Friday night when Mrs. W. E. Miller dressed as a ten-year-old girl and read an essay on "The Human Body."

It is a very true saying that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. So we are playing and working both at Sand Hill, trying to make money to finance our club activities, and we feel if you will come and be with us at our programs we can make the evening pleasant for you.

Mrs. A. R. Hanna.

Boy Scouting is having a hard time getting over with the grown people of Floydada. Although the boys are "crazy" about it, the just-under-twelve-year-of-age size wondering if they'll ever get twelve, many of their seniors "have their doubts," the while they expect a boy to stand around, do nothing or something he exceedingly hates to do, and keep out of mischief. Many a boy finds himself in Boy Scouting, we are told.

ISSUE OF MARCH 23, 1916

Sam Goslee, who is buglar for the Plainview Company, 4th Infantry National Guards, left Monday morning for Plainview to be in readiness when the company is called out for service on the Rio Grande.

The Methodist Church of Floydada has purchased the Hancock residence across the street from the Methodist Church, which will hereafter be used as the parsonage.

Miss Susie Stanley is employed as saleslady for Mathis-Martin Dry Goods Company, having begun work last week with this firm.

We accidently ran across an old telephone directory of the Floydada exchange issued sometime in 1903 or 1904 the other day that will probably prove interesting to many who still think themselves familiar with things "as they were" in Floydada. R. D. Walls established the first telephone system in Floydada, and owned and operated the line from Floydada to Lockney and from Floydada to Matador, as well as we remember. Early in the nineteen hundreds he sold out to the Northwest Texas Telephone Company, of Amarillo.

A. D. White was appointed manager, and shortly thereafter issued the directory responsible for these ravings. There were few set rules "in these parts" even as late as 1904, except perhaps those rules which pertained to the theft of cattle. Mr. White had one rule, however, which was unalterable. This rule said: "Central office is open until 9 o'clock railroad time. (Floydada was 100 miles by stage from a railroad). Do not ring after that hour except on very urgent business, such as a hasty call for a doctor." Forty-two patrons were listed in the telephone directory.

It's a good idea to incubate a few eggs before the breeding season as a check on the fertility of the flock. Keep some reserve males on hand in case of sickness or accident to the regular breeder, or to replace males that are not reliable breeders.

Fashion Places Fabrics and Straws Over Felts for Hat Wear This Spring

BL HARRIET

Hatting the mode this spring is a strictly feminine business. Chap-eaux never were so sweet and flattering.

Fabrics and straws are far in the lead over felts for spring. Felt, when used, is apt to be joined with some contrasting material, like lace straw, fine silk ribbon, hand-cloaked linen or other fabric.

There are turbans, berets and many hats with brims. Most women, now used to off-the-face hats, want one or two of this kind in the spring wardrobe.

No color is better than blue this spring. Blue with a touch of pink is excellent. It is Parisian. It is very new. Beige takes a touch of blue, green, red or other contrast to it, in many hats. Black and gold is the supper color. Black and white is chic for late afternoon.

One of the new hats that has style points no one can afford to overlook is the tweed straw hat. Instead of tweed hats to match one's first without-a-coat frock, fashion now furnishes all the design in the tweed made up in straw into which tweed thread has been woven, in a tweed pattern. For a new Paris frock of tweed, in which red and beige have been woven together, there is a chic little hat, with a bit of rolled back brim, made of the same tones, with its crown piped in red. A purse of the same fabric is bound and lined with red.

The soft, pack-a-way turban has high importance in the new mode. These may be made of woven straw or of lace straw or of gold and silver straw, used in conjunction with satin, felt or other materials that stand up well under strain.

One of these, which graduates from the ordinary hat into just the hat for tea-time or even dinner, is made of gold and black straw mesh, with black satin ribbon simulating a bandeau in front and tying in a sweet bow over one ear. This little hat, like the majority of this type, takes its inspiration from the beret but is much more draped and much less casual.

Paris has made some stunning frock and hat ensembles this spring of silk. One of these is a navy blue

ACTS LIKE IT WAS MADE FOR HER

I Haven't Seen a Well Day For Ten Years Until I Took Orgatone (Argotane) Says Lubbock Housewife.

This Orgatone (Argotane) acts just like it was made especially for my case," said Mrs. J. F. Higgins of 302 Ave. Q Lubbock, Texas. Mrs. Higgins husband is an employee of the Lubbock Lumber Co., and is well known in this section of Texas.

"The fact is I had not seen a well day for ten years and almost as soon as I started taking it is went right to the seat of my trouble and anybody could see that I was getting better.

"My stomach was all out of order and gave me lots of trouble and I was also bothered with liver and kidney trouble. I had no appetite and could hardly eat enough to keep me on my feet and what I did eat soured on my stomach and I would bloat up until I would be miserable for hours. I had such terrible intense pains in my stomach at times and I could hardly stand it. I was weak and nervous all run down didn't rest well at night and would get up in the mornings feeling tired and not fit for anything I would keep getting worse condition and nothing seemed to do a bit of good I took all kinds of patent medicines and treatments and spent dollar after dollar but it was just like throwing money away for I didn't get any results.

"Orgatone (Argotane) had helped so many people and it was recommended to me so I decided to try it and it was a lucky day for me when I did. I have just taken one bottle and can go about my work feeling fine and am not troubled in the least with my stomach, kidneys or liver troubles. I honestly feel better than I have in the past ten years and I am going to take the full treatment and then I know I shall have all my perfect health again. Orgatone (Argotane) has just saved my life and I am more than glad to recommend it."

Genuine Orgatone (Argotane) may be obtained in Floydada at the Moore Drug Store.

because of improvements in its 60 horsepower engine

Much of Pontiac's increased smoothness is due to new type rubber mountings which now insulate its engine from the frame, and to a more right crankcase which assures more permanent bearing and crankshaft alignment. Then too, smoothness is intensified by the Harmonic Balancer which counteracts torsional crankshaft vibration. Finally, Pontiac's basic engine design enables it to develop 60 horsepower at moderate engine speed. No matter how fast or hard you drive, the engine runs smoothly and silently. . . . In this car you get reliability and long life seldom equalled except in cars of much higher price. Furthermore, you get remarkable economy. Your own good judgment should suggest that you investigate this finer Pontiac.

Decade Will Witness Growth Of Southwest

Marvin Jones, 18th District Congressman, Expects Greatest Development in History.

Southward, as well as westward, the star of Empire takes its way, declares Congressman Marvin Jones of Amarillo in a letter to the press this week, in which he says "We have reached the end of an epoch in the history of our country." Continuing he says:

"New England industry is on the wane. The South and Southwest have been growing and building.

"The coming decade will witness the greatest development in the Southern and Southwestern States that has ever taken place within the borders of America.

"In making this statement I am not merely expressing my own views. It represents the viewpoint of practically every one who has studied these conditions.

"What are the influences that are bringing about this new development? Why are men of experience advising young men to seek their fortunes in this fastgrowing section?

"Here is the reason:

"The South and Southwest today possess much of the reserve supply of the natural resources of America, the raw material out of which so many thousands of articles are being made.

"The South has a large reserve of timber, coal and iron.

"The Southwest has a large reserve supply of the world's oil, natural gas and hydro-electric power.

"Our portion of the Union has, in large measures, a natural monopoly on cotton, cotton seed and cotton seed oil.

"We have the finest wheat land in America.

"In addition to all these advantages, the Southwest has a climate and a fertile soil with which no other section of the world can compare.

"If properly utilized, her coal, oil, natural gas and water-power will give her a tremendous advantage over New England—that of cheap power with which to transform her raw materials into the finished article. By saving the freight charges from New England to the Southern States, our factory owners would prosper, our laborers could be well paid, and our section would grow wealthy.

"The difference in climate between our section and the Northern States gives the average family in the South and Southwest a decided advantage in the cost of clothes and fuel, to say nothing of the saving in building construction.

"According to the Department of Commerce, our industries have tripled in the last decade.

"As a dairying section, we are destined to lead the Nation. Our soil, climate and abundance of feed materials give us advantages with which other sections cannot compete.

"When the fact becomes generally known that Texas and surrounding States are practically free from tuberculosis among the cattle, while the cattle of the Northern States, and especially the Northeastern States, are infested to a dangerous degree, the demand for our dairy products will be greater than can be supplied.

"The South has passed through the stress period that followed the Civil War, and a new day is dawning. She is destined to lead the world in the triumphant march of future progress."

Hides should be cleaned before being salted and cured. Clean hides bring better prices, and other things being equal there is less waste and they make better leather. Meat and fat should be removed, ragged edges trimmed off, and the ears split twice. Then wash both sides of the hide with clean, cold water and a brush. Scrub particularly the hair side to remove all dirt from the hair, but be careful when doing this not to scratch or scar the grain. Let the hide drain thoroughly to remove excess water before salting.

Mrs. P. T. Rucker and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. McDonald returned last Friday from Fort Worth where they had spend several days visiting and attending the Fat Stock Show. Mrs. W. D. Smith, mother of Mrs. Rucker, who had been visiting in Fort Worth some time returned home with them. Mrs. Rucker and Mrs. Smith went on to their home in Lubbock that evening.

FARMER PAYS ONLY 2 CENTS FOR LOBBY

For the price of a postage stamp farmers of America have the most effective lobby service in Washington, John T. Flynn, financial expert, has discovered from the lobby committee hearing at the capital. An assessment of two cents per farmer, Flynn declares in an article in The Country Home, gives a lobby representation which works in the open and obtains constructive results while other lobbies are expending sums as high as a half million dollars in vain attempts to secure legislative action on single items of the tariff bill. The writer points out that the American sugar people spent $400,000 and the Cuban interests $100,000 on the sugar tariff rate alone, while the National Coal Association has a budget of $200,000 a year. Against this amount the farm lobby has but $60,000 to spend.

For this sum Flynn lists among the measures of benefit to farmers that have been put through, the government expenditure of $100,- 000,000 on good roads; the oleomargarine regulation bill; the packers control bill; the filled milk and cheese bills; the pure lard bill; the misbranded insecticide bill and numerous tariff items benefiting agriculture. In the last regular session the farm lobby was instrumental in securing the passage of the Capper-Ketchum extension bill; various bills providing funds for born-borer cleanup work, eradication of the boll-weevil and for the expansion of research work by the Department of Agriculture. In war time the farm lobby induced Congress to drop the lottery draft system and substitute the selective draft, thus saving thousands of workers for the farms. Further, Flynn concludes, the farm lobby has succeeded in bringing about government encouragement of the same forms of farmers' cooperatives that previously were opposed as illegal combinations in restraint of trade.

AGAIN KONJOLA GIVES PROOF OF AMAZING POWER

Ten Years Of Rheumatism Are Ended When New Medicine Is Given A Chance.

MRS. G. H. COLEMAN
What cheer and encouragement are to be found in the many victories of Konjola, the new and different medicine of 32 ingredient Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Mrs. G. H. Coleman, R. F. D. No. 3, Ft. Smith, Ark. Imagine her happiness when she was able to say:

"When I look back and think how I suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble for ten years I can hardly believe that I am well and happy as I am today. And all this glorious change is due to Konjola. For ten years I endured awful agonies. At times the pain in my limbs was so severe that I could not get around. Every night I was up many times, and the loss of sleep and rest told on my general health. A friend urged me to try Konjola, and what good advice that proved to be. In four weeks I was without a sign of rheumatism, and my kidneys were as good as ever. No wonder Konjola is the most talked of medicine in America. It should be in every home throughout the land."

Konjola is sold in Floydada at Floydada Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

COMPARE VALUES BEFORE YOU BUY AN AUTOMOBILE

Low charges for distribution of the new Ford save you at least $50 to $75 in addition to the many savings in making the car

THESE are days when every dollar counts. The period of reckless spending is over. People are going back to the good old-fashioned principles of thrift and economy. Value is again being carefully considered.

Nowhere is this more important than in the selection of an automobile. For the purchase of a car represents a considerable investment. It should not be decided on hurriedly, but only after analyzing every important factor that concerns cost, value and performance. The time to do this is before buying—not afterward when it is too late.

ON THE basis of cost, performance and the actual comparative worth of every part, the new Ford is a value far above the price you pay. It is made of better materials and with greater care and accuracy because of the recognized efficiency and economy of Ford manufacturing methods.

The value of these methods is known and understood by millions of people. It is not generally realized, however, that these same principles of efficiency and economy are applied also to every step in the distribution of the Ford car. The low cost of selling, financing time payments, etc., means a direct saving to you of at least $50 to $75 in addition to the money saved by Ford economies in making the car. Here are three reasons why this is so.

(1) The Ford dealer does business on a smaller margin of profit because of the greater number of cars he sells. His discount or commission is the lowest of any automobile dealer. The difference in your favor, ranging from 25% to nearly 50%, comes right off the price you pay for the car.

(2) The Ford charges for financing are low.

(3) No expensive extra equipment is needed when you buy a Ford. The car leaves the factory ready for use. The f.o.b. price includes a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield and an extra steel-spoke wheel, in addition to four Houdaille double-acting shock absorbers and fully enclosed four-wheel brakes. Any accessories you may wish for your individual taste are sold considerably below the usual prices. None of these charges for selling, financing or accessories is marked up or increased to cover a high trade-in allowance on a used car.

Get all the facts, therefore, before you buy and figure out just what you are getting for your automobile dollars. Go beyond the f.o.b. price and find out how much more you pay the dealer than the dealer pays at the factory. Analyze the used-car allowance. Compare all charges—item for item—value for value.

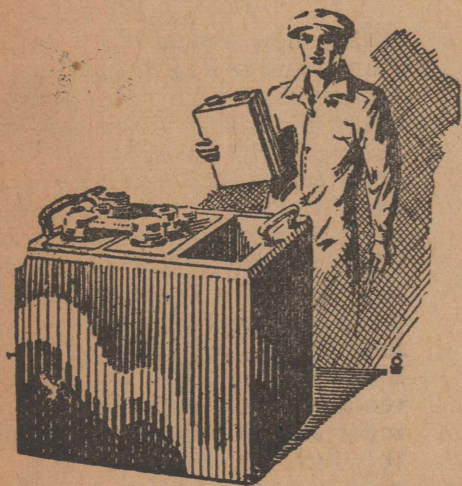

WHEN you do this you will have a new appreciation of what the Ford Motor Company and Ford dealers are doing to keep down the cost of Ford cars. You will also know why it is possible to put so much real value into the new Ford and still retain the low price. The money you pay goes for value in the car. It is not wasted in excessive costs in manufacturing or selling.

Outstanding Speakers For Herd Improvement School March 28-29

Practical Rather Than Technical Discussions Will Be Made At Teachers College.

A two-day herd improvement school will be given in connection with the Agricultural Department of the Teachers College at Canyon on the last Friday and Saturday of this month. The aim of this school is to better acquaint the breeders of West Texas with the scientific principles underlying bull clubs, pure seed farms, and improved poultry strains.

The classes will start at ten o'clock Friday morning, March 28. The first day will be devoted to the physical basis of inheritance; particularly the principles underlying the scientific mating of farm animals; also, reasons why farm animals will not breed will be discussed. The second day will be devoted to diseases of reproductive organs, line breeding, bull clubs, poultry improvement, and problems concerning seed farms.

Outstanding speakers from the Livestock Sanitary Board at Fort Worth, from the Pure Seed Commission at Austin, and from Agricultural Colleges will participate in the program. Mr. P. C. Bennett, Agricultural Manager of the City Board of Development of Amarillo, and founder of the first bull club in Texas; and Professor George P. Grout of Panhandle, who approved blood lines for the first bull club in Texas, will have prominent parts on the program. Professor William Gourley of Silverton, who is President of the Vocational Agricultural Teachers of the Panhandle and who is one of the promoters of the school, thinks this one of the greatest opportunities West Texas dairymen and other livestock breeders have had to learn the most important facts concerning their work.

The school will be handled from the practical side rather than from the technical. Those in charge expect to have every talk at the school given in every-day language which will make it possible for those without technical training to have an opportunity to learn scientific breeding principles. This is the first time that such an attempt has been made in West Texas.

Bridging Ocean Nearer With Seadrome Success

The ambitious plan to bridge the oceans with man-made islands, which was first proposed after the Lindbergh flight, is nearing reality. With the success of the first model built by Edward R. Armstrong, consulting engineer of the DuPont Corporation, who obtained a leave of absence to construct a seadrome over his own plans, work will be pushed rapidly on the first "island" which will be anchored about half way between New York and Bermuda, 375 miles out, says The American Magazine.

The seadrome, which will be known as the Langly, will not be a mere alighting place. It will contain a hotel, machine shops and fuel storage tanks. It is estimated that more than forty persons will be required to man the island. It will afford a landing platform 1,100 feet long and will have a breadth of 340 feet in the center and 180 feet at the ends. The whole structure will be 250 feet high and will protrude 80 feet above the water. It will be moored in 12,000 feet of water by special anchorage system devised by Armstrong and while it may change direction with the wind, it will have no side to motion owing to the 32 "legs" which constitute the ballast system. The island will weigh 28,000 tons and will cost about $1,750,000.

Armstrong and his associates have gone into the construction of seadromes on a purely commercial basis and will operate the islands in connection with their own line of airplanes. Bermuda served as a test to cut the time of

A bridge graft is made by using scions or small limbs to connect the injured areas of bark. Farmers' Bulletin 1369-F on "Bridge Grafting," which can be secured from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, tells how to make successful bridge grafts.

Chevrolet announces

A NEW

SERVICE POLICY

The Chevrolet Motor Company and its dealers are pleased to announce a new service policy—one of the most liberal ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

Put into force as a written agreement given to the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the car is delivered—it offers the following provisions:

1 Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted, and ready to operate efficiently from the first mile of ownership.

2 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage.

3 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1000 miles thereafter, so long as the car is in operation.

4 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part which may prove defective in workmanship or material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty. This includes both parts and labor.

5 Provision number 4 will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. As a result, the Chevrolet owner may travel to any part of the country, with assurance that the guarantee on materials and workmanship will remain in force.

This new policy constitutes proof of Chevrolet's high quality—for such liberal provisions could only be made in connection with a car built of fine materials to exacting standards of workmanship.

Back of this policy, and assuring its successful operation, is one of the most complete and efficient service organizations in the world.

There are more than 10,000 Authorized Chevrolet Dealer Service Stations in the United States alone. Each employs skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet Service Schools. Each has specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. And each has on hand, at all times, an adequate stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts.

Chevrolet's flat-rate charges, including both parts and labor, are the lowest in the industry on many service operations!

In considering the purchase of a low-priced automobile, think what this service means—in terms of lasting satisfaction, as well as in increased economy.

Chevrolet Announces A New Service Policy

New Plan Gives Owner Greater Protection After Delivery Of Car Is Made.

Detroit, March 18.—The Chevrolet Motor Company today announces a new and broader service policy. Any Chevrolet owner, experiencing defective workmanship or material on a Chevrolet car under the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty, is invited to call upon any authorized Chevrolet dealer in the United States or Canada where the work will be done at no cost to him.

The plan, known as the Owner's Service Policy, is now in effect in the 10,000 authorized Chevrolet service stations in the United States, operating under the general supervision of the 52 Chevrolet branch offices.

The new policy takes the form of a written agreement given the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the new car is delivered. It puts down in plain, understandable language the greater service protection to which every Chevrolet owner is now entitled. Briefly, it offers the following provisions:

1. Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition — thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted and ready to operate efficiently from the first mile of ownership.

2. Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage. This includes checking and adjusting the brakes, tappets, timing, generator, carburetor, clutch pedal, and steering gear; tightening all body bolts, tightening all motor bolts; testing and filling battery and checking the oil level in the transmission and rear axle.

3. Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every thousand miles thereafter so long as the car is in operation.

4. Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part, which may prove defective, either in workmanship or in material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty, provided such parts and labor are not required because of accident or mechanical abuse. This includes both parts and labor. This provision will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States.

WHAT MADE SCOTLAND GREAT

There is an old story of an Englishman who called a Scotchman about the national habit of eating oat cakes. "In England," said he, "we feed oats to horses."

"Yes," retorted the hardy Scot, "and in England ye grow horses, while in Scotland we grow men."

Nearly everybody eats some oatmeal or rolled oats since oat-milling machinery has been developed, but it takes only about 5 per cent of the American crop to supply the cereals for our tables, while the remainder is used for stock feed. None of the Southwestern crop enters into the breakfast menu, since our crop is confined to the red oat family, of which the Red Rustproof is the general type, and Fulghum, Kanota and Nortex are selected strains. Fulghum, originated in Georgia thirty years ago, was adopted in Kansas and the experiment station put out its selection as Kanota, while Nortex is a pure line strain developed at the Denton (Texas) Experiment Station from the common Texas Red Rustproof. These varieties are all used for fall sowing, but are also sown from January to March in the Southwest. The Denton Station has also pure-lined the Frazier oat especially for spring planting. The distinguishing characteristics and adaptation of these various strains are explained in bulletins which may be had for the asking.

Spring oats with a slightly thinner seeding than normal are being used with splendid success as a nurse crop for white sweet clover, the Frazier perhaps having some advantage for this purpose from Red River southward, though all varieties lend themselves to this method of establishing rotation including one or two years of clover. This rotation has greatly increased corn and wheat yields at the Denton Station.

No farmer with livestock to feed and soil adapted thereto should be without an oat field. As a cash crop oats does not stand high, but its importance in a rotation with corn and cotton is shown by the fact that such a rotation paid better at the Temple (Texas) Blackland Station than all cotton.

Where root rot is prevalent oats give an opportunity to summer fallow, which is, according to present knowledge, a necessary part of a root rot reduction program. The experiments mentioned showed that the disease was reduced greatly below the infection in adjoining plots planted in cotton every year.

With greatly increased dairying and beef cattle feeding, the oat crop in the Southwest should be materially increased, for this grain is one of the most valuable that enters into any well-balanced ration. It is well known to every farmer that oats supply a better working ration for horses and mules than any other single grain, especially in summer. When corn used with oats, a fairly well-balanced ration is provided.

Oats require more water than any other cereal, and therefore should be sown in the Southwest at a time to mature before the summer drought comes on. The early varieties do this very well in a normal season, even if sown in the spring. Sown on excessively rich land, oats are liable to lodge worse than other small grains, though this tendency may be somewhat mitigated by pasturing as late as the stemming tendency will allow; this tends to force heavier stooling and shorter straw. While oats will make the most of the extra moisture in wet lands, they cannot be so readily pastured on such land, are more liable to rust and to lodging.

Being a heavy feeder, the oat crop will probably get more out of thin and poor land, which makes it ideal for nursing sweet clover to improve the soil. Oats are cut greener than any other small grain which also shortens their time on the ground; and since they shatter badly when dead ripe, it is best to have them on ground which dries out quickly after a rain.

The best feeders thresh and grind oats to go into balanced rations, but the crop has an advantage no other small grain possesses, in that it can be satisfactorily

From this standpoint it might be considered the small farmer's best feed crop—cheapest to grow, harvest, store and feed. In certain counties of South Central Texas the tall, conical stacks of oats standing from year to year assures even the casual observer that these people have strong work animals because they are never out of feed.—By T. The Grand Canyon, Yosemite and the Yellowstone will be visited en route and the ribs of old Mother Earth will be studied where they stick out into the open. Her age may even be reckoned from her teeth.

Soil, mines, forests, fauna and flora, deserts will all be part of the curriculum gradually unfolded to the rolling university. Learning is swiftly forsaking books and going back to life.
