Pioneers Will Celebrate Floyd County's Fortieth Birthday on May 28

Old Settlers To Meet On Court House Lawn

Residents Of County 25 Years Invited To Join In Celebration.

On Wednesday, May 28, 1930, Floyd County will pass its fortieth milestone. Commemorating this county's fortieth birthday, pioneers and old settlers are planning an all-day basket picnic on the lawn of the court house, recalling instances and repeating history of the earlier days in Floyd County and the Panhandle country. Every resident of Floyd County for twenty five years, and their families, are invited to be present and join in the celebration, according to "Uncle" Joe Day, president of the Floyd County Pioneers Association.

Kinder Will Speak
Major preparations for the second annual old settlers picnic were perfected last Saturday afternoon by directors of the association who met in the county court room. May 28, the county's birthday, was selected as the date for the annual meeting, the place being on the court house lawn and the occasion being an all-day basket picnic.

In addition to the regular features of the basket lunch carried out in the first meeting last year, it is planned for a large pot of coffee, cooked in the real olden ways, to be prepared for the visitors. Few speeches will be made during the day, the major idea of the meeting being to give the old settlers and pioneers an opportunity to meet each other, say "howdy" and recall memories of by-gone days.

Judge L. S. Kinder, one of the pioneers of West Texas, will be invited to address the old timers at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, in the principal address of the day. Judge Kinder, a resident of Plainview, helped to organize and has been influential in many of the early activities in Floyd and other counties over this section.

According to the program for the day, roughly outlined at the meeting of the directors last Saturday, registration of the delegates will begin at 10 o'clock. At 10:30 a. m., Rev. R. E. L. Muncy will extend the welcome address to the visitors, and Rev. G. T. Palmer will respond with a short talk. No more speaking will take place until 1:30 when Judge Kinder will speak to the pioneers. Selection of the officers of the association and tentative plans will be laid for the next meeting during the afternoon, also.

Nothing elaborate or "high powered" is being planned for the meeting, the main idea of the directors being to furnish a day of good, old time picnicing and get together. It was especially pointed out that every resident of the county for twenty-five years and their families are invited and urged to be present. Old time fiddle music will be furnished and other old timers who are talented to use the fiddle and bow, the French harp or other musical instrument are invited to bring them along and join the fun.

The directors of the Floyd County Pioneer Old Settlers Association, who met in session Saturday were J. J. Day, president, R. E. L. Muncy vice president, Tom W. Deen, secretary, and Mrs. Wm. McGehee, Mrs. E. C. Henry, Glad Snodgrass, and Geo. Fawver. Glad Snodgrass was named business manager of the association by the directors.

Personal invitations are being mailed this week to pioneer residents of the county, and the invitation is also being broadcast by word-of-mouth. All persons who know the names and addresses of early settlers of this county who will attend the meeting, are urged to notify the directors and a personal invitation will be extended them, it was stated.

Fire Boys Are Guests Of Lions Club Tuesday

Strickland Tells Members that Service is Keynote of Department.

"The key-note of the Floydada Volunteer Fire Department is service, and only when this department renders the very best of service in combating fires, and the public shows its appreciation of this service, then we feel that our goal has been attained." This, in substance, is the message of G. R. Strickland, fire marshal and fire chief, who acted as spokesman for fifteen fire boys who were honor guests of the Floydada Lions Club Tuesday at noon, May 6.

Mr. Strickland stated farther that "There is no discord in the department. No 'Big I's' and 'No Little You's.' With the co-operation of the citizens of the town, and the continued co-operation of the members of the department, we will be able to render the best of service," he said.

Members of the department who were guests of the Lions May 6 were Chief Strickland, L. V. Rogers, John Buchanan, V. L. Elliott, G. C. Glover, E. S. Johnson, Horace Kincaid, E. S. Price, A. L. Duncan, George Sherrill, Vergil Shaw, Jake Hill, Douglas Maddux, Lee Howard and Lacy Martin.

H. M. Mason, manager of the Lockney Cotton Oil Mill, was also a guest of the club and gave a very interesting talk on the manufacture, and uses of nitro-glycerine. Mr. Mason was at one time a member of the Royal Flying Corps, and gave a number of interesting facts on how explosives were used by bombing air-craft during the World War.

The final climax to Mr. Mason's talk, and to the meeting as well, came when S. W. Ross dropped a bottle of "nitro-glycerine" on the concrete floor of the church building. Through the help of A. J. Foley and his "six gun" a number of the members and guests became so excited that they almost made a number of new openings in the banquet room. There were no casualties.

Glad Snodgrass made a business trip to Amarillo Friday.

Floyd Hatchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Hatchell, formerly of this city and now of Oklahoma City, has been here since the first of the week visiting friends and relatives.

Miss Wanda Montague, who is making her home in Amarillo, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Montague, and her sister, Mrs. Robert Garrett.

Strickland, fire marshal and fire chief, who acted as spokesman for fifteen fire boys who were honor guests of the Floydada Lions Club Tuesday at noon, May 6.

Mr. Strickland stated farther that "There is no discord in the department. No 'Big I's' and 'No Little You's.' With the co-operation of the citizens of the town, and the continued co-operation of the members of the department, we will be able to render the best of service," he said.

Members of the department who were guests of the Lions May 6 were Chief Strickland, L. V. Rogers, John Buchanan, V. L. Elliott, G. C. Glover, E. S. Johnson, Horace Kincaid, E. S. Price, A. L. Duncan, George Sherrill, Vergil Shaw, Jake Hill, Douglas Maddux, Lee Howard and Lacy Martin.

H. M. Mason, manager of the Lockney Cotton Oil Mill, was also a guest of the club and gave a very interesting talk on the manufacture, and uses of nitro-glycerine. Mr. Mason was at one time a member of the Royal Flying Corps, and gave a number of interesting facts on how explosives were used by bombing air-craft during the World War.

The final climax to Mr. Mason's talk, and to the meeting as well, came when S. W. Ross dropped a bottle of "nitro-glycerine" on the concrete floor of the church building. Through the help of A. J. Foley and his "six gun" a number of the members and guests became so excited that they almost made a number of new openings in the banquet room. There were no casualties.

Glad Snodgrass made a business trip to Amarillo Friday.

Floyd Hatchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Hatchell, formerly of this city and now of Oklahoma City, has been here since the first of the week visiting friends and relatives.

Miss Wanda Montague, who is making her home in Amarillo, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Fannie Montague, and her sister, Mrs. Robert Garrett.

A Pioneer of Small Combines Backed by 99 Years' Experience

WHEN you invest in a harvester-thresher you expect to use it for many years. You want to harvest a variety of crops—you will have to harvest them under a variety of conditions and seasons. A combine must be able to do these things. If it does not it fails as an investment.

International Harvester is a pioneer in building the small combine. For 16 years it has been manufacturing and perfecting harvester-threshers. Refinements and improvements have been made from time to time only after thorough field tests.

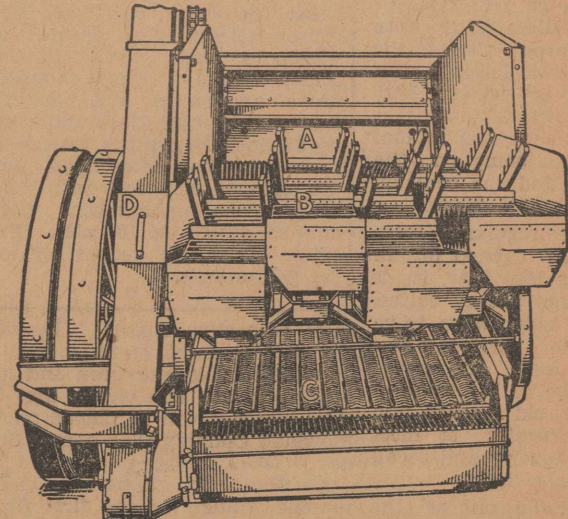

But here is the point of significance: the sound, accepted principles of harvesting and threshing mechanism remain—as the best methods yet devised for harvesting a variety of crops, threshing cleanly, and saving the grain or seeds.

McCormick and Deering names represent pioneers in the building of harvesting machines—and the McCormick-Deering is the only harvester-thresher that can trace its ancestry back to the Original Reaper. It is the only combine that has 99 years of harvesting-machine experience back of it.

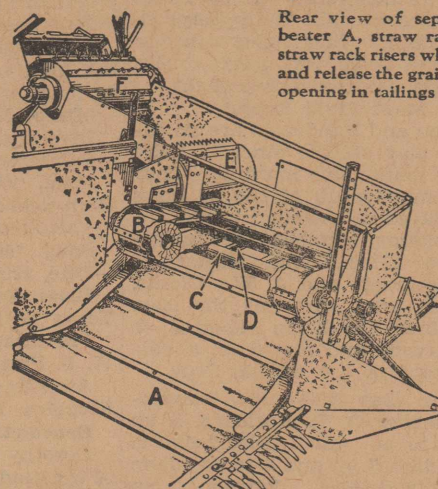

It makes use only of proved harvesting and threshing machine features. It is built upon principles that have stood the test of harvesting and threshing for years.

Play Safe... Select a McCormick-Deering

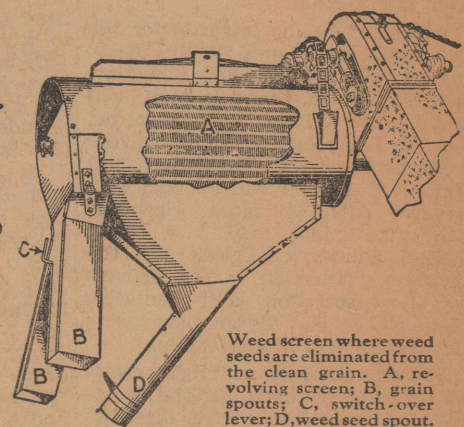

When you plan the purchase of a combine consider these things. Examine the McCormick-Deering—see how it meets every harvesting condition and how it cleans and saves the grain.

Rear view of separator showing cylinder beater A, straw rack B; note steel pins in straw rack risers which comb the straw apart and release the grain. C is the shoe, and D, opening in tailings elevator.

Elevator and feeder. A, platform and lower elevator canvas. B, upper elevator canvas cut away to show extra roller C, and carrier D. E, saw-toothed beater; F, spiked beater, which helps to carry grain to cylinder.

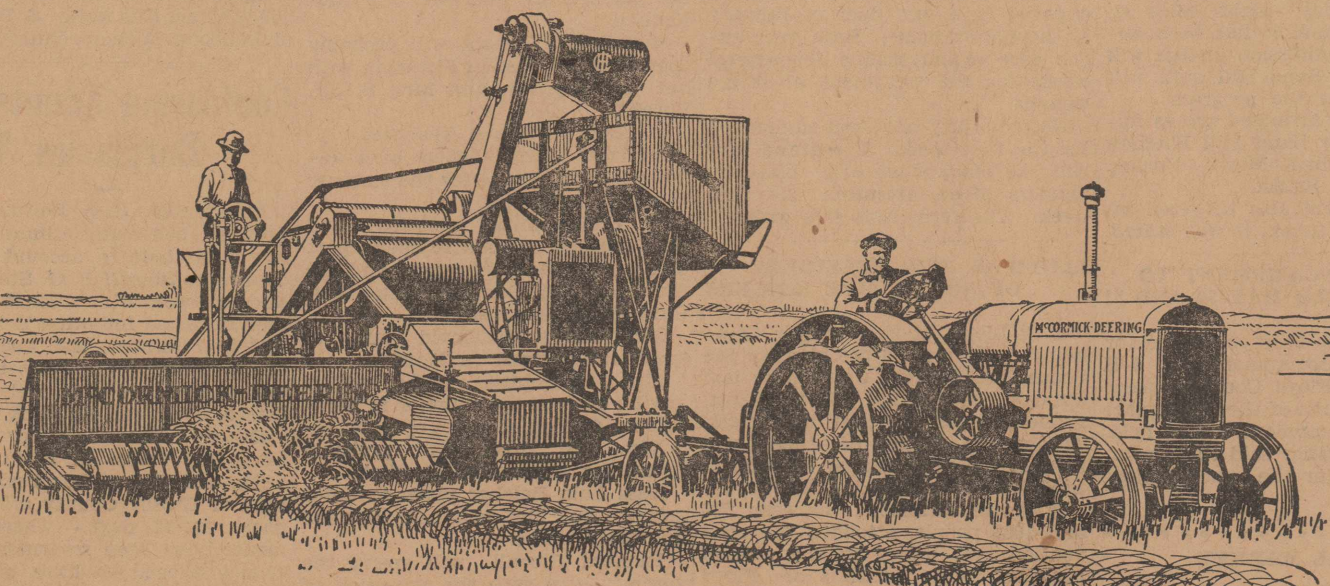

Weed screen where weed seeds are eliminated from the clean grain. A, revolving screen; B, grain spouts; C, switch-over lever; D, weed seed spout.

McCormick-Deering No. 11 Harvester-Thresher with 6½-foot pick-up device, handling the grain from a 16-foot swath cut by windrow-harvester

12 Important McCormick-Deering Points

- Adjustable to cut low. Gets lodged and tangled grain.
- Continuation of grain-tight platform canvas forms lower elevator canvas. No grain lost at end of platform. Large capacity, wide elevator carries all grain to feeder.
- Chain and slat feeder carries grain, heads first, into the cylinder. Direct front feed.
- Spiked beater in feeder assures positive feeding and controls delivery of grain to cylinder.
- Ninety per cent separation at cylinder. Straw and grain thus separated never mix again.
- Four-section straw rack. Extends entire length of thresher from cylinder to straw spreader. Combs straw apart, drops it three times, thoroughly shakes out all the grain.
- Extra long chaffer and cleaning sieve thoroughly cleans grain.
- Revolving weed screen takes weed seeds out of threshed grain and bags them. Saves dockage and reduces spread of weeds.
- Platform folds for transportation—does not have to be detached. No transport truck to buy.
- A pioneer of small combines—backed by 99 years of practical harvesting-machine experience and by field tests under difficult conditions in the harvest fields of the world.
- Expert service on the entire machine by permanent dealers and Company-owned branches.
- Handles a variety of crops under a variety of conditions and seasons.

Nurse Tells

How CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. W. A. Cox, a well-known professional nurse, of Burnside, Ky., writes: "I was in very bad health, and only weighed 110 pounds. I read in the papers about Cardui, and thought I would give it a try-out. After I had taken one bottle, I could see that I was improving. After I had taken it a month or two, I began to gain, and I weigh at present 168, and have weighed that for some time. I am now 55 years old, and can do as much work as the average middle-aged woman can."

"I would advise any woman, who is weakly and in a run-down condition, to try Cardui, but not to expect one bottle to make her well. I take two or three bottles a year, now, and I feel fine."

Few Vacant Houses in Dougherty

Dougherty even tho a small town, possibly holds the record for the smallest per cent of vacant houses of any town in the county or possibly on the South Plains. At present there is only one residence, one business house and one filling station vacant.

Aeroplane Factory for Dougherty

Dougherty probably has the only aeroplane factory in the county. Cecil Ferguson, a local citizen, is building a plane. He expects to have the frame and motor complete this week and is building his own motor. It is to be a monoplane of his own design and he believes he will have a motor that is equal to any on the market for light weight and power.

Now speaking of aeroplanes, say folks, has it ever occurred to you that it is possible to make an important airport here in Dougherty? We are on a direct line between San Antonio and Amarillo. Many planes passed over last week flying from these two points. Last week 15 planes passed, all flying together, traveling east. All this goes to prove that Dougherty is in the intersection of two routes and that it could be made an important airport if a little interest was given it.

ups and Downs of a domestic Climber

Mr. Graffe, the grocer, telephoned early every morning, about the time Mother was making the beds upstairs.

"Junior, you answer the 'phone!' Mother exclaimed, as the telephone downstairs rang. "The list's on the telephone stand. And we want—"

But Junior was halfway down the stairs. His thin treble floated back.

"A pound of butter," he was telling Mr. Graffe, "and . . . Mother! What's this word? R-u-t-a—"

"I'll talk to him, Junior!" She hurried down the steps to the telephone and repeated the remaining items on the list.

"Oh, dear," she sighed, hanging up the receiver. "These stairs will be the death of me, yet. I wish we had an 'extension' telephone upstairs."

Telephones where you need them save time, steps and trips up and downstairs.

Few know that the extra cost of an "extension" is between two and three cents a day.

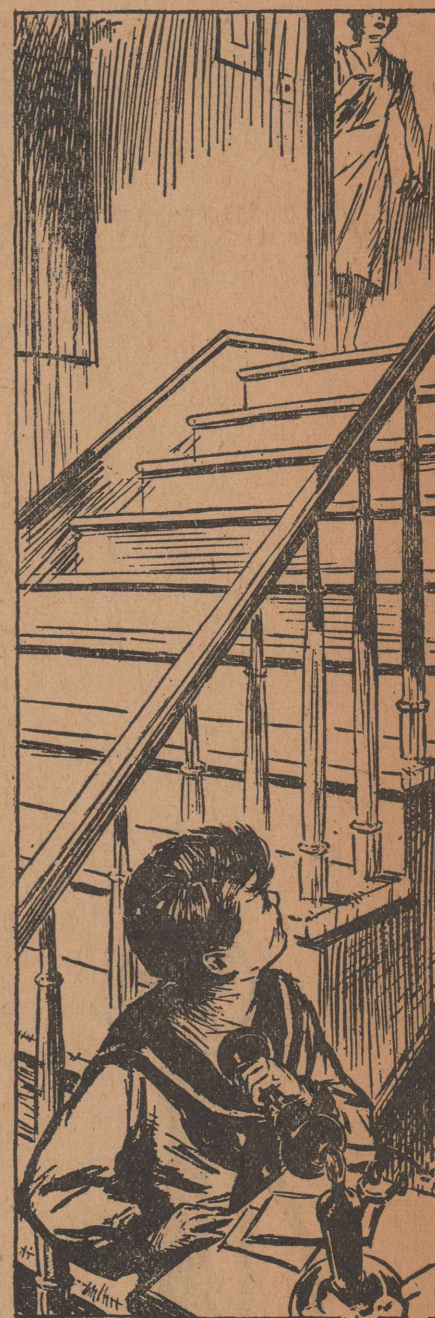

By a wisely-placed "extension" or two, an expert telephone man can often double the convenience of the telephones in your home.

What the Automobile Means to Us

TWENTY-FOUR ODD MILLION gasoline driven vehicles are on the streets of America today! An average of an automobile for every family in the United States!

"Four wheels and a motor" have speeded up our lives, and made big changes in our mode of living. It is safe to say that the automobile has BETTERED our opportunities and RAISED our standards of living.

With the automobile has come good roads; thousands of miles of hard surface paving. The isolated town is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. Trading territories have become larger, community competition keener. There are many who may decry the fact that the hard roads take business OUT of town. They are overlooking the fact that these hard roads lead BOTH DIRECTIONS. That the same road that leads OUT OF TOWN ALSO leads INTO TOWN! Greater opportunity, with larger markets, exist today for us because of the automobile.

The automobile has passed from the luxury class almost to the necessity class. Many families are finding it economical to have more than one car in the family; in many cases, a car for every member.

As a community, we have been benefited greatly by the increased usage of the automobile. It has widened our scope, and extended our boundaries. It has increased our business and pleasure. On the other hand, it has created keener community competition AS WELL as greater opportunity.

The community that makes the MOST USE OF THE AUTOMOBILE today is the community that will derive the GREATEST BENEFIT from the opportunities it offers and brings to us.

The Automobile offers US greater opportunities and a BIGGER MARKETING AREA. Let's get the most possible benefit for

Gored 60 Times, Mexico's Premier Bullfighter Still Yearns to Carry On

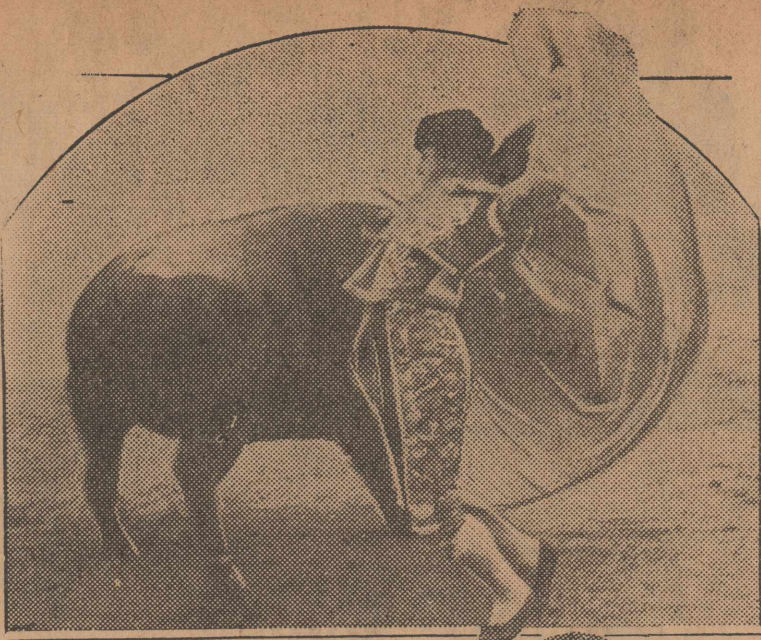

To Luis Freg, Mexico's premier matador, the bullring has an irresistible charm. Though he has been carried dying from the arena six times, though his body is crisscrossed with the scars of 1400 battles, Luis plans to carry on. He laughingly made that vow from the hospital at Juarez—just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex.—where he is confined with a torn leg, his 60th goring.

Mexico, which has nicknamed Freg the "Walter Johnson of the bullring" because of his speed, is fearful that his leg injury will slow him up, mark his decline. But Luis, always optimistic, is not worried. For 18 years he has made his comebacks and each time he has been hailed.

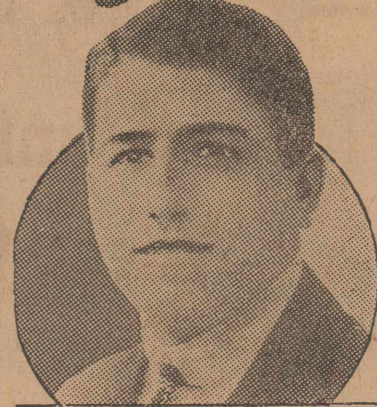

A Comeback
Most surprising of all his comebacks occurred in Spain. Shortly after recovering from gorings sustained at Seville and Barcelona, in which his lungs were punctured and an artery in his leg, Luis entered the tournament at Madrid. At the conclusion of the finals he had won the golden ear, symbolic of the bullfighting championship of the world.

The incident at Seville lingers in Luis' memory. He had given a breath-taking performance and, just when his work seemed over, the sharp horn of an outlaw bull caught him on the side. Blood spurting. The judge refused to award him the bull's ears, emblem of a sterling fight, the most sought after relic of matadors. Angered, the crowd surged into the ring, forced the judge to declare the award, and then marched in a body to the hospital where Freg lay, to make the presentation.

Afraid but Once
Luis was asked if he ever experienced fear in the ring. This was his answer: "Well, once I had to fight an unusually fierce bull. He was the biggest one I had ever seen. One matador went down before him, gored badly. Four banderilleros, who must stick the barbed banderillas in the bull's neck and escape, had been caught on the horns.

"I went into the ring. The bull rushed me. I plunged forward, all my weight on the sword. A miss meant death. The sword point hit true. I had won. I killed him, but before I went into the ring I felt like a penny with a hole in it."

Luis is not the only member of the Freg family who has whirled a cape, wielded a sword in the ring. Miguel, a brother was killed in the ring in Madrid, and Alfredo, another brother, gave up a successful law practice in Mexico City to enter it. Fans, appropriately, call Alfredo "the judge," but for Luis are reserved the soubriquets "Don Valor"

In the picture appearing here for the first time Sunday, the world's favorite wise-cracker talks his way from Oklahoma to Paris and then back to Oklahoma again. In the picture, Will plays the part of the father of an Oklahoma family, who suddenly find themselves enriched by an oil well gusher. The family, who "had to see Paris," try to break into Parisian society, but find themselves badly handicapped by "father." But Will turns the tables on them, crashes into the highest parisian society, combats the perils of Paris, takes in the dazzling high life of the gayest city in the world, and, in full, "makes" a perfect Parisian cocotte.

Schoolmates Will Be Reunited This Week At C. P. Assembly

Rev. A. A. Collins and Other Churchmen of Floydada at Olney This Week.

The General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of America begins its session at Olney, Texas, today, but to at least three persons who will be in attendance the event will be more than just the gathering of the principal governing body of the church. It will be the re-union of these three persons, schoolmates of a former day, who have not been together before since 1910.

Of this trio, Rev. A. A. Collins of this city, is one. He left this morning for Olney, where he expects to meet the other two. They are Dan W. Fook of Paducah, Kentucky, stated clerk of the General Assembly, and Gam Singwah, of Canton, China, a native of that country where he is a missionary. He is coming to America to attend the General Assembly and discuss with churchmen the problems of his work.

"The three men, now mature men and long engaged in the work of the church, were school men together in the school at Lebanon, Tennessee in 1893-1894. They met last in 1910.

Besides Rev. Collins the Floydada Church will be represented at Olney by Rev. and Mrs. John Burgett and children and Mrs. Ruel Fanning and son. These last named left Monday for that city to visit a short time before the opening of the sessions.

The sessions of the General Assembly will continue for a week, closing on Thursday of next week, May 22.

Key Green, vice-president and cashier, and Leslie Surginer, cashier of the Floyd County National Bank returned to their respective duties Monday morning after spending a novel week's vacation, "resting up at home," as they described it.

Jessie Adams, son of S. O. Adams of this city, who is a civil engineer for the Rock Island lines, spent Sunday here with his father. Jessie is working on the new line out of Quanah.

Mrs. C. E. Delk of Amarillo, spent Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Neil.

S. A. and J. V. Greer, of Sand Hill, spent Monday of this week in Bellview, New Mexico, on business. They were accompanied as far as Friona by J. J. Hart, who has spent the last four weeks here with his daughter, Mrs. J. V. Greer and family.

F. C. Harmon and son, F. C. Jr., left yesterday for Hobbs, New Mexico, on a business trip, to be gone the remainder of this week.

Mrs. A. H. Thornton, principal of the East Ward school, will leave Saturday for Lubbock where she will spend a few days before going to Dallas.

Three Roads Approved By Com. Court Monday

County Clerk's and County Treasurer's Reports Get Okay Of Body In Session.

Three new roads, one in Precinct One and two in Precinct Four, totalling slightly less than ten miles, were granted by the Commissioners' Court of Floyd County this week, after reports of juries of view on the roads were received and approved.

Total cost of the three roads in right-of-way purchase and damages will be $525.00. Two of the new roads will serve residents of Pleasant Hill and one will serve residents of the vicinity of Barwise. One of the roads in Pleasant Hill was petitioned by E. J. Loe and others. It begins at southeast corner of Section 131, Block 1, and runs two miles east. It is to be fifty feet wide. Damages allowed were $100.

The second road in Pleasant Hill begins at the northeast corner of Section 113 in Block 1, and extends south four miles. It will be 50 feet wide and the damages assessed are $200. Willie Pollan and others petitioned for this road.

The new road near Barwise will begin at the northeast corner of Section 12 in Block K, extending north and northward about three and a third miles, adjacent to the lands of Frank Baird and the Baird Estate. The right-of-way and an acre and a half of land will cost the county $225. R. B. Gary and others petitioned for the road.

Besides other routine affairs of the county which had attention Monday, the reports of the county clerk, Tom W. Deen, and the county treasurer, Maud Merrick, were approved by the court.

Senior Class Play Is Well Received Tuesday

Fourteen characters every one exceptionally well chosen and well portrayed, was the unusual feature of the annual Senior Class Play presented by the F. H. S. Class of 1930 last Tuesday evening. "Lost, a Chaperon" was the title of the three act comedy drama, and was given at the High School Auditorium before a large audience.

Happy roles were carried by Dave Luttral, Katie Lee Thurmon and Jessie Mae Wood. Other members of the cast, who were also important in the interesting plot, were Lloyd McLaughlin, Howard Welborn, Starks Green, Warren Poole, Eulalia Burrus, Juanita Shirey, Gene Smalley, Lois Sittin, Artie Mitchell and Robinette Ridgeway.

The Mazaroff Mystery

by J.S. Fletcher

W.N.U. SERVICE Illustrations by Irwin Myers

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Mervyn Holt, bachelor World War veteran, is engaged, in London, by a man calling himself Salim Mazaroff, as a traveling companion. After a short tour the two put up at the Woodcock inn, on Marrasdale moor. They meet, casually, Mrs. Elphinstone and Miss Merchison, and later, Mazaroff informs Holt that they are his wife and daughter, who have long believed him dead. Mazaroff's right name, he tells Holt, is Merchison. He had left his wife shortly after their marriage, before the birth of the girl, of whose existence he had been unaware. That night Mazaroff falls to return to the hotel, and there is no explanation of his disappearance.

CHAPTER II

Youth's Freemasonry. SHEILA was sitting by one of the reedfringed pools that lay amongst the heather and the moss. Unconscious of any presence save that of a solemn-eyed spaniel who sat at her side, she had drawn off her shoes and stockings and was dabbling her feet and ankles in the dark waters.

The spaniel caught sight of me and barked. His mistress looked hastily in my direction, saw me, seemed to realize that she had seen me before, and though she blushed at being caught in a somewhat mysterious situation, accepted it calmly. She gave me a friendly nod—and at the same time began to put on her footgear. I purposely remained in the rear until she jumped to her feet, faced me, and laughed, pointing to the pool.

"There's a superstition about that well," she said, without preface or hesitation. "They say that if you dip your feet in it six times, within an hour of sunrise, any time between Michaelmas and Martinmas, you'll live happy ever after. So—I was trying it."

"I hope it'll come true," I said. "As for myself, I'm not at all happy just now."

A look of concern came into her eyes.

"No?" she responded. "Why?"

"I believe you saw me yesterday—no, the day before—near the Woodcock, with an elderly gentleman?" I said. "You went by. Well, he's missing—lost! He went out from the inn, last night, after dinner, alone, and he's never returned. You know these parts? Are there places—"

"There are many dangerous places," she interrupted hastily. "Have you searched?"

"Several of us, all night," I answered. "We've seen nothing, heard nothing of him."

"Your father?" she asked, eyeing me half sympathetically.

"No—a friend, with whom I'm traveling," I replied. "I'm awfully anxious about him. It was unusually dark last evening, and I'm afraid he's come to harm—fallen over something or into something." I then told her Mr. Mazaroff's name and my own.

"I wonder if our people—gamekeepers, you know—have heard anything? If you'd walk with me to the house—" She pointed across the moor to where the gables and chimneys of Marrasdale tower showed above the trees.

"We might hear something there," she continued. "We can go there in a few minutes."

We came before long to Marrasdale tower. In the courtyard, talking to a man in velveteen, we met Mr. Elphinstone, a tall, thin, gray-haired studious looking man, who glanced at me wonderingly over the top of an unusually large pair of spectacles. His stepdaughter led me up to him.

a room where Mrs. Elphinstone was evidently waiting breakfast for her husband and daughter. She did not see me at first, being concerned with teakmaking, but she evidently recognized Mr. Elphinstone's stepdaughter.

"Are you and Sheila never coming to breakfast, Malcolm?" she demanded. "The tea—" Then she turned and saw me, and I saw that she recognized me as the young man whom she had passed two days before. Mr. Elphinstone pushed me forward.

"Marion!" he exclaimed. "A truly most wonderful and fortunate thing! This young gentleman is the son of my old friend Tom Holt! Isn't it extraordinary that he should drop on me from the clouds like this? He came—let's see, how did he come—oh, I remember now, Sheila brought him, to be sure."

"Yes," said Sheila, "and you've already forgotten why I brought him! Mother, she went on rapidly, "Mr. Holt is staying at the Woodcock with that old gentleman we saw him with the other day—they're motoring. And the old gentleman is lost, and Mr. Holt has been out all night searching for him."

Mrs. Elphinstone gave me a polite welcome, if somewhat frigid handshake.

"Then I'm quite sure Mr. Holt will do with some breakfast," she said, in practical fashion. "Attend to him, Sheila."

"This is very kind of you," I said, "but I really ought to be looking for my missing friend."

Mr. Elphinstone sat down, helped himself to some fish, and after a few reflective sips at a cup of tea, leaned across the table toward his stepdaughter.

"How would it be to inquire at High Cap lodge?" he suggested. "Verner's people might have heard something, or know something."

"Good!" said Sheila. "I'll take Mr. Holt across there presently. That," she continued, turning to me, "is my cousin, Verner Courthope's place. High Cap lodge. We'll go see him."

We each made a hurried breakfast and set out. Our way led toward the hills and became rugged and lonely.

"My cousin has a small shooting party at his lodge," announced Sheila, as we came in sight of our destination. "There's himself, and his manager (Courthopes are bankers, you know, in the city), a man named Armitrade, whom I loathe, and another man, a London doctor, Eccleshare, whom I detest! I suppose we shall find them at breakfast."

She was evidently well acquainted with High Cap lodge and its arrangements, for without any ceremony or delay she led me in by the front hall, down a passage, and thrust open the door of a room that looked out on a fine stretch of moor. Three men, lounging around a well-regarded breakfast table, turned in astonishment at our entrance, examining me closely.

I, in my turn, took a good, close look at them, individually and collectively. For I remembered that when Mazaroff had intimated to me that he wanted to spend that first day at the Woodcock alone, he had also said that there was a man in the neighborhood whom he wanted to see on business. And for the moment I flashed upon me that as all these three men were from London, the man to whom he referred might be one of them; two, at any rate, were connected with banking and financial matters; so, also, as I knew well enough by that time was Mazaroff.

But I got no help from my inevitably superficial examination of the three. One, obviously the host, was a youngish man of a somewhat heavy and sullen cast of countenance. The second was a sleek and sly-looking middle-aged man, with a carefully rimmed beard and a somewhat supercilious air—this I presently discovered to be Armitrade, the bank manager. And the third was a great, fleshy man, a sort of man-mountain, clean-shaven, heavy of feature.

Sheila paid no more attention to the two guests than was represented by a curt nod; she went straight up to Courthope.

"Verner," she said, "this gentleman is Mr. Holt, whose father is an old friend of Mr. Elphinstone. Mr. Holt is staying for a day or two at the Woodcock, where he came with a friend, Mr. Mazaroff, in Mr. Mazaroff's car. Last night Mr. Mazaroff, who is an elderly man, went out on the moor, and he's never returned. Have you or your people heard or seen anything of him?"

"I'll do Verner Courthope the justice to say that he showed some polite concern in the matter. Neither he nor his two guests could tell me anything, but Courthope went out with Sheila and myself to a shed at the rear of the lodge, where two gamekeepers and some other men were waiting, and of them he made inquiries. That resulted in nothing, but he promised that in the course of the day's shooting he and his party would keep their eyes and ears open as they went about the moors."

Sheila and I presently went away

In the direction of Marrasdale tower. We had walked some little distance in silence when she suddenly turned on me with a look which showed me that she felt instinctively certain that I, out of sheer youthful sympathy, would understand what she was going to say.

"If a man's known by the company he keeps," she said, almost bitterly, "what about my cousin Verner? Did you ever see two more utterly detestable men than Armitrade and Eccleshare? I loathe the sight of them! And—"

The policeman introduced himself as Sergeant Manners of the county constabulary, stationed at Marrasdale; the reporter as Mr. Bownas, district representative of the leading county newspaper and of one of the London press agencies. Manners was a big, military-looking man; Bownas a little, ratty chap, content to scribble in his book while the sergeant did the questioning. That quickly turned to a point which, it was very plain to see, the police mind considered all important.

"This gentleman now, sir," asked the sergeant, when I had given him the main facts of the case, "he'd be a wealthy gentleman, no doubt?"

"You may take it that Mr. Mazaroff is a wealthy man," I answered.

"And in that case likely to have wealth on him when he walked out of this house, no doubt?" continued the sergeant. "Valuables, of course?"

"He carried a lot of ready money," I said.

"Watch and chain, likely?" he asked, with a knowing look.

"An exceedingly valuable watch and chain—gold," I replied. "And, if you want to know, he had a very fine diamond in his necktie, and another in a ring on his left hand. He'd also a solid gold cigar case and a gold matchbox."

The sergeant gave me an emphatic nod.

"Then I'll tell you what it is!" he exclaimed. "And no mistake either! This is a case of murder and robbery! What!—here's a gentleman with all that on him walks out on a lonely moor in full view of all those drover chaps that was about here last night and comes from Lord knows where—why, of course, some of 'em followed him, and did him in for what they could get! Murder, sir—that's what it is, and followed by robbery—never heard of a clearer case!"

"If it is so," I asked, "how is it that his body hasn't been found?"

"Ah!" he answered, giving me a significant look. "You don't know these parts, sir. There's wilder nor you'd think. There's places here where you could drop a body, quiet like, and nobody'd ever find it. Bog holes. Lots of places. I should say that, if you meant to do it, you could hide the vestiges of a crime for ever on Marrasdale moor."

"What are you going to do?" I asked.

"Well," he replied reflectively, "it'll have to be reported to headquarters. There'll be a proper search made, and inquiries. Of course, in my opinion, it's as I say—some of them drovers has done him in and rifled his pockets. We must circulate the news far and wide—Mr. Bownas here'll put pieces in the papers."

Mr. Bownas waved his notebook.

"I'll be in every principal newspaper in England, London and provincial, tomorrow morning," he announced. "You haven't got a photo of the missing gentleman?"

"No!" I replied. "And I'm not at all sure that the missing gentleman will like so much publicity. If he turns up—"

The sergeant laughed.

"Turn up!" he exclaimed. "Lord bless you!—he'll never turn up, not if he went out with all that valuable property on him. Murder and robbery!—that's what it is."

And with a final remark to the effect that this was a bad job, and he expected it to work out as he had predicted, the two went away.

What the local police did I don't know, but when darkness fell that night I was still without news of Mazaroff. Nor did we get any during the next day, and when the third night after his disappearance came, I began to feel certain that that disappearance was premeditated and intentional, and that he had just cleared out in order to avoid the revelations of which he had spoken to me.

It was just coming gray dawn on the third morning, and I was awake, wondering what to do, when a knock came at my door. I sprang out of bed, opened it, and found Musgrave and Webster, half-dressed, in the passage. The landlord gave me a look.

"They've found him!" he whispered. "Leastwise, they've found—"

He seemed to choke at that, and I turned eagerly to the chauffeur. He, too, showed signs of unwillingness. But he got some words out.

"They've found a body, Mr. Holt," he said. "Some place on the moors—"

"Teiver's den," interrupted Musgrave.

"And brought it here," continued Webster. "It—the fact is, sir, the head's—the features, you know—gone! But the clothes, sir—they're his!"

I dressed hastily and went down with them to the outhouse where, in its fenders, a local policeman and a game warden, had laid the body. I am not going into details about it here—but, as somebody muttered, there were stouts and weasels and similar carnivorous animals in hundreds on those moors. Still, those were Mazaroff's clothes, and there was the birthmark he had told me of.

The news had already spread, and Manners, the sergeant who had questioned me, came hurrying in. He examined the clothing. There was not as much as a penny piece left in the pockets; watch, chain, rings, pocketbook, papers, were all gone.

He turned on me with a look that was as triumphant as it was significant.

"What did he tell you, captain?" he murmured. "Didn't I say mut-der and robbery? And wasn't I right? What could be plainer?"

I made no answer. I was thinking of other things. However he had come by his death, the fact remained that Mazaroff was dead. And there was I, as far as I knew, the only person in the world who knew his secret—a secret which meant that I should presently have to carry this strangest of stories to Marrasdale tower.

Later in the morning Eccleshare came to the Woodcock. He had heard of the discovery, he said, and had hurried over from High Cap lodge to offer his professional services. And just then up drove the local doctor, on the same errand. The two of them went to the room where the dead man had been laid out. They were there some time. At last Eccleshare came back alone.

"Mr. Holt," he said, as the police sergeant and I approached him. "Your friend has been shot."

He made this announcement with a curious gravity. But Manners and I both let out exclamations of astonishment.

"Shot, doctor?" said the police sergeant. "Why, I never noticed—"

"Perhaps not," interrupted Eccleshare, quietly. "But you noticed that some wild animal or animals had destroyed the features, and it perhaps didn't occur to you to examine the back part of the head. He was shot through the head, from behind; shot dead. And by an ordinary fowling-piece. Look there!"

He held out a plump, smooth white hand, unclosed it, and showed us, lying in the palm, a couple of pellets.

"Riddled!" he said, significantly. "That's number twelve shot. And that's how he came to his death. Shot from an ordinary fowling-piece, at close quarters."

I saw that Manners was considerably taken aback by this opinion, which was corroborated by the local doctor, who just then came out and joined us. It upset the police sergeant's theory, for it was not likely that the cattle drovers whom he suspected would carry a gun.

The two medical men went away, Eccleshare previously turning to me and saying that if there was anything he could do for me, I was to let him know, and Manners, for the first time, betrayed symptoms of uneasiness.

"This is a queer business, captain!" he said. "Shot! That never came into my reckoning. Well—I must be doing something. But now, about him?—you know where his relations are to be found, of course? They'll have to be communicated with at once. Better telegraph to 'em."

The predicament! There it was—full facing me. But I was not going to tell this somewhat thick-headed policeman that Salim Mazaroff was really Andrew Merchison, and that his wife and daughter were within a mile of us.

"I'll look through his papers, upstairs, and see what I can find," I answered, evasively.

That secret of Mazaroff's weighed on me like lead. Ought I to keep it to myself?—or ought I to go straight to Marrasdale tower and tell Mrs. Elphinstone what I knew? It seemed to me that I ought, for that was this about the situation—

If Mazaroff was really Merchison, then his wealth (and I was something more than certain that he was very wealthy) would surely go to his wife and daughter. Yet it was no pleasant task that confronted me. There was Sheila, with whom—it was useless to deny it—I was already in love; I loathed the idea of having to tell her that the father she had never known had been foully murdered at her very door! Yet—

Even then the advice I was longing for was coming to me as quickly as an old horse and a ramshackle fly from the station beyond the hills could carry it. Such an equipage drove up to the Woodcock and from it descended first a keen-looking sharp-featured, middle-aged man, whom I at once set down as either a solicitor or a barrister, and second, a younger man, smart, alert, well-dressed. They hurried into the hall; through the open door of my sitting room I heard my name spoken. I went forward; the legal-looking man turned and gave me a sharp inspection.

"Mr. Holt?" he said. "I am Mr. Lincoln Crole, of Crole & Wyatt, solicitors, Bedford row. I heard of Mr. Mazaroff's strange disappearance from the London papers last night, and I caught the night mail here. Now, has Mr. Mazaroff been found—or heard of?"

"Yes," I replied. "He was found this morning. Dead. Murdered."

He gave two successive starts at the last two words—then pointed to the room which I had just left.

"Let us go in there," he said. "This," he went on, as I led them in and closed the door, "is Mr. Frank Maythorne, whom you may have heard of as one of the cleverest private inquiry agents living. Now, Mr. Holt, let me explain—as I said just now, I read about this matter in the papers—your name, of course, appeared—and as I have acted professionally for Mr. Mazaroff since his coming to England, I was much concerned. Finally, I decided to come down here, and to bring Maythorne with me; I knew, you see, that Mazaroff has no friends or relations in this country, if anywhere, and—well, for certain reasons I was anxious about him. Now we know the worst!"

I was unfeignedly glad to see Mr. Crole and his companion; it was a positive relief to be able to share that awful secret with men accustomed to deal with such matters. I ordered breakfast for them, and Mr. Crole and I exchanged preliminaries.

"I'll tell you in a few sentences all that I know of Mazaroff, Mr. Holt," he said. "He introduced himself to me a few weeks ago at my office. He told me that he was an Englishman who had been out of England for many years, and during his absence had amassed a large fortune. He said that he'd now returned to this country for good, and he wanted to buy a really nice home in London and settle down in it. He had heard of our firm and had come to see if I could help him. I promised to look out a likely house for him—and that's practically all."

"I don't know much more," I said. "I can tell you how I came to know him—"

He interrupted me.

"Oh, I know all about that, and about you, Mr. Holt!" he exclaimed. "When Mazaroff put that advertisement in the Times, he brought the applications to me—most of 'em anyway. It was I who advised him to fix up with you. You got on together?"

"Splendidly!—admirably!" I said. "We'd grown to be very close friends."

"Aye!" he replied. "He seemed a likable and kindly man. But now, as you've got so friendly, I wonder if you'd observed something about Mazaroff's habits—something, to be plain with you, that caused me alarm, and sent me off, up here, with Maythorne there, as soon as ever I read of his disappearance. Had you?"

"I can't say that I had," I answered.

He bent across the table, eyeing Maythorne and myself significantly.

"I lunched and dined with Mazaroff two or three times," he said in a low voice. "And I learned a bit about him. Aren't you aware, Mr. Holt, that he carried diamonds in his pockets—loose!—as if they'd been so many half-pence?"

That gave me a genuine start of astonishment.

"No, indeed!" I exclaimed. "I never saw him produce any diamonds—never!"

Crole laughed—dryly.

"I only hope he left them behind him in London, then," he said. "But I doubt it, even if you didn't see them. He'd made the greater part of his fortune in that sort of thing, and I tell you that he carried, loose on him, stones that looked to me to be worth—no end! I remonstrated with him, but he only laughed. Now—ask Maythorne there what he thinks, professionally."

Maythorne smiled. "I think that a man who carries diamonds in his pockets and pulls them out in public places, as you say Mazaroff did, is asking for trouble," he remarked. "And the probability is that he was followed here. Just give us the plain facts up to now, Mr. Holt—briefly."

I told them all that had happened from the moment of Mazaroff's going out alone on the moor to the bringing of his mutilated body to the Woodcock that morning. And suddenly, making sure that nobody would interrupt us, I told them, word for word, of all that had passed between me and Mazaroff on the second evening of our stay at the Woodcock.

As soon as I had finished, Crole spoke, sharply and decisively.

"I believe all that!" he said. "I felt sure there was a queer mystery about Mazaroff. Well, there it is! And the next thing is—I'll have to be told to Mrs. Elphinstone, who is really Mrs. Merchison. And at once!"

"The sooner the better," agreed Maythorne. "Because—there are things by which he can be identified, that birthmark, for instance."

"Yes, at once," declared Crole. "He may have died—probably has died—intestate. He made no mention to me of any will. If he has died intestate, and his identity as Merchison is established, then this lady and her daughter benefit; the daughter mainly, of course. Holt, you and I must go to this place—what is it, Marrasdale tower?—immediately. A fine revelation. Come, you and I will go, and leave Maythorne to his own devices. He'll not be idle."

I led Crole across the moor in the direction of Marrasdale tower, giving him on the way some account of the people he would meet there. We met one of them before we reached the gates—Sheila was just coming out, and I saw at once that she had heard the news.

Boy Gangs Need Adult Leadership, Declares Wichita Scout Head

Boy Scout Executive Also Voices Opposition To Five Day Working Week.

Wichita Falls, May 12. (UP).—Drastic need for more adult leaders in order that the natural "ganging" of boys may be utilized for citizen-building purposes was stressed by Frank B. Creighton, local Boy Scout executive, in an address on "Boys" before members of the Optimist club.

"This program is not a boy problem," the speaker said. "These youngsters will gang together inevitably. Unsupervised, this natural tendency is vitally contributory to crime. Supervised, it becomes the most potent factor in building manhood."

Mr. Creighton also expressed opposition to a five-day working week, charging that "leisure time is time for trouble, and more leisure time means more crime, and the further growth of commercialized recreation."

Four-sided development of the physical, moral mental and social phases of life is requisite to the most successful training of a boy, the speaker said.

Rumors About Harding Branded Tissue Of Lies

Houston Police Chief Says Gaston Means' Book Leaves Wrong Impression.

Houston, Texas, May 12.—A book written by Gaston Means about the late President Harding and his administration was branded as a "tissue of lies" and President Harding was lauded as "one of the nation's grandest presidents" by Police Chief McPhail, here.

McPhail once was a department of justice operator and personal body guard to President Harding. "Perhaps President Harding did not know I existed," he said, "but I was one of his body guards at his home-coming at Marion, Ohio, on July 4, 1922 and I was in a position to observe his actions closely."

"In addition to that I was in and around Washington a good deal of the time during his administration and because of my position I heard gossip concerning many persons."

"But I can say truthfully that President Harding was one of our grandest presidents and every inch a gentleman."

"There was a little green house on K street, I believe, which I understand is mentioned in the book, but its existence meant no more to Harding than any house in Houston means to me."

"There was revelry there and it probably was frequented by some of the men in high places but to President Harding it meant nothing."

"I do believe that President Harding was unfortunate in the selection of some of the men in his personnel, even in his very cabinet."

"These stories related in the book are undoubtedly based upon rumors that concerned other men in high places."

"As to Mrs. Harding being implicated in her husband's death, it is trash."

Twenty-Nine In Class At Olton High School

Olton High School, in Lamb County, graduates the largest class in its history this week, when twenty-nine young men and women will be given diplomas from the school.

The baccalaureate sermon for the class was preached Sunday night last by Rev. A. A. Collins, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of this city, a crowd estimated by the superintendent at 900, hearing the sermon from the subject, "The Simple Process of Building a Successful Life."

The closing exercises of the Olton school are being held in the commodious gymnasium of the school district.

Mrs. J. F. Waldron of Benjamin came last Thursday for several days visit with her sister Mrs. H. B. Sams and family.

Mrs. Clyde Meador, of Amarillo, who visited here last week with her sister, Mrs. Edd Sparks, and other relatives and friends, returned home Friday. Mrs. Sparks and children accompanied them home and visited until Sunday. Mr. Sparks went to Amarillo Saturday night and brought them home Sunday.

Barbers Of Texas Are Classified By New Law

Some Are Tonsorial Artists, While Others May Only Clip and Shave.

Austin, Texas, May 12. (UP).—Texas' barber law will become effective on June 19. Already more than 2200 barbers have registered under the act and it is expected that there will be at least 10,000.

Sanitation rules included in the law have been in force since Jan. 1. A threatened injunction necessitated amendments in the registration sections of the act. These amendments were made at the last special session of the legislature and become effective on June 19.

There will be two classes of certificates for barbers. Holders of class A certificates will be authorized to cut hair, shave, massage, shampoo, use tonics, lotions and do generally all the service furnished in a barber shop.

Holders of class B certificates will be authorized only to cut hair but not to shave. They are intended primarily for barbers employed as "bobbers" in beauty shops.

Beauty shop operators do not have to secure licenses unless they wish to cut or bob hair. Under the act barbering is defined to be any of the following acts:

Shaving or trimming the beard or cutting the hair.

Giving facial and scalp massages or applying oils, creams, lotions or other preparations either by hand or with electrical equipment.

Singeing, shampooing or dyeing the hair or applying hair tonics.

Applying cosmetic preparations, antiseptics, powders, oils, clays or lotions to the scalp, face, neck, or that part of the body above the shoulders.

The law excepts those engaged in beauty culture who do not cut hair or trim beards, and treatments carried on by physicians or other authorized by other law.

TO THE VOTERS OF PRECINCT FOUR

Friends, this announcement is to notify you that I am a candidate for Commissioner of Precinct 4. I realize that I have five opponents in this race but am proud to say that they are good men and feel sure that we will have a clean campaign.

I live in the southeast part of the county. I will ask you not to let this stand in your way because, if I am elected, I do not intend to build roads that will only benefit my close friends and myself. I feel sure that there will be money enough to build a good road from each community to town and if there is any money left after this is done I truly say that it will be spent to fix the other roads. It will take quite a bit of money to build the culverts and fix them so as you can get over them. Seems like that some few people believe that all we need is two big ditches—but I differ with them there—I don't think it is right to spend all this money building a good road, then a few months later drag the weeds and rubbish out of the ditches onto the road, leave them so as you couldn't hardly get over them in a wagon. I say the right way to do this is to drag the weeds up to the edge of the road and leave them until they dry and then scatter one side at a time. Therefore we will have one smooth side all the time. Seems that a power drag does mighty well on the highways. I feel sure that if we could use a power drag and would use it that our roads would be a little smoother.

We can buy creosoted bridge timber to build these culverts with, so as the dirt can be put on top of the culvert and when the grade or approach is thrown up it won't be completed until it is plowed and dragged down smooth. Friends, I believe you will agree with me that the office that I am asking for is a very important office. I believe you will and ought to give this a very deep consideration. I feel capable of handling the business part of the office, as I am and have been in public business of my own sometime. I think this will be an advantage.

If you will consider this seriously until the 26th of July, and then decide to give me the office I will do the very best I can.

Public Is Pleased With Sound System At Greater Palace

$17,000 Western Electric Equipment Scores Hit In Floydada's $65,000 Theatre.

"The Voice of Action" made its debut to the Floyd County public in the form of a DeLuxe Model Western Electric Sound System at the Greater Palace Theatre in this city recently to an almost capacity house. Hundreds of theatre-goers, music lovers and pleasure seekers visited the opening of the Greater Palace in order to hear the newly installed Western Electric Sound system, and many of them are now singing the praises of the clear, bell-like, natural tones of the new equipment.

More than $17,000 were spent in installing the new talking and singing picture equipment and readjusting the acoustics of the building, according to J. G. Deakins, manager of the Floydada Theatres. "We are indeed proud of the Greater Palace, and we feel that all of Floyd county is proud of this theatre," he declared.

The Western Electric equipment installed here, known as the De Luxe model, is the second such equipment installed in the Panhandle, and is identically the same equipment now in use in the largest theatres on Broadway. With the installation of the new equipment, the value of the Palace Theatre, building and equipment, has been set at more than $65,000. "A large investment but we have the assurance that we are giving the Floyd County public the very best in theatre entertainment," Mr. Deakins declares.

For their first opening the Greater Palace showed "Navy Blues" and for the Grand Opening, they presented "Rio Rita."

"KIDS," I said. "Why it's not my fault your house is always full of neighbor kids."

"Maybe you think it isn't," he complained, "but ever since we've had the house all lighted up, the kids have stayed at home—and had their friends come over. And if you want to hear the worst quartet in the world, come over to my house between 8 and 10 any evening in the week."

The old boy sounded peeved. But he was secretly pretty pleased that his house was being used as a meeting place for the youngsters. I tell you, you have to make things attractive for kids these days. And it's worth the effort.

WHERE IT LISTETH

Proof that the wind does blow where it listeth is recurrently evident to the people of the country in the spring and fall of each year around equinoctial time, Texas had ample reminder of this fact the latter part of last week when it buried nearly four score victims of the wrath of the elements in Tuesday's tragedies.

The mysteries of the elements, like so many other mysteries of life—and death—are unfathomable. Although science has taken air and divided it into its component parts, and has learned to measure its weight and forecast from barometric pressure whether there is to be a disturbance of the elements, and tell us many other things concerning the atmosphere, there is that mysterious thing about the elements which confounds even the most learned and leaves us still with wonderings and amazements. All about us nature speaks of the unfathomable things of life. The wind, blowing where it listeth, is only one of the myriads of the mysteries.

WIVES AS OBJECTORS

Sociologists tell us—some of them do—that the most anti-social creature in the world, judging by reactions in test cases, is a woman. Social she is, they say, so long as it fits her fancy, but when it comes to handling women en masse or of subordinating the personal interest of herself and her family, if any, to that of the whole social body, the social body can go hang. Hardly enough exceptions to prove the rule, we are told.

Thus it is that if the woman of the family could be sold on the "trade at home" idea, hometown boosters could get much further with the undoubted benefits that will come of "trading with your neighbor." Will the women subscribe to this doctrine? Yes, some of them some of the time; most certainly not all of them all the time. To save $2 on a spring dress or get a pair of shoes that won't be like "every other woman's in the community" a woman will travel a hundred miles at ten cents a mile, and do many other things similar that to the masculine mind are wholly absurd.

One of the most recent instances of the obstinacy of the feminine mind is that of the efforts at co-operative marketing arrangements. Trying to arrive at the answer to question, "Who is the friend of co-operative marketing?" investigators began with business men, dealers in farm products, then went out into the homes. They were amazed to find nearly half of the women they interviewed unwilling for their husbands to "sign up," while some thirty per cent were indifferent and about twenty per cent were actively in favor of the idea. Whether this is an actual report on an actual investigation we are not able to say. So many things are said nowadays that are not so that this may not represent an actual occurrence. Anyhow, if it is true, the government might bankrupt itself and the country full of smart men work their heads off in an effort to work out a plan co-operative marketing all to no avail.

CLAIMS IT IS SOCIALISTIC

A farmer up at Central City, Nebraska, says the plan set up by the Federal Farm Board for the ostensible relief of farmers "possesses every phase of inevitable failure of crude socialism," a "forced socialistic co-operation that robs him of the right to market his product in independence."

The Farm Board, he charges, is inflicting "Onto American Agriculture plans which are diametrically opposed to the fundamentals of American business and extremely disastrous to stabilization."

This man's ideas, for which he asks good money to get into print, will make a lot of good people see red, who believe in the plan worked out by the Farm Board as the salvation of the farming industry. Our idea is that an idea or a thought is not to be run from and that any plan advanced that involves the welfare of one's business and one's family should be thought out from all angles. Not only that any given plan is going to do for us as an agricultural community, but as well what it is going to do to us.

AFRAID OF IDEAS

It is no more undesirable to look dimly at what any man has to offer relative to any given plan of relief than it was a few years ago when co-operative plans were first broached as the solution of the farm problem. At that time many people stood back aghast at any such suggestion. Others fell in love with the idea at once. Others were willing to see it worked if it would.

At present the apparent answer to objectors to government meddling in farm business, is that the government has set a precedent in meddling in the manufacturing business and as a result we have immense wealth and a standard of living undreamed of in America by means of the tariff. This protective tariff idea was "socialistic" less than a hundred years ago, and it is by no means a certainty that it will not topple yet, as greed thrives on wealth.

But the fear of ideas, the seeing red, when someone presents something new or different, is as old as time. We believe in established things. The world hated Napoleon when he made marshals out of stable boys, but nations capitulated and asked for mercy just the same. It wasn't Napoleon the despot that Pitt hated. The world was full of despots. It was Napoleon, the man unafraid of customs and precedents and rank and kings, who was turning social order topsy-turvy. They whipped Napoleon at Waterloo but the seed already had been sown. Profound changes are being made now in business of every stripe, farming or whatnot. It will pay to look at the ideas advanced as we go along, without prejudice and without feeling.

SPEED

There is an average of one automobile for every family in the United States. Think of it! Over twenty-four odd million of them! From a mere new-fangled idea they progressed to a luxury class, and from luxury to NECESSITY. In some sections of the country the local average is two automobiles to every family, and the market unquestionably is increasing all the time.

We are moving faster and faster all the time—10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 100 miles an hour. But in pleasure, utility and service, and increased earning power, the automobile is more than paying for itself. They have changed our entire mode of living, and the entire economic structure of the country. The change has been for the better.

We are living faster, but we're enjoying ourselves more, and we've certainly got to hand it to the dums things. We've got to admit that "four wheels and a motor" have certainly added zest to life and living in Floydada.

The two readers of our editorial page will note that our "heavy" editorials this week got up on stilts and went to prancing around, plumb out of control. Please excuse it. Those things happen once in awhile.

Figured on a per centage basis the increase in the population within the City of Floydada corporate limits was 90.36 per cent in the decade covered by the census. So disappointed are we in the figures that we refuse to be consoled by the fact that the population nearly doubled in that time.

The miniature golf course craze has hit the country and it must run its course. Golf has taken the country and those who haven't the time or the inclination to be initiated into the mysteries of cowpasture pool will take the time to try their hand on the miniature course at least once, just for the curiosity of it.

District Attorney A. J. Polley was the first man eliminated in the Floydada Country Club golf tournament. He was eliminated on the third hole of his qualifying round. A search of the legal authorities does not reveal any printable phraseology covering the point, it is said. It should be explained that a driven golf ball struck his finger at forty yards, or thereabouts, and split the digit wide open. The District Attorney lost all interest in golf, for the time being at least. Of course, some of the Smart Ales about town would have to make a joke of it.

We have a friend who works a keen card trick by the use of four Latin words, which under certain arrangements, give an unflinching answer to confound the on-lookers. The words are cocus, nomen, dediti, mutus. What was Latin to the writer umpteen years ago is Greek now. We'd like for someone to call the office and tell the translation of these Latin words. We could find out with a lot less trouble, perhaps, but a newspaper man just naturally prints everything that comes to his mind. Please call, if you know, and tell us the truth.

ROCKS And ROSES What They Write to Old Battleaxe

Floydada, Texas, May 1, 1930.

Dear O. B. Here is a little poem called "Men" which I recently read in another paper and I thought perhaps you would like to print it in your column of the Hesperian. I think all old bachelors should read this poem, "don't you."

Men are what women marry. They have two feet, two hands and sometimes two wives. But never more than one collar, or one on at a time.

They are like Turkish cigarettes, the only difference being that they are a little better disguise. Generally speaking, men may be divided into three classes—husbands bachelors, widowers.

An eligible bachelor is a mass of obstinacy surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are of three varieties—prize.

Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest arts known to civilization. It refuses faith, hope and charity; especially charity.

It is a psychological marvel just why a soft, fluffy, tender, violet scented, sweet little thing like a woman should enjoy kissing a big awkward, over-grown, stubby chinned, tobacco and bay rum smelling hulk of a man.

If you flatter him, it frightens him. If you do not, you bore him to death. If you permit him to make love to you he soon becomes tired of you, and if you refuse to permit him, he gets tired in the beginning.

If you believe everything he tells you, you soon cease to interest him, and if you argue with him, you soon cease to charm him.

If you believe him in everything he thinks you are a fool; and if cynic.

If you do not, he thinks you are a If you wear gay colors, a rogue and a startling hat, he hesitates to take you out and when you wear a little brown toque and a tailor made hat, he takes you out and stares all evening at the little person across the room who is wearing the very things he hates to see on you.

If you are the type that will join him in his gayeties and approve of his smoking, he swears you are driving him to the devil—but if you don't approve of his smoking and urge him to give up his gayeties he swears that you are trying to make an angel of him.

If you are the clinging vine type, he doubts whether you have a brain and if you are a modern and advanced young woman he doubts whether you have a heart.

If you are silly he longs for a bright mate and if you are brilliant and intellectual he longs for a playmate.

If you are popular with other men he is jealous of you and if you are not, he hesitates to marry a wall flower.

Gosh ding men, anyhow! Rave on, Fair one, Rave on. If that's poetry, I'm a grasshopper's uncle. But—Rave on. Old Battleaxe.

NEEDY SHOULD HAVE CHANCE TO WORK, ED BROWN SAYS

Floydada, Texas, May 9th, 1930.

To The Hesperian: The unemployment situation in Floydada and Floyd County is getting to a rather acute stage at this time. We have many families in and near Floydada who are barely existing and who will be on charity within a few days if the heads of these families are not given employment. In fact, we have several cases right now that are being assisted by local charity and church organizations.

In almost every case that has come to the attention of the Associated Charities, the parties asking for aid are asking first for employment. They state that if they can find employment of any kind they are ready and anxious to work. They are asking for charity as a very last resort. The Associated Charities has found employment in a few instances for those soliciting aid or work and in this way given temporary relief without disbursing any of the meager funds at their disposal.

If necessity demands it, the County, the City, and in restricted cases, the Floydada Associated Charities are duty bound to relieve destitute cases coming to their attention. This being the case, would it not be wise for the City of Floydada, the County, some of the schools of the county that have repairs to make, the City Cemetery Association if it has work to be done, to arrange to put some of the unemployed to work even though their plans are to have no work done at the present? It occurs to me that if the City and County, and others, are paying out money now on charity cases and getting nothing in return, which I know to be a fact in some cases at this time, it would be wise to open up some kind of work for these unemployed so that they may at least in part pay their way. An overwhelming majority of those in needy circumstances prefer this plan I know.

I am not informed as to just what could be done to give employment to those who need it, but the county might be able to arrange to paint the court house (it needs it) and there are several painters idle here in Floydada who are anxious to work and need to work. Perhaps some culvert work could be done on the roads—concrete culvert work that will be permanent. Extra men likely could be used on some of the road work in some of the county precincts. There might be a bridge or two that needs a new floor put down. It doesn't take an expert carpenter to do this class of work.

The City might profitably put a few men to work in cleaning out some of the stopped up culverts here in town before the rains set in. If there are sewer or water extensions to be made later on, now would be an opportune time to have the work done. Any kind of work that could be started to help the situation would be in order at this time.

We have a situation right here in Floydada in unemployment that is serious and becoming more so each week and will not be relieved until wheat harvest commences and other farm work gets under way. Six weeks from now there may be enough farm work under way to partly relieve the condition we now have confronting us. Until this time comes I believe the City and County owe it to their unemployed citizens to see that they have an opportunity to work that they may live without having to ask for charity.

W. Edd Brown.

HOW CUBA HANDLED CAPONE

Plainview News-Herald: The Republic of Cuba is not, of course, nearly as enlightened and forward a nation as the mighty United States of America. Just the same, our advanced and self-satisfied United States might take a small tip, now and then, from the Cuban way of doing things.

Al Capone, who seems quite able to follow his career in the United States in perfect freedom despite all of the crimes that are laid to his door, went on a visit to Havana recently. The visit didn't last very long—only two days, to be exact. Then Capone left. Cuban police authorities quietly but firmly instructed him to get out and stay out—and he obeyed.

In that one respect, Cuba seems to be a few jumps ahead of us. Capone has the United States buffaloed. He comes and goes just about as he pleases, and no one seems to know just how to deal with him. But Cuba—well it took Cuba just 48 hours to pitch him out of the country.

Slaton Slatonite: The chief Motor Vehicle Inspector of Pennsylvania recently said that the most successful deterrent we have against automobile recklessness is the driver's license law.

In Pennsylvania when a driver's license is revoked he may appeal. Last year, driving privileges were withdrawn from 869 persons. Yet, so overwhelming was the evidence against them, that there was not a single appeal. Forbidding these reckless, incompetent or otherwise dangerous drivers the use of the public highways undoubtedly saved a great waste in lives and property in Pennsylvania.

P. H. Flynn has bought the W. M. Steen Market on the south side of the square, moving it to the Slaughter Grocery where it will be located.

W. B. Jordan, who moved to Floyd County during the earlier part of the year from Oklahoma, has bought a 220 acre tract seven miles northeast of Floydada near Center School. The consideration was $18.50 per acre.

An automobile is a potentially deadly vehicle. To allow it to be operated by a person who has not proven his ability and competence is inexcusable. And the trend in motor laws at present, in all states, is toward severe examination of persons applying for licenses.

So far, 17 states have passed such laws. Appreciable success has resulted in every instance. Examination of drivers and revocation of licenses for cause, will not entirely do away with reckless and incompetent driving, but it should materially lower our gigantic annual toll of death and injuries.

Poet's Corner

A SPRING MORNING By Gertrude Friend Scoggins

The lark awoke before the sun And sang his roundelay The daybreak came in a glorious burst; And the grass grew all the day.

The little calves frisked about, The children run and play, The little chicks back in the sun, On this pretty, warm Spring day.

The little flowers peep above Their bed of winter clay, And bloom in all their glory To enhance a new Spring day.

The breeze is soft and gentle It caresses in its way; It carries in its very breath Tidings of a new Spring day.

And all these glorious Spring signs A simple lesson say; That God is creator of it all, Father of the new Spring day.

The length of time required to roast a leg of lamb depends chiefly on the size of the leg and the temperature of the oven. Most people prefer lamb from medium to well done, and if a roast meat thermometer is inserted in the meat uniform results will be obtained at every cooking. The thermometer should register 175 degrees F. for medium and 182 degrees F. for well-done meat. Place the leg of lamb skin down and cut-flesh side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. Do not add water and do not cover. Sear for 30 minutes in a hot oven (480 degrees F.) to develop flavor, and then reduce the oven temperature rapidly to 300 degrees F. and continue the cooking at this temperature to the required degree of doneness.

The success of the sweet-potato crop depends largely on the vigor with which the plants start growth after being set in the field. Successful growers set their plants after the ground has become thoroughly warm and when soil moisture is favored for quick growth, either immediately before a rain or as soon after as the soil can be worked.

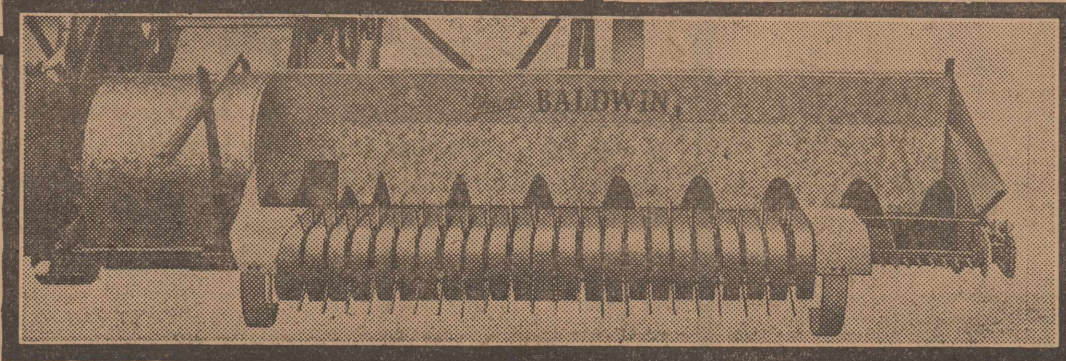

As long as it does not cost any more to own the best, why not buy the best? One or more Gleaner Baldwin Combines on the job at harvest time means greater profits, less trouble, less worry, less hard work for every member of your family.

If you are planning on windrowing your crop, you will be interested in the new Gleaner Baldwin Windrow Harvester. It is built to Gleaner standards, which means that it is just a little better and costs just a little less. Cuts a 12-foot swath, weighs approximately 2,600 lbs.

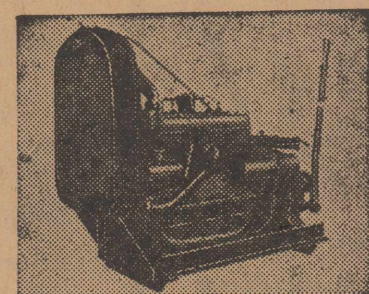

The Gleaner Baldwin Pick-Up Attachment is built to work with the Gleaner Baldwin Combine. The two work in perfect harmony. Hundreds of these attachments were used last season and everywhere the verdict was "satisfaction." It is another Gleaner product "designed by Gleaner, built by Gleaner."

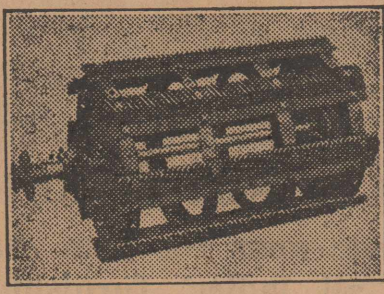

Where else can you buy so much Combine for so little money? The sectional drawing above may give you some idea of why the Gleaner Baldwin Combine has greater separating capacity per pound of weight and per foot of cutter bar, why it is lighter yet stronger, why it costs less and saves more.

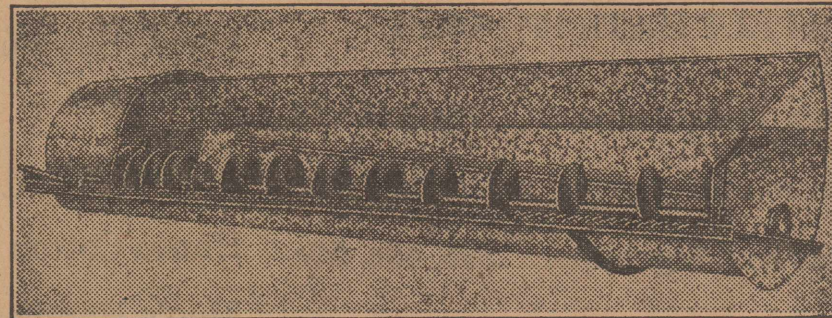

The Greatest Advancement in Harvesting Machinery Since the First Combine

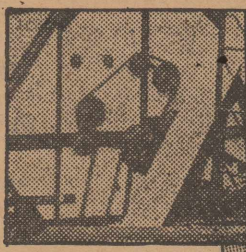

The Model "A" Ford Industrial Engine, with self-starter and equipment for Combine work, supplies ample, economical power.

The rasp bar threshing cylinder used in Gleaner Baldwin Combines is the best type of cylinder for Combine work.

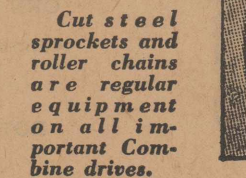

This all-steel harvester unit and feeder housing has revolutionized Combine design and construction. There are no canvas conveyors or feeder radles. It is in a class by itself.

Sixty-nine anti-friction bearings are built into Gleaner Baldwin Combines.

The new balancing and lifting devices make the Gleaner Baldwin Combine a one-man machine.

Cut steel sprockets and roller chains are regular equipment on all important Combine drives.

The 1930 Gleaner Baldwin Combine is an outstanding achievement—the greatest advance in harvesting machinery since the first Combine.

It is another Gleaner Baldwin contribution in advancing greater harvesting economies—the climax of years of painstaking work.

Practically every engineering and manufacturing advancement in the building of Combines has been pioneered by Gleaner Baldwin.

Nothing has been overlooked in making the Gleaner Baldwin Combine the best that money can buy—yet the most economical in first cost and in operation.

LIGHTER AND BETTER BUILT

The Gleaner Baldwin Combine is lighter in weight, saves more grain under more conditions, is better built, provides greater threshing capacity per inch of threshing cylinder and greater separating area per pound of weight and per foot of cutter bar. It has fewer friction-creating, power consuming working parts, fewer belts, gears and drives, fewer adjustments and no universal or knuckle joints.

There are 4,992 square inches of separating area in Gleaner Baldwin separators. The separation mechanism is 13 feet long and 32 inches wide. Four distinct separation stages are made possible because of this unusual length.

Because of their light weight, Gleaner Baldwin Combines are more mobile. They will keep moving in places where larger, heavier and more complicated machines cannot move. Their lightness makes possible their operation in tandem, saving the original cost and operation expense of extra tractors and wages for extra men.

ONE-MAN OPERATION

Because of their simplicity, skilled labor is unnecessary to operate them. The new Gleaner Baldwin lifting and balancing devices make it possible for one man to operate both the Gleaner Baldwin and tractor from the tractor platform with ease.

These and the many other exclusive features which include the original, patented, Spiral Conveyor-Feeder (which does away with canvas); the Ford Model "A" Industrial Engine with self-starter; the rasp bar threshing cylinder; the all-steel, independent self-supporting frame; ball and roller bearings; alemite lubrication; all of these make the Gleaner Baldwin the outstanding practical Combine buy today—a Combine that all farmers can afford to own and afford to keep.

BE SURE TO SEE THE GLEANER BALDWIN

Right now is the time to buy a Combine, and you cannot afford to make a mistake in choosing. That's the reason we urge that you come in and inspect the Gleaner Baldwin. Or, let us call on you and prove why you should own a Gleaner Baldwin, and thoroughly explain its many money-making and exclusive features.

Floydada Joins In Observance Of Nation-wide Mother's Day Sunday

Methodist Church Holds Special Program May 18

Origin of Day Disputed By Historians; Custom Not New.

Tribute to the world's sweetheart, "Mother," was paid in every city throughout the nation Sunday and Floydada, joining hands with millions, bowed in reverence and prayer at the throne of "Her," whose memory or whose presence is recognized as God's most precious gift to all mankind.

Programs Are Given
Added significance was given the solemnity of the occasion Sunday when special services were held Sunday morning and night at local churches. Most of the churches postponed the special services until the evening, the congregations having been in attendance at the graduation exercises Sunday morning at the First Methodist Church for the Floydada High School class.

The Rev. G. T. Palmer, pastor of the First Methodist Church, has announced that the Mother's Day observance by the Methodists will be held next Sunday morning, May 18, at 11 o'clock, at the church. The other religious organizations held special programs last Sunday night. The programs consisted of songs and readings dedicated to "Mother," in addition to the addresses.

The idea of Mother's Day is not a new one. Mother worship, with its rites and ceremonies, reaches far back into pagan times. One of the earliest records of formal mother worship may be found in the stories of the ceremonies by which Cybele, or Rhea, "The Great Mother of the Gods" was worshipped in Asia Minor. The weird dances and wild music, however, were not a dedication to the tenderness of motherhood, but to its powers and majesty. Cybele was represented as traversing the mountains in a chariot drawn by lions. The lion, the oak, and the pine were sacred to her.

About 250 B. C. this worship was introduced through Greece into Rome, where it became known as the festival of Hilaria and was held on the Ides of March.

With the coming of Christianity the pagan festival, still keeping some of its old forms, grew into a celebration in honor of the mother church held on the fourth Sunday of Lent. On this mid-Lent Sunday it became the custom to place gifts upon the altar for the "Mother Church."

How and when this practice developed into the observance of "Mothering Sunday" is uncertain. It is believed, however, that it arose during the time when young men and women of the village who were away serving apprenticeships in neighboring towns returned on Mid-Lent Sunday and brought with them gifts not only for the church but for their mothers, too. This day they became known as "Mothering Sunday," when all the young people went "Mothering Sunday" is uncertain, brated with great feasting and rejoicing.

The somewhat "commercialized" Mother's Day is far removed from so quaint a custom. The honor of the establishment of Mother's Day belongs to Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who in 1907, a year after her mother's death, invited a friend to her home and told her of her desire to dedicate a day to all mothers. During the following year, she interested many individuals and organizations in her plan. As a result of her efforts, Philadelphia observed May 10, 1908, as Mother's Day and in 1913 provided for its annual observance. In that same year congress passed a resolution which provided for the national observance of the second Sunday in May "as a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country."

Another account of the origin of the day by NEA Service credits Frank E. Hering of South Bend, Ind., as being "the father of Mother's Day." The story states:

"He holds a medal, given him by the American War Mothers, bearing the title, 'Father of Mother's Day.'"

"Hering, former national president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, former faculty member of Notre Dame University and now editor of the Eagle's Magazine, started the ball rolling 26 years ago in a speech at the English opera house here.

"Assembled were members of the South Bend Eagles, Hering was then a young Notre Dame professor— notable chiefly as the first Protestant to win a place on the Notre Dame faculty.

"In his speech Hering traced all the goodness of men to mother love, all the advancement of civilization to the sacrifices of mothers, all the hopes of the future to the influence of mothers. He urged that in every Eagles' lodge one day be set aside each year in which men would remember their mothers and make a point of paying especial homage to them.

"The idea caught on. Year after year, in Eagles' lodge throughout the country, one day each year was devoted to mothers. Before the day was observed nationally, the Eagles were observing it annually. And it all goes back to that speech of Hering's on Feb. 7, 1904.

"Five years ago the American War Mothers went to work to trace Mother's Day to its origin. After long investigations, in which other claims to the honor were thoroughly gone into, the organization decided that the title, 'Father of Mother's Day,' belonged to Hering and no one else. Last fall they sent a committee to South Bend to award him their medal of honor.

"On Mother's Day in 1925, at the invitation of the war mothers, he was the principal speaker on a program given at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery."

W. E. Meador and daughter, Miss Myrtice, returned home Tuesday from a visit with Mr. Meador's sister, Mrs. H. W. Lewter, of Guyton, Oklahoma. During their absence they also visited in Colorado with Mrs. Lewter's son. Mrs. Lewter accompanied them on the trip.

Best Brand Writer Will Get Box Of Chocolates

Mrs. L. D. Sanderson Sends First Suggestions For Title Of Column.

Great! Great! The contest is going great for suggesting the winning title for the new column on the editorial page being written by The Cowhand Scribe. The closing date has been extended to June 1, so that everyone will have an opportunity to enter the contest with one or twenty suggested titles.

Mrs. L. D. Sanderson, Route 1, Floydada, was the first to submit a list of brands for the maverick column. She sent in 18 and some of them will be hard to beat.

Be sure and incorporate something about the Hesperian and Floyd County is possible. Since it is written by the Cowhand, it might be well to try to include something involving the wild west, cowboys, or some of the equipment used in the early days. But matters get complicated when a person attempts to rope about six different ideas into three or four words—the length set for the title. But try your hand with the lasso.

Over on the editorial page the new maverick column appears under three questions marks and the person supplying the winning answer will receive a big box of chocolates as a prize.

Rope your ideas right now while you are about the column and send them address—The Cowhand Scribe, care The Floyd County Hesperian. The winner may be you. There are no obligations—no strings. It costs you nothing to enter and it costs you nothing to get out. All are eligible. The Cowhand Scribe just thought that the readers of The Hesperian might like to have the opportunity of naming of the regular features, so the little contest was opened. Now it's up to you.

COAL OIL REFRIGERATOR IS SHOWN BY KIRK & SON

An oil-burning refrigerator, known as the New Perfection Superflex, is an entirely new idea in home refrigeration now being exhibited by Kirk & Sons, local dealer. The new refrigerator uses coal oil for operation, which, according to the slogan of the manufacturers, "brings a city convenience to the country home." It is especially adapted to use in rural communities not supplied by electricity or natural gas.

According to the announcements issued by the local dealers, the Superflex keeps foods fresh, clean and pure for days; freezes ice cubes for cooling beverages, makes frozen desserts, saves thousands of steps and costs but a few cents per day to operate. Three oil burners furnish heat that cools the air in the refrigerator, keeping an even temperature at all times. It operates for two days without re-filling with oil, and in case the burners are not refilled, the fire goes out without damage to the asbestos wicks.

This new model refrigerator may also be equipped with natural gas burners, it was pointed out.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

G. T. Palmer, Pastor
Our Sunday School attendance last Sunday was very encouraging; there were 411 present. We appreciate the fine spirit of our people and the splendid work which is being done in this great department of the church. All of our classes are doing excellent work, but at this time we would like to call special attention to the Men's Brotherhood Class, which under the leadership of G. A. Linder as teacher is doing an unusual thing. Last Sunday the class had almost 50 men present. This is fine and there are many others in the town and community who should come into the fellowship of this class. Let the men set an example of godly living and service before the young life.

As we were prevented from observing Mother's Day last Sunday we are going to have a special Mothers Day program the coming Sunday at 11 a. m.

At 8 p. m. the three Epworth Leagues of the church will have charge of the service.

We shall be glad to have you worship at the Methodist Church.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Dick O'Brien, Pastor
All regular services will be held at the Baptist church next Sunday. Our Sunday school attendance was slightly off last Sunday. No doubt this can be accounted for because of the special service for the graduating class. This is not a complaint, as we were happy to cooperate in the service in honor of these fine young people. We expect to have our normal attendance next Sunday.

We feel that the B. Y. P. U. workers deserve special mention this week. Their attendance set a record for this church. There were 201 present at the training service, which precedes the evening service one hour. A program of training like this is a source of great encouragement to the pastor.

Rev. E. D. Morgan, of Lockney, preached at the evening hour last Sunday while we were away at Petersburg. The congregation appreciated the fine message which he brought. Next Sunday morning we expect to be at Matador for the baccalaureate service of the high school, but a suitable supply will be in the pulpit for the morning hour and we expect to be at home for the evening service.

We urge that the entire membership be loyal to the program and be in their places for all these services. Visitors always welcome.

JUNIOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The Junior Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church will meet Sunday evening at 7 o'clock and give the following program:

Subject—What the Church means to me—Acts 2:42.

Leader—Blanche King.

Sentence Prayers.

Topics for discussion:
How can we use our time for the Church?—Carl Lester Minor.

How can we use our lives for the church?—Kenneth Bain Jr.

What are some of the blessings we get from the church?—James Williams.

How may we measure up to the things the church expects of us?—Junior Rutledge.

Business.

Junior endeavor benediction.

Mrs. B. P. Woody, Mrs. Dave Standefer, Mrs. Wilson Kimble and daughter, Mary Anne, visited Mrs. Sam Berry, who is in the Lubbock Sanitarium, Tuesday. She was hurt recently in a car accident and the woman who visited her report that she seemed to be improved but will not get to come home this week end as she had expected.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Enoch and daughter, Ruth, and Miss Robinette Ridgeway, visited Mr. and Mrs. Enoch's son, Gwilym, at Lubbock Sunday. Gwilym is a student at Tech College.

S. W. Ross Will Assist With C. Of C. Exhibit

Secretaries Hear Proposal To Feature Texas Made Products In Small Towns.

S. W. Ross, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, has been named one of the three committee members who will assist in gathering material for an exhibit of District 2 of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting at Abilene May 29, 30, 31. Mr. Ross was appointed at a meeting of secretaries of chambers in the district held at Lubbock Saturday afternoon. He will work with L. A. Wilson, secretary at Slaton, and George Samson, secretary at Post. Garnet Reeves, publicity director of the Lubbock C. of C. will have charge of the exhibit and will be assisted by the other three men.

Ten representatives of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce were present and heard D. A. Bandeen, general manager of the organization, with headquarters at Stamford, discuss plans and details for the annual meeting this year. He announced that the district would have an exhibit booth, six feet wide by eight feet deep. He indicated that several resolutions are scheduled to be presented, one for a tariff on raw products in West Texas, one favoring the farm board, another for a highway bond issue. A proposed tax on West Texas resources also was mentioned. In this connection Mr. Bandeen spoke at length on the tax situation in this section.

Proposal was made by Herbert Jones of Post that a resolution favoring the endorsement by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce be adopted on an educational "campaign" featuring the sale and advertising of Texas made products. The secretaries pledged that they would take the matter before their respective boards of directors and that they would support the move if endorsed. "What Texas Makes Texas" is the slogan suggested for the campaign which will be conducted by the merchants in the small towns to encourage home consumption of Texas products in addition to making the people familiar with the things being produced here in the state.

Following are the representatives who attended the meeting in Lubbock Saturday: S. W. Ross, Floydada; J. E. Shelton, Brownfield; M. P. Leaming, Matador; Dewey L. Granbury, Spur; A. V. Bullock, Ralls; L. A. Wilson, Slaton; J. M. Edwards, Turkey; Maury Hopkins, Plainview and A. B. Davis, Lubbock. Dr. A. C. Surman of Post also attended.

Mr. Hopkins, secretary of the district, presided in the absence of Clifford B. Jones of Spur, district director.

Counties embraced in District 2 are as follows: Parmer, Castro, Briscoe, Hall, Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Motley, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby, Dickens, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Kent, and Swisher.

Adding Machine Rolls at Hesperian Office.

ILL 12 YEARS KONJOLA WINS REAL VICTORY

Stubborn Case Soon Yields To Power Of New Medicine—Grateful Lady Eager To Tell Others.

MRS. LILLIAN LORANE

"I suffered for twelve years from kidney trouble and nervousness," said Mrs. Lillian Lorane, Mablevale, Ark., near Little Rock. "My kidneys were in a very bad state and I was forced to rise many times each night. This naturally made sleep difficult. My nerves were in very bad condition and this seemed to affect my eye sight. I could scarcely go about my work and I was worried and discouraged. I seemed to have no energy for anything."

"I tried a great many medicines and treatments but nothing seemed to do me the least bit of good. I finally decided to give Konjola a trial and the benefit which I received from this medicine is almost unbelievable. Konjola built up my health until I am in better condition than I have been in years. My kidneys are normal and I can sleep without interruption. My entire system seemed to respond to this modern medicine and my friends all remark upon the improvement in my appearance."

Konjola has become the most talked of medicine in America because it makes good. Taken after meals over a period of from six to eight weeks, this great medicine has made a remarkable record in the most stubborn cases.

Konjola is sold in Floydada at Floydada Drug store, and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Sunday School Lesson

THE GOOD CITIZEN

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 18. Who Is a Good Citizen? Matt. 22: 15-22, 34-40.

The conditions in Palestine at the time of Christ as they related to citizenship were not altogether different from the conditions of today. Probably there never has been a time when citizenship for the man of sincerity and principle did not offer certain problems of conscience.

A whole group of people in England have been known for centuries as Nonconformists. They are self-respecting law-abiding people, so noted for their conscientiousness that "the Nonconformist conscience" has become a byword, either of honor or of irony, like "the Puritan conscience" in America.

Here in our own land today the chief issue of citizenship concerns rather a different matter, but a matter that to many people, whether they be called "drys" or "wets," is one of considerable importance. It is true that no great principal, such as relates to the difference between a monarchical and republican form of government is involved in the question of whether or not a man shall drink liquor or have a right to do so; nor is there any vital question of religious faith involved.

Nevertheless, there are people who believe that the liberty to drink intoxicating liquor is a personal right, and who regard prohibition as an infringement of personal right. The man who takes that point of view and who feels very strongly about it is apt to think of himself as resisting a law for conscience sake.

Are the two situations the same? Can a man be a good citizen and at the same time be a nullifier of law? And assuming that there are situations where a man has strong conscientious convictions and takes the view that he ought to obey God rather than man—the view that John Bunyan took, for instance, when he went to jail for 12 years because he persisted in manifesting his religion in his own way—can the nullification of law have any moral validity where something that does not involve moral duty is concerned?

Even the man who may assert very strongly his right to drink intoxicating liquor would hardly go so far as to say that it is his duty to drink intoxicating liquor. The fact that multitudes of men have lived in good health under total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, and the fact that no social curse attaches to any community where total abstinence is the practice, ought to dispose very readily of the claim that the drinking of intoxicating liquor is an inalienable right of a citizen or constitutes any ground for his defiance of law.

In Palestine there was a strong revolutionary movement against the Roman power. The enemies of Jesus sought to turn this sentiment to their own use. When they questioned Jesus about the lawfulness of paying tribute to Caesar they thought that they would entrap him, but Jesus answered them upon the plain ground of common sense. He made it plain that they must either come out boldly in revolt against Caesar or else they must recognize his authority.

What Jesus meant to assert was not that one sphere of life belonged to Caesar and another sphere belonged to God. That is a false meaning that people have taken out of this narrative. Jesus would never have admitted that there was any sphere of life that did not belong to God.

Among the Floydada people visiting in Lockney Sunday afternoon were the following: Tip Kindrick, Garland Glover, Virgil Shaw, Horace Kincaid, Douglass Maddux, Roy Eubank, Burl Holt, Jim Curry, J. R. Yearwood and A. D. White.

Officers for the Andrews Ward Parent-Teachers' Association for the next school term were installed at the closing meeting of the year held Wednesday afternoon, May 7, at the Andrews Ward School building. Rev. G. T. Palmer conducted the installation service.

The officers are as follows: President, Mrs. James Colville, re-elected.

1st vice president, Mrs. C. R. Houston, re-elected.
2nd vice president, Mrs. E. L. Norman, re-elected.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. M. Gamblin. Secretary, Mrs. Wilson Kimble. Other officers are to be appointed by the president.

A prize was offered by the P. T. A., at the beginning of the year, to the room having the most mothers present for each term. Mrs. A. D. Cummings' room had the largest attendance at the end of both terms. Last term they received a set of books but the last prize has not been decided upon.

After the business meeting a short program was rendered. Several very enjoyable numbers were given by the Primary Band. Miss Eula Mae Gullion, a High School student, gave a piano selection.

Mrs. James Colville gave a very pleasing talk in expressing her regret to the teachers, who will not be back again next year and to the parents who will belong to the High School P. T. A. next year and welcoming of the teachers who will return again next year. The closing number was the P. T. A. song. There was a large attendance. Punch and angel food cake were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mrs. Colville requested that the P. T. A. song be published and that every member and every child clip the song and memorize it. It is given as follows:

Our Battle Hymn for Children. (Tune, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic")

1. Our eyes may catch the vision of a line against the sky: Hundreds of thousands of our boys and girls, an army tramping by; Hear the challenge, Parent-Teacher? It's a lusty one they cry!

These children marching on!
First refrain: Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! Our children marching on!

2. We, the boys and girls of yesterday, must never call retreat; It is we who set the pace, who blaze the trail for youthful feet; Yet the children soon to follow us, many wonder why we meet unless we, too, march on!

Second refrain: Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! Etc. Together, we'll march on!

3. Let us ring aloud our watchword, "Young America, be strong!" Be the bulwark of a nation! Be the force to right her wrong! Parent-Teachers pledge their loyalty, their love for you in song. Our children marching on!

Third refrain: Glory! Glory! Hallelujah! Etc. Americans' March on!

Charts prepared from the Pike's Peak Test records indicate a longer life for your motor by lubricating it with Germ-Processed oil. And the fact that Germ-Processed oil penetrates metal surfaces means, that after starting your car on a cold morning you can safely drive at top speed with less likelihood of damage . . . for CONOCO'S film is already on the job.

Less Carbon—Less Cost—More Mileage and Less Heating—More Compression. All these things mean a better all-around motor. Tested out on the Pike's Peak Highway, scene of many famous automobile tests, was a memorable struggle for supremacy. . . . On the one side, three of America's representative and popular oils—on the other, Germ-Processed oil. And CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil won, by all tests applied.

Only CONOCO can make Germ-Processed oils. CONOCO can give you these new motor oil merits, including penetrative lubricity. We hope to serve you soon, at stations displaying the Red Triangle.

Lockney Wins 11-Inning Battle From Dougherty

Lockney, May 11.—After tying the score in the ninth, Lockney battled the Dougherty nine doggedly through two extra frames to emerge victorious with a 7-6 score Sunday afternoon in a baseball game played here. It was a real ball game until the sixth when Dougherty's heavy guns opened up. When the smoke had cleared away, three runs had been scored; but Lockney, aided by a costly error by a Dougherty outfielder, repeated the scoring trick in their half of the same inning.

The game was rather ragged until the tenth when things tightened up again. Champion, running for Mathis, scored the tying run in the ninth and the winning counter in the eleventh for Lockney.

White, who went the full route for Dougherty, pitched a dandy game and would have registered a victory had his support in the field not wobbled at crucial moments. Mathis, who relieved B. Wells for Lockney in the sixth, also looked good on the mound.

Callihan scored the first run for Dougherty in the initial inning. Holt, Curry, Smith, Eubank and Jarnigan scored the other runs for the visitors.

Holmes was the first to score for Lockney. Others making runs were Reid, Bean (2) Mickey, and Mathis, (2).

The batteries were as follows: Dougherty, White and Palmer; Lockney, B. Wells, Mathis and Wells.

Henry and Snyder worked as umpires. Gill was base umpire.

J. R. Yearwood is manager of the Dougherty team, and Fay Guthrie directs the Lockney nine.

The score by innings:
Dougherty: 100.003.200.00-6
Lockney: 000.003.111.01-7

Selection Of Exterior Of Home Is Important

English, Colonial, American Bungalow Rule As High Favorites.

The home owner who chooses a house design that is bizarre or eccentric is running a chance of investing his money in a home that with the passing years becomes out of date and obsolete.

No matter how well-arranged and convenient the interior of the home may be, the exterior is the basis of the judgment of strangers as to the desirability and true worth of the dwelling.

The wise home builder, therefore, is going to select an exterior plan that embodies good taste in lines, and one that will remain desirable over a long period of time.

Stood Test of Time
Certain types or styles of houses have stood the test of time. They have remained popular for many years and good judgment indicates that they will continue to be in the public favor for many years to come.

Among these types are the Colonial, the English, the Dutch Colonial, the American bungalow and the cottage. There are variations of these, of course, but these names are sufficient for this discussion.

These types are prominent and the home owner who chooses to build a home following one of these general designs will find that he has a home that he can always be proud to own.

English Home Popular
Of recent years the English type house has been steadily gaining in favor among the American people. This type is an adaptation of the old time English house and contains the main characteristics of that design.

Chief among architectural features of the English house are the steep pitched roof with many gables, the high chimney pots, the use of half timbers in the upper walls with brick, stucco and building stone below, the outstanding casement windows with small glass panes and the rambling appearance that is often due to many additions. The charm of the English house lies in its informality and simplicity. It is evidently a house built for comfort. It is substantial rather than dignified. The windows are plentiful but are arranged with studied informality. Window areas and side wall masses balance effectively but not at the expense of the informal atmosphere.

The low rambling appearance of War Nurse Sends Sargon to Mother In London

MRS. A. J. PAYNE
"Sargon did so much for me that I'm sending a treatment to my mother in London, England."
"I'm a trained nurse and served overseas in the World War, but I never in all my life saw anything like Sargon. I was almost a nervous wreck, was put on a strict diet of milk, for months and I was constantly having to dose myself with drastic laxatives, and finally after long suffering I was down to 95 pounds. I started Sargon about a month ago and now my appetite is splendid and I haven't a trace of indigestion. My whole system is wonderfully strengthened and invigorated, I sleep fine and am gaining weight every day. Sargon Pills overcame my constipation completely."—Mrs. A. J. The English house gives it a costly air, yet these houses may often be built at a cost that is on par with other types.

Design For Service
Each of the various features of the English house was developed through a definite need. The sharply pitched roof, for instance, was needed because heavy snows falling on the roof must be removed by gravity. The English roof quickly sheds both snow and rain.

The rambling, sprawled-out appearance of the original English houses was caused by additions being constructed from time to time. Rather than rebuild the house, the owners simply added on another wing when space was needed. Thus, the odd, irregular lines of the present day English house.

The universal use of fireplaces for heating purposes in the old English houses has led to the use of numerous chimneys and chimney pots. While it is poor architecture to deliberately add chimneys that are not needed, those used on the present day English type house of this country retain the typical Tudor design. The chimneys are usually tall.

Half Timber Effect
The half timber effect is typically English and while found in certain other types of architecture is always associated with the English. In the original construction the outer walls of the building were run up the ceiling point and above it usually was placed half timbers which was a system of framing with very large timbers, the spaces between being filled with lighter frame work and plaster. This system was used both in England and France in domestic architecture during the 16th and 17th centuries.

Today the half timbered work is a sham, the half timbered work consisting of ordinary framing of studs and sheathing with a thin pattern work of boards to represent timber applied thereto and the plaster is brought up against these boards.

The majority of the English houses are of plaster wood, stone or plaster, the walls may be of brick, wood, stone or plaster. Often the material is mixed, field stones, for example, being interspersed among the walls of brick, giving a delightfully informal effect.

Only A Lumber Yard

The passerby may merely see Some lumber in a pile; Another vision comes to me, A thought that makes me smile, A thought of walls and roofs and floors, And lighted windows, waiting doors.

The passerby may but behold A yard's that rather plain, But I see doors that bar the cold, And roofs that shed the rain, And I see children snug and warm Through night of dark and days of storm.

The passerby may only say, "A lumber yard, is all;" But I see streets that stretch away, And homes where children call, I see a town I helped to build, With peace and joy and comfort filled.

—Exchange.

Casement Windows

Before the days of Queen Elizabeth the heads of the casement windows found in the old English houses were arched or pointed. After this time the square head showing an ecclesiastical influence, came in and is now generally accepted as being the more desirable for this type of dwelling.

Casement windows are largely used, each ventilator leaf being made up of numerous small glass lights with narrow muntin bars.

Double hung windows are often used with English houses and are in good taste. Window openings are large and are usually filled with two or more units of sash. Since the windows are placed with regard to the interior requirements rather than the exterior aspect, the result is decidedly informal. Balancing and good proportions are maintained but there is no striving for symmetry.

It is for babies that we live and love and strive; they are the essence and the joy of life; they are the hope of the world.—The American Magazine.

GOOD LAWN MOWER ASSET TO EVERY OWNER OF HOME

A good lawn mower is an important asset to the home owner and is an integral part of the paraphernalia of the household. From early in the spring until late in the fall this piece of equipment is going to be in use. It is advisable therefore to purchase a mower that works easily and cuts accurately.

If the mower is equipped with a selfsharpenener, so much the better. Otherwise, the mower should be sharpened at regular intervals to give the best of service. Keep an oil can handy and use it frequently. Usually the grass must be cut at weekly intervals if it is to look satisfactorily. The lawn should be raked after each cutting as otherwise the dead grass will choke the roots of the lawn and cause the turf to die out.

WROUGHT IRON EFFECT IS OBTAINED SIMPLY, EASILY

Wrought iron hardware adds to the expense of the house and the home builder who is limited in the amount of money he can spend is often forced to use the more common hardware, such as door latches and hinges.

Yet there are ways of getting the wrought iron effect without the expense which these quality fittings ordinarily entail. One home builder purchased at the five and ten cent store a few enameled thumb latches and hinges of the common stable door variety.

The latches were thrown upon the red hot coals of a kitchen stove turned over every few minutes until the glistening black coating had been burned away. The result was on almost unbelievably decorative effect in richly mottled iron.

Thus the home builder secured for a few cents a highly satisfactory substitute for the wrought iron hardware he craved. Savings like these can often be made by the builder who is alert.

BASEMENT WIRING SHOULD BE CONVENIENT, COMPLETE

Plenty of light and electrical outlets are needed in the basement. Not only are they a convenience to you but also they add considerably to the saleability of the house.

Basements must be wired to accommodate the clothes washer, ironing machine, flat iron, clothes dryer, and hand iron. A set of three-way switches should control the light at the stairs. Place electric lights near the furnace, the laundry, the fruit cellar, the fuel bin and over the work bench. The cost of the additional wiring is little, the resulting benefits are great.

WEATHER STRIPS CUT FUEL BILLS ABOUT 10 PER CENT

NEW USE FOR JAILS

Crime may be rife in big cities but it is only a dim tradition in Danbury, Vermont. That town has just turned its jail into a cooking school.—Woman's Home Companion.

Weather strips at the windows cut down the entrance of cold air to such an extent that the amount of fuel used is reduced approximately 10 per cent. The time to weatherstrip is when the home is being built.

Keep Right Spirit,' Rev. O'Brien Advises F. H. S. Graduating Class

Baccalaureate Sermon Given Sunday Morning

Large Crowd Attends; Many Turned Away; Seats
Limited.

"Every cloud will wear a rainbow, if your heart keeps right; unhappiest are those whose spirits are wrong," was the key-note of the impressive baccalaureate sermon delivered Sunday morning to the 60 members of the 1930 graduating class of Floydada High school assembled at the First Methodist Church. The address, couched in simple straightforward language, was delivered by the Rev. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city. He took as his subject, "Preferred Because of an Excellent Spirit."

All Seats Taken
Hundreds of people planning to attend the services had to be turned away at the doors because of limited seating facilities. Every available seat in the large auditorium was taken, many chairs and benches being placed in the aisles in an effort to accommodate the immense crowd.

The students marched in and took their places in a special reserved section in the center of the church. The processional was played by Mrs. E. C. Thomas as the program was opened. "America, the Beautiful" was then sung by a combined choir made up of singers from the various churches of the city and directed by George E. McWhirter, member of the faculty of the Floydada High School.

Rev. Claude Wingo, pastor of the First Christian Church, said the invocation.

"Whispering Hope," by Blaker, was beautifully rendered by an octette from the graduating class. The members of the octette were Misses Verla Blasingame, Robynette Ridgeway, Patty Looper, and Artie Mitchell; Messrs. Alsie Carleton, Dave Luttrall, Ballard Wilkinson, and Clyde Snell. Lois Sitton was at the piano.

Day Gives Benediction
Following the song was the sermon by the Rev. O'Brien, Elder J. J. Day of the Wall Street Church of Christ pronounced the benediction which was followed by the recessional. The audience remained seated until the seniors had marched out.

Announcements for the other exercises connected with closing of the schools for this year were made by Superintendent W. E. Patty preceding the baccalaureate sermon. Exercises for the Andrews Ward School will be held this Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock at the Andrews Ward auditorium. Graduation night has been set for Friday night, May 16, at the high school auditorium. The final exercises will begin at 8 o'clock, and diplomas will be awarded.

Reading verses from the Book of Daniel, and using as his theme the words, "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me," the Rev. O'Brien proceeded to develop his subject in clear-cut terms.

Spirit Determines Happiness
"Even disagreeable tasks performed in an agreeable spirit seem pleasant, and vice versa. Sometimes we call it good and bad humor but it is in reality your spirit. A good spirit means a lovable disposition and a likeable nature; but if your spirit is bad you will be unhappy and unsuccessful in a large degree.

Unhappiest are those whose spirit is wrong.

"Many times the world looks dark to us when as a matter of fact the trouble is within our own lives.

"Is your heart right with God?" the speaker asked. "You should so direct your lives," he told the graduates, "that sunshine will always be on the inside and it will matter not what happens on the outside. Let me recommend that you store up in your hearts this sunshine that is born of Heaven. The world may rob you of the outside but it can never take away the inside sunshine.

"Develop an optimistic spirit and turn the dark clouds inside out. Learn to think of the rose that goes with every thorn rather than with every thorn there is a rose. Think of the pleasant side first; that there is a sweet for every bitter, rather than a bitter for every sweet.

"If you have a spirit that is preferred, you will be accepted."

In answer to his question: "What is an excellent spirit?" the speaker listed four main points and elaborated upon them. The four points mentioned were as follows: 1. Spirit of determination; 2. Spirit of gratitude; 3. Spirit of loyalty to his friends; 4. Spirit of fidelity to Jehovah, his God.

Need Spirit to Win
"The King's meat and wine must have appealed to Daniel's appetite, and he must have been sorely tempted but he had a steadfast purpose and he won. This same spirit of determination has won for Lindbergh, for Joseph, for Paul, for Christ, and for Daniel. It is the winning spirit and we cannot hope to win without it.

"You must have the spirit like may be likened to the Rock of Gibraltar that always stands there the same—in storm and calm, alike. Though the winds of adversity beat against your soul have the spirit of determination and self-denial that will carry you through the storm.

"You will be sorely tried out in this world and you must have the spirit to say, "No!" when temptation is strong.

"Sow these seed in your mind and transplant them to your heart for without a purpose you will be like a ship without a rudder, without a compass, a captain, or a chart—you will never make port. But if you are determined you will arrive in the haven of success—hold steadily to your purpose.

"Lindbergh made his memorable flight after weeks and weeks of outer and inner preparation. He was getting himself ready to face that steady grind and that ordeal that awaited him out there over the Atlantic. It was not luck that he succeeded; it was pluck! After everything was in readiness and he started down that run-way to clear the obstacles at the far end by a matter of just a very few inches, Lindbergh did not relinquish for one moment his firm grip on that control stick. He had determination in his heart. He could never have done it had he not had purpose and determination.

"If you would succeed, young people, you must have determination of purpose. Joseph saved his virtue because he had determination of heart. Paul had the same spirit and he won.

"You have finished your examinations here in school but the main examinations in life come after school days are over. Hard tests will be yours, so live a simple life in dressing, in eating,—in everything.

"You will be surprised at the unreasonable and unusual requests that the world will make, but the world has to be taken as it is."

The Rev. O'Brien then related the story of the wise men's dilemma and of Daniel's triumph and gratitude after the king's dream had been interpreted.

"Gratitude is the mother of all the virtues," declared the speaker in touching upon his second point illustrating the meaning of an excellent spirit. If you want to be preferred, cultivate the spirit of gratitude and thankfulness."

He emphasized the importance of faithfulness to friends, business associates, and teachers in the third point of his sermon.

"You must be true to God. If you leave God out now, there will come a time when He will leave you out. Whether you are in a strange land, in spite of riches and honors, in the face of death, stay with Him here and He will stay with you there.

"Joseph and Daniel were each preferred even above the wise and great men of the nations where they were taken as slaves. The spirit of the men account for this.

"These characteristics have marked every really great life. Those who have manifested these characteristics have been preferred through the years.

"Be true to God at home and abroad. Be true to Him all your life and be steadfast in spirit," he said in concluding.

DRESS MAKING AND BUTTER JUDGING CONTESTS SOON

The date for the dress making and butter judging contests among the Home Demonstration Club women of Floyd County will be set just as soon as it is determined when a judge from the Extension Service of A. & M. In the dress-making contests, it is an afternoon dress that will be made and exhibited by those who are in the contest, and as many as desire may enter.

In the butter judging contest only one member from a club may enter, according to the rules. Before the date for the county contest, the different clubs will have held their club eliminations to determine the representative of the club.

Officially Open Highway Between Crowell and Vernon On May 9

Marking the official opening of the paving of the Crowell-Vernon section of the Lee Highway, a celebration was held and a program given Friday in Crowell which was attended by representatives from every town along the highway in Texas. Judge Wm. McGehee, E. W. Henderson, and S. W. Ross went from Floydada, returning Friday night.

County Judge McGehee made a talk to the hundreds assembled and told in a short address the condition of the road in this county. He declared that the people in this territory take pride with those in other counties along the route upon the completion of their respective paving units.

Clint Small of Wellington, candidate for governor, was also one of the speakers. Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene, state highway commissioner; R. H. Coffey of Vernon, vice-president of the Lee Highway Association, discussed the history of the organization and its relation with the state highway system. All of the speakers stressed the importance of closing all "gaps" with paving and expressed individually the hope that every unit in Texas would be hard surfaced within the immediate future.

Of the counties east of Floyd, Motley, Cottle, Foard and Wilbarger have voted bonds for paving their respective sections of the Lee Highway. Hale County on the west is expected to begin on their division soon, it was indicated.

Crowell and Wichita Falls furnished the entertainment features for the 500 delegates attending the meeting.

Members of the Floyd County group stated that the road between Floydada and Crowell had been straightened until the distance now is exactly 103 miles. After additional changes are made in Floyd and Motley counties this total is expected to be reduced several more miles.

With The County Clubs

SAND HILL HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Sand Hill home demonstration club met last Wednesday afternoon in the club room at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. H. O. Shurbet as hostess assisted by Mrs. Hilery Shurbet. Seventeen members answered the roll call with one new member and one visitor present. A committee was appointed to take the club quilt to Floydada, Saturday May 17 for exhibit. The award will be made May 23 at the Sand Hill auditorium when a program will be given.

The subject for the afternoon was children of the Bible.

The next meeting of the club will be May 21 at 3:30 at the club room with Mrs. W. H. Pope as hostess. The subject will be butter judging.

The roll call will be answered with "the amount of butter I sell each week." The best and quickest way of churning,"—Mrs. A. R. Hanna, "Demonstration of judging butter,"—Miss Marie Strange.

INTERESTING MEETING OF TRICK CLUB HELD MAY 9

Trick Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Byars at 2 p. m. on May 9. Eight members responded to the roll call by telling the amount of butter or cream they sold each week. As there was no business to attend to, Miss Strange started a discussion upon the Women's Afternoon Dress Contest, and the butter judging contest to be held in June. Four members have decided to enter these interesting contests.

Miss Strange gave two demonstrations, one on the baking of angel food cakes and the other on butter judging.

A great interest is being displayed in this year's club work. We were glad to welcome Miss Gladys Murphy into the club as a new member and hope others will follow her.

The next meeting will be held on May 23, with Mrs. Hill Harris as hostess.

After the demonstrations delicious refreshments of cake and ice cream were served to nine members. They were Mrs. John Hanna, Mrs. C. W. Murphy, Mrs. Hill Harris, Mrs. H. D. Ashby, Mrs. W. E. Taack, Mrs. Baylor Byars, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Opal Ashby and Miss Gladys Murphy and one visitor, Miss Maggie Delater.

HARMONY CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Herman Krause was hostess to the Harmony Home Demonstration club in a meeting at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, May 7. "Butter Judging" was the subject discussed, and the roll call was answered by each member telling the amount of butter or cream sold each week.

Miss Strange was present and gave a demonstration on butter judging. There were eleven members present and one new member. Two visitors were also present.

The next meeting of the Harmony club will be held with Mrs. W. M. Finkner on May 21. The next meeting will be of a business nature. We are to elect a delegate to represent our club at A. & M. Short Course. We are also to work on afternoon dresses.

SOUTH PLAINS CLUB NAMES SHORT COURSE DELEGATES

The South Plains Home Demonstration Club, in their meeting on Friday afternoon, May 2, named Mrs. Walter Wood and Mrs. George West as delegates to the Short Course at A. & M. College in August. The club discussed the raising of club funds and each member was given her part in the county fair exhibit.

Mrs. J. C. Simpson was hostess to the club at her home. She was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Oma Neal, in serving a dainty refreshment plate consisting of pink ice cream and devil's food cake with pink icing.

All the members of the club regret we did not get to go to Cedar on April 29, as the roads were so muddy over this way.

The next meeting of the club will be held on May 16, when Miss Strange will be with us and give a demonstration on butter judging.

BLANCO DEMONSTRATION CLUB

The Blanco Home Demonstration Club met April 29, at the home of Mrs. S. L. Holmes, at 2 o'clock P. M. The subject discussed at the meeting was the Foundation Garment.

Roll call.

"My Hardest Fitting Problem."

During the business session the club unanimously voted to send our president, Mrs. D. R. Badgett to Short Course at A. & M. College this summer.

Miss Marie Strange gave a demonstration on "Altering Commercial Patterns," and Mrs. O. L. Lowrance served as a model.

Delightful refreshments were served to ten members.

Thursday, our regular meeting day the club met at the home of Mrs. Hartsell. Meeting was called to order at 2:30 by the president. Ten members answered roll call and we were indeed delighted to enroll two new members, Mrs. Lee Trice and Mrs. Turner of near Floydada.

Miss Strange was present and gave a very interesting lecture on preparation for the County Fair. It was so effective that we immediately assigned each member with a part in score for the Fair this fall.

"Better Judging" was the subject for this meeting and Miss Strange gave a demonstration in churning and judging butter.

The next meeting will be the third Thursday at 2:00 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Badgett. It will be a business and sewing meeting.

PROVIDENCE 4H CLUB MEETS

Miss Marie Strange, county demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on planning menus at a meeting of the Providence 4H Club girls held at the Providence School on May 5. There were five members present, which is 100 per cent of our membership. The girls present for the meeting were Francis Damron, Nela W. Avenell Bennett, Lucille Thompson and Dela Mae Cassel.
